Joseph A. Grundfest

*Co-director, Directors' College 2009; W.A. Franke Professor of Law and Business
Stanford Law School*

Joseph A. Grundfest '78 is a nationally prominent expert on capital markets, corporate governance, and securities litigation. His scholarship has been published in the Harvard, Yale, and Stanford law reviews, and he has been recognized as one of the most influential attorneys in the United States. Professor Grundfest founded the award-winning Stanford Securities Class Action Clearinghouse, which provides detailed, online information about the prosecution, defense, and settlement of federal class action securities fraud litigation. He also launched Stanford Law School's executive education programs, and continues to co-direct Directors' College, the nation's leading venue for the continuing professional education of directors of publicly traded corporations. In addition, he co-directs the Arthur and Toni Rembe Rock Center for Corporate Governance, as well as the Stanford Program in Law, Economics, and Business.

Before joining the Stanford Law School faculty in 1990, Professor Grundfest was a commissioner of the Securities and Exchange Commission, served on the staff of the President's Council of Economic Advisors as counsel and senior economist for legal and regulatory matters, and was an associate at Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering. Early in his career he was a research associate at the Brookings Institution, and an economist and consultant with the RAND Corporation.

Simon M. Lorne

Co-director, Directors' College 2009, Stanford Law School

Vice Chairman and Chief Legal Officer, Millennium Partners, LP

Simon M. Lorne is vice chairman and chief legal officer of Millennium Management LLC, a New York-based multi-strategy hedge fund manager, with primary responsibility for the development, enhancement and oversight of the internal control environment as well as preparation for and attention to the evolving regulatory environment for hedge funds.

Prior to joining Millennium, he was at Munger, Tolles & Olson LLP, Los Angeles, from 1970 to 1993 and again from 1999 to 2004, serving as partner from 1972. Mr. Lorne's practice focused on corporate transactions (mergers & acquisitions, corporate finance, etc.) and corporate governance issues, particularly special committee and audit committee reviews and examinations.

From 1993 to 1996 he was general counsel for the United States Securities & Exchange Commission (SEC). The general counsel is the SEC's principal legal officer. The office advises the Chairman and Commissioners on all aspects of the Commission's activities, including adoption of corporate finance, mutual fund, securities exchange and broker-dealer rules and regulations; prosecution of enforcement cases; relations with the Congress; etc.

Between 1993 and 1996 Mr. Lorne was managing director, Salomon Brothers and Salomon Smith Barney, New York (now Citigroup Global Markets, Inc.) and held a series of positions within the Salomon entities, beginning with Salomon Brothers, then with Travelers Group after its acquisition of Salomon, then with Citigroup after the Travelers-Citicorp merger to form what is now Citigroup. Activities included serving as head of global internal audit (with reporting to the Audit Committee of the Board); member of the Investment Banking screening committee; and organization of the global Citigroup compliance function.

Mr. Lorne received a J.D. (magna cum laude) from the University of Michigan Law School at Ann Arbor and an A.B. (cum laude) from Occidental College, Los Angeles, California. He is the author of one multi-volume treatise, Acquisitions and Mergers: Negotiated and Contested Transactions in the West Securities Law Series, one handbook for corporate directors, A Director's Handbook of Cases, published by CCH Incorporated, and a number of articles in the popular and legal press. He is also a frequent speaker and lecturer, and has taught at the University of Pennsylvania, University of Southern California, and New York University law schools.

The Honorable Christopher C. Cox

Former Chairman

United States Securities and Exchange Commission

Christopher Cox was the 28th Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. He was appointed by President Bush on June 2, 2005, and unanimously confirmed by the Senate on July 29, 2005. He was sworn in on August 3, 2005.

During his tenure at the SEC, Chairman Cox made vigorous enforcement of the securities laws the agency's top priority, bringing ground breaking cases against a variety of market abuses including hedge fund insider trading, stock options backdating, fraud aimed at senior citizens, municipal securities fraud, and securities scams on the Internet. He assumed leadership of the international effort to more closely integrate U.S. and overseas regulation in an era of global capital markets and international securities exchanges. He also championed transforming the SEC's system of mandated disclosure from a static, form-based approach to one that taps the power of interactive data to give investors qualitatively better information about companies, mutual funds, and investments of all kinds. In addition, as part of an overall focus on the needs of individual investors, Chairman Cox reinvigorated the agency's initiative to provide important investor information in plain English.

