FULBRIGHT VISITING SCHOLAR PROGRAM

2005-2006 Directory of Visiting Scholars

FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR PROGRAM

Sponsored by the United States Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs

CIES is a division of the Institute of International Education.

CAMPUS PERSPECTIVES

“The actual program that the Fulbright Visiting Scholar followed more than fulfilled the plan outlined in the proposal. Indeed, Haidar Bagir did more than he was asked to do, consulted with more faculty members here at the university than I had expected and involved himself with the Muslim students on campus in significant ways. Many of the faculty members, particularly in Intellectual Heritage, which surveys the last several hundred years of Western intellectual history, have indicated that they now intend to incorporate more about Islamic thought and its impact on the development of Western philosophy and science. More important, Dr. Bagir’s visit caused a healthy debate on campus about how non-Western thought should be presented to our students.”

Robert F. Boughner, Professor of Classics and Chair of the Department of Humanities, University of the Sciences in Philadelphia

“We gained so much from Dr. Prasanna K. Mohanty’s presence that perhaps we are spoiled. It was important and fascinating to hear about the situation of higher education in India and to hear how U.S. policies have an impact on that situation. I think this was his most important contribution—never letting us forget that we all exist in a global network of influence. I think we would all find it interesting to continue such connections.”

Joan Dagle, Professor, English Department, Rhode Island College

“Student responses in the course evaluations indicate that they were extremely impressed with Dr. Kenbib and that they learned considerably more than they expected. Several commented at the outset that they had no understanding of Islamic culture at all. Frankly, it is rare for a visitor of any kind to have the impact that the Visiting Specialists Program has had.”

Stephen Grant Sylvester, Dean of the Department of Arts and Sciences, Peru State College

“The possibility of daily, multi-national and multi-ethnic interaction has been one of the main personal motivations for me to pursue an academic career. The Fulbright Scholar Program provides yet another wonderful framework to foster this activity in my lab. In addition, Visiting Scholars bring new expertise to the lab that would otherwise not be available.”

Gaudenz Danuser, Faculty Associate, Department of Cell Biologist, The Scripps Research Institute

INTRODUCTION

The approximate 800 Fulbright Visiting Scholars who come to the United States each year provide a valuable resource for campuses and communities throughout the United States. All of the Fulbright Visiting Scholars are available to make subsidized, short-term, guest-lecturing visits to colleges and universities through the Occasional Lecturer Program. The enclosed directory is designed to offer assistance in the identification of individuals who will be able to share their academic expertise as well as insights into their countries and cultures.

As a comprehensive resource for the Occasional Lecturer Program, this directory provides a cross-indexed listing of most of the 2005-2006 Fulbright Visiting Scholars and provides instructions on how to request a Scholar to visit your campus or community under the Occasional Lecturer Program.

The complete list of Scholars, including those confirmed after this directory's publication, is available online at www.cies.org. Also on the Web site is comprehensive information on the Fulbright Visiting Scholar Program. You can request a brochure on the program from scholars@cies.iie.org or by calling 202.686.8664.

We urge you to take advantage of the Fulbright Visiting Scholar Program. Contact any of the staff listed on the inside front cover of this directory for additional information.

Occasional Lecturer Program

The Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) provides travel awards through the Occasional Lecturer Program (OLP), which enables Fulbright Visiting Scholars to accept guest-lecturing invitations at colleges and universities. OLP Awards are granted at three different levels depending upon the distance traveled. CIES will determine the award amounts.

The program enables Scholars to

- share their specific research interests;
- speak on the history and culture of their countries;
- exchange ideas with U.S. students, faculty and community organizations;
- become better acquainted with U.S. higher education; and
- create linkages between their home and host institutions.

Arranging an Occasional Lecturer Visit.

If you find a Scholar in the directory whom you would like to invite to your campus, you may contact the Scholar via the faculty associate and department provided. You may also contact CIES staff to obtain a contact telephone number or e-mail address. (See the staff listing on the inside of the front cover.)

OLP Awards are provided directly to the participating Scholar. To apply for an award, the Scholar must submit to CIES a formal letter of invitation from the host institution or organization, along with dates of travel, at least one month before the visit is to take place. (If possible, Scholars are asked to submit their requests even further in advance.) Within one week of receiving the application, CIES will inform the Scholar whether the award has been approved. The Scholar is responsible for purchasing an airline ticket or arranging some other means of transportation, such as a train, bus or rental car. After the visit, the Fulbrighter will receive the award.

