

U.S. pilot rescued

AVIANO, Italy — Rescued American pilot Scott O'Grady returned to base at Aviano in Northeast Italy Friday and was scheduled to appear on television Friday at 1 p.m., a U.S. Air Force spokeswoman at the base said. O'Grady, 29, was plucked from the sky over Bosnia by a snatch force of U.S. Marines June 8, six days after his F-16 plane was shot down by a Serbian fighter. He spent the night resting on the amphibious assault ship USS Intrepid in the Adriatic Sea. (AP Wire Services)

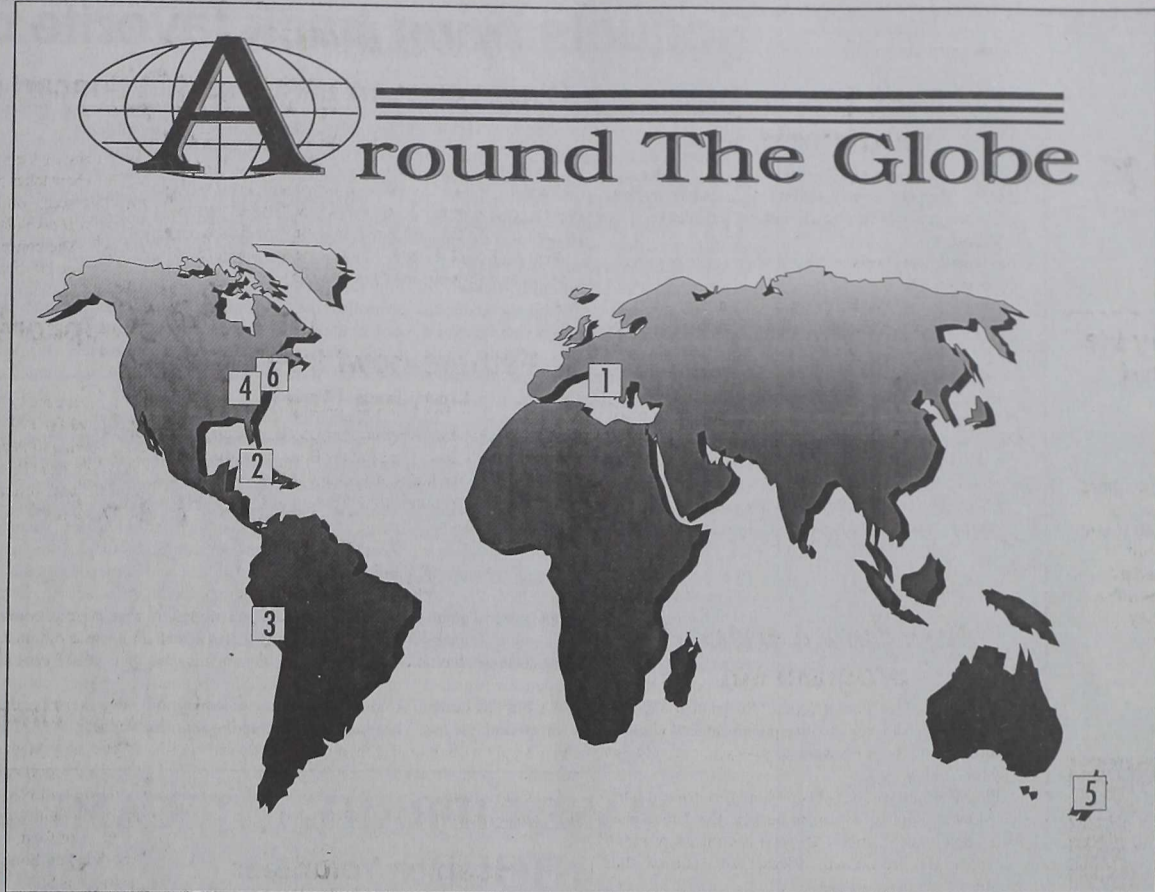

U.S. asked to return Guantanamo Naval Base

HAVANA — More than 200 international law experts issued a statement Friday urging the U.S. to return Guantanamo Naval Base to Cuba. The statement was approved at an international conference on the Guantanamo Naval Base held in Havana province of Guantanamo. It said that the existence of the Naval Base in Cuban territory is a violation of the Cuban constitution, the United Nations charter, as well as international law.

The large U.S. base on Cuba's coast was established by a treaty signed in 1903. But since the Cuban Revolution, the Cuban government has refused to accept the treaty and has periodically threatened to close the base. (Xinhua)

Observers start new assignment

MIAMI — The mission of military observers for Ecuador and Peru (MOP) is starting a new 90-day assignment designed to consolidate the conflict zone between the two countries. MOP comprises officers from the four guarantor nations of the Rio de Janeiro Protocol -- Brazil, Argentina, Chile and the United States -- and was established by the Itamaraty Accord, signed by Peru and Ecuador on February 17.

The mission, now headed by Brazilian General Francisco Pamplona, will supervise the creation of the demilitarized zone and demobilization of the two nations' forces remaining in the disputed area. (Xinhua)

4. Torpedo-maker unveils defense

SYKESVILLE, Md. — The Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant here made a bit of military history June 8 when it rolled out a low-cost torpedo defense system made from off-the-shelf components.

The system, which looks something like two gray filing cabinets with color computer screens, was one of the first pieces of military equipment designed, developed and produced under terms of a Pentagon directive last year for contractors to bypass more stringent and more expensive military specifications and procedures when producing certain equipment.

Under the old procedure, "the equivalent systems would have been over $1 million," said Chris L. Alberg, the program manager at Westinghouse.

"This one will be under $300," he added, as he pointed out computer parts in the cabinet made by Digital Equipment Corp. and other computer companies.

The system, technically called Multi-Sensor Torpedo Recognition and Alertment Processor (MSTRAP), warns the crew of Navy ships of a torpedo attack.

Westinghouse officials call it

"Mousetrap." There were also several signs in the factory about "building a better mouse trap." (Baltimore Sun)

5. British warship visits NZ

WELLINGTON — The British frigate HMS Monmouth sailed into Wellington Harbour on Friday on the first visit by a British warship to New Zealand in 12 years.

Both countries said the visit signaled a return to "business as usual" in naval relations.

Britain suspended ship visits after New Zealand banned nuclear-armed and nuclear-propelled ships from its waters in the mid-1980s.

Monmouth's trip was made possible by disarmament steps, confirmed by British Prime Minister John Major to parliament in 1992, which mean that Royal Navy ships no longer carry tactical nuclear weapons in normal circumstances. (Reuters)

6. Eight tons of Zirconium seized

NEW YORK — The government's seizure of tons of Iraq-bound metal that can be used to make nuclear weapons may be just a fraction of the illicit marketplace linked to the former Soviet Union.

Three men, including a former bank president, were arrested June 8 and charged with trying to sell nearly 8 tons of nuclear-grade zirconium. Confiscated June 8, the metal was stolen, possibly in the Ukraine.

Officials called it the largest seizure of nuclear-related materials in U.S. history.

Since the breakup of the Soviet Union, U.S. officials have warned of the potential for its nuclear hardware and related materials to end up in the hands of terrorists or rogue nations. (Associated Press)

Sequels bring back favorite character

Piia Pardeen
Base Library

Many books leave readers wanting to know what happens to the characters after the last chapter brings a book to an end.

In the following sequels some of the popular characters, along with new ones, reappear to delight their fans in new escapades.

"A Tangled Web" by Judith Michael

When identical twins Stephanie Andersen and Sabrina Longworth switched lives for a week in "Deceptions" they created a whole lot of problems. Stephanie, posing as her sister, purportedly was blown up aboard a yacht at the conclusion of "Deceptions". In this sequel, Stephanie is back suffering from amnesia. Sabrina, meanwhile, has moved to Stephanie's suburban home in Evanston, Ill., complete with a husband and two kids. She has fallen in love with her former brother-in-law. How the sisters meet and resolve their lives is a plot filled with smuggling, counterfeiting and murder.

"The Raiders" by Harold Robbins

Thirty-four years after he wrote "The Carpetbaggers," one of the bestselling novels of all time, Robbins has written this sequel. It is the year 1951 and Jonas Cord has turned his father's company into an empire. He has remarried his ex-wife and recognized the daughter he once rejected. Jonas buys a casino in Las Vegas and shuts down the casino's money-laundering operation incurring the wrath of the mob.

Cord flies to Mexico to avoid appearing at a Senate hearing on his business practices. While in Mexico, he looks up an old girlfriend and learns that he has a son by her. Father and son become partners in business to streamline the Cord empire, launch casinos, and vanquish greedy senators and vengeful Mafia. Several historical cameos from Jack and Bobby Kennedy to Jimmy Hoffa and Jack Benny are included.

"From Time To Time" by Jack Finney

In this sequel to Finney's cult classic "Time And Again", Simon Morley attempts to alter the course of events in 1912 to prevent World War I. He bids good-bye to his wife in New York City of 1882 to visit the year 1912. He meets Al Jolson, witnesses a dirigible launch, circles Manhattan in a biplane and befriends Vaudeville actors. For the experiment to succeed, Simon must help an aide to President Taft to return to the States from a diplomatic mission. The problem is that the aide is sailing on the Titanic. Simon joins him on the ship's maiden voyage to try and stop the hand of fate and keep the ship from sinking.

The period photographs and news clips form an integral part of the story.

History of America's Flag Day

Cpl. Jason C. Huffine
Globe Staff

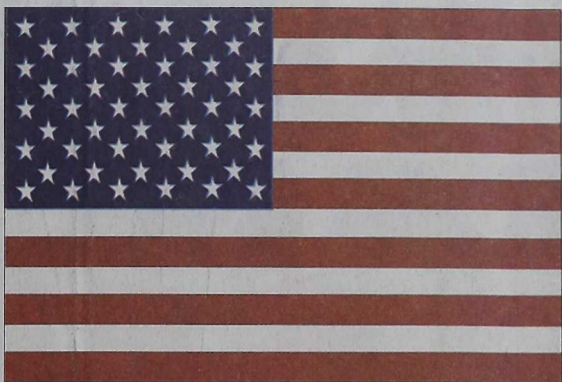

Flag Day on June 14 is often a forgotten holiday, but its specific day has a rich history that celebrates the anniversary of the day the Continental Congress adopted the Flag of the United States of America.

The 100th anniversary of the original flag resolution in 1877 was the first national observance of Flag Day, according to David Eggenberger's, Flags of the U.S.A.

In 1889, George Bolch, the principal of an elementary school in New York, held patriotic exercises that caught the attention of the state legislature which passed a law providing that, "It shall be the duty of the public schools to prepare a program observing...Flag Day."

The flag was then ordered to be displayed at nine o'clock in the morning and removed not until patriotic exercises could be carried out.

In 1893, a resolution started by the society of the Colonial Dames of Pennsylvania asked the mayor of Philadelphia to make June 14, Flag Day. The resolution requested that private citizens display the U.S. flag proudly on their homes and businesses. Over the next 40 years Flag Day was celebrated unofficially and finally Pennsylvania became the first state to establish it as a legal holiday in 1937.

National recognition took even longer. President Wilson and President Coolidge both issued proclamations asking that June 14 be observed as Flag Day, but no official mandate was made.

Finally, Aug. 3, 1949, Congress gave approval in a joint resolution stating: "...the 14th day of June of each year is hereby designated as Flag Day..."

President Harry Truman signed the measure into law on that same day. Since its adoption in 1777 the Stars and Stripes has earned the respect of all Americans, according to M.R. Bennet's "...So Gallantly Streaming..."

But according to LCpl. Lonnie K. O'Brien, a radio operator from 2d Force Service Group, Headquarters & Service Bn., Communications Co., the American Flag does not receive the respect it deserves.

"If you live in the greatest country in the world, you should show respect for all its ensigns and symbols," O'Brien said. "Not walk around burning it like sometimes displayed on T.V."

