Train Hits Man Waking On Tracks

The futile struggles of a 20-year-old Altamonte Springs man to get. off railroad tracks in Longwood as a frieght train approached and blew its whistle ended early Saturday when he was hit by the train.

Steven Arthur Stubbs, of 604 Camino Court, was apparently asleep on the tracks when the westbound Scaboard Systems train approached at about 2:20 a.m.

Longwood police Sgt. Russell Cohen said the train's engineer saw something on the tracks and blew the train whistle in warning. Stubbs awoke but was unable to make it off the tracks before being hit and knocked off the tracks. He was dead at the scene.

The accident occurred between Charlotte Street and State Road 434, about 1,000 yards south of 434. Cohen said. Railroad crossings at Charlotte Street and at County Road 427 were closed following the accident, but were cleared before 9 a.m. Satur-

Ex-Supreme Court Secretary Contradicts Rehnquist Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Justice Robert Jackson's secretary says Chief Justice nominee William Rehnquist smeared her boss's reputation by maintaining a memo he wrote supporting racial segregation reflected Jackson's views and not his own.

In a letter Friday to Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Elsie Douglas said it "surprises me" every time Rehnquist repeats his assertion that he only mirrored the late justice's views in his 1962 memos that supported the racial separate-but-equal doctrine.

Rehnquist, 61. a member of the Supreme Court since 1971 and President Reagan's nominee to be chief justice. has come under fire from Democrats for being insensitive to minorities.

But he denied repeatedly in testimony at his confirmation hearing last week that he supported racial segregation in the early 1950s. He said he was only writing the views of Jackson, an assertion he also made during his confirmation hearings to join the high court in 1971.

"As I said in 1971 when this question first came up, that is a smear of a great man for whom I served as secretary for many years." Douglas said.

"Justice Jackson did not ask law clerks to express his views. He expressed his own and they expressed theirs." One of Rehnquist's memos contends that the Supreme Court's 1896 ruling that supported racial segregation was

Reagan To Get Urological Exam

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan was to go to Bethesda Naval Hospital shortly after noon Saturday for a urological examination the White House says is not related to last year's intestinal cancer.

The 75-year-old president, who Saturday becomes the longest serving president since Dwight D. Eisenhower. planned to fly with his wife Nancy by helicopter to the hospital several miles outside Washington, D.C., for a urinary checkup similar to an examination he underwent on April 1, 1982. Deputy, press secretary Larry Speakes gave no clear indication of what prompted the examination, and said he did not know whether Reagan had any symptoms that made him decide to have the exam — recommended by his physicians — rather than spend the weekend at Camp David as he had originally planned.

Senate Nears Military Bill OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate, testy and tired after after five straight late-night sessions, was heading Saturday to approve a $295 billion military authorization bill in a rare Saturday session.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, warning that the bill has to pass this week after five late-night sessions or not at all, called the Saturday session to act on about 20 amendments ranging from "Star Wars" and the B1 bomber to child nutrition and extra pay for military personnel who speak a second language.

The House put off action on its own version of the defense authorization bill, a smaller $286 billion, until

The Senate bill, among its many items, includes: $3.95 billion for President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, money for a new generation of chemical weapons, the seed money for a Navy plan of new ports to hold its growing fleet, orders to the Pentagon to set up a new office to handle the work of its covert paramilitary teams and $1.4 billion for a new Trident submarine.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Researchers have reported successful tests of a vaccine that protects infants from a bacteria responsible for meningitis and other life-threatening childhood diseases.

Researchers at Washington University Medical Center in St. Louis said Friday their study marks the first time a vaccine has produced antibody levels high enough to protect infants from the bacteria. Haemophllus influenzae type b (Hib).

The bacteria can cause meningitis, arthritis, blood poisoning, pneumonia and epiglottitis, an inflammation of the throat that can cause suffocation.

Meningitis is a leading cause of mental retardation and acquired deafness in young children.

Joe Creamons Jr., Sanford, a candidate for the Republican nomination for District House Seat 27, has asked that his complaint against Greg Gay, 34, of Longwood be dropped.

"I wasn't going to try to be vindictive. I feel maybe he's learned his lesson." Creamons said Friday.

He said he asked State Attorney Norman Wolfinger not to follow through on his (Creamons')complaint against Gay. Gay was accused of breaking apart one of Creamons' signs around 2:55 a.m. Aug. 1. Gay, who told reporters he took the sign down, said he did it because someone had been vandalizing his signs. He said he intends to stay in the primary race. He also made efforts to apologize to Creamons. In the incident, a security guard at an aparment complex where the sign was located on State Road 434, heard a sign being taken apart and after seeing a suspect called police.

The police found the suspect at the scene with wood from the sign in his car.

Creamons, clting a law-and-order campaign platform, agreed to press charges later the same day.

Benson Jury Recommends Against Death Penalty

FORT MYERS (UPI) — Prosecutors said they consulted with family members before asking a jury to spare the life of Steven Wayne Benson, the tobacco heir convicted in the bombing deaths of his mother and nephew.

The jury of 10 women and two men deliberated almost two hours Friday before recommending Benson, 35, be sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole for at least 25 years.

"I would have thought, under the circumstances, that the death penalty would have been appropriate," said prosecutor Jerry Brock, who said he followed the wishes of Benson family members in asking for the life sentence.

Circuit Judge Hugh Hayes scheduled sentencing for Sept. 2. He can overrule the jury's decision but he has a record of accepting sentencing recommendations.

Racketeering Indictments Opened

TAM?A (UPI) - A few hours after a federal jury convicted three men of plotting to kill a Virginia woman. an indictment was unscaled and they and a fourth man were charged with racketeering that included allegations of contract murders, strong-armed robberies and interstate transportation of stolen property. A federal court jury found Bill Ray Barker, 57, and Daniel Durell, 37, both of Bradenton, Fla., and Kenneth Lemon, 30. of Tampa, guilty Friday of Intimidation and conspiracy to retaliate against a witness.

Barker was alleged to have offered money to Durell and Lemon to go to Stauton, Va., and kill Ida Showker. Barker's ex-girlfriend who operates a nursing home there. She had testified against him in a bankruptcy trial.

Late Friday, the indictment was unsealed revealing Barker, Durell, Lemon and Louis Francis Botttorff, 22, of Gibsonton, were charged with violations of the federal Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organization Statute.

The indictment also listed a series of thefts by "force, violence, assault and putting in fear."

Woman Charged With Battering Boyfriend

A 23-year-old Altamonte Springs woman, who allegedly bit her live-in boyfriend and threw a knife at him after allegeldy hiding his car keys and cash, has been charged with aggravated battery.

Altamonte Springs police met Dennis Boyers at the Chevron station on State Road 436, at about 2:30 a.m. Friday and returned with him to his home at 380 Lake Mead Road, #102. They met the suspect in the parking lot there and she allegedly said. "I tried to stab him, so arrest me." Police reported finding a carving knife with a 9-inch blade in the parking lot. Boyers reportedly identifed it as the knife that was thrown at him as he ran from his home with the suspect allegedly chasing him.

Boyers had told police that during a fight the suspect allegedly took his keys and cash and locked herself in the bathroom of their home. He forced his way into the bathroom and recovered his keys and cash from her purse in a bedroom closet. The woman allegedly attacked him biting his left arm two times. He was trying to hold her away from him with his left arm because his right arm is in a cast, police said.

Boyers went into the livingroom. The suspect reportedly went to the kitchen, armed herself with a knife, and began stabbing at Boyers as he ran. He Action Reports

Oral arguments were presented Friday before the 5th District Court of Appeal regarding the case of a former Lake Mary high school teacher charged with selling cocaine.

Wilson Gordon Jr., 39, of Altamonte Springs, argued at the 10:30 a.m. hearing that the charge should be dropped because he was not given a trial within six months of the selling

Roth said in releasing the study that it was the result of a two-year investigation by the subcommittee and showed the need for banning advertising of child pornography and child prostitution.

"There is no question about the link between child pornography and the sexual abuse of children." he said. "Whenever you find child pornography. you're almost certain to find an actual or potential child molester."

While the report said the Child Protection Act of 1984 making illegal the distribution of sexually explicit material involving children has been "highly successful," Roth said additional action was needed.

Roth has introduced legislation calling for a ban on the advertising of child pornograpy and prostitution. Hearings on the measure have been scheduled for Monday.

It Was A Week That Was, Ups, Downs And All Around

NEW YORK (UPI) - The House narrowly voted to uphold President Reagan's veto of a trade bill that a Hong Kong exporter asid would have put world trade 'back in the jungle."

'So much was at stake," U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said following the vote. "We would have had sheer chaos in international trade if this bill had become law.

The House vote was just eight short of the two-thirds necessary to override the veto of the bill, which would have rolled back textile imports from South Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong and frozen imports from nine other nations.

The bill would have abrogated the five-year extention of the Multi-Fiber Arrangement signed just last week by 54 nations and would have negated individual quota pacts with Taiwan, Hong Kong and Korea.

The bill also would have effectively done away with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which is to hold a meeting in Uruguay next month to set the agenda for a new round of trade liberalization talks.

James McGregor, the outspoken director of the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce, said the bill "poses the most serious threat to free trade since the Smoot-Hawley tectionist bill that many say contributed to or even caused the worldwide depression that paved the way for World War II.

It would "destroy" MFA.

GATT and the bilateral agreements, McGregor said. "It would be basically back to the jungle."

Reagan said the bill would cost U.S. consumers $44 billion in higher costs for clothing and shoes over five years. But the biggest danger was in retaliation that could devastate already weak sectors of the economy. South Korea, for example, buys $1.5 billion in U.S. farm products every year.

OPEC oil ministers agreed to a two-month plan to cut production to about 16.8 million barrels a day, but its success in boosting oil prices may be short-lived unless it can enforce discipline and win cooperation from non-member producers such as Mexico and Britain.

Oil prices initially soared by more than $3 a barrel in response to OPEC's surprise decision to slash production and then see-sawed late in the week. A string of U.S. oil companies raised wholesale gasoline prices by as much as 10 cents a gallon.

The 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said the reduction of around 3.5 million barrels a day - would be enough to remove the current glut caused by excess output.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman Jake Garn, R.Utah, who dropped plans for comprehensive banking legislation this year, said instead he would push for a limited bill to recapitalize the ailing Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. that insures savings and loan associations.

Garn's bill would pump $15 billion in new capital into the dwindling insurance fund. It will need at least that much. FSLIC's war chest had only $4.6 billion at year-end 1985, before 14 closings and 16 assisted mergers of thrifts this year.

Edwin Gray, chairman of the tions with assets of $80 billion put the number much higher.

Debt Ceiling Bill Due Next Week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House aides said. Speaker Thomas O'Neill Friday lebt-ceiling increase bill to keep Congress gets back from its summer recess in September.

Without the hike in the debt ceiling, the government will run out of borrowing authority approximately Sept. 1, while Congress is in the middle of its summer recess. Members are scheduled to leave next Friday and return Sept. 8.

A bill to lift the current debt ceiling of $2 trillion to a record $2.3 trillion, enough to last another year, is bogged down in the Senate due to a laundry list of amendments senators already attached — including a proposed repair of the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law — and disagreements over how to handle possible amendments on South African sanctions and aid to Nicaraguan rebels. The House passed a $2.3 trilion debt limit, unamended, as part of its budget months ago.

The short-term debt ceiling would give the government about $60 billion in added borrowing authority, which would last until about Sept. 15, House

Lake Mary City Manager Kathy Rice is busy, not only with running the city ad-ministration, but also packing her bags.

Boxes of personal items in her city hall office are being packed, as are items in her Washington Street home, as she prepares to leave her Lake Mary job to become the city manager of Gulfport, near St. Petersburg in Pinellas County.

