Everyone wants to save as much money as possible. It's a basic human trait. So, both buyers and sellers of real estate may get the idea that they can save by buying or selling property direct, without the services of a real estate agent. They want to avoid paying a commission.

That can be a big mistake. You'd expect us to take this position because we live on commissions. But, check with the big land investors. They know that in face-to-face deals between buyer and seller something may be said that makes one party so angry that he becomes unreasonable and the deal falls through. Experienced buyers insist on a go-between and usually do not meet the other party until after the deal is complete.

As professional agents, we can save you far more than our commission by helping you avoid costly mistakes and appointments. Let us explain how we do this. Can we "Talk It Over?"

Early Runs Send Trojans To State

The Wakefield High baseball team came into Wayne Tuesday to avenge two earlier losses to the Blue Devils, and they gained their revenge with a 7-3 victory in district finals.

A balanced hitting attack and good pitching of Rick Guy played an important role in the more run with a single but the threat soon ended with Wayne trailing 4-3. That was the closest the Blue Devils got as they were retired three up-three down in the final two innings.

Rick Guy led Wayne's first three batters, and the Trojans added to their lead as Scott Hallstrom and Larry Soderberg scored in the second inning. Tom Preston got credit for the two RBI.

Tom Ginn and Al Nissen both singled in the second and were sacrificed by Kevin Murray but the Blue Devil threat was ended there.

Wakefield scored one more run in the third as Doug Storz led off with a single, stole second base and came home on a single by Brad Jones. Wayne was held scoreless again in the third inning by good defense.

Things changed in the fourth when Wakefield failed to score and Wayne got on the score board with one run. Two Wakefield errors gave Wayne an opening but only Tom Ginn managed to score when the Blue Devils failed to get the hits they needed. Pinch hitter Jerry Goeen singled in the lone run.

The fifth inning belonged to Wayne and it looked like they were going to come back to win as Jeff Zeiss and Dean Carroll reached base and Dan Mitchell knocked in Zeiss with a single. Kevin Murray batted in one

Five from Wayne In Special Olympics

Five TMR students at the Wayne Middle School will attend the Nebraska Special Olympics Friday and Saturday at Creighton University.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sitzman of Wayne; Mar Faye Marotz daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Marotz of Winside; Tam Hartmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hartmann of Winside; Rick Kenny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Kenny of Carroll; and Troy Volvlier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Volvlier of Carroll; will compete in various track and field events.

Sponsors of the students are Mrs. Gertrude Vahlkamp of Winside and Mrs. Reah Sitzman of Wayne. The group attended the Fremont Jaycees Handicapped Children's Track and Field Day Saturday.

Smoked haddock is known as Finnan haddock, because it was first smoked in the Scottish village of Findon.

Allen Boy To State

Richard Stewart of Allen High School qualified for the state two mile run. Stewart placed second in districts held at Wayne State College Tuesday with a time of 10:36 in the 3200 meter run.

He will compete in the two mile run Friday at Omaha Burke High School at 4:30 p.m. His time of 10:36 was his fastest time of the season.

Hefti Wins Pickup Pull

In his first pickup pull of the season, Roger Hefti of Wayne won the 6000 pound modified class and the 7000 pound class in Hinton, Iowa.

Hefti took the two championships driving a 1964 Chevrolet. Craig Relitz of Emerson, who is in his first year of competition, tried out his pickup also, but didn't place.

The next tournament will be at Corning, Iowa in three weeks.

THIRD OUT and Dave Schwartz and Dean Carroll head back to the dugout. Wakefield won the game 7-3 and qualified for state competition Tuesday. Game time will be at 6 p.m. against an unannounced team.

Hascall's Highlights

THE WAYNE BLUE DEVILS certainly have nothing to be ashamed of after their loss to Wakefield Tuesday. They had an excellent season finishing up 11-3 on the year.

With only three seniors on the team, they are a young ball club and will be back next year with a good team. Kevin Murray, Vic Sharpe, and Steve Bodenstedt all saw their last action in Blue Devil uniforms, Tuesday.

The team also showed fine sportsmanship after their disappointing loss. Much of the credit for the winning season has to go to an outstanding coach, Mike Mallette, who applied good strategy throughout the year.

THE WAKEFIELD TROJANS will represent the area in the first round action of the state baseball tournament at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, in Ralston. The Trojans played a good game in the district finals beating Wayne 7-3.

