CONTENTS

FEATURES

S&W's Massive M&P by Gary M. Brown Tailored to a tactical need, S&W's big police 41 missed the boat on police budgets	5
Walkin' and Eatin' and Huntin' by Howard McCord A college professor takes his TEC-9 squirrel hunting and has other fun, too	8
All Those Other 30-30s by John Malloy Amazing how many non-lever-action 30-30s there have been, and Malloy tells all	13
The Joys of the Nostalgic Hunt by Robert J. Robel Eventually, Robel says, the nostalgia outweighs all else, and here he tells about it	24
Darra Is Still There...And Still Makes Guns by Ray Rose The legendary gun-building town near Khyber Pass is doing well, letting tourists shoot rockets	30
The First Practical British Hammerless by Jack Bartlett Murcott was the name and quick off the mark was the game; some of the guns are still shooting	33
Ashley Haines: An Appreciation by Jim Foral They had gun writers ninety years ago, and this one nearly designed the job for the rest	38
From Tommy Gun to Grease Gun by Konrad F. Schreier, Jr. Most U.S. submachine gun history was over in 30 years, but the choppers are still shooting in some places ...	52
A New Look at the Brush Gun Mystique by Don Zutz Long, with forward balance, is ideal in a shotgun; scopes and high velocity are best in the rifle role	60
Boutique Cartridges Are Here by Holt Bodinson Put your own name in the headstamp? Sure can, and easy	65
Early Auto Pistol Cartridges by John Malloy Most of the first ones made the grade, and they're still with us, which makes interesting history	72
Joseph Szecsei's Fabulous Repeating Doubles by Holt Bodinson This you have to see—bolt-action double rifles, real ones, right here	93
A Modern Trail Gun by C.E. Harris Harris likes the 32 H&R Magnum outdoors and happily shoots his in a Ruger Single-Six	97
Sitting in Charlie's Chair by Sidney DuBrock The idea of a proof house is one thing here, and quite another in England and on the Continent	102
Johnny Reb & His Guns by Edward R. Crews Johnny started with none; at Lee's surrender, his men were all armed, carrying 75 rounds each	114
The 22 Rifles of World War II by Konrad F. Schreier, Jr. Everybody shot them—cadets, basic trainees, even artillery students. And a lot are still around	124
Make Noise to Kill Deer by Francis E. Sell The old hand tells how to move in the woods when it's too noisy to move in the woods	129
A $600 Scope on a $200 Rifle? by Rob Lucas It's upside-down thinking, but sound, cheap rifles can hit targets big-ticket scopes can see	132
Elmer Keith—The Man and His Books by Gene Brown The late Elmer Keith would have enjoyed watching the prices of his books soar above the rest	138
Poor Man's Deer Rifle by Len McDougall It's the SKS, of course, that is China's gift to practical deer hunters all across the 48 states	144
Shooting The Arisaka Match Rifle by John Malloy Trapped into shooting a WWII relic in public, Malloy discovered he wasn't too badly handicapped	161
Frontier Justice by Joan Wenner, J.D. Little tidbits from the past reveal making laws about guns started some time ago	175
Handguns and the Physically Challenged by W.E. Sprague There are gun-handling tricks that can serve the most unlikely shooters-to-be	177
Roving with Kephart by John Ross An early gun writer, Kephart gave us the Smoky Mountain National Park and some good thinking	182
Cartridge Cases on the Trail by Sam Fadala When he sees 'em, he picks 'em up—and almost always learns something	186
Use a Big Rifle by Ray Ordorica He means big , and he practices his preaching—a 470 on caribou, for instance	193
Custom Guns Is the trend toward diversity, again?	204
Coming to Terms with a 25-20 by Francis Sell For woodsmen of experience, lever guns in 25-20 have really special uses	208
Art of the Engraver Some are restrained; a lot are gaudy	211