For 10 of his 17 years in Congress, Chairman Cox served in the Majority Leadership of the U.S. House of Representatives. He was Chairman of the House Policy Committee; Chairman of the Committee on Homeland Security; Chairman of the Select Committee on U.S. National Security; Chairman of the Select Committee on Homeland Security (the predecessor to the permanent House Committee); Chairman of the Task Force on Capital Markets; and Chairman of the Task Force on Budget Process Reform.

In addition, he served in a leadership capacity as a senior Member of every committee with jurisdiction over investor protection and U.S. capital markets, including the House Energy and Commerce Committee (as Vice Chairman of the Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee); the Financial Services Committee; the Government Reform Committee (as Vice Chairman of the full Committee); the Joint Economic Committee; and the Budget Committee.

Among the significant laws he authored were the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act, which protects investors from fraudulent lawsuits, and the Internet Tax Freedom Act, which protects Internet users from multiple and discriminatory taxation. His legislative efforts to eliminate the double tax on shareholder dividends — the subject of a thesis he authored at Harvard University in 1977 — led to the enactment in May 2003 of legislation that cut the double tax by more than half.

Chairman Cox also served as Co-Chairman of the Bipartisan Study Group on Enhancing Multilateral Export Controls, which published a unanimous report in 2001. In 1994 he was appointed by President Clinton to the Bipartisan Commission on Entitlement and Tax Reform, which published its unanimous report in 1995.

From 1986 until 1988, Chairman Cox served in the White House as Senior Associate Counsel to the President. In that capacity, he advised the President on a wide range of matters, including the nomination of three U.S. Supreme Court Justices, reform of the federal budget process, and the 1987 stock market crash.

From 1978 to 1986, he specialized in venture capital and corporate finance with the international law firm of Latham & Watkins, where he was the partner in charge of the Corporate Department in Orange County and a member of the firm's national management.

In 1982-83, Chairman Cox took a leave of absence from Latham & Watkins to teach federal income tax at Harvard Business School. He also co-founded Context Corporation, publisher of the English translation of the Soviet Union's daily newspaper, Pravda. In 1977-78, he was law clerk to U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Herbert Choy.

In 1977, Chairman Cox simultaneously received an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School and a J.D. from Harvard Law School, where he was an Editor of the Harvard Law Review. He received a B.A. from the University of Southern California in 1973, graduating magna cum laude after pursuing an accelerated three-year course.

Chairman Cox was born October 16, 1952, in St. Paul, Minnesota. He and his wife Rebecca have three children.

Meredith B. Cross

Director, Division of Corporation Finance

United States Securities and Exchange Commission

Former SEC official Meredith B. Cross has returned to the agency as its new Director of the Division of Corporation Finance.

Ms. Cross comes to the SEC from the Washington D.C. office of WilmerHale LLP, a law firm she joined in 1998 and where she was a partner in the Corporate Practice Group. She previously served at the SEC for several years in the 1990s, ascending to the position of Deputy Director in the Division of Corporation Finance while playing a key role in disclosure-related rulemakings and plain English initiatives for investors.

The SEC's Division of Corporation Finance oversees the disclosures made to investors by more than 12,500 public companies, including registration statements for newly-offered securities, annual and quarterly filings, and proxy materials sent to shareholders before an annual meeting.

Ms. Cross began her previous tenure at the SEC in September 1990 as an Attorney Fellow in the Office of Chief Counsel in the Division of Corporation Finance. She became the Division's Deputy Chief Counsel in 1992 and Chief Counsel in 1993, and was responsible for no-action letters and legal interpretations in the Division on a wide range of matters. Ms. Cross then served as Associate Director of the Division's sections on Small Business and International Corporate Finance, playing an integral role in international disclosure issues and accounting standards for use in cross-border offerings. She became Deputy Director in the Division of Corporation Finance in 1994, a position she held until she left the SEC in January 1998. Ms. Cross received the SEC's Law and Policy Award in 1993 and 1997.