They are a good solid ball club and I think they'll show their ability in the tournament. Wakefield was supposed to be in a rebuilding year with only four seniors on the squad, but finished with an 11-2 record — not bad for a rebuilding team.

Wakefield has the ability and confidence to beat any team at state, and if they can just play good defensive ball like they have most of the season, they will be tough to stop.

I WAS PLEASED TO HEAR that some Wayne students will be participating in the Special Olympics at Creighton University tomorrow and Saturday. These students will have the chance to exhibit their skills in a tournament that is well worthwhile.

I'd like to thank Mrs. Gertrude Vahlkamp for showing her interest in these children and for taking the time to sponsor them.

SYDNEY MOSLEY not only placed first in the state class B long jump but also ranks third in all classes behind only two class A girls. The top performance goes to Kellin, of Scottsbluff with a mark of 19 1/2'. The second longest jump was by Ginderstrove, of Lincoln Southeast at 18 1/2'. Mosley is third at 18 4/2'.

THE WASHINGTON BULLETS are preparing for NBA championship play, after beating Atlanta, San Antonio, and Philadelphia in previous playoff rounds. The Bullets had only a mediocre season but are playing excellent team basketball now.

There's lots of talk about the young players in the NBA but what about the older players? Washington's top gun during the playoffs is Elvin Hayes. Also, leading the team are Wes Unseld and Bob Dandridge. Those three aren't exactly spring chickens.

Washington's opponent will be the winner of the Seattle-Denver series. Seattle has a 3-2 lead not including a game scheduled for last night. Seattle should be able to win at home and win the series.

I've been a Bullet fan for many years and would like to see them win it all this year. The last time they made finals was four years ago and they got beat in four straight games against Golden State. If Washington can win in Seattle (a difficult task) look out.

It's Mosley Again

For the second consecutive year, Sydney Mosley won the State Class B girls' long jump championship in North Platte, Saturday. The 18 year-old Wayne High senior won with a leap of 18-4/2 — six inches ahead of her nearest competitor.

Miss Mosley said it felt great to win two years in a row and said she's glad it's all over. She said she felt the pressure to do well but wasn't too worried. "I practiced a lot on my own," she said.

The state champion explained she began long jumping as a freshman, and placed fourth in state that year. Then as a sophomore she qualified for state but sprained her ankle in a race.

Miss Mosley said that last year she placed first in every meet and people expected her to do the same this year. She met expectations.

She plans to major in pre-forestry at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and try out the basketball team. Wayne State and UNO also showed interest in her track and basketball abilities before she decided to enroll at UNL.

The three other Wayne High girls competing in state did not place. They are Lynn Surber, mile; Lisa Nuss, high jump; Lesa Barclay, shot put.

Council Discusses Programs

The Community Council Monday discussed contributions to children and the importance of the slow learning disabilities (SLD) program in the Wayne schools.

The council compared the achievements of students in the Elementary, Middle, and High schools with those of the last seven years and stated that Wayne is substantially above the national average in achievement test scores.

It was brought to the council's attention by a mother that without the SLD program one student would not be able to learn well enough to make it through school and with the help of special teachers who care, that student is now losing his frustrations and is mastering the learning process.

The council also discussed future plans and programs. Florence Schmerler, evaluator and consultant for the program, said that no where in the country do they make accommodations like they do in Wayne, and that it is an exceptional program.

Sharon Corbill and Kay Cattle were recognized for their dedication in getting LB 889 into law. The law provides funding for the education of pre school children with special needs from the date of diagnosis.

Also recognized were retiring teachers Beverly Merriman, and Orvella Blomenkamp, and Dr. Francis Haun on completion of his doctorate. Mary deFreese, Marcella Droscher, Dick Mettler, Vi Hartman, and Angie Denesia were all recognized by vice-chairman Gary Vopalensky as chairmen of the subcommittees.

Florence Schmerler was recognized for her services, and special recognition was given to Dorothy Ley, outgoing chairman, for her contributions to the council.

New officers are Becky Keidel, chairmen; Gary Vopalensky, vice-chairman; and Kay Cattle, secretary.

And Out of the Past...

Wayne Seniors Examine the Contents of the Capsule... Lots of Laughs, Many Memories

By CHUCK BARNES

It was a moment of expectation as Wayne High seniors gathered in the gym Monday to look over the contents of a time capsule buried five years ago this month when they were seventh graders.

