BASED ON AN EARLIER PILOT PROGRAM, THIS PROGRAM, CONDUCTED FROM JANUARY 1966 TO MARCH 1967, WAS DESIGNED TO PREPARE HOME ECONOMISTS FOR LEADERSHIP IN TRAINING ADULTS AND OLDER YOUTH FOR HOMEMAKER SERVICES AND DEVELOP METHODS AND A CURRICULUM FOR TEACHING THE NECESSARY COURSES. TWENTY-EIGHT QUALIFIED HOME ECONOMISTS ATTENDED A 3-WEEK WORKSHOP T() DEVELOP INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS AND METHODS. LECTURES, REPORTS, AND DISCUSSIONS OF RESEARCH FINDINGS COVERED PROBLEM AREAS SUCH AS ETHICS OF HOMEMAKER SERVICE, MENTAL HEALTH, AND THE ILL AND AGING. EACH HOME ECONOMIST RETURNED TO HER PARISH AND TAUGHT A HOMEMAKER-HOME HEALTH AIDE TRAINING COURSE OF 6D HOURS OF CLASSROOM INSTRUCTION AND 2D HOURS OF SUPERVISED WORK EXPERIENCE. A TOTAL OF 380 HOMEMAKERS, 151 IN URBAN AND 229 IN RURAL AREAS, COMPLETED THE COURSE. THE TEACHER TRAINING WORKSHOP, HOMEMAKER TRAINING PROGRAM, AND TRAINEE WORK EXPERIENCE WERE EVALUATED. SOME FINDINGS WERE -- (1) ADVISORY COMMITTEES CONTRIBUTED TO THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE PROGRAMS, (2) THE SYLLABUS DEVELOPED BY HOME ECONOMISTS WAS AN EFFECTIVE TRAINING RESOURCE, (3) ANNOUNCEMENTS MADE THROUGH THE STATE EMPLOYMENT SERVICE AND LOCAL CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS AIDED TRAINEE RECRUITMENT AND PLACEMENT, (4) SERVICES OF PROGRAM GRADUATES RELIEVED DEMANDS ON NURSING HOMES AND HOSPITALS, (5) THE 80-HOUR TRAINING PROGRAM WAS JUDGED TO BE MORE SATISFACTORY THAN THE SHORTER ONES, AND (6) THE STRENGTH OF THE PROGRAM LAY IN THE ACQUIRED SKILLS AND ETHICAL CONDUCT OF CERTIFIED HOMEMAKERS. SUPPLEMENTARY MATERIALS INCLUDE EXAMPLES OF AN ANNOTATED COURSE OUTLINE, OTHER INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS, APPLICATION AND EVALUATION FORMS, A CERTIFICATE OF COMPLETION, AN ORGANIZATIONAL PLAN, AND A PARISH DIRECTORY OF CERTIFIED HOMEMAKERS. A TRAINING PROGRAM FOR SELECTED HOME ECONOMISTS TO TRAIN

ADULTS AND OLDER YOUTH FOR HOMEMAKER SERVICE RESPONSIBILITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

Homemaker service development in Louisiana was initiated in October, 1962 and included a three year project under partial sponsorship of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The project was administered cooperatively by Louisiana State University, School of Home Economics, and the State Department of Education, Home Economics Section, in conjunction with Southern University. The program was designed to train adults to accept certain responsibilities, help families in time of stress or need, or to care for the chronically ill and aging. During this three-year period, 62 home economics teachers were trained and 63 training programs were completed in 34 of Louisiana's 64 parishes. The State Department of Education certified 1,240 persons who successfully completed the training course. That project was terminated September 30, 1965.

A one-year, two-month project (January 19, 1966 through March 21, 1967) organized and planned to train qualified home economists for leadership in training adults and older youth for homemaker service responsibilities has been completed. This project was supported by a grant with the Office of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Twenty-eight additional home economists were trained in a three-week workshop to instruct 60 hours in the classroom and supervise 20 hours of on-the-job training. 15 parishes (counties) have completed 22 training programs. These figures include formerly trained instructors who were qualified to teach under the current program. 408 Homemakers were certified by the State Department of Education.

For the purpose of this report, the titles "Visiting Homemaker", "Homemaker", "Homemaker-Home Health Aide", and "Home Health Aide" mean the same. This is, a professionally trained, mature individual selected on the basis of personality, dependability, good health, and having a special interest in working with families and individuals needing services and assistance in crisis.

This program was begun in 1962 and the guidelines of the National Council for Homemaker Services was used. At that time, the title "Visiting Homemaker" was advocated. The latest materials from the National Council reported that the title has been changed to "Homemaker-Home Health Aide". This indicates that the trained individual is qualified to assume "homemaker" responsibilities and to assist in health care services. The title "Home Health Aide" is now being used for persons qualified to render the services in the Medicare Program. By working cooperatively with the Director, Louisiana State Board of Health, the Project Coordinator developed course work for trainees in Louisiana which does meet the minimum standards of training under that program and also prepares trainees for "homemaker" responsibilities as well.

This Project is being formally completed before all the instructors trained in the 1966 workshop have had training programs, therefore, this evaluation will not represent the total project. The State Department of Education, Home Economics Section has been acquainted with the plans and techniques of evaluation and plans for studying and reporting these data. Members of the Home Economics Staff, Louisiana State Department of Education have accepted the responsibility of analyzing additional data, summarizing the results of this program, and completing the evaluation.

A copy of the Training Proposal as was sumbitted to the U.S. Office of Education is included at the end of this report.

II. REVIEW OF PROJECT

October, 1962 - October, 1965

Eighty-six Visiting Homemakers were certified in the six parishes which were selected to conduct a pilot study in Louisiana, partially financed by the U. S. Public Health Service, Division of Chronic Diseases. Those parishes selected were: Caddo, Calcasieu, East Baton Rouge, Ouachita, Rapides, and Washington.

A Community Advisory Committee was organized in each of the six parishes included in the pilot study. Some of the duties of this local advisory committee were to acquaint the public with the program, assist in identifying individuals available for training and screening of these trainees.

A. Course of Study

After reviewing all available materials for training Visiting Homemakers, the Project Coordinator selected specific areas to be included in the course of study with the guidance of the State Advisory Committee and other consultants. These areas were developed into plans for teaching each problem selected for the training curriculum to be used by the home economics teacher as a guide for conducting the training course. Each problem plan included basic scientific practical information and data pertinent to the needs of the trained homemakers. Resource materials such as books, pamphlets and films were described to supplement each problem plan.

Although the home economics teacher was the key person in the organization of the homemaker service training program, she was encouraged to seek assistance from various persons in the community as consultants in certain areas. The training classes were organized to meet the criteria described by the State Department of Education, Homemaking for Adults, in that the total course must consist of a minimum of ten class meetings, twenty hours, and an average attendance of eight for each class meeting. Funds for teaching adults in each of the communities were allocated by the Home Economics Section, State Department of Education from Adult Education funds.

A certification program was planned by the Parish Advisory Committee at which time each participant, who had successfully completed the 20-hour training course, was recognized. A few members were selected from the class to explain to the audience what type service they were trained to give and some of the specific areas which were discussed in the 20-hour course. The school principal or a school board representative awarded each Visiting Homemaker a certificate and emblem indicating she had completed a training course in Visiting Homemaker Service. The certification program was usually held in the school auditorium and was attended by family members, friends of the Visiting Homemakers, and interested citizens. This program served an educational purpose to acquaint the community with Visiting Homemaker Service. At this final meeting, representatives from the State Employment Service interviewed each trainee to determine what hours she would be available for service. A registry of the trained homemakers was placed in the local employment office where the requests for homemaker service were referred. The home economics teacher continued to work with the group in an advisory capacity and cooperated with members of the Home Economics Supervisory Staff, State Department of Education in the supervision of the training program.

B. Teacher-Training Workshops

One-week workshops were held in July, 1963, 1964, and 1965 on the campuses of Louisiana State University and Southern University. The purpose of these workshops was to prepare home economics teachers for leadership in training persons in their respective communities for homemaker services and in working with local agencies to obtain their cooperation and participation. These teachers were selected by the Home Economics Supervisory Staff, State Department of Education in consultation with the Project Director and Project Coordinator. The workshop programs consisted of subject matter areas and other topics which were determined to be important in the development of a homemaker service training program by the project staff, the State Advisory Committee, and results of the pilot study.

C. Homemaker Service Training Programs Throughout State

The total three-year project involved: 1) preparation of 65 home economics teachers for leadership in the development of homemaker services, 51 who carried out their plans after training; 2) the completior of 63 basic training programs (20 hours) of which 15 were repeats (a second basic course taught because of the demand for the training in certain communities); 3) the expansion of homemaker service training in 34 of the 64 parishes of Louisiana; 4) the certification of 1227 mature adults who are trained to assist families in times of stress or to care for the chronically ill or aged; 5) the preparation of 37 teachers for supplementary training; 6) the certification of 193 persons who have gone beyond the basic level and have completed 40 hours of training. A summary of these project developments is presented in Table I. Porish Advisory Committees were organized for each program and a similar procedure was followed for organizing the classes as during the pilot study.

D. Appraisal of Homemaker Service Training Programs

Early in 1963-64, questionnaires were developed and mailed to selected persons in each parish where the homemaker service training program had been completed. The participants in the evaluation included 11 employment service personnel, nine selected home economics teachers and a random sampling of 93 Visiting Homemakers. The areas covered in the questionnaire were: 1) recruitment; 2) the training program; 3) placement; 4) community service; 5) on-the-job performance; 6) suggestions for improvement.

Several general trends which were indicated by the appraisal of the Visiting Homemaker Service Program are discussed below. The most effective methods of recruiting trainees seemed to be through news releases and radio-television announcements. The employment service personnel felt placement would be improved in their local offices if the homemaker would keep them informed when she was available or employed. There was a great demand for persons to live on the premises; the employment personnel suggested that the Visiting Homemakers make themselves available at more reasonable rates for such assignments. The teachers saw some confusion as to the distinction between homemaker service and domestic service. This indicated a need to acquaint the public with the service. According to the Visiting Homemakers, an organized system of placement was necessary. In some instances, Visiting Homemakers reported that placement had been excellent. Some suggested that more cooperation from hospitals and doctors might improve the placement system. The employment service personnel, home economics teachers, and Visiting Homemakers agreed that as a result of the homemaker service training the Visiting Homemakers were more employable and of more use to families and to the community. The concensus of the Visiting Homemakers concerning techniques which they could manage well in the home, indicated a deficiency in applying home nursing techniques.

E. Employment of Visiting Homemakers in Louisiana

A survey was begun in January, 1965 and was completed in June, 1965 in an attempt to learn how those certified Visiting Homemakers were applying their training. This survey included 1067 of the 1227 Visiting Homemakers and 26 of the 34 parishes, because the remaining 12 programs were not completed at that time.

The State Employment Service served as the central agency for placing Visiting Homemakers. Some of the parishes involved in the threeyear project did not have local employment offices, therefore the parish advisory committee, the parish health department, and the parish welfare department accepted responsibility for placement of Visiting Homemakers.

Of those contacted, 50.7 percent or 526 Visiting Homemakers responded. Table II represents the various methods of application of Visiting Homemaker training. Those engaged in Visiting Homemaker employment represented 36.7 percent of the total group responding. Some of those trained were not primarily interested in employment, but were interested in gaining the information so they could care for elderly parents, invalid spouse, etc -- 17.3 percent were applying their training in personal use. A small percentage had not had an opportunity to use their training and 38.8 percent were engaged in other types of employment. Of this group, 27 were full time aides in nursing homes and three were employed as aides in hospitals.

F. Continuation of Visiting Homemaker Training

There was evidence of much interest which was created in the Adult Education Program of the Home Economics Section, State Department of Education. Homemaker service training was continued as an integral part of the State's program for the first time. The Home Economics Supervisory Staff worked with those selected teachers who were trained in a supervisory capacity.

The Homemaker training program was developed into a total of 80 hours of training, 60 hours classroom instruction and 20 hours supervised work experience. This program was initiated in January, 1966 and concluded in March, 1967. This report is concerned with that training program.

II. REVIEW OF PROJECT January, 1966 - March, 1967

A. Objectives and Concepts

- To train qualified home economists for leadership in training adults and older youth to assume homemaker service responsibilities.
- To develop knowledge of methods and curricula content applicable to the teaching of Visiting Homemaker Service courses.
- To advance the ability to organize curricula for training adults and older youth in communities differing in needs and resources, including evaluation techniques for appraising the effectiveness of the instructional training program.
- To utilize knowledge of recent research concerning psychological, social and physical needs of the geriatric and chronically ill person.
- To develop the ability to use implications of research as aids in problem solving.
- To promote understanding of the difficulties and problems which arise in families during crises situations and thus to develop training for helping family members when the homemaker is incapacitated.
- To develop the ability to study a community's need for homemaker service and to appraise interest of adults and older youth in training for homemaker service responsibilities.

B. Methodology

Twenty-eight  $\frac{1}{}$  qualified home economists were selected to train in a workshop to teach service courses to adults and older youth for home-maker service responsibilities.

The special three-week workshop to train the home economists was conducted in the School of Home Economics, Louisiana State University from July 18, 1966 through August 5, 1966. Three hours of graduate credit was available for those who qualified for admission to Louisiana State University Graduate School.

Upon completion of their training, the home economists returned to their respective parishes to teach the homemaker service training course.

1/ This twenty-eight included Mrs. Charlene L. Detro who assumed the duties of Project Coordinator, replacing Mrs. Ganata N. Lovell.

Those interested adults and older youth who satisfactorily completed the 80 hour training program at the community level were certified as Visiting Homemakers.

C. Project Staff and Responsibilities

Dr. Clara Tucker was Project Director, School of Home Economics, Louisiana State University. Dr. Tucker's training included: Bachelor of Science Degree with two majors, Home Economics and Chemistry, Texas Woman's University; Master of Science Degree, major Home Economics Education and minor Educational Psychology, Columbia University; Doctor of Philosophy Degree, major, Child Psychology and Child Development, minor Psychology and Sociology, advanced training at Iowa State University, Cornell University, with degree being granted by Columbia University. Her experience has been as: teacher of home economics in secondary schools; training and supervision of college students preparing to teach home economics in secondary schools; college and university instructor of Child Development and Family Relations courses; administrator at Louisiana State University School of Home Economics which includes undergraduate teaching programs and research in the Home Economics Division, Agriculture Experiment Station Research Program.