Mrs. Rice, who will be 39 on Aug. 12, announced her resignation last month. She will move from being Lake Mary's top administrator, into the same type job in Gulfport, a city more than double Lake Mary's population of about 5,000. She will also get a salary increase approaching $10,000 more than her present annual pay of $28,000.

During the weeks since she announced her decision to leave, Mrs. Rice says she has become certain she made the right choice.

"I feel confident I can do the job. and I'm comfortable that I'm leaving the Lake Mary city government in good order, and that (interim city manager) Jim Orioles will do a good job," Mrs. Rice said.

OPEC Decision Unlikely To Help U.S. Oil Economy

Dy Hariber Krishnen UPI Business Writer

DALLAS (UPI) - For many in America's oil patch the recent OPEC decision to curtail production by nearly 4 million barrels a day may be too little too late even if the accord salvages battered oil prices.

Some believe the OPEC action will give temporary relief to the devastated U.S. oil industry, but cautioned the Iranian. engineered agreement could easily come apart because of deep divisions within the 13-nation cartel and the failure of previous output controls.

On Aug. 4, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed to reimpose the 16 million barrel-a-day production ceiling and national output quotas that were abandoned last December when it launched a pricing war against outside producers.

The production cutback will take effect Sept. I and last only through October.

"You can't predict the future. There are plenty of mavericks like Libya that can't be counted on to observe any agreement," said James McKie. University of Texas economics professor.

Art Munk of Amoco Corp. agreed.

'You can't count all the chickens yet." he said. "It will take 30 to 45 days to see how well the agreement stacks up. If they stick to that agreement, it would be the first significant shift in Iran away from an extremely beiligerent attitude in over six years."

With current daily production of about 8 million barrels, the United States has been losing at least $120 million a day on the value of its oil during the eight-month OPEC price war.

and the drilling rig count is at an all-time low. Some idled ries are selling at 10 cents on the dollar.

Any price increase the OPEC decision generates will help some but is not likely to make an immediate dent in the monumental losses in the economies of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Alaska since oil prices plunged from $28 a barrel in December to the $10 range.

Texas is facing a $3.5 billion budget deficit caused mainly by the decline in oil severance taxes. The Texas legislature is meeting in an emergency session to find ways to close the budgetary gap. The political future of Gov. Mark White is at

Alaska, which gets 85 percent of its revenue from oil royalties and taxes, had been openly rooting for an OPEC agreement on production curbs. But state officials, grappling with a projected $900 million revenue shortfall for fiscal 1987, say the state is unlikely to see any benefits unless the OPEC accord lasts longer than two months.

W. Timothy Dowd, executive director of Oklahoma City-based Interstate Oil Compact Commission representing 29 oilproducing states, views the pact as another example of market manipulation by the oil cartel.

"It is obvious the companies are not going to rehire the thousands of people who have been terminated or retired, that OPEC has caused a major brain ourselves," Dowd said. drain, technological drain and capital drain, that the so-called free market in oil doesn't exist and that $9 crude oil is as much even $50 oil.

"If we don't have a supply Tens of thousands of jobs have capability, we have no one to

The West is where America's gasoline users are. The top five gas-using states have only two-thirds the population of the six 'least-users,' but they consume nearly 40 percent more gasoline.

Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens expects oil prices to reach $20 a barrel before year's end but not spur new exploraa manipulation by OPEC as $15 tion. He said it would take a or $35 or, as the day will come, price increase in the glutted natural gas industry to get producers drilling again.

Pickens, who pointed out that been lost, hundreds of oil wells blame for being manipulated but oil companies have scaled down their operations and will be reluctant to resume normal drilling activity, believes it will be two years before oil prices return to 1985 levels.

The OPEC agreement has markets to the $14 to $15 range - still far short of the $18 to $20 United States need to stay affoat. cant increase in drilling activity retary of natural resources, had noted earlier that at $10 a barrel the U.S. oil industry is essentially bankrupt. At $15 a barrel. the industry is in a liquidation posture.

H.F. Keplinger of Keplinger Companies in Houston, said oil prices need to be in the $22 to $25 range to salvage the domestic industry because of that oil-related companies are expected to report in the third and fourth quarters of this year.

Few think the OPEC decision will provide a major incentive for exploration activity, which has come to a virtual standstill in many areas.

"I think everyone is going to want to see that this price increase is real before they commit cash exploration dollars," said Bob Kelley, president of Noble Affiliates of Ardmore, a drilling company in Oklahoma. "It would have to be $18 to $20 a barrel."

"I don't think it will cause any drilling boom, but it will help revitalize the industry and help get a few deals off the shelf and a few drilling rigs moving." said Jack G. Swenson of the Rocky Mountain Oil and Gas Association in Denver, once an oil boom town where some former oil executives now are drawing unemployment insurance.

in Wyoming, oil drilling has dropped from a peak of 192 active rigs in early 1982 to 22 in the past two months. There are now 12,000 to 15,000 fewer jobs in the oil industry, the state's major economic sector.

The OPEC agreement "is the first bit of good news we've had boosted oil traded on world in a long time," said Rick Robitable of the Petroleum Association of Wyoming. But he price that most producers in the warned that to spur any signifi-

William Narva, president of Asamero Oil, a Denver refinery. said any price improvement will be offset by the global oil glut which is not likely to go away

"Everybody in the industry wants the price to be higher. But there are too many barrels and too many players in the busilower earnings and even losses ness. Down the road we're going to see even a more dramatic drop in prices than we saw before." Narva said.

Oil analyst Alfred Humphries believes the OPEC accord will help major oil-producing companies and countries but not the U.S. independents, many of whom are stripper well producers with severe cash flow problems.

"For many of the independents it is probably too little too late." he said.

Some see clear political overtones in the OPEC production agreement and warned of consequences other than economic for the United States.

"The Saudis had real fear put into them by Iran." said Keplinger, "It's now becoming evident that Iran is going to win its war with Iraq one way or another. "They will be the new Texas Railroad Commission (the state agency that regulates the energy industry and the forerunner of the OPEC cartel). No one in the Persian Gulf area can stand in the face of a thundering herd of 40 million Iranians." Keplinger said. George Mitchell, chairman of Mitchell Energy & Development Corp., said the OPEC decision may increase domestic drilling incentives to a "very limited extent, but it doesn't change a thing insofar as the threat to the American economy" is concerned.

Bank Robber, Hostage Blown Up In Getaway Car

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) - A bank robber, shot at by police, blew up his getaway car early Saturday and killed himself and a hostage, capping a 217-mile chase through the Finnish countryside, authorities said.

Police said nine people were injured, including four seriously by the explosion that was felt three miles away.

The gunman died along with a 35-year-old male customer who had been taken from the Helsinki bank on the zigzag chase that ended in the town of Mikkeli, 140 miles northeast of the capital, police said.

With hundreds of townspeople watching, two female bank clerks held hostage managed to escape moments before the car exploded, 14 hours after the robbery began. The robber was running out of gas and demanded more

20 Die In Car Bomb Explosion

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - An explosives laden Fiat auto exploded in west Beirut, killing at least 20 people including a family of five who burned to death in a car. It was the fourth bombing in Beirut in two weeks.

Among the hundreds of people on the streets in the predominantly Moslem sector of the Lebanese capital were Moslems traveling to Mosques for midday prayers. Friday is the Moslem sabbath.

The sources said a Fiat, packed with 110 pounds of TNT attached to mortars, exploded at the noon rush hour near the Arab University, killing 20 people, including three children, and wounding 90 others.

The three children were burned to death along with their parents in a car when the bomb blew up and triggered fires that quickly engulfed 20 vehicles.

"The school board is not going to be sued, Don Reynolds is not going to be sued, and Ned Julian is not going to be sued," Julian said. "Nobody's done anything wrong." Reynolds announced recently that a parent group had proposed the contract, which is a pledge of students involved in extracurricular activities, including athletics, at Lake Mary High School to not use controlled substances. Those suspected of substance abuse would be asked to submit to voluntary drug testing through urinalysis. As the contract stands now, Julian compared it to a pledge a smoker might sign with the American Cancer Society to participate in one of their 'smoke-out" days. If the person breaks down and has a cigarette. they face no legal consequences.

"It is a crime to possess or sell a controlled substance. The fact that a child has used a substance is not a crime, it's a tragedy,'

Julian said. He said he has had conversations about the proposed pact with Superintendent of Seminole County Schools Robert Hughes. and that Hughes has talked about it with Reynolds. Several school board members are said to have indicated sup-

Parents and school officials plan a meeting early this week to discuss the issue.

"I want to make it clear that Mr. Reynolds or any other school administrator has not made any decision which is in violation of the law, or adversely impacts the constitutional rights of any student," Julian said.

"There has been some suggestion that we've done something wrong. As far as everyone is concerned, the proposal is a tentative proposal, which is being studied by the superintendent, myself, and Mr. Reynolds, and cannot be implemented without school board approval," Julian said.

The plan "would require some policy making by the school board and decision making by the superintendent", he added.

"We're one of the first school systems in the country that has given this consideration, so we're plowing new ground," Julian said.

"Principals in Seminole County are legally free to formulate rules dealing with student relations at their schools, subject only to the limitations imposed by state law. rules of the state board of education, the school board, and controlling court decisions."

Clients for SCMHC programs, which in addition to the ones already mentioned, include in short term service: crisis intervention for persons in emergency need of mental health care, family counseling, school ourtreach - promoting self esteem and resistance of peer pressure, summer activities for children, a child abuse prevention program and outpatient services

Most short term care receivers, Ms. Werley said, have contact with the SCMHC for about three

Long term outpatient care may last a lifetime, she said. That includes continued monitoring and assistance to those who have been released from mental institutions, or who have sought mental health assistance on numerous occasions. Even if these persons do not seek mental health care, SCMHC workers are mandated by the state to monitor them and to encourage them to come in and participate in the center's activities, Ms. Werley said.

ever, she said, Sanford, Oviedo or Geneva residents would perhaps be more likely to seek such services through the nonprofit, private SCMHC facilities rather than through private profit-making hospitals or private psychiatrists, she said.

Economics is the factor there, she said. The SCMHC, which is a private corporation, operating under the approval and rules of the state department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, has a sliding scale fee range. The minimum cost for a service is $5, Ms. Werley said, and that buys about $60 worth of care.

Persons in the Altamonte Springs area, she said, have higher incomes and are more likely to seek private care. Most of the funds for SCMHC are provided through HRS grants of monies that are given to the state by the federal government, Ms. Werley said. Most communities have such facilities and additional funds come from local grants and fees. she said.

Seminole County provides some funds to contribute to SCMHC's annual $400,000 a year budget, but the bulk comes through HRS, which "contracts with" SCMHC to provide mental health care to the community.

According to 1984 to '85 statistics, 62 percent of SCMHC's mental health clients were women, while 72 percent of those who sought treatment for alcoholism were men. Of those who sought alcohol abuse treatment 95 percent were white and only 5 percent black. Blacks represent 26 percent of the mental health caseload.

Ellis' Blast Lifts West Virginia Over Florida, 3-0

Herald Sports Writer ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Pat Ellis had two hits in five trips to the plate Friday night. His second hit went about 300 feet farther than his first and, because of that, the West Virginia Junior All-Stars will be going an extra 400 miles or so this summer.

West Virginia and Florida champion Azalea Park took a scoreless tie into the top of the eighth inning in the championship game of the Junior Little League Southern Region Tournament. With two men on and two outs. Ellis, whose only other hit was a bunt single, launched a Greg Propst fastball well over the fence in left field as West Virginia claimed the title with a 3-0 victory before 601 fans at the Eastmonte Recreation Complex.

instead of heading home, West Virginia will travel the extra 400 miles to Taylor, Mich., for the Junior Little League World Series beginning Monday. West Virginia went unbeaten through the Southern Region tourney.

