Collection Overview

Repository:	Archives of American Gardens
Title:	Thomas Warren Sears photograph collection
Date:	1899-1964
Identifier:	AAG.SRS
Creator:	Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966 Sears & Wendell Olmsted Brothers Harvard University American Society of Landscape Architects
Source:	Tibbetts, Eleanor Sears (Donor)
Extent:	44.5 Cubic feet (4,317 glass negatives. 363 film negatives. 182 glass lantern slides. 12 photograph albums. 56 plans and drawings. 3 monographs.)
Language:	English .
Summary:	The Thomas Warren Sears Photograph Collection documents examples of the design work of Thomas Warren Sears (1880-1966), a landscape architect and amateur photographer from Brookline, Massachusetts. Sears, who was based for most of his career in Philadelphia, designed a variety of different types of landscapes ranging from private residences, schools, and playgrounds to parks, cemeteries, and urban housing developments located primarily in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New York. In addition to some of Sears' design work, images in the collection document Sears' domestic and foreign travels, design inspirations, and family. The collection includes over 4,800 black and white negatives and glass lantern slides dated circa 1899 to 1930. While most images show private and public gardens, there are a significant number of unidentified views and views photographed in Europe during two trips he took there in 1906 and 1908. Few images are captioned or dated. In addition, there are over 50 plans and drawings, most notably for Balmuckety in Pikesville, Maryland and Reynolda in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and 3 monographs by or about Sears.

Administrative Information

Immediate Source of Acquisition Note

Gift of Eleanor Sears Tibbetts, Sears' daughter, to the Horticulture Services Division (later Smithsonian Gardens) in 1992.

Provenance

Sears' daughter, Eleanor Sears Tibbetts, deposited the Thomas Warren Sears Collection with the Winterthur Museum's Garden Department around 1991. Winterthur subsequently decided not to acquire the collection and it was then donated by Mrs. Tibbetts to the Smithsonian's Horticulture Services Division (now Smithsonian Gardens). The collection was transferred to HSD in the plastic crates which Winterthur had used to store it.

Related Archival Materials

The Philadelphia Architects and Buildings Project (PAB), administered by The Athenaeum of Philadelphia, includes references to design projects by Sears.

Harvard University's Loeb Library includes a number of images by Sears, some of them documenting gardens that he designed.

Harvard University's Fine Arts Library, Special Collections includes a collection of photographs and negatives of English parish churches by Sears, c. 1908. Some of the images were published in the monograph, Parish Churches of England.

The Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, North Carolina includes plans by Sears of Reynolda in its Estate Archives.

Other Finding Aids

An item-level inventory of the photographic images in the Thomas Warren Sears Collection was generated by Marie Martin, an appraiser of 19th and 20th century photography, for the collection's donor (Sears' daughter), Eleanor S. Tibbetts. Martin inventoried the collection from December 1992 to February 1993 after it had been donated to the Smithsonian's Horticulture Services Division (later Smithsonian Gardens); she submitted copies of the completed inventory to Mrs. Tibbetts and to the Smithsonian in March 1993.

Processing Information

The collection was processed by Smithsonian staffers Paula Healy and Marca Woodhams and Smithsonian volunteer Nancy Sahli.

Biographical Note

Thomas Warren Sears was born in 1880 in Brookline, Massachusetts. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Harvard University in 1903 and Bachelor of Science degree in landscape architecture from the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard in 1906. Sears was an amateur photographer who won awards for his photography while at Harvard. In 1915 his images were published in the monograph, Parish Churches of England. After graduation he worked for the firm of Olmsted Brothers Landscape Architects for two years and then briefly practiced in Providence, Rhode Island. In 1913, Sears established a landscape design office in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania where he spent the remainder of his professional career. Sears at one point was in a professional partnership; some of his design plans list the firm name of Sears and Wendell. He was made a Fellow of the American Society of Landscape Architects in 1921.

Sears designed many different types of landscapes ranging from private residences, schools, and playgrounds to parks, cemeteries, and urban housing developments. His designs were primarily located in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New York. Just a few of his private landscapes include Marengo in Easton, Maryland; Sunnybrook, the Isaac H. Clothier, Jr. estate in Radnor, Pennsylvania; and Balmuckety in Pikesville, Maryland. In 1915, Sears started work on Reynolda, a country estate in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. He generated design plans for the property intermittently over the next two decades. Reynolda's formal gardens, greenhouses, and acres of fields and woodlands subsequently became part of Wake Forest University.

During World War I, Sears designed Army camps in Battle Creek, Michigan and Spartanburg, South Carolina. He also helped lay out Langley Field, at that time an experimental aviation field in Hampton Roads, Virginia. In the 1940s, Sears designed the amphitheater at Swarthmore College in Swarthmore, Pennsylvania for concerts, outdoor performances, and other special events. During that decade he also worked on Colonial Revival gardens at Pennsbury, William Penn's country estate in Bucks County, Pennsylvania located by the Delaware River. Sears retired in 1964 and died in 1966.

Scope and Contents

The Thomas Warren Sears Photograph Collection documents examples of the design work of Thomas Warren Sears (1880-1966), a landscape architect and amateur photographer from Brookline, Massachusetts. Sears, who was based for most of his career in Philadelphia, designed a variety of different types of landscapes ranging from private residences, schools, and playgrounds to parks, cemeteries, and urban housing developments located primarily in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New York. In addition to some of Sears' design work, images in the collection document Sears' domestic and foreign travels, design inspirations, and family. The collection includes over 4,800 black and white negatives and glass lantern slides dated circa 1899 to 1930. While most images show private and public gardens, there are a significant number of unidentified views and views photographed in Europe during two trips he took there in 1906 and 1908. Few images are captioned or dated. In addition, there are over 50 plans and drawings, most notably for Balmuckety in Pikesville, Maryland and Reynolda in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and monographs by or about Sears. Several of the glass lantern slides are duplicates of glass plate negatives in the collection. They apparently were chosen by Sears to illustrate some of his best design work, perhaps for lecture or client purposes.

In addition, there are 56 plans and drawings, most notably for Balmuckety in Pikesville, Maryland and Reynolda in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. They range in date from 1917 to 1937 and from 1955 to 1964. Sears photographed some of his early plans; they are included in with the photographic images. Sears also photographed a handful of design plans by landscape architect Sibley Coslett Smith who practiced in Providence, Rhode Island; Sears and Smith shared the same business address there.

The Thomas Warren Sears Collection does not fully document the extent of Sears' design work. The use of glass plate negatives—which make up the bulk of the Thomas Warren Sears Collection—as a photography medium waned sometime during the first quarter of the twentieth century. As a result, the images in the Sears Collection capture examples of Sears' early to mid-career design work but they do not include jobs designed by Sears during the latter half of his design career.

Arrangement

The glass plate negatives were originally housed in numerous cardboard boxes manufactured for the sale of undeveloped glass plate negatives. Sears annotated the outside of the boxes with project or client names and/or locations, but the contents do not always match these labels. In addition, because very few of the glass plate negatives and lantern slides were labeled or captioned, it is not always evident where one job ended and another began if multiple projects were stored in the same carton. As a result, there are many instances in the Sears Collection where images have been inadvertently mislabeled because their identification is not apparent. Misidentified images are subject to correction as their proper identification is discovered. Each project has been assigned its own unique AAG job number based on its geographic origin. Those groups of images that have not been identified as to their location have been assigned a project number starting with 'SRS.' The collection is arranged into 3 series: 1) Photographic images (including glass plate negatives, film negatives, glass lantern slides, and photograph albums) 2) Plans and Drawings 3) Monographs

MD086: Annapolis -- 'Holly Beach Farm,' Labrot, Sylvester

Creator: Labrot, Sylvester, Mr.
Labrot, Sylvester, Mrs.
Labrot, William H.
Labrot, William H., Mrs.

Architect: Thomas, Douglas H.

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: The folders include worksheets, photocopies of garden tour descriptions of the property, and other information.