The responsibilities of the Project Director were to: 1) plan with the Project Coordinator a workshop for the training of selected home economists; 2) assume leadership in cooperation with the Project Coordinator for the use of the advisory committee; 3) assist the Project Coordinator in securing the services of the university staff and members of state agencies who were trained to contribute to the teaching of different phases of subject matter required in the training of home economists; 4) serve as consultant to the Project Coordinator in the development of workshop curriculum; 5) serve as consultant in the selection and development of evaluative techniques adaptable to the objective appraisal of community training programs.

The duties of the Project Coordinator were: 1) leadership in developing workshop curriculum, evaluation of workshop and other training activities scheduled for selected home economists; 2) advise with trained home economists in organization and use of local advisory committees; 3) assist in selection of advisory committee members from participating communities; 4) help identify members of community and state agencies trained in health disciplines who could instruct trainees in the personal care aspects of homemaker service; 5) work cooperatively with the home economist in the development of the community training program; 6) guide the home economist in the selection, development, and use of appraisal methods in judging the effectiveness of the training program.

Serving in the capacity of Project Coordinator there have been two persons: Mrs. Ganata N. Lovell, through August 31, 1966 and Mrs. Charlene L. Detro. Mrs. Lovell's training included: a bachelor of Science Degree, major in Home Economics Education, Northwestern State College, Natchitoches, Louisiana and a Master of Science Degree, major Textiles and Clothing and minor Home Economics Education, Louisiana State University. Her experience has been: teacher of home economics and science in secondary school; adult education work in Vocational Education Program; graduate assistant in Marketing Research at Louisiana State University; Project Coordinator of Visiting Homemaker Training Project in Louisiana, three and one half years; and presently employed as Associate Specialist (Family Life, Aging) Cooperative Extension Service, Louisiana State University.

Mrs. Detro's training included a Bachelor of Science Degree with major in Home Economics, Northwestern State College, Natchitoches, Louisiana and a Master of Science Degree with a major in Textiles and Clothing, with minor in Family Life and Child Development, Louisiana State University. Her experience has been as: an assistant hospital dietician; teacher of home economics in secondary schools; graduate assistant in the Textiles Research Laboratory at Louisiana State University; welfare visitor; and Project Coordinator of Visiting Homemaker Training Project in Louisiana, beginning August 11, 1966.

A State Advisory Committee was organized in 1962 to offer guidance and direction for the development of the Visiting Homemaker Service Project. The same committee functioned for the duration of both projects. This committee included representatives from the following agencies: State Board of Public Health; State Department of Public Welfare; State Commission on the Aging; State Department of Education, Home Economics Division; State Nurses Association; State Medical Society; State Department of Labor, Employment Security Division; State Cooperative Extension Service. See Appendix A (pages A-1 through A-2) for listing of State Advisory Committee Members.

III. MAJOR PROJECT DEVELOPMENTS

The original plan for this project was to have two special workshops to train selected home economists. This plan was modified as there was low enrollment in the Spring and it was judged unwise to ask consultants to give their time for such a small group. Seemingly, it was difficult for the selected home economists to be away for three weeks during the school year. The workshop was conducted from July 18 through August 5, 1966.

A. Selection of Home Economists

Qualified home economists were selected to attend the three-week workshop at Louisiana State University. A series of surveys made by: The Louisiana Commission on the Aging; Home Economics Section, State Department of Education; and Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service served as a source for identifying qualified home economists in the State. This included a listing of unemployed home economists. Recommendations were also made by the Home Economics Education supervisory staff, State Department of Education and other agencies.

Final selection of home economists eligible for training was made by the Project Director, Project Coordinator, and Director, School of Home Economics, Louisiana State University.

During the original project, 30 parishes did not have trained home economists to conduct homemaker service programs. These parishes were given first consideration in the selection of home economists to attend the three-week workshop in July, 1966.

Studies of parishes with established homemaker programs indicated a need for additional Homemakers instructors to meet the community's need. Home Economists were selected from those parishes indicating such need.

Home economists were also selected from those parishes in which there had been a Homemaker training program, but the instructor was no longer participating in the program, and a need for additional Homemakers was evident.

B. Organization of Teacher Training Workshop

The original design of this training proposal was to conduct two special workshops to train selected home economists for teaching responsibilities of homemaker service courses to adults and older youth. The first workshop was scheduled during the Spring, 1966 semester and a later one in the Summer Session. This plan was altered as it was difficult for the home economists to attend a workshop in the Spring due to home responsibilities and/or employment commitments.

A three-week workshop was held during July-August, 1966 on the Baton Rouge campus of Louisiana State University. The purposes of this workshop were: to prepare home economists for leadership in training adults and older youths to assume homemaker service responsibilities; to prepare home economists for working with their local community leaders, stimulating interest in the homemaker training program and thereby obtaining their cooperation and participation; to develop curricula modifications; and to revise the homemaker service training syllabus.

All available materials for training homemakers were reviewed by the Project Coordinator. With assistance by the State Advisory Committee and additional consultants, the Project Coordinator selected specific areas to be included in training homemakers. Plans for teaching were developed for each of these areas. Each unit plan was reviewed, edited, and approved by the Director, Louisiana State Board of Health. This assistance was necessary so that the training program would meet minimum standards of the Medicare Program and the certified Homemakers would qualify as Home-Health Aides.

Each problem plan was included in the training curriculum as a guide for conducting the course of study with Homemaker trainees. Basic scientific, practical, and data information pertinent to the projected needs of trainees were included for each area of study. Source and descriptive information for books, pamphlets and films pertaining to each study area was given to supplement each problem plan.

The workshop program was developed emphasizing those areas which were indicated as interest areas in prior evaluations and using special consultants. A copy of the workshop program is included as Appendix B (pages B-1 through B-4).

The content of the workshop included lectures, reports, and discussions of recent research findings in the following problem areas. Emphasis was placed on practical application of findings to individual and family situations.

- 1. Basic emotional, social and intellectual needs of family members and implications of working with families and individuals in communities differing in socioeconomic and educational background.
- 2. Biological and physiological aspects of aging, factors affecting longevity.
- 3. Sociology of aging, demographic analysis of the older population.

- 4. Relations and emotional climate in families where responsibilities include the chronically ill and aging.
- 5. Rehabilitation of the ill and aging; current practices, trends, and needs.
- 6. Personal care of the ill and aging; prevention and treatment of common illnesses.
- 7. Ways of giving assistance in families experiencing emergency situations disturbing to the life of family members.
- 8. Nutritional needs of family members. Meal planning and preparation with emphasis on special problems due to age cr illness.
- 9. Management of time, energy, and other resources.
- 10. Care and guidance of children of various ages.
- 11. Contribution of social services and agencies and community service organizations to families.
- 12. Teaching methods related to the training of adults and older youth.
- 13. Development of a syllabus to be used as a guide for training adults and older youth for homemaker service responsibilities.
- 14. Methods of arranging for supervised work experiences of adults and older youth.
- 15. Arrangements for placement and supervision of trained adults and older youth by one community agency.
- 16. Development of techniques to evaluate the training program.

For each problem area, a consultant was asked to speak during the teacher-training workshop. See Appendix C (pages C-1 and C-2) for a list of consultants. Areas presented by consultants from various public and voluntary agencies and from the university community are outlined below.

Instruction on ways to request funds through the Office of Economic Opportunity	Education Director, Louisiana Office of Economic Opportunity
Techniques for Evaluation of the Homemaker and Home-Health Aide	Project Coordinator, Visiting Home- maker Service

The consultants made available to the Project Coordinator copies of their presentations. Reprints of workshop presentations were made available to the home economists for use in their local training programs. Literature pertinent to the problem area was distributed by the consultants.

Training Program

A thirty-six-page packet of materials was compiled by the Project Coordinator to be used during the workshop. Information included pertained to the study areas in the training course. At the request of the home economists, copies of these supplementary materials and annotated course outlines were made available for distribution to each trainee. These supplementary materials were ordered by each instructor from the Project Coordinator when the training course was organized locally and when the number enrolled was ascertained. See Appendix D (pages D-1 through D-40).

C. Syllabus Revision

The Annotated Outline of the Homemaker Service Training Program was revised by the Project Coordinator at the suggestion of previously trained instructors. These suggestions included: (1) more concise presentation of "Ethics of Visiting Homemaker Service" which could be combined in one class meeting with the topic, "Working with People in the Home" and (2) setting up a problem area titled, "Understanding Mental Retardation".

The workshop participants reviewed the Annotated Course Outline, Each selected three areas of study in rank order in which she would like to do special study. The home economists were divided into small study groups according to their first interest, whenever possible. Each group revised that subject matter area of the 1963 training syllabus on the basis of the consultant's discussion and review of the most recent literature on the subject.

Each study group submitted a revised outline of its particular topic to the Project Coordinator who reviewed and edited the information. Compilation of these outlines resulted in an in depth revision of the Homemaker Service Training Syllabus for 1963. Copies of the final syllabus were sent to each home economist who completed the 1966 training workshop, to each of the active instructors who were previously trained to teach the 80 hour homemaker service course, and to each director of Area Vocation Technical Schools who would be supervising a homemaker course. A copy of the revised syllabus is enclosed.

D. Organization of Training Program at Local Level

The organization of the training programs taught by the selected home economists at the local level varied according to the community and the size of the class.

It was found in the beginning of Louisiana's Homemaker program in 1962, with the Pilot Study, that there were several basic steps to follow when organizing and teaching a Homemaker training course at the local level. The extent to which these steps were developed was often reflected in the success of local programs.

1. Organization of the Parish Advisory Committee

Basic to the organization of Homemaker training courses at the Kommunity level was the establishment of an effective functioning Parish Advisory Committee. The composition of tach community committee was modeled after the State Advisory Committee. Appendix E (page E-1) has been included to illustrate the total organization of the Homemaker Program from the U.S. Office of Education through the trainee. These local advisory committees were composed of representatives from local governmental agencies, educational groups, civic organizations, other community groups who were interested in such a program for their parish and individuals interested in making contributions to this program. These parish Advisory Committees functioned in an advisory capacity for all decisions concerning the programs before and after they were initiated. It was suggested that representatives for the Parish Advisory Committees include:

Area Vocational Technical School and/or Parish School Board

Parish Health Department

Department of Public Welfare

Cooperative Extension Service Medical Society Employment Service Ministeral Association Council on Aging Hospital Association

The Parish Advisory Committee and the trained Homemaker Instructors were jointly responsible for informing the public about the contributions made by the Homemaker Training Program; recruiting possible trainees; and screening of applicants. Many methods were employed to accomplish this three-fold responsibility and varied with community resources.

2. Publicity

Some methods were more effective in differing communities than others. It was suggested that all possible news media be employed to acquaint the public with the Homemaker program. The instructors and Parish Advisory Committee members were encouraged to meet with different community groups to explain the program and to discuss methods of applying for training. Posters placed in windows of businesses were suggested as an effective method of publicizing the program in small communities.

3. Interviewing of Applicants

In those communities where there were State Employment Service offices, that staff accepted the responsibility of interviewing potential trainees and assisting potential trainees in completing an application. In those parishes where there was no local State Employment Service office and the itinerant meetings were infrequent, the health department, extension service, or instructor performed this service.

4. Screening of Applicants

Screening of applicants was accomplished by a small sub-committee of the Parish Advisory Committee. The criteria used by the sub-committee in screening applicants for the Homemaker course were: 1) a keen interest in people, 2) the equivalent of an eighth grade education, and 3) good physical condition. When there was a large number of applicants it was necessary to accept applications according to the date they were filed. It was recommended that enrollment should be no more than 25 for a class.

5. The Local Homemaker Training Course

The local Homemaker-Home Health Aide Training consisted of an 80-hour course. The first 60 hours of training was classroom instruction and evaluation of trainees. The remaining 20 hours was devoted to supervised work experience. Trainees were placed in hospitals, nursing homes, private homes, and nursery schools for supervised work experience. The trainees were certified as Homemakers and qualified as Home-Health Aides upon successful completion of the 80 hours of training. The Area Vocational Technical School Directors issued certificates to trainees as recommended by the Homemaker instructors. Appendix F (page F-1) has been included in this report as a copy of the certificates issued. A Visiting Homemaker service emblem to be worn on a uniform was presented to each certified Homemaker-Home Health Aide by the State Department of Education. A drawing of that red-on-white emblem is included as Appendix G (page G-1). In 1965 a Homemaker Service pin was designed by one of the trained home economists. Only those Homemakers who completed the 80-hour training program were allowed to purchase this pin.

IV. METHODS OF EVALUATION SELECTED FOR THE STUDY OF HOMEMAKER-HOME MEALTH AIDE TRAINING PROGRAM

Two major areas of the "Training Program for Selected Home Economists to Train Adults and Older Youth for Homemaker Service Responsibilities" were evaluated. The first area was that of the teacher-training workshop. The second phase or area of evaluation was concerned with the local level training programs.

A. Evaluation of Teacher-Training Workshop

An attempt was made to measure the abilities, interests, and knowledge of scientific and practical subject matter which was applicable to the training of adults and older youth for homemaker service responsibilities. The methods selected were those of questionnaire, personal interview, and observation of performance in the classroom situation.

1. Community Survey

Prior to workshop attendance, each home economist completed a "Community Survey", identifying representatives for membership on the parish advisory committee; facilities available for supervised work experience; attitude of local State Employment Service office concerning availability of prospective trainees; need for this service in the community; requests for Homemaker-Home Health Aide type of service; and extent of poverty in each respective parish. See Appendix H (page H-1) for the "Community Survey" form used.

2. Course Content and Syllabus Revision

Plans for the three-week workshop scheduled for the selected home economists included lectures by specialists in each area of study based on selected readings. Time was allocated for a discussion following each presentation for appraisal of the value of that study area and to make suggestions for application of the subject matter in local training programs.

Following the lecture and discussion of each study area, each home economist submitted a summary of basic concepts developed in that study area to the Project Director and Project Coordinator for evaluation. These concepts were distributed to the syllabus revision committee concerned with that particular study area for revision and compilation. The revised and compiled concepts for each study area were included in the syllabus as part of the outline for each study area.

This workshop was acceptable to the Graduate School for threehours of course credit beyond the Bachelor degree. Each selected home economist was given the opportunity to apply for graduate credit at the beginning of the course. The work of each home economist registered with the Louisiana State University Graduate School to receive credit for the course, was evaluated by the Project Director and Coordinator. A grade was given for the submitted work and on performance during the workshop. A final grade was recorded in the Graduate School for those instructors at the end of the workshop.

