Administration
And Faculty

Reverend Robert J. Henle, S. J.
President

INTERVIEW: DANIEL J. ALTABELLO

Daniel J. Altobello came to Georgetown as a freshman in 1959, and graduated with an A.B. in English from the College in 1963. While an undergraduate, Mr. Altobello served as President of the Yard, and on both the Student-Faculty Relations and Alumni-Student Relations Committees. Since 1966 he has filled the position of Secretary of the University.

YDB: Mr. Altobello, what does your job entail?

ALTOBELLO: I'm Secretary to the President's Cabinet — the Executive Vice Presidents, the Vice Presidents, the Treasurer and I. I'm also Secretary to the University, and that way I take care of the Board of Directors — do their agenda. This agenda has to be prepared, maintain correspondence with the Directors, servicing their committees, doing things for them. I probably reduce the President's mail by about 75%. By that I would say the mail comes in here, we do it, and we send it in to him with an answer, so that he doesn't have to think too much about it, just see if the answer's acceptable. You'd be amazed at what comes into the President's office on a given day, or a given month. Admissions is one thing the President gets a tremendous amount of. Complaints. I'm trying to take some of that away from the President so that he can be creative, and so he can think, so that he can fund raise. Nobody wants to talk to me about giving a million dollars to Georgetown. If I were to give a million dollars to Georgetown, and if I had it I might, I'd want to see the President. I'd like to see the man who's going to spend it.

YDB: What would you consider the major changes in the time you've been here?

ALTOBELLO: The major change that will have the most lasting impact on Georgetown, I think, is the conversion of the Board of Directors from a bunch of in-house managers to an out of the institution group of trustees — people who can perform a tremendous management audit of Georgetown. That is a very significant contribution, but its impact will take a long time to ripple. I think the quality of management necessary for the Seventies demands that kind of review of management. I think it was a tremendous tribute to the individual's integrity — all of them — who served as members of the Board and were also Director of Admissions or Dean of the College or anything else. One ought to be a vested interest if one holds the position of Dean of the College or Director of Admissions. While you have university goals and objectives, you still have an obligation to deliver for the College the best and the most of the resources, to deliver for the College the best program and curriculum, not viciously at the expense of the other schools, but not with too much concern for the other schools. The College Dean ought to be fighting for the College. How can he fight for the College, turn around and judge the College objectively?

Certainly the whole character of a pretty free, self-governed student life has been the most astounding change at Georgetown. I think development in a related area which Alumni most often don't understand is that Georgetown stands today for the same values it did in 1789. Georgetown delivers that system of values in a radically different way. It has to, because the people to whom it delivers it live in a radically different world. A kid who comes to college in 1972 comes from a whole different background. We have to meet kids who are far more sophisticated than we were, because the world is far more sophisticated. There's been a knowledge explosion. There's been the use of computers, the ability to prolong human life. All these things are current moral, spiritual value questions that Georgetown must respond to. We don't change the values. We might change our approach.

The development of a campus ministry team is another significant development of the past three or four years. I think Georgetown's whole faculty has improved in the past ten years in terms of the breadth of their experience and their knowledge, and the depth of the course offerings available. Remember, I'm pre the department of psychology. I'm pre the department of sociology, so these really and truly modern sciences, and yet, not at all that modern are new to Georgetown in the past ten years. So academically Georgetown has improved. Georgetown is a mite bigger now than it was when I was an undergraduate, but I consider that a plus because that's one of the ways we keep it economically viable and sound.

YDB: Georgetown is a Catholic Institution. Yet, the student body doesn't appear to be particularly religious. Rather, it is almost secular in its outlook.

ALTOBELLO: I don't agree with you. A European Jesuit was here to make an observation of Campus Ministries, and he says God is alive and extremely well at Georgetown, that there is a certain vibrant religious life, although it is not the traditional attending Mass on Sunday style perhaps. I think religious values are significant in the college student's life. It's almost "impossible" to measure that though. Certainly, the difference between a Catholic institution like Georgetown and Princeton is that the top administration — and therefore it filters down through — believes that there is a God and that religious and moral values are important. They in some way influence the decisions within the institution, and they have a pervading atmosphere on campus. There is almost a theocracy at work at Georgetown. There is a Jesuit on corridor for good or ill, and they come in two styles: good influences and indifferent influences. I think that is an attest to the fact that religion is of some import not only to the guys who live on the corridor, but that there must be a clientele there or they would soon move away. It certainly is not a cheap way to house them. They're not compensated for living there, but they have free living expenses charged to Madden's budget. I think we're increasing Jesuit presence at Georgetown numerically — quantitatively and qualitatively. We're getting and will continue to get, I think, the best of the young Jesuits from around. We buy them from anywhere, get them from anywhere. Their influence will have to be personal. But that always has been a Jesuit style.

YDB: Is there a relationship of university responsibility to the Washington community?

