

South Ecuador

18 Dec 2021– 1 Jan 2022

Introduction

After a long hiatus we finally made it out of Europe again, we had two weeks and chose South Ecuador for a nice mix of cool birds, easy travelling and nice lodges. It proved to be a terrific neotropical delight.

Itinerary

Day 1	Saturday 18 dec	Amsterdam – Guayaquil (via Madrid) – night at Guayaquil
Day 2	Sunday 19 dec	Manglares Churute, - drive to Buenaventura – night at Buenaventura
Day 3	Monday 20 dec	Buenaventura (morning around lodge, afternoon Jardin de Colibries) - night at Buenaventura
Day 4	Tuesday 21 dec	Buenaventura (Jardin de Colibries) – drive to Cerro de Arcos, night at Refugio de Arcos
Day 5	Wednesday 22 dec	Cerro de Arcos – drive to Vilcabamba – night at Vilcabamba
Day 6	Thursday 23 dec	Cerro Toledo – Tapichalaca – night at Tapichalaca
Day 7	Friday 24 dec	Tapichalaca (morning around lodge, afternoon towards Valladolid) - night at Tapichalaca
Day 8	Saturday 25 dec	Drive to Maycu (stop at Old Zamoá road) – afternoon Maycu – night at Yankuam lodge
Day 9	Sunday 26 dec	Maycu reserve – night at Yankuam lodge
Day 10	Monday 27 dec	Paquisha – afternoon Mi Paradise – night at Yantzaza
Day 11	Tuesday 28 dec	El Zarza – drive to Copalinga – night at Copalinga lodge
Day 12	Wednesday 29 dec	Copalinga – night at Copalinga lodge
Day 13	Thursday 30 dec	Copalinga – drive tot Acanama – Cerro Acanama – night at Saraguro
Day 14	Friday 31 dec	Cerro Acanama – drive to Yunguilla – drive to Cuenca/Cajas – night at Cajas NP
Day 15	Saturday 1 jan	Cajas NP, Corona del Oro rd, Guayaquil, 21.00 departure Guayaquil
Day 16	Sunday 2 jan	22.25 arrival Amsterdam (via Madrid)

We only had two weeks available which means we had to make some choices; we decided to skip Jorupe, Utuana and Ayampe in the dry SW, which are normally including in a three-week itinerary. With more time on your hands, other options that would be worth more exploring are e.g. Gualaceo-Limon Rd east of Cuenca for Masked Saltator or sites like: <https://ebird.org/hotspot/L10194883> (tips we got from Dusan Brinkhuizen). And furthermore, you could always spend more time at the lodges we visited, more time around Zarza, etc.

During the trip we focused on the area specialties and new species for us and did not focus on a maximum triplist. We have birded North Peru and N Ecuador before, we will mention species we searched for but did not see.

What would we do different in hindsight

Within the constraints of our trip we had a really good 2 weeks of birding. In hindsight flying back on a major national holiday wasn't ideal (car washes were all closed, and we double checked to make sure we could get a Covid-test in time). A bigger car would have been a bit more comfortable (especially for Arcos, Paquisha and Acanama). Bringing a tent to camp at Cerro Acanama, El Zarza would have been fun but not necessary (it is if you would spend more time around Zarza though).

Other birders

Ecotourism is still reeling from the Covid-hit, we met one other couple on different sites doing a similar itinerary around South Ecuador but overall, it was quiet. Let's get out there and go birding again!

Practicalities

Guiding

We travelled around by ourselves but went with the lodge-guides for the feeding of the Jocotoco Antpitta and Grey Tinamou. They knew their birds. There are lots of knowledgeable guides around in Ecuador to design a trip to your liking but it's very easy to travel around by yourself.

Literature

We brought Birds of Ecuador (Freile & Restall) and used Merlin and the Birds of Ecuador (Ridgely) apps on our phone. For sounds we downloaded a selection of sounds from Xeno-Canto.org but with the two apps this wasn't really necessary. In preparation and during the trip we relied on eBird and on tripreports found on www.cloudbirders.com especially those of Matheve 2018, Hendriks 2020 and a few reports by major tour companies.