The reaction was mixed. Mostly, it was embarrassed smiles with expressions of "Oh, my God, not!" Others, however, seemed to drift back into the past and relive those days when life seemed to be a bowl of cherries.

They are now more aware of the responsibilities facing them as they take another major step in life as they will be graduated from high school in commencement exercises Sunday.

All-in-all it was a fun-time for the seniors as they looked over portfolios of seventh grade information and ideas which they had placed in the capsule. Peter Manes, for example, had placed a cookie from the school lunch in the capsule with this notation: "If this cookie is no good, let the following people eat it." A list followed.

A 1973 copy of "Time" magazine heralded the start of Watergate. The World-Herald headlined the ending of the Wounded Knee incident. The worst flood on the Mississippi River was detailed. Blue jeans became the number one fad. And the late Sen. Terry Carpenter was as controversial as ever.

Probably the highlight of the "opening" was the playing of a tape made by the students in the seventh grade where they projected what they expected of themselves in the future.

Items in the capsule included a Reader's Digest, The Wayne Herald, The Sioux City Journal, the Omaha World-Herald, Wayne Middle School Yearbook, McCall's, Time, American Girl, Motor Trend, Nebraska Regional Telephone Directory, Pictures — individual classes and group planting capsule, individual student packets and a tape recording.

This is the fifth year a capsule has been buried by students of Dan Johnson's social studies classes in Middle School. The purpose is to start students to become aware of the future and what roles they might be playing in it.

The capsule also shows that over a period of years, people do change their ideas and philosophies of life. Donovan Doescher, for example, wanted to be a motorcycle stunt rider in the seventh grade. Now he has decided appliance repair or construction work would be more realistic occupations.

WAYNE HIGH seniors gather around a table loaded down with the contents of a "time capsule" which they buried five years ago as seventh graders. Dan Johnson (left), Middle School social studies instructor, started the unique feature five years ago.

GOING OVER memories are seniors (left to right) Shari Lawrence, Doug Pierson and Frank Mrsny. Each of the students made up a portfolio of their ideas of what they expected of the future. Time, they found, changes people and ideas.

STILL RIPPLING the waves of public sentiment is the aftermath of Watergate. This copy of "Time" magazine shows when the infamous segment of history was chronicled for consumption by curious and furious citizens.

VOICES FROM the past entertain the students as they listen to their own voices proclaiming what they expected to do when they were graduated from high school. There were many red faces as the voices cut through the din to expound the many great things to be accomplished during the five year period.

THE YEARBOOK probably was the most graphic example of the change through the five years since the "time capsule" was put into the ground. The maturity was evident but it wasn't that difficult to recognize the students. Checking their pictures are Susan Rethwisch (left) and Peter Manes.

COMPARING NOTES of their portfolios are these students as they examine the writings, prophecies, drawings and other important data included in the "time capsule."

I wish to Thank... everyone who supported me in the Primary Election for County Sheriff.
It was appreciated.

Fee Reminder For Park Users

Nebraskans planning an outing to one of their state parks or recreation areas for the Memorial Day weekend should remember the new vehicle entry fee in effect this year, reminds Game and Parks Commission Assistant Director Dale Bree.

"This will be the first major holiday weekend since the park entry fee went into effect, and it's likely that many potential users of our areas still do not have the required windshield stickers. I hope they get their stickers well in advance of the big weekend to avoid the possibility of any last-minute problems," Bree said.

The entry permit was established by the Legislature to help raise funds for Nebraska's state parks and recreation areas. Money collected from sales of the $7.50 windshield stickers will be spent on expanding and updating facilities of the state park system. The fee applies to state parks, recreation areas, and two 1-80 state wayside areas. All are marked with signs.

Conservation officers have been checking for compliance with the entry permit law, and although they have issued some citations, they have found considerable public approval of the entry permit concept. Some new developments in the park entry fee program have been brought about with the recent passage of LB 742, but the basic permit requirement has not been changed, according to Bree. "LB 742 established a duplicate permit for 51 for those owning more than one vehicle, and the printer should have them completed in time for distribution to permit vendors just before the Memorial Day weekend," Bree concluded.

The park entry permits are available from conservation officers, Game and Parks Commission offices, and some 1,200 hunting and fishing license vendors across the state.