Multiple Occasional Lecturer Visits and Visits to Minority-Serving Institutions. Due to limited funding, each Scholar is eligible for only one trip; however, requests to visit more than one institution on a single trip will be considered. An exception to the one-trip rule may be made if the Scholar is invited to guest lecture at minority-serving colleges and universities. Additional monies are available to Scholars visiting these institutions.

Responsibilities of Institutions and Organizations Hosting Occasional Lecturers. Institutions wishing to host a Fulbright Visiting Scholar should develop a comprehensive plan of activities and arrangements to share with the Scholar well in advance of the proposed visit. Host institutions are asked to provide Occasional Lecturers with local transportation, accommodations and meals.

It is important to inform the Scholar, prior to arrival, about the support the host institution or organization will provide. Institutions should also provide the Scholar with a formal letter of invitation as early as possible. The Scholar will need this letter to formally request travel funds from CIES.

Length of Visit. The length of the lecturer's stay at the institution will depend upon the particular interests of the academic community or organization and the facilities available. The period, however, should allow an opportunity for the Scholar to become acquainted with the host institution or organization. A program of two to three days is suggested; a longer period may be advisable if visits to several institutions are planned.

Suggested Activities for Occasional Lecturers. Fulbright Visiting Lecturers have engaged in the following activities in the past:

- department- or schoolwide lectures to students and/or faculty,
- give lectures in classrooms where the Scholar can make a contribution to the discipline,
- faculty meetings that allow for an exchange of ideas,
- informal gatherings of students and faculty,
- enjoy home hospitality offered by the faculty or department host and
- address community organizations or religious groups that have a special interest in international relations.

Occasional Lecturer Stories

The following are examples of the many ways campuses, communities and Fulbright Visiting Scholars have benefited from the Occasional Lecturer Program:

As a Fulbright Visiting Scholar from Egypt, Rachida El-Diwani took the opportunity provided by the Occasional Lecturer Program to lecture at five other institutions, including: Lee College; University of Houston-Downtown, a minority-serving institution; Howard University and Morgan State University, both historically black universities; and San Diego Mesa College.

As a professor of comparative literature at Alexandria University in Cairo, El-Diwani worked on her project, "Understanding the Islamic World: Art, Ethnicity, Gender, Mythology and Philosophy," during her nine-month stay with Chatham College in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

“I want and need the people of America to understand that Islam is peace and not violence. It is my duty as a Muslim to build bridges of understanding and love for all human beings,” said El-Diwani.

During her occasional lecturing visit to Ohio Northern University, Russian Scholar Marina Karasseva shared with students her considerable knowledge of music as well as methods of approaching ear training. Her host, chair of the university’s music department and a Fulbright alumnus, expressed that Karasseva “motivated our students to strive for higher goals.” In addition to her campus visit, the Scholar gave a well-received presentation at an Ohio Music Educators meeting on ear training methodology taught at Russian conservatories. The associate professor at the Moscow State Conservatory had a nine-month grant at the University of Maryland–College Park, where she conducted research on her project, “Psychotechnology as a New Approach at the Crossroads of Sciences: Cognitive Musicology and Practical Psychology.”

The women’s studies group at Brandeis University invited Fulbright Visiting Scholar Niaz Zaman, professor and chair of the English department at the University of Dhaka in Bangladesh, to speak to faculty and students at the Massachusetts institution. During her visit, Zaman gave a presentation on “Bonds and Borders: Women Novelists and the Creation of India and Pakistan.” The Scholar was happy to report that the lecture was well attended and that the audience displayed considerable interest in the political and social conditions in her country. The visit was also of great benefit to Zaman, who availed herself of opportunities to make trips to Amherst and Concord to visit the homes of Emily Dickinson and Louisa May Alcott as well as to read manuscripts at the Boston Public Library. Zaman’s Fulbright research project, carried out at University of Maryland—College Park, was on the male models and mentors in the lives and works of Margaret Fuller, Dickinson and Alcott.

Visiting Scholar Stories

Occasional Lecturers are drawn from a larger pool of Fulbright Visiting Scholars who are in the United States as Fulbright researchers and/or lecturers. These Fulbright Visiting Scholars express routinely how personally and professionally gratifying their Fulbright experiences have been, whether they are here for only a few months or a full academic year. Institutions hosting these Scholars are equally pleased with how much their visitors are able to share with their students and faculty, from cultural details about their home countries to technical expertise in a variety of disciplines as diverse as astrophysics, music and literature. These stories are just a few examples of successful recent visits. To read more Scholar stories, visit our Web site at www.cies.org.