For seven innings Friday night. West Virginia pitcher Kevin Roberts and Azalea Park's Propst locked up in a tremendous pitching battle. Through seven frames, Roberts allowed no runs on just four hits, struck out 11 and walked three. Propst, who threw over 140 pitches in the game, held West Virginia scoreless on six hits through seven innings, striking out 10 and walking seven.

In the top of the eighth, Chris Barker and Sam Mullins drew consecutive walks for West Virginia. Mark Griffith then tried to bunt the runners up by Both teams had their chances to win in regulation but Roberts and Propst were outstanding in pitching their way out of jams.

West Virginia's first real threat came in the top of the fifth when it loaded the bases with no outs on a single to left by Abbott, Ellis' bunt single and a walk to Roberts. Propst then struck out Steve Steele for the first out and Deron Godby then lifted a fly ball to medium depth center field. Abbott tagged at third and easily beat the throw home, but he was called out for leaving third too early when Azalea Park appealed.

West Virginia would load the bases with no outs again in the top of the seventh but came up empty once again. Mitch "Piano On His Back" Black led off with a walk and Barker and Mullins followed with consecutive singles. Black had a chance to score when Abbott lined a shot to deep right field but Black didn't tag.

Bucs Host Cards

TAMPA, (UPI) - Tampa Bay and St. Louis, two clubs trying to simplify their way out of the NFC cellar, meet Saturday night in a pre-season game.

The Cardinals, 5-11, will try to recapture a contending role in the Eastern Division under new coach Gene Stailings. A 21-16 loss to New England in the Hall of Fame exhibition game last week unveiled a rookie threat in Brigham Young's Val Sikahema, who returned a punt 91 yards for a touchdown.

Both Stallings and Tampa Bay Coach Leeman Bennett have refined the playbook to eliminate confusion. The Cardinals may switch to a 4-3 defensive front while the Buccaneers, 2-14 last season, have revamped their defense under new coordinator Jim Stanley.

"Getting ready for the Cardinais last year, they ran 26 different formations just on first-and-10 and we're not going to do that," says Stallings, who worked for 14 years under Tom Landry in Dallas.

Despite the Buccaneers' failure to sign Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson, Bennett will stick to his plan for a 2-back offense. Veteran Ron Springs, used sparingly last year, will play a bigger role in '86 next to James Wilder and Steve Young will start the opening pre-season game at quarterback ahead of

Steve DeBerg. "Now with Ron Springs, who appears to be motivated and ready, we feel we can become a true multiple set attack that will put more pressure on defenses preparing to play us."

Guard Sean Farrell will miss the exhibition season for the Buccaneers due to arthroscopic knee surgery, but ex-Jet Marvin Powell will start at left tackle. Rookie linebackers Jackie Walker and Kevin Murphy and first round draft pick Rod Jones, a hard-hitting cornerback, will also see extensive action. Tampa Bay was 0.9 last November when the Cardinals came to Tampa Stadium and suffered an embarrassing 16-0 setback. St. Louis linebacker E.J. Juntor says that loss was symptomatic of the club's general complacency.

We were coming off a high in the '84 season," he says. "We had a chance to go to the playoffs and lost by two points to the Redskins in our final game. We felt we were still on the upswing last year and were in the right position to move up, but we didn't do it.

The Buccaneers are hoping Walker, the Southwestern Athletic Conference Defensive Player of the Year, will provide a steady pass rush as a blitzing outside linebacker.

Rookie Salisbury Throws Pair Of TD Passes To Lift Seahawks

United Press International Sean Salisbury, an undrafted rookie from Southern California, fired a pair of second-quarter touchdown passes to lead the Seattle Seahawks to a 21-14 victory Friday over the Indianapolis Colts in the NFL presesson opener for Salisbury, battling with NFL veteran Paul McDonald for the No. 3 quarterback spot on the Seahawks' roster, connected with Gordon Hudson on a two-year touchdown pass, and with Byron Franklin on a 20-yard scoring toes to give the Seahawks a 14-0 halftime lead.

Seattle got its final score on a 2-yard run by Rick Parros, giving the Scahawks a 21-7 advantage with 2:50 left in the third period.

The Colts scored on a 25-yard touchdown pass from six-year veteran Gary Hogeboom, who was acquired in the offseason from Dallas, to Ricky Nichols in the third period, and on a I-yard run by Albert Bentley late in the fourth quarter.

In another exhibition game, second-year quarterback Randall Cunningham ran 17 yards for a thirdquarter touchdown to lead the Philadelphia Eagles to a 17-9 victory over the Detroit Lions in the exhibition opener for both teams.

Cunningham, who entered the game in the third quarter, gave the Eagles a 14-9 lead at 13:27 of the third when he faked a pass and raced into the end zone untouched.

Paul McFadden kicked a 29-yard field goal with two minutes left in the game to help seal the victory in Buddy Ryan's debut as the Eagles coach.

"I'm happy with the outcome, but we're still a long ways off," Ryan said. "I thought we tried hard and that's all you can ask.

"We made a lot of dumb mistakes on defense and some mistakes on offense. We're still doing things that you can't do and win. We'll straighten them

Eddle Murray converted a 53-yard field goal at 9:15 of the third quarter to give Detroit a 9-7 edge. Quarterback Joe Ferguson set up the kick with a

Murray sandwiched field goals around a Ron Jaworski 45-yard TD pass to Mike Waters for a 7-6 Philadelphia lead.

In other training-camp news:
At Oxnard, Calif., Los Angeles Raiders coach Tom Flores has decided to that Marc Wilson will start in Sunday's exhibition opener against the San Francisco 49ers, with Rusty Hilger playing the second half. Veteran Jim Plunkett will not play, but will start against Dallas Aug. 16 with Hilger playing the second half.

"The reason for this is quite obvi-ous." Flores said. "We want to see Rusty Hilger and give him more than a half. We just decided after considerable discussion that if you play three quarterbacks, two of them get shortchanged."

drawn the starting quarterback assignment forthe New Orleans Saints' exhibition opener Saturday against Denver. Bobby Hebert will quarterback in the second half.

New Saints coach Jim Mora said there was no particular reason for choosing Wilson, a five-year veteran.

"We just decided to do it this way. he said. "Starting Wilson doesn't mean he's done anything to beat anybody out."

At Kansas City, Mo., two quarterbacks entering their first full season as starters meet Saturday night when the Kansas City Chiefs play the Cincinnati Bengals.

The Chiefs will start Todd Blackledge while Boomer Estason will start for Cincinnati. Neither will play long, however. Blackledge, who started six games last year, will give way to Frank Seurer in the second half. Esiason, who started 14 games in 1985, is slated to play a little over a quarter. Veteran Ken Anderson and rookies Sandy Oslecki and Doug rawn the starting quarterback At San Diego. the Dallas Cowboys meet the San Diego Chargers, minus some key ingredients they hope to count on during the regular season. The Cowboys won't have running back Herschel Walker and wide receiver Mike Sherrard in the lineup, and San Diego's defense is still unsettled.

Walker announced Thursday he was asking out of his USFL contract and would like to join the Cowboys by the start of the regular season. Also on Thursday, Dalias signed first-round draft choice Sherrard, but the UCLA product won't play Saturday.

At Latrobe. Pa., the Pittsburgh Steelers voted unanimously to be tested for drugs within the next two weeks. The Steelers had rejected mandatory drug testing Thursday

At Cleveland, the Browns are waiting for permission from the NFL to talk to two USFL players, wide receiver Gerald McNeil and linebacker Mike

John's Sinker Baffles Reference to the Barrier to the Barr

United Press International

Tommy John, the victim of a Yankees youth movement in spring training. Friday night created a spot for himself in New York's drive for the American League pennant.

John, making his first major-league appearance since going on the disabled list in June, hurled a five-hitter over 7 2-3 innings to lift the Yankees to a 2-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

John, 43, was invited to the Yankees' springtraining camp, but failed to make the team. The subsequent pitching problems of the young Yankees hurlers made the left-handed sinkerball pitcher more attractive to the front office. He signed as a free agent with New York on May 2 and went on the 21-day disabled list June 12 with a strained left Achilles tendon.

Willie Randolph hit a home run and Dave Winfield threw out a runner at home plate to help John improve his lifetime mark against Kansas

City to 16-7. Red Soz 6, Tigere 1

At Detroit, Tom Seaver hurled a five-hitter and Marty Barrett's RBI single - the only hit of the inning - capped a four-run second for Boston. Seaver improved his record to 5-10. Randy O'Neal dropped to 1.7.

Indians 3, Orioles O

At Baltimore, Julio Franco cracked a two-run homer and Tom Candiotti Improved to 11-8 for the Indians. Ernic Comacho earned his 15th save. he victory ended a five-game losing streak for Cleveland. Baltimore dropped to five games behind Boston in the AL East. White Soz 12, Brewers 6

At Milwaukee. Daryl Boston drove in four runs and hit his first home run of the season for Chicago. The game featured seven homers, including two by Milwaukee's Rob Deer. Joe Cowley went six innings to improve to 8-6. Gene Nelson picked up his fourth save. Danny Darwin, 6-8, lasted 2 2-3 innings.

Richmond Blazes To Fastest Winston Cup Qualifying Time

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Tim Richmond averaged over 117 mph Friday to head a list of 20 drivers qualifying for Sunday's NASCAR Winston Cup, the first stock car race at Watkins Glen since 1967.

Richmond finished at 117.563 mph to take the top position, followed by Dale Waltrip, who clocked 116.625 mph. Harry Gant finished third at 116.143 mph. Defending Indy car champion Al Unser Sr., driving

Buddy Baker's Oldsmobile, qualified sixth. Richmond, who has won two of his last four races and placed second in another, drove through many of the turns of the 2.4-mile course without slowing down.

"If I ever figure it out," he said, referring to the course,
"I'll probably slow down."

Fourteen drivers missed the cut Friday. Some may attempt to qualify Saturday. The qualifying heats were marred by an accident involving Bill Elliott, who crashed his Ford Thunderbird during his early trials. The car was severely damaged, but Elliott was unhurt. Elliott did not complete his laps and will get a chance

Saturday, track officials said.

Neil Bonnett, nearing the finish line to complete the 4-hour qualifying trials, came out of the last turn with a malfunctioning engine that began to flame.

Bonnett coasted into the pits and quickly jumped from the car as track crews doused flames just minutes before a thunderstorm drenched the track. He was not hurt.

Juniors: Moore Upsets Hattori

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (UPI) - Adele Moore upset National Women's Amateur champion Michiko Hattori Friday and will meet Pat Hurst in the finals of the 38th U.S. Girls' Junior golf Championship at Peach Tree Golf and Country

Moore edged Hattori of Nagoya, Japan. 1-up. in her quarterfinal match. The match was decided on the 18th hole when Hattori hit her second shot over the green and out of bounds. Moore won the hole and the match with a

Hurst, from San Leandro. Calif., birdled five holes on the second nine in her semifinal match with Michele Lyford of Redlands, Calif., to erase a three-hole deficit and won the match on the first extra hole.

Lyford held the lead until the 14th hole, where Hurst chipped in from 45 feet out to close to within two. A birdle on No. 15 closed the margin to one hole. She caught Lyford with a birdle on 18 and won when she sunk a three-foot birdle putt on the first extra hole.

Moore carned her spot in the final when she ousted Tricia Konz of Chandler, Ariz., 4 and 3. Moore was 5-under-par in the 15-hole match, with six birdles to her credit.

Earlier in the day, Hurst defeated 13-year-old Victoria Goetze of Hull, Ga., 2 and 1 in a quarterfinal match.

Another England Soccer Brawl

LONDON (UPI) - Nearly 150 rival English soccer fans battled with knives and broken bottles aboard a North Sea ferry early Friday in a drunken, bloody brawl that left four people seriously injured.

NASCAR Benefits Drought Victims

Members of the NASCAR Winston Cup circuit decided, while preparing for the Talladega 500 at Alabama International Speedway, to take one of their few weekends off and help North Carolina's farmers. whose crops have been devastated by the state's worst drought in a century.

