IN REMEMBRANCE

Remembering the Keeper of Our Culture

Don Soderquist, former chief operating officer and senior vice chairman of Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., passed away on July 21, 2016. He was 82.

During his career, he guided the company through a period of growth, increasing revenue from $1 billion to more than $200 billion. But Don is most remembered for his contributions to Walmart's culture. Don drafted the original Walmart values of Service to the Customer, Respect for the Individual, and Striving for Excellence and was known as the “Keeper of the Culture.”

After retiring from Walmart in July 2000, Don established The Soderquist Center for Leadership and Ethics, and in 2005, he wrote The Wal-Mart Way to share lessons from Walmart's success that people could bring to their own lives and careers.

“We have a culture that urges us to respect and care for one another, like no other company I have ever known,” Don once said. Our thanks to him for championing that culture.

Strategically placed displays helped an associate fire up sales of his VPI—Kingsford Charcoal Briquets, 15.4 lbs—and win in his store.

IT'S MY VPI

How I Did It

"After I chose charcoal as my VPI, it went on Rollback. I used Rollback, Associate's Choice, and VPI signs. I featured it on the garden center power wall, near the store entrance, and in the grocery area with a Kingsford grill. To keep the displays attractive and safe, we crisscrossed the bags, with three going one way and two going the other."

HAPPY TO HELP

Expert Helper

This associate is always happy to help customers find what they need, from games to iPads.

What do you do to take ownership of your department?

As soon as I arrive, I start straightening up. No one wants to shop in a messy store. I also make sure I understand what I'm selling: I stay informed about the products so I can make suggestions.

How do you show customers you are happy to help?

I love working in electronics. I like being able to share my thoughts about movies and games when customers ask, especially if they are looking for a specific type of experience.

What do you do to create a unique experience for customers?

I take the time to explain the specs of different products so customers can choose what's best for their needs. For example, if someone asks for an iPad, I explain the differences between the iPad Air and the iPad mini.

ON THE JOB

Out-of-Sight Service

The secret to a great Vision Center turns out to be using your ears.

Eyeglasses are big business, and the great service offered by Vision Center associates like Roger Brooks, licensed optician at Store 2841 in Lumberton, N.J., keeps customers coming back.

What's his secret? Talk less and listen more. "You've got to listen to the customer's wants and needs," he says. Brenda VanDerPoel, a doctor's tech at Store 2841, agrees: "Most customers come in with an idea of what they want in their heads. We help them also consider what they need."

Roger and the Vision Center team follow these service must-dos.

- Treat each customer as an individual. Adapt how you share information based on how customers react.
- Include everybody. If a customer brings someone for advice, including that person in the conversation pleases the customer. (For more tips on picking frames, see Page 18.)
- See things through. Customers appreciate when the same associate works with them throughout their visit.
- Work as a team. Working together ensures customers have a good experience and feel appreciated.

TRY IT MY WAY

No-Stress School Days

Melissa, a mother of three, has busy mornings down to a science.

I grew up the oldest of 10 kids in a blended family. I helped my stepmom a lot with my nine younger siblings, assisting with baths, cooking, and cleaning. I did all of this while still going to school myself! I learned way back then that routine is a mom's best friend.

I use those lessons today with my own three children. Our mornings are very streamlined because we do what we can at night. That includes showering, packing lunch, and getting homework organized in their backpacks. I also cook breakfast at night, and my kids reheat it themselves the next morning. All of this helps us start our day on the right foot!

HOW-TO

Spectacular View Ahead

Snag an affordable and stylish pair of eyeglass frames the kids will love. Amy Thompson, Health and Wellness Manager of Innovation—Systems, Home Office, shares three shopping tips.

LET THE KIDS HELP

"The more the kids are involved, the more they'll like their glasses and take care of them," says Amy, who worked in Vision Centers for 15 years.

GET THE BEST FIT FOR NOW

"Parents sometimes want to buy frames the kids will grow into," Amy says. But frames that are too large can end up falling down kids' noses or falling off when they play.

BRING THE KIDS BACK

It's important to have glasses adjusted for a perfect fit, Amy says. Plus, Vision Center associates can recommend supplies, like an eye care kit, and share tips for proper cleaning.

UPGRADE YOUR PACK

Some newer backpacks have more compartments to help evenly distribute weight. Try the Fuel Boys Escape Backpack, a new brand for Walmart this year. It has a lifetime guarantee and comes in yellow, black, or camo.

WEAR WITH CARE

Nancy Zaner, chief nurse practitioner officer with Walmart Care Clinics, says backpacks should always be worn over both shoulders to avoid harmful stress.

