

Date: 30 May 2014. Black Sugarloaf, Birraleee (big tree track).

Habitat: Closed wet Eucalypt forest.

Substrate: Leaf in litter accumulated among fronds of Dicksonia antarctica.

Description scattered to gregarious stalked brown sporangia 0.8–1.2 mm high. Sporotheca ovate to sub-cylindrical, light brown, 0.6 x 0.4–0.6 mm diameter. Stalk \leq half height of sporotheca, black in reflected light, reddish by transmitted light, 0.5–0.6 mm long. Hypothallus discoid, conspicuous, reddish brown. Peridium fugacious. Columella gradually tapering, almost reaches the top of the sporotheca where it merges into capillitium. Capillitium abundant, brown, perpendicular to columella, anastomosing, with free ends. Spores brown in mass, reddish brown by transmitted light, warty, most 7.5 μ m, a few much larger.

Notes: Keys out to C. pulchella in N.E. N.-B. (1991).