There are those that feel Flag Day should receive the same respect as the 4th of July, according to Cpl. Robert P. Jongema also from Comm Co.

"Flag Day is when the true respect of the flag should be shown," Jongema said. "With the 4th always being associated with the national colors, people tend to forget about it."

On Flag Day citizens should be proud to display the American flag, a flag that so many people have fought for and defended throughout history, added Jongema.

Marines raise the National Ensign during morning colors outside Building 1, Marine Corps Base Headquarters.

Marine Corps Base offers legal services for military, families

Lt. Edward S. Harcher
Globe Staff

Servicemembers and their families in need of legal assistance do not have to go into the civilian community to obtain the services of a professional lawyer.

Aboard base, the Consolidated Legal Assistance Office (CLAO) in Building 50 provides legal advice and assistance to military personnel and their family members.

The attorneys there offer a variety of services concerning civil matters to help prevent and resolve legal problems, according to GySgt. Michael S. Gozzo, noncommissioned officer-in-charge, CLAO.

"We see about 100 customers per week about everything from powers of attorney to minor traffic matters," he added.

A list of services offered by the CLAO includes: preparation of wills, powers of attorney, notary public services and advice from attorneys on various legal matters.

To obtain these services, walk-ins are available daily on a first-come, first-served basis, said Gozzo.

"We take 60 walk-ins each week," he said. "Each morning at 0730, we take the first 15 people at the door."

Emergencies and matters requiring immediate attention are determined over the phone, said Capt. Harlow H. Walker, officer-in-charge. "We will listen to the details of the incident and determine whether emergency status is appropriate or if an appointment should be made for a later date."

Thursday mornings are set as the time to make regular appointments. For consultations, appointments can be made by calling 451-1903.

"If you need an appointment, call Thursday mornings; if you need to be seen immediately, go to a walk-in," Gozzo said.

In addition to the other forms of counseling, the attorneys at CLAO also offer immediate reviews of unsigned contracts, Walker said.

"A lot of times, servicemembers wait until they've already signed into a contract before they come in to see us, when we can no longer help them. If the contract is unsigned, we can help them avoid a bad situation before it's too late."

"We also provide passport services for servicemembers who are in receipt of orders," Gozzo said. This applies only when under orders, he stressed, passports for unofficial travel may be obtained through the main post office in Jacksonville.

Powers of attorney and will classes are available at Building 11, the tax center, by appointment also. For larger groups, the CLAO staff will conduct unit classes.

"We're trying to give classes on the battalion level to reach more people at a time and optimize the usage of our attorneys," Gozzo said.

By providing professional legal assistance to active duty and retired military personnel and their family members, the Legal Assistance Office aims to prevent legal and disciplinary problems, thereby improving morale, according to the CLAO services information handout.

The service offered at the CLAO is extremely professional. "It's not like going to a medical clinic where you may be helped by a medical assistant," Gozzo said. "All of our legal counselors are actually lawyers."

For more information about services offered by the Legal Assistance Office, call 451-1903.

Proper government vehicle procedures improve safety

Lt. Edward S. Harcher
Globe Staff

Training units rarely go anywhere without Motor Transport. Occasionally, as with all machinery, unexpected technical problems arise. With motorized vehicles, those problems can take the form of accidents or breakdowns, among other unforeseen situations.

When problems occur with government owned vehicles (GOVs) involved in transport, specific procedures must be followed to ensure the safety of the GOV, the servicemembers aboard and any other vehicles traveling the roadway in which the problem occurred.

According to Base Order P560.2J, which states general motor vehicle regulations, the operator of any GOV involved in an accident must report the accident immediately to the base Provost Marshall's Office and fill out a Standard Form-91, Operator's report of Motor Vehicle Accident.

The Base Order also states that a disabled vehicle must be situated so as to be clearly visible 200 feet in each direction on the road." If possible, disabled GOVs should be parked off the roadway with the engine stopped, allowing free flow of traffic around the vehicle.

Visibility sometimes requires the employment of safety markers included in the standard equipment necessary for the operation of GOVs. Proper methods for employment of these measures are covered during classes taken prior to obtaining a U.S. Government Motor Vehicle Operator's identification card.

Operator identification cards are mandatory for servicemembers or government employees intending to operate GOVs, according to the Base Order.

Another identification card necessary to operate a GOV is the Department of Defense form (DD) 518. The DD-518 identification card provides information on the driver including parent command and work section. This card must be presented by the driver to any person requesting a copy or to any person involved in an accident with a GOV.

As with personal vehicles, the base order states that all state and government laws governing motor vehicle operation must be followed at all times while operating a GOV. Booklets and publications covering lawful operation are available when submitting for an operator's identification card.

More is required than documentation and reaction procedures; the base order also points out that preventive maintenance and pre-operation checks are necessary to avoid being caught unaware while operating a GOV.

By following the pre-operation checklists, mechanical problems can be identified and diagnosed according to the vehicle's operation manual. The checklist should be run each time before the vehicle is operated. The checklist targets such mechanical defects as leaks, worn parts and other signs of deterioration. These signs could point to larger mechanical problems and help the operator avoid vehicle breakdown.

By observing all traffic laws, documentation procedures and safety precautions, GOV operation problems can be avoided.

For more information regarding GOV operation procedures or to view Base Order P560.2J, contact your unit's Motor Transport section.

Chaplain's corner:

We're failing at success

Lt. Cmdr. Larry Jones
Base Chaplain's Office

By the time this article is published, the 1995 NBA finals could be over.

At least, the first five games will have been played, and many of us will have watched two great centers and their teams battle it out for the title. And only one can walk away a winner. I refuse to make predictions - my favorite teams have already lost.

What names come to mind when you hear the word "success"? Is it Michael Jordan, Garth Brooks, Whitney Houston? Would you pick some well-known person from sports, entertainment, business or politics? Would you pick someone who has everything: money, fame, and popularity?

For many people, the formula for success is just that simple: get rich, get famous, get popular. The problem with our concept of success is that most of us can't have it! After all, how many of us can shoot like Michael, sing like Whitney, make money like Garth or look like Arnold, even if we did go to the gym five days a week? I just read that the odds of getting in the NBA are one in 500,000!

Fact: the world is full of ordinary people. Many of them work hard, try to be responsible and care about others. They will never make the front cover of Time or Rolling Stone, but do make great friends, parents and neighbors.

We need a new definition of success. It's a lot more than what you get in life. It's also who you are, which is called character, and what you give to others. Can you dare to believe that it really is "more blessed to give than to receive?" Didn't Muhammad tell his followers that "none of you truly have the faith if you do not desire for your brother that which you desire for yourself?"

Ty Cobb, when asked once about his career, said: "I have had a good time, and I have been well paid, but I wish I had been a doctor and had won distinction in that field. Then I could look back on years that had been spent in helping people, setting broken bones, and healing their hurts."

Jesus said that a man's life "does not consist in the abundance of things which he possesses" but (to paraphrase) in the richness of his relationship with God and others.

We can all be rich. But first we need to know what's really important!

Help Your Heart

Summer Is a Time To Be Active

Summer is a great time for swimming, walking, gardening or playing sports. In other words, summer is a perfect time to become more active.

That doesn't mean pushing yourself to the limit. In fact, scientific evidence shows that just 30 minutes a day of physical activities as mundane as walking and housework can make a difference in your health.

The American Heart Association points that regular physical activity can protect against coronary heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure and other physical problems such as certain cancers, osteoporosis and even depression.

Healthcare experts used to believe that one should exercise for fitness, which means improving endurance. The new thinking is that low-to-moderate-intensity exercise, done three to five times a week, can be highly beneficial.

Even better, people don't have to exercise or be active continuously for 30 minutes. The physical activity can be done in bits and pieces throughout the day such as two, 15-minute walking breaks.

The change in thinking about exercise resulted from several studies, which showed that sedentary men face greater risk of heart attacks and that habitual exercise is linked with low risk. Another study found that exercise reduced heart attack risk in women by one-third.

While evidence pointing to the value of being active is growing, the fitness boom, which began in the 1960s and grew for the next 20 years, seems to have reached a plateau.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says that 22 percent of Americans engage leisure-time physical activity at recommended levels. About 60-70 percent of all Americans are either totally sedentary or do so little that they receive few of the benefits of physical activity.

Some experts believe that public health efforts to promote physical activity may have placed too much emphasis on high-intensity exercise. The result was that many Americans thought that fitness required too much of a time commitment, special equipment or major athletic skills.

Experts also point out that physical activity is not a panacea. People can just exercise and let everything else go and then expect to live longer. For instance, walking mile doesn't mean you can eat everything in sight.

For more information on exercise contact your American Heart Association at 1-800-AHA-USA1 (1-800-242-8721).

Tips To Help You

Chicken Is Better And Lighter Than Ever

(NAPS)—Like many Americans you are probably eating more chicken these days as part of a lighter, healthier diet. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, chicken is our number one protein choice.

The reason for chicken's increasing popularity is that it's naturally low in fat and calories, it's easy to prepare in creative new ways and its taste appeals to young and old alike.

A new culinary development has made chicken even lighter and healthier to eat. Tyson Foods, America's leading producer of high quality, taste-tempting chicken products, now makes chicken an even better choice for health-conscious eaters with the introduction of a whole new line of 100 percent fat free sliced chicken lunch meats.

Available in a wide variety of flavors, including peppered, mesquite, honey, hickory smoked and oven roasted, the fat free lunch meats will be perfect for warmer weather salads and picnic sandwiches.

Fat free chicken lunch meats can also be a welcome addition to party trays, or you can team them up with fresh fruit and low fat cheeses for a light, healthy no-cook meal.

To make a wonderful extra healthy sandwich you can enjoy with a clear conscience, keep the following tips in mind:

• Choose the right bread. Look for flavorful low fat varieties or serve your sandwich "open face."

Eating more chicken as part of a healthier, lighter diet? Fat free chicken lunch meat is now available for warm weather salads and picnic sandwiches.

using only one slice of bread.

• Eliminate high fat cheeses or substitute a reduced fat variety. Try mixing finely chopped green onion and bell pepper into fat free cream cheese for a savory cheese spread.

• Skip the high fat mayonnaise and use a fat free variety instead. Or spread on the mustard, which in most cases has no fat at all. For an extra tasty dressing, mix a tablespoon of grated Parmesan cheese into a tablespoon of fat free mayonnaise. The result is a low fat spread with a nice cheesy flavor.

• Pile on the fresh vegetables. Leaf lettuce, bell pepper and onion rings, alfalfa sprouts, fresh tomatoes, cucumber slices and other vegetables, add lots of crunch and flavor—but no fat.

Okinawa, Pacific point of no return

Cpl. Jason C. Huffine
Globe staff

In October 1944, Allied forces needed a base from which troops could train and be staged for an attack on mainland Japan. The island of Okinawa, located between Kyushu, the southern most island of Japan, and Formosa, was the Allied forces' most strategic option.

The battle plan was perceived with a week of preliminary air strikes and then a naval bombardment preceding an invasion force that consisted of Marine MajGen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d Amphibious Corps and the 24th Army Corps, according to Gordon Warner's, The Okinawa War.

Operation Iceberg as it was called, turned into what was considered the greatest naval armada ever. Commanded by Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, the 5th fleet included more than 40 aircraft carriers, 18 battleships, 200 destroyers and hundreds of support ships. Over 182,000 invasion ground troops made up the assault, added Warner.

The Japanese defense on the other hand, primarily relied on conventional aircraft attacks combined with the unpredictable and unstoppable kamikazes, suicide-piloted planes that had already produced casualties throughout World War II.

The battle began with missions lead by Rear Adm. Alexander Sharp. His Minecraft Pacific Fleet covered more than 2500 square miles of ocean, destroying six enemy mine fields and 184 mines.

