From the Chairman

Dear Friends:

As we turn the calendar to a new month, we also look ahead to the changing of a season. Though the warmest days are quickly fading, we are about to enter into what are arguably the most beautiful months of the year.

As autumn paints the New Hampshire landscape with its vivid hues, it shows us that each region of our state offers unique beauty. Take the time to explore New Hampshire this time of year. There are few places in our country as beautiful.

While you're out enjoying that natural beauty, consider bringing along a great bottle of Pinot Noir. In this issue's World of Wine feature, we take a closer look at this flexible wine, and spend some time with Michael Davies – the executive winemaker at A to Z Wineworks. Michael provides a great look at what makes Oregon's Pinot Noirs so special, and how a sense of camaraderie among winemakers has led to a flourishing industry in the Pacific Northwest.

Tucked into the rolling hills of the Northern Wasatch Range of the Rocky Mountains just outside of Park City, Utah, High West Distillery is crafting and blending a fascinating range of bold whiskeys, ryes and bourbons at a new, state-of-the-art facility. In the Distiller's Craft, we talk one-on-one with Head Distiller Brendan Coyle about the company's recent expansion, and what whiskey fans can expect from some of High West's distinctive offerings.

And if you're enjoying some of that great whiskey and rye, why not offer your guests a classic cocktail with a twist? It's hard to beat a good Old Fashioned, but add some creativity to the mix and you've got a new look at an old favorite. In our Let's Entertain feature, we take a closer look at some traditional cocktails, and offer some truly innovative takes on these standards.

Finally, we stop in at Jewell Towne Vineyards for a tour of this beautiful South Hampton winery. A longtime winemaker and a true champion of New Hampshire wines, Dr. Peter Oldak and his wife, Brenda, have fashioned a classically beautiful and comfortable vineyard along the Powwow River. Together, they've created a wonderful winery offering of some great wines.

In the meantime, we hope you'll refer to all the information and great opportunities for savings available at LiquorandWineOutlets.com.

As always, thank you for drinking responsibly.

Made from cherries harvested from Luxardo's own trees in Italy and infused in larchwood vats for three years, this sweet liqueur offers a rounded, smooth but surprisingly sharp flavor.

Leading off with the aroma of a fresh-baked cinnamon roll with notes of pastry and vanilla, this creamy liqueur boasts a sweet, vanilla Cinnabon taste with a smooth finish.

Juniper berry, raw northern honey and pure grain spirits go into this award-winning gin, which features floral qualities and a smooth, balanced taste.

A complex and robust whiskey, it starts off lightly sweet and opens up mid-palate to a dried fruit and trail mix flavor. It finishes shorter than other Single Barrels, placing the focus firmly on the character of the grains.

The most rich and intense Chivas yet. Fruity sweet notes on the nose, with the taste of sweet, ripe pears, vanilla caramel, cinnamon sweets and almond.

Capturing the true essence of ripe peaches, this is best enjoyed on the rocks, with a splash of lemonade or even combined with a shot of your favorite bourbon.

Notes of freshly-cooked blue agave, vanilla and orange blossoms with flavors of cinnamon, citrus and plenty of agave provide a silky mouthfeel. The well-rounded finish is balanced with a hint of earthiness – smooth with a mild heat.

El Tesoro Platinum Tequila

At El Tesoro, we say the hands are the gateway to the heart. Because every bottle of our tequila is created by hand, but it's also made with great passion.

Our tequila is double distilled in copper stills to exactly 80 proof. First, it's distilled with the agave fibers to retain the natural agave flavors. Liquid is run off in the first 12 hours of distillation to remove wax and dust from the original plant. This creates an alcohol called "ordinario."

We then distill it a second time, which turns the ordinario into crystal clear tequila.

El Diablo

- 2 parts El Tesoro Platinum Tequila
- 1 part fresh lime juice
- $\frac{3}{4}$  part ginger syrup
- $\frac{1}{4}$  part cassis
- $\frac{1}{4}$  part agave nectar

Shake with ice, then add 1 ounce soda. Double-strain into an ice filled collins glass. Garnish with a lime.

Knowing What You Like

At some point, most people have tasted Coke and Pepsi and decided which one they prefer. Knowing what you like is great – until it's boring.

My father-in-law used to only drink Labatt Blue beer – never anything else. He also had a prized German beer stein collection on his mantel, which he only looked at but never touched, that is, until I stuck a couple in the freezer and poured an expensive Belgian beer into them and offered him one – as his face paled... Change is good. Years ago, when I first offered him wine and tried to explain the nice Cabernet I was serving him, he responded with a wry smile, “I don’t give a (expletive deleted) what it is, just pour it in my glass.” Now he drinks mainly craft beers. Regarding wine? He goes to wine tasting events

(and even buys the tee-shirts) and purchases interesting wines that are both complex and unique. Who says you can’t teach an old dog some new tricks? Ha ha, love that guy!

The point is, regarding wine, everyone knows what they like, but why drink the same thing all the time when there is a veritable sea of it out there? Discovery is the key word with wine. For one thing, unless you drink a very major brand (which tries its best to keep the wine tasting the same each year), the fact that each wine is from a different vintage means they will be perpetually different. Even though sometimes that’s a disappointment, it’s usually interesting.

Here we are on the doorstep of another change of seasons in beautiful New England. What better time to rethink our wine selections and cozy up to more hearty meals that lie ahead?

Most of us know and understand the basics of California wines – below are some other regions and specific wines types that are made with the grape varieties we mostly know in full or in part. This list offers you a chance to taste the same varietals from different regions or countries that may give a twist on what you are used to. You will find a huge difference in some and less in others, and hopefully, that in itself will be a refreshing experience.

LET THE CHANGE BEGIN:

If you like California Chardonnay, try:

French white Burgundy (usually 100 percent Chardonnay), Viognier, Oregon Pinot Gris, Spanish Godello, Italian Vermentino.

