TEACHERS CONFER AT RICHMOND

Governor Price Pledges Aid to Public Schools.

Governor Price and other administrators and educators inspired and advised delegates and other teachers from the Prince William County Teachers Association who attended the annual convention of the Virginia Education Association during the Thanksgiving holidays from November 20-23 at Richmond.

Delegates from the Prince William County Teacher's Association were Mr. Worth Peters, chairman; Miss Margaret Powell of Quantico, and Mr. Montgomery Johnston of Occoquan. Those who also attended were Mr. R. C. Haydon, Miss Sue Evelyn Irons and Miss Jane Lybrook of Dumfries, and Miss Pauline Brown, of Occoquan.

Governor Price told delegates at the Virginia Education Association convention that he planned to give the schools first consideration in making up the next biennial budget. This would, he said, include recommendation to the General Assembly "the establishment of an actuarially sound plan for the retirement of teachers", and that the new budget would include funds to increase the state's contribution per teacher salary until to $720 a year by the fiscal year 1943-44.

The convention was opened Wednesday night, November 20, with a speech by Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, editor, Richmond News Leader, who discussed "The Educator's Approach to War". In his talk, he told the teachers of Virginia's children that "war is the denial of reason but if we go into it we must not deny our own reason". While setting the theme for the convention, Dr. Freeman said, we must accept the nation's plans for protection but that we must see the equities in war, that we must do away with hate, and that we must have no delusions about war and its costs. "War is Hell", Dr. Freeman emphasized.

At one of the many sectional meetings which Prince William County teachers attended, Dr. Gerald S. Craig of Columbia University told of the importance of science in our schools today. Dr. Craig said that unfortunately the scientific method was something that is put on, like an apron, upon entering the laboratory, and still more unfortunately, was taken off when leaving the laboratory. He said that the scientific method must be applied to all our life, to our economics, government, and community life. Physical science, he continued, has progressed faster than Social science. As a result, we have an age of gadgets and an age of chaos rather than an age of science.

Of particular interest was the Health, Physical Education and Recreation meeting on Friday afternoon, November 23, led by Dr. N. P. Neilson, executive secretary, National Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, since one of the special objectives of Prince William County teachers this year is the setting up of an adequate program of Health and Physical Education in the county. In Dr. Neilson's speech, which was broadcast over WMBG, he said that the United States is a nation of sit-downers and lie-downers. He said that modern inventions and convenient transportation had increased the amount of leisure time and decreased physical activity. This leisure, said Mr. Neilson, was spent sitting down at the movies, at cards, as spectators at football games; or lying down reading. The results, he pointed out, are indigestion or sluggishness for which we take cigarettes, alcohol, aspirin, or habit-forming soft-drinks; all of which make us further unfit physically. Dr. Neilson emphasized that we must have vigorous activities, that there was "no short cut to physical fitness".

As the conclusion for his radio address, Dr. Neilson discussed Bill H. R. 10606 which has been presented to Congress for the promotion of the Physical Welfare of our nation by grants to states totaling $100,000,000 annually to obtain the services of physical training experts, to provide playground and physical education equipment, and to provide summer camps for the further physical development of the youth of our nation.

Dr. Neilson pointed out that in the last war one-third of the draftees examined were found physically un-

NEAR FATAL ACCIDENT

Russell Polen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Polen and local high school student, had a near fatal accident while hunting in the undergrowth near his home on Saturday.

He was working his way through the brush at the time, and was using his gun to hold the low branches back when a twig caught in the trigger and discharged the load directly into his left forearm.

The shot tore away the tendons and flesh, breaking the bone but luckily missing the vital artery.

Young Polen was rushed to a Washington Hospital where he is resting quietly and should return home in a few days.

fit for service. As a result, Physical Education began to be included in most schools after 1917. Since that time American citizens have come to a more thorough realization of the value of physical fitness. He quoted President Roosevelt, who said that our citizens were soft and that they should be tough.

ARMORIES ARE CALLED UNFIT

Inspection Shows Virginia Defenses Need Improvement

Carrying out an inspection authorized by the Governor of Virginia, Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, chairman of the State Planning Board, has just made a report in which it is stated that most of Virginia's thirty-four armories are unfit for efficient military training. Only four were found more or less satisfactory, and some were graded very low.