Radar picket duty off the shore of Okinawa was the most dangerous of duties, according to Frank M. Benis's, Okinawa: Capstone to Victory. Ships would be fixed off shore losing their main defenses, so they could warn of approaching enemy aircraft and direct Allied carrier based airplanes to intercept them. These radar pickets were vital in the defense against kamikazes.

The amphibious assault began on Easter Sunday, April 1, 1945. Over 50,000 troops went ashore with Marines to the north and soldiers to the south wondering, "Where are the Japanese?"

The soldiers and Marines soon found out that the Japanese were sheltered in heavily fortified emplacements in a place called Shuri Castle, the key defensive position for the Japanese resistance, wrote Benis.

There were many offensive threats ready to battle the heavily fortified castle: six battleships and cruisers ready to fire, nine destroyers and 650 Navy and Marine aircraft in addition to ground forces.

The Japanese defense of Shuri Castle was finally broken by the Allied forces April 28. By May 21, the Japanese had withdrawn to the southern tip of the island. On June 19, Japanese commanders ordered that all soldiers fight to the death.

Then, on June 21, the 10th Army Corps pushed through the southern point of Okinawa, forcing the defeat of Japanese forces, continued Benis.

The official flag raising and announcement of Okinawa being secured, took place June 22, 1945.

The price was high for the seizure of the island. There were 34 Allied ships sunk, 763 downed aircraft, 4,900 Sailors and 3,443 Marines killed or missing in action and 7,613 army personnel killed, according to the Navy and Marine Corps Commemorative Committee.

Though many lives were lost in the struggle for possession of this strategic island, the importance of the victory would not be known until the conclusion of the war in the Pacific.

World-wide calling made easier for Armed Forces

AT&T

NEW YORK — Members of the United States military can now pay in advance for AT&T telephone calls virtually anywhere in the world by using the new Global Prepaid Card. And, they can decide in advance how much they want to spend.

The AT&T Global Prepaid Cards will be offered in denominations of $10, $20, $40 or $60 and will be sold on many Army and Air Force bases in the United States and overseas and at selected USO locations overseas. Available denominations may vary by site.

"AT&T is committed to helping military families keep in touch," said Terry Ahearn, AT&T military market manager. "Offering a global prepaid card is one way we can make that happen, and, at the same time, give armed forces members another way to budget their calls. We want our customers to have access to a world without limits."

While in the mainland United States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico or the U.S. Virgin Islands, members of the armed services may use the card to call within and between these areas or to Alaska, at a special price of 35 cents per minute until Oct. 31.

Military members also may use the AT&T Global PrePaid Card to reach more than 280 countries from the mainland U.S., Hawaii, Puerto Rico or the U.S. Virgin Islands. Call prices range from $1.43 per minute to $2.25 per minute, depending on the country called. In addition, military members serving in more than 130 countries outside the United States may use AT&T USADirect@ Service to call back to the states. Calls to these areas range from $1.54 to $3.00 per minute.

When outside the United States, cardholders also may use the card with AT&T World Connect@ Service to call to more than 195 countries.

Using the AT&T Global PrePaid

Card is simple. When in the mainland United States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands or Canada, cardholders call 1-800-CALL-ATT (225-5288). When outside the United States (except Canada), cardholders call the AT&T USADirect Service or AT&T World Connect Service access number for the country they're in.

In either case, cardholders will hear an English-speaking AT&T operator or English-language voice prompt asking for the phone number they wish to reach. The customer is then asked for the prepaid card number on the back of the card. The customer is told the amount of money remaining on the card, and the call is connected.

Each time the card is used, the cost of the call is automatically subtracted from the card's face value. Once depleted, the card, as well as its packaging, can be recycled. AT&T Global PrePaid Cards and packaging are made from recycled materials.

AT&T brings "home" closer to military members wherever they are in the world by sponsoring a variety of morale-support programs and worldwide calling services provided by AT&T Consumer Communications Services, a 1994 recipient of the Malcolm Baldrige Award, America's highest quality honor.

SNCO Wives Club runs not-for-profit Thrift Shop

Cpl. Joseph B. Gray III
Globe staff

Every Wednesday and Friday, the Base Thrift Shop opens from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to provide Marines with a cheap way to get quality items.

The Staff Noncommissioned Officers' Wives Club runs the Thrift Shop using an all volunteer staff and donating all of their proceeds to scholarships and other projects.

Deborah White, SNCO Wives' Club president, said one can find almost anything at the Base Thrift Shop and for a very low price. "We carry a little bit of everything," White said. "We have uniforms, clothing, bikes, electronics, baby items, evening wear, appliances, dishes, toys and even carpet."

The Thrift Shop also opens every third Saturday of the month and on the first Wednesday of each month, they hold a quarter sale where items that have been at the shop over 90 days can be bought for a quarter.

The Thrift Shop acquires their sale items through two different methods. One involves consignment where someone agrees to give their item to the thrift shop. When the item sells, the Thrift Shop keeps 25 percent of the sale, and they send a check for 75 percent to the original item owner. The Thrift Shop gains items through straight donations.

"The straight donation items have a red tag placed on them," White said. "During the month of June, items will be sold for half-price."

White said one thing she needs more than anything is volunteers. "We're desperate for volunteers," she said. "If we don't have more, we might have to restrict the time the Thrift Shop is open to the public. She added that the SNCO Wives Club will pay child care at base rates on the days the volunteers work."

Last year, the SNCO Wives Club was able to raise $5,000 in scholarship money to students from military families. This year they will give approximately $2,000 to scholarships. According to the White, the Thrift Shop made less money this year due to the restructuring. She also said that the store works a lot more efficiently now for the store workers and the customers thanks to the restructuring process.

The Thrift Shop is open every Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and every third Saturday of the month from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. For anyone wanting more information on the Thrift Shop or interested in becoming a volunteer, call 451-5591.

Program seeks volunteers

Volunteers link units and families

Jamie Barker
Globe staff

The Key Volunteer program is looking for a few good women.

The organization promotes family readiness, provides a link between command and families, and provides resources and referral, a service which is indispensable to the military family.

Family Services is now making it even easier to become involved. They've changed their training schedule as of July 1, to better accommodate their volunteers.

The training has been reduced from 5 sessions to 4; the hours total 10 instead of 15. The organization would like to stress that it's volunteers do not function as baby-sitters, loan officers or counselors; they are simply available as a reliable source of information and referral.

The volunteers are trained to provide dependents with information they need, whether it concerns health care, car problems or any of the various and sundry setbacks that often seem to occur the moment a unit deploys. They are also a point of contact for the concerned families, keeping them abreast of the circumstances surrounding the deployment.

With the exception of training, every thing is done from the home of the volunteer. Each spouse of a deployed soldier is assigned a volunteer, who can then tap into the many assistance services the base provides.

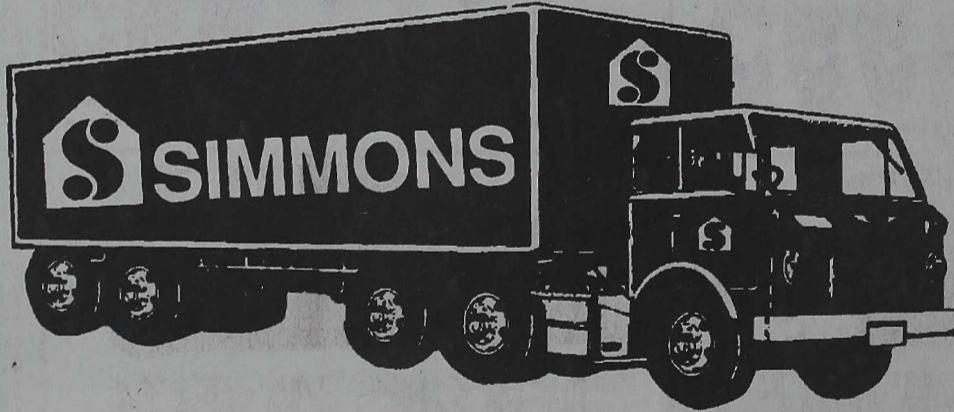

"Our goal is to teach families to use the resources provided, so the next time something occurs they have the confidence and know-how to handle it themselves," said Cpl. Kahn, a Key Volunteer.

If you are interested in participating, have your spouse contact the unit's commanding officer. If the unit has at least 10 spouses in a unit who are interested in receiving training, Family Services can bring the training speakers to the unit itself.

MCES teaches engineers to be 'Jack-of-all-Trade'

LCpl. Scott J. Metzner
Globe staff

When most people think of engineers, they think of bulldozers, buildings and bridges. In addition to "normal" engineer tasks, the Marine engineer is given a whole other set of responsibilities.

The Marine Corps Engineer School (MCES) at Courthouse Bay is the first step in training for all engineers and landing support specialists in the Marine Corps. The school offers 26 courses, ranging in time from two to 12 weeks, and has classes geared at the entry-level Marine, the journeyman, the chief and officers. In all, more than 3,500 students attend the school annually.

Comprised of four companies, the school includes Headquarters and Service Co., Utilities Instruction Co. (UIC), Combat Engineer Instruction Co. (CEIC) and Engineer Equipment Instruction Co. (EEIC).

In October of this year, however, EEIC will move to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., in a Department of Defense effort to save money by consolidating schools, according to LtCol. Daniel D. Cushman, executive officer, MCES.

Although losing one company, the school is gaining a new mechanics course for the arsenal of boats in the Marine Corps, Cushman added.

In addition to time spent in the classroom at MCES, students receive a lot of practical application or hands-on training, said Cushman.

"When engineers leave here after completing a course and go to their first duty-station, they've actually had their hands on the equipment and have moved dirt, lifted things and operated all of the equipment, so they have a good familiarity with it," he said.

Engineers have a variety of missions throughout the Marine Corps, supporting divisions, service support groups and aircraft wings. In support of the ground combat element, engineers take on a very special role, according to LtCol. Bruce R. Kelly, director of instruction, MCES.

"Engineers have three main missions supporting the GCE," he said. "Mobility, counter-mobility and survivability. If we're providing mobility, our mission is to ensure our forces can move freely about the battlefield, which means we will breach obstacles and remove enemy explosive obstacles such as minefields. In counter-mobility, we aid in the defense of the maneuver element by setting in obstacles and minefields. Survivability is the protection of the maneuver element's resources, whether it be command posts, vehicles, tanks, digging in bunkers or just holding down positions. Whatever mission we have depends on what the GCE is doing."

Another field taught at MCES is heavy equipment mechanics. Unique to the Marine Corps, EEIC teaches students not only to work on specific pieces of equipment, but also the mechanical theory on how and why the gear works. This enables the Marines to work on a variety of equipment, according to CWO3 Joseph G. DePoorter, executive and academics officer, EEIC.

"We teach our students theory because it allows them to work on all engines," he said. "It's much more valuable to them and their command."

One of the hardest things about being a Marine Corps engineer is the fact that they are required to be a "jack of all trades," Kelly said.

"In addition to their job as engineers, they have to be very knowledgeable with their weapons," he said. "A combat engineer platoon has three machineguns in it, plus Shoulder-launched Multipurpose Assault Weapons, Squad Automatic Weapons and M-203 grenade launchers. They have a whole array of weaponry that they have to be proficient in, and they have to know how to fight as infantrymen. They also have to know how to use all of their equipment and maintain it. We can't just focus on one thing as engineers. It's a multi-dimensional field that requires us to focus on a variety of things at once."

An engineer's equipment is a necessity to accomplishing any mission, said Kelly.

"An engineer can not fulfill his mission without his gear," he said. "The equipment enables them to do the heavy labor and work that's involved in the field. Without the bulldozer, they can't move the dirt. Without the mine detectors, they're just out there with a bayonet."

With equipment being so critical to mission accomplishment for the engineers, maintenance plays an important part of an engineer's daily routine, Kelly said.