Located on the shores of the Chesapeake Bay near Annapolis, Holly Beach Farm was the home of the Labrot family, originally from Louisiana, and active in horseracing circles. The Labrots purchased the property around 1900, and in 1907 built a Georgian-style mansion designed by architect Douglas H. Thomas, Jr. The extensive grounds were landscaped with expansive lawns and garden borders that stretched down to the bayshore. Unique features included a pergola and gazebo done in a rustic work style. The house, which has recently been restored, was sold by the family in 1994, while much of the land was transferred to the State of Maryland in 1944 to create Sandy Point State Park. A more recent land transfer has protected 300 additional acres, which are now under the aegis of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation. Most of the images in this collection were taken by Thomas W. Sears around 1914, shortly after the gardens were first developed. It is likely that Sears was the landscape architect responsible for designing this job.

Persons associated with the property include Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Labrot (former owners (ca. 1900-1930); Mr. and Mrs. William H. Labrot (former owners, ca. 1930-1950); Douglas H. Thomas, Jr. (architect, 1907); and Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect, 1914).

Holly Beach Farm related holdings consist of 2 folders (41 glass negatives; 1 lantern slide; 3 slides (photographs))

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

MD219: Annapolis -- James Brice House

Creator: Buckland, William, 1734-1774
Brice, James, 1746-1881

Notes: International Union of Bricklayers and Allied Craftsmen

The folder includes a worksheet and other information.

Located at 42 East Street in Annapolis, the James Brice House is an example of Georgian five part architecture built during the period of 1767 to 1773. The home was built for James Brice, who served as Mayor of Annapolis (1782-83 and 1787-88) and as acting Governor of Maryland (1792). Some of the interiors have been attributed to architect, William Buckland. The home was declared a Historic National Landmark and is owned by the International Union of Bricklayers and Allied Craftsman.

Persons associated with the garden include James Brice (previous owner, 1767-), William Buckland (architect, 1928) and International Union of Bricklayers (owner).

James Brice House related holdings consist of 1 folder (2 3x5 in glass negatives)

Steele, James
Mason, John
Cusachs, Marguerite
Van Ness, Rosalie

Creator: Ogle, Benjamin
Pratt, Thomas George, 1804-1869
Tasker, Benjamin, 1690-1768

Notes: The folder includes a worksheet and other information.

Located at 247 King George Street in Annapolis, Ogle Hall is one of the oldest Georgian mansions in Annapolis, Maryland. According to legend, the Marquis de Lafayette planted a yew tree in the Ogle garden. The home was built in 1739 for Dr. William Stephenson, an Annapolis surgeon who died before its completion in 1742 and had various successive owners, including the Ogle family and its descendents for whom it is named. The home is currently owned by the United States Naval Academy and referred to as Ogle Hall or Alumni House.

Persons associated with the garden include William Stephenson (previous owner, 1739), Benjamin Tasker (previous owner, 1760-1773), Anne Ogle (1760-1773), Benjamin and Henrietta Ogle (previous owners, 1773-1815), James Steele (previous owner, c.1815-1839), Sally Scott Murray Lloyd (previous owner, 1839-1847), Thomas George Pratt (previous owner, 1839-1867), U.S. Navy Judge John Mason and his wife (previous owner, 1867-1909), Marguerite Cusachs and Rosalie Van Ness (previous co-owners, 1909-1923), Marguerite Porter Cusachs (previous owner, 123-1944) and United States Naval Academy (owner, 1944-present).

Notes: The Upton Scott house was built in 1762-63 by William Brown. Scott, a native of Ireland, came to America at Governor Horatio Sharpe's request to be his personal physician. Scott was a keen gardener and herbalist. The Sisters of Notre Dame acquired the house in 1968, but it is now privately owned.

Notes: Although the plan, which probably dates to 1913, appears to indicate Michael Jenkins (1842-1915) as the owner of Edgewood, it is fairly certain that he merely commissioned the design and landscaping of the site, perhaps as a 75th birthday gift for his sister Eliza. Edgewood was the country home of Eliza Lucas Jenkins (1838-1916) and had been purchased for her and her sister Ellen M. Jenkins (1841-1908) by another sibling, Joseph W. Jenkins (1840-1921). Michael Jenkins lived nearby at his own estate, Llewellyn (see images in MD360).

Notes: The same pergola appears in ENG045022, ENG045027, and ENG097010. Images ENG097010 and MD056073 show the brick columns as unpainted, while ENG045022 and ENG045027 show painted columns, suggesting that Sears visited the site initially in 1906 and again in 1908, following the painting. Although one of the images, ENG097010, would place the location of the pergola at Gravetye Manor, home of William Robinson, no evidence has yet been found for this style of pergola at that site. Likewise, despite lantern slide MD056073 (produced from source image ENG097010) being physically associated with other images of Edgewood, MD056, it does not appear to be of that garden. More likely, Sears used it as a reference or source for the pergola that he did design for Edgewood.

The lantern slide was made by Frank L. Collyer, 22 1/2 Crescent St., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

MD006: Baltimore -- Mount Clare

Creator: Carroll, Charles, 1702-1782

National Society of the Colonial Dames of America

Notes: Georgia Plantation named by Dr. Charles Carroll in 1732.

The folder includes a work sheet,

"In 1756, Charles Carroll, Barrister, began construction of Mount Clare at Georgia Plantation. He named his new summer residence after his grandmother, Mary Clare Dunn, and his sister, Mary Clare Carroll (Maccubbin). The house was built in the Georgian style of soft pink brick, laid in allheader bond, most of which would have been made on the plantation. A series of grass ramps led from the bowling green down shaded terraces or falls. A sweeping view spread across the lower fields to the waters of the Patapsco River, about one mile away. There was a greenhouse with "orange and lemon trees just ready to bear besides which is a new building, a pinery, where the gardener expects some (pineapples) to ripen next summer." Mrs. Carroll had a great interest in horticulture. Contemporary letters indicate that pineapples and broccoli were raised in the pinery and that General Washington wrote Mrs. Carroll asking her advice on plants to grow at Mount Vernon as well as information on the construction and heating of a greenhouse. Entrance to the house on the land side is by the carriage entrance through a columned portico paved with gray and white marble, above which is a chamber with a fine Palladian window." (National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in Maryland, website) The museum, in the Carroll Park neighborhood of Baltimore, is open for tours.

Persons associated with the garden include: Charles Carroll (former owner, 1750); National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in Maryland (owners, 1917-present)

Mount Clare related holdings consist of 2 folders (1 35 mm. slide, glass photonegatives, and glass lantern slides)

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

Garden featured in Alice G.B. Lockwood, Gardens of Colony and State (Charles Scribner's Sons, 1934), pp. 154-157.

MD065: Chevy Chase -- Ogilby Jr., C. F. R.
Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
Former owner: Ogilby, Charles F. R., Jr., 1879-1962
Ogilby, Elizabeth F. Hoehling, 1879-1965
Architect: Heaton, Arthur B., 1875-1951
Notes: The file includes 14 glass plate negatives, 1 photograph album, and a folder with a worksheet and other information.
Thomas W. Sears took the photographs of this property in the early spring of 1911, as indicated in the album, which includes prints of all 14 negatives. They appear to show the site and its new house prior to any landscaping installation, aside from a few trees. Some demarcation of walkways and what may have been garden outlines is in evidence. Charles F. R. Ogilby, Jr., was a prominent Washington, DC, attorney.
Persons and firms associated with the garden include Charles F. R. Ogilby, Jr., and Elizabeth F. Hoehling Ogilby (former owners, circa 1911-1950); Arthur B. Heaton (architect, 1911); and Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, 1911).

 Notes: Marengo overlooked the Miles River, with thw town of St. Michaels in the distance. The Victorian/Gothic house was built in the 1890s and consisted of two and one-half stories with a two story kitchen. In the early twentieth century the house underwent some alterations and the gardens were designed by Thomas Sears. The gardens and house were maintained until both were demolished in 1979.

Notes: Other images of the garden, such as MD070003 and MD070006, show a different stage of its development. In these there are no pergola, sundial, circular birdbath, or office building beyond the pergola (all features of Sears' design and image MD070032). There are differences in plant material as well. The implications of this for image dating are intriguing, perhaps indicating that installation of various design elements occurred over a number of years.