PACK PERFECTLY

Pack only the essentials and keep the heaviest items closest to your back. Encourage kids to switch out their books during the day instead of carrying everything for the whole day.

TARGET PRACTICE

1 / Hang a hula-hoop from a tree or clothesline, and practice throwing a Frisbee through the hoop. Move it higher and lower to help kids develop good aim and work on gross motor skills.

BEANBAG TOSS

2 / Set a hula-hoop on the ground, step back, and try to toss a beanbag into the hoop. Take a step back after each toss, and give your kids an extra point for each consecutive throw. Challenge them to add up their points as they get farther away.

GIANT BUBBLE WAND

3 / Time for a simple science experiment. Fill a kiddie pool with 6 parts water to 1 part dish soap, stir, and then add ¼ part light corn syrup and stir again. Dip the hula-hoop in and make some giant bubbles!

QUICK TIPS

5 Interview Tips From a Pro

Share these tips to help your college-age son or daughter interview for a job at Walmart and hear, "You're hired!"

"First impressions matter in any business setting," explains Cornelius Roy, whose store is an eight-minute drive from Louisiana State University. Cornelius knows. He's hired a lot of college students over the years.

Here's how to coach your child to stand out in a positive way during a job interview.

CORNELIUS ROY

Store Manager

Store 1206 | Baton Rouge, La.

DRESS APPROPRIATELY

Wear khakis or dress pants, a button-down shirt or polo, or a conservative dress or skirt, with no holes, fraying, or stains.

DO YOUR RESEARCH

Cornelius says he's always impressed when an applicant has taken the time to learn about Walmart.

LIMIT DISTRACTIONS

Keep cellphones turned off during the interview.

BE CONFIDENT

Shake hands, make eye contact, smile, and introduce yourself. "You should conduct yourself in a professional manner," Cornelius says.

ASK QUESTIONS

Ask about opportunities at Walmart. Cornelius started out as a dairy stocker 16 years ago. "I enjoy telling young people that they can also have a great career with the company," he says.

RECIPE OF THE MONTH

CAN YOU SEA IT?

This under-the-sea snack, made with clementines, green grapes, blueberries, strawberries, a red apple, and a kiwi, is two full servings of fruit. It goes great with yogurt. Serve it on a Great Value Economy Heavy Duty Paper Plate, and kids can handle clean up.

ANY FIN IS POSSIBLE

Tondra Ezzio encourages Caydence, her 7-year-old granddaughter, to build healthy eating habits by offering her fun after-school snacks. "She loves to cook with us and make healthy food," Tondra says, like these goldfish made of clementines.

HEALTH-ESTEEM

Tondra says Caydence wants to be healthy so she can be big someday like her Nana and Papa. "She says that eating healthy helps your body grow better."

Time to celebrate what makes Walmart World possible: You!

How the World Began

“ I’m totally optimistic for Wal-Mart’s future.”
 Sam Walton,
 FEBRUARY 1971 NEWSLETTER

In February 1971, Walmart associates received a simple newsletter with a message from Sam Walton (typed on his own typewriter). The newsletter didn't have a name. Instead, it had a request: Send us your ideas for a name and a cover design, and you could win $20.

This was the beginning of Walmart World. Started by Sam. Named by an associate in the field (see more below). As origin stories go, it's pretty good.

In the 45 years since, Walmart World has captured great moments in our company's history, while never losing sight of the real heroes of Walmart: the associates.

Open the pages here to take a look at where we've been—and see where we're going next.

Meet the Team

From Sam Walton to legendary leaders like David Glass, H. Lee Scott, and Mike Duke, Walmart World has always helped associates get to know the company's leadership team, including today's president and CEO of Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., Doug McMillon.

MAY

Timeline continues inside →

Wal-Mart World Arrives

The first official Wal-Mart World—named by Bob Powers of Store 9 in Sikeston, Mo.—hits stores in May 1971. Along with letters from Sam Walton and Ferold Arend, Walmart's first president and chief operating officer, there's a call for associates to send in stories to be included in future issues.

+ See the first official issue at walmartworld.com/May1971.

Walmart World's Biggest Fan
Lynn Piper, personnel manager at Store 2693 in Fenton, Mich., has been collecting issues of Walmart World since October 2002. "I'm kind of a librarian at heart because my mother was a volunteer children's librarian," she explains. Why does she keep all those copies? "You can see the company's progression through the years and stories of all the associates."

The World Today
Walmart World has had many design changes over the years. From October 1993 to May 2003, it was even known as Wal-Mart Today (see the picture above). Then, in June 2003, it went back to Wal-Mart World to reflect the global reach of the company.