3. Evaluation of Goals of Education as Related to Vocation

Approximately two months after the training workshop was completed, a rating form titled, "Goals of Education for the World of Work", was sent to each instructor qualified to teach the 80-hour Homemaker service course. See Appendix I (pages I-1 through I-2) for this form. This represented a significant departure from conventional methods of evaluating educational product. This technique was selected by the Project Director and Coordinator to determine the progress made in the teachertraining workshops in terms of what Homemaker trainees as a group would be learning. The instructors rated the listed objectives as to their current importance with their responses reflecting their feelings about the realistic goals, not what they would be if time and resources were unlimited.

The rating criteria of the objectives of education in occupational training were: Unimportant, of Little Importance, of Average Importance, Very Important, and Extremely Important. Each instructor was asked to rate each of the objectives.

There were 27 questionnaries returned to the Project Coordinator. Each instructor did not rate each goal on the questionnaire. Percentile results of this survey of homemaker instructors are presented in Table I.

None of the goals were rated more than a total of 33.3 percent by Homemaker Instructors in the categories of Unimportant, Little Importance or Average Importance. Therefore, the eighteen goals selected were deemed significant to the local Homemaker Service Programs by the Instructors.

Those goals which were ranked highest, as Very Important and Extremely Important, were as follows:

To develop a positive attitude toward continuing education and an understanding of its importance in our rapidly changing society,

To develop understanding of the role of human relations in job performance, for example, worker to client behavioral rules,

To help the student see how continuing, constructive self-analysis can be a valuable tool of vocational self-improvement and how achievements can be used as measures of vocational progress,

To provide opportunities for the learner to discover and develop interests, and to integrate the idea of work into the value system of the student, e.g. work and life are compatible.

As these goals were concerned with trainee attitude toward education, value system of life, understanding of home and community, ethics and acceptable behavior, and constructive self-analysis as related to vocation and work, it was felt that the trained instructors were making a concerted effort in local training programs to foster educational experiences other than those at the skill level.

B. Evaluation of Trainees

Evaluation techniques to be used with trainees were developed in prior workshops and local homemaker training programs with assistance by the Project Coordinator. One of the small study groups of the 1966 Training Workshop was concerned with evaluation of trainees and the total project from the local level. Each workshop participant: reviewed the evaluation techniques developed in previous workshops (July, 1963, 1964, and 1965) and used in local training programs; submitted suggestions for revision to the group committee on evaluation; and made written recommendations for other techniques to be developed. These suggestions and recommendations were submitted to the Project Coordinator by the special committee on evaluation.

The 1966 workshop participants requested that the evaluation techniques be made available for their use and included in the revised edition of the Homemaker Service Training Syllabus. The Project Coordinator grouped the questions for evaluation of trainees according to the information contained in the units of the training course. These evaluation techniques were included in the syllabus, pages 91-109. These methods were described and intended only as suggestions, the methods of appraising local community programs was left to the discretion of each instructor.

C. Evaluation of Over-All Homemaker Training Program

The special workshop committee on evaluation developed techniques to appraise the total Homemaker Service Program. This committee set up methods to evaluate: the over-all training program, instructional program, work experience, and performance of trainees. A trainee self-evaluation was also developed. These techniques were reviewed and expanded by the Project Director and Project Coordinator. These evaluation techniques are described below. The data secured are discussed also.

1. Evaluation of Over-All Training Program

Four view points were considered in evaluating the Homemaker training program. These were from the Parish Advisory Committee, the Area-Vocational School Director, Homemaker Instructor, and the Trainee.

> Parish Advisory Committee Evaluation a.

Each Parish Advisory Committee member was asked to complete two questionnaires, the first of which was answered after the formulation meeting of that committee. This served as background of the community, to point up need for Homemaker-type services at the community level, and to lay the ground work for evaluating the impact and effectiveness of the Homemaker Training Program. Appendix J (pages J-1) is included in this report as an example of that questionnaire.

Due to the delayed scheduling of the workshop until late Summer, 1966 and the time scheduled for this report no data has been secured by this technique from any of the training programs.

The second questionnaire which the Parish Advisory Committee members were asked to complete was designed to give evidences of trained Homemakers services to families in the community and possible alleviation of some of the problems in the community, three months after the training program. See Appendix K (pages K-1) for an example of this questionnaire. To date no results have been obtained from programs begun by the instructors trained in the 1966 workshop. As this questionnaire was designed to evaluate prior 80-hour courses, conducted by previously trained home economists, the forms were supplied to those Parish Advisory Committee members of those fourteen parishes through the instructors. There was only a 21.43 per cent return of this sample. This small return indicates however the high regard for the program at the local level as the services are being utilized in private homes, nursing homes, and hospitals. Those requests for Homemaker-type services which have been filled by certified Homemakers have been satisfactorily completed with no change in employees. A significant factor in reporting changes in community need by the Parish Advisory Committee related to the anticipated impact of Medicare Programs in the community. This degree of qualified responses was due to the initiation of that program and the time and space element inwhich these questionnaires were completed.

b. Area Vocational Technical School Director and Homemaker Instructor

Homemaker instructors were directly responsible to their Area Vocational School Directors. Each director was included as a member of the Parish Advisory Committee, and usually the sub-committee on screen ing. He also had the responsibility of budgeting funds for the instructor's salary and supplies necessary for teaching the program. The Area Vocational Technical School was often used for training potential Homemakers. Thus, the director was a key person in local programs and was • 25 in a position to make keen observations of the entire local training program. He was asked to complete an identical questionnaire which each instructor completed to evaluate the training program. For an example of this form, see Appendix L (page L-1).

A number rating scheme for excellent, good, fair, and poor was established. The 14 items considered included all phases of the local Homemaker program, beginning with recruiting techniques and ranging through employment and local program improvement. Not all items were rated by each director and instructor. Final results of each item are included in Table II by percent.

Over-all mean statistics indicate that the directors and instructors rated the Homemaker Training program as Good.

Those items which statistically received an over-all percentile rating of Excellent were: effectiveness of recruiting techniques used in this program, 50.00; interest of trainee in total training program, 62.50; availability of resource materials, 50.00; use of consultants in the program, 50.00; effectiveness of the Parish Advisory Committee in assisting with organizing and conducting the program, 50.00; and acceptance of trainee during supervised work experience, 71.42.

Deficiencies in local programs, noted by directors and instructors, received a Poor and Fair rating. Those areas which would, therefore, require additional work pertain to employment of certified Homemakers and community acceptance of the Homemaker program.

c. Homemaker Trainee

Trainees who had successfully completed the 80-hour Homemaker training course were asked to evaluate the over-all training program three months after certification. 225 trained Homemakers completed the questionnaire which is included in this report as Appendix M (pages M-1 through M-3). The trained Homemaker Instructor and Project Coordinator assisted trainees in completing the form by answering questions which were asked. Areas covered in this questionnaire were: methods of recruitment, content of training program, employment placement, supervised work experience, and Community service. Statistical data for recruiting techniques are presented in Table III.

TABLE III EVALUATION OF RECRUITING METHODS USED IN HOMEMAKER SERVICE PROGRAMS BY HOMEMAKERS

The most effective over-all method of recruiting trainees was by wordof-mouth, 54.47. Newspaper publicity, 23.57, appeared to have a marked advantage over other news media, expecially in rural areas (rural 27.04, urban 18.54). However, radio and television announcements were more effective in urban areas, 4.03 and 2.41, respectively. The local State Employment Service Offices in urban areas were more effective than in the rural parishes, 58.06 and 50.81 respectively. Homemakers who learned of the training progtam through other means specified announcements in church, the Homemaker Instructor, announcements in community meetings, and school personnel.

Work preferences of trained Homemakers, Table IV, did not vary significantly between rural and urban areas excepting in the category of families with children, 25.07 and 13.59 respectively.

TABLE IV POSITIVE WORK PREFERENCES OF 225 TRAINED HOMEMAKERS

Rural Homemakers gave significant priority to families with children. Indicative to the Homemaker program orientation, the significant work preference of all trainees was for working with the ared, 33.75. At the other end of the spectrum was a marked decrease in a choice of working with mentally retarded adults, 6.96.

Table V below represents, statistically the Homemakers' Self-Concept after completing the training course.

These data showed that Homemakers continue to feel that they are of primary importance to their families, 26.75, and to other families in crisis situations, 24.30. Their third consideration was their own employment possibilities, with 21.85 per cent of the responses indicating that they felt that they were more employable. To be discussed later in this report are the reasons applicants desired the Homemaker training which will point out the position of this concept. Lastly, the Homemaker considered herself useful to the community, 21.04. Perhaps Homemakers do not fully realize the critical need for these services and the vital contributions to be made at the local level. Also, the general public may not realize that these services are available. This again points-up the need for more publicity. The youthfulness of the program in this state gives rise to speculation on this point.

One of the requirements for certification was the successful completion of 20-hours, supervised work experience by each Homemaker trainee. A variety of supervised work experiences for each trainee was advocated. However, each Homemaker did not perform in each area of training. The 225 Certified Homemakers rated the situations, in which she had worked, according to ease or difficulty in situation management. Table VI reports the positive responses.

Those situations which would require some physical contact and personal care services were tated highest. In decending order, those situations were as follows: care of sickroom, 87.55; work with aging, 86.22; and bathing the ill person, 84.44. Personal relationship situations, 82.66, were ranked next. It was felt that the trained Homemakers had had more experience in this area, prior to the training course. Also, few decisive judgments were necessary in dealing with people.

Household management in the absence of the mother, 55.11, was rated lowest. In this situation, the ability to make clear-cut decisions was important. Homemakers expressed in conservations apprehension to accept employment when there would be no immediate supervision, especially in the absence of both parents of small children.

D. Evaluation of Instructional Program

To evaluate the instructional programs of the Homemaker training course taught at the local level, two techniques were developed by the 1966 workshop participants. These two instruments, discussed in the following, were designed to give information about the training course from two viewpoints, those of the instructors and of the trainees.

1. Evaluation of Instructional Program by Homemaker Instructor

A questionnaire to be completed by each instructor was designed to give information about the course content, recruiting methods, employment, community service, and community acceptance of the Homemaker program. See Appendix N (pages N-1 through N-5) for a copy of that questionnaire. Data was obtained from trained instructors who completed an 80-hour training program since September, 1965 and from those home economists who were trained during the 1966 workshop and who had completed a training course.

These data showed that 57 per cent of the training courses were begun during early Fall and ended during the Spring of the following year. The length of time necessary to complete the Homemaker training course ranged from three weeks to six months. The mean time necessary for course completion was two and one-half months. 85.71 per cent of the classes were held in the late afternoon and early evening.

Of the instructors completing this evaluation technique, 70 per cent were Home Economics teachers in local secondary schools. These instructors used their Home Economics Departments in which to conduct their classes. The other trained Homemaker instructors used the facilities of Area Vocational Technical Schools, local health department, or community centers.

All of the reporting instructors indicated that the time allocated for each unit of work was ample. The Homemaker instructors, qualified to conduct 80-hour courses, who were trained in 1965, commented that the revised syllabus and course outline had improved the Homemaker training program in this respect. Certain instructors related that some class periods were longer because of high student interest in topics.

All instructors reported use of materials other than those supplied by the Office of the Project Coordinator (Appendix D, pages D-1 through D-40). The primary source for these materials was the local parish and school libraries. These materials were in the form of films, childcare books, diabetic literature, and current magazines.

In the analysis of the recruiting methods used, Table VII, announcements in Civic Organizations and News releases, 85.75 and 70.00 percent respectively, were used most often in publicizing local training programs. 57.14 percent of the reporting instructors had announcements made in civic mmetings and asked the Louisiana State Employment Service to inform potential trainees about the training course. However, in evaluating those recruiting methods which seemed to reach more applicants, the Louisiana State Employment Service and Letters to Clubs were ranked highest. Announcements in Religious Organizations and Word-of-Mouth recruiting methods were ranked second and third, respectively. News Releases and Announcements in meetings of Civic Organizations, which were used by 70 and 85.71 percent of Homemaker instructors, respectively, were ranked in fourth and fifth place, respectively.

In evaluating employment of Homemakers, Table VIII, instructors found that the rate of pay requested presented the most difficulty. Next in rank came indications that the general public was not uware that there were trained Homemakers available for employment and the public does not understand what Homemakers have been trained to do in the home. One instructor commented that Homemakers must prove their worth before the public will accept all who have been trained.

In response to a question as to the need for additional, trained Homemakers in the area, 60 percent of the instructors reported positively. These Homemaker instructors were located in urban areas. Those instructors also indicated they could fill the need as the applications were on file from the previous recruiting program. These applicants had not been able to attend the previous training program because of limited facilities and the recommended number of trainees for any one course.

The instructors were asked to rank, according to the services rendered, those areas in which Homemakers contributioned in the local community. Also taken into consideration was the community's need. The following were listed in decending order: 1) more aging individuals have been able to remain in their homes; 2) other (nursing homes and hospitals have been supplied with trained personnel); 3) the unemployment problem has been reduced for some families; and 5) families have been able to remain together in time of stress.

Each instructor was asked to contact five employers who had used a trained Homemaker to discuss: 1) what the family would have done if no Homemaker had been available; 2) how they learned about the service; 3) performance of duties; 4) employment of a Homemaker in the future if need would arise; and 5) contributions of Homemakers to families in a time of stress and continuation of the program locally. Five employers were not contacted by each instructor because a major number of the trained Homemakers were employed by hospitals and nursing homes immediately after the training course was completed.

In discussing the first question regarding what other plans would the employer have made if no Homemaker had been available, the interviewing instructors received replies ranging from employers not knowing what they would have done to obtaining the services of a registered nurse. More than half replied that someone in the family would have stayed home from work. In the classification of "other", examples of employer's responses are as follows: oldest child would have been kept out of school; would have depended upon friends and neighbors; would have had to ask for the assistance of family members not living in the home, who were already overburdened and who were not as dependable as a Homemaker.

Homemaker instructors indicated that most employers learned about the Homemaker Service through local publicity and friends. Other sources included nurses, family doctor, the Homemaker pamphlet in a doctor's office, announcements in church, and the Homemaker instructors.