MA047: Boston -- Franklin Park

Landscape architect: Olmsted, Frederick Law, 1822-1903

Olmsted, Olmsted, and Eliot
Olmsted Brothers

Notes: The folders include worksheets, photocopies of articles and book excerpts about the park, photocopies of correspondence, maps, and additional information.

Franklin Park (named for native son Benjamin Franklin) was created in 1885 as the terminus of the "Emerald Necklace" park system designed by Frederick Law Olmsted for the City of Boston. Comprising over 500 acres, with 200 acres of woodland, the park was intended to enable working class people to experience and enjoy a rural atmosphere within the surrounding urban area. In that regard it shared the philosophy of Olmsted's two other major creations, Central Park and Prospect Park. Over the years formal recreational areas have been developed beyond those envisioned in Olmsted's original plan (for example, the "Country Park" was converted to a golf course), but many elements of the original design--such as the road system and extensive woodland walks--remain. In recent years citizen activism by the Franklin Park Coalition and other organizations has led to significant preservation efforts for the park's landscape and historic structures. Many of the images in this series were taken by Thomas W. Sears and selected ones were used to illustrate the July 1906 article by John Nolen cited below.

Persons associated with the site include Frederick Law Olmsted (landscape architect, 1885).

Franklin Park related holdings consist of 3 folders (26 glass negatives, 8 photographic prints, 9 lantern slides, 3 slides (photographs))

J. Horace McFarland Collection, 1900-1961.

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

MA132: Boston -- The Riverway

Landscape architect: Olmsted, Frederick Law, 1822-1903

Olmsted, Olmsted, and Eliot
Olmsted Brothers

Notes: The folders include worksheets, maps, photocopies of articles and book excerpts, and additional information.

The Riverway is one of the sections of "The Parkway," Frederick Law Olmsted's grand design for a continuous green corridor (also known as the Emerald Necklace) running from the Charles River to Franklin Park. Following the course of the Muddy River from the Back Bay Fens, The Riverway was given its designation by a Boston Metropolitan Park Commissioners' 1887 vote as the area running from the Fens to upper Huntington Avenue and Leverett Pond. Construction of paths and bridges, grading, and planting of the section were substantially completed by 1895. The bulk of the images in this series were taken by Thomas W. Sears in 1907 and document both the Boston and Brookline sides of the river. The Emerald Necklace Conservancy spearheads contemporary efforts to preserve and restore The Riverway and other sections of "The Parkway" system.

Persons associated with the site include Frederick Law Olmsted (landscape architect, ca. 1880-1895).

The Riverway related holdings consist of 2 folders (55 glass negatives; 3 lantern slides)

J. Horace McFarland Collection, 1900-1961.

Records related to this site can be found at the Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site, Olmsted Job Number 00930, Riverway.

Site has been featured in Frederick Law Olmsted, "The Metropolitan Park System of Boston," Transactions of The American Society of Landscape Architects From its Inception in 1899 to the End of 1908 (1912), pp. 56-65.

Site has been featured in Norman T. Newton, Design on the Land: The Development of Landscape Architecture (Cambridge, Massachusetts and London England: The Belknap Press of Harvard University Press, 1971), pp. 299-306, 597.

MA124: Boston -- Volkman School

Educator: Volkman, Arthur L. K.

Notes: The folder includes worksheets and photocopies of articles about the school.

Founded around 1885 by Arthur L. K. Volkman, the Volkman School was a leading day school in its day in Boston and was attended by Thomas W. Sears, who, like most of its graduates, went on to Harvard. These images, some of which were likely taken by Sears, document the students and faculty between roughly 1895 and 1900 (Sears graduated from Harvard in the class of 1903). As a result of Volkmann's retirement the school combined with the Noble and Greenough School in 1917 and subsequently moved from Boston to Dedham in 1922.

Persons associated with the school include Arthur L. K. Volkmann (founder, ca. 1885-1917).

Image(s): [Volkman School] [glass negative]: students, probably crew team members, from the Volkman School, Boston Latin School, and other Boston-area schools, in the vicinity of Boston's Back Bay.

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: According to Robert Pruter's book "The Rise of American High School Sports and the Search for Control, 1880-1930," the Boston Athletic Association began sponsoring a secondary school rowing league in 1898, with nine Boston-area schools participating. It is likely that this photograph shows some of these league participants, including at least one from the Volkman School.

Sears & Co. storefront, at 9 Commerce Street in Boston.

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: Thomas W. Sears identified this image as "Old Joe and Dad's store." Sears's father, Alexander Pomeroy Sears (d. 1911), was in the wholesale grocery business and was in partnership with his uncle, Joshua Sears, until the latter's death in 1873. In the image, which is a photograph of an earlier photo taken during the late 19th century, the "Sears & Co." sign is placed above an earlier sign on which the name "Joshua Sears" has been partially erased. During the 1880s the business operated at the 9 Commerce Street location, as well as at 178 and 180 State Street, but by 1900 it appears to have been consolidated solely at 180 State Street.

SRS001: Boston or Cambridge -- Arnold Arboretum or the Harvard Botanic Garden
 Notes: 1 folder and 256 glass negatives. The folder includes worksheets, notecards with plant names and photograph dates, photocopies of box labels, and other information.

It is likely that most of the photographs of plants in this series were taken at either the Arnold Arboretum in Jamaica Plain, Massachusetts or at the Harvard Botanical Garden in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Indeed, several images (108, 112, 113, 118, and 119) can be verified as being taken at the Harvard garden. It is also possible that this was a student project undertaken by Sears when he was studying at Harvard. Many of the images include corresponding note cards listing the scientific names of the plants, as well as the date of the photograph(s). Some images originally housed in this series that appear to be of locations other than the two cited above or that have a different documentary intent have been removed to other series (including SRS008 and SRS015).

MA145: Brookline -- Frederic C. Hood Garden

Former owner: Thayer family

Creator: Crane, Chilton, Dr.
Crane, Chilton, Mrs.
Hood, Frederic C. (Frederic Clark), 1865-1942
Hood, Frederic C., Mrs.
Olmsted Brothers

Notes: Keating Garden

The folders include information sheets and an illustrated real estate advertisement for the property from 1994.

With grounds dating to 1898, this is the oldest unaltered Olmsted design in Massachusetts. The two-acre garden slopes very steeply south and is a walled series of large terraces ending in a street. The central terrace features flowering trees, wisteria, and flower beds, while the lower terraces includes a reflecting pool and berry patches. A walkway goes down the east border. A wisteria arbor parallels this walkway.

Persons associated with the property include: the Thayer family estate (former owner); Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Hood and family (former owners, 1898-1962); Dr. and Mrs. Chilton Crane (former owners, 1962-1968); and the Olmsted Brothers (landscape architects).

Frederic C. Hood Garden related holdings consist of 2 folders (20 35 mm. slides; 7 glass negatives)

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

Records related to this site can be found at the Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site, Olmsted Job Number 02276, Frederic C. Hood Garden.

Creator: Kilham and Hopkins

Notes: The folders include worksheets, a photocopy of the House and Garden article, and other information.

Located in the Longwood section of Brookline at 121 Carlton Street, Pitman Place was the home of Benjamin Keolaokalani Franklin Pitman and his wife Almira Hollander Pitman. The house was designed by architects Kilham and Hopkins in the Colonial Revival style in the early 1900s. Its gardens featured not only mature trees but also Japanese elements, flower beds, a latticed summer house, and shaded lawns. A porch overlooking the flower beds incorporated climbing and potted plants. The images documenting the property in the Sears Collection were taken by Thomas W. Sears to illustrate an article about the house that appeared in House and Garden magazine in 1912. The two slides (photographs) in the Garden Club of America Collection are apparently copies of lantern slides in the collection of the Loeb Library at the School of Design at Harvard University; the original glass negative source images for those slides are in the Sears Collection.

Persons and firms associated with the property include Benjamin Keolaokalani Franklin Pitman and Almira Hollander Pitman (former owners) and Kilham and Hopkins (architects, ca. 1900-1910).