Delay Opening Of Area Park

The opening of Niobrara State Park will not take place until at least June 2 because of repair work on spring flood damage, according to the Game and Parks Commission.

Emergency flood relief money from the Unifederal has become available, and bids for work on roads, bridges, dikes and culverts and silt removal will be opened soon. Thus, the earliest a contractor could begin work would be about May 22.

The magnitude of the damage to the parks road system required the services of a private contractor to accomplish repair. However, since the flood, park personnel have been working on other flood damage, including the cleaning of flooded cabins, clearing and repairing utility lines, and replacing flood-damaged flooring.

The Park's swimming pool was not affected by the flood and will be in operation this summer. The group camp facility will remain closed for the season, however, due to extensive damage.

Reservations for cabins are now being taken by the park superintendent.

Make Check For Errors

With credit cards having nearly replaced cash for many people, it's more important than ever to check for billing errors. Billing errors for credit card or charge accounts do happen, so you should also know how to resolve a billing dispute. When you think your bill is incorrect, the first thing to do is send the creditor a written notification. This will trigger the legal process for straightening the matter out. . . as established by the Fair Credit Billing Act. Many people will simply call the creditor for an explanation of their bill when something is wrong. This is fine, but it will not ensure your rights. When writing your creditor, here are some other points to keep in mind. Don't write on the bill itself. On a separate sheet of paper, list your name and account number. State that a billing error has occurred, the amount of money involved and what you think might be the reason for the error. The creditor must explain the amount in question or correct the error on the bill within 90 days after receiving this notification. Remember, you have the right to question and resolve credit billing errors. And you can do this without the risk of a bad credit rating or any other penalty. During the resolution of the billing dispute, the creditor cannot report you to a credit bureau. Nor can he in any way give you a bad credit rating for withholding payment on the amount in question. It pays to know your legal rights on billing errors and use them wisely.

The new industry. They are leasing it to Heritage Inc., according to an agreement announced at a ground-breaking ceremony in November, 1977.
The first house is nearly completed and will be located in Wayne. When the plant is in full production, it will turn out one modular home every five days.
Steve Guill, vice president and engineer for Heritage Homes Inc., said there are several different floor plans available, mostly three bedroom, single family homes. The homes are preassembled before going into production.
Floor plans available include ranch style, raised ranch style with drive-in garage, split level, and split entry. Certain modifications are available with each floor plan, officials stated.
Guill said the modulars are completed before they leave the plant. This not only includes the two-part construction but the painting, dry walls, kitchen and bathroom fixtures and carpeting.
Guill said Heritage does "everything but wash the windows."
The engineer said Heritage will deliver homes in a 150 mile radius of Wayne, including parts of South Dakota and Iowa.
There are presently 20 employees at Heritage. When in full production, there will be from 80 to 100 with a projection of 200 within a three year period.

mother of the year.
"She pointed out, however, the many activities her mother was involved in, outside of raising a family. They included being a Den Mother, a 4-H leader, active in church and others.
On hand at the luncheon was Mrs. Ervin Hagemann, Sr., last year's "Mother of the Year" who served as one of the judges.
She said the majority of the entries were from children ten years of age or younger. "I think we should try to keep this age group interested," she said.
"The first year of the program had the age group ranging from young adults to the small children. This year, the top age limit was 16. I think it might be well to limit next year's selection to those children ten years of age and younger."
However, she said no matter what the rules, the program should be carried on as it prompts a strong message of love, respect and admiration and there are no losers when a youngster thinks his or her mother is the "greatest."
Other judges were Dr. Lyle Skov, Mrs. Don (Sue) Larsen and Leigh Mueller.
The announcement of the 1978-79 "Mother of the Year" was made at a coffee Saturday morning.

Candidates pledge debates on issues

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — The two candidates for governor in the November general election pledged immediately after they won nomination in the primary election that they will debate each other in the upcoming campaign.

With strong support from the 1st Congressional District he has served for the last eight years, Charles Thone of Lincoln came out on top in a five-man field to win the GOP primary.

LI. Gov. Gerald Whelan, who had only taken office when the Democratic gubernatorial nod.

Thone said he will have debates, joint appearances and discussions with Whelan in bringing the issues before the voters. Whelan said he anticipates a strong Republican attack on the Exon-Whelan record and that he looks forward to defending it.