Africa

“The Fulbright experience is great for African scholars because they have access to books, documents, films and other sources of information not available in their own countries and can participate in conferences as well,” enthused Fatou Diop. On a lecturing/research grant to the Women’s Studies Research Center of the University of Wisconsin–Madison, Diop wanted to learn how to develop a program on gender studies back at her home university in Senegal.

Diop's colleagues in the Women's Studies Research Center were interested in her work on communication and information technologies as appropriate strategies for women. As such, they met and exchanged ideas on their respective research and each other's communities. "It was a great experience because an American university had the opportunity to learn more about African societies, and I think this is very important for mutual understanding in a modern world," said Diop.

East Asia and the Pacific

As a Scholar-in-Residence at Denison University in Granville, Ohio, Hsing-lin Tracy Chung taught her students the art of Jingju theater, ending the semester with an adaptation of Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew. Jingju theater is based on aesthetics and the belief that, above all, any performance must be beautiful. Chung has also played an important role in making traditional Jingju come alive in Taiwan. A graduate of the National Fu-hsing Dramatic Arts Academy, she has appeared in more than 30 Jingju productions. She is currently the dean of academic affairs at the National Taiwan Junior College of Performing Arts.

Eurasia

Galina Toulouzakova, a senior lecturer in the Department of Philosophy at Kazan State Pedagogical University in Kazan, Russia, spent a semester as a Fulbright Visiting Scholar at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque studying the American period of Russian-born American painter Nicolai Fechin's creative life. She had spent nearly ten years on the topic in Russia and had exhausted her resources. This motivated her to apply for a Fulbright grant to continue her research in the United States, where she was able to view Fechin's original works and better understand the environment in which he worked. Toulouzakova also credits the Fulbright Visiting Scholar Program with deepening cultural relations between the United States and Russia.

Europe

Jean-Noel Missa traveled from Brussels to New York University with his wife, Isabelle, and his children, Pierre and Elena. Missa spent the year conducting research on human consciousness and took advantage of many of the city's academic resources by attending lectures and seminars and conducting research at New York University, Columbia and the New York Academy of Medicine. Having his family with him for the entire year made it an even more rewarding experience. "It was a mind-opening year that taught my family the virtues of peaceful multiculturalism," Missa said. "This has allowed us to return home to Belgium richer, with the will to share our experiences with others and enrich them with what we have learned here."

The Middle East and North Africa

A scholar in the field of molecular systematics and chair of the Faculty of Health Sciences at the American University of Technology, Myrna Semaan traveled to the University of California—Berkeley to keep pace with the latest developments and innovations in the field as well as conduct research on the population ecology of certain forests in her home country of Lebanon.

While on her grant, Semaan had access to scientific research resources, including a life sciences library and an elaborate herbarium. The highly developed laboratories in the university's Ecosystem Science Division were also a great benefit.

She found inspiring the combination of academic programs with student fieldwork and the collaboration of government and educational institutions to promote nature conservation. Semaan hopes to apply these models to the curricula at her home institution.

South Asia

"This is the best opportunity I have so far experienced in my life," said Amber Prasad Pant of his Fulbright from Kathmandu, Nepal to Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri. Pant, who conducted postdoctoral research on "Transboundary Water Resources Law of USA and Nepal: An Overview," said that the United States is the land of advanced technology and opportunity.

"I believe the vision of the Fulbright Program in mutual understanding and cooperation will help reduce tensions and disputes by transforming this vision into action," Pant said.

For Pant, the Fulbright grant was an opportunity to build relationships and good will and to exchange knowledge. "The benefit of the grant also reached my wife, who worked toward a master's degree in social work, and my daughter and son, who attended grades twelve and nine. Certainly, the credit goes to Fulbright for these achievements," enthused Pant.

Western Hemisphere

Groundwater pollution in Mexico City, Mexico is one of the most significant problems facing the area, according to Alethia Vazquez Morillas. Vazquez Morillas' research proposes a new way of dealing with the problem of water cleaning solvents that refuse to degrade underground. With access to top-notch facilities and world-renowned environmental engineers at the Hazardous Substance Research Center at the University of Iowa during her Fulbright grant, Vazquez Morillas investigated her method for treating the polluted water below the surface with tiny particles of iron, which react with and break down the chlorine.