The lowest rating was handed to the Hopewell Army which was referred to in the report as a "structure hardly deserving the name of an armory". Roanoke also came in for a lambasting.

It was stated that national guard units everywhere gave the most courteous and helpful assistance in making the survey, frankly revealing inadequacies as a means of securing needed public assistance in bringing the various armories up to a standard.

The ratings given the various armories in Virginia are as follows:

Newport News, 95; Portsmouth, 89; Lynchburg, 85; Richmond Howitzers' Armory, 84; Onancock, 83; Martinsville, 82; Danville, 81; Blacksburg, 79; Emporia, 78; Petersburg, 77; Petersburg, 78; Charlottesville, 77; Fredericksburg, 77; Harrisonburg, 74; Blackstone, 70; Hampton, 70; Norfolk Blues' Armory, 69; Chase City, 65; Bedford, 64; Richmond Blues' Armory, 62; Norfolk Princess Anne Road Armory, 61; Wytheville, 59; Altavista, 5; Alexandria, 48; Richmond Grays' Armory, 48; Farmville, 47; Berryville, 46; Roanoke, 45; and Hopewell, 36.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS HOLD THANKSGIVING SERVICE

A Thanksgiving Day service was held by First Church of Christ, Scientist, East Falls Church, in the church edifice, Fairfax Drive and Little Falls Road at 11 o'clock on the morning of Thanksgiving Day. The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and its branches in the United States hold Thanksgiving Day services each year, and the services held in First Church of Christ, Scientist, East Falls Church was in keeping with this custom.

"Thanksgiving" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon read at this service. The Golden Text was: "Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness. (Psa. 97:12).

After the responsive reading in which the congregation took part, Mrs. Sarah E. Sherier, the Second Reader, read citations from the Bible and Mr. J. Morton Franklin, the First Reader, read the correlative passages from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

Among the Scriptural verses was included: "Oh! how great is thy goodness, which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee: which thou hast wrought for them that trust in thee before the sons of men!! (Psa. 31:19).

And among the citations from Science and Health was: "How empty are our conceptions of Deity! We admit theoretically that God is good, omnipotent, omnipresent, infinite, and then we try to give information to this infinite Mind. We plead for unmerited pardon and for a liberal outpouring of benefactions. Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have, and thus be fitted to receive more." (p. 3).

There was congregational singing of the hymns from the Christian Science Hymnal, and the soloist, Miss Jean F. Bishop, sang "Thank God for Blessings" by Vaughan Warrick.

After the Lesson-Sermon, the Christian Scientists in the congregation were given the opportunity to express gratitude for the blessings that had come to them during the past year. The time was fully taken up with testimonies of healing and other benefits received.

The services was concluded with the benediction: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all." (1 Chron. 29:11).

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alis Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Deceived" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 1.

The Golden Text will be "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else" (Isa. 45:22).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil" (Eph. 6:10,11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christians must take up arms against error at home and abroad. They must grapple with sin in themselves and in others, and continue this warfare until they have finished their course. If they keep the faith, they will have the crown of rejoicing" (p. 29).

WILD GEESSE CALLING

Stewart Edward White

"Wild Geese Calling" was published in New York City by Doubleday, Doran and Company Inc. during 1940.

Stewart Edward White, the author of "Wild Geese Calling," is an outdoorsman as well as an author. His stories are usually about his own exciting adventures. After a vast amount of research work he also writes outstanding historical fiction. This type of adventure is written in an interesting everyday manner.

"Wild Geese Calling" is the story of a full blooded youth, whose ancestors were frontiersmen in the settlement, and of the development of our great nation. The plot begins near the Pacific Coast where John Murdock was a top cowhand, although the job did not satisfy his adventurous blood. He would have no satisfaction until he had the right woman and the right job; however, he had as yet no idea as to the kind of woman or job he sought. John, as all outdoorsmen do, let fate take her course.

John married Sally Slocum, a pretty school mistress of twenty. John now had a family to support, causing him to seek regular employment. He worked in various branches of the lumber industry until he met Len Saunders, an "Old Timer" from Alaska.