At WilmerHale, Ms. Cross advised clients on corporate and securities matters and was involved with the full range of issues faced by public and private companies in capital raising and financial reporting. She served as chair or co-chair of WilmerHale's corporate practice group for more than seven years, first at Wilmer Cutler & Pickering and, following the firm's merger with Hale and Dorr, at the combined firm.

Before her previous tenure at the SEC, Ms. Cross worked in private practice in the securities department of King & Spalding in Atlanta. Upon graduation from law school, she clerked for the Hon. Albert J. Henderson of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit. She earned her undergraduate degree, cum laude, from Duke University in 1979, and her law degree in 1982 from Vanderbilt University Law School, where she was a member of the Vanderbilt Law Review and Order of the Coif.

Mark V. Hurd

Chairman and CEO

HP

Mark Hurd joined HP in early 2005 as chief executive officer and president and was named chairman of the board of directors in September 2006.

With the goal of establishing HP as the world's leading technology company, Hurd has sharpened HP's strategic focus and concentrated its investments on three long-term growth opportunities: next-generation enterprise data center architecture and services; technologies for always connected, always personal mobile experiences; and a broad transition from analog to digital imaging and printing across the consumer, commercial and industrial markets.

At the same time, Hurd has improved HP's operating efficiency and execution as well as its financial performance and customer focus. The result has been increasing growth and profitability, greater value for shareholders and customers, and a stronger competitive position in global IT markets. Between the company's 2004 and 2008 fiscal years, HP grew revenue from $80 billion to $118.4 billion and more than doubled its earnings per share.

Prior to joining HP, Hurd spent 25 years at NCR Corp., where he held a variety of management, operations, and sales and marketing roles. He was named chief operating officer in 2002 and chief executive officer in 2003. Under his leadership, NCR reignited growth in its core businesses and improved from a net loss of $2.25 per share in 2002 to net income of $3.03 in 2004.

Hurd is additionally a member of the News Corp. board of directors.

He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration in 1979 from Baylor University.

Robert Stevens "Steve" Miller

Executive Chairman

Delphi Corporation

Steve Miller is executive chairman of Delphi Corporation, a world leader in electronics and technology to both automotive and non-automotive markets. Mr. Miller previously has been chairman and CEO of Federal-Mogul (auto parts); chairman of Morrison Knudsen (construction); chairman and CEO of Waste Management; president of Reliance Group Holdings (insurance), and chairman and CEO of Bethlehem Steel. He currently serves as a director of Symantec (internet security software) and United Airlines, and previously served as a director of more than a dozen other diverse public and private companies.

Mr. Miller is currently a nominee for director of AIG. He is widely known and respected for his expertise and experience in corporate governance, and for returning troubled companies to competitiveness.

During his early career, Mr. Miller worked for Ford Motor Company for 11 years, and Chrysler Corporation for more than a decade, where he was a principal architect of the Loan Guarantee Act with the U.S. government. He ultimately served as Chrysler's vice chairman responsible for all staff activities, international operations and non-automotive operations. He is a native of Portland, Ore, and earned degrees in economics from Stanford University, law from Harvard University, and an MBA in finance from Stanford Graduate School of Business.

President

NASDAQ OMX Group

Magnus Böcker is President of the NASDAQ OMX Group. With over 20 years at the leading edge of the exchange industry, he brings a wealth of experience from the European and international capital markets to NASDAQ OMX.

Böcker has overall responsibility for a number of NASDAQ OMX business areas: Corporate Client Group, Corporate Services, Market Technology, Software Development, Global IT Services, and Carpenter Moore.

During Böcker's tenure as CEO of OMX (2003-08) he strengthened the position of the Nordic region as a part of the international financial market. In a period of three years, OMX integrated seven national exchanges in Northern Europe into one. Today the OMX Nordic Exchange offers trading in cash equities, fixed income and derivatives in Denmark, Finland, Sweden, Iceland, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. Over 850 companies now trade on the Nordic Exchange.