If you like California Sauvignon Blanc

(SB), try: White Bordeaux (typically made mostly of SB), Sancerre or Pouilly Fume (from the Loire Valley in France – it’s stunning), and Albarino (a zesty SB-like grape variety from Spain).

If you like California Riesling, try:

German Riesling, Finger Lakes Riesling, Clare and Yarra Valley's Riesling from Australia, or Washington State Riesling (sweet or dry).

If you like California Pinot Noir, try:

French red Burgundy (100 percent Pinot Noir), Oregon Pinot noir, Central Otago Pinot (New Zealand), Finger Lakes Pinot (as it's a very exciting time for these wines) and Pinot from Germany called Spatsburgunder.

If you like California Cabernet or Merlot, try: French red Bordeaux, Washington State Cabernet or Merlot, Italian "Super Tuscans", which often have Cabernet or Merlot in them. Another to try is Argentinian Cabernet, which I am told by some prominent Argentinian wine makers that they feel is their best red wine including Malbec.

If you just want to try something different in general, consider some of these wines:

Amarone (an intense red from Northeast Italy); Valpolicella Ripasso, from the same area and grapes as Amarone (Corvina, Rondinella and Molinera) but less intense and more affordable; Dolcetto, which is a Pinot-like red from northwest Italy; Cahors (from France, made from Malbec); Morellino di Scansano (the local name for Sangiovese – the main grape of Chianti, but a delicious wine in its own right); and Montepulciano d'Abruzzo (a simple, delicious, inexpensive quaffer from Italy).

If you have fridge magnets or a camera on your smartphone, consider keeping this list on hand for your next wine shopping trip and enjoy exploring some of these exciting wines. Cheers! 🍷

Please drink responsibly

Warm, Sophisticated and Inviting

Hanover Street Chophouse Serves Rich, Classic Dining in Manchester

Hand-cut steaks, fresh seafood and a top-notch bar have all been part of the Hanover Street Chophouse's calling card for the 11 years it's been drawing diners to the heart of Manchester.

General Manager Tony Chapman.

Yet there's an additional sophistication that leaves an indelible impression on guests lucky enough to dine at this hideaway known for combining the classic with the modern. It all starts with an owner who is willing to travel to great lengths to instill an Old World elegance.

The Hanover Street Chophouse (or HSC, as those in-the-know refer to it) is consistently praised by M. Shanken's

Wine Spectator with its "Award of Excellence." It has also been recognized by Open Table as one of 100 Best American Steakhouses. The food and beverage programs at the restaurant have received a litany of regional and national awards since the restaurant's opening in 2005. What has set this lauded steakhouse apart in most recent years, beyond its rich cuts of beef and extensive wine list, is its signature whiskey program.

"Around 2011, things began to pick up for the downtown area," owner Steve Clutter says. "This was also the time that small batch distilleries were starting to get nationwide and global attention. It was then that a sales representative from Southern Wine and Spirits invited me to go to Kentucky to taste bourbons. Since that trip, things have never looked better for both the restaurant and fans of whiskey in New Hampshire."

The comfortable interior was designed by renowned hospitality architect Peter Niemetz of the Niemetz Design Group. The rooms favor a rich and classic style, best described as an equine clubhouse-cum-fine dining establishment. The open kitchen and rich textiles create a warm feeling throughout. The atmosphere is an ideal setting for an education in the art of whiskey drinking, for both novices and seasoned aficionados alike.

"When I went for that first time to Kentucky to taste whiskey, I was both overwhelmed and excited," Clutter says. "It was like a college campus of bourbon-making. It was like I was in a dream. I still reflect on that fond discovery."

Whiskey has always been a natural pairing for the classic steakhouse. Clutter's interest in expanding HSC's repertoire was an easy extension of his own love of food and wine.

"I am always a fan first," Clutter, a Culinary Institute of America graduate says.

His congenial nature is infectious and magnetic: "We could talk to our customers for hours about all of these whiskeys and we have just begun to scratch the surface of the flavors and varieties."

That first visit to Kentucky resulted in a full barrel purchase of Old Weller 107. It then turned into a second visit, a second barrel, and then subsequent visits to taste and purchase barrels of Angel's Envy and Woodford Reserve.

"The master distiller at Woodford, Chris Morris, came to show me around on my trip," Clutter says. "It was amazing to learn from him and it was such an honor."

The team at HSC has begun regular rotations to different distillers in Kentucky's bourbon country, and signature blends of whiskeys like Russell's Reserve Single Barrel and Knob Creek Single Barrel are crafted for the restaurant. The team has recently added Vermont to their whiskey tour. They feature the region's beloved Whistle Pig bourbons on their menu as two-and-a-half ounce pours. The beverage menu showcases 41 American and 36 Scotch whiskeys, six of which are HSC distinct blends. The popular "Manhattan Bar" menu allows diners to choose from the six proprietary

HSC Old Fashioned

- 2½ ounces Maker's Mark Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whisky
- 1 sugar cube (HSC makes its own)
- 1 Luxardo Maraschino Cherry
- 3 dashes Woodford Cherry Bitters
- 2 ounces club soda
- 1 fresh slice of orange

Put sugar cube and cherry in a rocks glass. Add bitters over the sugar cube, and muddle the cherry and sugar together. Fill the glass with crushed ice. Pour Maker's Mark and club soda over the ice and garnish with a slice of orange.

bourbon blends and a select variety of craft vermouths and cherries.