ALTOBELLO: Only as a university. I think if an institution has some obligation to the community in which it is, and it does have an obligation, it is as an educational institution, providing consultation to the city in some way, providing opportunities for teachers insofar as one has an education program to learn. I think in the area of medicine we have tremendous contributions to make, and are making them. Georgetown has in its hospital budget a provision for 7 or 8% of its total resources to be expended on people who don't or can't pay for adequate, if not superior, medical services. The nearest hospital to that is 2%. On that we look good. The dental clinic, the law school, the professional programs in Georgetown contribute and relate better to the city than the undergraduates do.

YDB: Do you think in the Seventies Georgetown students will demand more freedom . . .

ALTOBELLO: They have absolute freedom now. What more can they demand? Let me tell you this. At 31, it's existing in the world. Part of it is self-discipline, part of it is government, part of it is the Church, part of it is tradition. But you'll have more freedom in college than you'll ever have in the rest of your life.

You know what I honestly think? I think students and faculty should teach and learn, and let those of us who are pros, if we're pros, do our job unencumbered by lots and lots of committees. I really do. I'm not a big one for participatory democracy. Input from students and faculty to the total curriculum, and of courses of study, and of programs, is critical. I think that's very, very important. Whether we buy or sell Kodak stock doesn't seem to me to be significant. We ought to be competent managers — and managers is what a lot of us ought to be — who trade with some degree of ethics, in the best interests of the institution, for the highest and best return in our investments. We don't need a committee to tell us that. Half a dozen good executives could run this place as efficiently or efficiently without committees, than it can with. Where you want to have student input in this is to the development of attitudes. Where you want to have faculty input into is the development of attitudes, the future and things like that. Not in who gets what piece of the pie, but what kind of pie it is. We have so many committees, too many. I think we need about half a dozen really good ones, people really divided, intelligent people who are not self-centered and self-interested. Obviously, I'm giving you the self-interested point of view of an administrator right now. But, you know, dealing with committees is a pain in the neck. It's not for the ideas they have. It's that committees tend to water things down to what's palatable to everybody or to the majority. And what's palatable to the majority isn't necessarily where Georgetown ought to be going. They won't take bold steps. I think individuals take bolder steps than committees do.

I think Student Government should be responsible to the needs of the student, and I'm not sure it is. And those needs of the student aren't necessarily to govern, but to have those of us who do govern, or whatever you call it. Manage, I figure is a better word — do it well, so that minor irritations don't develop.

The 1973 Ye Domesday Booke

The 1973 Ye Domesday Booke is a collection of documents and records related to the Domesday Book of 1086. It includes a copy of the original Domesday Book, as well as various other records and documents that provide context and detail about the land and resources of England in the late 11th century. The book is a valuable resource for historians and researchers interested in the history of England and the Norman Conquest.

Delta Phi Epsilon

There are few cabals with Greek monickers at Georgetown. Of the surviving two, Delta Phi Epsilon offers a program which appeals more to the average Hoya than that of Alpha Phi Omega, the national service fraternity. Delta Phi, which was founded in 1919 to complement the School of Foreign Service, extends to its members a wide range of professional and social functions. In one sense, Delta Phi is a good place for the young man interested in a profession — usually one with an international cast — to start his rise in the bureaucracy. Once accepted, one is a brother for life. Brothers believe in helping brothers.

Delta Phi Epsilon also advances an alternative life style. About twenty brothers reside in the fraternity house, the former Prussian embassy located on the corner of 34th and Prospect streets, which also serves as a convenient headquarters in which to launch various programs. Receptions, lectures, debates are held in the halls of the old mansion. Also parties, held in conjunction with the new Delta Phi sorority, perhaps spell relief for the on campus brother harassed by an R.A. who follows the Board of Director's guidelines for student life. Brothers believe in helping brothers.

Alpha Phi Omega

Alpha Phi Omega does a lot more than just run the student government elections. The Georgetown chapter of the national service fraternity also works with handicapped children, bartends at parties, thrown by and for other organizations, ushers, and provides security at campus functions, and works on the cerebral palsy telethons and sells tickets for GU basketball games. A fraternity in the spirit of brotherhood, fostered among its members, Alpha Phi Omega, unlike other fraternities, stresses service, rather than the fraternal social life. The ideals of the organization remain unselfish service, friendship of the kind that endures beyond college, and leadership in each member. Alpha Phi looks forward to continuing its work with the attitude that there is always something needing to be done.

Collegiate Club

We meet again tonight, boys, with mirth and song,
Let melody flow wherever we go,
We dwell in friendship ever, so true and strong,
And sorrow never know . . .

The Chimes

"We Meet" is characteristically the foremost song of every Chime "hum." It is always appropriate.

The Georgetown Chimes has been and will always be a viable union of voices because its members recognize that with their common bond in close harmony they possess a timeless ability to amplify and complement their spirits.

STORY: Non-existent. Everyone pretty much comes and goes as he pleases. WOTAN demands loyalty, the Nibelungens revolt. HUNDIG and MIME can't agree on anything, and FRIKA is eaten by HUNDIG'S DOGS. FREIA can't be found when she's needed, and SIEGFRIED frequently goes to New York, leaving the Nibelungens to save themselves. DIE WALKURE demand a raise when they learn that BRUNNHILDE has a solo rendition of the famous "Hoya-toe-hoe." THE RHINE MAIDENS are mistaken for the Andrews Sisters, and choreographer Hofsiss has a difficult time teaching the NORNS the She-bop. Director Pi-Roman threatens to direct in Russian; everyone agrees that he would probably do a better job if he did. Everyone in the cast and crew meets for a final Gotterdammerung at the banquet, when it is learned HAGEN has walked off with the entire budget for the production.