Len encouraged John to buy a boat in which to go to Alaska. Sally was pleased with John's purchase and was anxious to start for the "Land of Milk and Honey". The trio had a wonderful voyage to Alaska on the "Tillicum".

John and Sally loved the country, which was one of majestic awe, and loved the people also who were backward in welcoming strangers. They obtained a cabin with the surrounding property abounding with all kinds of game. No one had time to hunt, though, because they were hard at work obtaining more money to go still farther north.

All plans were upset, however, by Sally's giving birth to a child. John gives a somewhat humorous appearance about this incident as any young father would. The plans to move northward were changed and John found the cabin and surrounding property a satisfactory homestead, even though geese did migrate a slight bit farther north.

Like the other books of Stewart Edward White, "Wild Geese Calling" will be found interesting to all readers and will be of special importance to the outdoorsman.

This book may be borrowed from the Ruffner-Carnegie Library. —Edward Jasper.

Virginia Families In All Walks Of Life Adopt Children

Adoption Risks Reduced to Minimum

Families without children in all walks of life throughout Virginia have found that they can secure children for adoption through the Children's Home Society of Virginia with a minimum risk and with every promise for the establishment of a happy home for themselves as well as for the adopted child.

Children's Home Society, which added to placements of previous years, makes a total of more than 100 adoptive placements now being supervised by the Society workers pending final adoption.

Methods Used to Reduce Risk in Adoption

The Children's Home Society of Virginia makes every possible effort to reduce the risk in adoption. It strives for a complete study and understanding of the child, so it may offer protection both to the youngster and his adoptive home. The Society realizes the important part family life plays in the development of a normal, healthy child, and before any of the children under their supervision are considered ready for adoption, they are placed in the care of foster parents, who watch over them as their own, and accept them as part of the family, even though it is understood that they will have to separate eventually in the case of adoption. Given this attention, naturally a youngster, once homeless, becomes adapted to home life.

Society Rescues Children and Prepares Them for Adoption

In recent years the work of the Society has developed very largely in the field of accepting children who are in fact homeless and should be placed for adoption. Of course, all children accepted do not fall in this class, because frequently a plan is worked out whereby a child who has relatives is accepted for temporary care and subsequently returned to someone in his own family, but mere and more the work of the Society is the constructive service to those children for whom adoptive homes must be found.

Last year twenty-nine adoptions were completed. These children were prepared for adoption at an average cost to the Society of $400 each, which included such necessary expenses as clothing, board, medical care, and their supervision in boarding homes. The Society's policy of ample preparation for the child, but the family as well, because it means that the child-placing agency does not advocate a baby's adoption until he is physically and emotionally prepared for it.

Thirty-five additional youngsters were placed for adoption in 1940 and they will, if all goes well, be adopted in the near future. Before legal adoption proceedings can begin, each child must remain in the family for a minimum period of one year. This best-period promises the child a congenial environment and at the same time helps the parents to wisely select a child who will fit into their particular family life. Since the first of this year, twenty-eight additional placements for adoption have been reported by the Children's Home Society, which added to placements of previous years, makes a total of more than 100 adoptive placements now being supervised by the Society workers pending final adoption.

New Families Can Get Children for Adoption

After a preliminary application, either by mail or telephone, or a personal visit to one of the offices of Children's Home Society of Virginia, located in Richmond, Staunton, and Marion, the family selects a child whom they think they want to have in their own home. The child goes with them to the home under a very definite understanding between the agency and the family, which includes the return of the child by the family at any time, within the year before adoption, if they feel they have made a mistake. In all, knowledge of the child's health, intelligence, and family background, procured by what might be called the "diagnostic" test of living with him for a whole year, makes adoption a fairly safe bet.

WATERFALL

Thanksgiving Day passed happily, but quietly for most of us. Such lovely Indian summer days so all could come and go without inconvenience of bad weather, and so much for which to be thankful. Things are never so bad, they could not be worse is an old saying worth remembering. We heard a few sportsmen about, but game is not abundant anymore. Notwithstanding the strict enforcement protecting the hunters ever did. Why not put a bounty on their hides, so we at least could save a turkey or a rooster for dinner. Yes, we were thankful we had enough chink to buy one.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnes and children of Arlington and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Simpson of Maryland visited at Hagley several days last week. Mr. Herman Smith also spent Thanksgiving Day at his home.