Pitman Place related holdings consist of 2 folders (17 glass negatives; 1 lantern slide; 2 slides (photographs))

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

Garden has been featured in Arthur W. Dean, "A Colonial House and Its Garden," House and Garden (February 1912), pp. 17-20+.

Architect: Platt, Charles A. (Charles Adams), 1861-1933

Landscape architect: Platt, Charles A. (Charles Adams), 1861-1933

Notes: The folders include a work sheet and copies of articles.

Larz and Isabel Anderson created fashionable and personally inspiring gardens on a property they named "Weld" in honor of her grandfather, William Fletcher Weld. The gardens served as inspiration for Isabel's writings of children's stories. They also evoked the history of Larz and Isabel's family heritage. During their ownership, the garden plan was nearly square, with a built-up enclosure of terrace and balustrades on the sides. A pergola stood at the end. The lowest level of the garden contained the mall and flower beds. A grove of trees shut off the formal garden from the house. Semicircular cement seats are located at each end of the 380 foot allee. Isabel left Weld to the town of Brookline for public recreation and public education. Brookline renamed Weld "Larz Anderson Park." Sited as not suited for a public facility, the house was razed and the gardens were destroyed or abandoned. The stables now house the Museum of Transportation, founded in 1949 with the Andersons' motor car collection. In 1990, an effort was attempted to stabilize the few remaining structures. Bulldozing of the grounds now makes restoration difficult.

Persons and firms associated with the garden include: William F. Weld (former owner of land); Larz and Isabel Weld Perkins Anderson (former owners, -1948); Town of Brookline (present owners, 1948-present); Edmund M. Wheelwright (architect of house, stable and garage, begun 1885); Charles A. Platt (architect of Italian garden, grove and bowling green, 1901); Fox and Gale (architects of rose garden and tennis courts, 1902); Onchi San (gardener of Japanese garden, 1907); Little and Browne (architects of water garden and Chinese garden and additions to house, 1910-1916)

Weld related holdings consist of 4 folders (65 slides, 29 photoprints, and 57 glass plate negatives)

MA126: Brookline -- Miscellaneous Sites in Brookline, Massachusetts

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of historic district data sheets, and photocopies of correspondence relating to the identification of the sites.

These images depict various houses and locations in Brookline, Massachusetts, Thomas Warren Sears's hometown. Most of the sites are between St. Paul and Carleton Streets and include properties located in the Longwood and Cottage Farm historic districts. Many of the images were taken from an upstairs window or the roof of the Sears family home. Identification of individual images was facilitated by Greer Hardwicke, Preservation Planner in the Town of Brookline's Office of Planning and Community Development and by Ken Liss and Larry Barbaras of the Brookline Historical Society.

Miscellaneous Sites in Brookline, Massachusetts related holdings consist of 1 folder (34 glass negatives; 4 lantern slides)

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: The image appears to have been taken from an upstairs window or the roof of the Sears family home at 2 Charles Street (now 1269 Beacon Street). The old S. S. Pierce building (originally the Coolidge & Brother store), seen in the center of the image, was replaced in 1898-99 by a new structure (shown in other images in MA126), hence the assigned date of 1897 for this image. The tall building in the distance is the Colchester, while the building with a conical roof in the middle distance is the Mary J. Wason Building.

MA120: Framingham -- Miscellaneous Sites in Framingham, Massachusetts

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of historic district data sheets, and photocopies of correspondence relating to the identification of the sites.

Thomas W. Sears appears to have taken these images as part of his preparation for a landscape design assignment while he was a student at Harvard. They depict two public spaces in Framingham--the Framingham Centre Common and the Framingham South Common (now known as the Downtown Common)--as well as adjacent buildings. Lantern slide versions of several of these images, as well as additional views (including a plan by Sears)'s plans) are held by the Loeb Library, Graduate School of Design, Harvard University and are also available through the America Memory Project at the Library of Congress.

MA116: Gloucester -- Meadowbrook Park

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of labels from the box in which Sears stored the negatives, and other information.

The Hawthorne Inn and cottages were originally built in 1891 in the East Gloucester section of Gloucester, Massachusetts (East Gloucester is given as the location on the renderings). Significantly damaged by an arson fire in 1938, the establishment closed after World War II. Sears's drawings, done while he was practicing in Providence, Rhode Island, show a parklike setting with multiple homes or cottages (the Hawthorne Inn included both a central hotel and cottages) and may have been intended to improve the overall landscape design and attractiveness of the property. It is not known whether Sears's design was ever implemented.

MA408: Gloucester -- Miscellaneous Sites in Gloucester, Massachusetts

Notes: The folder includes worksheets and photocopies of labels from the box in which Sears stored the negatives.

Thomas W. Sears appears to have taken these images as part of his preparation for a landscape design commission while he was practicing in Providence, Rhode Island, early in his career. They are of the area of Gloucester situated along the shore, including what is now Stacy Boulevard. Two other series in the Archives of American Gardens relate to Gloucester. Series MA117 is a single photograph of a perspective drawing titled "Proposed Treatment of Waterfront, Gloucester, Massachusetts," which depicts the same area as the photographs in MA408. Another series, MA116, includes two photographs of perspective drawings for another Gloucester project, a proposed "Proposed Meadowbrook Park" at the Hawthorne Inn.

MA127012: [Miscellaneous Sites in Salem, Massachusetts]: probably the back end of the garden at 80 Federal Street, also known as the Peirce-Nichols House., [between 1900 and 1910]

1 Glass negative (black-and-white; 8 x 10 in.)

Image(s): [Miscellaneous Sites in Salem, Massachusetts] [glass negative]: probably the back end of the garden at 80 Federal Street, also known as the Peirce-Nichols House.

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: Although the identity of this garden has not been positively confirmed, the mansard-roofed building in the far distance of the image may be the same one shown in a period view of North Street from Bridge Street found on the digitalcommonwealth.org website. That building would have been in the line of sight from the back end of the Peirce-Nichols House garden. In addition, the rough fencing at the end of the garden and beyond is consonant with its location bordering a railroad and commercial area.

MA119: Weston -- Farlow Garden

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Former owner: Farlow, John S.
Farlow, Edith

Notes: The file includes 1 glass plate negatives, 1 photograph album, and a folder with a worksheet and other information.

Thomas W. Sears took photographs of this property in the fall of 1911 and spring of 1912. At the time the three-story, Federal Revival style house was undergoing major renovation. Sears's drawing for a pergola and adjacent garden area is found in the series as both a glass negative and print (in the photograph album). It is unclear, however, whether the design was ever executed and the remaining album photographs all seem to show the site prior to any landscaping being actually done.

Persons and firms associated with the garden include John S. and Edith Farlow (former owners, circa 1911-1912) and Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, 1911-1912).

MI024: Grosse Pointe -- Backus Garden

Landscape architect: Steele, Fletcher, 1885-1971

Creator: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Former owner: Cram, Ralph Adams, 1863-1942

Backus, Standish, 1875-1943

Backus, Dorothy

Architect: Derrick, Robert O.

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of publications about the garden, and additional information.

Beginning around 1928, Fletcher Steele worked over a period of years designing a garden for Standish and Dorothy Backus at their new home in Grosse Pointe Shores. Featuring architectural work by Ralph Adams Cram and Robert O. Derrick, the entire estate, including the gardens, reflected its owners' love of English Gothic-Tudor design elements. Yet the natural setting allowed Steele to incorporate such elements as broad lawns and a view leading to Lake St. Clair. A wild garden, terraces, formal gardens, and courtyards were accented by a variety of balustrades, obelisks, and other ornaments, including an endpost featuring relief portraits of Steele, Cram, and Derrick. Some of Steele's proposals were never realized, and following the death of Dorothy Backus in the 1960s (Standish Backus had died in 1943) the estate was sold, the house razed, and the gardens destroyed. Most of the images have been taken from published sources, although those sources often reproduce original documentation. There is also one image of a sketch by Thomas Warren Sears, perhaps an unrealized proposal for the Grosse Pointe Shores property or a design created for an earlier Backus residence.