Chavurah

The only place on campus where one can savor kosher delights is at the Georgetown Chavurah. Located at 3612 N Street, the Chavurah, or Jewish community house, is occupied by four students interested in promulgating awareness and growth of the Judaic heritage among the six percent Jewish population attending Georgetown. Seth Paronic, Carl Barsky, Kenneth Cohen, and Bob Zassler have accepted the challenge of leading the only Zionist movement on campus. Chavurah offers a friendly atmosphere, a small, but thorough Jewish library, and it throws its doors open to Jew and Gentile alike.

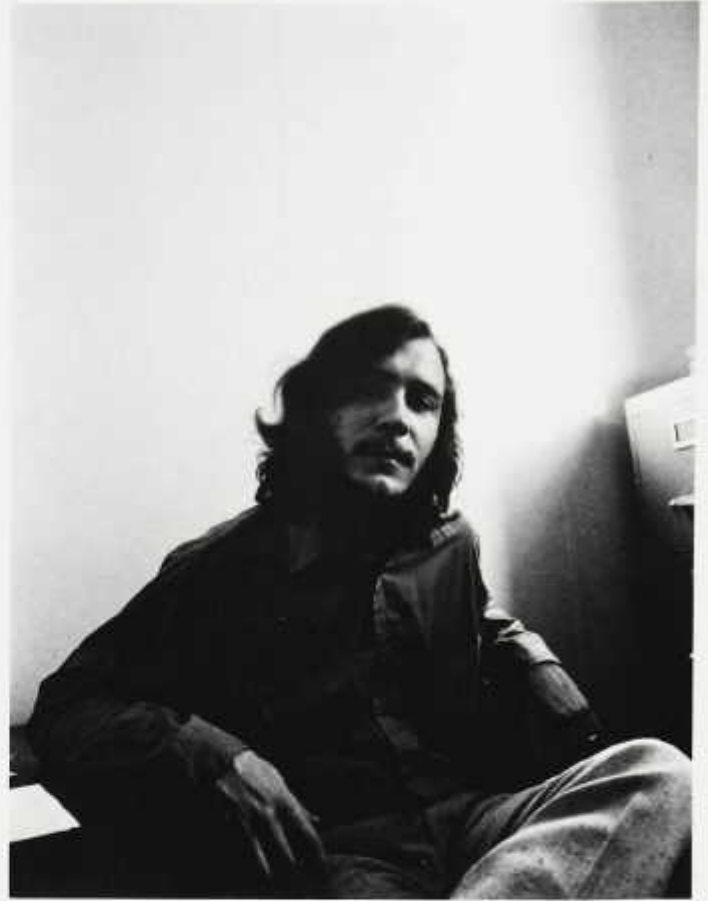

All this is somewhat astonishing when one considers that less than three years ago, Chavurah was created when Hillel dissolved. Hillel had served almost exclusively as a social assemblage where Jewish students could meet monthly and converse over a bagels and lox's brunch. Inevitably, lack of diversity and interest among students dealt Hillel its coup de grace, and in its place the Georgetown Chavurah was born.

Chavurah grew, striving to fulfill its twofold purpose for existence: to provide Georgetown with a Jewish environment where "Jews could be more Jewish," and to act as a lobbying force for Jewish interests. Now, the spiritual as well as social needs of the Jewish members of the Georgetown community are met through services which are held on Friday evenings and on special holidays. Once a month, these services are attended by Rabbi White, part-time chaplain at G.U.

In addition, Chavurah has sponsored such events as a Holocaust exhibit in Lauringer Library, bringing prominent Jewish speakers to Georgetown, and a festive dance, called the "Hanukah Hop." A member of the Baltimore-Washington Union of Jewish students, Chavurah has been responsible for the publication of that organization's newspaper.

Members of Chavurah find that operation within a predominantly Catholic institution has proven to be a challenge — if not sometimes disillusioning. Chavurah still feels a need for a full time chaplain, more Jewish oriented courses, and more extensive exposure of the organization's activities. However, for the present, Chavurah maintains its role at Georgetown in promoting Jewish self-identity among its members.

SPORTS

1969-1973: FOUR YEARS OF CHANGE

If you haven't spent four years here, you haven't really seen the whole picture of Hoya athletics. Only the beleaguered Hilltop seniors have that distinction — and only these same seniors can tell the tales of dizzying success and abject failure, of indescribable ineptitude and grudging triumph, of hell and high water and cows jumping over blue moons that have characterized The Scene Here since the dim, dark fall of 1969.

Perhaps we arrived too late. We were here for the first and probably only significant happening in the last two decades. The bid of 1969-70 Hoyas to meet Louisiana State in the opening round of the National Invitational Tournament remains as the summit, as the zenith, of Georgetown athletic endeavor as we know it.