"Equipment maintenance is really the bread and butter of an engineer battalion," he said. "Starting here at school, we emphasize how important it is to take good care of the equipment."

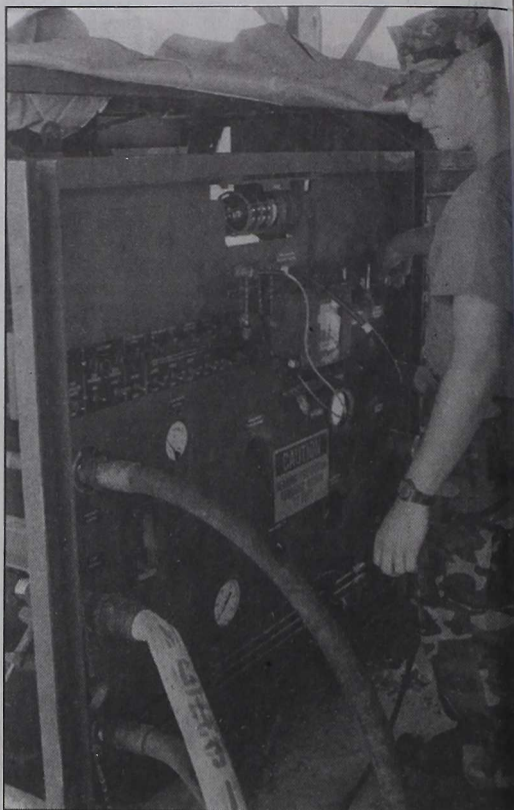

The engineer field provides Marines with a valuable skill that can be utilized in the civilian world, said Kelly.

"Entry-level engineers learn the rudiments of construction," he said. "After several years, a much more valuable skill is learned, which is the planning, execution and supervision of a job site."

The biggest challenge of being an engineer is coming up with field-expedient solutions to complex problems that are never quite the same, Kelly said.

"We don't have a lot of "whiz-bang" technology and gadgetry at our disposal out there," he said. "A lot of times when we're supporting somebody, we run up on some kind of intricate problem that requires us to brainstorm and come up with a common sense solution."

Throughout a student's tenure at MCES, they learn how to be a basic engineer, but at the same time they learn the importance of teamwork to accomplish any mission and overcome any obstacle.

LCpl. Scott J. Metzner, instructor, Utilities Instruction Co., activates a ROWPU, or Reverse Osmosis Water Purification Unit. Engineers use the unit to purify water in the field for drinking, showering and laundry.

If you didn't know

The Traffic Court section of the Base Inspectors Office would like to remind you of a few important facts this summer.

1. If you test positive on a urinalysis, your driving privileges are revoked for a year on base, but not off base. You must appear at Bldg. 4000 to have these privileges reinstated.

2. If you are given a DWI off base the charges apply on base too, but you may go to Bld. 4000, and depending upon your driving history you may receive permission to drive on base until your court date.

Planning, action can reduce vulnerability to natural disasters, minimize loss of life

Beginning of hurricane season is time to plan, prepare to fend off Mother Nature's onslaught

Cpl. Joseph B. Gray III
Globe staff

With hurricane season upon Camp Lejeune and summer storms thundering through the sky more and more everyday, preparing for the weather becomes even more important for safety.

According to base order 3430.6B, proper planning and effective action can reduce vulnerability to natural disaster as well as minimize life loss and destruction to property. Incidents with the potential of causing mass casualties, loss of life or extensive damage to military or civilian property require disaster preparedness.

When destructive weather arrives in the area, specific actions must be taken by individuals as well as commands to minimize the damage. In the case of any potential weather situation, all commands should be notified of the storm condition.

In the event of a storm, the hazards of lightning can cause many problems especially to Marines in the field. Marines stuck outside during a storm need to avoid isolated trees and poles in open places. If shelter cannot be reached, they should lie flat on the ground reducing their chances of being struck by lightning. Weapons should never be carried around the shoulder with the muzzle pointing upwards. Telephone conversations should also be held to a minimum to avoid the chance of lightning running in on the line. One should never swim or participate in any other sort of water activity during a storm due to the high chances of lightning striking the water.

Most people who have been struck by lightning have been saved by prompt and continued application of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. A full charge of lightning will kill a person, but one who appears dead may have received only a partial charge and can be revived. The patient should be immediately taken to a hospital while continuing mouth-to-mouth and treatment for shock which may save that person's life.

Another threat brought on by storms may be tornadoes. A tornado's high winds and over pressure effect to buildings are the biggest threats it possesses. The high-speed winds associated with tornadoes enable them to turn almost anything into a missile capable of causing injuries. Sometimes the changing atmospheric pressure can even cause buildings to literally explode.

In case of a tornado, avoid hanging around windows which are no match to any missile thrown by the wind. Windows at the ends of hallways or corridors, particularly ones facing south and west, can be blown down corridor causing injury.

People facing a tornado want to reach the lowest in an enclosure, and if the building has a basement probably the safest place. Interior spaces in buildings have no walls facing on the exterior of the building. A good place to be also but avoid ones with long spans. One should seek parts of buildings supported by strong structural frames such as steel, concrete and wood.

If caught in the open, try to seek the protection of a shelter. Foxholes, culverts, storm drains, ditches and depressions offer protection as well. If neither of these is found, lay flat with feet toward the direction of the tornado, arms folded above the head, face toward ground and eyes closed.

In any harsh situation, making sure communication and order is maintained is a must. Commands as well as families should have a storm and tornado plan to be prepared in the case of severe weather, and make sure everyone knows their role in the event of an emergency.

the memory of these and all other recipients of the Medal of Honor from 2d MarDiv.

The photographs and plaques will serve as a reminder to the Division of their proud history, said LtCol. Candace G. Quinlan, assistant chief-of-staff, G-1. "This is for the Division," she said. "Since the pictures were mounted, I've often seen Marines stopping just to read the plaques."

The picture walls were officially dedicated to the Marines of 2d MarDiv by MGen. James L. Jones, Commanding General, 2d Marine Division, and Col. Charles W. VanHorne (ret.) executive secretary of the 2d Marine Division Association.

"This is a truly important and motivating thing that G-1 has done," MGen. Jones said. "And it is especially appropriate that the ceremony occurred on the same day that our Marines rescued the downed Air Force pilot in Bosnia."

The motivational setting for the photos was made possible by much assistance from the 2d Marine Division Association. "We are immensely grateful for the Association's support," MajGen. Jones said. "Through their research and devotion, they have made this entire project possible."

The picture wall will help the overall purpose for the existence of the 2d Marine Division Association, said VanHorne. "Our primary purpose is to preserve the traditions, commemorate the honors won on the field of battle and celebrate with appropriate ceremonies the outstanding deeds performed by the 2d Marine Division and honor the memory of the men of the 2d Marine Division who have given their lives in defense of the Nation."

Marketing Organization has contracts to sell the waste."

In addition to being responsible for the control of hazardous wastes, the 2d Marine Division's Environmental and Safety Compliance Section also gives classes about state and federal environmental regulations, endangered wildlife on base and what hazardous wastes Marines may be exposed to.

"Marines have a right to know what they are exposed to," Cook said. "Every hazardous material has a Material Safety Data Sheet (MSDS). That sheet tells them everything they need to know about a certain material from the name of the manufacturer and their phone number to the health hazards and first aid treatment: if you breathe it in, get it on your skin or in your eyes."

Under the new program, the Marine Corps is being brought on line with their civilian counterparts in the protection of the environment, according to Cook.

"With this program, Congress and the Marine Corps aren't asking us to do anymore than civilian companies," he said. "Every company out there is supposed to take care of their workers and make them aware of any health hazards from chemicals. We say we take care of our own, and it's important we do when it comes to the area of hazardous materials and wastes."

In addition to looking out for the welfare of Marines, there are a number of other benefits to controlling hazardous materials and wastes, Cook continued.

"First of all, we save a lot of money in fines that we would have to pay if we didn't properly control and dispose of them," he said. "Fines would take away valuable training money. We also help protect the endangered species aboard the base. It's our job to protect the American people, and where is a better place to start than our own backyard. It's just the right thing to do, and it's a hell of a lot easier to not make a mess than it is to clean one up."

SUPPLY from 1A

It is also being taken into consideration by other units that are hearing about the "S-1 2000" outside Camp Lejeune.

In Fiscal Year 94, 2d FSSG alone lost $20,930.00 due to Marines not reporting to airline flights. When an individual doesn't use a ticket, it is the responsibility of the S-1 to contact the Personnel Control Point to stop the payment to the airline. Many times though, with all the hustle and bustle of paperwork this task does not get accomplished, resulting in airlines keeping the Marine Corps dollar, according to Moayedzadeh.

"The system will automatically take care of the situation," he said. "So far in Fiscal Year 95, with the new system in effect, participating battalions of 2d FSSG have lost no money."

"This direct effect provides a clear understanding why the entire Marine Corps could use the 'S-1 2000,'" he continued.

"It is estimated that the Corps will lose another two and a half million dollars this year alone, due to unused purchased airline tickets" Moayedzadeh said.

The training requirements for the new system are little to none compared to old ways, he continued.

"With the normal system in effect, it takes administrative schools 59 hours to train an 0151 orders clerk to do the job properly," Ayuso said. "Now with the new system, you can teach the S-1 orders section in as little as two hours."

Marines will now have an administrative section that can keep up with their quick and constant deployable needs, Ayuso said.

"The system we have developed is totally deployable," he said.

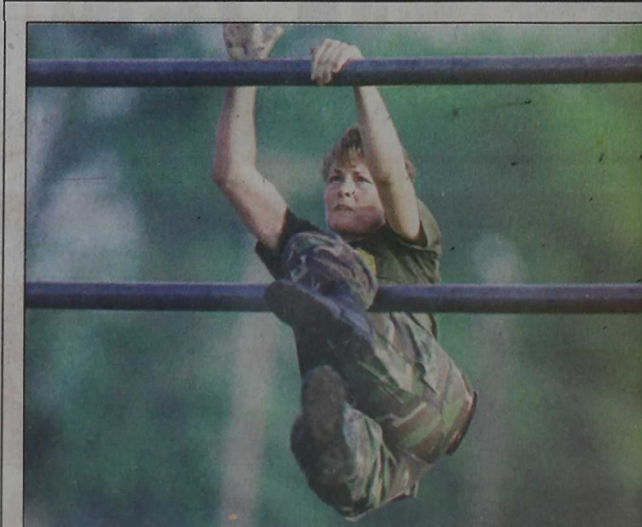

"All you need is some type of electrical source for your computer, or a battery packed laptop will do."

When the designing for the "S-1 2000" began, there was speculation of additional computer requirements. The speculation turned into fact with the need for new computers with large amounts of memory and speed capabilities, continued Ayuso.

"We then approached ISMO with a legitimate argument for the hardware needed," he said. "ISMO has the computers waiting for units having a purpose for them, so we felt now we might get the hardware needed."

The "S-1 2000" hardware requirements include: 486 or better computer, a mouse, 8 megs of RAM or better and 30 megs of memory on the CPU hard drive.

MarForLant slays II MEF in soccer

Scoring the only goal of the game, LtGen. Robert B. Johnston, Commander, Marine Forces Atlantic, led his troops to victory in a "soccer challenge" with Second Marine Expeditionary Force. Taking place June 9, at Paradise Point, the game pitted members of the two units against each other in a fiery competition.

From the kickoff, MarForLant was quick to take control of the game. Bringing the ball into II MEF territory, MarForLant dominated the early minutes of the game. Using excellent offensive plays and passes, LtGen. Johnston and Evroy Henry made several attempts at the goal, but Gordon Nash, II MEF goalie, consistently denied the goal.