Böcker was also crucial in making OMX the world's largest provider of technology solutions for exchanges, clearing organizations, and securities depositories. Under Böcker's leadership, OMX set the benchmark for industry technology; a key recent achievement was the launch of Genium, the Next Generation Technology for the Exchange Industry.

While CEO of OMX, Böcker turned the company around from loss-making back to high profitability; in both 2006 and 2007 OMX reported its highest revenues and highest operating profit ever in company history, with continued operational improvements and increased activity by all business areas.

Böcker has long been an advocate for, and key actor in, the transformation of the global exchange industry. He is a Member of the Board of the World Federation of Exchanges (WFE). He also serves as Chairman of the Board of Dustin Group, and in 2000-06 he was Chairman of Orc Software.

Böcker began his career at OMX in 1986, and has served as Chief Financial Officer, Executive Vice President, Deputy CEO, and President of the OMX Technology division. Previously he was with Ernst & Young. He is a passionate runner with a marathon in his portfolio.

John C. Dwyer is a partner in the Cooley Godward Kronish Litigation department. He joined the Firm in July 1998, is resident in the Palo Alto office, and serves on the Firm's Management Committee.

Mr. Dwyer's practice includes a variety of litigation, negotiation and counseling services in both civil and criminal matters. He has developed substantial expertise in numerous areas, including securities law; officer and director liability matters; mergers and acquisitions litigation; antitrust; white collar litigation; professional liability matters; mail and wire fraud; False Claims Act; and unfair competition claims.

Mr. Dwyer has successfully defended numerous companies and their officers and directors in actions arising from corporate acquisitions and other major corporate transactions. He has extensive experience handling such cases in Delaware courts as well as other courts around the country.

In addition to representing clients in federal and state courts, Mr. Dwyer regularly advises public and private companies and their officers and directors on a broad range of issues regarding fiduciary duties, disclosure matters, litigation strategy and compliance matters. He has also conducted numerous special investigations into allegations of possible misconduct on behalf of corporate boards and board committees.

Representative clients include Adobe Inc., Brocade Communications Systems Inc., Ernst & Young LLP, Genencor International Inc., Gilead Sciences Inc., Morrison & Foerster LLP, NVIDIA Corporation, Pacific Gas & Electric Company, and Power Integrations Inc.

Mr. Dwyer was named among the 2008 Lawdragon's list of 100 Lawyers You Need to Know in Securities Litigation, named in the fifth annual Chambers USA: America's Leading Lawyers for Business, and named as one of Northern California's "Super Lawyers" in 2007 and 2008. In 2005, Mr. Dwyer was named California Lawyer of the Year in securities law by California Lawyer magazine. The award was in recognition of, among other things, Mr. Dwyer's successful defense of an enforcement action brought by the Securities & Exchange Commission against Siebel Systems, Inc. and two of its officers in the first contested action seeking the enforcement of the SEC's Regulation FD. Also in 2005, a major pro bono litigation brought and won by Mr. Dwyer on behalf of legal immigrants against the United States Department of Justice and Department of Homeland Security was recognized by the National Law Journal as one of the top four pro bono cases nationally.

Prior to joining the Firm, Mr. Dwyer served from January to December 1997, as the Acting Associate Attorney General for the United States Department of Justice. Mr. Dwyer was selected for the post, the third highest in the Department of Justice, by President Clinton. As Acting Associate Attorney General, he oversaw the Department's Antitrust, Civil, Environment and Natural Resources, Civil Rights and Tax divisions. From 1993 to 1997, Mr. Dwyer served as Deputy Associate Attorney General. In that capacity, he served as a senior advisor to Attorney General Janet Reno on a wide variety of civil and criminal enforcement issues and acted as a primary liaison with the White House Counsel's Office.

Mr. Dwyer earned a J.D., magna cum laude, from Harvard Law School in 1988. He received a B.S., summa cum laude, in Business Administration from the University of California at Berkeley in 1984 where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Prior to joining the Department of Justice, he was an associate with Jackson, Tufts, Cole & Black in San Francisco.