Nothing else comes close. Maybe we should have been here a year earlier — when a fairly good Hoya squad blew its NIT chances in the closing weeks of the season. Perhaps we would have been innured by defeat, by lost chances, by might-have-beens. Instead, we were spoiled. We had immediate success. And as a result, perhaps we grew to expect too much. The 1970-71 squad was to be the 'best ever,' some mental midget drawing up a national preseason poll even had the foresight to rank it Number 16 in the entire country. Please.

Our minds were dulled by the likes of collapses at Navy and disasters at the Cross. But nothing could have prepared you for the horror of 1971-72. The Marquette "44," Ron Brown's bank shot, Ken Charles 38, all added up to the incredible vacuum of total, mind-boggling defeat.

Hope lingers eternal, and was reborn this past year in the person of John Thompson who may (or may not) be the answer, the new Moses, or even the new symbol of Joe Hoya as much as Jack "Blue and Gray" Magee was the symbol of the old.

But even a new Hoya image cannot bring back That Championship Season. It's gone; with Artie and the Gorilla, Higgins and Geeber, Eddie Mac and Ziggy Zeitler; leaving us with the memories of Mitchell's tap against American, Laska's defense on Maravich, and Arthur's fight with Randy Blevins at Jacksonville. The highlight of our four years came and went long before we realized it had gone. We harbored dreams for the next three years, but the stuff of our dreams never managed the Crucial Wins, the Big Games.

But you really can't despair. There have been other highlights in Hoya sports in the months since. While to a diehard hoop fan they may pale in comparison to that historic day in Madison Square Garden in the winter of 1970, the fact is that many of These events meant just as much, and perhaps even more, to the participants and to their fans. Georgetown crew earned its national title, football went from the morass of club administration to the small-college Division III of the NCAA, soccer and baseball just completed outstanding seasons, rugby and lacrosse caught on, and intramurals became of the utmost importance to thousands of students.

Besides interest in hoops, football runs a poor second in appeal to the Hoya fan. Even this past season, the only SRO gathering on Kehoe Field was Homecoming; and if a game was on a cloudy day — forget attendance. But Head Coach Scotty Glacken, the former Denver Bronco and Duke — All American, has brought his charges a long way in a few short years.

The fall of 1969 was marred by the death of former Hoya great and then head coach Mush Dubofsky. He died leaving the rebuilding of Hoya football incomplete. It was then a legitimate contender in the second echelon of club football, a hardly-auspicious position in a less-than-auspicious league.

The coming of the West Chester State (Pa.) "B" Team was a major event in those days. But the "B's" are back in Philly, and the Hoyas became first members, and second a fairly solid force in, the NCAA Division III of college football. It wasn't the Orange Bowl, there were no Sports Illustrated covers and Howard Cosell stayed away, but it was a start.

Jeff Gray and the wishbone, Dwyer setting rushing records and Edwards trampling them; routs of Catholic and getting routed by Susquehanna, "O.J." in the American Bowl and going to Hamilton, four straight winning seasons but never beating Fordham in New York, the Hoya "Ram" getting abducted by overeager Maroon (Moron?) supporters, and a growing small sense of the big time slowly came back to the Hilltop. It would be nice if it stayed; it would be nice if they remember guys like Pierce O'Donnell, "Thunder" Thornton, John Kuhns, Alex Hampshire, and the immortal "Bubba" Bogdanski in another decade.

The rest of Hoya sports run distant thirds in terms of support and interest. Crew was the only national championship team here in our tenure, the Dad Vail title was relinquished last year and is being sought once again late this month. To few, however, are the rowers more than the crowd that jogs en masse in the wee hours of the AM south of Lauinger Library.

Sad also to say is the regard that the Boys of Summer and the Summer Game are held by Hoyas. One reason, probably, that keeps budding baseball buffs away is that the game is actually the Spring game; and in Washington, Spring means Rain. Perhaps that is why the fall season has been far more successful than its March-April counterpart; the Blue and Gray has little appeal in mud brown.

But Dick "The Silver Squirrel" Zeitler used to lead the Hoyas in offense from his shortstop spot, stealing bases and hitting .400+ season after season. Pete Train, Leo Slavin, Ray O'Brien, John Lacci and Dave Lowans were tough competition at the plate. Tom Elliott even made Sport Magazine's College Athlete of the Month category for his on-and-off-the-field exploits. Timmy Mercier, Al Walker, Mike Mattingly, Pete Jarowey and Steady Eddie Stakem joined O'Brien on the mound as Hoya pitching was always solid, if a bit thinly-stretched. And Coach Tom Nolan smiled through it all, even hiring a girl manager a scant year after banning a woman reporter from the dugout. How times changed.

The most worthwhile change in athletics did not come in connection with varsity lettermen. The biggest change here in respect to the average amateur Hoya jock occurred when Greg Schulze was hired out of Penn State as the Director of Intramurals. For those staunch and hardy souls who had chosen to partake in the infamous "Falbey's Follies" of past years were only too discouraged by the lack of organization and officiating, the number of ringers (including past and present Hoya varsitymen) and Falbey's own apparent non-existence.