Because two-term Gov. J. James Exon had to step out of the governor's office, Republicans believe they have a good chance to get their nominee elected this fall.

The GOP has won only one of the last seven gubernatorial elections with their most recent victory in 1965.

Exon was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, and his November opponent, Don Shasteen, longtime aide to retiring Sen. Carl Curtis, easily won over Lenor Etchison of Papillion in the Republican primary.

Exon and Shasteen have also agreed to at least one joint appearance in the fall campaign.

There weren't any big surprises in the primary election outcome, although some political observers termed Douglas Beretuer's win over Loran Schmit in the 1st Congressional District GOP race as a mild upset.

Beretuer was helped by strong support in Lancaster County in fashioning his victory. He will oppose Hess Dyas of Lincoln in the fall election. Dyas won handily in a field of three Democratic candidates in the primary.

Rep. Virginia Smith, a Republican, and Marilyn Fowler of Lexington, a Democrat, were unopposed in the primary contest for nomination in the 3rd Congressional District.

In another widely watched race, State Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln edged State Sen. Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

State Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield was unopposed in the lieutenant governor's race on the Democratic ticket.

The turnout for the primary was light, numbering about 330,000.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann, the state's chief election officer, had predicted a small vote.

A turn to good farming weather after a long, cool and rainy spell—also probably contributed to the less than hoped for turnout.

In the race for the state's top four constitutional offices, incumbent Republicans were unopposed for three of the nominations. They were Attorney General Paul Douglas, State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson and Secretary of State Allen Beermann. Another Republican, Frank Marsh won his party's nomination for state treasurer.

Democrats nominated were Clarence Davis, Jr. for secretary of state; Darl Naumann for state auditor; E.J. McBride for treasurer, and David John Thomas for attorney general.

Exon Issues Challenge

Gov. J. James Exon has issued a friendly challenge to Iowa Governor Robert Ray with a free dinner at stake.

Exon is betting that Nebraska will have a larger reduction than Iowa in traffic fatalities this year.

Last year Iowa ranked first nationally in reducing road deaths and Nebraska was second.

In a letter to Ray, Exon congratulated him for Iowa's achievement.

"On behalf of all our safety groups and volunteers, I offer a friendly challenge to you as a safety leader in Iowa on who will lead in 1978," Nebraska's governor said.

At the time the challenge was offered, Nebraska had recorded 21 fewer traffic fatalities this year than during the corresponding period a year earlier.

"When we finish ahead of you in 1978, our family will travel to Iowa to enjoy a combination beef, pork, turkey and chicken dinner at your expense," Exon told Ray.

"In the unlikely situation that you should prevail for a second year in a row, we would expect you and your family to come to Nebraska so that we could reciprocate with even the better grade of Nebraska beef, pork, turkey and chicken," he said.

Whatever the outcome, Exon said, "it's a friendly contest where everyone wins in the efforts of highway safety."

Sunday Bingo Allowed

This year's Legislature enacted legislation tightening controls over bingo operations but removing restrictions against bingo playing on Sundays.

The new law provides stricter rules on who can conduct bingo games and how they should be run.

The current gambling statute, which will be replaced later in the year by the one recently approved by the Legislature, forbids bingo for money and prizes on Sundays.

There was very little debate on the Sunday issue while the new legislation passed through all stages of the legislative process.

Tax Rates Unchanged

As expected, the State Board of Equalization and Assessment has left unchanged the sales tax, tax rate of 3 percent and the income tax rate of 16 percent.

Only Secretary of State Allen Beermann voted against retention of the status quo. Gov. J. James Exon, State Tax Commissioner William Peters, State Treasurer Frank Marsh and State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson voted for continuation of the current rates.

Beermann thought the income tax should have been boosted to 17 percent.

"The establishment of higher tax rates is not a normal, routine or pleasant function of a candidate seeking votes," said Beermann, who was on the primary election ballot for renomination on the Republican ticket.

But he said he believes the Department of Revenue's prediction on future revenues won't bring in enough money by the end of the year. Beermann said re-appropriations as well as appropriations made by the Legislature this year, should have been taken into consideration when tax rates were determined.

Exon and Peters stuck by their earlier opinion that no increase was required. "The facts of the matter are that the projections, to date by the Department of Revenue are right on target," the governor said.