Of the 77 total whiskey varieties at HSC, 17 are labeled as “antique,” noted both for their age and for their rarity. Brands like Sazerac Rye 18 year and Eagle Rare 17 year are popular choices. HSC is proud of its Blanton's Single Barrel Bourbon: the original single barrel bourbon named for Buffalo Trace's longstanding president, Colonel Albert B. Blanton. Blanton created a private blend during his tenure, and the namesake variety served at the Hanover Street Chophouse is proprietary to the restaurant. Clutter and his team hand-select the whiskeys to mix into their own Blanton Bourbon. The taste and aroma are that of spice and honey; perfect as a heady match to the unctuousness of menu's beef steaks. The distillery hand-labels the bottles and adds a signature touch with the HSC label on the side.

“I like that we all learn about the bourbons – not just in the history of the brands, but in how to taste them and how to pair them,” Clutter says. “I have sent many of my staff to Kentucky to see the process and to learn firsthand.”

Clutter is quick to credit his team for the success of the restaurant and the popularity of the whiskeys. He labels his success as a “trifecta of talent.”

“From Executive Chef Stuart Cameron to the General Manager Tony Chapman, it is really the three of us and our amazing team,” says Clutter. “We all run the show together and we all make the decisions.”

The synergy is palpable. Chapman has been at HSC for more than eight years. He believes heavily in “you get out what you put in” – both in how he works with the staff and how the restaurant crafts its food and beverage program.

“We have engaged everyone in-house in the process of menu creation,” Chapman says. “We are like family here. We have a very good pre-meal service with our staff. We take their education seriously and we want them to be able to be part of the conversation with our customers – not just on the whiskey side of things, but in how we talk about wine, beer, food and the elegance of dining.”

Chapman's interest and expertise has lent itself to cultivation of a rich and varied beverage program. The beer menu leans heavily on New Hampshire and regional brands like Kelsen Paradigm Brown Ale and Plum Island Belgian White. Wines like New Mexico's sparkling Gruet Sauvage Blanc de Blanc and California's Sequoia Grove Cabernet Sauvignon marry the restaurant's sophisticated sensibility with its support of American-made wine. And of course there are the whiskeys.

“I love to get people to try new things,” Chapman says. “Take the Michter's Rye, for example. It's a smaller distillery that not many people know. It is sweet, a little bit hot, and very smooth. When people taste it, they love it.”

Executive Chef Stuart Cameron

An American Whisky from Farm to Bottle

Founded in 2007, Long Island Spirits is a craft distillery nestled in the heart of Long Island's acclaimed North Fork wine region. Water used at the distillery is sourced from an aquifer beneath the Pine Barrens forest preserve, known to contain some of the purest water in the United States. Rough Rider Straight Bourbon Whisky is carefully aged in new American oak casks for a minimum of two years and extramatured in former merlot and chardonnay casks. This is truly a farm-to-bottle operation in a unique setting.

love. There are a hundred sources of umami and flavor in that dish. People really love it.”

A blend of the familiar and the new is Cameron's hallmark: “It keeps the steakhouse menu interesting. Things like our bacon wrapped scallops are really popular. Why? Because people know and love it, and we change it up with applications like an ancho chili jam and grilled pineapple, or a summer corn, tomato and bacon salad. We love to give things to people that they really like to eat with a little twist. It keeps them coming back.”

Aspects of the menu change seasonally. Additions like Cameron's homemade Henuiker chive blossom butter, or the roasted butternut squash and beets, are popular additions to the house steaks.

“New Englanders still love to eat seasonally and we are happy to provide people with the flavors they love,” says Cameron. “The most exciting part of HSC, more than all the really great whiskeys and good cuts of beef, is that we have the support of one another in the restaurant. I have Steven's trust in the kitchen and Tony has his trust at the bar and in the front of the house. That allows us to be really creative and come alive.”

Jude Blake
Occupation: Retired
Selected Wine:
Morgan Winery Double L Pinot Noir

For many people, retirement can be a time for slowing down.

Jude Blake is just getting started.

Blake has worn many hats during her accomplished and well-traveled career – including serving as a longtime trustee of the University System of New Hampshire and former corporate marketing executive, among many other things. During that time, she's developed a personal momentum that seems to prevent her from downshifting.

Exuberant and effusive about her passions, which include public education, her work with nonprofits like Cross Roads House – a transitional shelter based in her hometown of Portsmouth – and co-leading the advisory board of the Peter T. Paul School of Business and Economics at the University of New Hampshire, she is quite often on the move. And it doesn't go unnoticed. Blake was named the 2009 Outstanding Philanthropist of the Year by the Northern New England chapter of the Association of Fundraising Professionals. She also continues to teach about wine at the university.

Yet when it's time to take a breath, Blake turns to another one of her keen interests.

"The thing I like to do most is share wine with friends," Blake says. "I like to cook – I entertain quite a bit – and teach people about wine. It's both a hobby and a passion of mine."

So much so, that her condo, and its deck overlooking Market Square in Portsmouth has been given its own name: "Chez Jude." It's there that she hosts dinners and blind wine tastings for friends, exploring different wines and sharing the knowledge she's accumulated during a life as an oenophile.

"Whenever I talk about selling my home, friends say, 'No, you can't – this is Chez Jude, it's part of who you are,'" she says, laughing.

Blake was first introduced to the world of wine by her father, whom she describes as "my lifetime mentor and my best friend."

"It was his passion when I was growing up," she says. "My father would come home from long days of work or travel and at least once a week, typically Friday, we'd have a family dinner in the dining room and wine was served. It was sort of a European way of enjoying the meal and I learned a lot about wine."

After earning an MBA at Wharton, she moved to Minnesota, where she took up her father's interest in earnest.

"People always ask me, 'what's your favorite wine?'" she says. "My answer is that it's the one I'm drinking with my friends right now. I always tell people that wine should be fun. It's not a snobby thing – it's meant to be social, and it's been that since the beginning of time."

Naturally, then, Blake invited a friend over to help sample a bottle of 2014 Morgan Winery Double L Pinot Noir. At first glance, the winery – one of the first to adopt organic and sustainable practices – had Blake optimistic.