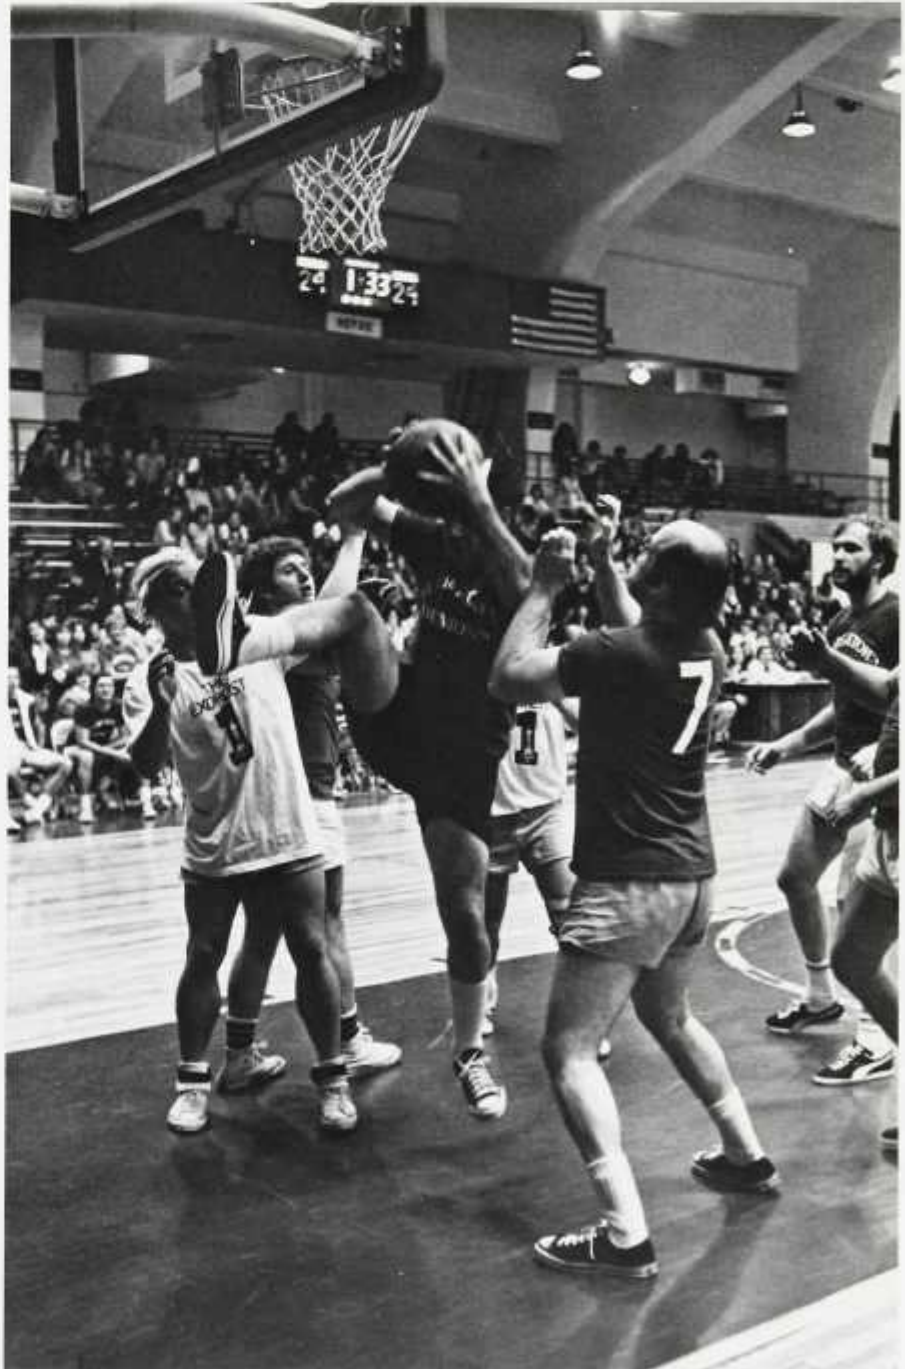

Schulze was antithetical to all this. Simultaneous scheduling of intramural softball and "A" Rugby vanished, supervisors appeared and uniformed (somewhat) referees were everywhere. More than a dozen new sports were added to the competitive categories. And when Schulze had to go in for active duty this immediate past semester, the supervisory staff of Steve Wilkens and Alex Hampshire kept everything running smoothly.

But running smoothly wasn't the rule in the inner workings of gym for the last few years. The Magee and Sigholtz factions that wrecked the departments' harmony and nearly wrecked the department itself were finally purged in typical university fashion. Magee resigned honorably and was last heard of as a lobbyist on the Hill; Sigholtz rode off into the sunset on the tail end of an invitation to do so from the Great White Father on the Hill.

Some totally unforeseen elements were affected by this. Former top coach Steve Benedek was delegated to merely give odd lessons in squash to anyone interested, and compulsory P.E. was phased out along with the Harbin Ball and girls in the Georgetown Grill. Betty Underwood, holder of the best one-season team record (her Hoyette Hoopsters were 9-1 in 1971-72) was in reality fired from her administrative post only a day after the Hoya's April Fool's Edition reported her fired in jest.