Persons and firms associated with the garden include Fletcher Steele (landscape architect, 1928-1941); Thomas Warren Sears (landscape architect, ca. 1930-1940); Ralph Adams Cram (architect, ca. 1930); Robert O. Derrick (architect, ca. 1930); Standish Backus (former owner, 1928-1943); and Dorothy Backus (former owner, 1928-ca. 1966).

Backus Garden related holdings consist of 1 folder (14 slides (photographs); 1 glass negative)

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

Garden has been featured in Robin Karson, Fletcher Steele, Landscape Architect: An Account of the Gardener's Life (New York: Harry N. Abrams, Inc./Sagapress, Inc., 1989) and revised ed. (Amherst: Library of American Landscape History, 2003).

Garden has been featured in Stanley Schuler, America's Great Private Gardens (New York: Macmillan, 1967), pp. 66-73.

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes:

Perspective sketch by Thomas Warren Sears showing a sunken garden with a narrow strip of turf/garden borders leading to a fountain with a trellis on either side of it. The garden is surrounded by a brick wall and looks to have some kind of a greenhouse adjoining it, adjacent to the house. "Detroit, Mich." is indicated as the client location on the sketch, though the property is actually located in Grosse Pointe, Michigan.

NH007: Holderness -- Camp Asquam

Notes: The folder includes a worksheet and other information.

One of the oldest camps in the United States, Camp Asquam in its original incarnation as a camp for boys operated from the 1880s until about 1912 (its facilities and name were absorbed by other camps, including a girls' camp). It is likely that Thomas W. Sears was working as a counselor at the camp when he took these photographs. A reminiscence of life at the camp in the early 1890s is Robert Dunn, "The Real Boys' Camp," The Outing Magazine, Vol. 50 (April 1907-September 1907), pp. 415-424.

NJ545: Clementon -- Pine Valley Golf Club

Golf course architect: Crump, George Arthur, 1871-1918

Colt, Henry Shapland, 1869-1951

Notes: The folder includes worksheets and other information.

Founded in 1913 by a group of men from Philadelphia, Pine Valley, in Camden County, New Jersey, has received numerous accolades as the "best golf course" in the United States if not the world. Its principal designer was George Arthur Crump, with a significant contribution by noted golf architect Henry Shapland "Harry" Colt. Thomas W. Sears's photographs document both the construction of the course as well as the finished product, including the clubhouse and its outdoor seating patio.

The Archives of American Gardens is grateful to Charles Raudenbush, PGA, golf professional and club manager at the Pine Valley Golf Club, for providing identification information for the individual images.

Persons associated with the site include George Arthur Crump (golf course architect, 1913-1918) and Henry Shapland "Harry" Colt (golf course architect, 1913).

Pine Valley Golf Club related holdings consist of 1 folder (27 glass negatives)

NJ091: Glen Ridge -- Baldwin Garden
 Former owner: Baldwin, Austin Radcliffe, b. 1874
 Baldwin, Mary Mildred Williams, b. 1873
 Creator: Magonigle, Harold Van Buren, 1867-1935
 Notes: The folder includes a worksheet, a photocopy of an article about the house and garden, and additional information about the property.
 This garden takes its name from Austin Radcliffe Baldwin and his wife Mary Mildred Williams Baldwin, who are known to have owned the property in 1911. The house was designed about 1901 by Harold Van Buren Magonigle and is described in a 1904 article as a "model replica of a cottage at Iffley Lock-on-the-Thames." This article also includes a copy of the garden plan, although it erroneously locates the property in Ridgefield rather than Glen Ridge, New Jersey. Trees, shrubs, and climbing plants and vines complemented the house. Although the exact date of the photographs is unknown they are believed to be from 1905-1910, when Thomas Sears took his other images in Glen Ridge (see NJ089000 for information on the dating of the Glen Ridge images). Identification of the site and images was facilitated by Sally Meyer of the Glen Ridge Historical Society.
 Persons associated with the site include Austin Radcliffe Baldwin and Mary Mildred Williams Baldwin (former owners, ca. 1911) and Harold Van Buren Magonigle (architect, ca. 1901).
 Baldwin Garden related holdings consist of 1 folder (5 glass negatives; 1 lantern slide)
 Garden has been featured in "A House at Ridgefield, N.J.," The Architectural Review, Vol. XI (January-December, 1904), pp. 36-39.

NJ516: Glen Ridge -- The Glen

Notes: The folder includes a worksheet, information about The Glen, and additional information.

The Glen is a narrow strip of parkland situated along Bloomfield Avenue in the center of Glen Ridge. Toney's Brook flows through the property as it makes its way to join Second River. During the 19th century Toney's Brook supplied water power to a series of mills along The Glen, which made a variety of goods from hat boxes to bicycle chains. By 1900 nearly all of the mills were closed down. Rumors of plans to build an amusement park and beer garden in The Glen prompted 100 local residents to form the Glen Park Association. Shares were sold for the purchase of the various parcels of land along Toney's Brook. The effort to preserve "the pretty brook with grassy banks and well-wooded slopes" was a success and even today The Glen provides a tranquil oasis in the center of town. Identification of this site and its associated images was facilitated by Sally Meyer of the Glen Ridge Historical Society.

NJ517: Glen Ridge -- White Garden

Former owner: White, George C.

Architecture firm: N. Le Brun & Sons

Notes: The folder includes a worksheet, information about the property and the Le Brun firm, and additional information.

78 Ridgewood Avenue was the home of George C. White. Situated on several acres of land, the house was designed in the Tudor style around 1902 by N. [Napoleon] Le Brun & Sons. Landscape features included a tennis court, croquet grounds, flower and vegetable gardens, a fruit orchard, a grapery, pasture land, and woods. In addition to the main house there was a carriage house, stable, barn, chicken house, and runs. The house was occupied by a succession of owners and the property surrounding it was sold to a developer in the 1950s. In December 2000 the house burned to the ground while under renovation. A Colonial Revival house was built to replace it in 2002. Identification of this site and its associated images was facilitated by Sally Meyer of the Glen Ridge Historical Society.

Persons and firms associated with the site include George C. White (former owner, ca. 1902) and N. Le Brun & Sons (architects, ca. 1902).

NJ089: Glen Ridge -- Miscellaneous Sites in Glen Ridge, New Jersey

Notes: The folder includes a worksheet, identification information for the images, and additional information.

Thomas Sears took numerous photographs of Glen Ridge, New Jersey, which, based on a variety of details, can be given a likely date span of 1905-1910 (for example, research on the license plate number and style on the automobile shown in NJ089045 indicates that it was likely produced between 1905 and 1910). Public buildings and sites such as the train station, churches, and schools figure prominently, although there are also many images of houses and residential areas. Some places, such as the Baldwin Garden (NJ091) and The Glen (NJ516), have sufficient images and positive identifications to warrant their inclusion in separate series. There are other subjects, however, for which there may be only one or two images or which remain unidentified, and these are grouped in the "Miscellaneous Sites" series. Identification of the sites and images was facilitated by Sally Meyer of the Glen Ridge Historical Society.

NY151: Cedarhurst and Hewlett -- Unidentified Gardens

1 Glass negative (black-and-white; 8 x 10 in.)
Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
Notes: The "Old Long Island" website, <http://www.oldlongisland.com/2009/12/v-everett-macy-residence.html> identifies this as the home of V. Everett (sic) Macy a banker and boat racer. However, the well-known Valentine Everit Macy was a lifelong resident of Westchester County, so it is not clear how this attribution of ownership was made. Named "Twin Gables," the house appears to have been sold to metallurgist Benjamin Lissberger, whose widow sold it in 1941 to Louis Kaplan. The house has since been demolished.

Notes: Built around 1907 by the firm of Albro and Lindeberg in Hewlett Bay Park, this was the home of Carroll Macy, a prominent breeder of show cats and sister of business executive and developer Carleton Macy. It was sold in 1920. For more information see Millicent D. Vollono, The Five Towns (Charleston, SC: Arcadia Publishing, 2010).

NY252: [Ward Garden]: Photograph Album, circa 1911-1914

NY251: New York -- DeWitt Clinton Park

Landscape architect: Parsons, Samuel H., Jr.

Creator: Parsons, Fannie Griscom, park administrator

Provenance: Tibbetts, Eleanor Sears

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of articles about the park and the childrens garden, and additional information.