Sporadically, II MEF gained control of the ball but MarForLant's defense was more than II MEF could handle. Building a tight wall, Jennifer Carter and fellow defenders held II MEF to the midfield. As the final minutes of the half dwindled, MarForLant's offense exploded once again. After driving the ball down

The Headquarters Battalion, 2d Marine Division Intramural Softball Team capped off a first-place finish in the Red League with an 8-4 victory over 2d Maintenance Bn. to become this year's All-Camp Softball Champions.

The top two teams in each of the three Intramural Leagues here combined with the leaders of the Marine Corps Air Station New River Intramural Leagues to form the 1995 All-Camp Championships. This double elimination tournament was played over a three-day period, which concluded with the championship game on Saturday at Harry Agganis Field.

HQ Bn. advanced to the finals with early victories over MALS-26, 5-4, and School of Infantry, 13-3, before suffering their first loss of the tournament at the hands of 2d Maint Bn., 9-8.

"This morning's game against Maint Bn. was the toughest in the tournament for us," said Harry Caston, player/coach, HQ Bn. "We lost it 9-8. We just didn't come ready to play, and we made a lot of fundamental defensive mistakes."

After their one-point loss, HQ Bn. quickly recovered, and decapitated SOI, 12-2, to get into the championship game.

Maint Bn. arrived at the championship game with an undefeated record after victories over HMM-266, 7-0, Marine Corps Service Support Schools, 16-4 and HQ Bn., 9-8.

In the finals, HQ Bn. jumped out to a quick 2-0 start in the top of the first inning on their way to a 13-1 shellacking of Maint Bn., which forced a second game between the two to decide a true champion.

NavHosp-B assumes reins of Blue League

The Naval Hospital-B Intramural Golf team stroked their record to 4-0 on the season with an 8-4 victory over previously unbeaten Military Police Company at Paradise Point Golf Course June 8.

Taking the reins for Naval Hospital-B in the match was Steve Patton, who contributed three of the team's eight points on his way to six over par (76) on the day.

Patton found out early on in the match how to cope with the wet course that played havoc on the players all day.

"With it being extremely wet out there, you had to hit the ball well, and get it onto the green," Patton said. "Normally the ball would hit the fairway and roll 20-30 yards, but with the wet course it wasn't doing that."

"Considering the recent bad weather we've been having here lately, the course was in fairly good condition," he added.

Marla Patterson, who was stacked up against Gary Schmidt on the course, picked up two more points for Naval Hospital-B with a 43 on the front nine holes and an 87 on the day.

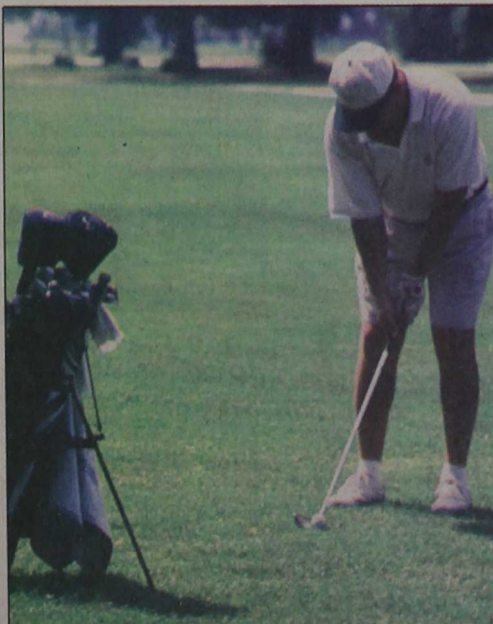

"There was a fairly equal distribution of points throughout our team," Patton said. "No one person did anything extremely outstanding."

Mike Hilton set the pace for MP Co. with an 86 on the course. He picked up a point for his team on the back nine holes with a 42, and another point for finishing four strokes better than his opponent, Warren Walters.

Douglas Ralph and Schmidt each chipped in with a point apiece for MP Co. Schmidt picked up a point with an impressive 43 strokes on the back nine, while Ralph also scored on the back nine with a 44.

Well, shiver me timbers, something fresh has arrived to Camp Lejeune's recreational fields, and believe me it's about time. After a more than 20 year absence, the great game of baseball has returned to the base for all to enjoy.

But why has it been absent for so long?

Lack of interest definitely couldn't have been the cause for its absence. Evidence of that was clearly shown when enough players to form twenty-one teams immediately signed up for this year's season when word of its establishment was released.

The cause probably was due to money, or should I say the lack thereof. We're always hearing about the fact that there isn't enough money nowadays to do anything.

Who knows what the cause was? Who cares? It's done and over with.

Baseball is back by popular demand, and it's sure to astound all who care to take part in its remarkable aura.

Of course, it won't feature the likes of Los Angeles Dodger phenomenon Mike Piazza or St. Louis Cardinal superstar Ozzie Smith, but what it will feature are some of the best baseball players that Camp Lejeune has to offer.

These will be the players who will be out on the diamond blasting 90 mph fast balls over the center field fence. They will be sacrificing their bodies to slide head first into homeplate to score a run for their team. They will be laying a bunt down the third base line and stealing home for the winning run.

There will be strikeouts, walks, double-plays and sacrifice flies. It's the game of baseball, and it's welcomed on base with open arms.

Opening day for the season was Monday, and although the three scheduled games were postponed because of inclement weather, the anticipation level was higher than the Port City Rooster's first home game.

And why wouldn't it be? The last Intramural Baseball

Marines carry Flame of Hope to Kinston

LCpl. Brian M. Danisevich

Thirty-seven military police volunteers from Marine Corps Base Camp Lejeune and Marine Corps Air Station New River recently took part in the 9th annual North Carolina Law Enforcement Torch Run.

The torch run, which was first held in 1987, originates annually from 10 locations throughout North Carolina in an effort to raise money for the North Carolina Special Olympics.

Each of the 10 Flame of Hope torches is carried over a 10-day period by various law enforcement agencies through more than 180 cities, towns and communities in the Tar Heel state converging at the site of the state's Special Olympic games.

The Provost Marshal's Office Marines took over one of the 10 torches at the city line from the Jacksonville Police Department. Col. Wayne V. Morris, provost marshal, and assistant chief of staff, installation, safety and security, MCB, accepted the torch from Commander Jim Reiffinger of the Jacksonville Police Department, which kicked off the first leg of the 40-mile route the Leathernecks volunteered to run.

"The adrenaline was there," said SSgt. John H. Faust, staff noncommissioned officer, special detail section, PMO, MCB, of the run. "A lot of people were out there waving and supporting us. Passing motorists were honking their horns, and it really pumped up the runners."

Because the 40-mile run for the Marines was a joint effort between the MCB PMO and the MCAS New River PMO, Morris passed the torch on to Maj. Hans J. Miller, provost marshal, MCAS New River, upon completion of his Torch Run leg.

Of the 37 volunteer runners, 13 came from MCAS New River PMO, while 22 came from MCB PMO, and two came from Brig Company.

Some of the runners for this year's run did it last year, too, said Faust. "We had some motivated runners continue running with the person who they handed off the torch to, and run with and motivate them."

One runner who needed little motivation was 1stLt. Kerry James Quinn, operations officer, PMO, MCB. Quinn, an experienced marathoner, tackled his one mile shift in 5:40.

"I had a little competition going with a few of the other runners out there," Quinn said. "The competition made it fun for everyone."

Besides having the desire to run and compete Quinn said he was out there carrying the Flame of Hope for other reasons.

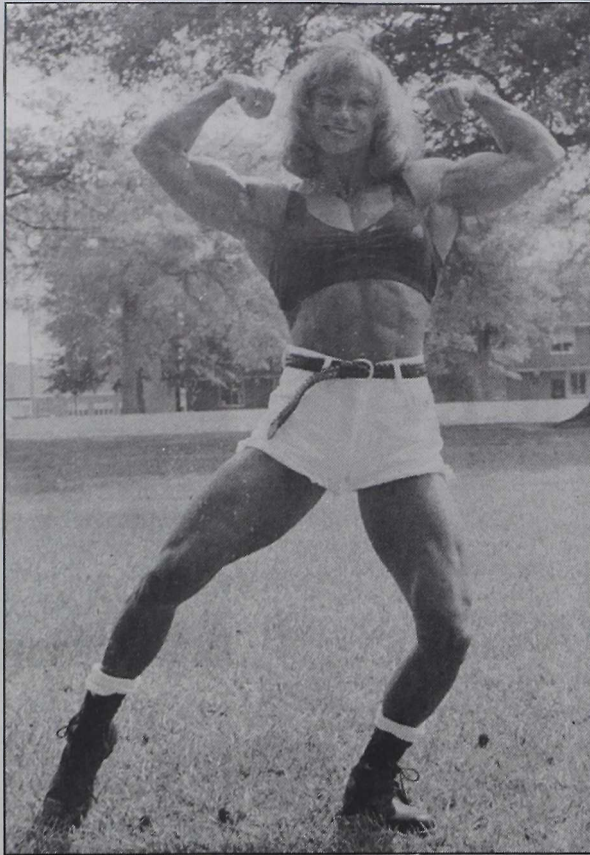

"I like getting involved with other organizations in community services," he said. "The bottom line was that we were doing it to help out the folks in the Special Olympics."

Along with helping to run a segment of the distance to Raleigh, which is the site of this year's North Carolina Special Olympics, the Marines also raised money for the event by selling T-shirts.

The 1995 North Carolina Special Olympics kicked off its opening ceremonies with all 10 torches converging at the site of the games in Raleigh June 2.

"I wasn't there to see the official opening in Raleigh, but I saw it on the news," Faust said. "It gave me a good inner feeling to know that I played a part in helping to set it up."

"It was also good to see so many people contribute to it's success," he added. "I'm looking forward to doing it again next year."

In 1982, after three years of training, Kelly Felske, wife of Capt. Mark Felske, weapons company commander, 1st Battalion, 8th Marines, entered her first bodybuilding competition. Twelve years later, at the age of 42, Felske continues to compete and succeed in the sport.

This year alone, Felske competed and captured first-place honors in the Heavyweight class and overall in four bodybuilding meets, two of which were national competitions.

"I started working out when I was 27-years-old," Felske said. "I only weighed 108-pounds, and I wanted to get into better shape."

After three years of building her body up with weights, Felske decided to enter a bodybuilding competition as a lightweight. Since then she has grown to become a powerhouse in the heavyweight class of the bodybuilding scene.

"After you're at it for awhile, your vision of what a woman should look like changes," she said. "At first I didn't like the way muscular women looked, but the longer I was around it the better I liked it."

"My mindset now is the bigger, the badder, the better," she said.

To get bigger and badder Felske visits the weight room six days a week. In the weight room she spends an average of an hour and a half isolating each muscle for maximum potential.

"I try to go for a higher intensity workout of the competition season and a heavier workout during the off-season," Felske said of her workouts.

Besides the time she spends hitting the weights, Felske also fits a half hour of aerobics into her schedule. She said that she mostly enjoys "The Gauntlet" at the French Creek Fitness Center.

"The Gauntlet" is an aerobic workout that takes place at the French Creek Fitness Center daily.

Felske also watches her intake of food each day.

"If I'm hungry, I can't just drive to Burger King and grab a burger," Felske said. "I have to stay away from all fatty foods."

"I have to make sure that I keep a good calorie intake of 4,000 to 5,000 calories in the off-season, 2,200 to 2,500 in the competition season," she explained.

Although she said that it's a full-time job training for the sport, Felske made it clear that she doesn't want to quit.

"Some people say that going to the gym is a chore, but I'd rather be in the gym than anywhere else," Felske said. "That's where I do my workout and have fun at the same time."

Felske also has a love for most other sports. F

Davis, Krick grab volleyball victory

Under clear and sunny skies, the beach volleyball duo of Matt Davis and David Krick seized an 11-7 victory over Leslie Cox and Perry Lanham to claim the title and bragging rights as week two champions of the Copenhagen/Skoal Outdoor Summer Beach Volleyball Series June 10.