"The Santa Lucia Highlands is one of my favorite areas for Pinot Noir coming out of California," Blake says. "When the bottle says 'Santa Lucia Highlands,' I get really excited."

She first tasted the wine without food.

"It was a big, cherry red – very translucent," she says. "It was lighter in color than I anticipated it would be. It was a 2014 so there was no hint of age or an oaky nose. It had medium legs so I looked at the alcohol level, which was 14.2 percent, but I was really taken by how bright it was – more than you often see in California Pinot Noirs, which can be darker."

Blake found the nose to be full of "bright berry and spicy notes" – blackberry, cherry, a little cedar and "a tiny bit of Pinot smoke."

"It was a classic Pinot Noir, loaded with fruit but with nice balance and minerality. Some tannins on the palate. But then as it sat in the glass and I took a second taste, it had a great finish – the tannins smoothed out with a ton of cherry and berry up front, and it opened up all around and exploded with blackberries with a little herb, and a long, velvety finish, which didn't happen in the first taste."

Blake next served two courses with the wine: a wild rice and mushroom soup, and a braised pork Provençal stew.

"Mushrooms and Pinot Noir go really well together," she says. "It's a pairing for the ages. It really brought out the deeper berry flavors. As mushrooms have a more earthy flavor, it brought out the earthy notes of the wine."

The braised pork Provençal stew paired perfectly, she said, as the sweetness of the carrots and parsnips worked well with the wine.

The verdict: While it may be a bit of an extravagance, the Morgan Winery Double L Pinot Noir is absolutely worth seeking out.

"I'm one of these people who can drink good wine every day," she says. "So take my advice and don't save the good stuff for special occasions." 🍷

'The Essence of Oregon'

Pinot Noir Steps into the Spotlight

Finding a flexible wine – one that is light yet complex, capable of pairing with a wide variety of dishes, and fitting for almost any occasion – can sometimes prove to be difficult.

Pinot Noir is up to the challenge.

“Pinot Noir has weight and warmth and richness in winter and the freshness and crispness in the summer,” says Michael Davies, executive winemaker at A to Z Wineworks in Newberg, Oregon. “It need not be cellared. It can be drunk alone or with potato chips or salmon or steak.”

No wonder this ripe, red varietal is the darling of the wine community. Bursting with fresh fruit and tight tannins, a good Pinot Noir crushes the palate without wounding the wallet.

BY MARY HELEN GILLESPIE

The secret starts in the vineyard, and the magic explodes with the blend.

One of the best – in a region renowned for its fine Pinot Noir – is A to Z Wineworks’ 2013 Oregon vintage: an initial cluster of cherries, raspberries, and blackberries transforms to iris, blueberries, strawberries and minerals. These vibrant fruit flavors and floral notes then deepen into hints of blood orange and blueberry jam. Next come supple tannins balanced by perfect acidity, while the mid-palate reveals spice, tobacco and earth notes. This rich complexity leads to a rather long finish. The A to Z Wineworks’ 2013 Pinot Noir is perfect and elegant sipped alone. Paired with food, fireworks explode and glisten.

This award-winning wine sources grapes picked from multiple vineyards with varying soils and micro-climates across the cool, clear appellations throughout Oregon, and then blended to impeccable quality at the A to Z winery in the Willamette Valley region. The A to Z Pinot Noir has twice been named to the Wine Spectator’s Top 100 Wines of the Year.

When it comes to blending the tons of fruit harvested across the Beaver State into Pinot Noir, something he’s been doing at A to Z since 2006, Davies – a native New Zealander – is the master of the mix.

“We’re definitely proud of being blenders,” he says. “We like the ability to control the winemaking ourselves and to get the right blend at the right price and enough of it.”

The challenge, he says, is to create the best possible blend in the bottle, “but stay true to what Mother Nature gave us.” The wide range of elevation and precipitation across the Pacific Northwest is poetically correct for the growing of Pinot Noir grapes in Oregon, as the diversity of its six wine appellations mitigate the risk of a ruined harvest. Wet winters? Hot summers? Not a problem as A to Z sources from its own and leased vineyards across the Oregon landscape to balance and blend the intensities of notes and flavors that result in that year’s Pinot Noir vintage.

“We respect and love the vintage variation of Oregon,” says Davies, who is also executive winemaker at sister winery, REX HILL.

Yet, there is a challenge.

“We have to walk the line to make A to Z,” he says. “We don’t want to make the same wine every year but we try to maintain the high road of consistency to be true to the vintage.”

This diversity is due to Oregon’s incredible range of climate zones and elevations, which extend from the wet but temperate weather of the Willamette and Umpqua Valley regions, to the warm, dry climates of the Rogue and Applegate Valleys to the even drier, elevated plateaus of the Walla Walla and Columbia Valleys.

Each appellation carries its own distinctive qualities and favored wines, although Oregon is best known for its robust Pinot Noir – a specialty of the Willamette Valley.

Pinot Noir’s popularity is still benefiting from the cultural impact of the film, “Sideways.” The 2004 cinematic bromance follows two middle-aged men, Miles Raymond (Paul Giamatti), a depressed teacher and unsuccessful writer, and Jack Cole (Thomas Haden Church), a past-his-prime actor, as they take a week-long road trip to Santa Barbara County wine country.

Throughout the journey, Miles speaks most fondly of Pinot Noir. Following the film’s release in October 2004, Pinot Noir sales increased 16 percent in the Western United States. A similar trend occurred in British wine outlets. A 2009 study by Sonoma State University found that “Sideways” main effect on the wine industry was a rise in the sales volume and price of Pinot Noir, and in overall wine consumption.

Twelve years later, Pinot Noir is still riding the “Sideways” wave and Davies could not be more delighted.

“A lot of people in Oregon realized it was a turning point even though it wasn’t set in Oregon,” Davies says.