Travelling

We flew with Iberia (Amsterdam – Madrid – Guayaquil) and rented a Chery Tiggo2 with Budget (through Rentalcars). Main reason to choose Budget were the opening times at the airport (most other rental agencies were closed when we landed). We did go through RentalCars because they offered unlimited mileage instead of the 100km a day through Budget. We chose a SUV-class (Suzuki Grand Vitara or similar) and got a Chery Tiggo2 which is a smallish underpowered SUV but with reasonable clearance. We made all roads without too much trouble, but a slightly bigger, more powerful (ideally 4WD) would have been more comfortable and safer probably. Especially in the rain en route to Cerro de Arcos (and the road to Paquisha).

Eating & Sleeping

We slept in the Jocotoco-lodges where available (2 nights at Buenaventura, 2 nights at Tapichalaca and 2 nights at Copalinga), all arranged up front through www.jocotoco.org/wb#/EN/Reservas. At Cerro de Arcos we slept at Refugio de Arcos (arranged upfront through refugioarcos.org - refugiodearcos@gmail.com), Yankuam lodge was arranged through yankuamlodge.com. The rest of our nights were spent at random hotels (Guayaquil, Vilcabamba, Yantzaza, Saraguro, Cuenca/Cajas NP).

Weather

We encountered all types of weather; dry sunny and windy and rain/mist. But it never really got in the way of birding. Only our full day at Copalinga there was heavy rain when we woke up that lasted until 10am, making that a less productive morning.

Health and safety

Driving was reasonably easy and safe; Ecuadorians don't like using their headlights though. We flew back on New Years Day and we had to find a site to get a rapid Covid test. There was some contradicting information about the opening times of the test location in the international departures hall and went by a location of Interlab (-2.1692,-79.8962) that is open 24/7 365 days of the year and used a drive-thru testing location.

Money

ATM's are widely found throughout and since we had paid the Jocotoco lodges and the car rental beforehand we didn't spent that much. Lunch/Dinner en route ranged between 5 – 20 dollars (for two people including drinks).

