Introduction - Process-based Application Development

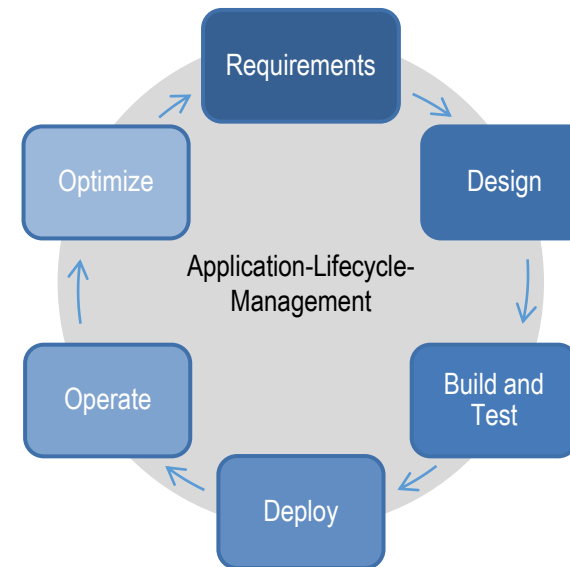

PMLC and ALM – two sides of the same coin?

- ▶ Processes define the business framework of operational software (applications).
- ▶ Applications form the technical framework for the execution of processes.

Process Management Life Cycle (PMLC)

... for a continuous improvement of the processes in the entire organization.

Application Lifecycle Management (ALM) ... for a continuous (further) development and support of applications.

Establish a common language and transparency for business and IT.
▶ Feedback loops from IT to Business are enabled

Establish a consistent approach from blueprint to go-live and operations.

Active involvement of the business during the entire application lifecycle of the SAP system, e.g. blueprinting, requirements clarification, testing.

Reuse of existing process information.

Leverage “best practice” information from SAP for process design.

→ Integrate best practice approaches for Process & Application Lifecycle Management!