“Now winemakers and consumers are more sophisticated and Pinot Noirs are more light and ethereal as well.”

On the shelves, A to Z is transitioning its 2013 vintage to the 2014 bottles. Both vintages share a warmer, riper growing season with plenty of sunshine and fruit, Davies says.

For the 2013 vintage, rain slowed the ripening of the fruit, allowing each individual vineyard to harvest its own grapes when ready instead of a “massive sprint to the finish.”

“The rain was wonderful, in hindsight,” Davies says. “The wine is quite classic, elegant, and balanced with nuanced flavors. It’s more complex, more versatile.”

By contrast, Davies says, the A to Z 2014 is a younger, more powerful vintage. Because the summer was warmer than usual, the A to Z team learned new techniques in the vineyard and in the winery to develop the perfect harmony.

“Part of the balance is not to have too much alcohol,” Davies says. “Our 2014 is not as layered as the 2013. It’s tighter, younger.”

A to Z Wineworks began in 2002 when two couples who were Oregon wine industry veterans – Deb Hatcher, Bill Hatcher, Sam Tannahill and Cheryl Francis – used the Hatcher kitchen to make the original blend honored by Food & Wine magazine as the Best American Pinot Noir under

DOMESTIC OR IMPORTED, PINOT NOIR PLEASES

WHILE PINOT NOIR GRAPES THRIVE IN COOLER WEATHER – it does especially well in Oregon – it shines in a variety of climates around the world.

Pinot Noir grapes are primarily associated with the Burgundy region of France. The name is derived from the French words for pine and black; the pine alluding to the grape variety having tightly clustered, pine cone-shaped bunches of fruit. Other domestic regions that have gained a reputation for Pinot Noir in addition to the Willamette Valley are the Carneros, Central Coast and Russian River AVAs (American Viticultural Area) of California – the largest producer of Pinot Noir by volume in the U.S.

Regions known for growing Pinot Noir internationally include:

The Burgundy region of France: French Pinot Noir develops more complex flavors as it ages, and is also a primary variety used in the sparkling wine production of Champagne. Try: Latour Pinot Noir Valmoussine; Barton & Guestier Pinot Noir Bistro.

The Walker Bay wine region of South Africa: It’s here the cooler, more temperate environments and higher elevations lend themselves well to growing Pinot Noir grapes. The cool ocean breezes help retain a bright acidity, producing food-friendly wines. Try: Hamilton Russell Pinot Noir.

Tasmania (Tasmanian soil produces fruit with great expression – the cool, humid region produces more delicate fruit flavors in its Pinot Noir,) and the Yarra Valley in Australia: While much of Australia is too hot for Pinot Noir grapes, these areas are where the region’s most moderate climates are found, producing earthy, plummy wines. Try: Rosemount Estate Pinot Noir; Lindeman’s Bin 99 Pinot Noir.

Central Otago, Martinborough and Marlborough wine regions of New Zealand: The fickle grape has found its “home away from home” here. Since the 1990s, planting has expanded throughout the southern island. Pinot Noirs from the central region are fragrant, complex and textured, with spicy cherry and plum flavors. Try: Roaring Meg Pinot Noir; Brancott Pinot Noir.

In Italy, the climates in the hills of the Italian Alps are ideal for growing Pinot Noir (known as Pinot Nero.) The flavors range from bright cherry and blackberry to brown spice. Try: Mezzacorona Pinot Noir.

$20. Recognition for A to Z wines, with dependable quality and great value, continued and production grew. Its commitment to sustainable viticulture also expanded.

A to Z has worked with more than 100 Oregon vineyards, offering assistance for sustainability certification. It has two viticulturists on staff and uses biodynamic principles to farm all owned or long-leased vineyards.

A to Z has learned to stay nimble and flexible. The Oregon wine industry, created in the 1960s with a pioneering passion at its core, is renowned for its communal spirit and comradery. And A to Z, whose wines are distributed nationally, has earned the reputation as a generous leader among other Oregon winemakers, many of which are small, family-run enterprises which pride themselves on select, limited editions of finely crafted vintages.

Yes, there is a sense of competition. Yet what is much stronger is the bond of trust, respect and service within the Oregon wine community rooted in shared best practices that yields a common, joyful success.

Spirits of the Old West

High West Distillery: Blending the New and the Old

The winding, climbing Old Lincoln Highway snakes through the foothills of the Northern Wasatch Range of the Rocky Mountains as it heads east out of Park City, Utah. It dips and climbs again, meandering through nearby Wanship, where the new High West Distillery emerges dramatically from the hills.

Tall, striking and evocative of the Old West, it's the perfect home for a company founded on crafting signature spirits known for being bold.

High West Distillery was born 12 years ago when founders David and Jane Perkins followed their muse to northern Utah. David was originally inspired during a visit to the Maker's Mark Distillery three years earlier, when he spotted the similarities between his own work in biochemistry and the distilling process. With David's science background and vision (to make a world-class western whiskey) and Jane's lineage (her great-grandfather made the celebrated Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in the late 1800s), the move toward distilling began. In 2007, High West became Utah's first legal distiller since 1870, and the team began work in "the Saloon" – a historic livery stable and garage using a 250 gallon still. Despite these humble roots, success wasn't far off. In 2011 the company was honored by the Whisky Advocate as Whiskey Pioneer of the Year.

BY BILL BURKE

High West Distillery began production in "the Saloon," a historic livery stable and garage, in 2007.

"The company was growing faster than the old facility could support," Head Distiller Brendan Coyle says of the move from the Saloon to a ski-in gastro-distillery in Park City proper. "There's a lot of room to grow here."