Costs

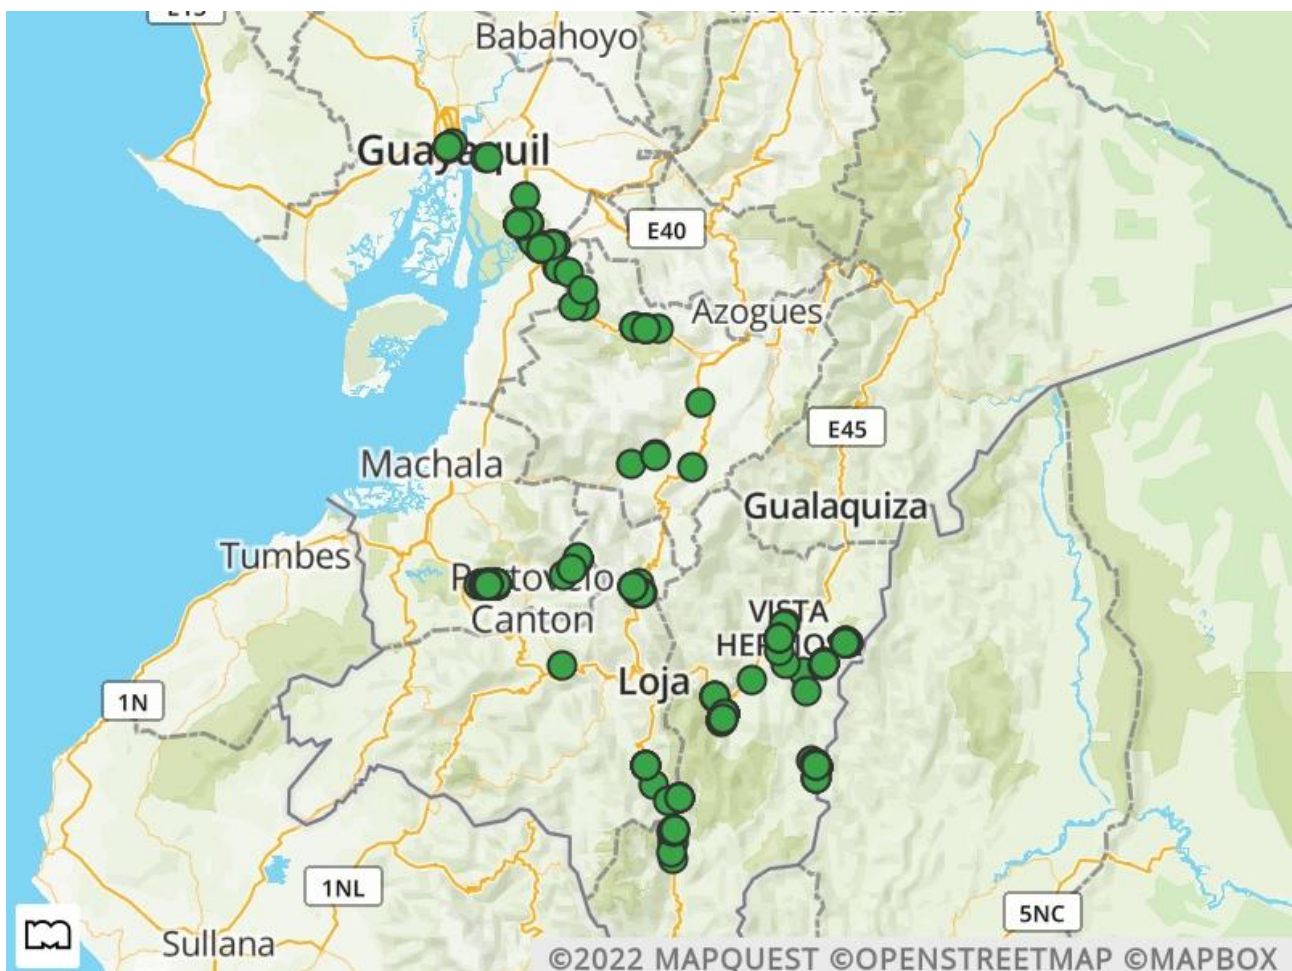

Flights: 1856 euro per person (expensive since this was during the Christmas break)

Rental car: 1540 euro for 2 weeks

Jocotoco lodges (6 nights, 2 people): 1080 dollar

Rest (hotels, food, gas etc): around 1000 dollar for 2 people

Visited Sites

We took a few GPS points of sites and specific birds, those are available here:

Manglares Churute

Logistics

With only one hour drive from Guayaquil, this is a logical first stop of the trip that directly offers a long list of possible species. Turnoff from the main road to the Ecological Reserve is at -2.41957, -79.6247 and then a right turn at -2.43276, -79.64825. A bit further south along the main road is another birding stop La Lagerta (turn-off and start birding at -2.5073, -79.58459).

Birding

We birded here between 06.00-11.30. We started at the HQ and walked along the Mangrove Board walk and along the main road. The board walk was very quiet and it turned out you mainly walk inside the mangrove forest without much view (and no luck with Rufous-necked Wood-rail). After 1,5h of roadside birding we went to Sendero Auladores (start at -2.42, -79.65009) where we walked the loop trail. Unfortunately, the forest trail was mosquito infested (this was the only time of the entire trip that there were so many mosquitos). We heard Pacific Royal Flycatcher along the stream at -2.416,-79.6494 but it didn't want to come in and we couldn't locate it. Driving out we found several Grey-cheeked Parakeets in the open trees around the houses. Our final stop was at La Lagerta, a dirt road along the river for some open country species including Crimson-breasted Finch at -2.4974,-79.5346.

Target birds

Sendero Auladores: Pacific Royal Flycatcher, Ecuadorian Trogon, Grey-and Gold warbler. La Lagerta: Crimson-breasted Finch, White-throated Crake. Large-billed Seed-finch was found in the general area, but since the species exact location is hidden eBird details will be not shared in the report.

Buenaventura

Logistics

The lodge is located along a dirt road which can be accessed from two sides. We accessed the lodge from the west side (turn-off at -3.6521, -79.7948) which was doable in our car (we never tried the other side – although others with bigger cars did). There are several nice cabins around a central restaurant that has a big veranda with excellent views on the hummingbird feeders. We really enjoyed stayed here since you are directly in the forest, but it is also possible to enter the reserve on a day visit.