Of the duties required of Homemakers in a great variety of circumstances, all areas of the Homemaker training were mentioned by certain employers in which the trained Homemakers performed competently. Certain instructors noted in comments that some employers felt that Homemakers surpassed nurses in giving attention; some Homemakers performed so well that employers thought that they had had nurse training; and certain employers had learned practical techniques from the trained Homemakers.

Meal planning was mentioned by employers as an area in which Homemakers needed more assistance. The only other suggestion offered by employers was that the Homemakers should be more alert to duties which needed to be performed without being asked by the patient or a member of the family.

All employers interviewed by the instructors responded positively to the questions regarding publicizing the program, possible use of a Homemaker in the future, contributions of Homemaker Service to families in stress, and the continuation of the program in their area. Employers expressed the need for more Homemakers to render this much needed service.

2. Evaluation of Instructional Program by Homemaker Trainees

An evaluation technique to be completed by Homemaker trainees was designed by the 1966 workshop participants to evaluate class activities and information given in each study area. This questionnaire, Appendix O (pages O-1 through O-2), also served as a guide for each instructor in planning subsequent class meetings and other training programs.

Each trainee completed the Unit Evaluation at the end of each unit of work. The instructor compiled the responses from trainees for each unit on one form and submitted the resulting 12 forms to the Project Coordinator.

The sample included only those trainees who began a local program after the forms were submitted to the instructors in September, 1966. Because of this abbreviated time element, only one training program completed the entire set of Unit Evaluation forms.

Considering these Unit Evaluations as guides for instructors to plan subsequent class meetings, the general indication in this small sample was that it had served as a useful tool to the instructor in this respect.

The later reports of local training programs to be compiled and reported by the Home Economics Section, Louisiana State Department of Education should point up the strengths and weaknesses in local Homemaker training programs and therefore give direction for planning subsequent community level Homemaker training programs and other programs of this type under their supervision.

E. Evaluation of Trainee Work Experiences by Immediate Supervisors and Homemaker Instructors

The On-the-Job Evaluation form used to evaluate 80-bour Homemaker training programs from October, 1965 through October, 1966 appears in pages P-3 and P-4 of Appendix P. The technique was designed to evaluate by rating each trainee's qualities of appearance, personality, relationships with others, ability to follow instructions, work habits, care of sickroom, bed-making, personal care of patient, administering simple medications under orders, food service, and care of children. All these qualities were not applicable to each trainee's work experiences. The rating criteria were Excellent, Good, Fair, and Poor. The following data were obtained, using the On-the-Job Evaluation technique.

183 Homemaker trainees, completing nine local training programs, were evaluated by: 1) supervisors in hospitals and nursing homes or a family member in private homes and 2) the trained Homemaker Instructor, using the technique as it appears in pages 3 and 4 of Appendix P.

Over-all analysis of these data, Table IX, indicates that 37.69 percent of the Homemakers were rated as Excellent while 60.59 percent were rated as Good; 1.66 percent were rated as Fair; and .07 percent were rated as Poor.

All the qualities of Homemakers, excepting those pertaining to the care of children were rated over 50.00 percent in the category of Good by the immediate supervisors and Homemaker Instructors. The total mean percent for the rating criterion of Good was 60.59. All four of the qualities under the General Care of Children were rated above 50.00 percent in the rating criterion of Excellent with bath being rated 60.97 percent, meals-57.89 percent, acceptance of behavior-63.15 percent, and guidance-63.88 percent.

The quality which was most frequently rated in the Excellent criterion was the appearance of the Homemaker Trainees with 46.99 percent; in the Bood criterion was making the patient 's bed, with the patient in bed, 79.16 percent; in the Fair criterion was guidance of children with 5.55 percent; and that which was most frequently rated in the Poor cris... terion was the trainee attitude toward patients and their families, .57.

A Confidential On-the-Job Evaluation of Trainees form, as described in Appendix P (pages P-1 through P-2), was developed in the 1966 instructor-training workshop. This evaluation technique was designed to evaluate the same qualities which were listed above. However, there were descriptions of qualities used in rating characteristics and quality of service. The comparative ratings used to evaluate trainee qualities were: a) Exceptional -- unusual, uncommon, rare; b) Above average -superior, definitely above average; c) Average -- up to good standard; d) Below average -- slightly below average; and e) Inadequate -- must improve in characteristic in this phase of work with further training implied for this area as performance was below acceptable standard. Only one local Homemaker-Home Health Aide training program was completed and this On-the-Job evaluation technique used. It is felt that this modified technique will accommodate advantageously, evaluations of the trainee supervised work experiences by supervisors and Homemaker Instructors in subsequent training programs.

F. Trainee Self-Evaluation

The special committee on evaluation in the 1966 workshop developed a Trainee Self-Evaluation which is described in this report in Appendix Q (pages Q-1 through Q-3). This evaluation technique was designed to: gain insight in trainee feelings as related to professional responsibility, interpersonal relations, home nursing care, and management; assist Homemaker instructors in the final evaluation of each trainee before certification; and give direction in planning for other local Homemaker-Home Health Aide training courses. EVALUATION OF 80-HOUR HOMEMAKER TRAINEE WORK EXPERIENCES BY THEIR IMMEDIATE SUPERVISORS AND THE TRALUATION OF 80-HOUR HOMEMAKER INSTRUCTORS. TABLE IX.

The Trainee Self-Evaluation form was supplied to each trained Homemaker instructor who had completed an 80-hour training course since September, 1965 and to all other instructors who were qualified to teach the 80-hour Homemaker-Home Health Aide training course.

Each trainee was asked to check either Always, Often, Seldom, or Never to indicate personal feelings as each question was applied in an individual manner. However, every Homemaker did not reply to each question. In Table X, trainee responses are shown by number and percentage. These data indicated that the certified Homemakers were, on a whole, responsible persons, having formed professional attitudes and possessing distinguishing qualities. This was indicated in the high percentile ratings, ranging from 69.07 to 99.51 percent, of the first nine questions pertaining to professional responsibility.

Considering data from the questions concerned with interpersonal relations, low scoring of the questions: "Should I refrain from changing or interferring with the family's judgment" with 49.73 percent and "Do I resent criticism" with 37.0 percent, indicated that local Homemaker training programs should be strengthened in these specific areas of study.

Percentile results from the broad questions on home nursing care and management ranging from 63.05 percent to 97.64 percent indicated that trained Homemakers had considerable confidence in these areas of the Homemaker training program in Louisiana.

As with every "self-evaluation" it is a continuous process with ever-changing results. It is expected that with more and varied experiences, subsequent evaluations by the trained Homemaker should show more insight in their strengths and weaknesses.

V. THE TRAINED HOMEMAKER AND EMPLOYMENT

A. The Trained Homemaker -- Characteristics

A Homemaker Service Training Application, Appendix R (pages R-1 through R-3), was developed by the Project Coordinator. This form was completed by each applicant prior to the training course. These completed applications were used by the Parish Advisory Committee for screening purposes and then forwarded to the Office of the Project Coordinator. 380 Homemakers (151 in urban areas and 229 in rural areas of Louisiana) filed applications and completed the 80-hour Homemaker training course.

The Personal Data Sheet, Appendix S (page S-1), was developed by the Project Coordinator to secure complete background information for Homemaker trainees. 105 selected Homemakers (32 in urban areas and 73 in rural areas) completed the Personal Data Sheet.

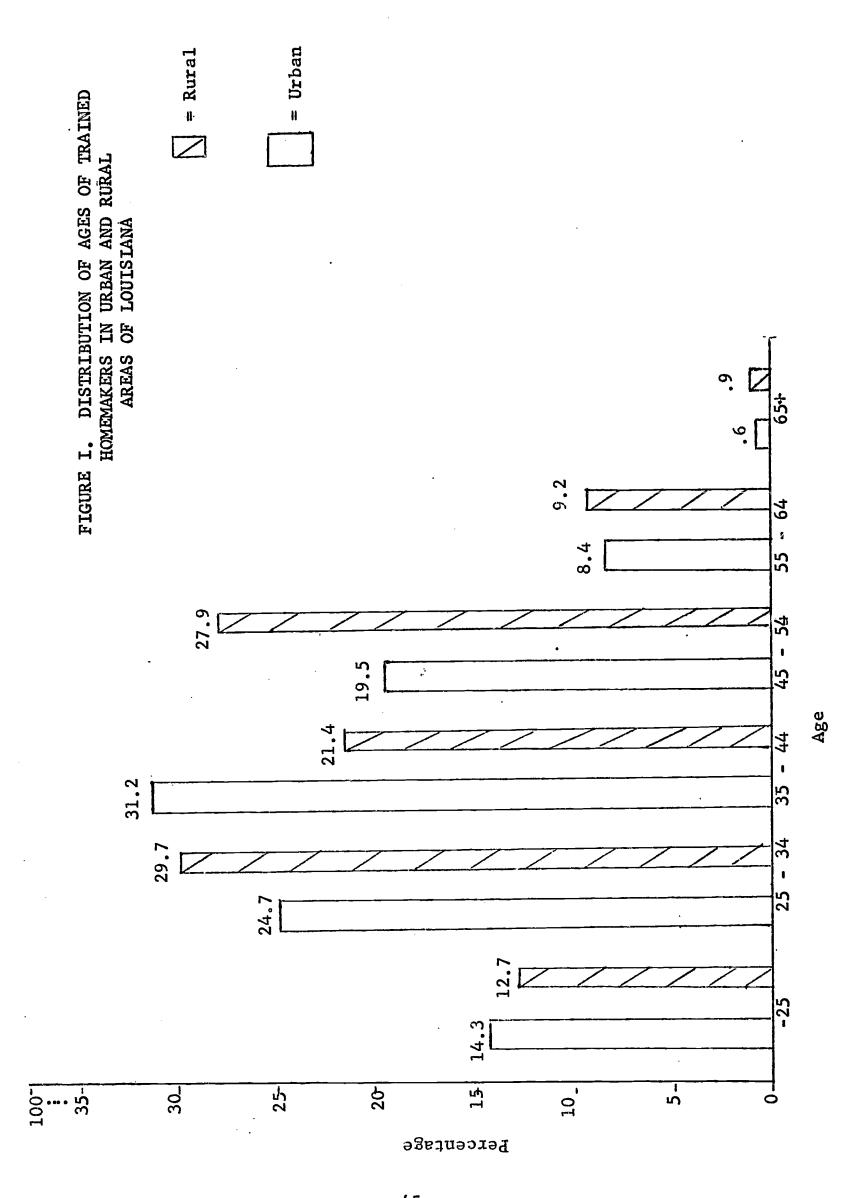

The data reported herein was secured from the 380 completed applications for training by Homemakers who were certified following the 80 hours of training and 105 completed Personal Data Sheets.

1. Age and Location

Figure I represents the distribution of ages of 80-hour trained Homemakers in rural and urban areas of Louisiana. The larger percentage (31.2) of the 151 trained Homemakers in urban areas were from 35 to 44 years of age. 24.7 percent of those Homemakers living in urban areas were in the 25 to 34 age range. In the 45 to 54 age range there were 19.5 percent of the trained Homemakers residing in urban areas; 14.3 percent were under 25 years of age; and 8.4 percent were in the 55 to 64 age range. A small percentage of the 80-hour trained Homemakers in urban areas, .6 percent, were 65 years of age or older.

The larger percentage (29.7) of the 229 Homemakers in rural areas were from 25 to 34 years of age. 27.9 percent of the Homemakers residing in rural areas were from 45 to 54 years of age while 21.4 percent were in the 35 to 44 age range. Homemakers in rural areas under 25 years of age accounted for 12.7 percent of this group. 9.2 percent of the Homemakers living in rural areas were from 55 to 64 years of age. A small percentage of Homemakers in rural areas, .9 percent, were 65 years of age or older.

These data for age and location of trained Homemakers have many implications among which could possibly be the following: 1) Homemakers residing in rural areas under 25 years of age and in the 35 to 44 age range had responsibilities which would not permit them to work outside the home; 2) Homemakers residing in urban areas for these same age groups had fewer responsibilities in the home or felt it was more necessary to work to help support the family unit; 3) Home responsibilities increased for the urban Homemakers in the age ranges of 25 to 34 years, 45 to 54 years, and 55 to 64 years and for all those over 65 years of age; 4) The reverse would then be true for Homemakers residing in rural areas for these same age groups or they felt it was necessary to work to help support the family unit; 5) the peak production years of urban breadwinners was when the trained Homemakers were in the 35 to 44 age range while the performance of production for those in rural areas was when the trained Homemakers were between 45 and 54 years of age, thus freeing spouses for Homemaker services; and/or 6) a relative "leveling-off" between urban and rural Homemakers' ages occurred for all over 55 years of age.

ERIC Pruit Beet Pruit 45

2. Levels of Education

The levels of education for 380 trained Homemakers are presented in Figure II. Of the 151 trained Homemakers residing in urban areas, 34.4 percent had completed high school. 14.9 percent of Homemakers in urban areas completed nine years of formal education. Less than eight years of formal education was completed by 13.0 percent of the Homemakers in urban areas. Eight years of schooling was completed by 12.3 percent of the Homemakers residing in urban areas. 9.7 percent completed ten years of schooling. A small percentage of Homemakers residing in urban areas had some form of business or trade school, 6.5 percent. 5.2 percent of the trained Homemakers in these areas completed eleven years of schooling. Of the 151 Homemakers from urban areas, 3.2 percent had some college training.

Of the 229 trained Homemakers residing in rural areas, 26.2 percent had completed high school; less than eight years of formal education was completed by 21.8 percent; 14.8 percent had completed eight years of schooling; nine years of formal education was completed by 10.9 percent with 10.5 percent completing ten years of formal education. 9.6 percent of trained Homemakers in rural areas had some college training. Eleven years of schooling had been completed by 7.0 percent of trained Homemakers in rural areas while only 3.5 percent had some form of business or trade school.

These data indicated that more trained Homemakers in urban areas than in rural areas had completed nine years of schooling, high school, and had some form of business or trade school. More Homemakers in rural areas completed: less than eight years of schooling; eight, ten, and eleven years of formal education; and some college training.

8. Marital Status of Trained Homemakers

Data for the marital status of 380 trained Homemakers are presented in Table XI. Of the 380 trained Homemakers: 66.84 percent were married;

12.63 percent were single; 10.00 percent were widows; 6.84 percent were divorced; and 3.68 percent were separated.

Of those 229 Homemakers residing in rural areas, 69.86 percent were married; 13.10 percent were single; 8.73 percent were widows; 4.80 percent were divorced; and 3.49 percent were separated.