Perched on a hillside, this classically-western structure, designed to look like an old mining building one might come across in Park City, features exposed wooden beams alongside gleaming glass. Cupolas rise up from the roof, providing a raised centerpiece and providing natural cooling throughout the 30,000-square-foot facility. Sections of carefully-placed tin give it an aged feel, and large, floor-to-ceiling windows wrap around the still house. A look inside reveals the gleaming, 1,600 gallon copper pot still and rows of shining tanks – a tangible sign that illustrates the growth of this Utah-based distiller.

"We now have the production scale to produce what we need in the future," Coyle says. "In this new facility we can put out 1,400 barrels a year right now. But that's a mere fraction of the total output possible once we expand the place out. We'll be able to do 12,000 barrels a year."

High West produces some of its own whiskey and also partners with different distilleries across the country and around the world to bring in different flavor components and stocks of whiskey to create different and new aromas and flavors.

"We made our name with very bold and flavorful rye whiskeys," Coyle says. "I like what rye whiskey can offer – a complex profile. I like what high content, 90-plus or 100 percent rye can offer, but I also have a special place in my heart for Scotch malts."

Coyle's affinity for Scotch comes from his professional experience – a winding route that led him from Minnesota, to Utah, and then to Scotland. It's there he earned a Master's of Science in Brewing and Distilling Sciences at Heriot Watt University in Edinburgh. Upon completion, the call of the southern desert brought him back to Park City, where he met David and Jane Perkins.

High West Distillery produces a number of spirits, primarily blended whiskies ranging from its flagship Rendezvous Rye, (a 95 point rated whiskey by Whisky Advocate) to Double Rye!, American Prairie Bourbon and the distinctive Campfire – a unique blend of bourbon, rye and Scotch.

“Our ultimate goal is to create complex, unique blended whiskey,” Coyle says. “I think what makes High West stand out, what really showcases High West's quality is its very unique and complex blends – and sometimes blends that traditionally aren't blended together.”

The company keeps its eye on the future, and that practice is what led to its current offering of memorable rye whiskies.

“High content rye whiskies in 2006 and 2007 were barely a blip on the map,” Coyle says. “Only hardcore insiders had a taste for it at that time. In 2012 or so, there was a major rye resurgence – the pre-Prohibition whiskey came back with a vengeance. We always try to keep our eyes forward to show what's great about whiskey and to educate the consumer.”

“There hasn't been too much experimentation in the American whiskey world. Only in the past 10-15 years have we seen an uptick in experimentation and innovation. We saw an opportunity there to create new blends and new flavor profiles – to show the consumer what whiskey can be.”

High West's American Prairie Bourbon which is defined by the company's mantra: a blend that is complex, rich and bold.

“It's bourbon forward, but it has an earthy complexity, as well,” Coyle says. “I hesitate to say spiciness, because then you'll think rye, but it does have some earthy spice complexities in the mid-palate and in the finish. We wanted it to be more three-dimensional as you experience it.”

The Double Rye, described as a “shotgun marriage of two rye whiskies from two different distilleries back

Perched on a hillside in Park City, Utah, High West Distillery's new 30,000-square-foot facility was designed to look like an old mining building.

The Distiller's Craft

PRESERVING THE GREAT PLAINS

SAYING THAT HIGH WEST DISTILLERY IS PASSIONATE about its western roots and the beauty of the Great Plains might be a bit of an understatement.

For proof, look no further than its flagship American Prairie Bourbon.

The pronghorn antelope, a species that would be a benefactor of the American Prairie Reserve – an effort to assemble a 5,000-square-mile tract of land in northeastern Montana – is featured prominently on the front of the bottle, while the story of the Reserve is on the back. High West donates 10 percent of its after tax profits from its American Prairie Bourbon to the Reserve.

The Reserve, sometimes referred to as “the American Serengeti,” is roughly the size of Connecticut, and would be the largest wildlife reserve in the lower 48 states – larger than Yellowstone, Yosemite and Grand Teton National Parks combined.

American Prairie Reserve: Americanprairie.org east,” has a balance of cinnamon, botanical herbs, and mint.

High West’s Rendezvous Rye is a blend of two exotic straight rye whiskies, creating a full-flavored and complex spirit with a high rye content.

“We make a big effort to drive that complexity,” Coyle says. “It’s a journey when you taste whiskey, and experiencing the complexity is part of that journey.”

But perhaps the most interesting is High West’s Campfire – a blend of bourbon, rye and a peated single malt Scotch. The result is unusual and distinctive, and according to Coyle, it never fails to be a head-turner.

“When I travel through the country, everyone is drawn to Campfire,” Coyle says. “I think the reason why is that everyone is familiar with everything in it, but they’re not familiar with them being blended together.”

Visitors can tour High West’s facilities, including the Saloon in Park City, the Nelson Cottage – a restaurant two doors up from the Saloon – and a welcome (or farewell) to the region at High West’s Salt Lake City Airport site. Of course, there’s also the distillery and tasting room, which offers tours several days a week. And while it is about 25 minutes outside of town, the trip is one worth taking. ☒

“It Feels Like Home”

New Londonderry Outlet Expands Space, Selection

Melissa Powell locked the doors for the last time at the New Hampshire Liquor and Wine Outlet in Londonderry on a recent Sunday night, walked across the parking lot and turned on the lights at what is now one of the state’s newest stores.

“It felt like moving into a new house – a big, shiny new house, going from a one bedroom apartment into a mansion,” store manager Melissa Powell says. “It felt awesome, and it was nice to see everyone’s smiling reactions. It was really great.”

The new Londonderry Outlet, located just off exit 4 on I-93 in the Market Basket Plaza, opened to the public just 10 days after the move began – providing a new, much larger option for customers.

“It is a great feeling of accomplishment,” Powell says of the facility upgrade, and the work that went into making it a smooth transition.

At almost four times larger than the previous location, Powell and her team have opened an Outlet that feels bright, welcoming and offers a greatly-expanded selection. Wide aisles make for easy shopping, and new, high-tech touches make the experience more convenient. iPads are on-hand, providing information on great food and beverage pairings, and giving customers the opportunity to look up details on the expansive inventory.