Birding

3 areas:

Lodge-area: On our first afternoon we walked to the Umbrellabird displaying area; a side-trail on the right-hand side, about a 1km up the road from the lodge. The trail goes steeply down and there is an obvious sign when you have arrived in the right area (we saw 2 or 3 males booming before it got dark). The next morning we birded down the entrance road (more open habitat) which was very productive, seeing Grey-backed Hawk and finding a very responsive Ochraceous Attila at -3.6543, -79.7782. We found a Loja Tyrannulet but unfortunately only heard it (la couple of days later we made a stop on the Portovelo - Loja road where we easily saw it). Later that morning plus the second morning we walked up from the lodge (more closed forest). We found several Ochre-breasted Tanager, both times in a big flock.

Higher part of the reserve: Traditionally the higher part of the reserve is visited for El Oro Tapaculo. Since they have been becoming more difficult there and we planned on visiting the Corona del Oro road at the end of our trip we skipped this part of the reserve.

Jardin de Colibries: The entrance is at -3.6538,-79.7377 along the road towards Pinas. We hadn't realized the nest boxes for the El Oro Parakeet as well as the Jardin de colibries are part of the Jocotoco Reserve. So when we turned up there in the afternoon we expected a public dirt road going up but instead there was a big gate that was closed. We called the lodge and got permission to just park next to the gate and continue on foot. With a 4wd you can drive up, but the walk isn't very far and is quite nice for birding. But make sure you get the key at the lodge. The hummingbird-feeders in the hummingbird garden hadn't been filled. El Oro parakeet was very easily seen on both visits.

Target birds

Ochraceous Attila, Ochre-breasted Tanager, El Oro Parakeet, Long-wattled Umbrellabird, Grey-backed Hawk, Loja Tyrannulet

Cerro de Arcos

Logistics

Cerro de Arcos can be reached from two sides (Zaruma near Buenaventura) or from the Saraguro (east) side. Navigation through Zaruma was interesting with maps.me but once you get through it's easy. We drove in the rain which wasn't too bad on the first stretch where the road is very rocky but got a bit more tricky on the plateau: the last bit on the side-road (turn-off at -3.5687, -79.43649) to the site for the Hillstar and the Refugio was used by logging trucks (of non-native pines) which didn't improve road conditions but we made it (only just). The refugio (at -3.56318, -79.45624 <http://refugioarcos.org/>) is built and run by an Italian NGO and is a nice place to stay. Cost was very reasonable at 30$ for the night, and 12$ per person for both dinner and breakfast.

Birding

We arrived at 16.30 at the site and immediately walked to the forest patch known to be home of the Hillstars (-3.5668,-79.4585) and spent a good hour staring into the mist and rain without any Hillstar. The next morning we were outside at 05.30 under a clear sky to enjoy displaying Jameson's Snipes (-3.5632,-79.4563) which was amazing and after breakfast got back to the patch and saw the Hillstars within 5 minutes. In total we saw at least 3 males but no females. In the grassy part we easily found a Paramo Pipit (-3.5667,-79.4583).

Portovelo - Loja

We made a few birding stops along road 585 between Portovelo and Catamayo. The whole road is a good dirt road (although we had expected asphalt, apparently there is another/new road the north that has asphalt most of the way?). But that made the road relatively quiet and we easily found Loja Tyrannulet (-3.94507,-79.49563), White-vented 'Ecuadorian' Plumeteer (-3.92956, -79.50961, also another Loja Tyrannulet here) and a very cooperative Watkins Antpitta (-3.8440, -79.5715) in the middle of the day.

Vilcabamba

We stayed in Vilcabamba for the night. First we tried birding in the NE of the village at (-4.251674, -79.222689) but the road was closed off at this point and was a private area and we went to the trail starting to bird some scrub -4.266356, -79.226267. Best birds here were Elegant Crescentchest and the "loja" (Amazilia) Hummingbird. After dinner we went out for West Peruvian Screech owl in the direction of the river/Rumi Wilco Nature reserve, but it started to rain and we gave up.