DeWitt Clinton Park is located in the former Hell's Kitchen neighborhood of Manhattan (now known as Clinton), between West 52nd and 54th Streets and 11th Avenue and the West Side Highway. Originally larger than its current size (5.8 acres), the park was designed around 1901 by landscape architect Samuel Parsons, Jr., as a playground and community garden for children (featuring more than 350 individual plots). The design also incorporated natural elements such as rocks and trees and featured striking views of the Hudson River and Palisades. The driving force behind the park was Frances (Fannie) Griscom Parsons (no relation to the designer), and her name on the box of images held by the Archives of American Gardens has enabled their identification. Over the years the original design of the park has been compromised and modified to accommodate construction, development, and the changing needs of the urban community.

Persons and firms associated with the garden include Fannie Griscom Parsons (park administrator, ca. 1901-1910) and Samuel Parsons, Jr. (landscape architect, ca. 1901-1910).

DeWitt Clinton Park related holdings consist of 1 folder (13 glass negatives; 2 lantern slides)

Garden has been featured in Fannie Griscom Parsons, "The Second Children's Farm School in New York City," Charities: A Weekly Review of Local and General Philanthropy, XI (July-December 1903), pp. 220-223.

Garden has been featured in Henry Parsons, Children's Gardens for Health, Pleasure, and Education (New York: Sturgis & Walton Company, 1910).

 Willard, Ernest R.
 Willard, Mary L.
 Notes: The folders include worksheets, photocopies of articles about the house and garden, photocopies of Sibley C. Smith's designs and sketches, and additional information about the property.
 Woodside was originally built around 1838 in the Greek Revival style by Silas O. Smith, a dry-goods merchant.. Landscape architect Sibley Coslett Smith, whose parents lived next door (but were not related to Silas O. Smith), designed a garden for the property about 1917, when it was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Willard. After years of neglect the garden was restored in 1978 according to the original blueprints and sketches. The restoration featured crabapple, lilac, hollies, and perennials as well as structural details such as a gazebo and tuteurs. An island in the driveway was planted with ferns, Japanese maple, and dwarf Scotch pines. Woodside was for many years the home of the Rochester Historical Society, but was sold around 2009 and returned to private ownership.
 Persons associated with the site include Sibley Coslett Smith (landscape architect, 1917), Silas O. Smith (former owner, ca. 1838), and Ernest R. and Mary L. Willard (former owners, 1917).
 Woodside related holdings consist of 2 folders (1 glass negative; 2 slides (photographs))
 Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].
 Garden has been featured in John Taylor Boyd, Jr., "Some Principles of Small House Design," The Architectural Record, Vol. XLVI, No. V (November 1919), pp. 403-415.

Reynolda was the county house estate of the founder of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Robert Joshua Reynolds, and his wife, Katharine Smith Reynolds, comprising nearly 1,100 acres that included a 38,000 square foot house built for them by architect Charles Barton Keen. Reynolda was primarily conceived by Katharine Reynolds to include a family home with gardens, a village within the estate that housed the twenty families that worked on the self-contained estate, a 350-acre dairy, grain and vegetable farm, a 19-acre golf course with grazing sheep, and woodlands with thousands of daffodils. Before the house and formal gardens were built, Lord and Burnham constructed commercial greenhouses and a large glass conservatory on the property in 1913. Mrs. Reynolds decided to site a four-acre formal garden next to the greenhouses, near the public road, for the benefit of passersby. The first garden designers on the estate were Miller and Buckenham, and then Thomas Sears was brought in to design the viewable greenhouse garden, as well as gardens at the house and boathouse. The boathouse was sited beside the 16-acre artificial Lake Katharine created by Miller and Buckenham's stone-faced dam. The lake has since partially filled with silt and become a wetlands habitat.

Thomas Sears' 1917 formal greenhouse garden was divided into two rectangles, an approximately two-acre formal rose and perennial garden, and next to it another two-acre garden for fruit, flowers and vegetables. Grass panels that divided and surrounded the formal gardens were known as the sunken garden. The original rose garden was divided into four parterres, two planted with roses, one for blue and yellow flowers and the last for pink and white flowers. There were grass panels between the parterres with a double row of Japanese cedar trees on the horizontal axis. Rows of Japanese weeping cherry trees and southern magnolias were planted as a perimeter; later the trees shaded the rose garden to the extent that it had to be replanted when the garden was restored in 1997. Each axis of the two formal gardens ended in an attractive terminus, a feature of many of Sears' designs. These included pergolas and Japanese-styled teahouses for Katharine Reynolds, who wanted to include trees and features from Japanese gardens. Like the rose garden, the design of the fruit and vegetable garden was geometric with a central feature. At the time of its restoration, a large section of this garden was replanted with All-America selection roses, other flowers and herbs.

In the 1930's daughter Mary Reynolds Babcock and her stockbroker husband Charles Babcock bought her siblings' shares in the house and rehired Thomas Sears to redesign the gardens. Renovations to the house included moving the original central entrance to the side of the house, and new gardens were needed in front. A tulip and chrysanthemum garden was designed, with pink, white, blue and purple tulips and forget-me-nots complementing the colors of the new flagstone terrace. Summer flowers included heliotrope, plumbago, salvia, nicotiana, snapdragons and annual phlox, although heliotrope did not flourish in hot weather. Red, yellow, bronze, copper and terra cotta chrysanthemums were planted in autumn. Sears suggested poinsettias, camellias, chrysanthemums, gardenias and begonia semperflorens for a winter garden, but they were not winter hardy and were used for holiday decorations inside the house. Sears also designed a study garden in 1916, which comprises a patio with a recessed pool, stone benches and extensive plantings of rhododendrons and other flowering shrubs, a canopy of flowering magnolias, dogwood and crape myrtles, and an understory of ground covers, lilies, hosta, ferns and daffodils.

Reynolda is now the Reynolda House Museum of American Art. The gardens were donated to Wake Forest University in the 1960's by the Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation.

Persons associated with this property include R.J. (Robert Joshua) Reynolds (c. 1850-1918) and Katharine Smith Reynolds Johnston (1880-1924) (former owners, 1909-1924); Mary Reynolds Babcock and Charles Babcock (former owners, 1935-1953); Wake Forest College, later University (owner beginning in 1958); Louis L. Miller and Horatio R. Buckenham (landscape designers, 1911-1913); Thomas Warren Sears (1880-1965) (landscape architect 1915-1917, 1930s); Robert Conrad (horticulturalist, c. 1910-1960); Charles Barton Keen (architect, 1912-1917).

Reynolda Gardens related holdings consist of 3 folders (61 glass plate negatives, and 4 35mm slides)
Additional materials also located in the Library and Estate Archives of the Reynolda House at Wake Forest University.

Creator: Reynolds, R. J. (Richard Joshua), 1906-1964

Notes: Reynolda Gardens, was designed in 1915 by Philadelphia landscape architect, Thomas Sears. Reynolda gardens was a part of the 1,000 acre estate owned by R. J. Reynolds, founder of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The four and a half acre formal gardens have Japanese Weeping Cherries, Japanese Cedars, Saucer Magnolias, English Boxwood and annual and perennial flowering beds. About one-half of the original Upper Gardens are now used for vegetable, cut flowers and an All-American Rose Garden. There are 126 acres of open fields and woodlands with wildflowers and native trails.

The Lord and Burnham conservatory was built in 1912, restored in 1982, and houses a collection of tropical plants. Bedding plants for the gardens and poinsettias used for annual Christmas displays are raised in the growing houses.

PA088: Ardmore -- Sears Garden

Former owner: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: The folder includes worksheets and photocopies of articles.

Thomas Warren Sears (b.1880-1966) was a landscape architect who said his own garden in Ardmore, Pennsylvania was his favorite, and the formal style of his garden became his trademark design for private residences. The garden center was a sunken rectangular lawn, surrounded by low stone walls, terraces and flagstone walkways that were planted with a mixture of shrubs, perennial flowers, and ground covers, and separated from the stone house by a screen of trees. A tall stone wall at the end of the garden had a fountain inset.