Siding with Beermann was Bill Harris, a Lincoln businessman who has taken it upon himself to be an unofficial watchdog of state spending. He said the state would encounter cash flow problems unless both the sales and income taxes were increased. Harris predicted sales and income tax receipts won't come up to the Revenue Department's forecast.

Exon disagreed sharply with the Harris opinion. The governor said the state is in sound financial condition with a healthy surplus in the treasury.

It would be a disservice to the taxpayers to pile up millions of dollars in the treasury because that would tempt future legislatures to spend the money, he said.

A report prepared for the board projected general fund tax receipts for 1978-79 at $554.4 million compared to $507.7 for the current fiscal year, which included revenue from higher tax rates for a six-month period.

Last June the sales and income rates were increased to 3.5 and 18 percent, respectively, to cover the funding of the additional $20 million in state aid to schools approved by the 1977 Legislature. A petition drive resulted in suspension of the extra state aid statute, pending a vote in November's general election.

"NEED A FIX, KIDS...?"

You can't talk inflation down

President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON — You have trouble saving, and may be dipping into savings to pay routine bills. A raise — if you're lucky enough to get one — doesn't seem to do much good. Most of the luxuries have been cut out of the budget, and still it's difficult making ends meet. Those are the effects inflation is having on many consumers.

For the businessman, inflation also causes problems: His costs — raw materials, rent, credit, wages, utilities, insurance, fees, taxes, etc. — keep on going up. But raising prices to cover the increased expenses is difficult, because customers resist higher prices. If prices cannot rise, it is difficult to maintain product quality. He treads a thin line between survival and bankruptcy.

It is unrealistic to expect people in either of these positions to be very receptive to a call to "sacrifice" to end inflation. Rising wages and prices in the private sector are largely symptoms of inflation, not causes.

The cause of inflation is not difficult to understand. When the federal government spends more money than it takes in, in a high employment economy, the difference must be made up somehow. One way to make it up is to raise taxes openly, another way is to impose the hidden tax of inflation, by creating new money faster than the economy can create new goods and services.

Since voters are fed up with tax increases, the politicians are making up the difference with the inflation, tax, and hoping no one will be smart enough to hold them responsible for it.

And in a sense, the politicians are only partly responsible. We all collectively — tend to want more from the government than we are willing to pay for. Our representatives should make the tough decisions on who gets what from the money available. But it's politically more expedient to try to give everybody what he wants and let inflation take care of the overdraft.

As long as the federal government is running record deficits, inflation, is not going to be controlled by anything business or labor can do. And lawmaking from the director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, or from the President himself, deserves to be recognized for what it is: a political cop out.

For the record, the deficit for fiscal (budget) year 1977 was $45 billion. It will probably reach $53 billion for fiscal 1978. And the projection for 1979 is $60 billion.

If and when the government does its part by reducing spending, there are some things we can all do to help.

1. Stop pressing our representatives for costly government programs. Inflation removes from the left pocket what the government puts into the right.
2. Limit average wage increases to average increases in productivity. Or better yet, increase productivity to match our expectations for wage increases.
3. Shop carefully. Competitive pressure is a strong weapon against rising prices.
4. Demand that the benefits from government regulation at least match the cost of regulation. Perfection is literally priceless...we just don't have the money to buy it.

5. Adjust tax policy to reward saving and investment.

Conquering inflation does not require resigning ourselves to a lower standard of living. But it does require that we discover the source of a rising standard of living: Investment in better tools for workers which will improve productivity, provide new and better jobs, and provide higher increases for all Americans.

Government "aid" isn't worth the paper it's written on.

OBSERVATIONS

Your help is needed

The Wayne Hospital Foundation and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce have joined forces to attract medical doctors to the Wayne area and they are asking for your help.

The two groups will continue to do the detail work necessary to interest doctors to locate their practices in Wayne. While the major part of the program requires time and effort, it also demands some financing. And that is where the residents of the Wayneland area can lend a hand.

Those wishing to give financial assistance to the program can leave or mail their checks to Joan Lage, First National Bank, Wayne, treasurer of the Wayne Hospital Foundation.

Attracting doctors to more or less rural areas is not unlike the competition is keen throughout the Midwest and the nation, for that matter. Young doctors looking for a place to practice have many opportunities. Those communities who show the most interest, offer the best in services and facilities and have that "something special" are going to receive the most consideration by the doctors.