Cerro Toledo

Logistics & birding

We drove here from early morning from Vilcabamba, turnoff at -4.36861, -79.17517. We arrived near the top with clear skies but soon clouds came rolling and but cleared later again. Activity was low until 08.00, then we had a burst of birds in which we found Neblina Metaltail (-4.3766,-79.1118), 2 Masked Mountain Tanagers (-4.3764, -79.1118) and we managed to see one of the several calling Loja Tapaculo. By 09.00 the activity had died down again in sunny and windy condition. We drove down the mountain and birded in the forest, but it was rather quiet in the sun. We had our first Chusquea Tapaculo and the best bird here was an Andean Pygmy Owl (-4.3858,-79.1383) that came very close but unfortunately just stayed out of view.

Target birds

Neblina Metaltail, Masked Mountain Tanager, Loja Tapaculo, Andean Pygmy-Owl

Tapichalaca / Casa Simpson

Logistics & birding

The Casa Simpson lodge is located along the main road between Vilcabamba and Valladolid, with the entrance at -4.49612, -79.13209. The lodge has an excellent trail system, there are hummingbird feeders that have Flame-throated Sunangel and the corn-feeder had Bearded Guan on both mornings. We birded the first afternoon along the trails but it started to rain heavily and most time was spend waiting under an umbrella. The next morning we first birded a bit around the lodge until we left with the ranged for the Antpitta feeding. The Jocotoco Antpitta is being fed at 08.00 AM, the site can be reached walking from the lodge or (a slightly easier walk?) from just up the road from the lodge. A Chestnut-naped Pitta visited the feeder after the Jocotoco had left. Afterwards we birded some more on the trails which was very enjoyable.

In the afternoon we searched along the road towards Valladolid for Black-throated Toucanet (-4.5296,-79.1313), Chestnut-crested Cotinga (without success), Rufous-capped Thornbill (without success). Maranon thrush (-4.5845,-79.1312), Yellow-cheeked becard were seen at the lower part after passing Valladolid. Our last morning we decided to directly start driving onwards; first a stop at the Old Loja/Zamora road (see Copalinga) and then further on towards Maycu.

Target birds

Jocotoco Antpitta, Flame-throated Sunangel, Bearded Guan, Orange-banded Flycatcher, Chusquea Tapaculo, Black-throated Toucanet, Maranon Thrush, Yellow-cheeked Becard

Maycu

Logistics

Yankuam lodge is located just before the bridge over the Nangartiza river at -4.24871, -78.65964. A nice surprise was that the first half of the road from the highway turnoff at Zumbi to Yankuam was paved which meant that we arrived at the lodge around 2am. The owners run a big lodge with several buildings and many rooms and organize all sorts of tourist activities in the area (boat rides, canyons, swimming etc). They also advised us on the best place to park our car in the Maycu reserve (at -4.2701,-78.6430) which is in the middle of the good forest stretch and worked very well. We paid 180 dollar for 2 nights (30 dollar per person per night and another 30 dollar per person for 2x dinner, 2x breakfast and 1x lunch).

Birding

On our first afternoon in Maycu we birded the road through the reserve from 15.00-18.00 with a thunderstorm from 15.45.-16.30. Luckily we had seen Orange-throated Tanager (-4.2697,-78.6433) before the rain and Hairy-crested Antbird (-4.2703,-78.6428) just after which was a good score. Next morning we birded the road through the reserve again until mid-morning. End of the morning we drove further along the road to check out some locations for Blackish Pewee (found at -4.3035,-78.6411), Dusky Spinetail (not found), White-throated Woodpecker (not found) and some low-flying Spot-winged Parrotlets, but the habitat lower down the road is severely degraded. So the remainder of our time we spent in the Maycu reserve; we easily found more Orange-throated Tanager (they are very vocal), Ecuadorian Tyrannulet is common and nice finds where a White-bellied Pygmy Tyrant at -4.2731,-78.6403, and White-throated Woodpecker at -4.2746,-78.6399 and 2 Chestnut-headed Crakes next to our parked car.

The Tepuis trail opposite the lodge good for Royal Sunangel (to reach the ridge is an all day walk), the lodge owner said there is another trail on the other side of the river with a two hour walk for Royal Sunangel. Since we had seen them in Peru previously, we did not explore this and focused on the road birding. With a day extra the trail would have been a very good option.