Mr. Billy Wright of University of Virginia, Mr. Carroll Wright and sons, Edward, Robert and Carroll of Baltimore, and Mrs. Alice Wright visited Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wright during Thanksgiving holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Hunt of Burbank, Calif., spent several days last week with his brother, Mr. Jack Hunt, calling on old friends during their visit, they returned Thursday evening to Washington entraining from there to their home in Burbank.

Mrs. R. J. Wayland and children of Occoquan spent Thanksgiving Day with her parents at Mt. Atlas.

Miss Florence Smith, Mrs. Stuart Pickett and daughter, Peggy, visited Mrs. E. E. Pickett at Seat Pleasant, Md., several days last week, and all had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. P. Fish in Washington on Thursday.

Mr. Howard Bell has been quite sick and confined to his bed for the past week but is now on the mend and hoped to be out in a few days. During his illness he was visited by his children, Mrs. Albert Gaines of Falls Church, Howard Bell, Jr., and wife of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Bell.

Mr. Harrison Bowen of New York spent the week end at his farm, Poplar Hill.

Mr. Preston Smith is making some improvements and changes to his dwelling before he and his bride move in. Since their return from their honeymoon in the Rockies several weeks ago, they are residing with his parents. Preston had anticipated a home in the West, but his better half said no, Virginia was good enough for her. So they will soon be domiciled at Meadowbrooke, and we are glad.

Mr. Robert Smith, whose allergic condition had again become critical and all medical aid useless. He decided to try the desert land, accompanied by Mr. Fowler Ashby, he left by auto, Monday, Oct. 2, arriving in Phoenix, Ariz., the following Friday.

He writes us he has had no trace of illness since he left Virginia. Because of his health he resigned a responsible position as treasurer of the Arnold Bus Company in Arlington.

A stranger in a strange city but not for long. He writes that people there are friendly and nice with only a letter from his former employer, in less than a month he secured a clerical job with a bonding company was given preference over 95 other applicants. This speaks well for Robert, who has a charming personality. We will miss him lots especially Sundays at Antioch, where he was seldom absent. After all we are happy that he has found a place he can really breathe, and distance is not what it used to be. Fowler is back at his old job in Haymarket, after his long trip via the World's Fair and a visit with his mother, and sister in New York City.

FRANK CRAVEN IS VOICE OF CITY IN STRAND FILM

Once life as an actor stretched before Frank Craven like a succession of fields to conquer. Now he has conquered them, with a fielding average to surpass almost everybody's. Critics are already praising his latest work as the old philosopher in the Cagney-Sheridan picture, "City For Conquest", now at the Strand.

Son of John T. Craven and Ella Hayer, stage stock couple, and born in Boston in 1876, Frank was brought up under his parents' tutelage that he spend his life in a non-professional background.

But acting was in his blood. He made his theatre debut at 8 years of age in "The Silver King". After that he was sent to the rural home of relatives on Cape Cod, under the belief he would learn farming and settle down but at 16 Frank went to visit his parents in a Baltimore repertory theatre and asked to join their profession.

It might have been back to the apple orchards and the clam coves again but about that time young Craven's father sickened in Baltimore, and when he died Frank put on the makeup of a middle aged man, and took over his parent's role. With the bit in his teeth, this launched him on a 49-year career as actor.

Since then Frank has been stage director, playwright and filled all the various other capacities of the theatre. He became a favorite actor for two generations. He also turned to motion pictures after consolidating his eminence on the stage, and writer. He has been one of the possessors of the envied writer-director contracts.

As the "Old Timer", shabby but all knowing old fellow who becomes the voice of all New York, and interprets the soul of the city of the audience in Jimmy Cagney's "City For Conquest" at Warner Bros., Craven crowns eleven years of moving picture work with a role of highly unusual nature and quality.