"We did a great job at getting the ball to each other," Davis said.

"We've been playing together for about two months, so we know each other's strengths and abilities," he added.

Making it to the final game was no easy task for either team. Seven teams made their way to Onslow Beach to vie for the weekly title.

Following a double elimination system, Davis and Krick were the only team to stand undefeated throughout the day. Cox and Lanham's only loss before the finals was ironically at the hands of Davis and Krick in the third round of the winners bracket, 11-3.

Cox and Lanham rebounded from their first loss by soundly grabbing an 11-3 victory in the loser bracket finals.

Heading into the final match, both teams were fired up to face each other again. From the onset of the match, the teams battled back and forth trying to gain a concrete lead, but with excellent defensive play, the two held each other at a few points apiece.

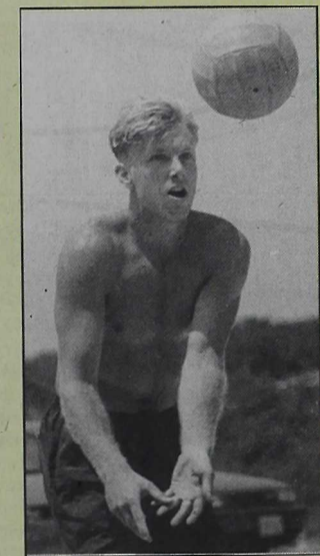

Davis and Krick began to find the holes in their opponents' defensive wall though, and started to pull away with the lead. After Davis and Krick gained a 7-4 lead, the heart and determination of Cox and Lanham began to pay off, and the two were able to shorten the Davis/Krick lead.

Eventually though, heart wouldn't be enough of a factor and Davis and Krick pulled away with the lead again.

Using excellent teamwork, Davis and Krick seemed to read one another's minds and displayed excellent timing setting each other up with the set and follow through. Cox and Lanham's defense faltered, leaving Davis and Krick victorious, 11-7.

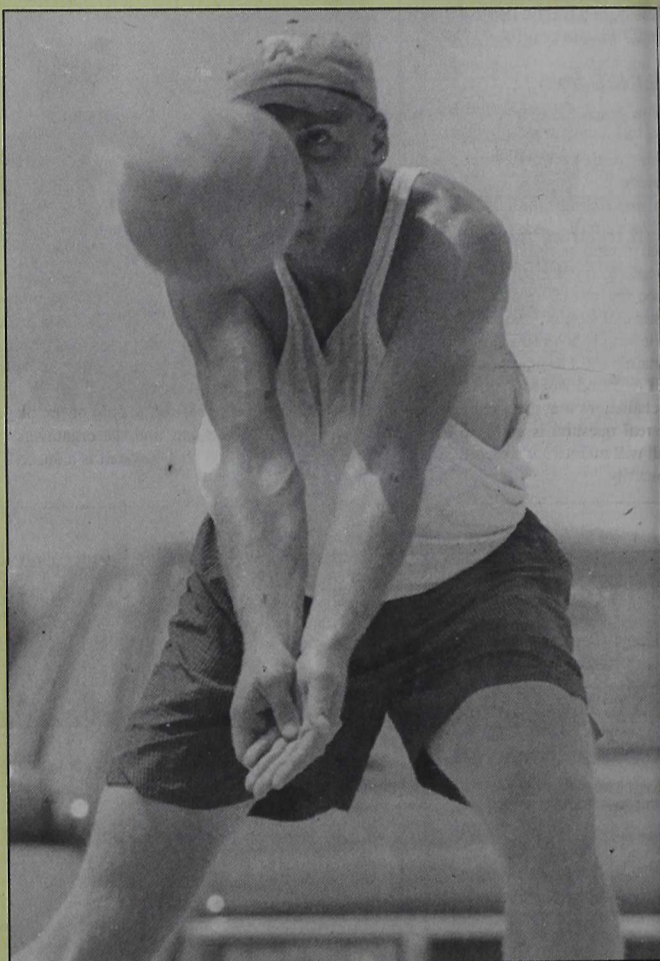

"Don't let me take anything away from them; they absolutely crank," Lanham said. "We worked well together, but today they were the better team."

Carl VanderVere, tournament director, was pleased with the turn-out and level of play.

field, LtGen. Johnston brought the ball to the box to score the only point of the game.

Entering the second half, II MEF desperately attempted to make a comeback. Driving the ball downfield, II MEF was aggressive in their attack and dominated the beginning of the half.

MarForLant regrouped though, and with strong playing by Peter Gillis, MarForLant was able to keep their edge over II MEF, winning the match at 1-0.

"The key to the win was our passing," LtGen. Johnston said. "We were able to exercise a lot more control with the ball."

The "soccer challenge" was held to promote a friendly spirit of competition between two units who work so closely together, according to LtGen. Johnston.

"We do a lot together," LtGen. Johnston said. "We combine for runs, marches, etcetera. It was about time we had a little competition."

The units plan to hold more competitions in the near future with a variety of events to help keep morale high within the units, said LtGen. Johnston.

"Plus we owe it to MEF to give them a rematch!" he added.

lead after the front nine holes, but the pressure of playing another undefeated team was there all day, according to Patton.

"Competition always brings a little added pressure," he said. "You start thinking of things when you're standing over a putt that you normally wouldn't if you were out there playing with friends.

"When you're playing with friends it's if you make it, you make it, if you don't you don't," he continued. "But when you're competing and you know that you have to make par because your opponent already made his, it really adds some pressure."

Although feeling the pressure of the heated match, Naval Hospital-B managed to maintain their first place position atop the Blue League with the 8-4 victory.

MP Co. dropped into second place in the Blue League with a 3-1 record on the season.

"This was a big win for us," Patton said after the match.

"It puts us well along the way, but we still have got a lot of golf ahead of us," he added.

Steve Patton, Naval Hospital-B, putts his way to par on the 17th hole at Paradise Point golf course June 8. Patton shot a 76 for the course during Blue League Intramural Golf action, contributing to his team's current first-place standing in the Blue League.

ELINES from 1B

ers to grace the recreational fields of Camp ne were back about the time that Neil trong made his world famous walk on the face moon.

w, more than 20 years later, Marines and Sail-ill bring forth those ghosts of the past to the ved ground on which they once played.

is safe to say that softball, a game which has ood the test of time on base, will remain a rstone of Lejeune Intramurals with the mas-following it has gained over the past. But we certainly see a migration of fine athletes to the all diamond where they can find and thrive e challenges that the game offers.

he real question is going to be if Intramural all will maintain it's presence here, or perish obscurity.

Like everything else that's brand new, there's an overwhelming attraction to it. But once the initial luster is rubbed off, it becomes almost insignificant or neglected.

Hopefully that won't happen with our new baseball league.

Maybe if the organizers of this league come to realize the magnitude of this creature they have created, the league may be here to stay. But the interest must be stirred with equal greatness for the sport today, tomorrow and for the years to come in order to keep the ball rolling in the right direction.

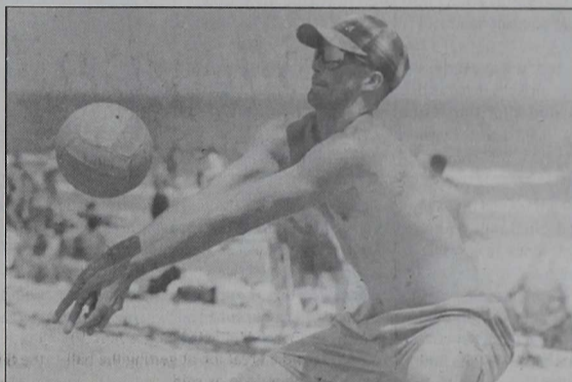

Only then, with the help of the players, the coaches, the fans and the organizers, can we rightfully say that baseball is a success aboard the base.

SOFTBALL from 1B

Harry Caston. "After we 10-run ruled SOI we wanted to go with the flow and keep our bats moving."

In the deciding championship game, HQ Bn. once again raced out to grab the lead on Maint Bn. after Marvell McDaniels made it around the bases for a run.

However, Lorenzo Townsend and Terry Vandenbosch retaliated with two hits to start off the bottom of the second.

Townsend eventually scored after tagging up from third base on a Ted Sell sacrifice fly. Vandenbosch also scored in the inning to give Maint Bn. a 2-0 lead.

HQ Bn. struck right back in the second when Michael Pauling sent a Karsen Brooks pitch 300 feet for a homerun over the left field fence. Tim Ring and McDaniels also scored in the inning which helped HQ Bn. regain the lead for good.

From there the HQ Bn. defense commenced to shut down the offensive attack of Maint. Bn. over the next four innings. Their own offense went on to build a comfortable 8-2 lead with one run in the fourth and three more in the fifth.

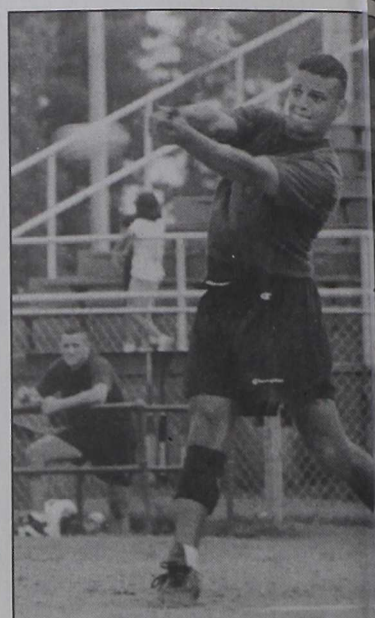

Maint Bn. made a comeback run with two outs in their half of the sixth inning. Cory Wilber singled to right field to start off the rally, and was brought home after a Gary Waltross hit squeezed through the legs of HQ Bn.'s second baseman, Joseph Fontenot. Waltross added the last run for his team in the inning and the game.

The rally cut Maint Bn.'s deficit to four points, but they could cut it no closer. The game ended with the HQ Bn. defense sitting Maint Bn. down one, two, three in the last half of the seventh.

"I wish I could say there was a star on our team, but it was a complete team effort," Caston said after the championship victory.

Harry Caston, HQ Bn., completes the back end of a double play over a sliding 2d Maint Bn. runner.

LCpl. Brian M. Danisevich

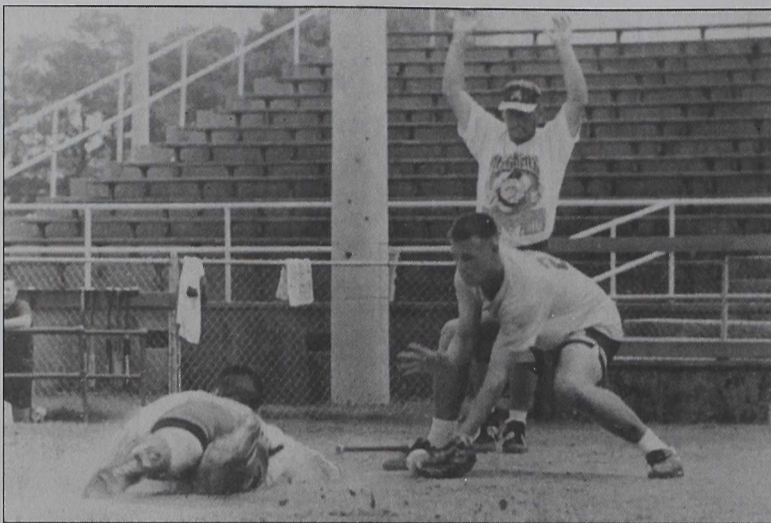

"It's basically the same way we've been doing it all season," he added.

During the season, HQ Bn. went on to establish a 13-1 record and finish in first place in the Red League. They also entered and won the 2d Marine Division One-Pitch Softball Tournament in May with a perfect 6-0 record before capturing the All-Camp Championship.