On August 1, a convoy of tractor trailers driven by the same men who transport the Winston Cup cars around the country, left for southern Ohio where 30,000 bales of hay awaited them. After the trucks returned to North Carolina, they hay was driven to the North Carolina Department of Agriculture for distribution.

The governor of Ohio met the drivers when they arrived and along with Richard Petty, Tim Richmond and many of the other drivers, helped load the trucks with hay. The idea for the hay run came when it was reme ked by NASCAR members on how dry it had become and that the farmers needed help. "We thought this would be something neat racing could do for the farmers aas the the convoy's organizers.

Veteran Coach Ramsay To Pilot Pacers

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) - Jack Ramsay, an 18-year NBA coaching veteran. Friday was named coach of the Indiana Pacers, a move that once again makes him the winningest active coach in the league.

Ramsay, 61, has 785 NBA victories with three teams over 18 seasons. He left Portland this summer after 10 years with the Trail Blazers. The only coach with more NBA victories is Red Auerbach, who coached Boston to 938 victories before moving Into the team's management.

Ramsay's teams have had losing records just four times and only missed the playoffs three times. By comparison, the Pacers have had just one winning season in 10 years of NBA competition.

"He has won quickly at organizations that had losing seasons previous to him coming," Pacers General Manager Donnie Walsh said. "For this team he is the perfect coach. He is a teacher. He is a coach who will assume responsibility for the leadership of this team.'

On Friday, Ramsay was concluding a basketball camp at Willamette University in Salem. Ore., but was expected to arrive in Indianapolis Saturday.

Walsh sald Ramsay's age would not be a factor in his committment, long or short term, with the Pacers.

"I'm certainly not taking anything away from Jack because of his age," Walsh said. "He is the youngest 60-year-old man I have ever seen." Ed Badger of Boston, Dick Harter of Detroit and Jerry Sloan of Utah — all NBA assistant coaches — were also interviewed for the job. Sloan later asked not to be considered.

Ramsay becomes the Pacers' third coach in four years. Jack McKinney, a former assistant at Portland under Ramsay, was fired by Indiana in 1984 and replaced by George Irvine, Irvine resigned July 29 to become the Pacers' director of player personnel, ending a stormy two-season coaching career with a 48-116 record.

Walsh said he learned to respect Ramsay's coaching while he coached against Ramsay at Denver.

"They are great at executing what (Ramsay) wants them to Walsh said. "They will rarely beat themselves. Depending on his talent, his defense is very good and his offense is very effective."

Ramsay confirmed Thursday he was a candidate for the job and said he was optimistic about ing, despite last year's 26-56 record. He termed the Pacers "a team on the move."

"It's rebuilding in a sense. It needs to move forward and has to add some more talent, but I am interested because they can be better than last year. They're not far from being turned

"I really had no intention of getting back into coaching this year, but my conversations with the Indiana Pacers have revived those interests somewhat." Ramsay said.

Ramsay coached from 1955-66 at St. Joseph's (Pa.) University, where he compiled a 234-72 record coaching the team he played for in the late 1940s.

In 1968, Ramsay received his first NBA coaching job at Philadelphia, where he had winning records and playoff appearances in three of four seasons. In 1972, he became coach of the Buffalo Braves and guided the team to three winningarances in four years.

Ramsay took over in Portland for the 1976-77 season and coached the Trail Blazers to their only NBA championship. He departed this summer after compiling a 40-42 record in his 10th season there.

definitions (just to finish up what

• Nassan: The most commonly played game, played at either match, medal or both. It's three matches in one - a winner of the front nine holes, the back nine and the full 18 holes.

Rudy

• Appearance: The honor on the tee, after the first hole, a bonus for winning the previous

• Snake: Goes to the player who last three-putts a green and who then must pay all the others for this poorly-timed misdeed.

• High-low: Not only worth more money, it keeps everybody playing in each hole. If both players on team A make a four, and both players on team B make fives, team A records a four and a six, and team B has two fives. The four beats one of the fives, but one of the fives beats the six - no blood; a 'wash.'

• Skins: About as common as the Nassan, is not really a team game - it's more like an individual, except you need at least three players in it. The winner of the low ball on a a hole gets a skin from each of the other players in the group. A skin is also called a seat, cat and cut.

Winless Walton Tied For Lead

HIGH POINT, N.C. (UPI) Robin Walton, winless after eight years on the LPGA circuit, enters the third round of the Henredon Classic today tied for the lead with Betsy King, one of the tour's most consistent money winners.

"It's certainly been a little frustrating to be out on tour this long and not win." said Walton. whose best finish in more than 170 LPGA events is a tie for fourth four years ago.

"I've got some talent and I'm a smart player," Walton said Friday. "And I'm not a basket case, so it looks like I should have done something.

Thursday's opening round. bogeyed the 18th hole Friday and finished with a 69 for a two-round total of 7-under 137 in the $230,000 event.

has won more than $640,000 in this position."

during the past three years, clenched five victories in 1984 and 1985 but is winless this year.

"That's a little frustrating." King said. "But I'm more concerned with how many times I can get near the top than with how many times I win. When I finish in the top ten I feel like I've had a good week and if you're up there enough, your time will come."

Joanne Carner, Chris Johnson, and Kris Monaghan Walton, a co-leader after were at 6-under and Jane Geddes, the U.S. Open champ, was two shots back Friday at the 6.244-yard, par-72 course at Willow Creek Country Club.

Cuddly Kittens, Feisty Puppies Give Patients Reason To Recover

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

Dogs as well as other pets may truly be man's best friend when it comes to offering unconditional love and companionship. This link to love has recently been opened for some elderly patients at West Lake Hospital in Longwood.

One day each week cuddly puppies and kittens are brought to this psychiatric facility to snuggle with patients. The pets are from the Seminole County Humane Society and are looking for permanent homes. But in the meantime, those puppies and kittens also benefit from the attention they receive in these hospital calls, according to West Lake activities therapist Judy Coughlin.

Even hospital staffers, Mrs. Coughlin said, look forward to pet day and "get excited when the pupples are in the building. I also think when the staff see the patients responding to the pets they get a different view of the patients and they're more open to the patients. So it's not just for the patients. It's also for the staff and the pets. I always look forward to it. We have a good time."

Pet therapy started when cavemen allowed wolves to share their shelter for warmth and companionship. In the 1940s benefits of contact with pets were becoming known, but West Lake's Mona Yockus, RNBSN, said it wasn't until a couple of years ago that pet therapy programs were brought into hospitals and nursing homes.

Mrs. Yockus, who has been on the West Lake staff since the hospital opened in 1984, said, "This was an idea I talked about before the hospital opened. It's something I feel strongly about. It's something that's a really good way to facilitate communication among human beings.

"Many times depressed patients will be non verbal to humans and will be almost catatonic. If you give them a little animal to hold, before long they're petting the animal. There's interaction with the animal. Then after awhile if you're the same person bringing the animal back each time they'll start to relate to you more. You can start a conversation with something about the animal. Something that's very benign and can't be threatening to them. From there communication can open up. So it's a facilitating tool.

"It can take you're mind off your troubles. They're notorious entertainers. You can watch a little puppy or kitten frolicking and no matter how upset or blue you might feel, just for that moment you can laugh. We've seen a lot of depressed patients that respond."

"I've noticed." Mrs. Coughlin said. "there are definitely people who do not respond at all to the kittens or dogs and they have not responded to anything since they've been here. I feel this is a good assessment tool to see how they respond."

"Also," Mrs. Yockus said, "you can notice if they have a negative response. If they back away from the animal, it tells you a lot. There's a strong link in how people relate to animals and how they relate to children and other people. You can tell a lot about people in how they deal with animals."

Those who prefer dogs over cats, she said, are usually more outgoing. And most, she said, are either dog lovers or cat lovers. The person who likes both equally well is rare.

The patients are told in advance that the pets are being brought in for a morning visit, Mrs. Yockus said.

"Not the majority of them. but a few look forward to the pets coming." Mrs. Coughlin said.

One patient said the visits remind her very much of her own pet, which is being cared for by someone else. "After pet therapy today, she went back and got her pictures of her pet and brought them out and showed them to all of us. It generates a lot of interest," Mrs. Yockus said.

"We had a patient about a month ago who expressed a desire to go to the Humane Society the next day to see about adopting a pet." Mrs. Coughlin said.

"We also have a former patient who now works for the Humane Society as a volunteer. It helps them, because it's something for them to do after they leave here and it all stems from he pet therapy program here. She's doing very well and from what I understand is an

West Lake Hospital pet therapy program has been active for about two months and Humane Society volunteers also take animals for visits to area nursing homes and other facilities where there are persons who have limited opportunity for this type of contact with pets, Mrs. Yockus said.

Most persons benefit from contact with pets, she said. And that isn't limited to just imitating known characters, he gradually developed a style of his own. He credits his 11-year-old-sister, Marci, with helping his characters evolve. He stated that she was a "very tough critic" and if she liked a character everyone would like it.

When asked what cartoonist he most admired

he was quick to say Walt Disney. Like Disney, Elliot is also a film maker. His animated film "Color Me Blue" won the Seminole County Media Specialist Award for high school students last spring and will go to the state contest this fall.

"I identify with Walt Disney," Elliot stated, "Like me, he started as a cartoonist. Also, like me, his parents did not encourage him to make this his career. I used to go to Disney movies and dream one day my name would be up there on the screen!"

An honor student at LMHS. Elliot also enjoys writing short stories and poetry. Of course, his favorite hobby is collecting comic books. To date, he owns about 500 books which are carefully wrapped in plastic bags. They fill the numerous shelves of his room and are stored in boxes and his closet. In his collection he has several worth $30 and $40. The comic book artist he likes most is Wendy Pini, who is famous for her books and drawings depicting elves.

"Most people think of elves only as little people," said Elliot who stands over 6 feet tall. "Not true, most elves are tall and elegant. They are fantasy creatures who love nature, art, and all things beautiful."

'Most people think of elves only as little people. Not true, most elves are tall and elegant. They are fantasy creatures who love nature, art, and all things beautiful.'

His own comic book titled "Pixel," naturally a story of the adventures of elves, was presented a blue robbon by the National Scholastic Art Awards judges last year and sent to New York to compete with art work from students all over the country. A cartoon painting he did will also be featured as one of the 12 pictures in the Empire of America Federal Savings Bank's 1987 publicity calendar. He has had his work published in the Lake Mary High School newspaper. The Rampage, and in the Sunday comic section of the Orlando Sentinel.

Elliot understands that cartooning is not all fun and games. He studies art seriously. This summer he is taking art classes at Rollins college, and this fall he has signed up for two classes of art at Lake Mary High School. He particularly enjoys studying anatomy and figure drawing.

After high school he hopes to attend either Pratt Institute of Art of Columbus School of Art and Design. If talent and desire to excel mean anything, then Elliot's dream of seeing his name on the big screen like his idol, Walt Disney, may not be a dream after all, but a reality.

Elementary School Welcomes Assistant Principal To Staff

When students and teachers at Lake Mary Elementary School return to class this fall they will have a new assistant principal. James Burnham. Lake Mary is his first administrative assignment. He transferred to this position from Sabal Point Elementary School where he had been a third and fifth grade teacher. His main duties will be in the fields of curriculum, state assessment testing, text books, scheduling, discipline, and some teacher evaluations.

A graduate of Indiana University, and the University of Central Florida. Burnham moved to Florida in 1979. He. along with his wife Janet, and two daughters. Jessica and Jennifer, live in Longwood.

Burnham sees Lake Mary Elementary School as a very community-oriented school with traditions deeply rooted in the past but always looking to the future. He feels that. in a rapidly changing and growing community, exciting things can happen in educa-

Bayhead Racquet Club has been a beehive of activity this summer. Tennis pro Steve Pelletier is especially proud of his Junior Program.