We believe Wayne measures up in all instances and this can be evidenced by the fact that three prospective doctors who have visited Wayne have indicated they want to come back for a second look. This in itself, is encouraging.

We give our full support to the program and we urge others to do likewise. We have competent doctors in Wayne and they are providing excellent medical care for the area. But there is just so much they can do and they need help.

To say attracting doctors to rural areas such as Wayne would be a major understatement. Going to the doctor is not as simple as one might like to believe. Though the human body and its manifestations of illness and disease may not have changed fundamentally over the last century, the complex nature of our health care system demands that one learn to understand the choices it offers.

Unfortunately, for many rural Nebraskans choices are limited. Community-based health services are often non-existent or very limited. Though 40 percent of the state's population resides in 81 rural counties (counties with populations under 25,000) only 17 percent of the physicians are located in Wayne and the other 80 rural counties.

Of the more than 650 towns and cities in Nebraska, only 88 have hospitals, 152 have nursing homes. Residents of the other 500-plus communities must cope with traveling out of the local and comfortable territory to facilities and health care professionals who are not known on a day-to-day basis as being part of their community. This means fewer and less varied opportunities to build trust.

In terms of facilities, it is unlikely this situation will change. However, the human service factor sector can bear expansion. There is room for more sensitive individuals with health care knowledge under any title (physicians, physicians' assistants, home health care workers, nurses, aides, etc.). The problem seems to be two-fold.

Two Nebraska organizations are addressing the physician shortage problems. The Rural Health Manpower Commission and the University of Nebraska Medical Center Rural Health Task Force have made recommendations to the Medical Center that efforts be made to recruit more medical students from rural areas to expand the Department of Family Practice, to increase contacts between rural practitioners and the Medical School.

LB 884, a student loan bill receiving favorable response in the legislature to date, has been formulated to provide incentive for medical students who agree to practice in rural Nebraska communities. Loan forgiveness would be granted to those who actually practice there and a penalty of $1,000 assessed to those who do not practice there.

Beyond access are the questions of quality and recognitions for special needs. One dimension that warrants special mention is the higher than average percentage of elderly in rural communities. Some counties have up to 20 percent of their population over the age of 65, far higher than the U.S. average of 10 percent. Nebraska ranks 4th in the nation in this comparison.

This indicates an area of many potential service needs: from transportation, home health or nursing home care, chore services, friendly visitors, to physician's services. But it is also an area requiring much more sensitivity than programmed responses can be built into their "fast" and heavily red-taped services. Some communities already naturally help out their elderly citizens by giving them rides to the store, church, doctor, or social events, enabling them to continue their sense of involvement and ability to care for themselves.

Rural people have had to evolve with a strict independence from outside services. This could make it hard to maintain respect between old timers and health care workers. For example, health care workers coming into a community with their ideas of the necessities of modern health. Adjustment to the physical process of aging is a hard job that some people want to do in their own way, while others want help. Sensitivity to those needs must come from more sources than just health care workers.

But it would be ideal if health care knowledge and sensitivity could come in one individual, and in funded programs as well.

We certainly will not turn down a doctor wanting to practice in Wayne (just because he comes from a metro area). However, familiarity with the rural condition may be a key quality for all health care professionals bringing their expertise to rural Nebraska. They still may have to compete with some of the old home remedies.

These are a few of the needs of rural Nebraska which must be met by providing special training for those who want to practice in rural areas. There is no doubt licensed physicians have the knowledge and ability to cope with health care problems in rural Nebraska. But perhaps they need a course or two to brush up on their bedside manner for rural Nebraska — Chuck Barnes

Candidacy Petitions Available for New Board

Nebraska Agriculture Director Roger Sandman has announced that candidacy petitions for appointment to the Corn Development, Utilization and Marketing Board are now available from his office. Sandman said the filing deadline for the petitions would be June 9.

The Corn Board was created with the passage of the Corn Resources Act during the last session of the Nebraska Unicameral. The act calls for the assessment of a one-tenth cent per bushel check-off fee on all corn sold through commercial channels. The funds are to be used for corn market development, research promotion and education.