62.25 percent of the 151 trained Homemakers living in urban areas were married; 11.92 percent were single and widows; 9.93 percent were divorced; and 3.97 percent were separated.

Percentile results indicated that more trained Homemakers in rural areas were single or married while more the urban areas were widows, divorced, or separated.

4. Children -- Mean Number and Age

Data describing the number of children and the mean age of the youngest child of the trained Homemakers residing in rural and urban areas are presented in Table XII. The 80-hour Homemakers trained in Louisiana had 3.56 number of children, 3.83 in rural areas and 3.27 in urban areas. The mean age of the youngest child was 10.92 years, 11.41 years of those in rural areas and 9.43 years in urban areas. These data indicated that Homemakers in rural areas had more children per family unit than did their counterparts in urban areas and also had older children.

5. Home Situation of 105 Selected Homemakers

Of the 105 trained Homemakers responding to the Personal Data Sheet, 32 lived in urban areas while 73 lived in rural areas. Data pertaining to the background or home situation of Homemakers are presented in Table XIII. A major response, 85.71 percent of all replying Homemaker-Home Health Aides, indicated that a large percentage felt they needed to work to help support the family while 25.71 percent signified they were the only support of their family. Of the 105 Homemakers, 18.09 percent were engaged in caring for someone outside their own home while 17.14 percent were caring for someone in their own home. A small percentage, 8.57, of all responding Homemakers caring for someone in their own home were being paid for their services.

Of the 73 Homemaker-Home Health Aides residing in rural areas, 79.45 percent indicated that they needed to help support the family and 20.54 percent were the sole support of their family. 17.80 percent of the Homemakers in rural areas were caring for someone outside their own home while 21:91 percent were caring for someone in their town home! A small percentage (9.53) of the Homemakers received payment for caring for someone in their own home.

Of the 105 trained Homemaker-Home Health Aides responding to the Personal Data Sheet, 32 resided in urban areas. All of this group (100.00 percent) indicated they needed to work to help support their family while 37.50 percent were the only support of their family. 18.75 percent of the Homemakers residing in urban areas were caring for someone outside their own home while only 6.25 percent were caring for someone in their own home, all of whom were being paid for their services.

TABLE XIII. BACKGROUND INFORMATION OF 105 SELECTED HOMEMAKERS IN RURAL AND URBAN AREAS OF LOUISIANA

6. Reasons for Applying for Homemaker Training

Applicants for the Komemaker-Home Health Aide training course were asked to briefly write on why they would like to be trained as a Homemaker. A great many of the written responses included two or more reasons for applying for the Homemaker training.

A panel of three persons in the School of Home Economics, Louisiana State University reviewed a small sample of the responses. The following six major reasons were drawn from the sample by the reviewing panel:

- Income -- applicant needed to work; income was inadequate.
- 2. Self-satisfaction -- applicant wanted satisfying work and at the same time wanted to be useful to others; felt it would be rewarding work; already performing same type of duties, but had no certificate.

- 3. Need to be of service to others -- concerned with the welfare of others who were in need; stressed desire to render services to the ill, aging, and/or children.
- 4. Interest in peopel -- liked to be with people and to help them with their problems.
- 5. Self-improvement and/or in preparation or the future -- to be prepared if family members need assistance; information may be of help if employment was necessary in the future; information would be benificial in present employment.
- Community service -- need in the community for Homemaker-type services observed by applicant.

Data for each of these categories are presented in Table IXV for 380 Homemakers trained under the present 80-hour program. Of the 513 total responses, the largest response (39.37 percent) was for the desire to be of service to others. Self-improvement and/or preparation for the future was ranked second with 30.21 percent. 12.08 percent of the Homemakers who completed the 80-hour training course indicated they wanted to be trained for their own satisfaction. A small percentage indicated: an interest in people, 7.40 percent; need for additional income, 7.21 percent; and community service, 3.70 percent.

Of those Homemaker-Home Health Aides residing in rural areas, 43.01 percent desired training in order to be of service to others; 31.05 percent wanted to improve themselves and/or prepare for the future; and 8.54 percent wanted the training for their own satisfaction. Small percentages were indicated for: an interest in people, 6.55 percent; need for additional income, 6.55 percent; and community service, 4.27 percent.

31.48 percent of the trained Homemakers in urban areas indicated they wanted to be of service to others. Self-improvement and/ or preparation for future was ranked second, based on frequency of recurrance of reasons, by 28.39 percent of the Homemakers residing in urban areas. 19.75 percent indicated they desired to be trained for their own satisfaction. A small percentage of the Homemakers in urban areas indicated: an interest in people, 9.25 percent; need for additional income, 8.64 percent; and community service, 2.46 percent.

These data imply that Homemakers residing in rural areas desire to be of service to others, more so than urban Homemakers. Also, more Homemakers in rural areas than those in urban areas desired training for the purpose of self-improvement and in order to be of service to their community. Based on the frequency of reasons given, Homemakers in urban areas desired training more often than their rural counterparts because of income need, for self-satisfaction, and because of their interest in people.

TABLE XIV. REASONS GIVEN BY 380 TRAINED HOMEMAKERS FOR APPLYING FOR TRAINING BY RURAL AND URBAN AREAS.

B. Employment of Homemakers in Louisiana

A survey was begun in October, 1966 and completed in February, 1967 in an attempt to: 1)determine how certified Homemakers were applying their training to employment situations and 2)gather information for parish directories of Homemakers for distribution to interested organizations and individuals.

This survey included those 16 parishes in which 415 Homemakers had completed the 80-hour training program. In seven of the 16 parishes there were 53 Homemakers who had been trained under the 40-hour program. In 13 parishes, 349 Homemakers had received 20 hours of training.

An Employment Record Form, Appendix T (page T-1), was developed by the Project Coordinator to secure employment data from each Homemaker.

A total of 435 trained Homemakers responded to the Employment Record Form. Of those Homemakers who had received the 80-hour training course, 68.43 percent or 284 responded; 58.49 percent or 31 responded from the group trained for 40 hours; and 34.38 percent or 120 responded from the group trained under the 20-hour program.

Table XV represents the various methods of application of Homemaker training, by the number of hours trained.

Of the responding 435 trained Homemakers 33.57 percent were employed in cases related to their training; 18.61 percent were employed full:time in nursing homes or hospitals; 23.35 percent were employed in unrelated work, for example, domestic work or food service; and 24.45 percent had never been employed.

25.00 percent of those Homemakers trained in 20-hour programs were employed in training-related cases; 10.48 percent were employed by nursing home or hospitals full-time; 29,83 percent were employed at jobs not related to Homemaker training; and 34.67 percent had never been employed.

Of those responding Homemakers trained in 40-hour programs 20.58 percent were employed in cases related to their training; 17.64 percent were employed full time in nursing homes or hospitals; 29.41 percent were employed in unrelated fields; and 32.35 percent had never been employed.

37.43 percent of the responding Homemaker-Home Health Aides trained in 80-hour programs were employed in training-related cases; 21.28 percent were employed full time in nursing homes or hospitals; 20.76 percent were employed in unrelated work; and 20.51 percent had never been employed.

Overall! data indicate that more trained Homemakers are employed in cases related to training than in nursing homes, hospitals, or in cases not related to training.

These data imply that Homemaker-Home Health Aides trained in 80-hour programs were better equipped by the advanced training received and had developed additional skills and insights. This was evidenced by data indicating that more were employed in cases related to training and employed full time in nursing homes and hospitals than those trained in 20 and 40-hour programs. Fewer Homemaker-Home Health Aides trained in 80-hour programs were employed in cases unrelated to training or were unemployed than those Homemakers trained in the 20-hour or 40-hour programs.

The hours of service rendered in private cases at various locations by 20, 40, and 80-hour trained Homemakers is shown in Table XVI. For the purposes of this review, those persons who were employed as Homemakers in related work provided services in three different locations:

Sec. Sec.

1) Home -- the Homemaker was employed by a family in their private home; 2) Hospital -- the Homemaker was employed by a patient to care for him in addition to the hospital and nursing facilities available; and 3) Nursing Home -- the Homemaker was employed by a person or his family to be his private aide in addition to the nursing home administration.

The majority of the total hours (141,120) of service rendered by all the trained Homemakers in private cases were in private homes with 124,805 hours or 88.43 percent. The number of hours served in hospitals on private cases by the responding Homemakers totaled 7,771 or 5.50 percent of all the hours of service rendered. 6.05 percent of the total hours served was in nursing homes. A total of 188 private patients were served by the responding Homemakers.

Of the 32 responding Homemakers trained in 20-hour programs, 90.62 percent served private home cases (95.04 percent of the total hours served) with the remaining 15.42 percent (4.91 percent of the total hours) serving private cases in hospitals.

85.71 percent of the 40-hour group served patients in private homes (84.55 percent of the hours) and 14.28 percent were on duty with private patients in nursing homes which represented 15.44 percent of the hours served.

Of the responding 149 Homemaker-Home Health Aides trained in 80hour programs, 79.19 percent served individuals in their homes (87.04 percent of the total hours served), 17.44 percent served private cases in hospitals (5.85 percent of the total hours served by the 80-hour group), and 3.35 percent were employed by individuals in nursing homes (7.09 percent of the total hours served).

These data indicate that fewer 80-hour trained Homemaker-Home Health Aides were employed in private cases in homes than were those trained in the 20 and 40-hour programs. A greater number of the 80hour Homemakers were employed by individuals in hospitals.

The Louisiana State Employment Service cooperated and worked closely with the Homemakers, because no single agency was responsible for placement and supervision. In this survey of Homemakers trained for 20, 40, and 80 hours, each was asked to indicate the source of referral for each case served. 224 Homemakers indicated the source of referral. This information is presented in Table XVII. Homemakers indicated that they most often heard about a job and applied for it, 32.14 percent (41.66 percent of the 40-hour Homemakers, 32.75 percent of the 80-hour group, and 26.31 percent of the Homemakers trained for 20 hours). Other sources mentioned often were "Friends and Family" (21.26 percent of 80-hour Homemakers, 16.66 percent of 40-hour Homemakers, and 15.78 percent of 20-hour Homemakers, 23.68 percent of the 20-hour group, and 10.34 percent of the 80-hour Homemakers), with 20.08 and 13.39 percent, respectively. In descending order the other sources of referral were:

the welfare department; State Employment Service; Homemaker Instructor; previous employer; hospital staff; and another Homemaker.

Some of the Homemakers responding in this survey indicated reasons for services being discontinued on various cases, Table XVIII. 29.10 percent of the 134 responses indicated that services of Homemakers were discontinued because the patient improved and the services were no longer needed while only 5.47 percent were discontinued because the patient's condition grew worse and professional assistance was required. In 22.38 percent of the cases, the patient died. The family make other arrangements in 12.68 percent of all cases. Illness of the Homemaker-Home Health Aide occurred in 5.22 percent of all reported cases. In 2.98 percent of all cases the Homemaker was substituting for the regular employee.

In 21.05 percent of the cases served by Homemakers trained for 20 hours, services were discontinued because the patient improved and services were no longer needed; 5.26 percent were discontinued because the patient's condition grew worse and professional services were required; 15.78 percent of the patients died; and 15.78 percent of the families made other arrangements.

Of the cases served by the 40-hour Homemakers 42.85 percent were discontinued because the patient's condition improved and services were no longer needed; 14.28 percent were discontinued because the patient died; and 14.28 percent were discontinued because the family made other arrangements.

In those cases served by the 80-hour Homemaker-Home Health Aides the following reasons were given for discontinuing services: 29.62 percent, the patient improved and services were no longer required; 4.62 percent, the patient's condition grew worse and professional services were needed; the patient died in 24.07 percent of the cases; 12.03 percent, the family made other arrangements; illness of the Homemaker accounted for 6.48 percent; and in 3.70 percent of the cases, the Homemaker was substituting for the regular employee.

1. Supervision of Homemakers in Louisiana

Formal administrative supervision of Homemakers occurred in only a few instances so far as known. Child Welfare units in Orleans, Jefferson, East Baton Rouge, and Caddo Parishes were reported as having employed Homemakers trained under this project and were supervising their work. Advice and counseling was provided the Homemaker in various informal ways -- the instructor, local advisory committee members, and fellow Homemakers responded to requests for assistance from Homemakers. As the project is ending, indications for more formal administration of Homemaker services is needed.

2. Availability of Homemakers

An Employment Availability Form, Appendix U (page U-1), was developed by the Project Coordinator. This was designed for Homemakers to indicate the time they were available and to give their preference as to job-type. This information was compiled into parish directories which were distributed by the Homemaker instructors to the Parish Advisory Committee members, interested organizations, and facilities which would be in a position to refer individuals for Homemaker services. This information was compiled into a state directory for this report and appears behind Appendix U.

VI. SIGNIFICANT FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

- The organization of a state and parish advisory committee contributed to the development of the Homemaker programs as follows: 1) curriculum content; 2) methods of instruction; 3) evaluation of local programs; 4) statewide and local public relations; and 5) selection and use of consultants in the instructor-training workshops and in the local community programs.
- 2. Cooperative working relationship between Louisiana State University and the State Department of Education provided the necessary background for establishing local Homemaker training programs.
- 3. Support of the Area Vocational Technical School administrations was an important factor in developing local training programs.
- 4. The development of a syllabus by the selected home economists as a part of their professional responsibilities in the training workshop proved to be an effective resource in training adults and older youths for Homemaker responsibilities.
- 5. The use of home economists in this particular training program has involved them more actively in community service work.
- 6. The selected home economists for special training of Homemaker-Home Health Aides have given time and effort, in addition to their instructional responsibilities, to the placement and supervision of the trained Homemakers.
- 7. Instruction in the area of mental retardation was included in the Homemaker Service Training Program curriculum developed in the 1966 workshop.
- 8. Indications from the evaluation of this project are that the State Employment Service and announcements in meetings of civic organizations may be effective in the recruitment, selection, and placement of Homemakers in private employment.
- 9. Indications from this evaluation were that the trained Homemakers were professionally oriented individuals, worthy of the trust and confidence placed with them by employers.
- 10. There were implications that services rendered by trained Homemakers in private home cases tend to relieve hospital and nursing home facilities. Also, the utilization of trained Homemakers by individuals in hospitals and nursing homes and by the administrations of these facilities make more personnel available in terms of registered nurses and registered practical nurses.