When he was on the stage, Craven stepped from his original role as elderly man, to a series of parts as juvenile. Then he became one of Broadway's most highly compensated playwrights. "Too Many Cooks", "New Brooms", "The Little Stranger", "Money from Home", and "This Way Out", came from his pen. He both wrote and starred in "The First Year" and "The Nineteenth Hole"

Craven entered motion pictures in 1929, when they found their voice. His first film was "The Very Idea". Since then he has been in sixty-odd pictures. No role he played ever got a bad review.

U. S. ARMY MORALE

It took the 20th century to translate into something approaching a mathematical formula an essential of warfare which has been recognized since man started to kill on an organized basis and which is called morale. How the Army Morale Division will operate and the part it plays in national defense is outlined in an illustrated featured article appearing next Sunday in The Washington Sunday Star.

What God has cleansed that call not thou common.—Acts 10:15.

THE PEOPLE ARE WITH DIES

The President of the United States this week warned Chairman Dies not to make public his information on Communistic activities in this country.

It is also recalled that when Chairman Dies exposed the names of "Red" Government officials that the President also characterized the revelation as a "sordid" proceeding.

The people of the United States have re-elected Mr. Roosevelt on his foreign policy. They believe that he is handling the dangerous international situation satisfactorily and they are inclined to defer consideration of domestic issues until Adolph Hitler is disposed of.

nation to its very depth.

Chairman Dies has the majority of the people of this country with him on this issue with the President. An increasing number of patriotic citizens are beginning to believe that the Government is shielding, rather than prosecuting Communism in America and that no real action is contemplated against them.

It is also realized that in time of peace, under our democratic system of government there is very little that we can do against them unless they commit some crime. The best that we can do is to expose them to public contempt and to demand that the President use his own vast power to separate them immediately from the Federal pay roll for the good of the service.

We believe that Chairman Dies should make his threatened exposures, and that the condition revealed will be so officially rotten that Mr. Roosevelt will have to act in the interest of national safety.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL FROWNS

The Attorney General of the United States has publicly frowned upon the recent disclosures of Chairman Dies on the German commercial plans for this country.

The average citizen deplors this seeming effort of the Administration to smear Mr. Dies whenever he exposes Un-American activity. We recall a very notable incident some time ago when the Dies exposure of the names of government officials affiliated with Communism, that a very high official indeed characterized the Committee report as "sordid".

Now that we have conscription, and are definitely engaged in strengthening our national defense, the American people are becoming sternly cognizant of the presence in high official places of men who have been affiliated in various ways with Communistic and subversive activities, and while every patriotic citizen will do everything in his power to strengthen our defense system, it will also be considered a further patriotic service to see that these vipers are separated from the government pay-roll as speedily as possible, regardless of how Mr. Stalin may like it.

It is astonishingly true that wherever the government of the United States is officially concerned with subversive activity and Un-American propaganda, the official in charge of protecting the national welfare has some kind of "Red" affiliation. Not all of them of course, but an unbelievable number, and it is getting high time to clean house.

Chairman Dies is right in putting the spot-light of publicity upon Nazi activity, Communist propaganda and sabotage plans of every source, and if the Attorney General of the United States would dismiss from his own office every official who has held any kind of position in a Communist organization, beginning with the National Committee of Friends of the Soviet Union, he would be performing a much more patriotic service than by attempting to discredit Chairman Martin Dies.

SEAL PURCHASE AIDS NATIONAL DEFENSE

In organizing the best possible defense, Virginians and all other Americans should make provision to purchase a relentless war against tuberculosis, according to statements issued by both President Roosevelt and Governor James H. Price, gave their unqualified endorsement to the annual Christmas Seal campaign which began Monday, November 5.

In military preparedness, President Roosevelt said, tuberculosis, a communicable disease which kills more persons between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other malady, might interfere with mustering the best possible manpower.

"From now until Christmas Day" the President said, "we, as individuals, by the generous purchase of the Seals, can do our part to help the tuberculosis association free us from the deadly menace of this communicable disease."

Governor Price called upon all citizens of the Commonwealth to support the Christmas Seal campaign.