Perhaps this is all too typical; and perhaps the new day promised by the Rienzo-Thompson regime will never dawn — but then again, it might. Too bad we're graduating.

The Year Of The Running Back

Sophomore sensations J. D. Burke, Ralph Edwards, Brian Melody, and Bob Morris carried the brunt of the workload, running off the Wishbone-T option offense. Backed ably by Danny Lopez and graduating senior Terry McGovern (holder of the Hoyas yards-per-carry record at 6.6 set in 1971), they'll all be back. Edwards hit 141 yards vs. St. Peter's in finale for a new single-game rushing record. Move over, Butch and Sundance!

Magee, George, Joe, Leo & Rich and three dozen coaches, partridges in pear trees, and Hogan's Heroes . . . all pretend it's the big time, and it just might be at that.

"Either You've Got It, Or You Don't"

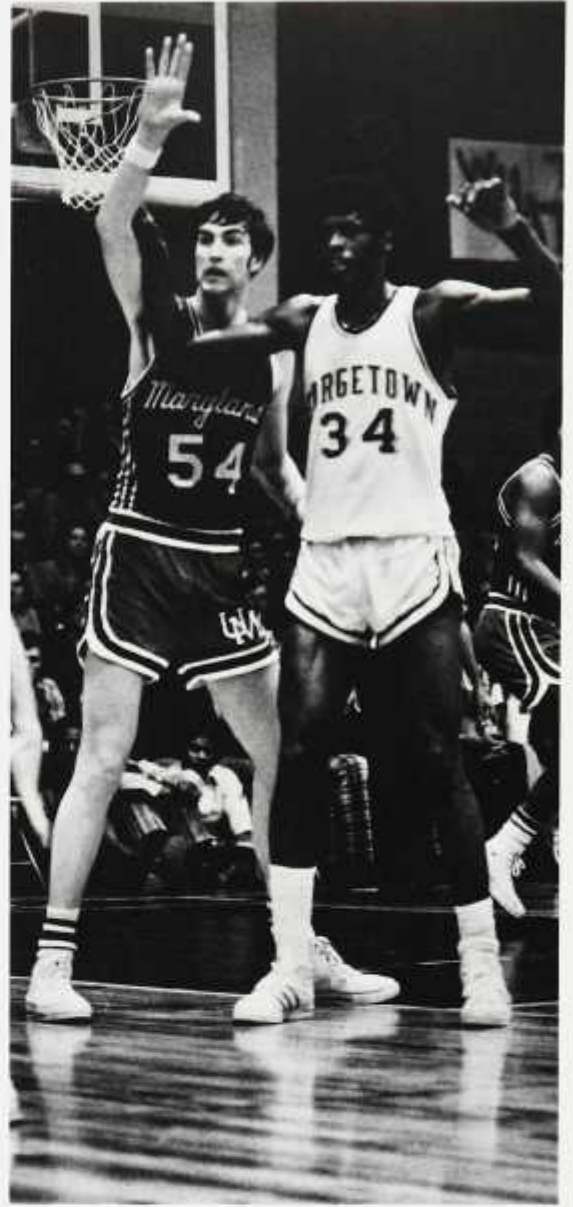

"Either you've got it or you don't," Hoya basketball coach John Thompson told his young freshmen early on in the season, "Experience can only help so much."

The coach admitted, however, that starting as many as four freshmen together can cause some problems. "Knowledge of fundamentals is a must," Thompson added, "but with experience comes learning to be in the right place at the right time." With this knowledge, he said, comes winning.

And it looks like winning may be coming back to the hilltop for the first time in four years. "Most of the puzzle is right here now, it's just a matter of finding the complementary pieces, as in a couple of wise old heads," said Big John, mentioning that he has considered recruiting junior college transfers to play at either the guard or forward slots to "help steady my youngsters."

The "pieces" that are here might have made the past season more successful if they hadn't been hampered by injuries. Outstanding sophomore Mark Gallagher was prevented from going all out by a painful back problem compounded by an early-season foot injury. Other injuries dogged top freshman guard Jon Smith, whose backcourt speed was sorely missed in the middle of the season. But both Billy Lynn and Mike Stokes showed deft shooting eyes for first-year men; but the big story of the 1976 class was the ace center, Merlin "The Magician" Wilson, who may break every school rebounding and scoring record providing he stays healthy for the next three years. Billed as a defensive player, he showed flashes of outstanding offensive ability all year long.

Together with George Leftwich and Bill Stein, aided by Mary Fenlon, Coach Thompson will be spurring his sole senior starter, point guard Timmy Lambour, and his talented youngsters further on the road to the Hoya comeback in '73-74.