July 2016

“Walmart culture matters. It generates results, all kinds of good results.”

Doug McMillon,
WALMART WORLD, FEBRUARY 2014

I shared my story with Walmart World

Walmart World Has a New Look!

Our goal: to celebrate associates and show what it means to bring stores to life. Test Kitchen Confidential

Step inside the Culinary & Innovation Center, where products you sell to customers—and use yourself—are being tasted, tested, and improved.

In Bentonville, Ark., there's a building where delicious things are happening. It's the Culinary & Innovation Center—just opened in June—where the Private Brands team is developing and testing great new products, like Marketside Applewood Bacon Seasoned Loin Filet, perfected in the center's test kitchens.

That's what makes the center so important. It gives Walmart the ability to develop exciting products, test them to ensure they meet customer needs, and show that the same results can be easily achieved in stores and in homes, all in one facility. "The Culinary & Innovation Center is game-changing for us," says Jack Pestello, senior vice president for Walmart U.S. Private Brands, food, consumables, health and wellness, at the Home Office.

▲ The Theater-Style Kitchen

Outfitted with a variety of equipment and a central prep area surrounded by room for an audience, this kitchen is used to experiment with different recipes and demonstrate cooking techniques—in person or in videos—to associates who will create the dishes back at their stores.

Jack Pestello, senior vice president for Walmart U.S. Private Brands, food, consumables, health and wellness

◀ The Kitchenettes

These six meeting spaces are perfect for "cuttings," i.e., meetings with suppliers to evaluate new products. Each is equipped with ovens and microwaves, with ample space to prepare and taste a large selection of products at once.

By working with suppliers firsthand, the Private Brands team can pinpoint what product elements need improvement. They can then work out a strategy to address the issues and make sure the products are still delivered at the best price and value.

▲ Sensory Lab

The Sensory Lab is where tastings occur. In a kitchen, the center's staff load prepared items into a revolving chamber. On the other side, tasters open the chamber to get access to the item and input their impressions on a computer. This helps ensure the tests are done blind, and kitchen staff can keep track of what tasters have tried.

Taste tests can happen quickly. If complaints come in from store associates about a particular product, staff can pick up samples in the morning and have a tasting by the afternoon to address any problems and begin working on a solution. For example, after hearing that a recent spice packet was tough to open, staff brought samples to the lab for testing. The problem (too much glue) was identified quickly and fixed in the first production run.

◀ Meet the Tasters

Tasters are usually Home Office associates who volunteer. They're screened based on tastes and preferences.

And the Monitors ▶

Tastings are carefully monitored by associates like Angela Hebert (right), senior sensory manager. "I encourage tasters to give as much information as they can, even if it sounds crazy," she says.

Innovation Room ▶

This kitchenette is for testing and demonstrating new products that Walmart's product experts believe will meet customer needs based on marketplace trends. Here they test samples and deliver feedback to suppliers on how to make the products as delicious as possible, all while keeping costs low.

◀ Consumables Lab

This area tests nonfood items, everything from Great Value cleaners to Pure Balance pet food to Parent's Choice childcare products. Packaging and presentation are evaluated, and to keep costs down, cleaning products like detergents are used on the center's linens.

Adult Beverages Room

In this room, the team tests the growing line of Distinctive Label alcoholic beverages. Strict guidelines determine who can use this room and the testing that takes place. (We weren't even allowed in to take a photo!)