"I am very happy" he said, "to endorse the Christmas Seal Campaign to raise funds for the prosecution of the war against tuberculosis. Last year 1,639 of our Virginia people died of this preventable and curable disease and thousands were disabled from its effects."

"In the present crisis", the Governor went on, "which calls for total defense, it is well that relentless war should be waged against the 'great white plague' which has taken for many years a dreadful toll of American manpower in the vital age period from 15 to 45 years."

"The Virginia Tuberculosis Association, which conducts the sale of Christmas Seals, has done much to free us from the deadly menace of this communicable disease and deserves the support and co-operation of all good citizens who are naturally interested in the public welfare."

CITY FOR CONQUEST AT PITTS NEXT THURS. & FRI.

A powerful drama of undying love in the big city is the thrilling theme that will greet Strand audiences today when Warner Bros' new film, "City For Conquest" starts its local run. The film, starring James Cagney and Ann Sheridan, is as turbulent, exciting and dramatic as New York City itself.

Cagney plays the part of an East Side newsboy who discovers that one must be hard and tough to make a dent in the town. Ann Sheridan has the role of a girl who finds that the price of success can be very high. Together they plan to accomplish something—to beat their way through the cruel oppression of the town's seven and a half million struggling souls. Ann dances her way to fame while Cagney tries to earn enough money to marry her and send his brother through music school. They find that the city can be conquered, but only if one can face great tragedy and sacrifice. Theirs is a story that will never be forgotten.

"City For Conquest" has a supporting cast that is unsurpassed. Frank Craven, fine actor of the legitimate theatre, plays the role of a wise, old philosopher who knows his New York inside out—from the Battery to the Bronx. Frank McHugh lends humor to the film as a typical Noo Yawker who is never at a loss for words of advice. Donald Crisp, known for his splendid performances, runs true to form as Cagney's unswerving pal. Arthur Kennedy, fresh from the New York stage, is cast as Cagney's brother, who composes a "Symphony of the Magic Isle" that is the soul and tempo of New York.

Also featured in the brilliant cast are George Tobias, Jerome Coman, Ella Kazan, Joyce Compton, Lee Patrick, Anthony Quinn, Blanche Yurke, George Lloyd, Thurston Hall, Ben Walter, John Arledge, Ed Keane,

ANN SOTHERN FEATURED AT LOCAL THEATRE

That outstanding screen favorite, Ann Sothern, brings new laughs to audiences in her latest comedy, "Dulcy", which opens next Monday and Tuesday, December 2 and 3, at the Pitts' Theatre for an engagement of two days.

"Dulcy" outlines the exploits of a modern young woman who has good ideas but whose faculty for running other people's affairs get them as well as herself into hilarious difficulties. Miss Sothern has never turned a more finished performance. Her scenes in every instance are perfectly timed. In this drama she is given an opportunity to wear a wardrobe of smart, Adrian-designed clothes, some trick hairdresses, and to adopt a new type of wisecrack which varies from the "Maisie" characterizations for which she has become famous.

An acre cast of comedians support Miss Sothern in featured roles of the production. As her leading man is Ian Hunter who adds another to his long list of dependable performances. As the nervous airplane magnate, Roland Young leaves nothing to be desired in his interpretation. Billie Burke is excellent as usual, and Reginald Gardiner plays a slightly unbalanced gentleman with gusto. Young love is represented by Dan Dailey, Jr., and Lynne Carver. Guinn Williams does an excellent bit as a reformed crook turned butler, and many of the laughs center about five-year-old Donald Hule, Chinese boy who makes his screen debut as "Sneezy". The picture has been expertly directed by S. Sylvan Simon.

We wish to thank our various correspondents for sending their notes early this week.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving remembrance of our darling baby boy, Stanley Ray Carter, who departed from us two years ago, Nov. 28, 1938. There is a cloud across my sun today For two years you went away No one knows how much we miss you No one knows the bitter pain Since I lost you dear (Baby Ray) Life has never been the same.

With only one last hope in view And this I know is true You never can return to me But I can come to you.

And when the storm of life has ceased And the mist has rolled away I will fold this earthly tent of clay And meet you some sweet day Our loved one is sleeping. So free from all pain. Oh! wake not his spirit to suffer again.