While the team of three full-timers and nearly 20 part-timers didn’t have far to go, the opening of the new Londonderry Outlet is a substantial expansion. The old store, at 4,000 square feet, served the town well for nearly 23 years. But as the doors of the new location were thrown open to the public, customers were welcomed into a 17,500-square-foot upgrade.

“It is exciting, similar to when you move into a new home,” Powell says. “Honestly, it feels like home.”

A tour of the store shows the new selection available: The left side houses nearly 2,800 wines, while the right offers shoppers a diverse selection of spirits. And down the middle, a long aisle with enough bourbon and whiskeys to please even the most ardent fan.

“My assistant manager, Randy Marcotte, is the bourbon guy,” Powell says. “He really knows his stuff. He has customers that come in to specifically ask him for suggestions and special orders – so we have an expanded bourbon and whiskey selection in general because of his expertise.”

The gateway to whiskey-central is marked by a display case with highly-sought after spirits like the Macallan 18 single malt Scotch and a prized bottle of the Jack Daniels Sinatra Century Limited Edition.

“It’s never-ending,” Powell says. “And we finally have the V5 whiskey, a popular item from Smoky Quartz Distillery in Seabrook. We like to keep it local. We try to bring in all the local products – not just whiskies, but wine, as well. We love New Hampshire products.”

That’s where Powell’s expertise comes in. She began her career with the New Hampshire Liquor Commission at the age of 18, with very little wine knowledge. As her part-time status grew to full time and she reached 21, she was able to take advantage of educational opportunities and take part more fully in wine tastings and training sessions, learning as much as possible about her developing interest.

During a tour, Powell – now a full-time wine enthusiast – points out the temperature-controlled wine refrigerator along the back of the new store, home to a variety of Champagnes, Proseccos and higher-end selections.

“I learned it all by working here,” she says. “Now I have customers who come in and seek me out for recommendations. Then they come back with other people asking for ideas. And that’s my favorite part of the job – the customers. I love when I give someone a suggestion and they come back to me and say, ‘Melissa, that was great.’

It makes me feel accomplished. That’s the best feeling.”

The store’s third full-timer, Shelly Duggan, helps fill-out the team with her own specific skillset. “Shelly is the type of person who loves to learn, so she’s always keeping up her knowledge of wine and spirits,” Powell says. “She helps us immensely on that end.”

“We have a family mentality around here,” she says. “It’s not just about Londonderry, it’s about all the Outlet stores. Our team is always willing to help each other. When you build a good group, it’s not just for me, but for everyone. That spills over everywhere because the people I’m hiring today as part-timers are probably going to want to go full time someday, and they’ll probably go full time at another store and they’ll bring their great attitude and their knowledge there. In a way, it’s like paying it forward.”

That approach was especially evident during the recent move. Managers and full-timers from stores throughout the region pitched in to help with the admittedly physical process. Everything was packed up, hauled across the parking lot to the new store, unpacked, placed on shelves and made ready for the grand opening.

According to Powell, it was worth the effort. Walking from the front of the store to the back, Powell stops several times to chat with regulars.

“It feels like we belong here,” she says. “We have a large customer base, but we know many of the people by their first name. It makes us feel like we’re part of the community.” 🍷

GLENDRONACH DISTILLERY
C<sup>o</sup> LIMITED

SINCE 1826 SINCE

The GlenDronach Peated pays homage to the peat historically used to dry the malted barley in the traditional floor matlings during the early days of the distillery. The subtle peated notes in this intriguing expression complement the classic GlenDronach Highland character and the rich sherry notes drawn from the wood.

RON BARCELÓ

-RON DOMINICANO-
AGED RUM

Uniquely different from other rums because Barceló Añejo is made from the fermented juice of the sugar cane and not from molasses.

Aged up to 4 years in American bourbon oak barrels.

Golden, amber color. Woody aromas of butterscotch and toffee with flavors of vanilla bean, caramel and mild spices.

A rich, flavorful rum.

SUPREME QUALITY

Enjoy responsibly.

Regular Price $15.99 | Sale Price $13.99 | Save $2.00

New Hampshire Code 4692 | 750ml

Ron Barceló is a registered trademark of Ron Barceló, SRL. Rum 40% Alc./Vol. (80 Proof). ©2016 Imported by Shaw-Ross International Importers, Miramar, Florida.

Jewell Towne Vineyards: In Pursuit of Balance, Quality

Dr. Peter Oldak doesn't want to make meatloaf. Oldak, owner and winemaker at Jewell Towne Vineyards, is nothing if not passionate about winemaking. A champion for anything New Hampshire-made, his commitment to quality extends to every detail of winemaking at his 12-acre plot located near the Powwow River. And that means skipping any shortcuts during the sometimes complicated journey from vine to bottle.

"This is very important," Oldak says while looking out over the rows of vines that rise and fall with the landscape of his South Hampton vineyard. "If I take two or three wines and blend them together and call it 'Proprietor's White,' that's meatloaf. People really don't get to learn anything about the local varieties, the vin locale, the wines that do well in this state and this region."

It's a pursuit that Oldak – a former emergency room doctor – and his wife, Brenda (co-founder and CEO), began when they moved to the property in 1977. Together, the pair have tended what started out as a "hobby run amok" and turned it into the oldest winery currently producing in the state – growing 25 different varieties of grapes and capable of producing as much as 15,000 gallons of wine annually. All the while the Oldaks and their team, four full-timers and three part-time workers, work to keep standards high – and to shepherd burgeoning vintners if the need arises.

"This has been my goal," he says. "I've worked with a lot of the newer wineries and newer winemakers coming into the field by advising them what would be the right varieties to grow, and how to grow them, and sometimes helping them if there is a problem in terms of winemaking. I've sort of been an informal consultant."