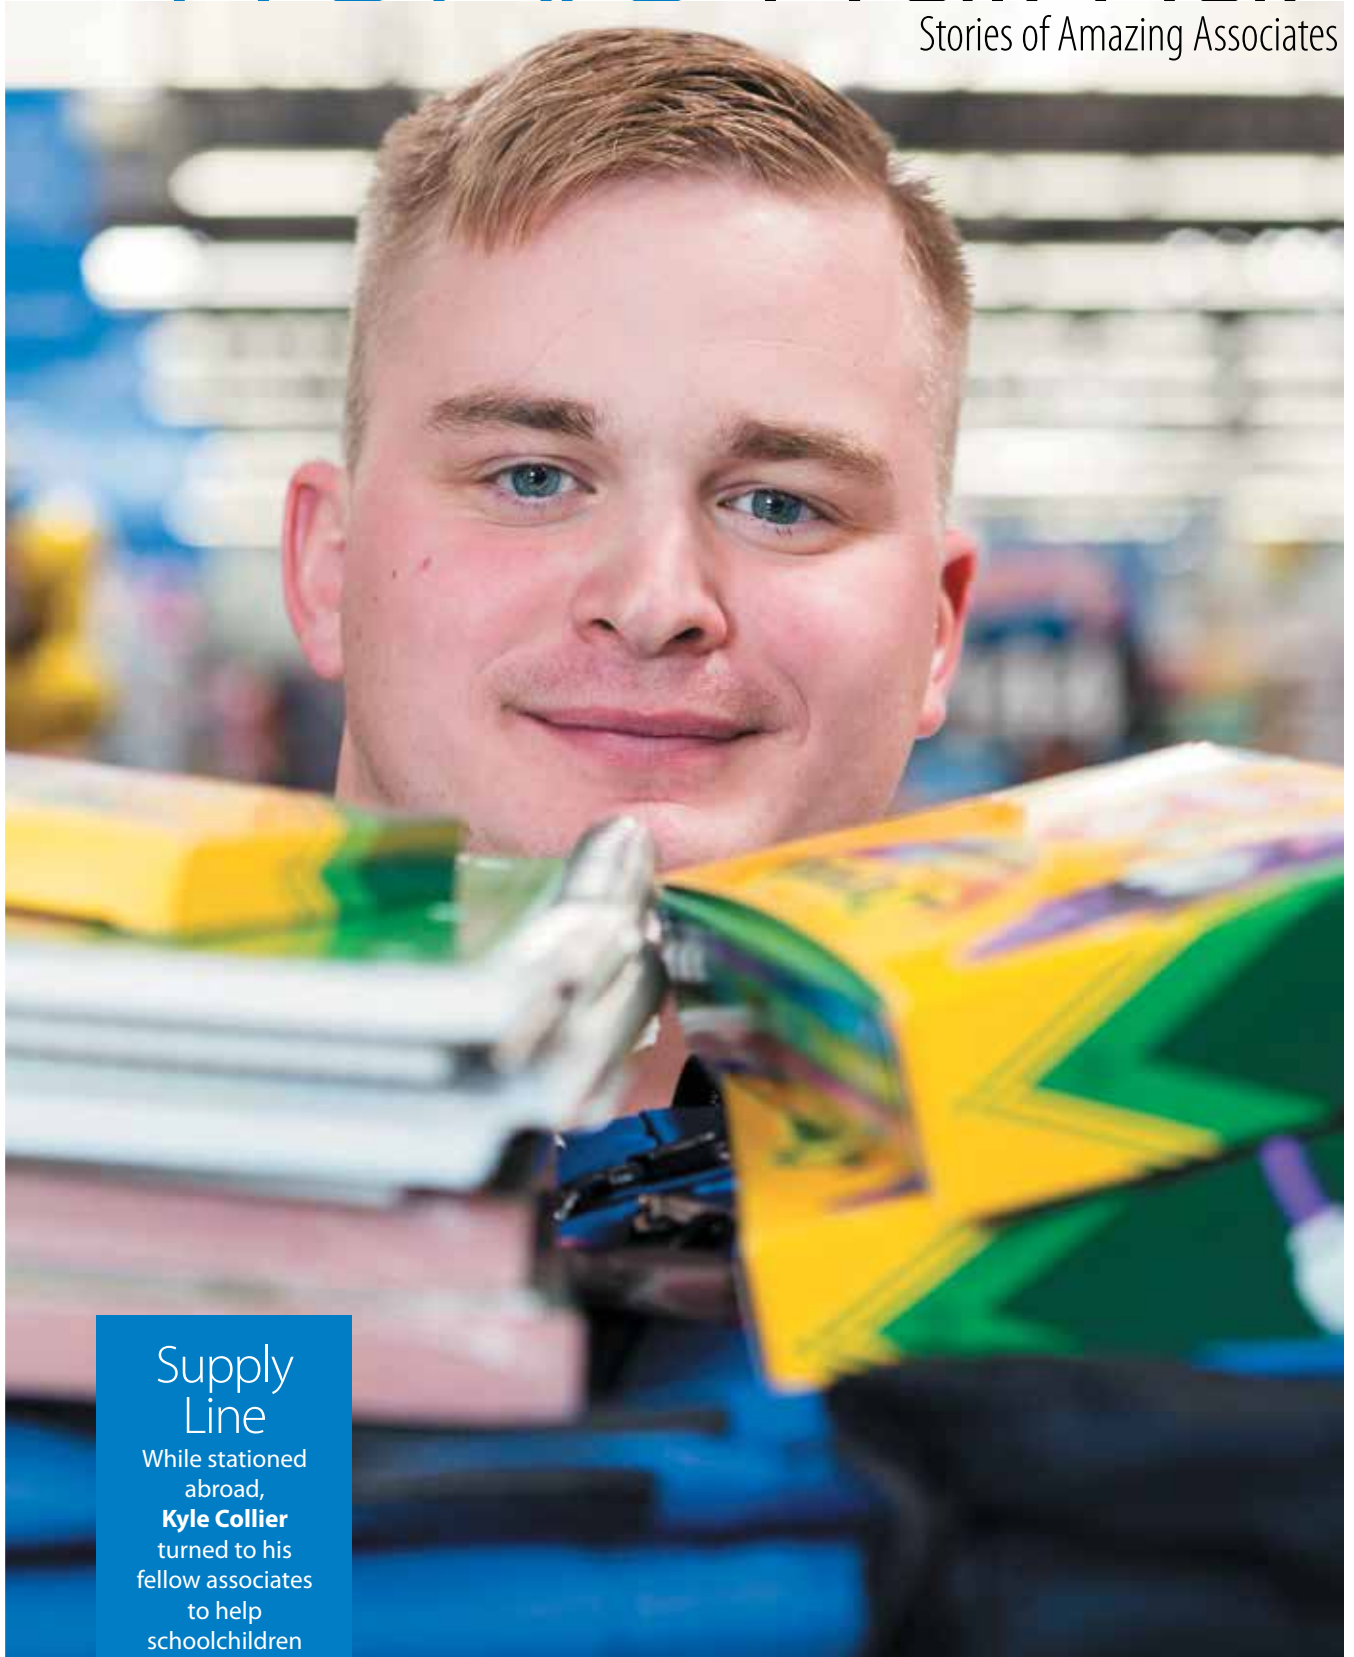

Results in Stores ▶

Keep an eye out for the Marketside Applewood Bacon Seasoned Loin Filet. Every element of it, from its flavor to its packaging, was developed by the team at the Culinary & Innovation Center—and associates like you helped find the perfect flavor. Your customers will appreciate how good it is.

Supply Line

While stationed abroad, Kyle Collier turned to his fellow associates to help schoolchildren in Kosovo.

KYLE COLLIER

Assistant Manager

Store 4372 | Kingwood, W.Va.

Calling for Backup

When Kyle Collier was deployed to Kosovo in Eastern Europe last year as a member of the West Virginia National Guard, he knew it would be a life-changing experience. What he didn't realize was how many lives he would change, with the help of associates back home.

While in Kosovo, Kyle learned that nearby children lacked basic school supplies. So he reached out to his store for help—and was overwhelmed by their response. In all, they donated enough backpacks, books, pencils, and other supplies to help 60 children.

"We're a small store, but every time there is a need, our associates are there to help," Kyle says.

Associates at Kyle's store weren't surprised by the request. "Kyle has a big heart," explains Store Manager Andy Conn. "He likes helping people, especially children."

"These kids want to make a difference in the world," says Kyle, who recently completed his National Guard service. "I hope our gifts help them become tomorrow's artists, teachers, and leaders."

Kyle Collier collects supplies with cashiers Monica Young and Karla Sypolt. He hopes to send donations to the school each year.

SUSAN WILLIS

Technician V, Support Call Center

Home Office | Bentonville, Ark.