Shea Whigham has had an outstanding summer. He won the 18-year-old division of the St. Andrews Junior Tournament in Boca Raton, and got to the semi-finals of the Imperial Lakes Junior Tournament. His brother Jack, who is only 9, has been playing all of his tournaments in the 12-year-old division. He reached the quarter finals of the Imperial Lakes Tournament. Other achievers this summer have been Josh Lewis, Chad Perce, Shawn Perce and Jay Adcock.

Also practicing hard this summer have been the Women's Doubles Teams. Although their competitions do not begin until the middle of September, the ladies have been attending clinics, and playing matches every week. Joanna Bass explained that the level of women's tennis has become so good in Central Florida that in order to be competitive, serious practice is required.

The smell of grease paint and roar of paper lions brought down the final curtain on the City of Lake Mary's summer recreational program. Children became clowns, animals, and trapeze artists as they created circus acts to entertain their parents and Mayor Dick Fess. Program director Mary Carpenter served refreshments to all. New and old friends said goodbyc until they meet again when school starts later this month.

Construction is progressing smoothly at Heathrow's new $4 million tennis and recreational complex. The Racquet Club at Heathrow. When completed, the club will have 20 tennis courts with center court reserved for tournament play. Also at the complex there will be a competition pool with a diving well and a nearby playground for children.

President of the Club and Recreational Division of Heathrow Land and Development Corporation, Bruce Nelson, stated that the club will open in September. He, along with tournament promotor, Wendell Niles, is looking forward to the grand opening of the club that will be held during The Royal Tennis Grand Prix celebrity tennis tournament scheduled for October 24-26.

'Bell' Honored At Open House

Eva Beil Williams doesn't look anything like 85.

Nor does the petite, spry octogenarian act her age. Especially on Sunday, Aug. 3 when she was honored at open house on her 85th birthday. Wearing a pretty pink print gown, the vivacious honoree greeted the guests with the same enthusiasm as one might expect from an excited young girl ready for the senior prom.

The parlors at Bram Towers, setting for the festive celebration, were gaily decorated in shades of orchid and purple festoons draped from the ceilings. Floral arrangements of variegated shades of purple and pink were used to enhance the decor. Roses formed the numerals "85" on the large purple and orchid birthday sheet cake. A variety of party food was served for refreshments during the appointed hours, 2-5 p.m.

Being 700 Comfortable 11:00 a.m. $20 p.m. It is sometimes good to be uncomfortable.

Being content in all situations and surroundings could denote a lack of growth.

Learning is an ageless avocation, and to be eager to learn could require some hours of being uncomfortable, like homework for a youngster is often for them a very unpopular task, although necessary if they are to learn and grow to maturity.

Those "satisfied with everything like it is" rarely contribute to new creations or accept challenges that help their fellowman.

Making sure that their mundane way of life is not upset means not "rocking the boat" or "making waves," in other words, not getting involved.

Stronger, more creative, venturesome and alert people get interested in others. They want to know more about the world in which they live, and yes, about the eternal life.

They want visions of truth, for they know that one day they must move from this planet, and are eager to hear about a future life. That's why they go to Church. They know there are people there on the same search, and that there are learned men and women of the cloth to heip them.

Church Seeks Music Groups To Perform At Fall Festival

Folk music groups, gospel and church choirs from the Sanford area are being sought to perform on the final day of the All Souls Catholic Church Fall Festival to be held Oct. 3-5 on the church grounds.

We want to make our festival a community-wide celebration," said Karen Morton, who is co-chairman along with Joan Hoening, "and we want to keep it in context with Christian values. What better way than a songfest?"

While Sunday will feature gospel groups and choirs, anyone interested in performing may also schedule a time on Friday or Saturday.

The festival will feature life entertainment free to the public on all three days. There will also be games, food, drinks, a Kiddieland for the children and rides.

Those wishing to perform at the festival should contact Mrs. Morton at 321-4307. Other information is available from Mrs. Morton or by calling Mrs. Hoening at 323-1488.

Sharing Center Benefit Set

There will be a performance of The Witness on Saturday, August 23 at 8 p.m. at St. Stephen Lutheran Church, 2140 W. State Road 434. Longwood (just west of Interstate 4) to benefit the South Seminole Christian Sharing Center. The musical, directed by Don Schafhauser, is a presentation of the life of Christ as seen through the eyes of Peter and the other disciples.

All proceeds will benefit the center, which is located at 107 E. Church Ave., Longwood. The sharing center was founded as a community effort to respond to families and individuals in desperate need. Tickets are available at the sharing center or at the door. Call 339-5208 or 260-9155 for details.

Baha'i Children Study Faith

The Baha'i children of the Greater Orlando area including Seminole County, ranging in age from 3-9 years and from many different national backgrounds, gathered July 21-25 to learn about their faith, which teaches the oneness of God, religion and mankind. The week was dedicated to Mona Mahmudnizad, who loved children and gave her life at the age of 16 for the Baha'i Faith in Iran. June 18, 1983.

Mona and her father were arrested in 1982 by armed Islamic revolutionary guards. She refused to recant her faith and was hanged. The program focused on writings of the Baha'l Faith.

Vacation Bible School

Lake Mary Nazarene Church at 171 E. Crystal Lake Drive, Lake Mary, will hold a Vacation Bible School Monday through Friday 6:30 to 9 p.m. The nightly schedule for preschool through young teens will include fun times of crafts and recreation as well as learning experiences from the Bible. According to the director, Sharon Hayes, the theme will be "Learning from Bible Heroes."

Church Pastor Dan Hayes invites the public to take advantage of this summertime adventure.

Bible School Begins

The Vacation Bible School of First United Methodist Church. 419 Park Ave., Sanford, is scheduled to begin Monday and conclude Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the church's educational building. According to the director, Nancy Grantham, all children age 21/2 through fifth grade are invited to attend. The daily schedule will include arts and crafts, music, recreation, classes and refreshments. There is no charge and children may pre-register by calling Jo Tyler, the church's diaconal minister of education at 322-4371.

Women's Club Brunch Set

Altamonte-Maitland Christian Women's Club will feature "Clowning Around" at its Aug. 14 brunch at 9:30 a.m. at the Maitland Civic Center. Kathy Miller of Orlando will sing and Carolyn Pruitt of Orange Park will speak on "Put on a Happy Face." For brunch and nursery reservations call JoAnne Hammond at 339-3956.

Noted Author To Speak

Brookside/Parkside Lodge of Orlando will present the Rev. John Keller in a program on spirituality at Trinity Lutheran Church Wednesday, Aug. 20 at 7 p.m. Keller is the executive director of the Lutheran Center for Substance Abuse, Chicago, Ill., and is president of the Parkside Alcohol Research Foundation and Chairman of the Parkside Medical Services Clinical Council. He is author of several books including: Let Go. Let God. Alcohol: A Family Affair, Minstering to Alcoholics, and Drinking Problems.

Court Upholds Falwell's Award

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — A federal appeals court has upheld a $200,000 award for television evangelist Jerry Falwell, who claimed a Hustler magazine parody that portrayed him as an incestuous drunkard caused him emotional distress.

Attorneys for Hustler Publisher Larry Flynt are expected to appeal to the Supreme Court because the jury awarded damages to innocent of libel.

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday upheld the lower court because the First Amendment gives the press protection from honest mistakes, but it is not a license to lie."

The ad, first published in November 1983, was a take-off on the Campari liquor campaign in which celebrities talked of Falwell talked of getting drunk before distress." sermons and having sex with his mother in an outhouse.

While the jury agreed with Flynt's attorneys that the ad was not libelous because it was too far-fetched to be taken seriously. it also found the parody did not qualify as opinion and was not protected under the First Amendment right to free speech.

"The issue then becomes what form the Falwell even though it found Hustler First Amendment protection should take in an action for intentional infliction of emotional distress," the court wrote. "The defendants argue that Falwell must prove that the parody was published with knowing falsity or reckless disregard for the truth.

... While we agree that the same level of protection is due the defendants, we do not believe that the literal application of the malice standard ... is appropriate in an "their first time." In the Hustler parody, action for intentional infliction of emotional

Flynt's attorneys lost on a number of other grounds as well.

They failed to get a deposition from Flynt in which he said he wanted to "assasinate" Falwell's integrity thrown out on grounds that Flynt was not mentally competent at the time. The appeals court ruled his attorneys should have made that move at the original trial.

The panel also rejected Flynt's arguments that Falwell had not sufficiently proved he suffered emotional distress.

The panel quoted Falwell's testimony from the original trial - "I have never been as angry" and "I really think that at that moment if Larry Flynt had been nearby I might have physically reacted" - and said the law does not require a person to have had a nervous breakdown to prove emotional distress.

Message In Music

Choir Three of Allen Chapel AME Church, 1203 Olive Ave., Sanford, will present a sermon in songs this Sunday at 11 a.m.

Henry "Prez" Debose will be guest soloist. The Rev. John H. Woodard is pastor.

Tony Curtis

Concert Scheduled

Tony Curtis will bring his variety of musical skills to Central Baptist Church, 1311 Oak Ave., Sanford, at 7 p.m. this Sunday. One of the original PTL Club singers, he toured with the Christian singing group Turning Point as a vocalist and featured keyboard artist.

Originally from Tennessee, he now lives in Orlando. He is a songwriter and producer using some of his own compositions as well as traditional hymns and contemporary numbers in his concerts. Previous to full time music evangelism. Curtis was with Kids of the Kingdom at Walt Disney World.

The service is open to the public.

Saving History

Working Towards The Future By Remembering The Past

By Jane Cascelberry Herald Staff Writer

History as important, not just for the sake of the past, but for the present and future as well, according to Cecil Tucker of Sanford, president of the newly formed Seminole County Historical Society and a member of the county Historical Commission.

'Our intent is that the Historical Society complement and supplement work of the Historical Commission." Tucker explained. "It provides an area where all interested people in the county can take part, while there are only 10 commission members appointed by the Seminole County Commission.

"We are not interested in creating just another group, our interest is in complementing that we already have," he added.

The area is growing so fast and developers are moving forward so rapidly some of the important historical sites are being lost forever, because of a lack of manpower and time to research and designate them. This doesn't necessarily mean we would stop a developer, but certain artifacts and structures are of enough importance they may need to be preserved. Often they can be incorporated in the development plans if we start early enought in the planning process.

'Take downtown Sanford. Some of the old buildings have been restored and are as modern as a brand new building and some are better built ... take the unique Pico Building for instance," he said.

A Florida cracker, whose roots grow deep in the sandy soil of east Orange County, Tucker got interested in the history of this particular area because of his pioneer heritage. His family came to the community of Christmas in 1866, 29 years after Fort Christmas was built during the Seminole Indian Wars.

His great-great-grandfather was one of the original settlers. "It's my opinion that some of my family was involved in the Seminole Indian Wars and that is what brought them to this area," Tucker said. "I am researching it to tie it down. My supposedly killed in the Seminole Indian Wars."

Another one of his personal research projects is on the history of Turtle Mound. "It was known as Mt. Tucker, 1765-1840, so I have the feeling it was named after some of my ancestors. It was later referred to William Bartram in some of his writings as 'Mt. Turtle,'" he said.

Tucker said. "One of the problems write a book about it. Tucker was great-great-great-grandfather was you run into in family tradition and generally accepted stories often don't come out to be completely straight when you try to document and that makes it difficult to competely document.' With his and his family's background in cattle and citrus. Tucker is interested in researching early agriculture in Seminole County and central Florida and is planning to

For about 50 years the Christmas Post Office was "all in the family." His mother, Juanita Tucker, grandmother, Lizzie Simmons Tucker (a native of Chuluota) and grandfather, A.F. Drew Tucker all served as postmaster or postmistress. His mother, during her 42 years tenure instituted the tradition of stamping the Christmas tree cachet on envelopes during the holiday season and put the little town on the map. Each year the post office was inundated with mail from all over the country to be stamped with the Christmas postmark and cachet and remailed.