It all goes toward the bigger picture. After all, a rising tide lifts all boats. "If someone makes a wine that's not good, and the consumer tastes that wine and says, 'Oh, that's what New Hampshire wine is like – I don't want any more,' it hurts the industry," he says. "I want to see the industry be successful, and that involves emphasis on quality."

And that attention to detail – a hallmark of the South Hampton vineyard – starts at home.

"Our wine is meant to be enjoyed, not studied," Oldak says. "Meaning that we want people to come and taste and enjoy and not feel that they need to know anything more."

The winding back roads of South Hampton lead to a stack of wine barrels at the end of the Jewell Towne Vineyards drive. Visitors enter a reproduction New England post-and-beam barn, crafted partially from wood harvested from the property. The winery is located in a historic district right along the Massachusetts border, where there are 11 houses dating back to the 1790s.

"When we built this we wanted it to be consistent with the period and the historic district," Oldak says of the large barn sitting alongside the rolling fields. "I wish I could say I had a vision for it. It's one of those things like a New England farmhouse – it just evolved slowly – an addition here, an addition there. I think we were so busy just farming that we didn't see the vineyards because of all the vines."

The comfortable, classic New England tasting room leads up to an art gallery, where Brenda Oldak's paintings line the walls (she also designed the Jewell Towne labels). Several tables sit across from the tasting bar, where guests can sample some of the winery's award-winning wares.

"Our best seller is one called South Hampton Red," Oldak says. "It's a sweet red wine, and sweet reds seem to have come into their own this year, or these last couple years. But we also do a traditional, dry Chardonnay and Cabernet and a number of what are called French-American hybrids – one of which is Aurora, which is very nice, dry, and what I call a fish wine. It's a nice wine to go with flounder, a nice delicate white wine."

Oldak is focused on promoting winemaking as a dynamic agriculture process. It's not made from a recipe, it can change from year to year, and the wines that come from Jewell Towne Vineyards reflect the terroir of southern New Hampshire. Oldak describes it as a terroir that promotes fruit-forward wines with good acid backbone. And one of the distinguishing features of eastern wines, particularly Jewell Towne's wines, is that the acidity is a good balance for fruit and makes the wine stand up well with food.

"If it has no acidity, the wine is flabby," he says. "Whereas if it has too much acidity it can be green. We strive for balance in our wine, but balance incorporating some of the acidity that is a property of our terroir."

A tour brings visitors into the tasting room, down to the wine cellar, past rows of tanks, through the bottling room, and finally out into the vineyard itself. Stop by, that's where you're likely to find the proprietor – inspecting the trellises, pruning and training the vines.

"This is one of the heaviest crops we've seen in a number of years," Oldak says, tipping back his weathered cowboy hat and moving aside shoots to expose a full cluster of plump, ripening grapes. "There are a number of factors that enter into it, but this year the crop is very, very large." 🍷

Revisiting the Classics

Vintage Cocktails Gets an Update

Classic cocktails are revered for a reason: they transport us to an earlier time, they ooze class, sophistication, and most importantly, they're delicious.

However, there's no reason to let a tried-and-tested cocktail become stale. With a few creative twists, those traditional mixers can take on a new taste.

Let's reintroduce two classic American cocktails – the Old Fashioned and the Manhattan – and investigate the idea of trying different versions. So loosen that tie, select a great bottle of whiskey or rye, and impress guests with these new takes on old favorites.

First, the Old Fashioned. There is a four-page description of the cocktail in the Mr. Boston Official Bartender Guide: 75th Anniversary Edition, ending with the commentary that it was one of the first American cocktails. Here is a simple and delicious recipe for a traditional Old Fashioned, the kind you would see Don Draper drinking on "Mad Men."

Traditional Old Fashioned Serves 1

- 1 sugar cube soaked in 2 dashes Angostura bitters
- OR
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 2 dashes Angostura bitters
- 1 orange peel
- 2 ounces rye whiskey

Muddle the orange peel with the sugar and bitters. Pour in the whiskey. Add a tiny splash of water. Add an ice cube and stir to mix.

And now, for a totally updated version from barmini by José Andrés, in Washington, D.C., comes an unexpected and sweet treat.

Cotton Candy Old Fashioned Serves 1

- 2 ounces rye
- 2 dashes of bitters
- Plain cotton candy (about a softball size per cocktail)
- Orange peel for garnish

Stir rye and bitters. Pour cocktail over cotton candy until all is melted. Garnish with oil from orange peel.

Next, my favorite, the Manhattan. The original Manhattan was made only with rye whiskey, minus the cherry. I like using restaurateur Geoffrey Zakarian's recipe for a Classic Manhattan, as follows, because it uses cherry bitters and orange peel and one gorgeous luxurious cherry.

Geoffrey Zakarian's Classic Manhattan Cocktail Serves 1

- 2 ounces rye whiskey
- 1 ounce sweet vermouth
- 2 dashes cherry bitters
- 1 dash absinthe
- 1 premium maraschino cherry, such as Luxardo
- 1 orange peel

Combine the whiskey, vermouth, cherry bitters and absinthe in a shaker with ice. Shake until chilled and strain into a rocks glass. Serve up, and garnish with the cherry and an orange peel. You may flame the oils of the orange peel before placing in the glass if desired, using a lighter.

Now consider trying Giada De Laurentiis' version, using artichoke liqueur – a surprising and delicious addition.

Artichoke Manhattan Serves 1

- 2 ounces rye whiskey
- ½ ounce artichoke liqueur, such as Cynar
- ½ ounce sweet vermouth
- 1 petal fennel
- 1 strip orange zest

Add the rye to a cocktail glass filled with ice, artichoke liqueur and sweet vermouth. Stir for 30 seconds to chill. Strain into a rocks glass with fresh ice. Garnish with the fennel petal and orange zest.