Thomas Sears' formal garden was planted with more than fifty varieties of French lilacs, peonies and irises.

Sears was among the first landscape architects with a formal education, receiving the BS degree from the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard University in 1906. During his professional career as a landscape architect Sears worked primarily in Maryland, North Carolina, New York, and Pennsylvania. He designed private gardens in the style of his own: sunken rectangular lawns with perennial and shrub borders that surmounted low walls and steps. Among his prominent commissions were Reynolda, home of tobacco magnate R. J. Reynolds, in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, where the formal gardens Sears laid out in 1916 were later added to the campus of Wake Forest University; the amphitheater at Swarthmore College in 1942; Balmuckety in Pikesville, Maryland, placed on the Baltimore County Historic register in 1988; and the restoration of the Colonial Revival gardens at Pennsbury in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Sears was also known for his published photographs of gardens and natural settings in the US and other countries.

Persons associated with the garden include Thomas Warren Sears (former owner and landscape architect, ca.1930?-1960s) and Ella D. Finney (former owner, ca. 1930s?-1960s?).

Sears Garden related holdings consist of 1 folder (43 glass plate negatives and photographic prints)

J. Horace McFarland Collection, 1900-1961

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

This property was mentioned in "The Golden Age of American Gardens," published by Harry N. Abrams, Inc. in association with the Garden Club of America 1991, pp. 133-134.

PA752: Philadelphia (Chestnut Hill) -- Butterworth Garden

Former owner: Butterworth, J. Warner

Butterworth, Alice Wood, d. 1952

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Creator:

Zantzinger, Borie & Medary

Sears & Wendell

Notes:

The folder includes worksheets and other information about the house and garden.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warner Butterworth, this site was located on Crefeld Street in the Chestnut Hill section of Philadelphia. Sloping downhill toward Wissahickon Creek, the property was well-suited for the terrace that was the focus of its garden design. It is likely that Thomas W. Sears, who took the photographs of the garden, was also its landscape architect, although it may have been the work of his firm, Sears & Wendell. In 1913 Sears had worked with Charles L. Borie, Jr., of the architectural firm Zantzinger, Borie & Medary, on the design of Chanticleer, and the same firm was responsible for the 1915 design of the Butterworth house. The terrace at the back of the house featured an outdoor seating area and views of surrounding woodlands, along with an adjacent flower garden. Stonework compatible with the stone used in the house solidly grounded the design, but was softened by plantings of shrubs and flowering trees.

Persons and firms associated with the site include J. Warner and Alice Wood Butterworth (former owners, circa 1915-1930); Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect, circa 1915-1920); Sears & Wendell (landscape architects, circa 1915-1920); and Zantzinger, Borie & Medary (architects, circa 1915-1920).

PA341: Pottsville -- Schaeffer Garden

Former owner: Schaeffer family

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of correspondence, and other information.

This hillside site, complementing a Colonial Revival house and carriage house, featured both a formal design and terraces. Accents included a sundial, rusticwork furniture, and numerous walkways, stone walls, and stairs. Other areas of the garden were allowed to retain a more natural atmosphere featuring trees and shrubs. The house was built by the Schaeffer family and is still in private hands.

It isn't clear whether Thomas Sears designed this garden (if so, it would have been quite early in his career) or simply photographed it. Of some interest, however, are the four images for which both lantern slides and source negatives (by Sears) are present. Identification of the site and images was facilitated by David Derbes of the Historical Society of Schuylkill County.

Persons associated with the garden include the Schaeffer family (former owners, ca. 1909).

Schaeffer Garden related holdings consist of 1 folder (19 glass negatives; 7 lantern slides)

PA303: Wayne (St. Davids) -- Walmarthon
 Former owner: Walton, Charles Spittall, 1862-1916
 Walton, Martha England, 1868-1931
 Walton, Charles Spittall, Jr., 1893-1973
 Architect: Boyd, David Knickerbacker, 1872-1944
 Creator: Sears & Wendell
 Notes: The folder includes worksheets and printouts of Internet information about the house and garden.
 Walmarthon was the estate of Charles S. Walton and his wife Martha England. Encompassing 40 acres, its main house and extensive outbuildings in a Mediterranean style were designed by David Knickerbacker Boyd. Sears & Wendell were its landscape architects. Work on the house was completed in 1914. The extensive grounds featured ponds, formal gardens, a greenhouse, and views of the surrounding suburban countryside. In the 1950s the estate was sold to Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary (now Eastern University).
 Persons and firms associated with the site include Charles Spittall Walton and Martha England Walton (former owners, circa 1911-1931); Charles Spittall Walton, Jr. (former owner, 1931-circa 1950); David Knickerbacker Boyd (architect, circa 1911-1914); and Sears & Wendell (landscape architects, circa 1913-1915).
 Walmarthon related holdings consist of 1 folder (11 glass negatives; 2 lantern slides)
 Garden has been featured in the Architectural Record, Vol. 38 (November 1915).

RI206: Barrington -- Cushman Garden
Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
Former owner: Cushman, Elton Gray
Cushman, Emily Frances Jenks
Notes: The file includes 1 photograph album and a folder with information about Emily. Cushman.
This site was the summer home of Elton Gray Cushman and his wife Emily Frances Jenks Cushman. It was located along the coast and its high front porch took advantage of water views. It is not clear whether the 16 images in the album document completed Sears design and installation work or simply site characteristics recorded prior to any work being done. Some of the images depict adjacent properties. Although the Cushman house, which was on Bay Road in Barrington is no longer there, one of the other houses appearing in the photographs has survived.

Persons associated with the site include Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, circa 1910-1914) and Elton Gray Cushman and Emily Frances Jenks Cushman (former owners, circa 1910-1914).

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Former owner: Pettee, George Herbert, 1867-1927,
Pettee, Annie Bertha Bacheller, 1872-1956

Notes: The file includes 1 photograph album, 12 glass plate negatives, and a folder with worksheets and other information about the property.

This site, in East Greenwich, Rhode Island, was owned by George Herbert Pettee, vice president of the Providence Public Market Company, a prominent grocery firm. Pettee specialized in Ayrshire cattle and in 1920 was elected president of the Rhode Island Ayrshire Club. Thomas W. Sears took the photographs of this property in the spring and fall of 1913, as indicated in the album, which includes prints of all but one of the 12 negatives (RI203012), plus additional prints, for a total of 33 images. They appear to have been taken as "before" and "after" shots, showing progress made over the summer on the installation of several design elements including entrance gates and grading around various farm buildings.

Persons associated with the site include George Herbert Pettee and Annie Bertha Bacheller Pettee (former owners, circa 1913-1927) and Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect, 1913).

RI160: East Providence (Rumford) -- Agawam Hunt

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Smith, Sibley Coslett

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: The file includes 1 photograph album and a folder with an information sheet.

Located in Rumford, Rhode Island, the Agawam Hunt was established in 1897 as a private social club featuring golf, tennis, squash, and other activities for its members. The nine snapshot images in the album show the club facilities about 1913. A 1919 "Constitution and List of Members," available on-line, lists Thomas W. Sears as a non-resident member (by that time he was living and working in the Philadelphia area), while his friend and colleague Sibley C. Smith and his wife are listed as resident members. It is possible that Sears and/or Smith played a role in landscaping the club's grounds, as seen in the photographs.

Persons associated with the garden include Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, 1913) and Sibley C. Smith (landscape architect, 1913).

RI208: Exeter -- Locust Valley Farm

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Former owner: Grinnell, Russell, 1875-1948

Notes: The file includes 1 photograph album and a folder with information about the property and Russell Grinnell.

Locust Valley Farm in Exeter, Rhode Island, was purchased in 1912 by Russell Grinnell, an executive with the General Fire Extinguisher Company (now Grinnell Mechanical Products). The 12 images in the album document the site, including a pond, and construction of a new house on the property. The breeding and raising of Berkshire hogs and Guernsey dairy cattle became the farm's specialties. Part of the property's acreage eventually became the Fisherville Brook Wildlife Refuge. It is possible that Thomas W. Sears was involved in landscape design for the property, but this cannot be verified.