"The history of Fort Christmas gets in your blood." Tucker said. When you start looking into family history it makes want to know more about the area history.

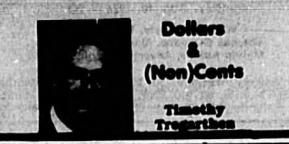

"Seminole County is rich in history because of its navigable waterway, the St. Johns River became a gateway to south and central part of the state. We haven't, in my opinion, developed the proper importance of Sanford to the development of the state.

One of the problems is documenting needed records. Many have been destroyed by fire and Tucker suspects some of the fires were set deliberately by the criminal element wishing to destroy evidence.

We are beginning to recover a lot of old records stashed away for many years. As they become available I hope to uncover facts concerning the Seminole Indian Wars." he said.

On the Historical Commission for three years. Tucker was chairman of the committee to form the Historical Society. He has also been active setting up the agricultural display in the Seminole County Historical Museum and in putting on the Seminole County History Fair for the past two years. He presented slides on the history of county agriculture at the fair and demonstrated the use of bullwhip used by early cowboys that earned them the name "cracker"

Tax Cutters: Reform Will Have No Effect

The key premise underlying the current House-Senate conference on tax reform is the Static Revenue Assumption.

The conferees assume that changes in the tax system will have no economic effects. A cut in income tax rates is assumed to have no effect on the amount of income earned. Increased taxes on investmen! income are assumed to have no effect on investment.

The assumption is so critical that detectives Joe Thursday and Frank Grammon, stars of the not-yet-popular Dragnet spinoff. Net, have already been called in to enforce it:

Thursday: "This is the city. Los Angeles, California. They call it the City of Angels. Sometimes some of the angels can be pretty taxing. That's where I come in. I carry a badge.'

Thursday: "Friday, 9:32 a.m. My partner and I had gotten in late. August is always a slow month. Not much to do, not much to come in for. We were startled to find an urgent message. The boss, Captain Mel Fix, had been waiting to see us for over an hour. He wanted us in his office.

Fix: "Nice of you boys to drop around. I hope police work isn't getting in the way of your leisure Grammon: "Sorry, Captain. We dallied over a business breakfast at Chez Pierre. We figured that with so little going on down here and the fact that it's going to be tougher to eat out under the new tax bill, we might as well order the extra blueberry croissants. The wife says those little blueberry units are ...'

Fix: "Shut up, Frank. You guys know anything about the Static Revenue Assumption?"

Grammon: "Say what?"

Fix: "The Static Revenue Assumption. The idea is that changes in the tax law aren't supposed to change anyone's behavior. It makes it easier to figure out how much people are doing under the old rate, Multiply by the new rate, and you have the estimated revenue impact to be used in determining that the tax reform bill will be revenue neutral."

Grammon: "Say what?"

Fix: "Shut up, Frank. Anyway, we've got word that a lot of folks are planning to make adjustments, change their behavior. Our job is to stop them.'

Grammon: "Why do we have to do this, boss? Heck, I can't even balance a checkbook."

Fix: "Neither can Congress. Go."

Thursday: "We headed out. We had a tip that members of an investment club in Encino were planning to sell some of their stock now, rather than selling it next year and paying the whopping increase in capital gains taxes called for in the tax reform proposal."

Grammon: "You know, Joe, I just can't figure it. People are bound to earn more income if you don't tax it as much. If you assume they won't, then it seems like you'll overestimate how much revenue you'll lose by lowering taxes. And then you'll raise taxes on businesses too much to make up for it. It just doesn't figure, Joe."

Thursday: "I don't know if it figures or not,

Frank. But I do know one thing." Grammon: "What's that, Joe?" Thursday: "It's the law."

Thursday: "Ten-fourteen a.m. We spotted the suspect investment club members having coffee at Mel's Diner. We took a table next to them. We listened."

Thursday: "Ten-nineteen a.m. They started discussing an early sale. Something about getting in ahead of the tax increase." Thursday: "Hold it, gang. You're under arrest."

Startled man: "On what charge, Officer?"

Thursday: "We're taking you in on a 1044-X. Violation of the Static Revenue Assumption. You sell your stock now, you don't sell it next year. The tax boys are assuming you'll sell next year, just like always. You guys are going to foul up the whole revenue enhancement part of the tax package. Next thing you know, you'll be working harder, fouling up the assumed revenue loss from cuts in personal rates."

'Immersion' Language Training Set For 1st Graders

By Patricia McCormack United Press International

Very special children shuffling off to school for the first time in Montgomery County. Md., will have it about twice as tough as other first graders this fall.

Or maybe they'll have it twice as good - from a linguistic point of

Some of these kids will learn the 3 Rs in French. Others will master the fundamentals in Spanish.

Even small talk will be in the chosen foreign language. These first-graders will neither speak nor write English in class. And that's exactly what their parents wanted when they signed the children up for this unusual immersion in foreign language, says Mimi Met, foreign language coordinator of the county schools.

These kids are lucky, to hear Met tell it. Just two out of the county's 100 elementary schools offer the unusual all-French and all-Spanish courses and there are waiting lists.

Admission to the program, which started in 1974, is limited to children whose native language is English and runs through the third grade.

The total immersion system works. Met says, and that is why it continues to be offered. Experience has shown that the pint-sized language pioneers do well on achievement tests in the 3 Rs and other subjects.

'Research shows they score well," Met said. "Their reading comprehension in English is excellent but the English language arts scores are somewhat lower than those of students taught all in English."

But the students catch up in English language arts when they switch to regular English-speaking classes in the fourth grade, Met

. The Montgomery Country program demonstrates the wisdom of an old saying, says Met: when it comes to learning foreign languages, "the younger the better."

The value of early language training was echoed by C. Edward Scebold of the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages.

In a recent interview. Scebold applauded language immersion programs for young children and called on other school districts to adopt such measures.

He also reported that enrollments in public school foreign language courses have been growing in grades 7 through 12, according to surveys conducted every 4 years by the Council.

Scebold predicted that an enrollment survey to be launched this fall 302,000 took German. These were quarter of U.S. junior and senior enrollments). Latin (70,000) and high school students are studying a foreign language.

This prediction is based on a pattern established in previous surveys, he said. The 1982 Council survey showed that 19 percent of public school students in grades 7 through 12 were studying foreign languages - up from 17.9 percent in

We suspect the survey we begin in the fall will show a rise to the low 20s." Scebold said, "(perhaps) 23 or 24 percent."

Colleges are showing a similar increase, according to Richard Brod of the Modern Language Association. Surveys by the Assocation show that enrollments in foreign language courses went up 4.5 percent between 1980 and 1983.

"So we can assume, on the basis of trends and anecdotal evidence, it will at least hold steady and might even show a continuing increase," Brod said.

According to Scebold. Spanish. French and German continued to be the three most popular languages in junior and senior high schools.

According to the 1982 survey, 1.9 million students studied Spanish. 1.05 million took French and will likely show that nearly one- followed by Italian (with 58,000 Russian (6,738). All other languages including Greek, Chinese, Arabic, Japanese and some Indian languages - attracted 49,000 students.

'Japanese and Chinese are both growing." Scebold said. "Latin is coming back. With interest in restoring quality education there is a realization that so much of our own language and culture is based on that heritage.

When Latin was brought back 15 or so years ago in Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Washington, D.C., and Indianapolis schools, students taking Latin showed dramatic increases in improved reading scores. Many did a lot better in all areas."

Brod reported that between 1980 and 1982, college foreign language enrollments increased from 925,000 to 966,000.

The biggest increases we recorded were 40 percent in courses in Japanese. 27 percent in Russian, 16 percent in Chinese, 11 percent in Italian and 9 percent in French."

Both Brod and Scebold agreed that there is no easy way to learn a foreign language - but immersion seems to work better than stringing out lessons.

It also helps to have a good teacher you relate well to, according to Scebold.

What The People See

Lee lacocca is probably wise to squelch efforts to draft him for a run at the presidency, but it leaves the Democratic Party still with a vast expanse of middle ground territory that has yet to be explored by any of the current candidates.

lacocca wasted no time discouraging the group formed to mount a grassroots campaign to gain the Democratic nomination for him in '88. Denials of candidacy are, to be sure, common coin in the political realm; but lacocca is not a politician, and he'd better be sending some positive signals to operatives by now. So his denial can probably be taken as

Which is probably to the good for both him and the nation. While lacocca has demonstrated leadership qualities in rescuing the nearly bankrupt Chrysler Motor Corp. and apparently has gained the confidence of large numbers of people with his bluff manner on television commercials, he is, by his own admission, not engaged by political matters. He has but a scant issue agenda; the few public pronouncements on public policy made in his autobiography indicate a penchant for big government as well as big car sales. He has proposed a $5 billion "national development bank," stiff taxes on imported oil and a tripartite commission to make Chrysler-like deals for "troubled American companies." Not an agenda easily distinguished from the normal Democratic fare.

If the Democrats are wise, though, they will see portents in the draft lacocca movement, which by all appearances needed only the Chrysler chairman's go-ahead to start generating substantial political candlepower. Beyond his personal charm, lacocca's appeal as a candidate, in our view, rests in the perception that he is a moderate, altogether unbound by the isolationist, redistributionist ideology of, say, a George McGovern.

While innocence of any coherent political philosophy is not necessarily a virtue in a politician - Ronald Reagan, the pure Burkean conservitive, a case in point — the Democratic Party of the 1980s is a necessity. Since the McGovernization of the party in the carly 70s, liberal ideology and the American public have been completely at cross purposes, as every presidential election since 1968 has demonstrated (Jimmy Carter ran for election as a social conservative). If the party is to have a chance in '88, it must run a candidate well to the right of a Walter

It appears, though, that the Democrats will have no opportunity to nominate a moderate. The two most prominently flying that banner now, St. Louis Rep. Richard Gephardt and New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley, are trying to pull a bit of a fast one. Gephardt has an approval rating of around 80 percent with Americans for Democratic Action, traditional monitors of liberal purity. He runs as a moderate in the 3rd District, but votes with Tip O'Neill in Washington. Bradley, a 90 percent on the ADA pure, is worse. He makes sense on texes and voted for Contra aid in the last vote, but those are among the few occasions he has strayed from doctrinaire liberalism.

The effort to draft Lee lacocca is simple political realism. There are plenty of longtime Democratic Party activists who understand that until the party loses the taint of leftist ideology, it will have a difficult time occupying the Oval Office.

Senators Should Say No To The Contras

Since leaving the U.S. Senate in 1961, I have how does a not once tried to influence the judgment of my former colleagues, either individually or collectively. Senators are under enough pressure from their constituents without ex-sensiors adding to their burden.

But I am breaking my own self-imposed rule to urge the Senate to re-examine its support for the contra war against the people and government of Nicaragua.

I recognize the tendency of senators to give the president the benefit of the doubt on foreign policy questions. But in this instance I urge senators to heed their own best judgment and the instincts of the American majority, which also coincide with world opinion.

Consider the facts: — Virtually no other government anywhere in the world supports the Reagan administration's policy of military backing for the contras. - The World Court has now ruled that the United States is in violation of international law on several counts in Nicaragua. Considering the indictment handed down by the World Court, drop mines in the harbers of Nicaragua to disrupt other countries shipping?

— How do senators explain to their constituents - or to themselves, or to history - that our government officially recognizes and maintains an embassy relationship with the Sandinists government we are "covertly" trying to destroy? If the Sandinistas are as bad as the Reagan people claim, why so we recognize them at all? Why pay for an ambassador and staff to conduct official business with a government that we are paying other agents to sabotage?