- 11. Home Jaker-Home Health Aides trained in 80-hour programs have given indication that they are well equiped for employment with the advanced training received including the developed skills and greater insight.
- 12. In Louisiana the 80-hour program which trained adults and older youths for Homemaker responsibilities was found to the most satisfactory.

A. Recommendations

- 1. There were indications that the importance of the Parish Advisory Committee to local programs needs to be stressed. The contributions which these strategic community leaders can make have not been fully realized or their resources tapped.
- 2. Indications from the evaluation of this project are that a need to publicize the program exists as the local community is not aware that trained Homemaker-Home Health Aides are available to perform homemaker and health services. A modification in Parish Advisory Committee function could serve to strengthen the program: 1) adding a representative of a news media to the Parish Advisory Committee and/or 2) the formation of a Parish Advisory Sub-Committee on publicity to assume the responsibility for making the public aware of the program.
- 3. The Parish Advisory Committee should be involved more in the employment placement of certified Homemaker-Home Health Aides.
- 4. Evaluation by trainees of each unit of work may be a useful instrument in strengthening and improving local Homemaker training programs. This technique would serve as a guide to Homemaker instructors in the planning and organization of curriculum content.
- 5. Evaluation by supervisors and instructors of the trainee supervised work experiences indicated that local Homemaker training programs need strength in the area of interpersonal relations. The strength of present local training programs lies in the acquired skills and ethical conduct of certified Homemakers.

VII. SUMMARY

In October, 1962 a three-year project under partial sponsorship of the U. S. Public Health Service was initiated in Louisiana to develop and study Homemaker services. This program was continued through March, 1967 supported by a grant with the Office of Education, U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. These two projects were organized and planned to train qualified home economists in workshops for leadership in training adults and older youths for Homemaker service responsibilities.

The Homemaker instructors organized and conducted Homemaker Service training courses in their local communities.

Evaluation techniques were developed to appraise the Homemaker program in Louisiana in terms of curriculum content, instructional program at the local level, employment of trainees, and the impact and effectiveness of the program on local communities.

It was found that the organization of a state and parish advisory committees contributed to the development of Homemaker programs in terms of curriculum content, methods of instruction, evaluation of local programs, statewide and local public relations, and selection and use of consultants in the workshops and in local programs.

Cooperative working relationship between Louisiana State University, State Department of Education, and the Area Vocational Technical School administrations provided the necessary background for establishing local training programs.

The development of a syllabus by the selected home economists as a part of their professional responsibilities in the training workshop proved to be an effective resource in training adults and older youths for Homemaker responsibilities.

The Homemaker instructors have given time and effort to the placement and supervision of Homemakers.

Indications from the evaluation of this project are that the State Employment Service and announcements in meetings of civic organizations may be effective in the recruitment, selection, and placement of Homemakers in employment.

Services rendered by trained Homemakers in private homes tend to relieve hospital and nursing home facilities and the utilization of trained Homemakers by individuals in hospitals and nursing homes and by the administrations of these facilities make more personnel available in terms of registered nurses and practical nurses. The 80-hour Homemaker-Home Health Aide training program was found to be the most satisfactory in which to train adults and older youths for Homemaker responsibilities.

A modification in Parish Advisory Committee function could well serve the Homemaker=Home Health Aide training program in terms of publicity, recruitment, screening, and employment placement.

The strength of the present Homemaker-Home Health Aide program in Louisiana lies in the acquired skills and ethical conduct of the certified Homemakers.

BE-ATTITUDES FOR FRIENDS OF THE AGED

à.

ERCC*

Blessed are they who understand - My faltering step and palsied hand
Blessed are they who know that my ears today - Must strain to catch the things they say.
Blessed are they who seem to know - That my eyes are dim and my wits are slow.
Blessed are they who looked away - When coffee spilled at table today.
Blessed are they with a cheery smile - Who stop to chat for a little while.
Blessed are they who never say - "You've told that story twice today."
Blessed are they who know the ways - To bring back memories of yesterdays.
Blessed are they who make it known - That I'm loved, respected and not alone.
Blessed are they who know I'm at a loss - To find the strength to carry the cross.
Blessed are they who ease the days - On my journey Home in loving ways.

GENERAL HYGIENE IN AGED

The rules of health by which we live are important at any age for they may well contribute to the length of life and enjoyment of living.

A review of hygiene for the elderly may be helpful to the Homemaker who contributes to the care of the aged person, the well oldster included.

Freedom

The old person should have as much freedom as is safe. Untold unhappiness or discontent can come to the oldster because families, friends and others take charge of them believing they are incapable of caring for themselves. One geriatrician states older persons need only two things for happiness and contentment: Economic security and freedom to do as they please. This can be questioned as a bit narrow and too simple, love and emotional security are also essential. Attention to the details of personal hygiene are very important when illness occurs. Care must be given, however, we must do it without seeming to manage the aged person or forcing adjustments on him. They dislike their routine disturbed.

The Homemaker must use judgement that enables her to distinguish activity which is harmless from that which may be injurious to the patient or others.

Example: Aged person smoking in bed - dangerous, whereas, the oldster who insists on wearing two pairs of socks is harming no one!

If a patient is used to taking a tub bath, why make him miserable in a shower? Some Homemakers want the room to look nice by having all shades drawn regardless of how the patient feels. Some like sunlight, others do not. Try to individualize each case.

Bathing and Skin Care

Many older people dislike daily baths and feel they are not necessary, and they show good judgement. Old people's skin is dry, and too frequent bathing may cause itching or what is called bath itch, which usually begins with dry reddened and itching spots. Two baths weekly is usually sufficient for the older person. Extra baths are necessary in illness. Back rubs and body message are very good for the bed patient. Alcohol should not be used as it is very drying to the skin. Boney areas may be protected from pressure by using foam rubber, chamois skin, sheepskin, etc.

Feet usually show changes early in illness due to diminishing circulation. The heels should be messaged. Nail care is important. They become brittle and thick and cutting is difficult. Warm oil poultices should be used on nails before cutting. (An older person should not cut his own nails.) Castor oil is one of the best oils for softening and improving textures of nails.

Hands

Creams should be used generously by elder people. If hands become very dry a lanolin cream may be applied at night and hands covered to prevent soiling of sheets.

Hair

Three or four weeks between shampooing is usually advisable. Daily scalp brushing is helpful. A small amount of lanolin cream is good used before shampoo. Older people should be discouraged from experimenting with new shampoos as many contain alcohol and other drying and irritating ingredients.

A woman can always get a lift from having her hair brushed and neatly sytled.

Dying Hair

Many women and men dye their hair. The need to have natural colored hair is one that must be recognized in our society where such a premium is placed on youth.

Sleep

Old people doze at intervals during the day, though total sleeping hours are not increased. They sleep lightly and get up more. Little is achieved in trying to alter the sleeping habits of the aged, but interesting activities to keep them awake during the day may induce better night sleep.

Ventilation

ERIC

Fresh air is important, but older people in general do not like too much fresh air. What younger people feel is the right amount of ventilation may not be suitable for the aged. Indirect ventilation is usually best for the aged since they are extremely susceptible to drafts. (Contrary to popular belief this is not a notion.) Many older people suffer from muscle pains that are aggravated through such exposures.

MEDICAL COMBINING FORMS

MEDICAL TERMS often seem just compositions of letters run together into unpronouncable hodge-podges. Actually, the words are generally developed from the meaning of various syllables, each of which has a meaning of its own. The worker can learn to identify many words with fair accuracy if he learns a few principles about the derivation of parts of words.

By knowing their meanings, the worker can often save himself much time in understanding what the physician has said about the person's health.

The following are some commonly used prefixes, suffixes, and examples of typical combining forms:

Prefix	Examples	Meaning
a or an : from or without	asepsis	without infection
	anesthesia	without sensation or feeling
ambi: both	ambidextrous	able to use either hand ef- fectively
	ambilateral	affecting both sides
anti : against or opposed to	antiseptic	against or preventing in- fection
bi : two	bilateral	having two sides or pertain- ing to both sides
brady : slow	bradycardia	abnormal slowness of the heart beat
	bradypnea	abnormal slowness of breathing
di : two	disphasic	having two phases or stages
	diplegia	bilateral paralysis
dys : pain, difficulty defective	dyspnea	difficult or labored breathing
	dystrophy	defective or faulty nutrition
hemi : half	hemiplegia	paralysis of one side of the body

Prefix	Examples	Meaning
hyper : above, in excess of	hyperthyroid	marked by excessive functional activity of the thyroid gland
	hypertrophy	enlargement of an organ or part due to increase in size of the cells
hypo : under or deficiency of	hypothyroidism	deficiency of activity of the thyroid gland hypotension	diminished tension; low blood pressure
peri: around	pericarditis	inflammation of the membranous sac that is around the heart
	pericephalic	surrounding the head
tachy : fast	tachycardia	excessive rapidity in the action of the heart
	tachypnea	excessively rapid breathing

Ø

D--C

Suffix	Example	Meaning
tomy : cutting into; incision	laparotomy	surgical cutting into the abdomen
	thoracotomy	surgical incision of the wall of the chest
pathy: disease	arthropathy	any joint disease
	neuropathy	any disease involving a nerve or nerves
••• phagia : eating	aphagia	loss of ability to swallow polyphagia	excessive eating
rrhagia : flowing; bursting forth	hemorrhage	a copious escape of blocd from blood vessels
	osteorrhagia	hemorrhage from the bone
•••• rrhaphy : a surgical stitch or seam	tracheorrhaphy	the operation of suturing the windpipe
trophy : nourishment	atrophy	without nourishment, or a wasting away

These words simply describe the nature and site of the physician's findings or medical or surgical procedures. The layman cannot presume to use these words or abbreviations diagnostically; he cannot estimate from the words the degree of disability that the individual patient encounters.

In most cases, his knowledge will help him better to understand and to assist the disabled and sick persons with whom he works.

MEDICAL TERMS

These are terms frequently used in connection with specific illnesses.

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS, a disease predominantly of early middle age, is generally thought to be responsible for more crippling than any other. This disease causes pain which may be severe or slight, along with deformity.

1. Acute infectious or traumatic arthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis caused by infection or injury.

2. Adduction contractures. Deformities in a drawn-up position.

3. Ankylosis. A permanent solid union of two bones at the joint.

4. Ankylosis spondylitis. Rheumatoid arthritis of the spine in which the vertebrae grow together, causing a "poker spine."

5. Arthralgia. Joint pain.

6. Arthrodesis. Surgical stiffening of the joint sometimes restored to in cases of uncontrollable pain or used to give stability.

7. Arthropathy. Joint disease.

8. Arthroplasty. Surgery of limited success designed to restore movement to a stiffened joint.

9. Bursitis. Inflammation of a bursa, which is a small sac filled with fluid to prevent friction of tissues which rub together.

10. Degenerative or hypertrophic arthritis. Osteoarthritis, the form to which old persons are subject.

11. Exacerbation. An aggravation or flare-up. The opposite of remission or abatement. The two are used together to describe ups and downs in disease, "exacerbations and remissions," as in rheumatoid arthritis.

12. Extension. An outright position.

13. Flexion. A bent position.

FRIC

14. Herberden's nodes. Knobby lumps over finger joints; named for the physician who first described them.

15. Kyphosis. Hump or round curve of spine.

16. Polyarthritis. Arthritis in more than one joint.

17. Sedimentation rate. A painless blood test which indicates whether there is active infection in the body.

18. Still's disease. Juvenile rheumatoid arthritis.

19. Synovial fluid. Produced by the synovial membrane, "oil for the hinge."

DIABETES MELLITUS is a disturbance of metabolism caused by an insufficient supply of insulin. This disease cannot be cured, but it can be controlled.

1. Acidosis. Technically a lowered blood bicarbonate; used to describe an abnormal condition in a diabetic which leads to coma and death if not corrected quickly.

2. Benedict's solution. A solution used in testing for sugar in the urine.

3. Brittle (or labile) diabetes. A form of diabetes in which levels of blood sugar change rapidly and are highly sensitive to insulin.

4. Clinitest. Test used for sugar in the urine.

5. Diuresis. Increased secretion of urine.

6. Exchange System. A method of diet computation. An "exchange" is the specific number of grams of fat, carbohydrate, protein, and calories to be found in a specified amount of food used as a basic unit in the Exchange System.

7. Furuncle. A boil.

ERIC

8. Glucose tolerance test. A blood test used for detection of diabetes when diagnosis is uncertain.

9. Glycogen. The chief form of carbohydrate as stored in the body.

10. Glycosuria. The presence of an abnormal amount of sugar in the urine.

11. Hyperglycemia. A higher than normal concentration of sugar in the blood.

12. Hypoglycemia. A lower than normal concentration of sugar in the blood.

13. Insulin resistance. A condition in which large doses of insulin do not achieve the expected control.

14. Ketonuria. The presence of ketones in the urine.

15. Ketosis. An excessive production of ketones in the blood which causes coma.

16. Polydipsia. Excessive thirst.

17. Polyuria. The passage of abnormally large amount of urine.

18. Pruritis. Intense itching.

19. Pruritis vulvae. Intense itching of the external genitals of the female.

20. Retinitis. Inflammation of the retina.

21. Retinopathy. Any noninflammatory disease of the retina.

22. Uremia. A toxic condition caused by suppression or insufficient secretion of urine in which urinary constituents remain in the blood.

TUBERCULOSIS is caused by inhaling the germ (tubercle bacille) exhaled by someone in an infectious stage of the disease. It can occur in almost any part of the body.

1. Active, activity. Describes disease that is not healed. Ongoing disease process.

2. AMA (AWOL). Patient left hospital "Against Medical Advice" (Away Without Leave); also described as "Irregular Discharge."

3. Arrested TB. Disease process appears to have been stopped (the term "inactive" is now used instead of "arrested.")

4. BCG. Vaccine against tuberculosis.

FRĬC

5. Bilateral. Describes disease in both lungs.

6. Calcification. Late healing process wherein lime salts are de-

7. Cavity. A hole produced in the lung by certain diseases.

8. Communicable. Infectious, contagious. Transmissible from person to person.

9. Contact. A person who has been in continued and/or close touch with a patient with active tuberculosis.

10. Drug resistance. Condition in which the strain of tubercles present is one not affected by the drugs in use to combat tuberculosis. 11. Empyema. Accumulation of pus in the space between lung and chest wall because of infection.