By his loving mother and father, sister and brother, Ralph and Louise.

Alma V. Carter.

Careers in Engineering

By Rufus T. Strohm

Dean, International Correspondence Schools

MANY professional engineers believe that the increase in the number of graduate engineers from 2,000 in 1890 to 165,000 in 1930 means an overcrowding of the profession. Such an opinion, no doubt, has been influenced by employment conditions.

There are many other engineers who feel that the training of highly skilled engineers will contribute much toward curing some of our economic ills. Certainly if the term "engineering" includes the technicians, the laboratory workers and the junior engineers, there always will be sufficient openings for engineering graduates.

The achievements of present-day engineering will appear as interesting experiments compared to many accomplishments that lie ahead. More efficient harnessing of power, improved transportation on land, sea and in the air, universal communication and free exchange of scientific knowledge, exploitation of raw materials, a more sympathetic approach to all the problems of modern life—these and many others are the problems which will keep thousands of engineers busy for years to come.

New applications of scientific knowledge are continually developing. The more we know about the forces and materials of nature, the better chance we have to use them in some manner beneficial to the race.

JOE CAWTHORN APPEARS IN JUDY CANOVA FARCE

The history of musical comedy in written in the veins of Joe Cawthorn, who 1873 at the age of three started his long career in the theatre.

For thirty years Cawthorn starred in musical comedy hits that were produced by such great names as Klaw and Erlanger, Charles Frohman, Charles Dillingham, Al Woods and Hammerstein, names that were synonymous with the rise of musical comedy. Cawthorn won a wide reputation as a leading comic on the stage, and specialized in a German dialect that his audience thought was his own, although he is of pure English descent.

When the motion picture industry decided it too could make musical comedies, and reach a far greater audience than any stage, Cawthorn was called from New York to play featured roles. "Half Moon" was written especially for him by William LeBaron, vice president in charge of production at Radio Pictures. Cawthorn received a long term contract from RKO, and played in such hits as "Dixiana", and "Street Girl". He scored a triumph in the "Cat and the Fiddle", musical for Metro and played in "The Last Gentleman" and "Serenade".

It is still musical comedy for Joe Cawthorn, and his latest is "Scatterbrain", 1940 vintage, in which he plays the role of a caricatured motion picture producer who talks slightly backwards and never knows what he wants when he wants it. It's a role that Cawthorn has plenty of fun with, and while it robs Hollywood movie makers, the Cawthorn touch is sure to give no offense.

Judy Canova is the hillbilly that Cawthorn thinks he's looking for, but isn't, and Eddie Foy, jr., is the talent scout who tries to solve Alan Mowbray's casting problems for the hillbilly picture he is directing. Isabel Jewell as an actress who'll even try yodeling to get into pictures. Wallace Ford, as Winchell's doppel, Emmett Lynn as Judy's Pappy from the hills, Luis Alberni, Ruth Donnelly and Jimmy Starr all help the comedy to run wilder in the Republic musical which opens for a one day run at the Pitts' Theatre, Wednesday, December 4.

BYRD SETS HIGH VOTE MARK IN ELECTION

The slow machinery of the State yesterday determined that Virginians in unprecedented numbers turned out on November 5, to give Virginia's 11 electoral votes to President Roosevelt, re-elect Senator Byrd and send nine Democratic Representatives back to Washington.

Official returns released by the State Board of Canvassers showed that the unofficial returns compiled by the Associated Press, with better than 96 per cent of the vote completed the night of November 5, were 99.6 per cent accurate.

The official returns showed the following voting records broken in Virginia:

The 346,607 votes cast for President was the greatest number cast in the history of Virginia.

President Roosevelt's 235,961 votes set a new high mark for votes received by a candidate with major party opposition in Virginia, although his lead over Wendell L. Willkie was only 126,598, as compared with a lead of 136,644 over Landon four years ago.

Senator Byrd received 274,260 votes, the highest ever received by a candidate with opposition in Virginia. Hilliard Bernstein, Socialist, got 11,159 votes and Mrs. Alice Burke, Communist, 8,250.