— Mr. Reagan refers to the contras as "freedom fighters." But don't senators know that most of the contras were recruited by the CIA from the ranks of the old. hated Somoza national guard? These are for the most part the same despised characters that the people of Nicaragua were revolting against when they, joined the Sandinista revolution, which rid their country of the late and unlamented tyrant

- Mr. Reagan would have us believe that by the contras we are combating Soviet just the reverse? It was the tyranny and misrule of Somosa and his contra henchmen that created the conditions which gave communism its opportunity. People who are well governed and fairly treated don't turn to communism or require American-financed mercenaries to carry bn their struggle for freedom. Can't senators see that Reagan is playing into the hands of our enemies by discrediting America's good name through alliances with the most hated killers in Nicaragua? The Sandinistas are not perfect, but they are an improvement over Somoza and the

- Pinally, I ask senators to consider that every public-opinion poll indicates a majority of the American people do not want their government to become militarily involved with the contras in Nicaragua. Apparently many of the same people who voted for Mr. Reagan disagree with his war by proxy in Nicaragua. At least one poli revealed that a majority of Americans do not know which side the administration is on.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The White House comment office is getting its quota of calls from President Reagan's fans, picking up his call to repeal the 22nd Amendment limiting a president to two terms.

Reagan has spoken often on the subject in interviews and in speeches as his own second term winds down.

He says he is not hoping for a third term himself. And a repeal of the amendment, even with the boomlet the Republicans are starting, would probably take longer than Reagan's remaining time in

Still, it does not seem that he would be averse to a third term. He relishes his job, doing it with a broad brush, making decisions when it's necessary and clearly enjoying the ceremonial aspects and the speech making.

Also, according to the polls, he is riding the crest of popularity and apparently is not looking forward to retiring from public life.

Reagan will not retire, of course. He has made that clear. Like other ast presidents, he will undoubtedly be constantly on the road, will write his memoirs and probably broadcast his views, coming the full circle. One of his first jobs out of college was as a radio broadcaster in

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes is now in the class of survivor in one of the toughest jobs in the White House - perhaps the second toughest.

As a spokesman for the president and the federal government he has lasted longer than any other man since James Hagerty, who was press secretary to President Dwight D. Eisenhower for eight years.

Speakes has even surpassed Ronald Ziegler, who was spokesman for President Richard Nixon until Nixon resigned in his second term on Aug. 9, 1974.

With the book of cliche answers that has been handed down from one press spokesman to another in a clubby fashion, Speakes has handled his job with skill and has added a few footnotes. In times of crisis he has risen to the occasion and when you consider the range of subjects that he must field every day, he is a quick study.

There have been times such as the Grenada invasion when he was not told what was going on. And in the aftermath of the president's cancer operation he was muzzled.

Soviet Hacks' Freedom

By Elisa Tinsley
MOSCOW (UPI) — The eight gangly youngsters grouped around a chained and locked gateway on a quiet Moscow side street are not "hooligans." like those so often criticized in the Soviet media. These are among the brightest and hardest working Soviet students.

Some traveled hours to get to the newly renovated building. There, they will spend precious free time working on computer skills at the Soviet Union's first and only computer club for kids.

Opened in June, the club was organized and sponsored by some of the country's most prominent scientists and thinkers.

Yevgeny Velikhov, the vice president of the Academy of Sciences whose latest responsibility has been the clean-up at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant, and world chess champion Gary Kasparov, the club's president, are among its promoters.

Though officially billed as a fun place for interested youth, the club is actually a serious venture that fits within the guidelines of the new Soviet : ducation reform.

It aims to provide a new environment, unfettered by the limitations of the regular school system, where young computer enthusiasts can expand their understanding - and that of their elders - of computer technology.

Two years into the education reform which in 1984 introduced computer sciences in Junior high schools, the Soviet Union has barely gotten off the ground in its attempt to rear a computer-literate popula-

Despite official avowals that computers would pop up in every school for the country's 110 million students, new technology is still limited in availability. The Soviet Union cannot yet produce a cheap. reliable computer for general use, much less for introduction in the school system. "Higher and secondary schools are provided with computers at a completely unsatisfactory rate," the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said recently. "The quality of teaching does not meet today's standards. Thousands of teachers are reported to be retraining to confront the computer revolution, but there are still too few to meet the growing demand. And there has been resistance by some educators. The newspaper Sovietskaya

Moscow's new computer club, said it aims at creating a warm "family" environment and is designed to give computer scientists like himself insight into how best to bring Soviet children into the computer age.

"The Academy of Sciences is starting the process to create a system that is ahead of its time in education and is based on new information technologies," said Pachikov, 36, in the rear office of the three-room club.

As he spoke, boys of high school age and younger rifled through his desk and emerged with programs for use in the club's 10 U.S.- and British-made computers. ## Academia: Leftist Redoubt

Are America's colleges and universities lunging even further to the left, or staggering back toward center? The correct answer is: both.

The New Republic recently ran an article taking three prominent neoconservatives to task for complaining that our institutions of higher education are trending leftward. Irving Kristol had written in the Wall Street Journal that "Our universities as institutions have moved rapidly and massively to the left — and, more often than not, toward the extremities of the left." Norman Podhoretz declared in the Washington Post that "it is hardly an exaggeration to say that the Ivy League colleges have become the most narrow-minded and bigoted communities since the passing of the old American small town." And Secretary of Education William Bennett told the American Jewish Committee that "academic totalitarians are turning our universities into a kind of fortress at war with society."

David A. Bell, a former New Republic reporter, now a graduate student at Princeton, takes issue with such assertions. Doesn't Accuracy in Academia brood over the educational landscape, on the watch for the slightest taint of leftism? Don't more than 40 conservative student newspapers, funded by rightist foundations, carry the battle on the campuses themselves? And anyway, Bell goes on - shifting his ground slightly - who says college faculties must necessarily reflect with mathematical precision the views of society as a whole?

It seems to me that the protagonists on both sides of this argument are right: Like the blind men in the old story, they have just got hold of different parts of the elephant.

Bell and his fellow campus leftists feel beleaguered because opposition to their quackery is indeed rising in the student bodies. These are no longer the "good old days" of the 1960s, when student mobs literally burned local bank branches to the ground, trashed the offices of liberal faculty members and college administrators for being "too moderate," and, in general, acted like crazed peasants trying to storm the Winter Palace. A conservative speaker on the average college campus today can ordinarily count on the support of at least a third of the audience, whether the topic is South African divestment or President Reagan's space shield, and even the liberal majority is more decorous than it used to be.

Inside Anti-Communist League

By Jack Anderson And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration's victory in the fight for $100 million in aid to the Nicaraguan contras is bad news for Marxist regimes in Angola, Mozambique. Ethiopia, Afghanistan, Laos and Cambodia.

Why? It "unleashes" (he privately collected resources of the World Anti-Communist League, which had been the financial mainstay of the anti-Sandinista forces during the two-year period when U.S aid money was suspended by Congress. Now the WACL, headed by retired U.S. Army Maj. Gen. John Singlaud, can redirect its considerable talents for fundraising and weapons supply to the benefit of other anticommunist "freedom lighters" around the globe.

We first unveiled two years ago the international web of complicity that links right-wing death squads in Latin America with the World Anti-Communist League's affiliates in the region. In the long controversy over aid to the Nicaraguan contras, the extremist groups' activitles in Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador largely disappeared from view in this country.

Unfortunately, their activities have not disappeared in Latin America. Our associate Jon Lee Anderson, who delved into the league for us two years ago, has recently co-authored (with his brother Scott) a book on the subject. "Inside the League." He has also kept close track of the operations of the league and its affiliates in the meantime. Here's what they've been up to:

- In Mexico, the Tecos - a neo-Nazi secret society that had led the league's affiliate since the 1970s - were exposed as fascists and anti-Semites in 1984 and were purged by clearly embarrassed World Anti-Communist League officials, who had intimate knowledge of the Tecos' tendencies for years. The Tecos have screamed about the exposure of their hate-filled background, but we're told that Mexican authorities have plans to look into the extremist group.

- In Honduras, the killings of suspected leftists have abated somewhat, but the potential for renewed bloodletting is still there. The death squad known as ELA, or Anti-Communist Combat Army, remains armed and dangerous, according to our sources. The main reason for the slacking off of the assassinations is that the group's main goal, eliminating "Marxist domination" of the state university, has been achieved. Campus politics are now firmly controlled by the right wing.

- In Guatemala, the death squad murders continue to this day. The World Anti-Communist League's point man, Mario Sandoval Alarcon, remains a league member in good standing, even after we exposed him as the death squads' "patriarch" and revealed that he was on the CIA's payroll.

Sandoval and his Party of Organized Violence lost a bid for the Guatemala presidency last year. But much of Guatemala's organized crime, including drug trafficking, robberies and abductions for ransom, has been attributed to right-wing parties. Their depredations include a wave of gang rapes and robberies in Guatemala City nightclubs in late 1984.

 In El Salvador, former National Guard Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson. long believed to have been a driving force behind the country's notorious right-wing death squads, apparently has high hopes of reviving the World Anti-Communist League's discredited Central American affili-

Close D'Aubuisson associates including his driver and bodyguard - were implicated several months ago in a kidnap-for-ransom ring that had been preying on wealthy Salvadorans for two years. The case was broken by Salvadoran police working with CIA and FBI agents. D'Aubulsson himself wasn't implicated because, according to sources. "He has covered his tracks too well."

Seven years later on Aug. 12, 1985, that form may have become a death warrant for 520 people.

It was on that day that Japan Air Lines flight 123 careened out of control and slammed into a remote mountainside in central Japan. Only four of the 524 passengers and crew aboard survived the deadlest single-aircraft accident in history.

The Japanese Transport Ministry's investigation committee has not yet issued conclusions on the cause. A final report may not come before year's end.

But according to sources familiar with that and another investigation by the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board, the apparent cause was the failure of the plane's rear pressure bulkhead, which forms the aft seal of the passenger cabin.

The bulkhead was the major component repaired on the plane in 1978. And less than a month after the disaster, Boeing admitted it had been fixed improperly.

Now, a year after the crash, the bulkhead remains the source of nagging questions that must be answered before the epitaph of the 520 who died can be written.

In Japan, police are considering criminal charges against JAL and Boeing. Victims' families have also asked the Tokyo prosecutor's office to charge both with negligence.

In Seattle, where Boeing is headquartered, victims' relatives have filed 70 compensation-related lawsuits against the manufacturer claiming negligence. Compensation in the case could total upwards of $100 million.

The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration, according to a spokesman for its Northwest regional office in Scattle, is still "working with Boeing on this, but from what I understand, there is nothing we can pin on Boeing. nothing in violation."

Boeing spokesman Jim Boynton, contacted in Scattle, declined all comment because of the pending investigation.

The Japanese Transport Ministry has taken no action against JAL or its own inspectors.

"We approved of the inspection process," said Akiyoshi Kitada, a chief inspector in the Transport Ministry's airline bureau. The procedures followed were in accordance with official guidelines, he sald.

But how did it happen? The bulkhead is a 15-foot-diameter, umbrella-shaped, aluminum-alloy wall that seals off the pressurized passenger cabin from the unpressurized tail investigators believe cracks opened in the bulkhead, allowing cabin air to fill the tail - which is not built to withstand such pressure from within. The force burst open the plane's 30-foot tail fin, spewing off large chunks and throwing the plane out of control.

According to records and airline officials, the bulkhead was first damaged on June 2, 1978, when the plane made a "hard landing" at the western city of Osaka, injuring 30 people. The Boeing team, dispatched from Seattle, replaced the lower half of the bulkhead between June 17 and July 11 at the JAL maintenance center at Tokyo's Haneda Airport.

When they finished, an airline official said, a Boeing employee named E.N. Stanford signed Form 337, issued by the FAA as a self-report card for repairs to American-made aircraft. Such forms allow repair crews holding FAA authorization to certify their own work. air safety officials explained.

'There are millions of repairs and it's just impossible to check every one." said one American official. "These forms come in in bushel baskets."