"The biggest advantage for us was the one-pitch softball tournament," Caston said. "We got into that tournament to get practice and game time as a team because we have been shuffling players around all season."

"We weren't picked to win the All-Camp tournament," Caston said.

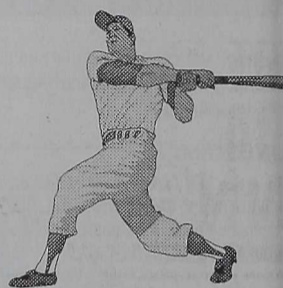

"I told the players to believe in themselves. Everybody kept each other up, and they really came through," he added.

PUMP from 2B

ever, she has given them all up for her greater love of bodybuilding.

"In 1990 I blew out both of my knees and had to undergo five knee surgeries," she said. "I tore ligaments and cartilage in my knees, but it wasn't due to bodybuilding. I tore out one playing racquetball and one playing softball."

"It was pretty devastating to see my leg come out of that brace," Felske said. "I stay away from most other sporting activities now."

Shortly after taking the leg brace off, Felske made a bittersweet comeback with the help of her husband.

"My husband is my best motivator," she said. "Our time schedules don't allow us to work out together, but he loves what I do, and he gives me the support I need."

With the support of her husband and the time spent on building her body back to the symmetry it needed to be at to compete, Felske made a strong return to the circuit.

In 1993 she placed first in the heavyweight class and overall in the Iron Games held in Stillwater, Okla., and the Mid-USA Championships held in Albuquerque, N.M. In 1994 she placed first in the Eastern Regional held in Jacksonville, N.C.

She continued with her winning ways this year with victories at the Queens City Classics, the Armed Forces National's, the North Carolina State Championships and the Junior USA Championships.

But her winnings don't stop there.

She has landed on the cover of National Physique Committee, and has a full layout in Flex and Muscular Development scheduled to appear in September.

Her success has been 16 years in the making, and although she's 42-years-old she's hungry for more.

"I'm going for my professional card next year," she said.

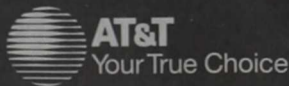

To go professional, competitors have to compete and win a weight class or overall in one of the major national competitions.

"I love bodybuilding, just like anybody else would love their hobby," Felske said.

"It doesn't matter if I'm competing or working the back stage, it makes me happy," she added.

AT&T SALUTES THE HEROES WHO ANSWERED THE CALL. AND OUR PRAYERS.

Welcome home, Captain O'Grady. Our congratulations to the forward deployed Navy and Marine Corps team.

Travel Season

ITT provides trip packages, any services

Glenn Ann Shea
staff

As the dog days of summer are upon us, we begin to be thinking of ways to fill your summer with adventure.

Traditionally known as vacation season, and on that note, Information, Tickets and Tours is available to assist with various services and planning.

"We technically are offering service to the community under Morale, Welfare and Recreation," said Dawn Anderson, ITT assistant manager. "We work with the recreation department to provide leisure services to the community."

ITT, located in the main exchange area, offers a variety of services to active, retired and reserve military, DOD employees and other personnel and guests. Federal employees are eligible for tickets only.

One of our big services is discount tickets," Anderson said.

The office provides a wide variety of tickets for admission to your favorite theme parks, tours and shows across the state with major emphasis in the southeast part of the country. Just a few include Busch Gardens Water Country USA and the Dixie Stampede.

For example, an adult gate ticket to Busch Gardens runs $27.95, but through ITT per person only $24.50. An adult door ticket to Dixie Stampede costs $25. ITT offers it for $23.

One-day or weekend trip packages are also available to aspiring adventure seekers, often at a single price for transportation and an activity.

Anderson said although more people seem to be traveling on their own, such packages are valuable to those desiring a ride, and especially to those who don't have a vehicle. "We try to offer trips that will appeal to different eligible people," she added.

Trip packages usually work on a 30-day basis in order for ITT to get a special price. These types of activities are especially popular with active-duty Marines because it's more convenient to take one-day and weekend trips with their schedule, according to Anderson. Here is a list of upcoming trip packages offered:

July 1

Enjoy a pre-July 4 blast at the Carowinds theme park in Charlotte. The cost is $30 for transportation and tickets. Reserve by today.

July 15

Break out to Doswell, Va., for a day at Kings Dominion. The cost is $30 for tickets and transportation. Reserve by July 5.

July 22

July 29

Travel to Myrtle Beach, S.C., for $8. Check with ITT for information on activities and discount tickets for the area. Reserve transportation by July 24.

Aug. 5-6

Spend two days at Bush Gardens and Water Country in Williamsburg, Va. The cost is $125 for transportation, lodging, tickets and two catered meals. Reserve by June 25.

Aug. 19

Another transportation trip to Myrtle Beach is offered for $8. Reserve by Aug. 10.

Sept 1-4

Spend Labor Day weekend in historic Savannah, Ga. The trip includes site seeking, a riverboat dinner cruise, a trolley ride and more. The fee is $225, including transportation, three nights' lodging, a trolley ride and the dinner cruise. Reserve by Aug. 1.

Sept. 9

Excitement and thrills await you on a one-day trip to Darlington, S.C., for the NASCAR races. The fee is $68, including transportation and tickets. Reserve by Aug. 25.

According to Anderson, ITT patrons are not limited to specified trip packages. If a large group wants to go somewhere other than what is scheduled, ITT can work to make such an event happen.

In addition, if a group or individual wants

Boy Scout honored at national meeting in Chicago

Boy Scout Patrick Barley understood he was involved in a tradition when he participated in a flag-retirement ceremony at Barancas National Cemetery a year ago.

But what he — and his family — didn't expect was nation-wide recognition for it.

"My brother from Gainesville called and said he was sitting there drinking a cup of coffee while looking at a picture of Patrick in the newspaper," said Nena Barley, his mother.

Barley's face was featured on the front and local pages of more than 109 newspapers the next morning in honor of Flag Day.

Barley, son of Maj. Kirk and Nena Barley, was stationed with his parents at Naval Air Station Pensacola at the time. It was one early morning that he journeyed to take part in his troop's honorary flag-retirement ceremony. One-by-one, Barley and other scouts cut several flags into specific sections, placed them into a burning mass and gave a respectful salute to each cloth.

At that moment, Barley's face was captioned forever.

A photographer from the local paper snapped Barley's photo while in a perfect attention as flames raged and cemetery plots loomed behind.

"I think it was our (the troop) first time doing this," Barley said. "It's the traditional flag-burning ceremony; it's an honoring of the flag."

Barley and his family received numerous phone calls about the widespread publicity which no doubt gave some valuable attention to the Boy Scouts, according to Nena Barley.

One woman even managed to track the family down after they moved. She located their phone number and later sent Barley a letter expressing her gratitude for the positive image he projected at the ceremony.

"It generated so much attention — so much media," Nena Barley added. "It just showed that no event is too small to call the media to get positive PR for the Boy Scouts."

Once the excitement passed and scrapbooks of newspaper clippings were collected, life at the Barley's went back to normal.

Until recently.

Barley received a phone call from the Boy Scouts of America, inviting him to be one of two scouts across the nation to be a guest at the national business meeting in Chicago.

The invitation is special as such meetings usually only involve voting members and guests of the organization.

So Barley, along with his family, traveled for a weekend of fun and excitement to not only be a part of the

Painter adds life to school's walls

Creates funny, cheerful creatures at TT1

Candis Ann Shea

Tarawa Terrace 1 Elementary School is getting a colorful facelift with the help of one aspiring artist and the stroke of her paint brush.

Rose Nelson, wife of WO-1 Michael Nelson, frequently makes her way to the school to adorn its walls with acrylic paint and a little imagination.

She is painting sceneries across selected walls across the school with humorous little creatures, which are intriguing to the eye.

"I really like nature," Nelson said. "Some people paint what they like; others write what they like."

Nelson said her love for art began early on because she loves to create: whether it's painting, sewing or furniture refinishing.

But since childhood, her first love has always been painting and drawing.

"I've been doodling and drawing since I was six years old," she said. "I loved coloring books. Every time I had 69 cents, I'd go to the market and buy a coloring book."

But now, the walls of TT1 are her present passion.

The restrooms are her current place of work, oddly enough. She has adorned the girls' room with fluffy ducks, bathing under raindrops and a frog whose special green thumb helps him plant a garden filled with carrots, peas and onions.

Nelson also makes a point of adding a little humor to each design. For example, a frog sits on a park bench reading the week's edition of the "Frog Gazette." The headline reads: "Washing hands kills germs."

"The Underwater Jazz Revival" is under way in the boys room with a saxophone-playing octopus, blowing bubbles from his horn.

Three female fish, with teased and puffed hair-dos, resemble the lead singers of the B-52s. But at TT1 they are the "Revival's" backup singing group.

"The room will all basically be underwater beach related," she said.

After the "Revival" is complete, Nelson plans to bring the stars of Jurassic Park to the cafeteria walls. The Tyrannosaurs Rex and the Brontosaurus may be soon delighting hungry elementary school eaters.

"The dinosaurs will definitely be fun," she said. "They'll probably be wearing boxers and sunglasses. Hopefully, it will be something that people will smile at when they look at it."

Art is so much a part of her that a lot of her creativity is done before she wakes up in the morning.

"A lot of it happens up here (pointing to her head) before it hits the paper," Nelson said. "I may work on it while I sleep because sometimes I wake up and it's there."

The idea to illustrate the walls wasn't really planned, according to Nelson. It kind've just happened. Nelson and TT1 Assistant Principal Sam Jones attend the same church and were visiting at a function.

"We were just talking, and I mentioned I was an aspiring artist," Nelson said. "We talked about the idea, and it sounded like a great opportunity. My work really appeals to children, and I enjoy that the most."

Nelson has been working on the TT1 project since last February but has also done several paintings for her own pleasure, while some she has given away. She hopes to go back to school and finish her degree in art to further enhance her skill and love for the field.

"The need to create is very strong in me," Nelson said. "It's me. If I quit creating, then I'd cease to exist."

to fly to a destination, ITT will work with Omega Travel World, which has a location in its office. ITT also offers hotel reservation services. Anderson said patrons should allow two-week advance notice to ensure a better chance of arranging accommodations.

"We can do just about anything," Anderson said. "We even go so far as to get menus and locate restaurants."

ITT also has a location at Camp Johnson which caters to Marines in school.

"Our big focus is graduation trips," Anderson added. "By the time they graduate, they want to go off and let out some steam."

ITT's main focus is to serve the troops and provide trips and activities at an affordable price, she added. For information, call 451-3535.

gathering, but rub elbows with some big whigs.

He met national Boy Scout leaders and saw well-renowned people like astronauts Neil Armstrong and John Lovell.

"I got to sit right next to John Lovell," Barley said. "That's how I got his autograph."

Barley was scheduled to sit next to Armstrong, who is famous for his moon walk, but that opportunity just slipped by as Armstrong was late for the meeting and chose to stand in the back so not to disturb the ceremony on the weekend.

Barley was later called to center stage to be recognized for his actions that placed him in newspapers across the nation.

A huge screen displayed the photograph of Barley, as he stood next to it, with an announcer describing the history and impact of the picture.

"I don't think any of us realize how much it meant to people," Nelson Barley said.

Barley enjoyed a special breakfast meeting, the main ceremony and got to visit some of Chicago's sites. Although he enjoyed his visit to the Windy City, the trip holds an even funther purpose to this Boy Scout. Barley plans to use the pictures and notes for the scouting project.

"I'm working on my journalism merit badge," he said.

"I have to attend a news event, write articles and take photos for it. I have already started it. You have to start a project before you can apply for a badge."

Barley is currently a member of Camp Lejeune Troop 490.