Prior to attending law school, Mr. Dwyer worked as an auditor at Arthur Andersen & Co.

Mr. Dwyer is admitted to practice in California and the District of Columbia and is a member of the bar of the United States Supreme Court.

Partner
KPMG LLP

Lesley D. Hand is a Partner in the San Francisco office of KPMG LLP's Forensic Advisory Services practice. He has over thirty-seven years of public and forensic accounting experience in numerous industries, including technology, software, manufacturing, consumer markets, government and professional services. Mr. Hand's career included a two year rotation to KPMG's National Education Department in New York where he drafted and presented educational training programs.

Mr. Hand has been involved in over 100 investigations related to allegations of earnings management. These investigations have focused on improper revenue recognition, "cookie jar" reserves, improper capitalization of expenses, inappropriate use of inventory reserves, and other types of fraudulent financial reporting. He has attended numerous meetings at and has been deposed by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with his forensic accounting work.

In a recent earnings management investigation, Mr. Hand was the global lead partner in charge of a team of KPMG professionals from 11 countries. This engagement involved analysis of 26 million electronic records, utilized a proprietary forensic tool to perform data analysis of journal entries and included formal and informal discussions with company personnel to gather information and data.

Mr. Hand also has been involved in alleged violations of the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, both as an independent investigator and as an advisor to KPMG audit teams with clients that faced such allegations.

Mr. Hand has also conducted other fraudulent financial reporting and misappropriation of assets investigations including those involving allegations of employee fraud or defalcation, improper accounting for stock options, and fraudulent vendor schemes.

Mr. Hand has been engaged in the role of sole arbitrator, neutral court-appointed accountant, or expert witness in a number of disputes related to the interpretation of various contractual clauses that impact damages, purchase price calculations, working capital, earn out provisions, revenues, cost accumulations and cost drivers.

Mr. Hand has served as the sole arbitrator in purchase price disputes involving claims ranging from $1 million to over $800 million dollars. The issues addressed included valuation of inventory, inventory reserves, rights of return, doubtful accounts, litigation and other reserves, the application of Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP"), as well as the consistency of the application of GAAP in the context of contract wording.

Mr. Hand has testified as an expert witness in numerous civil litigation matters in state and federal courts. These assignments have involved an extensive review of underlying accounting records and analysis of supporting documentation as well as reviewing applications of GAAP and Generally Accepted Auditing Standards ("GAAS").

In one case, Mr. Hand served as a federal court-appointed neutral expert witness where he investigated and testified about issues involving international financial reporting standards, profit participation, net profit calculations and related partnership issues. This project included coordinating and overseeing analysis of both U.S. and Taiwanese accounting books and records as well as testimony in federal court.

Douglas Kehring

Senior Vice President, Corporate Development and Strategic Planning

Oracle Corporation

Douglas Kehring has served as the head of Oracle's Corporate Development & Strategic Planning Group since February 2005. The Group provides advisory, execution and integration management services to Oracle on mergers and acquisitions, source code and object code licensing, strategic investments joint ventures and other related transactions. The charter was expanded in early 2007 to include oversight of the company's Strategic Planning process, which has resulted in the creation of several Global Business Units focused on industries such as Health Sciences and Insurance.

Since the beginning of fiscal 2005, Oracle has completed over 55 acquisitions valued at greater than $34 billion. The most significant transactions include the acquisitions of PeopleSoft, BEA Systems, Siebel Systems, Hyperion Solutions, Retek, Primavera and Agile Software, as well as controlling stake in i-flex solutions. Today, one out of every three Oracle employees has come through an acquisition.

The success of the acquisitions and their related integrations has been instrumental in Oracle doubling revenue from $10.2 billion in fiscal 2004 to $22.6 billion in fiscal 2008. Oracle's non-GAAP operating margin also increased from 38.9% to 42.7% over this time period, reflecting the ability to improve margins by realizing tremendous acquisition synergies. The result has been an earnings compound annual growth rate of over 26%, significantly better than the company's stated plan for shareholders of 20%.