Target birds

Orange-throated tanager, White-throated Woodpecker, Ecuadorian Tyrannulet, Tchudi's Woodcreeper (not found), White-bellied Pygmy-tyrant, Blackish Pewee, Yellow-shouldered Grosbeak (not found), Chestnut-headed Crake, Spot-winged Parrotlet

Chinapintza is another often visited birding site around here but with the experience by Henk Hendriks and other warnings about safety we decided against it although it is the most reliable site for Cinnamon-breasted Tody-tyrant which we missed in North Peru as well....

Paquisha

Logistics

The road up to the forest patch is rather steep and stony (especially the last part) we didn't get that far because apparently the rains in the night had taken a toll on the road. We drove in from Maycu (about 1,5 hr drive) and on our first attempt up (along the road that starts here -3.93042, -78.66384) we found a recent stream where the road used to be that we could not cross. We saw another way up on maps.me so we drove down again and tried the road that starts at (-3.95298, -78.66131). This time we made it a bit further but in the end we stranded because of another washed out road. The birding was still 5km up the road but since we made it this far we decided to walk up. Theoretically (with a car better than ours) you can drive up to the final house (at -3.9219, -78.6172) and walk along a road in the making to (-3.9187, -78.6147). From there you can continue along a very muddy mule trail but we turned around here.

Birding

We arrived too late but found a few flocks before the sun cracked through the clouds and made it very quiet. We found Long-tailed Tapaculo along the first meters of the Mule Trail, Blue-browed & Vermilion Tanagers and Spectacled Prickletail all came quickly by in a massive flock. At the first good habitat we found our only Geoffroy's Daggerbill of the trip (singing at -3.9243,-78.6179, same place as Hendriks 2020 had it so apparently still an active lek)

On the westside of the Paquisha village there is some good habitat for Black-billed Seed Finch. En route to Maycu we made a stop and even though it was the middle of the day we quickly found a male at -3.9370,-78.6992.

Target birds

Spectacled Prickletail, Geoffroy's Daggerbill, Chestnut-bellied Thrush, White-breasted Parakeet, Long-tailed Tapaculo, Black-billed Seed Finch

Mi Paradise

This site is along the bypass around Yantzaza (-3.83314, -78.7722) and is a private garden which can be visited on appointment (20 U$ per person). We found a contact number through the FB-page (www.facebook.com/coquetalentejuelada or +593 99 236 5282) and 10 minutes later we met at the bridge and he took us to the site. Within 5 minutes we saw a Spangled Coquette foraging on the verbena-flowers. We had the one bird but he told us he has seen up to 11 at the same time in this garden. Some other hummingbirds visited were Violet-headed Hummingbird, Little Woodstar, Glittering-throated Emerald and Blue-tailed Emerald.

El Zarza

Logistics

The bridge at Los Encuentros fell into the river at the end of 2020, a new bridge is being built right next to it but wasn't finished. Luckily there is another bridge 2 km further; this one is (partly) paid for by Lundin Gold for their Fruta del Norte Gold Mine and wasn't on maps.me but worked perfectly to get us across. The road up to Zarza is a good gravel road. Although some of the lower parts are good for birding as well, we drove directly up to the Y (a junction in the road at -3.8483, -78.53877). Here we parked our car and birded in all three directions. The road to the right ends at a military camp with good birding beyond that (but you have to get permission, and this requires more time/staying overnight). With gold exploration continuing hopefully a balance between access, intact habitat and relatively little destruction of excellent foothill forest can be preserved. The whole area is a very cool birding spot with lots of habitat at different elevations to explore.

Birding

We mainly birding down from the Y (back in the direction of the Zarza village). Walking along the road was a good way to find flocks. We found both the Prickletail and the Greytail in a massive flock at -3.8505, -78.5452 and the Prickletail again in a flock at -3.8480,-78.5377. The whole morning it was very grey and humid weather with a light drizzle/shower now and then. By 1pm the activity had completely died down and it did not come back in the afternoon.