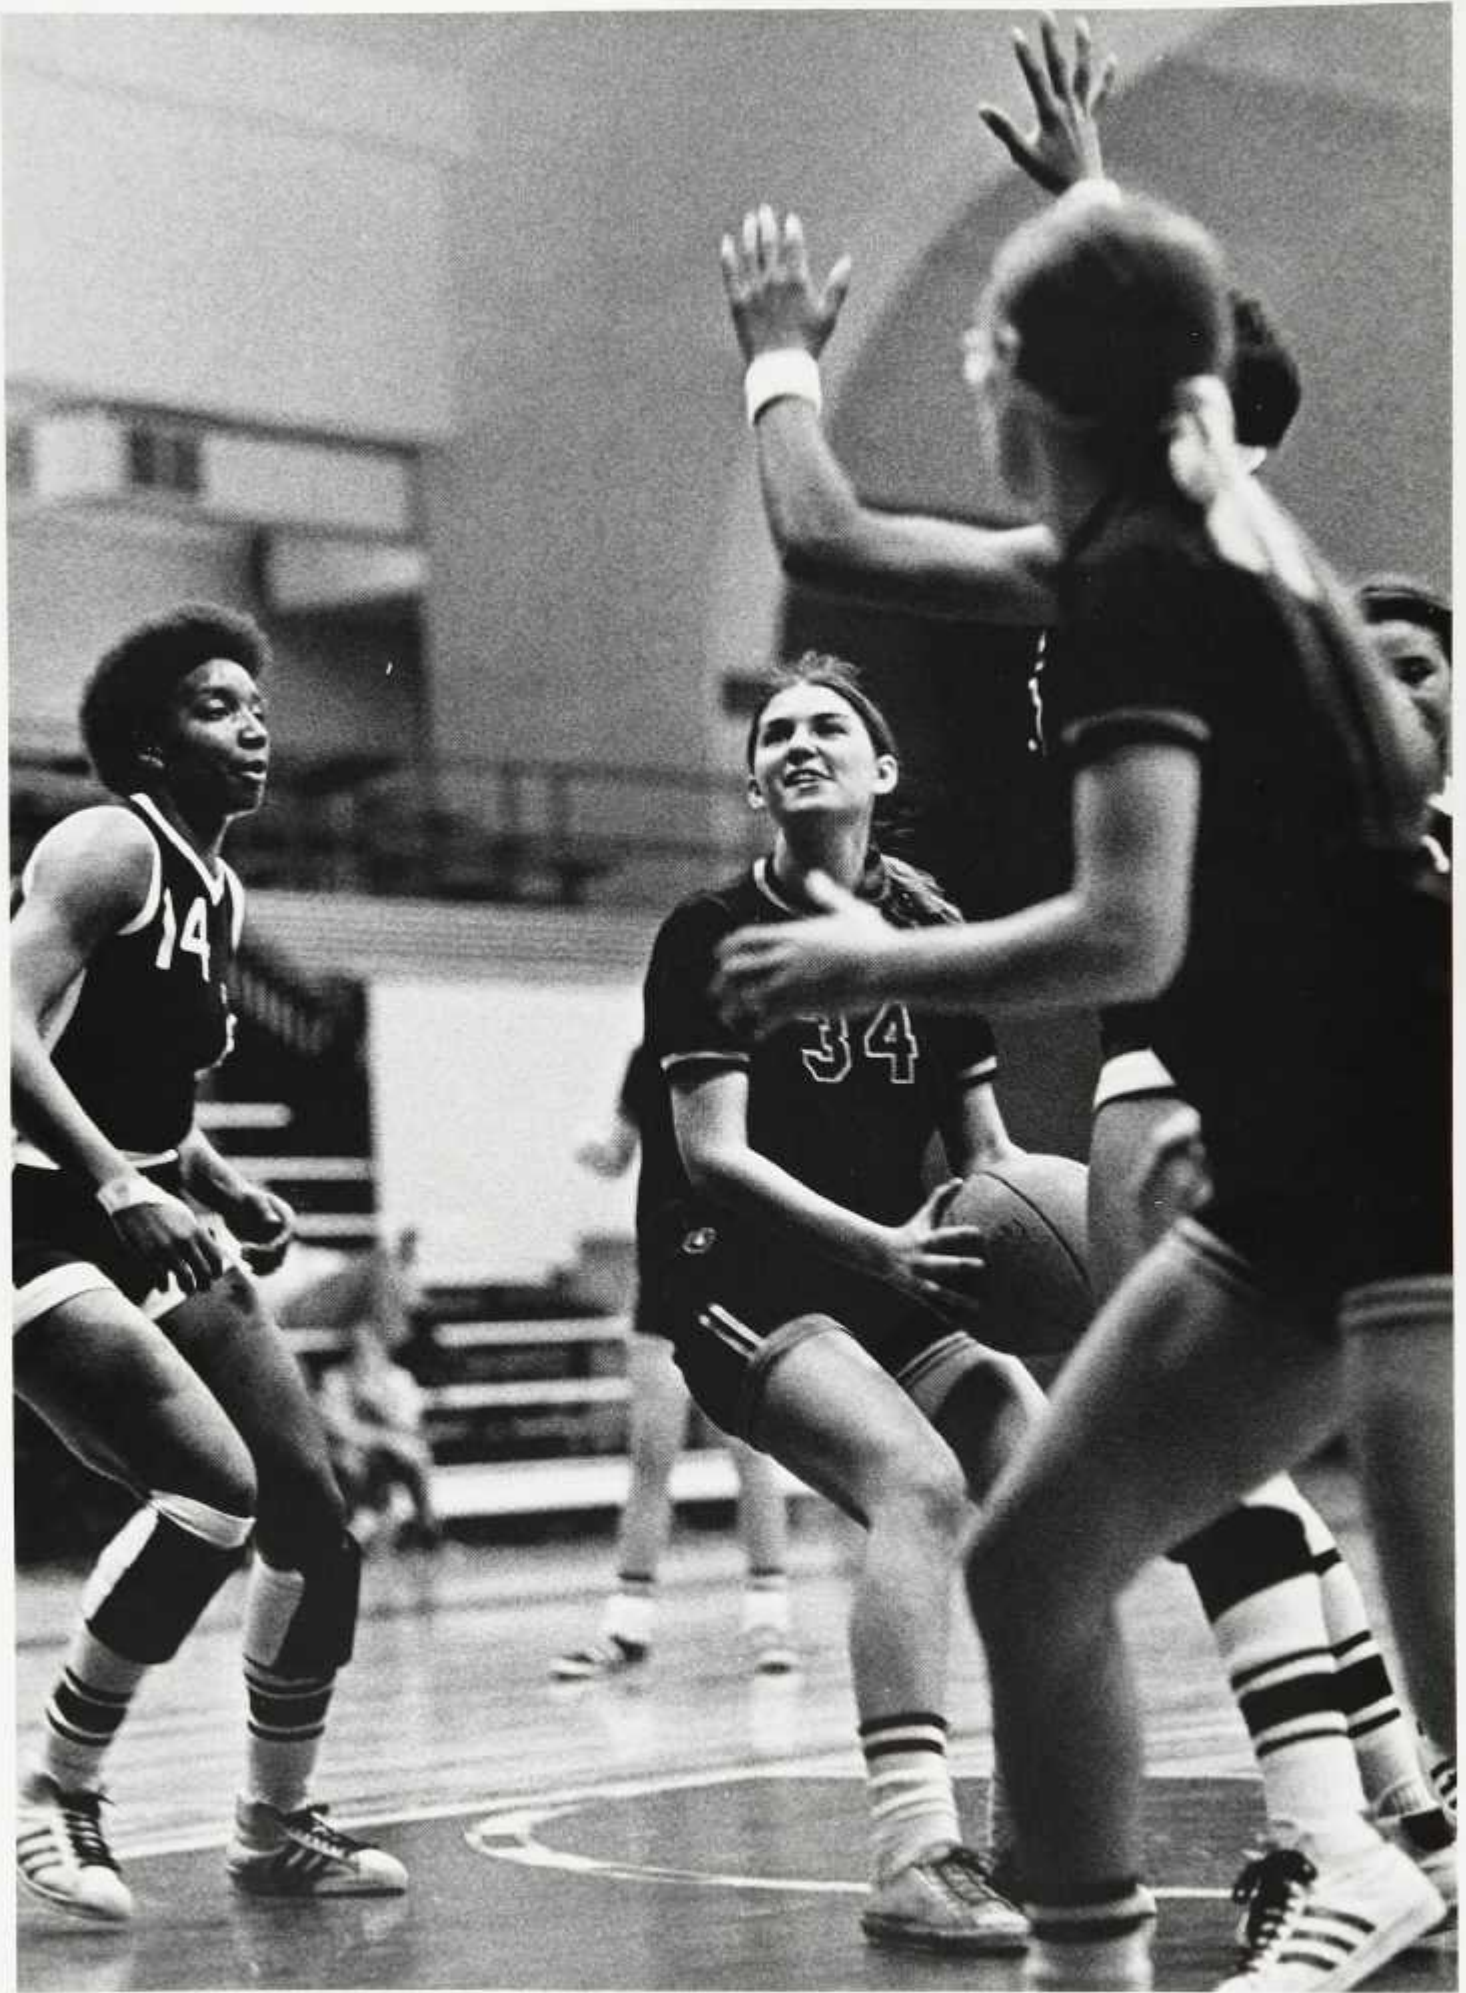

It's a girl's world . . . with Betty Underwood, Madeleine DiSario & Co. calling the shots . . . Hoyette hoopsters coming off a fine 11-1 effort, one of best in nation. Bridget Meagher paces both hockey and basketball efforts . . . Sally Neal and Marian O'Malley standouts in the fall . . . while winter roundballers star Kate Connolly, Mary Dolar, Heather Litton and Cheryl Nemetz.

Anne Weiler will make a great coach.

The Boys of Spring

Disappointing Spring '72 followed by an exciting Fall . . . Hoyas bid for D.C. Area Championship stopped only in last inning of last game . . . Mike Mattingly superb in no-hitter vs. George Mason . . . also in later 13 inning, 6-5 win over Catholic . . . Ray O'Brien, Ed Stakem and Johnny Lacci are the big men on offense . . . Dave Lowans, the timely home-run man in the Fall . . . Jerry Gallagher keys an improving infield . . . Al Walker and Pete Jaroway the best after Mattingly . . . and Women's Lib in the dugout . . .
