

Elektron Data Platform: Elektron Real-Time in the Cloud

Thomson Reuters Elektron Real-Time in the Cloud is a new way to deliver real-time data to server based applications in both the cloud and customer sites.

A highly efficient solution

Thomson Reuters is now delivering its full range of real-time data via APIs in the cloud. This provides you with consolidated access to a comprehensive breadth and depth of real time content. Coming soon, you'll also benefit from access to time series and reference data as well as analytics across a diverse range of asset classes and geographies.

A suite of flexible delivery options enables this content to address your workflow requirements whether you're a buy-side or sell-side trading firm. Our common extensible data model ensures you have straightforward on-boarding and integration into downstream applications.

The Elektron Data Platform Real-Time Cloud APIs delivery option provides you with cost efficient access to our global real time exchange, OTC and contributed data, as well as news content, all accessible in the cloud, with no requirement to deploy infrastructure on site. Facilitating data consumption of up to 50,000 instruments, this solution can directly power up to three client applications.

Content Benefits:

- Always have the data you need, with access to over 70m instruments, including unique and exclusive data sets.
- Easily discoverable and searchable data
- Simple data integration

Cloud-Delivery Benefits:

- Reduced operational cost and complexity
- Faster on-boarding time frames
- Consume data with any provider, with our cloud-agnostic delivery
- Best in class service and support with system monitoring and access to content and technical experts