The check-off funds collected will be administered by the Corn Board. To be eligible for appointment to the board, an individual must be a citizen of Nebraska, be at least 21, have been engaged in corn production for at least five years, and derive a substantial portion of their income from corn production. A candidacy petition must be filed with the Department of Agriculture for an individual to be eligible for appointment. The petition must carry the signature of 50 corn producers.

To request a candidacy petition, an individual may write to Governor J. James Exon, c/o Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 94912, Lincoln, NE 68509. Petitions will also be available from county extension offices and local ASCS offices.

FERTILIZER FOR SOYBEANS

George Rehm, District Extension Agronomist, passes this information on. "Fertilizer needs for soybeans in northeast Nebraska are not complicated. Phosphate is the major nutrient that needs to be added in a fertilizer program. The amount of phosphate needed varies with soil levels of the... Fertilizers with a very low level of phosphorus (0 to 5 ppm) a rate of 40 pounds P2O5 (phosphate) per acre is suggested. The rate can be reduced to 20 pounds P2O5 per acre for soils having a low level of phosphorus (6 to 15 ppm). No phosphate fertilizer will be needed for soils having a higher level of phosphorus. The best method of application of phosphate is in a starter fertilizer.

CERTIFIED SEEDS

There has been a change in policy in regards to certification of small grain starting in 1978. The certified seed producer may sell his Registered class of small grain and millet seed in the bulk, with the seed retaining its classification. This Registered seed, when accompanied by a sterily filled out Bulk Sales Certificate, will be eligible for recertification. Note: Bulk seed will not be permitted for seed of a new variety in its first year after release. All seed of new varieties must be sold bagged and tagged. This should simplify the producing and selling of certified oats and barley seed. See-COUNTY AGENT, page 9

LEAFY SPURGE

Description: Leafy Spurge is a persistent deep-rooted perennial which reproduces by seeds and roots. The stems are eight to thirty-six inches tall and are stiff and woody at maturity. The main stem may be surrounded by eight to ten secondary stems giving a clumplike appearance. The bluish-green leaves are long and narrow with smooth or slightly wavy margins. The small flowers are borne on a short stalk above two large showy heart shaped bracts which are generally mistaken for flower petals.

Three seeds may be produced in each flower which literally explodes on maturity throwing the seeds as far as five feet. The seeds may remain viable for at least five years. Seeding plants generally do not flower the first year. Some roots may penetrate to depths of twelve feet. The reddish-brown roots produce a multitude of pink buds which are capable of producing new plants up to three feet away from the mother plant. Sections of roots as short as 1/2 inch may give rise to new plants. All parts of the plant contain a milky sap which may cause severe irritation to human skin.

Control: In pastureland use one quart of 2,4-D plus one pint Banvel in early bud stage in spring or late fall. A spring treatment followed by a fall retreatment may be necessary with bad infestations. Leafy spurge in cropland can generally be eradicated by two years of continuous cultivation. The infested areas should be cultivated three to four inches deep every time the leafy spurge is three to four inches tall (maximum) or about every two to three weeks depending on growing conditions. Cultivation should continue from early spring to freeze-up in the fall. Care should be taken so that small pieces of roots are not carried to uninfested areas. Cultivation should be done on hot days whenever possible as roots will be killed if exposed to temperatures of 86 degrees Fahrenheit or more for several hours.

WEED CONTROL AROUND TREES

Simazine, sold commercially as Princep, is one of the most widely used and readily available herbicides for weed control in shelterbelts and orchards. It should be applied at rates of 2½ to 5 pounds of Princep 80 W per acre. Use the lower rate on sandy soils and higher rates on heavier soils. The chemical should be applied to weed free seedbeds. A two foot band on each side of the row reduces chemical costs and risks from chemical injury. One to two ounces of Princep 80 W per 1,000 square feet is equivalent to 2½ to 5 pounds per acre. The label gives complete instructions on usage and lists woody plant species that are tolerant of Simazine.

SQUASH

Winter and summer squash could be started from seed today in the garden. Summer squash are soft shelled, quick growing and produced on bush-type plants. Winter squash are hard shelled, yellow to orange fleshed and produced on vine-type plants.

Types of summer squash include yellow crookneck and straightneck scallion bush type and Italian zucchini. Winter squash includes acorn, butternut, hubbard, buttercup and others.

Summer squash and bush-type winter squash can be planted in hills using a 3'x4' spacing. Vigorous, larger fruited, winter squash may need a 10'x10' hill spacing.