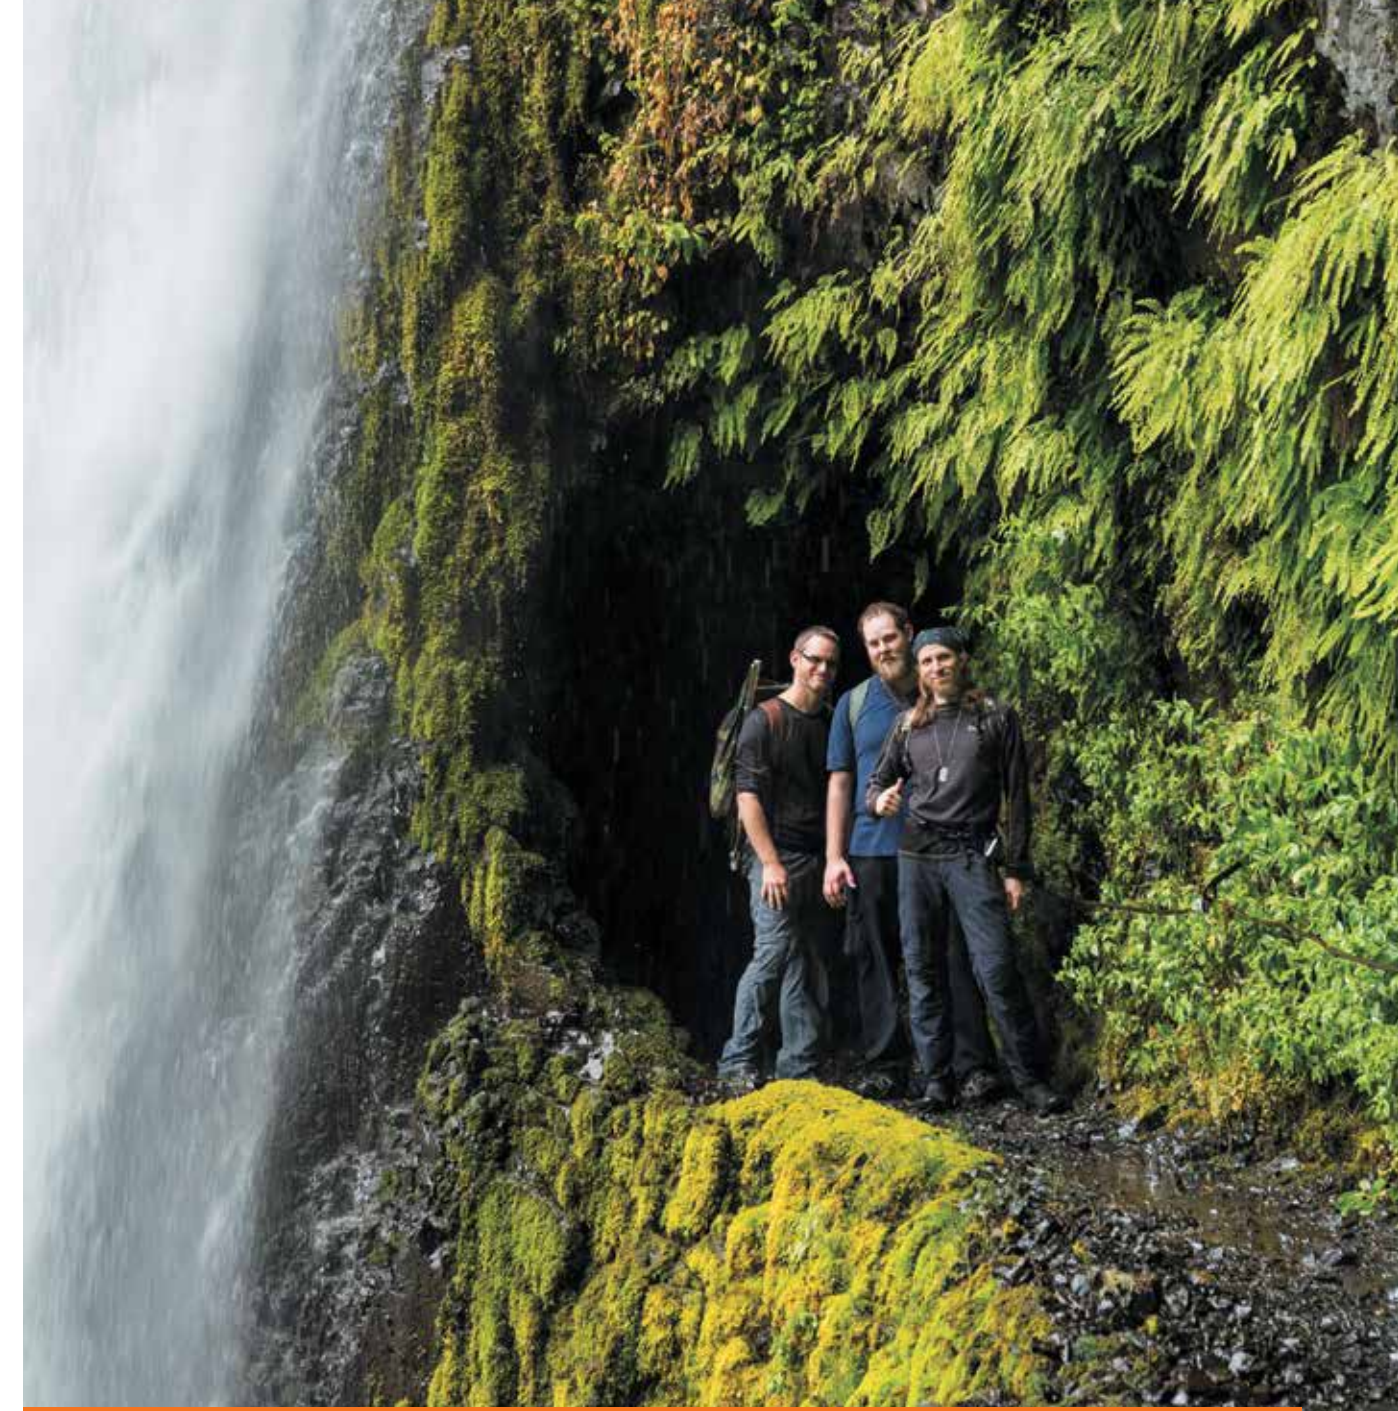

Driven to Win

“Each time you go over one mountain, it makes the next one look a little shorter,” says Susan Willis.