Fishing for education

Students spend day with retired sergeant major

Barker

Central Brewster Middle School students caught more than 100 fish on a recent field trip. They reeled in a little fun and knowledge too.

Students traveled to the Flatwood Sporting Facility with professional fisherman Willie Ridgeway, a retired sergeant major, for an afternoon of fishing. Ridgeway, who has participated in the Master Invitational and coached the Carolina Floater for 15 years, helped with the students. Ridgeway then contacted the Flatwood Sporting Facility staff, who volunteered their services.

The afternoon counted as part of the course students were taking in conjunction with the North Carolina Catch Program, which is designed to distinguish students on the fish species and to be environmentally aware while fishing. The hands-on experience the kids will keep for life," said J. Niro, a sixth grade teacher who attended.

"It wasn't only education that the children got from the trip. The parents of the kids' fathers are involved for long periods of time, as a chance for them to spend quality time with the many fathers that did go on the trip." All the students enjoyed a fun-filled afternoon, but the girls took an early lead in the day by reeling in five consecutive fish.

Brianne Kelly, daughter of LtCol. Bruce and Jane Kelly, brought in the first catch of the day — a 1 1/2 pound catfish.

She promptly released the fish, which is an environmentally responsible action the students learned in class.

Alexis Mugge, daughter of SSgt. Paul and Gail Mugge, a resident expert at age 11, caught two catfish.

She credited her success to the experience she gained at her grandfather's house. Mugge said she can recognize a catfish by "the handle bar things (whiskers)," which Ridgeway warned the students to stay clear of.

Twenty-five chaperons also attended the field trip, which included teachers and parents. Ridgeway was pleased parents attended because he said it's important for parents to get involved in activities with their children.

"Nobody ever saw a kid with a rod and reel in one hand and a bag of dope in the other, so we need to hurry up and get the rods in their hands," Ridgeway added.

Niro said fishing from a book is no fun. But the trip gave students an on-hands opportunity to work together, witness the objects of study and learn to have fun in nature without taking anything away from it.

The Flatwood Sporting Facility is open until dark daily, and it offers three ponds, which are stocked with catfish and bass. Crappy and brim also procreate there naturally. The cost to fish is $5 for adults, with no charge to children.

In addition to fishing, horseback riding, riding lessons, camping picnic facilities and rifle and pistol ranges are available. The facility also has its own bait and tackle shop and leather store.

THE BRIDGES OF MADISON COUNTY (PG-13)
The Bridges of Madison County is based on the long-running number one bestseller by Robert James Waller. It tells the story of a brief but intense affair between a rugged photographer, Robert Kincaid, who goes to Madison County to take pictures of covered bridges. There he meets the Italian war-bride turned Iowa farm wife Francesca Johnson, played by Meryl Streep (The River Wild). They have a short but life-altering relationship. The film screenwriter Richard LaGravenese (The Fisher King) was given permission to elaborate on the original storyline and explored the effect the revelation of the romance has on Francesca's children. The children were only minor characters in the book.

The book was a mere fantasy of an affair; the movie is more of an authentic love affair. It is about these two middle-aged people with their middle-aged bodies having this hot, wonderful affair.

Eastwood also was the force behind the music of this film. An avid jazz lover, he wrote the beautiful score for the movie. Clint Eastwood, who also directed this tender and passionate film, and Meryl Streep have that rare but wonderful chemistry that makes this film so appealing and believable.

Anyone who loved the blockbuster novella will probably come away from the movie version very satisfied. Eastwood did an outstanding job as director and actor, and Streep is at her very best. They make magic of middle-American love.

As a movie, The Bridges of Madison County is touching in a delicate, almost lyrical way. It is a wonderful surprise — despite the knowledge of the outcome — the film creates undecurrent of emotional suspense.

The Bridges of Madison County is truly an affair to remember. This is one of the best movie enjoyments in a long time. Go see it!!

CONGO (R)

In the action-adventure, Congo, a mysterious expanse of unexplored Africa is the setting for a field expedition that discovers a place where human greed and the laws of nature have gone berserk.

Congo is a big screen adaptation from a 1980 novel by Michael Crichton (Jurassic Park, Disclosure, Rising Sun).

A diamond-prospecting expedition turns deadly when the group encounters a previously unknown breed of gorillas. It is the story of primatologist Peter Elliot, played by Dylan Walsh (Nobody's Fool) and computer executive Karen Ross, played by Laura Linney (Dave) who become unlikely partners in a trek into a remote African jungle to find the legendary Lost City of Zinj.

It is an African adventure for very different reasons. Peter is the guardian of Amy, a remarkable gorilla whom he has taught sign language, and now he wants to return her to the wild.

Karen has been sent by the CEO of Travicom, R. B. Travis, played by Joe Don Baker, to retrieve rare diamonds needed for new communications technology. They are accompanied by their guide Monroe Kelly, played by Ernie Hudson (Ghostbusters), Peter's colleague Richard, played by Grant Heslov (True Lies), and philanthropist Herkimer

Primatologist Peter Elliot (Dylan Walsh) is the guardian of a remarkable gorilla he decides must be returned to her jungle home in Congo.

Homolka, played by Tim Curry (Home Alone II).

Suspense and adventure mount quickly as the expedition nears the vicinity of Amy's birthplace and the Lost City of Zinj. They are shocked to discover that in the Congo, they are the endangered species.

Congo is directed by Frank Marshall (Alive). The movie has a slew of electronically controlled creatures devised by F/X wizard Winston (Jurassic Park, Terminator 2) and was shot on location in Africa, with its famous live volcano backdrop. This movie holds no comparison to the wonderful and gentle Jurassic Park. The plot is the acting strained and the production is mediocre. Yet, it will appeal to masses and make for a good suspense adventure movie experience.

Nugent's latest filled with traditional characteristics, new perspectives

Cpl. Lance M. Bacon
Globe staff

The birth of a white buffalo on the American plains created a pilgrimage of thousands of Native Americans, all of whom looked to the heavens in thanks.

The rare animal is a messenger from the gods — a prophetic sign of goodness that is to come.

That buffalo was thought to be the first of its kind in more than 100 years, but another roamed the land long before. A Great White Buffalo.

Though dormant for many years, it awoke earlier this month with the release of "Spirit of the Wild," the first solo effort by Ted Nugent since his half-decade stint with Damn Yankees.

The entire album is typical Nugent as we have grown to love him, and non-typical all at once. It still has the trademark rhythm structures and out-of-nowhere guitars, but with a new perspective.

While his previous solo efforts had the fury and force of a hunter sighting in on an attacking bear, this one has the feel of the hunter sitting around the campfire later that night, remembering the day's encounter.

Both tell the same story, just from a different perspective.

But don't think the hunt is over. On the contrary, Nugent has unleashed his greatest attack on his prey with his latest release, and wants the world to know it.

Throughout the lyrics and liner notes, he clearly states his feelings on everything under the sun.

While proudly making a stance as "the official rock-and-roll gun owner-hunting representative of Rush Limbaugh and his EIB radio and TV network, and a National spokesman for D.A.R.E. law enforcement programs," he equally sends a message to the likes of gang bangers, the KKK, the NAACP, Janet Reno, Howard Stern, liberals, MTV, Courtney Love, rap, PeTA, anti-gunners, anti-hunters and Paul and Linda McCartney on one of the album's better cuts, "Kiss My Ass."

Even when listing the equipment the band uses, Nugent states he "uses whatever he damn well pleases."

Who can argue with that? So what do all of these words have to do with the album? Everything — their power and essence are the foundation not only of Uncle Ted, but of rock 'n' roll as a whole. For those of you caught up in your bandwagons and peer pressure, let me explain; the music is nothing more than amplified rhythms of the attitude. That's what it means to play from the heart.

Leaving behind his Damn Yankees bandmates, Nugent picked up Derek St. Holmes on vocals, Denny Carmassi on the skins and Michael Lutz on bass and keys.

I would have preferred to hear Nugent himself screaming the lead on all of the songs, but I'm still counting my blessings. "Thighraceous," and "Wrong Side of Town" open the album with a bit of surprise, as the Memphis blues meets the grit-and-grin of the Motor City Madman.

Interesting compilation, to say the least. "I Shoot Back," "Hot or Cold," and "Tooth, Fang and Claw" have the feel of Nugent from the 70s and early 80s, though at various speeds. And in true Nugent fashion, there is the epic "Fred Bear," which will soon be as much an anthem to hunters as "Country Boy Can Survive" is to southern folk.

Unfortunately, "Lovejacker," "Heart & Soul," and "Spirit of the Wild" will inevitably be condemned as Yankees leftovers.

Though they do have a different sound ("Lovejacker" sounds more like a Doobie Brothers leftover than a Damn Yankees), true fans of Nugent will know that he has always made similar songs, though he is best known for his high-wire, in-your-face tunes.

For top honors, I have to go with "Just Do It Like This." Though I like the new sound of the opening numbers, the Nugent of old comes through on the final cut. Made me feel like I was in an Milwaukee commercial — it don't get any better than this.

In closing, how better to summarize this album than with an excerpt from Nugent's liner notes:

"...Sometimes you spend your life building a house, some fool burns it down. BU ANYWAY! Then whack the f--- Drugs and alcohol are for poison. I crave and demand sens-stimuli on overdrive. Life with adventure is death..."

P.S. Does 'of the people, the people, for the people' ring a bell?

P.P.K. The left lane mine, thank you.

Long live the Great White Buffalo. Until next time keep your feet on the ground, and watch out for falling stars.

Tips For Great Photographs

If you're like most photographers, you probably own a camera, and you have a pile of photos that you'd like to hide. To help you get better pictures, Chuck... the Dean of the New York Institute of Photography... these three suggestions:

1. Decide what you want to be your subject. Is it the Statue of Liberty, or is it Junior standing in the yard? Decide before you start shooting. Make your subject big. Fill the frame from top to bottom. If it's a moving subject, move closer. Try to get the subject's eye. Don't just work, move closer. Keep it simple. When you're in the viewfinder, really look at the subject. Don't see anything distracting in the background. Don't let it disappear. Do we have any trash can next to Junior? Do you have to do it now or never?

2. P.P.K. The left lane mine, thank you.

3. Long live the Great White Buffalo.

Until next time keep your feet on the ground, and watch out for falling stars.

NAPS—California swallows return each year to the same nesting sites, but some Massachusetts swallows are returning after a longer absence to wetlands that have been abandoned. The entrance to the nesting platforms, re-called homesteads for osprey nests.

To attract the ospreys, biologists have erected nesting platforms made of Wolm pressure-treated wood. The platforms give the fish-eating birds a view of surrounding wetlands. Hundreds of platforms have been installed in New England. They have succeeded in attracting the birds back to their habitat. The present treatment—the same used for lumber and landscaping—enables the wood to resist attack by termites, providing a nesting site for ospreys.

As with walkways over swamps and boardwalks over marshes, these platforms are a product of nature being used for the benefit of man.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Stop Shower Shock
 (NAPS)—It can be a real shock. You're standing in the shower, with the water at just the right temperature, when all of a sudden, a toilet is flushed or the dishwasher is activated somewhere in the house and you get a blast of hot or cold water.

This is not only distressing, it can even be dangerous, especially for the very young or very old.

It's caused by an imbalance in the water pressure in the house. Fortunately, it can be cured by pressure-balanced valves. Patented single-handle Moentrol and Posi-Temp pressure-balancing shower valves from Moen can control the water pressure keeping the water temperature within plus or minus 2°F regardless of what other appliances are on, so you get just the water you want.

Your local plumbing professional can easily install these shower valves which are available in a variety of attractive styles in chrome, polished brass or glacier white finishes. They are also available at local home centers and hardware stores.

ALWAYS GET THROUGH. NEVER GET OVERCHARGED.

You may not be able to control where the military takes you. But you can control how you get back. Instead of letting some unknown phone company overcharge you, know the code.