JAL and Transport Ministry officials said airline personnel were present only for some of the repairs. But with the Boeing approval in hand, JAL and a ministry safety agency conducted routine inspections and concurred, allowing the plane to resume domestic flights for the Japanese flag carrier.

Less than a month after the crash,

Boeing's headquarters issued a stunning statement saying its crew had repaired the bulkhead improperly. Later still. It agreed to join JAL in the payment of any compensation.

The company acknowledged it was trying to assure the owners of more than 600 747s in use worldwide that the crash was an isolated incident.

Investigators said later in an interim report they had found signs of metal fatigue, cracks that developed before the crash and tell-tale nicotine stains on the bulkhead's rear face, indicating cabin air had leaked for some time.

"The only way to have seen the bad repair was to take it apart," said a JAL official. "Without a demolition check, it couldn't have been seen."

Whether something similar could happen again is unclear. The plane was a 747-SR, a model flown only by JAL and specially modified to carry an extra 200 passengers on short runs. increasing wear on pressure seals like the bulkhead.

It was on one such flight from Tokyo to Osaka last Aug. 12 that veteran pilot Capt. Masami Takahama, 49, reported the big jet was careening out of control.

Flight recorders showed later the cockpit crew fought valiantly to save the plane, unaware the battle was family's graves every day. hopeless because key parts of the tail fin had blown apart, destroying their hydraulic control.

The crash has had ramifications that go beyond the repairs to the aircraft:

Why Do We Swallow Soviet Propaganda?

The Soviet Union's latest peace propaganda, a promise to take 6,000 of its over 100,000 troops out of Afghanistan, will be about as effective as spitting on a forest fire to put it out. Why not withdraw the 100,000?

I can't see why so many church leaders and members of the news media swallow such propaganda.

A television network gave Ortega chance to threaten us with the UN. When the World Court and United Nations condemn the Soviet Union for the invasion of Afghanistan it will be time to lend an ear.

Jimmy Carter's generous gift of the Panama Canal did not win us any friends. What has Russia given away?

Last week I read an editorial urging our President to give in on the Strategic Defensive Institutive to get the peace talks going. If they are going to be one-sided, in Russia's favor (as usual), why bother?

Why are the communists so opposed to "Star Wars"? Are they already working on it and want all defense on their side? If it's just a waste of effort and money, it seems they would be glad to let us make fools of ourselves. Why are they not willing to work with us to develop a defense against nuclear weapons?

Mayfair Flap Properly Behind Other Needs

Responding to the editorial captioned "Bring Mayfair Issue To Head" in the Evening Herald July 20, 1986. I wish to take issue with the inference implied to me that our current city manager was dilatory or remiss for the apparent delay in meeting the issue immediately to correct or resolve the Mayfair Country Club-city of Sanford matter.

KAMPUCHEA--?

I respectfully remind the editor that there most assuredly must exist a determination of priorities among pending Sanford projects and/or problems; furthermore, there are limitations as to capabilities of staff (or "under" staff) to accomplish objectives - along this vein, it must be remembered that "Rome was not built in a day." To my knowledge and in my observation, there would have or could have been a number of projects/problems which should have taken precedence over the Mayfair matter, namely: the Dept. of Environmental Resources "mushrooming" impositions on the city of Sanford, bond work to comply with DER directives and/or other pressing financial needs — to name a few that occur to me. If I were "in the shoes" of the city manager and had the charge and responsibility of setting priorities, with apparently limited means and staffing, I would have done similarly, as it appears to me in, perhaps, placing the Mayfair (Daniels)/Sanford matter in proper place behind higher priorities.

I hasten to add that, in my layman's opinion, a lease agreement is similar and analogous to a legal contract and. by law, must be adhered to by both parties in a bi-laterial contract otherwise, there may be and probably is a breach of contract: furthermore, if there has been a breach, the party adjudged guilty of such breach should be held accountable for same and be required to make proper restitution. Not necessarily relating to the Mayfair(Daniels)/Sanford matter, but, in general, a party offering to remedy a lease situation retroactively in the form of C.P.A. certified audits (as perhaps required by a lease agreement) does not alter the fact that an apparent breach has been committed - and also, a breach could have been committed by a bilateral responsible party to the same lease agreement in not requiring conformity to aforementioned lease agreement (in geneal) - in other words, what I am saying is that a breach, negligence or both could be committed by either or both parties: to wit, as the saying goes, "If the shoe fits, wear it." It probably would not have happened all of a sudden!

In finalizing, I respectfully suggest to the editorial staff of the Evening Herald that there may very well have been "more than met the eye" in the "Bring Mayfair Issue To Head" editorial of July 20, 1986.

Citizens Keep Tabs On Nursing Homes

It's an important U.S. trend - local citizens are banding together to keep tabs on nursing homes in order to improve conditions.

This trend is represented by about 250 community-based, citizen-run

Some of these groups inspect and evaluate homes on a regular basis, while others plan activities for nursing-home residents who would otherwise be alone.

Sometimes, groups act as a source of Information and a shoulder for families to lean on when they're making a nursing-home placement. They can act as the families' and residents' advocates in their dealings with the nursing-home staff or regulatory agen-

"Concerned citizens can make a tremendous difference," says Barbara Frank, assistant director of the National Citizens' Coalition for Nursing Home Reform in Washington, D.C. "Because of their concern and proximity," she says, "they can show the community cares."

Frank says that the best way to ensure quality care in a nursing home is to have public access, with people from the community freely coming and going. The more open nursing homes are to public scrutiny, the better the care they will deliver.

The existing consumer groups offer many volunteer opportunities, including scheduling activities, providing transportation or starting councils that represent all residents and family members in communicating their wishes and problems to the nursinghome staff and administration.

Frank says that people who'd like to volunteer should contact the coalition (National Citizens' Coalition for Nursing Home Reform, 1424 16th St., N.W., Suite L2, Washington, DC 20036). "If they write to us," she says, "we will put them in contact with the best local resources in their area.'

"The fact is that when consumers press for change they can get change and improved conditions, and mediocrity doesn't have to continue," says

To help develop new groups and to help existing groups refine their programs, the nonprofit United Hospital Fund of New York has published a book, "Public Concerns, Community Initiatives." This comprehensive guide provides information on organizing and managing successful citizen-run programs. It addresses recruitment and training of volunteers; dealing with nursing-home management, regulators and legislators; visiting and reporting on nursing homes; educating the public: and handling related legal PEKING (UPI) — Communist China's leaders in the 21st account for almost one-quarter century will come from a genera- of Chinese couples with tion of arrogant, undisciplined, school-age children and the perfat and lazy only children known to their doting parents and anxious Chinese sociologists se "little emperors."

"If I spank my son, my neighbors shout at me," complained the father of one of China's 35 million only children - known as the "troublesome generation." "How can I expect him to take any notice of me?"

'My daughter is so naughty,' said the mother of an 8-year-old second grader at a Peking primary school. "But I don't know how to control her."

Similar cries are legion among parents of China's "little emperors" - the name given to the children born under Peking's strict "one couple, one child" policy aimed at curbing population growth in the most populous country in the world.

Families with only one child centage is substantially higher among parents of infants and toddlers.

According to official statistics. the majority of urban couples under 35 have just one son or daughter as a result of the incentives and harsh coun-. termeasures China introduced in 1979 in its bid to limit the population to 1.2 billion by the year 2000.

So serious are the problems among only children — also known as "the suns in life" that China has mounted a huge publicity campaign to draw the attention of besotted parents.

More than 100 schools to instruct parents on how to teach children have been set up nationwide and a "radio school" broadcasts six-month courses in physiology, psychology and the education of pre-school children.

His anxieties are echoed by many of the parents of China's small emperors and empresses as they reach school age and their personalities begin to crystallize.

Adults blame the "little emperor" syndrome on the 1988-78 Cultural Revolution when today's generation of parents rampaged across China as Mao Tse-tung's radical Red Guards and then were sent down to the countryside to learn from the peasants.

The ever-present lines that dominate Moscow life are on the beach, too. There are lines for renting beach chairs, for getting a snack, a shower, a boat, a toilet and especially a bus home.

Some beaches are free. Others with "special facilities" like changing rooms, water fountains and showers cost about 7 cents per person for the day.

Nearly every beachgoer seems to be equipped with some sort of inflatable toy, from beach balls to floating rings to air pillows. In the city, beach toys are big sellers, purchased from special sidewalk stands outside such shops as Dom Igrushki (House of Toys). An oversized beachball costs about $3.

Peace Heroes in 20th Century

Hooray for Charles DeBenedetti. In bringing together this collection of essays on nine American social reformers and "peace heroes," DeBenedetti helps keep alive a strain of American history that is all too often forgotten or deliberately ignored in U.S. high schools and colleges.

Beginning with a useful introduction on the origin and impulses of the fluid but omnipresent citizen-based peace movement, "Peace Heroes" provides biographical chapters on well-known and lesserknown figures such as Jane Addams, and Eugene Debs up to Martin Luther King Jr., and the Berrigan brothers, Phil and

One is particularly grateful for Jo Ann Robinson's essay on A.J. Muste, in many ways the father of the contemporary peace movement but a figure who is virtually ignored today by historians and social critics.

Michael Ripp is a rising executive who is dragged out of bed and reluctantly sent off to Vietnam to face a gory, highly predictable future. Ripp is a member of Bravo Company.

He is one of the few seemingly sane soldiers among the by-now familiar group of misfits that compose the typical fictional group of combatants.

You know what's going to happen to these soldiers - they are going to see their worst nightmares fullfilled. The survivors' psyches are forever scarred by the experiences of Vietnam.

This is a tale that has been told before. Many times. Occasionally, but not often, it has been told by someone more talented than Tate, who won the prestigious Ernie Pyle Memorial Award for his reporting from Vietnam in 1968.

Tate has a gripping writing style, a way of putting words together that ensuares the reader and keeps him turning pages even though he can easily and successfully foresee what is going to happen.

Unexpectedly, Tate's story also is liberally sprinkled with humor and frony, even in its most gruesome moments. This may shock some readers, but others will recognize it for what it is - proof of the author's knowledge and experience.

The Historical Sites and Markers committee will be researching historical sites in the county in conjunction with the Historical Commission and will set up a program of proper identification and marking of these sites. The last marker erected by the commission was in the Longwood Historicl Dis-

Tucker said markers for major historical sites need to be erected on the scale of the county in order to have uniformity.

He invisions gathering of books on early Florida history in the Seminole County Museum library and developing a history history and geneological research could come and use it.

He said the Sanford Public be desecrated."

Library formerly had one of the early Florida history collections, but the emphasis now is on new books and the collection is no longer together for researchers to peruse.

"Some of the oldest books were sold by the county library system at a book sale at the mall. I'm hoping some are still around," Tucker said.

The museum committee will work with the curator and cooperates with the historical commission helping procure display materials for special exhibits or permanent ones. "There are a lot of nit-picking things that need to be done and take a lot of time," Tucker said.

There is also a publications committee. Tucker said there would like to see published to make them available to the public. They may not be of widespread interest, but are of importance historically. One of the projects would be to publish a county directory of families.

"We could publish private historical collections of interests and diaries. For instance," Tucker said, "Harriett French Boyd of Lake Mary has a lot of material on Seth French, the late Sanford and Orange City developer for whom French Avenue was named."

Tucker thinks the Seminole County Historical Museum building, which formerly was the county agricultural extension office and before that served as the oold county home. has an architectural uniqueness. which has not fully been recognized.

"There are few buildings left in the Seminole County area that have the type of exterior surface. which is a stucco white concrete and a mix consisting of pebblesized quartzite and crushed black glass. I only know of one a Sanford residence with a surface like that." he added.

"The area I really get up-tight about," Tucker said, "is old cemetery sites that have been lost. More cemeteries in the county were identified by a WPA project than we can observe. Cemeteries should have proper research library where people in markings and care. To me if we have anything sacred it is our burial places and they shouldn't