She knows from experience. Forty years ago, she got married and had four children. When she returned to work in 2002, her positive attitude helped her succeed. She went from stocker to assistant manager within just two years. And in 2008, she became a project supervisor.

Susan took online courses through American Public University while working and battling cancer. After getting her bachelor’s degree in 2014, she applied for the STEM Field to Home Office Initiative for associates with knowledge in computer science, technology, engineering, and math.

“I’m always looking for change and growth,” she says. “I’ve learned that Walmart will help you get where you want to go.”

MATT MATTERN

OTC Manager, Pharmacy

Store 2947 | Vancouver, Wash.

Together We Climb

Associates say Matt Mattern is the beating heart of Store 2947, organizing group hikes or a store kickball team to bring associates together. So, when Matt learned his only kidney was failing, those same associates rallied to his side.

Fellow associate Nick Calver, a bike assembler, offered his kidney, but Matt’s wife became the eventual donor. Two days before the surgery, Matt’s family and members of his Walmart family climbed nearby Mount St. Helens in Matt’s honor.

“We wanted to do it for Matt,” says Derek Coffield, department manager, frozen, dairy, and deli.

Today, Matt has recovered and is back to work, feeling 100 percent healthy. “I felt amazing. I couldn’t wait to get back to my store,” he says.

And his fellow associates are glad to have him back.

Help Across Borders

Frank DuCett never dreamed he'd go to East Africa. But in 2010, his brother asked if he'd help rehabilitate a girls' orphanage in Tanzania. He said yes and was soon in the country repairing bicycles and replacing windows.

"The orphans may have had a greater impact on me than I did on them," Frank says. "I came back with a greater appreciation of what we have in the U.S." Frank returned to Tanzania in 2011 and 2012.

Other associates jumped in to help, giving money to buy toys for the orphans. Frank also illustrated books to help students learn English.

Frank is currently working on even more drawings to send to the orphanage.

A Hand From Sam

Randy was still a student when he met Sam Walton.

I'd just started at Walmart, and I came in one morning to help unload trucks before school. After we finished, there was a mess left, and I decided to clean it up on my own. But I had to haul the trash up a big hill.

As I was struggling, a man came up and helped me the rest of the way. I said "thank you," and we started talking. The man asked what I wanted to do in life, but I said I didn't know—I needed to get to school! I learned later that the man was Sam Walton.

Two years later, I met Sam again. He remembered me. Our conversation convinced me to stay with Walmart.

Outside Interests

Darrell enjoyed swapping hunting stories with Sam Walton.

I've been an avid hunter and fisherman my whole life. I used to go with my father; then I took my children, and now I take my granddaughters. I've been blessed with catching large fish and hunting buck deer, but I get the most joy from watching my grandbabies catch something.

I got to meet Sam Walton twice. He loved hunting, too, especially quail. We not only talked business, but we also shared hunting stories. It made me feel good to know that I was working for someone who enjoyed the same things I did.

A Place of Joy

From everyday tasks to relationships, Connie has found her place at Walmart.

When I needed a change in my life, Walmart gave me the opportunity to try something new. I've held several different positions, but now, I like putting freight on the shelves and watching it disappear. I like being able to help customers. And I love the Walmart family I have here.

A few years ago, when I'd gone through a divorce, the other associates overwhelmed me with gifts of food and toys for my kids at Christmas. When something happens in your life, everybody comes together. I feel like this is where God wants me to be.

Santa's Helper

Steve rallied his team to help a family that had lost everything.

As a store manager, you can affect the lives of associates and customers. When I was in Gallatin, Tenn., for example, one Christmas Eve I got a phone call from the fire department. There had been a fire, and it destroyed a family's home and burned their gifts. They wanted to know if there was anything we could do to help.

Our store was already closed, but I contacted some associates. We opened up for that family and even donated some merchandise so they could have a Christmas. It's what we do because it's the right thing to do.

Early Arrival

A late night at a café, a giant snowstorm . . . must be another Sam story.