Target birds

Spectacled Prickletail, Equatorial Greytail, Roraiman Flycatcher (not found), Subtropical Pygmy-owl (not found), Long-tailed Tapaculo, Chestnut-bellied Thrush, Rufous-crested Tanager

Podocarpus NP – Rio bombuscaro/ Copalinga

Logistics

We stayed in the Copalinga lodge at -4.09062, -78.95831. The lodge has some nice trails which we only used to reach the Grey Tinamou feeding area (16.30 start from lodge). Visiting the Grey Tinamou without staying in the lodge is not possible (Hendriks 2020).

Birding

Around the lodge: The area around the lodge is very birdy, just standing at the parking we saw a lot of birds and the verbena bushes attract several species of hummingbird. One afternoon we walked along the road and quickly found a Mottle-backed Elaenia at -4.0868,-78.9569. Walking back to the lodge we saw several Andean Cock-of-the-Rocks, always a delight to see.

Inside the NP: park here -4.1081, -78.96383 and walk up the trail. Around the open area with some buildings (-4.1146,-78.9652) we tried hard for Foothill Elaenia and found one on our final morning. A pair of Black-streaked Puffbird was seen along the trail to the waterfall at -4.1147,-78.9661. And Orange-crested Flycatcher was easily found along the entrance trail at -4.1142-78.9645. Since we had already seen Coppery-chested Jacamar at the Old Zamora road we didn't try again here.

Old Loja/Zamora rd: We only birded the Old Loja/Zamora road en route from Tapichalaca to Maycu. We arrived just after 9AM so it was already quite late and sunny for bird activity. Along the old road one side-road (up to the hydro-plant ?) is concrete and an easy drive up where we birded a few sites and had our only pair of Coppery-chested Jacamar (-4.032,-78.9894) . A nice surprise here was a Wattled Guan. Similar birds can be found along the Old Loja-Zamora rd versus the Podocarpus NP but since we were still looking for Foothill Elaenia on our final morning we decided to bird the NP instead of visiting the Old Zamora road for a second time.

Target birds

Foothill Elaenia, Orange-crested Flycatcher, Grey Tinamou, Black-streaked Puffbird, Coppery-chested Jacamar, White-breasted Parakeet.

Cerro Acanama / Huashampa

Logistics

We arrive in the area early afternoon and first visited Huashampa for an hour before continuing further on to Cerro Acanama. The 8km long dirt road to the antennas is not well maintained and progress was slow. At dusk we drove down again, found a simple hotel in the close by town of Saraguro and drove up the next morning before dawn. In hindsight sleeping at the Cerro (in the car) would have been a good option, thereby skipping the drive down and up again.

Birding

Huashampa (1-2pm and 11-12am). We parked along highway at: -3.65809, -79.27085 and walked to the forest. The first afternoon we heard parrots from the field inside the forest (trail to reach the open field starts at -3.66029, -79.27015) but the calling parrots were too far from the forest edge to locate. On our second visit Helen heard a small contact call before the forest edge and this time we could locate a Red-faced Parrot in tree at -3.6603, -79.2705. The bird was foraging very quietly and even when you knew where it was still hard to see (therefore impossible to find had it not called for a few times).

Cerro Acanama (3-6pm and 06.30-9.30am): The first afternoon we parked the car around here (-3.68355, -79.2457). It was very sunny and windy and unfortunately it stayed very quiet with birds until the end of the day. We birded the track extensively from the where we parked the car until -3.6803, -79.23829. There are several small trails into the bamboo that we tried for the Antpitta but we only heard a Crescent-faced call once very far below in the valley. The next morning, we were back at the same stretch at first light. This time we had more luck with the Antpitta and after hearing 2 far birds we manage to see one very well at -3.6836, -79.24487 (it is accompanied by a Equatorial Antpitta that tries to chase away the Crescent-face from its territory). Unfortunately, the weather does not help again and it does not take long before it is sunny, windy and quiet again. At 9.30 we decide to drive down again since we want to try again for the Red-faced Parrots. This means we sadly miss Chestnut-bellied Cotinga. Especially the hills above the lower stretch (where we parked) and the area around the blue cabin looked promising. Back down the road some areas are probably worth birding too but our time ran-out with the search for the Cotinga.