From March 2002 to February 2005, Mr. Kehring ran the Strategic M&A Group within Oracle Corporate Development. From April 2000 to February 2002, he served as one of the primary investors in the Oracle Venture Fund, a $500 million fund created to invest and support innovative companies that develop or support products and services based on Oracle technologies. Prior to joining Oracle, Mr. Kehring was a technology investment banker at the firms of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette and Dain Rauscher Wessels. Mr. Kehring sits on the board of Sophoi, Inc. an Oracle strategic investment.

Michael Klausner

Nancy and Charles Munger Professor of Business and Professor of Law
Stanford Law School

Michael Klausner is the Nancy and Charles Munger Professor of Business and Professor of Law at Stanford Law School, where he teaches courses on corporate law, corporate governance, business transactions and bank regulation. In recent years, most of his writing has been on corporate governance. He is currently engaged in an empirical study of securities class actions and SEC enforcement actions, which has entailed collection and analysis of extensive data on directors' and officers' personal liability, settlement terms, duration of suits, dismissal rates, content of allegations and other elements of these suits. The first article to come out of that effort is "Outside Director Liability", 58 Stanford Law Review 1055 (2006) (with Bernard Black and Brian Cheffins).

Charles E. Koob

Of Counsel

Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP

Charles E. Koob has been practicing competition, trade regulation and antitrust law for almost 40 years. For most of that time, he was a partner at Simpson Thacher & Bartlett where he was co-head of the Firm's litigation department. He retired from the Firm two years ago but remains Of Counsel. His experience has included counseling corporate clients on a wide variety of antitrust issues from merger, acquisitions and joint ventures to distribution practices. He has represented clients before the Federal Trade Commission, the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice and numerous state and foreign competition authorities; defended corporate clients in both criminal and civil antitrust and competition litigation ranging from preliminary injunction hearings to jury trials; represented individuals in grand jury investigations; and represented corporate plaintiffs in major private antitrust litigation. His most recent experience includes the representation of Virgin Atlantic Airways in both criminal and civil price fixing proceedings; the successful defense of Appleton Papers Inc., a major specialty paper manufacturer, in a criminal price-fixing trial; the representation of Virgin Atlantic Airways in a private treble action against British Airways; the presentation of Glaxo before the Federal Trade Commission in connection with its acquisition of Wellcome; the representation of Hambrecht & Quist in government and private litigation involving allegations of price-fixing in the trading of securities on NASDAQ; the representation of Reckitt & Colman before the Federal Trade Commission in connection with its acquisition of Benckiser; the representation of Pechiney before the Department of Justice in its transaction with Alcan and Alusisse; the representation of Walter Industries in a securities litigation; representation of Lehman Brothers in several securities and broker dealer litigations; and the representation of the Special Committee of the Board of Directors of Archer Daniels Midland in a federal grand jury investigation of price-fixing in the lysine and citric acid markets.

Mr. Koob is a 1969 graduate of Stanford University and has been with Simpson Thacher & Bartlett since graduation. In addition to his antitrust experience, he has tried a number of large commercial and products liability actions to verdict. Mr. Koob and his firm have built a reputation in the antitrust field on a demonstrated ability and willingness to take large and difficult cases to trial.

Sam Savage

Professor (Consulting) Management Science and Engineering
Stanford University

After receiving his Ph.D. in the field of computer science from Yale University in 1973, Sam spent a year at General Motors Research Laboratory, and then joined the Management Science faculty of the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business. Here he discovered that an Algebraic Curtain separated the bulk of his management students from management science. In 1985 Dr. Savage led the development of a software package called What'sBest!®, that coupled Linear Programming to Lotus 1-2-3. The package won PC Magazine's Technical Excellence Award in 1986. Sam has worked ever since to bring analytical tools to managers in an algebra free environment. In 1990, Sam moved to Stanford, where he teaches Management Science in the Engineering School. He has been a Visiting Professor at Northwestern University's Kellogg School and the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, and has recently been appointed to the position of Senior Associate of the Judge Business School at the University of Cambridge.