12. Hemoptysis. Spitting up blood; a blood-stained sputum.

13. Infectious. Contagious, communicable; describes disease caused by parasites or germs.

14. Lesion. A wound in body tissue.

15. Lobectomy. Surgical removal of a lobe of the lung.

16. Minimal. Official classification of tuberculosis in which lesions are small and only a small part of the lungs is affected.

17. Moderately advanced. Official classification of the disease stage between minimal and far advanced.

18. Nonpulmonary. Describes tuberculosis of parts of the body other than the lungs.

19. Patch test. Test of skin sensitivity to tuberculin, administered by means of a plaster or patch. Not as reliable as a Mantoux test.

20. Pneumonectomy. Surgical removal of one lung.

21. Pneumoperitoneum (PNP). Injection of air into the abdominal cavity to collapse the lung.

22. Pneumothorax. Injection of air into the pleural cavity in order to produce partial collapse of the lung.

23. Positive. Describes condition when tubercle bacilli are present.

24. Primary tuberculosis. The disease process which results from initial infection with tubercle bacilli.

25. Pulmonary. Referring to the lung.

ERIC

26. Reactivation. Condition when inactive tuberculosis has again become active.

27. Thoracoplasty. Surgical removal of ribs to produce collapse of the lung.

28. Tubercle bacillus. Germ which causes tuberculosis.

29. Tuberculin. Substance used in skin sensivity tests to determine the presence of tuberculous infection.

30. Unilateral. Onesided; describes disease in one lung.

31. Vital capacity. A test of the amount of air the lungs can expel, frequently used to determine how adequately the lungs function.

The PULMONARY CRIPPLE is handicapped by shortness of breath. Various chest conditions may cause this type of crippling; however, the major causes are long-standing chronic bronchial asthma and emphysema.

1. Barrel chest. A deformity resulting from chronic difficulty in expulsion of air from the lungs; an objective sign of advanced emphysema,

2. Bullae. Blisters in the lungs which are filled with air.

3. Cor pulmonale. Heart disease caused by disease of the lungs or of their blood vessels; an indication of far advanced lung disease and of poor prognosis.

4. Cyanosis. Blueness of the skin; an indication of insufficient oxygen in the blood.

5. Dyspnea. Difficult or labored breathing.

6. Expiration-inspiration measurement. The measurement of the difference in chest size on breathing in and breathing out shows whether the chest is flexible or has become fixed in an expanded position. The usual healthy difference in measurement is five to six inches.

7. M.B.M. (maximum breathing capacity). A test which gives an index of ventilatory capacity of the lungs and presents an objective measurement of breathing reserve.

8. Orthopnea. Inability to breathe except in an upright position.

9. Pneumoconiosis. A chronic fibrosis reaction in lungs due to dust inhalation.

10. Polycythemia. An excess number of red blood cells, a disease condition which sometimes develops from chronic struggle for air.

DISEASE OF THE NERVIOUS SYSTEM include a wide variety of disorders. Many are chronic, progressive, and severely disabling. Some of the disorders begin in early childhood, others in middle age, and some in later life. Diseases included in this category are: multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophies and atrophies, amyotonia congenita, myotonia atrophica, myasthenia gravis, Huntington's chorea and Parkinson's disease.

1. Achilles reflex. Ankle jerk test.

2. Aphonia. Loss of voice.

3. Ataxia. Failure of muscular coordination.

4. Cerebellar. Pertaining to the cerebellum, the lower part of the brain, which controls movements.

5. Cerebral. Pertaining to the cerebrum, the main or top part of the brain, divided into two "hemispheres" and controlling the higher func-tions, such as reasoning.

6. Cranial. Pertaining to the head or cranium.

7. Diplopia. Double vision

8. Dysarthria. Imperfect articulation in speech.

9. Electroenchephalogram (EEG). Painless test of electrical activity in the brain.

10. Euphoria. Unwarrented, excessive cheerfulness.

11. Hyperreflexia. Overactive reflexes.

12. Intention tremor. Tremor occurring when the individual begins a movement of the muscles involved.

EPILEPSY is a condition in which an impairment of consciousness occurs and which may or may not be accompanied by convulsive movements of the body.

1. Aura. A warning of an impending seizure through a sensation or bodily experience.

2. Diurnal. Daily; referring to seizures that occur in the daytime.

3. Epileptic equivalent. A seizure type corresponding to psychomotor epilepsy.

4. Grand mal. Literally large sickness; major convulsions.

5. Idiopathic. Of unknown origin.

ERIC

6. Nocturnal. Nightly; referring to seizures that occur at night.

7. Petit mal. Literally small illness; fleeting impairments of considuaness, often so slight as to be misinterpreted as mere lapses of attention.

8. Psychomotor. Describes seizures that combine psychic and bodily effects, ranging from small movements to violent behavior or antisocial acts.

9. Status epilepticus. A dangerous condition in which the person goes from one seizure into another without stopping. A medical emergency.

CEREBAL PALSY is a permanent neuromuscular disability usually caused by prenatal or birth injury to the motor control centers of the brain. It may not only produce a lack of muscular control but frequently creates mental retardation, seizures, and other sensory disorders.

1. Abduction. The act of turning outward.

2. Adduction. The act of turning inward. Abduction and adduction are used to describe deformities or contractures--for example, "the foot is held in abduction" or "an adduction contracture."

3. Amentia. Congenital mental deficiency.

4. Apraxia. Loss of ability to perform purposful movements without paralysis of the parts concerned.

5. Ataxia. Clumsiness and lack of balance.

6. Athetoid. Afflicted with slow, squirming, twisting, purposeless movements.

7. C.N.S. Central Nervous system

8. Chorea. An abnormal involuntary muscle activity, usually involving the arms and legs, of a quick jerky character.

9. Clonic. Pertaining to spasm in which rigidity and relaxation succeed each other.

10. Hamstrings. Tendons at the back of the knee.

11. Hypoxia. Low oxygen content.

FRIC

12. Scissors gait. A gait disturbance caused by the fact that spasticity of the muscles holds the thighs in adduction, causing the legs to draw together.

13. Spastic. Characterized by spasms.

14. Tetraplegia. Paralysis of all four extremities.

PARAPLEGIA AND QUADRIPLEGIA are forms of paralysis. Persons who are paralyzed below the waist are called paraplegics. Those who are paralyzed in all four extremities are called quadriplegics. 1. Ambulate. To walk; usually referring to walking with braces or crutches.

2. Automatic bladder. A bladder trained to empty itself at regular intervals.

3. Kyphosis. Humpback, an abnormal curvature of the spine.

4. Lordosis. A curvature of the spine with the opposite effect of syphosis; the convexity is forward.

5. Micturition. The act of emptying the bladder.

6. Paresis. Partial paralysis; sometimes loosely used to describe paraplegia.

7. Tidal drainage. A method used in hospitals to train persons with denervated bladders to regain inhibitory control so that incontinence is overcome without the use of catheter.

8. Tracheotomy. Formation of an artificial opening into the trachea, or windpipe.

CARDIOVASCULAR DISEASE (C.V.D.) is the term used to describe all types of heart disease. Heart disease for outranks all other diseases in causing death and disability. The most common type of heart disease now is coronary disease.

1. Acute failure. A condition in which the heart is rapidly deteriorating in its capacity to maintain life. Not necessarily fatal if medical intervention is available and the heart has the capacity to respond or compensate.

2. Aorta. The main artery or arterial trunk from which the entire arterial system proceeds.

3. Arrhythmia. Any variation from the normal rhythm of the heart beat.

4. Ascites. An accumulation of fluid in the abdomen caused by inadequate function of the circulatory system.

5. Atherosclerosis. Accumulation of fatty deposits in the arteries.

6. Auricles. The upper chambers of the heart which serve as collecting stations for the blood.

7. Cardiac. Pertaining to the heart.

8. Cholestrol. A fatlike, pearly substance, found in all animal fats and oils, in bile, blood, and brain tissue, which accumulates in the arteries, causing atherosclerosis.

9. Chronic failure. A condition consisting of bouts of acute failure with intervals of finely balanced compensation, or a condition in which chronic symptoms demonstrate that the heart's activity is at low ebb.

10. Congestive failure. Technically, an overfullness of the blood vessels of an organ or part. The term is used to describe the serious condition in which the heart is not keeping up with the demands upon it.

11. Coronary. Refers to the vessels which fit over the heart and provide nourishment for its muscle.

12.. Coronary insufficiency. Insufficient provision of blood by the arteries to the tissues of the heart.

13. Coronary thrombosis. The formation of a clot, in a branch of the coronary arteries which supply blood to the heart muscle, causing obstruction of the artery.

14. Diastolic. Pertaining to diastole or the resting phase of the heart beat.

15. Digitalis. A cardiac stimulant; a heart tonic for cardiac weakness of any kind.

16. Fibrillation. Action in which muscle fibers beat without rhythm.

17. Ischemia. Deficiency of blood to a part, such as to the heart muscle.

18. Myocardial infarction. Death of a part of the heart muscle.

19. Myocardium. The heart muscle.

ERĬC

20. Occlusion. The act of closure or the state of being closed; in coronary disease, the clogging of a vessel by a clot.

21. Rales. Abnormal sounds in the lungs heard through the stethoscope.

22. Tachycardia. A heart pulse rate of above 100 per minute; excessively rapid action of the heart.

CEREBRAL (meaning "brain") VASCULAR (pertaining to blood vessels) DISEASE occurs as a result of several disorders. The major manifestations are cerebral vascular accidents (CVA's or strokes) and cerebral arteriosclerosis (gradual hardening of the arteries of the brain).

1. Alexia. Visual aphasia or word blindness; inability to read because of a brain lesion.

2. Anoxia. Oxygen deficiency or lack.

3. Carotid. The principal arteries of the neck.

4. Cerebral anemia. Deficient blood supply to the brain.

5. Cerebral vascular accident. "Stroke" or CVA.

6. Cortical atrophy. Wasting and death of the cortex of the brain; term often used to denote mental deficiency.

7. Disuse atrophy. Muscle wasting caused by lack of use of the part.

8. Flaccid. Describing a limp form of paralysis.

9. Spastic. Describes a tightened muscular condition.

CANCER, the second highest cause of death, is predominantly a disease of persons more than forty years of age, and increases in incidence and advancing age.

1. Adenoma. A harmless or benign tumor.

2. Androgen. Male hormone.

3. Basal cell. One of the cells of the deep layer of the skin; the name given to one type of skin cancer.

4. Benign. Not malignant or recurrent; favorable for recovery.

5. Carcinoma. A malignant growth tending to infiltrate the surrounding tissues and giving rise to metastases; scientific name for one general type of cancer.

6. Gastrostomy. The operation of forming an opening into the stomach.

7. Hodgkin's disease. Form of lymph-node cancer.

8. Leukemia. A malignant disease of the blood-forming organs; cancer of the blood.

9. Leukocyte. A colorless cell mass, such as a white blood corpuscle, pus corpuscle.

10. Malignant. A virulent tumor; a cancer.

11. Neoplasm. Any new and abnormal growth such as a tumor.

12. Sarcoma. A highly malignant tumor of connective tissue cells.

13. Short-circuiting surgery. Joining two parts of intestine above and below an obstruction.

HINTS AND SUGGESTIONS FOR MEASURING

1. Use standard measuring cups and spoons.

- 2. Use level measurements. Use a straight-edged knife or spatula for leveling.
- 3. In a marked measuring cup, read the measure at eye level.
- 4. Sift flour before measuring on to a square of waxed paper or a paper towel. After it is sifted, spoon the sifted flour lightly into a "dry" measuring cup-heaping it up. Level off the cup with the back of a straight-edged knife or spatula. Never shake the flour down into the cup.
- 5. White granulated sugar needs sifting only when it is lumpy. Spoon the sugar into a "dry" measuring cup and then level it off with a spatual or straight-edged knife.

- 6. Brown sugar should be packed into a "dry" measuring cup just enough to hold its shape when taken from the cup. (If lumpy roll out on waxed paper before measuring.)
- Confectioners' sugar should be pressed through a sieve to remove 7. lumps. Spoon sifted sugar lightly into a "dry" measuring cup heaping it up. Level off cup with a spatula or straight-edged knife.
- To measure baking powder, cream of tartar, baking soda, salt, 8. spices, and similar dry ingredients - fill the measuring spcon. Carefully level it off with a straight-edged knife.
- Shortening is measured most accurately if it is at room temperature. 9. Pack firmly into a unit measuring cup and leave no air holes. If a glass measuring cup is used, the water displacement method is satisfactory for measuring amounts less than 1 cup. If the recipe calls for 1/3 cup shortening, fill the measuring cup 2/3 full of water. Add shortening until the level of the water is even with the 1 cup line. Drain off the water before using shortening. In measuring less than 1/4 cup - use a tablespoon.

BE SURE YOU HAVE THE CORRECT MEASURING TOOLS. Measuring cups are made of aluminum, glass, or plastic. A standard measuring cup is an accurate 1/2 pint measure, and is the equivalent of 16 tablespoons.

It is marked on one side to read - 1 cup, 3/4 cup, 1/2 cup, 1/4 cup. It is marked on the other side - 1 cup, 2/3 cup, 1/3 cup.

A Dry Measuring Cup has no rim - the 1 cup line is even with the top. This cup is used for any dry ingredients or shortening.

A Liquid Measuring Cup has a rim above the 1 cup line, and spout for pouring. This cup is made for measuring any liquid ingrediencs.

A Set of Unit or Graduated Measuring Cups are available in 1 cup, 1/2 cup, 1/3 cup and 1/4 cup units. These cups are used for measuring any dry ingredients or shortening.

Measuring Spoons are made of metal or plastic material. They come in sets of 1 tablespoon, 1 teaspoon, 1/2 teaspoon, and 1/4 teaspoon. These spoons are used for measuring less than 1/4 cup of any ingredient.

A Spatula is a straight-edged, flevible knifelike utensil - used for leveling off measuring cups and measuring spoons.

A Straight-Edged Knife is used for leveling off measuring cups and measuring spoons.

SUGGESTIONS FOR IMPROVING DIETS OF THE ELDERLY

Pot liquor from those "greens" is another source of vitamin C and goes quite well with the cornbread.

Try finely shredded cabbage for a good cole slaw for the toothless person or grind the cabbage in a meat chopper, saving the liquid.

Peeled orange and grapefruit sections also make an attractive salad.