Target birds

Crescent-faced Antpitta, Chestnut-bellied Cotinga, Red-faced Parrot, Andean Pygmy-Owl

Yunguilla

Logistics/Birding (31-12: 14.30-16.30)

We arranged access through the Jocotoco Foundation. Initially it seemed to be difficult to visit on the last day of the year, but after a few emails the arrangements were made (75U$ for two visitors). We contacted the guard Angel the night before to announce our visit and the next day we arrived at 2:30pm at the gate (at -3.23051, -79.27159). Angel was waiting for us and then shared the news that the Pale-headed Brush-finches had stopped visiting the feeders. Slightly worried we tried anyway but after an hour with no birds at the feeder we decided to bird along the trail. It turned out Angel knew a few territories along the trail and birds were very easily found around here (in hindsight it would have been better to directly start walking the trails instead of visiting the feeder). Since we needed to drive a bit we left at 4.30pm after we had seen the Brush-finches.

Target birds

Pale-headed Brush-finch: normally found on feeders but easily found along the trail along the slope. For other possible species at the reserve see: <https://ebird.org/hotspot/L600066>

El Cajas

Logistics

We stayed at Cabanas del Pescador which are a bit rustic (40 $ and you want quiet neighbours), and the restaurant was closed since it was New Years Eve. Luckily we did find something open a bit further along the road to have our last dinner of 2021 (at El Parador de la Montana). El Cajas NP offers beautiful high elevation landscapes and birding is done at several stops along the highway that runs through the park. Since the stops are mostly within the national park it turned out that the opening times are quite strict and birding possibilities limited before 8am (although in our case it probably did not help that it was New Year's day). Also roadside birding is not possible since in the NP you are not allowed to park along the road.

Birding

The first stop of the day we made was at Laguna Llaviucu (-2.84405, -79.14332). But when we arrived we found a closed gate at -2.84463, -79.14255. Our plan was to visit this area before dawn to try to see Rufous-banded Owl and

Andean Pygmy Owl but the (high) gate was closed with a big lock and a sign with opening times (08.00-16.30). Since there was a house and a few guard dogs we decided against parking there and trying to bypass the gate. Not sure how to organize an early visit here. We decided to drive back to the main road and did some short stops where possible. The first short stop was a side road at -2.7806, -79.1836 where we saw our first Violet-throated Metaltail. The side road continues but it is private property of Dos Chorreras so we only birded the first 100m. Back at the highway we wanted to stop at the Mirador (at -2.78606, -79.20481) but it was also closed off before 08.00 and we continued. In the end the only site we found where we could easily bird around before 8am was at a small restaurant at -2.7759, -79.26093. We walk around the parking lot and this produced a nice burst of activity at the moment the sun reached the surrounding vegetation and we saw many high altitude species. Highlight being several Ecuadorian Hillstars, and a surprising White-tailed Shrike-tyrant. We then drove back to Lago Toreadora at -2.78411, -79.22301 which had opened by now since it was after 8am. We followed the trail between the road and the lake and saw another Violet-throated Metaltail, a nice male Ecuadorian Hillstar and a very beautiful Giant Conebill (-2.7830,-79.2231). Since we had seen all our targets we then left and continued north towards the Corona del Oro road. Note that at the time of our visit to El Cajas the small lake at -2.7802, -79.23001 was closed with a barrier and a peligro plastic line so we did not explore this area (on ebird it seems a good spot to visit as well).

Target birds

Ecuadorian Hillstar, Violet-throated Metaltail, Giant Conebill

Molleturo road

We visited the site on the last day of the trip for an hour trying to find El Oro Tapaculo. The site was completely covered in the clouds (visibility <25m) and it rained on the lower parts of the road. It was very quiet when we arrived around 10.30am but with some encouragement we found an El Oro Tapaculo at -2.6483,-79.4387. Given the complete lack of visibility we left the site after this.

ANNOTATED SPECIES LIST

We have tried to accurately indicate the proper subspecies for all our observations, usually based on geographic locations based on the IOC World Bird List version 12.1. We tried to keep notes throughout the trip but especially commoner species are not have been written down daily, and numbers of birds haven't been corrected in the triplist. Triplist generated with iGoterra, see www.igoterra.com for details.