Recent publications include articles on The Flaw of Averages in the San Jose Mercury News, and Harvard Business Review, and Accounting for Uncertainty, in the Journal of Portfolio Management. Dr. Savage consults and lectures extensively to business and government agencies and has served as an expert witness. Harry Markowitz, Nobel Laureate in Economics, has called Dr. Savage's book and software, Decision Making with Insight, "a Must Read."

In 2006, Dr. Savage founded ProbabilityManagement.org with colleagues Stefan Scholtes of Cambridge and Daniel Zweidler of Shell, to promote a unified approach to enterprise wide risk modeling.

Dr. Savage is also founder and president of AnalyCorp Inc., a firm that develops executive education programs and software for improving business analysis.

Shoven@stanford.edu

John B. Shoven

Charles Schwab Professor of Economics; Wallace R. Hawley Director
Stanford University; Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research (SIEPR)

John B. Shoven is the Charles R. Schwab Professor of Economics at Stanford University and the Wallace R. Hawley Director of the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research (SIEPR). He is also a Senior Fellow by Courtesy of the Hoover Institution at Stanford. He has served as the Chairman of the Economics Department (1986-89), Director of the Center for Economic Policy Research (1988-93) and Dean of Humanities and Sciences (1993-98). He is a Research Associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research and serves as the Director of their West Coast office.

Dr. Shoven received a B.A. in physics from UCSD in 1969 and a Ph.D. in economics from Yale in 1973. He joined the Stanford faculty in 1973, was granted tenure in 1977 and became a full professor in 1979. Over the course of his career, he has published more than one hundred professional articles and has authored, co-authored, or edited twenty books. In 1995 he was elected a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. In 2001, he received TIAA-CREF's Paul A. Samuelson Award for Excellence for Outstanding Writing on Lifelong Financial Security.

Dr. Shoven's research is in the fields of public finance, corporate finance and investments. He has written on corporate taxation, personal taxation, saving in the U.S. economy, public policy towards pensions, mutual fund taxation, long-run returns in equity markets, the expensing of stock options, and Social Security. If there is a theme to his publications, it is that he works on private and public sector policies that can be changed for the better. For example, his work on taxation and mutual funds in the early and mid-1990s with Joel Dickson stimulated the introduction of tax efficient mutual funds. A second example is his work in 1996 on the taxation of pensions ("The Taxation of Pension: A Shelter Can Become A Trap"), which led to the elimination of the 15% tax on excess pension accumulations and excess pension distributions as part of the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997. In a third case, Dr. Shoven was amongst those advocating inflation-indexed government bonds. He organized a SIEPR conference at the National Press Club on the possibility of the government issuing such securities about one year before they were introduced. The conference included Undersecretary of Treasury Larry Summers and representatives from Vanguard, TIAA-CREF and Barclays Global Investors. Finally, Dr. Shoven's several books on Social Security have received acclaim and have influenced the debate underway in the country about how to restructure the system and assure its solvency. Dr. Shoven served on the Technical Panel on Trends and Issues in Retirement for the 1994-96 Advisory Council on Social Security. His most recent work deals with reforming the U.S. Federal Budget. He has testified in Congress a number of times including appearances before the House Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee and the House Committee on Education and the Workforce. He regularly writes a column in On Investing, a Bloomberg magazine.

Dr. Shoven teaches public finance, investments, microeconomics, and introductory economics at Stanford. He is proud of his many former Ph.D. students some of whom now teach at Wharton, The University of Michigan, Stanford, The University of Texas, Wisconsin, and UCLA as well as those who work in the private sector at such places as Vanguard, Financial Engines, and Deutsche Bank. Each summer for the past twenty years, Professor Shoven has run a weeklong workshop for high school teachers of economics.

Dr. Shoven is Chairman of the Board of Cadence Design Systems. He has been on their board since 1992 and has been Chairman since 2005. He is chairman of the Nominating and Governance Committees and a member of both the Compensation Committee and the Audit Committee. He is also a member of the board of American Century Funds.