An extra special dish to give added food value to that left over rice is OLD FASHIONED RICE PUDDING-

> 3 eggs 3 cups scalded milk 1/2 cup sugar 1/4 tsp. salt 1/2 tsp. vanilla extract 3/4 cup cooked rice Raisins (may be omitted)

Beat eggs slightly. Add the sugar, salt, and flavorings. Pour on the scalded milk. Strain and pour into a well buttered casserole. Add the rice and raisins, if you wish. Sprinkle with a few grains of nutmeg. Set in a pan of water and bake at 350°. Leave out the rice for a plain baked custard.

MOLASSES PRUNE PIE -Mix together 2 cups cooked pitted prunes (32-36 prunes) 1/4 cup prune juice 3/4 cup dark molasses 3 beaten egg yolks 1 tablespoon lemon juice 1 teaspoon lemon rind 1/4 cup melted fat 1/2 teaspoon cloves

Pour into unbaked pastry. Cover with top crust. Bake at 425°F. for 30 minutes.

ERIC

Stir 1/3 cup skim milk solids into a glass of whole mile for added protein and calcium. This equals another cup of milk.

Buttermilk may be more popular with the oldster than "sweet" milk. It can be made economically from nonfat dry milk powder. See box for recipe.

In scrambled eggs, stir in skim milk solids or cheese for extra value.

Make soups with milk and vegetable purees for the toothless person.

Chopped meats or very tender baked and stewed meats will be more enjoyable for the toothless patient than hard cooked, dry meats.

Try adding ground liver to ground beef recipes for an extra special dish or add extra eggs to meat loaf and cornbread for "hidden" food value.

Baked potatoes, sweet and Irish, add a zing and extra vitamin C.

SPOON BREAD-

Sift together 1 cup corn meal, 1 teaspoon salt. Add 1 1/2 cup scalding milk; 3 level tablespoons margarine; stir until smooth.

Break 5 eggs (6, if small); adding one at a time; mixing until smooth.

Add 2 more cups milk; 2 teaspoons baking powder; pour about 1" deep in well greased pan; bake 30 - 40 min. minutes in 375° F. oven.

Serve at cace. In protein value, this bread equals 1 1b. lean hamburger meat.

LOW RESIDUE DIET Ca1-2200 C-245 P-90 F-95

This non-irritating diet affords rest to the gastrointestional tract by restricting undigestible and unabsorbable foods. The diet is low in calcium, riboflavin and niacin so vitamin supplements may be required.

The following foods are allowed on the low residue diet:

Soups	Clear soups and cream soups made from foods allowed.
Eggs	Cooked any way except fried and without meat fat.
Meat, fish, poultry	Tender beef, veal, lamb, fowl, fish, liver, crisp bacon, and lean baked ham. These should be baked, broiled, boiled, or stewed. NO FRIED FOODS
Dairy products	Cottage or cream cheese only, cream, butter, margarine, and ½ pint milk per day.
Cereals	Grits, cream of wheat, farina, and strained oatmeal. Corn- flakes, rice krispies, and puffed rice only.
Bread	White bread, saltines, and Melba toast.
Potatoes & substitutes	White potatoes, prepared any way but fried; rice, grits, noodles, spaghetti, and macaroni prepared with milk and butte
Vegetables	The following cooked and pureed: English peas, carrots, beets spinach, squash, green beans, wax beans, and asparagus.
Fruits	Canned peaches, pears and applesauce. Ripe bananas are only fresh fruit allowed.
Desserts	Cakes, cookies, custards, Jello, puddings, ice creams, and sherbets. These must not contain nuts, raisins, coconut seeds, and skins.
Beverages	Coffee, tea, fruit juice, (except V-8), carbonated beverages and one half pint of milk per day. No prune juice.
Condiments	Salt and sugar only. NO PEPPER.
Fats	Cream, butter and margarine only.
Misc.	Jelly, syrup, honey, and hard candies.
FOODS TO AVOID:
<pre>All milk except the amount specifically allowed in the list above. Prune juice, alcoholic beverages. Foods cooked in fat and other rich foods such as gravies, pies, pastries. Spices, extracts, condiments (except salt), vinegar, mustard, horseradish,catsu All cereals not listed above. Raw fruits and vegetables (except those allowed above). All tough or fibrous meat, pickled meat or fish, corned foods, luncheon meats, fresh pork. All nuts, cheeses (except cottage or cream), coconut, seeds, and skins.</pre>

HOME SAFETY CHECK LIST

Safe House Planning and Furnishing

- . . . ... · · · · · · · · · · 1. Install light switches at both ends of halls and stairways and at entrances to rooms. 2. Install' locked screens on all windows. 3. Install an approved fire extinguisher in the home and teach all family members how to operate it. 4. Build handrails on stairways. 5. Provide handrails and rubber mats for bathcub and shower. 6. Have two-way locks on bathroom doors. 7. Fasten extension cords to floor on wall to prevent tripping. 8. Plug unused light sockets with used fuses, and install safety plugs in electrical wall outlets, so that children will not be able to probe with fingers. 9. Place stoves and heaters away from windows and cupboards. 10. Place tight fitting screen in front of fireplace. 11. Provide firm, steady storage and work surfaces for small electrical appliances. 12. Place gates at head and foot of stairs where there are young children. 13. Use playpens for children under eighteen months of age. 14. Provide sturdy ladders and step scools for climbing or reaching high places. 15. Provide covered storage for used tin cans, broken glass, used razor blades. 16. Provide closed metal containers for oiled dustcloths and mops. 17. Build high, locked storage cabinets for poisons, guns, other dangerous material.
- 18. Equip a repair kit containing a flashlight, hammer, screwdriver, pliers and other tools needed for emergency repairs.
- 19. Provide rug pads or tack rugs down to keep them from sliding or curling at edges. Avoid using small scatter rugs.

House Repair for Safety

- 1. Repair or replace steps, handrails and loose floor boards when needed.
- 2. Repair electrical cords and plugs at first signs of wear.
- 3. Have regular inspection of heating and lightening system by electrician.
- 4. Replace blown fuses with new fuses of correct voltage.
- 5. Replace loose screens and locks.
- 6. Repair loose pieces of furniture when condition is noted.
- 7. Inspect ladders and steps regularly.
- 8. Check for loose connections.

Safe Housekeeping Practices

- 1. Be tidy; keep stairways, floors and grounds free from articles which might cause accidents.
- 2. Rub down waxed or polished floors so they are safe for walking.

- 3. Wipe up water, grease, or other spilled materials immediately to prevent falls. Remove snow and ice from steps and walks.
- 4. Close cabinets doors or drawers after use to prevent bumps.
- 5. Close all closet and inside doors, or open them wide, so no one will run into them.
- 6. Store articles and boxes in closets and cupboards so that they will not fall out when doors are opened. Do not overcrowd closets.
- 7. Use mechanical and electrical equipment according to manufacturer directions.
- 8. Clean all mechanical and electrical équipment regularly according to the manufacturer's directions.
- 9. Disconnect electrical appliances before leaving the room.
- 10. Disconnect all electrical appliances and furnishings while the family _ is away on vacation.
- 11. Burn wastepaper and other inflammable trash every day. Burn outside in an incinerator or metal basket. Never burn during high wind. Watch every stray spark which could cause fire. Keep children away from fire.
- 12. When dry cleaning must be done at home, use only noninflammable cleaner and always work out of doors.
- 13. Keep cisterns, wells and deep holes on property covered tightly.
- 14. Never leave an unused refrigerator on the premises: in many states doors must be removed before discarding.
- 15. Remove glass, nails, cans or other sharp objects from the yard.
- 16. Store gasoline in metal containers according to Louisiana law.

Safe Personal Practices

- 1. Hold a handrail when going up and down stairs.
- 2. Hold a handrail when getting in and out of a bathtub or shower.
- 3. Keep hands free when climbing a ladder or step stool. Place articles on a high surface which can be reached from the top of the ladder or ask someone to hand the articles to you. Never stand on chairs or boxes.
- 4. When carrying something, make two trips, if necessary, to make it possible to see over the load, and avoid strain in carrying.
- 5. Keep pothandles turned toward the back of the range to prevent catching the handle and spilling hot food.
- 6. Use pot holders to handle every pan which has been on the range or in the oven.
- 7. Use a can opener and bottle opener. There is no safe substitute for these articles.
- 8. Use all knives and cutting tools with cutting edge pointing away from the body. Cut foods on a board rather than in your hands. Carry knives, scissors, and other sharp or pointed tools with the tip down toward the floor, and with the arm held by the side.
- 9. When touching electrical equipment or light switches, be sure the hands are dry and that no part of the body is touching metal, a wet surface or another piece of electrical equipment. Remember that telephones are electrically controlled.

- 10. Put pins, needles, tacks, nails, and screws in a container each time they are put down. They are hard to see on the floor, but cause injury if stepped on.
- 11. Lay scissors, knives, and woodworking tools on a flat surface, well away from the edge, so that they will not slip off the working area.
- 12. Read the label three times before giving any medicine. Rubber bands can be placed around bottles containing poisons, so their nature can be detected even in the dark.
- 13. Store medicines or household cleaning products containing any poisons out of the reach of children, and in a place where they will not be mistaken for food.
- 14. Do not leave thin plastic bags (such as those used by dry cleaners) around the home where children can play with them.
- 15. Use lighted candles only when someone will be in the room to watch them. Place in candle holders with broad, heavy bases and away from flowers or decorations which might catch fire.
- 16. Rest ten minutes out of every hour when doing hard work. This measure prevents fatigue, which dulls good judgment and increases the possibility of an accident.
- 17. Furniture should not be rearranged without the knowledge of the occupant. They are likely to forget and depend upon long established habits.
- 18. Accidents are frequently caused by older persons turning on the stove or heater and forgetting to light it. Also allowing pots to boil over or sleeve getting over the gas jet. Fill pots or pans one-half to two-thirds full to prevent boiling c.er.
- 19. Always wrn light on when giving or taking medicine.
- 20. Exercise care when giving heat treatments.

GOALS OF EDUCATION FOR THE WORLD OF WORK

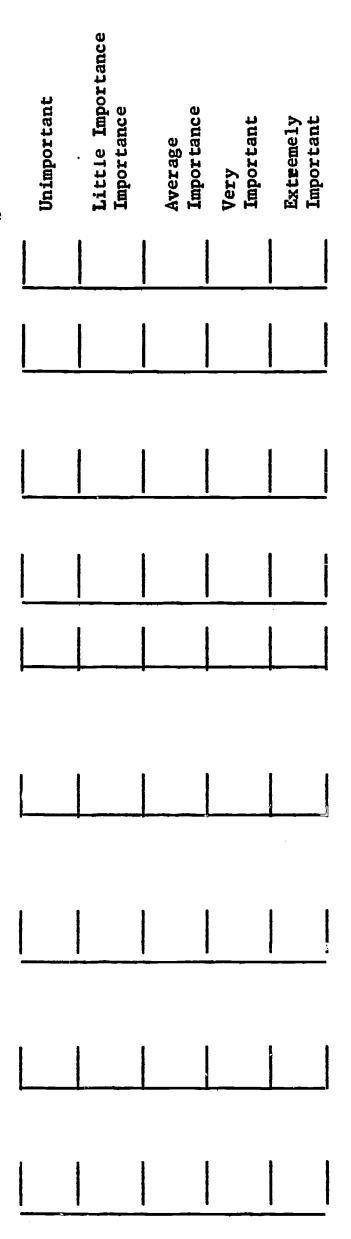

Please rate the following goals as to their relative importance, considering current limitations on time and resources, by placing a check in the appropriate box.

- To develop understanding of how his home, community and job environment contribute to his job satisfaction.
- 2. To develop skill in the performance of tasks that are basic elements of specific occupations involving motor and sensory discrimination and sensitivity.
- 3. To develop awareness of how his skills can contribute to the welfare of the community through various volunteer neighborhood and community service groups.
- 4. To develop awareness of the dynamic character of attitudes and the effects of adapting to meet new problems.
- 5. To help the student develop an achievement motivation and an awareness of the interaction between societal demands and individual needs.
- 6. To develop understanding of the interdependence of all groups in society, and the need to identify with its larger, more comprehensive groups, as well as the smaller, more immediate groups.
- 7. To develop in the student a realistic understanding of the relation between occupation and the other determinants of socioeconomic status.

- 8. To develop ability to distinguish factors--skills, talents, and personal characteristics--pertinent to work from those factors that are not, such as race, religion, political affiliation and national an cestry.
- 9. To develop a realistic understanding of the occupational skills, talents and potential of women.
- 10. To develop a positive attitude toward continuing education and an understanding of its importance in our rapidly changing society.
- 11. To develop understanding of the role of human relations in job performance, for example, worker to client behavioral rules.
- 12. To provide knowledge of the general principles of safety.
- 13. To help the student see how continuing, constructive self-analysis can be a valuable tool of vocational self-improvement and how achievements can be used as measures of vocational progress.
- 14. To develop ability in the student to evaluate his vocational aspirations against his opportunities, educational achievement, cognitive and physical abilities and personal characteristics.
- 15. To assist the student in the recognition of his personal characteristics and to aid in their development or modification when necessary.
- 16. To help the student gain insight into his behavior patterns, for example, his preference for leading or following, group or individual activities.

- c. families have been able to remain together in time of stress because Visiting Homemakers were available
   d. the unemployment problem has been reduced to some extent because of this program
   c. other (specify)______
- 12. To obtain some information concerning "on the job performance" of the trained Homemaker, will you please contact 5 persons by telephone who have used one of the trained Visiting Homemakers in their homes. Listed below are some general questions to ask this employer. Record the answers on the attached pages.
- TELEPHONE INTERVIEW Briefly explain the purpose of the contact. We are trying to gain some information about the Homemaker Service Training Program in order to make plans for continuing it next year. Since you did use one of the Visiting Homemakers for a period of time, your response to the following questions will be most helpful.
  - a. What would you have done when this crisis happened in your family if a trained Visiting Homemaker had not been available? (Placed person in nursing home, someone stayed home from work, etc.)
  - b. How did you learn about Visiting Homemaker Service? Do you think the *** program should be given more publicity?
  - c. Of the duties required in your situation, in which areas was the Visiting Homemaker most competent? Less competent?
  - d. If you have a similar situation is the home will you use a trained Visiting Homemaker? Do you believe the other family members would agree with you?
  - e. From your own experience, is it your opinion that Visiting Homemaker Service does contribute to the welfare of families in times of stress and that this program should be continued?