The first time I met Mr. Sam was in February 1979. We'd heard a rumor that he was coming to visit a new store in central Illinois. Our team was there setting up for the grand opening, and we had to get it perfect. After we were done, we headed to a local café around 1 a.m. to grab breakfast. As we're sitting there, the waitress says, "Hey, your boss is here." We thought she was referring to our manager. Then she says, "No, your big boss." And in walks Sam. He had flown himself in to beat a snowstorm. He apologized because his hair was messy. We told him he looked great!

Always Moving

Whether it's on the job or in her free time, Janice is not about sitting still.

I love staying busy, whether it's taking care of my family or traveling to new places. These days, I spend a lot of time with my 9-year-old granddaughter, who takes after me. She always has something going on.

It's part of what I love about working for Walmart—there's always something to do! I enjoyed working in HBA, where ordering and stocking kept me busy. When we remodeled the old store, I was asked to help personnel. Even now as a cashier, I stay busy. There isn't much down time, but when there is, I spend it making sure everything looks nice.

A Special Memory

Jo Ann got to visit Bentonville, Ark., for her 35th anniversary with Walmart.

I have a sister who works at Walmart, and we used to be at the same store. It was a lot of fun to work with her. The best time was on my 35th work anniversary—we got to go to Bentonville together. It was the first time I'd ever flown! We had a great tour guide who made sure we got to see everything, like Walton's 5&10, which is now part of The Walmart Museum. It was a great trip.

I've really enjoyed working here. I'm nice to the customers, and they're nice to me. There are some customers you know who always come through your lane. I appreciate that.

Handy Skills

Chuck literally makes music out of the products he buys at Walmart.

I have a wide knowledge of the electrical and mechanical products we sell because I use them at home. I've made kitchen cabinets, children's furniture, and even musical instruments like harps and hammered dulcimers. I buy a lot of the nuts, bolts, drill bits, screws, and glues I use for my projects at Walmart. I could probably answer just about any question on hardware.

I like the variety of people who work here. I think I'm more positive now, and in the things I do at home, because of the experience of working around different people.

Inspiring Leaders

James' college education has helped him go far at Walmart.

Walmart has allowed me to advance my career and get an education. I got my undergraduate degree in business administration and my master's degree in business strategy. I tell associates it's not easy, but you can do it. Everything I learned in those classes applies to my job, especially strategy. It improves your vocabulary and management skills and gives you a broader understanding of businesses.

I've been able to change jobs and work in different parts of the country. Because of my experience, I can bring up future leaders. What I enjoy now is helping them.

Judy's career helps her travel with family and friends.

I applied at Walmart because I had two kids to support. I've stayed here for the good benefits and steady income, which helped me put my kids through school. It also helps me save for my favorite hobby: traveling. I've been to Hawaii, Florida, and my favorite destination, Alaska. I love traveling the U.S. Whenever anybody says it's time to go, I'm ready!

I've known a lot of the associates since they were kids, and some of them I've trained. Sometimes we even travel together. Knowing you have that family here if you need it is a great feeling.

Memory Maker

Customers still chat with Fonda about the fun they had during infant department events.

We used to have special “Baby Days” events in the infants department. We’d set up a crib and wear pajamas and pigtails—even pacifiers! Throughout the day, we’d host activities for the customers. We held photo contests, made baby books with the photos, and threw baby showers. It was all very rewarding, and we had so much fun!

To this day, some of those same customers come in with their kids, who are now teenagers, and they’ll remember their baby showers and the gifts they received.

Scene Switch

Here's a fun brain game to get you ready for the new school season. Can you spot the 10 differences between the photos?

It's a Walmart Tradition.

And each store's winner gets extra cash.

The VPI program has been a part of Walmart for more than 40 years! Any hourly associate can participate. And every participating store has a winner who gets extra cash.

Sign up on The WIRE between the 10th and the 20th of each month to "play" the following month. For tips on getting started and the leaderboard of winners, visit walmartone.com/VPI.

Find the answers at walmartworld.com/SceneSwitch.

Going for Gold

During a store visit, Carol Johnston, senior vice president, South Central Division, asked associates: Who here goes above and beyond for customers? Without hesitation, they answered, "Murton Speid."

They shared how Murton called another store for a customer to hold a product that wasn't available at Store 896, how he helps elderly customers with their carts and their lists, and countless other moments.

Later that day, Carol surprised Murton with a golden Happy to Help pin, a unique pin that Walmart leaders can award during store visits.

"It was a special moment," says Murton. "I'm happy to help. I'm doing it wholeheartedly."