Vazquez Morillas' time in Iowa will continue to affect her work. The researcher and educator notes that one of her collaborators at the University of Iowa came to her home university in Mexico to give a seminar. "Now, there is a strong link between my university and the University of Iowa, and we all have lots of plans, including more exchanges."

VISITING SPECIALISTS PROGRAM: DIRECT ACCESS TO THE MUSLIM WORLD

The Visiting Specialists Program: Direct Access to the Muslim World is designed to enrich understanding of Islamic peoples and civilizations by individuals in the United States. This is done by providing an opportunity for U.S. higher education institutions that lack resources in these fields to host specialists from predominantly Islamic countries for a short-term intensive lecturing and consulting program. The Visiting Specialists come from the Middle East, North Africa, South Asia and several countries in the Balkans, Central Asia, Southeast Asia and Sub-Saharan Africa. ADMINISTRATION AND FUNDING OF THE FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR PROGRAM

The flagship international educational exchange program sponsored by the U.S. Government, widely known as the Fulbright Program, is designed to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries. With this goal as a starting point, the Fulbright Program has provided more than 265,000 participants—chosen for their leadership potential—with the opportunity to observe each others' political, economic and cultural institutions, exchange ideas and embark on joint ventures of importance to the general welfare of the world's inhabitants. Currently, the Program operates in over 150 countries worldwide.

The Fulbright Program was established in 1946 under legislation introduced by former Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas. The Fulbright Program is administered by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the United States Department of State.

Since the establishment of the Program, approximately 45,400 Fulbright Visiting Scholars have conducted research or taught in U.S. universities, and approximately 43,600 Fulbright U.S. Scholars have engaged in similar activities abroad. The Fulbright Program awards approximately 800 grants to Visiting Scholars each year.

The primary source of funding for the Fulbright Program is an annual appropriation made by the United States Congress to the Department of State. Participating governments and host institutions in foreign countries and in the United States also contribute financially through cost-sharing and indirect support, such as salary supplements, tuition waivers and university housing. The Congressional appropriation for the Fulbright Program in fiscal year 2005 was $144.5 million. Foreign governments, through binational commissions or foundations, contributed an additional $37 million directly to the Fulbright Program.

The J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board (FSB), composed of 12 educational and public leaders appointed by the President of the United States, formulates policy for the administration of the program, establishes criteria for the selection of candidates and approves candidates nominated for awards.

The United States Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs develops policies to assure fulfillment of the purposes of the Program and administers it with the assistance of binational commissions and foundations in 51 countries, United States Embassies in 89 other countries and a number of cooperating agencies in the United States.

Binational commissions and foundations draw up the annual program plan for exchanges, in consultation with participating universities and organizations in the host country. They also screen, interview and recommend to the FSB qualified candidates for student and faculty grants. In a country without a commission or foundation, the Public Affairs Section of the U.S. Embassy develops the program and supervises it locally.

The Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES), under a cooperative agreement with the Department of State, administers the Fulbright Scholar Program for faculty and professionals. CIES is a division of the Institute of International Education (IIE) and has close working relationships with the major disciplinary bodies in the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences. During the terms of their grants in the United States, Fulbright Scholars are assisted by CIES.

Internationalize Your Campus Through the Fulbright Occasional Lecturer Program

The Occasional Lecturer Program (OLP) provides travel awards to Fulbright Visiting Scholars for round-trip transportation, which enables scholars to accept short-term guest lecturing invitations at colleges and universities.

Occasional lecturers

- offer department- or schoolwide lectures to students and/or faculty;
- give lectures in classrooms where the Scholar can make a contribution to the discipline;
- enjoy home hospitality offered by the faculty or department host; and
- address community organizations or religious groups that have a special interest in international relations.

Every Fulbright Visiting Scholar is eligible for one OLP trip. Scholars who visit institutions that serve predominantly minority-student populations are eligible for more trips.

The Fulbright Visiting Scholar Directory lists Visiting Scholars who are in the United States for the current academic year. Use this listing to find and extend invitations to Scholars whose research or lecturing topics are of interest to your institution. The directory is also available online at www.cies.org.

For additional information on the Occasional Lecturer Program, please visit www.cies.org/sir/olp.htm, call 202.686.6235 or send an e-mail message to olp@cies.ied.org.