Persons associated with the site include Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, circa 1912-1914) and Russell Grinnell (former owner, 1912-1948).

"There is an austere elegance about a green garden; pink or yellow or red are frivolous except as accents, but the garden that appeals to the romantic, universal soul is the blue garden. That is why the Blue Garden of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James was the ultimate goal of so many Newport Pilgrims. A very stately garden it is with the iridescent quality which blue flowers that really are mauve and purple and grayish, rather than true, sharp blue, impart. Its irregular symmetry makes it difficult to describe without a ground plan. At the two far distant ends are colonnades with gray rocks and irregular green plantations beyond, and the lower end is a circle of matchless turf whose boundary is rock and shrubs. The upper part is a circle, too, formed by a rustic lattice of slender split branches over which grow Clematis Jackmanii, mauve Sweet-peas and other charming creepers, backed by Cedars and Pines. In the center are two pools fed by water that trickles from beneath the colonnade."

"A thousand foot rose garden was blasted out of granite rock. A long grass allee originated by the reflecting pool, was planted with 5,000 roses of many varieties. The allee ascended several levels of stone walls and steps and climaxed under a high granite cliff, where a splendid stone and ironwork balustrade and imposing pergola were located. Mr. James died in 1942, all the roses were dug and sold and nature moved in to sow her seeds."

"The Beacon Hill house was left unoccupied and in 1967 finally succumbed to vandalism and fire." The gardens have been restored by subsequent owners.

Persons associated with the property include: Arthur Curtiss James (former owner, 1909-1940); Olmsted Brothers (landscape architects); John Greatorex (superintendent of grounds and landscape gardener); Harriet R. Foote (garden designer and rosarian); Peckham Brothers (contractors for rose garden);

Hempstead of Boston (landscape contractors/superintendent);
Edward Van Alena (lantern slide maker).

The Garden Club of New Haven facilitated the submission of this garden's documentation.

RI047: Providence -- Briggs Garden
Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
Former owner: Briggs, George, Jr.
Notes: The file includes 1 photograph album, 2 glass plate negatives, and a folder with a worksheet and other information.
Thomas W. Sears may have been engaged as the landscape architect for this property, located at 249 Blackstone Boulevard. The 16 photographs in the album show the house under construction around 1914-1915, and the general plan (RI047001) is dated December 4, 1914. It is not clear, however, whether a detailed design or installation ever took place. George Briggs, Jr., was a prominent Providence businessman. The property is now the Dr. John E. Donley Rehabilitation Center.
Persons associated with the garden include George Briggs, Jr. (former owner, circa 1914-1927) and Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, circa 1914-1915).

Notes: The plan is clearly dated December 4, 1914. Although by this time Thomas W. Sears had relocated to Philadelphia he was still using 107 Westminister Street, Providence, as a second business address. His friend and colleague, landscape architect Sibley C. Smith, also practiced at this address.

RI059: Scituate -- Coggeshall Garden

Landscape Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966 architect:

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Former owner: Coggeshall, J. W.

Notes: The file includes 1 photograph album, 2 glass plate negatives, and a folder with a worksheet.

Located in Scituate, Rhode Island, the Coggeshall property was apparently an old farm that was undergoing a transformation into a country estate. The 35 snapshot views in the photograph album show a house in the process of extensive remodeling and modernization as well as outbuildings and grounds ripe for the same process. The album images were taken at various times between September 7, 1912, and the summer of 1913. Also included in the album is faded photographic print showing an aerial perspective drawing of the plan for the property. The two glass negatives include a general plan for the site and a sketch for an arbor garden near the house. In keeping with the rural nature of the site the general plan includes extensive vegetable gardens, an orchard, and farm animal areas, as well as more traditional flower gardens. It is another design that features the names of both Thomas W. Sears, with a Providence address, and the firm of Sears & Wendell in Philadelphia. It is not clear, however, whether a detailed design or installation ever took place.

Persons and firms associated with the garden include J. W. Coggeshall (former owner, circa 1912-1913); Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, circa 1912-1913); and Sears & Wendell (landscape architects, circa 1912-1913).

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
 Former owner: Smith, Sibley Coslett
 Notes: The rendering contains the notation, "J. Howard Adams/Dec. 18, 1909." Adams is listed as an architect in the Year-Book of the Rhode Island Chapter, American Institute of Architects, published in 1910. In the Rhode Island Historical Preservation Commission's "The Historic and Architectural Resources of South Kingstown, Rhode Island: A Preliminary Report," p. 59, the design of the house is credited to its owner, Sibley C. Smith. It is unclear if J. Howard Adams was actually the architect of Skibo (meaning that the citation in the South Kingstown report is erroneous), or if he was simply the draftsman of the rendering shown in RI048014.

RI207: Warwick -- Gerry Garden
 Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
 Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966
 Former owner: Gerry, Peter Goelet, 1879-1957
 Gerry, Mathilde Scott Townsend, 1885-1949
 Notes: The file includes 1 photograph album and a folder with information about Peter Goelet Gerry and the property.

This site was the home of Peter Goelet Gerry and his first wife Mathilde Townsend Gerry (later Welles). Gerry was a prominent attorney who would serve several terms as a United States senator. The album includes 20 images taken in the summer of 1914 and another 20 that were probably taken later that year. Renovation and construction was under way in the summer and the later photographs document some of the completed work, which probably featured Sears designs. Stone work near the house, including an elevated terrace, took advantage of views across broad expanses of lawn toward nearby coastal waters.

Persons associated with the site include Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, 1914) and Peter Goelet Gerry and Mathilde Townsend Gerry (former owners, 1914).

WV001: Charleston -- Bougemont

Landscape architect: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Architect: Ford, Butler & Oliver

Former owner: Smith, Harrison B., d. 1942
Smallridge, Horace Hamilton, 1886-1967

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, an inventory list, and a photocopy of a 2011 newspaper article about the property.

Situated on about eight acres overlooking the Kanawha River, Bougemont was originally the estate of banker Harrison B. Smith and was named for his son, Bouge. The property features a Georgian-style mansion designed by the New York architectural firm of Ford, Butler & Oliver in 1916 and its landscape design was the work of Thomas W. Sears. Although Sears designed a formal garden to be placed near the house he also allowed much of the natural wooded vegetation of the site to remain. After Smith's death in 1942 the property was neglected until 1959, when it passed into the ownership of Horace Hamilton Smallridge, who undertook extensive restoration work and whose descendants continued to own the property until 2011, when it was placed on the market. Bougemont was entered on the National Register of Historic Places in 1984. Bougemont photographs in the Archives of American Gardens include two images of Sears's landscape designs for the property, done between 1916 and 1920 when his practice was located at 1424 Walnut Street in Philadelphia. There are also on-site photographs of the house and grounds, probably taken by Sears between 1920 and 1930, since they show well-established rather than newly installed plantings.

Bougemont related holdings consist of 1 folder (15 glass negatives)

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: The folder includes an information sheet.

The 20 snapshot images in this album show a site in the northeast United States in winter. The rural location bears some resemblance to that of the Ward Garden in New Rochelle, New York (NY252). It included fields, stone walls, woodlands, outbuildings, and a colonial style farmhouse. It is possible that Thomas W. Sears was involved in its landscape design, but this cannot be verified.

Persons associated with the site include Thomas W. Sears (landscape architect and photographer, circa 1910-1915).

SRS059: Unidentified -- Sibley C. Smith Children

Notes: The folder includes working lists, photocopies of images, and other information.

It is likely, based on notations on their containers, that these images show the children of Sibley Coslett Smith and M.W. Smith. Sibley C. Smith was a landscape architect who practiced in Providence, Rhode Island, at 107 Westminster Street. Thomas Warren Sears used the same business address in the 1910s, which is when these photos were probably taken. It is not clear, however, whether they were taken in Providence or in some other location. Sibley C. Smith is the landscape architect of various perspective sketches found in the Sears Collection (see NY254, RI049, RI050, RI051, RI052, and RI053).

Sibley C. Smith Children related holdings consist of 1 folder (16 glass negatives)

Notes: This appears to be a copy made by Thomas W. Sears of a photograph originally taken by Elmer Chickering, 21 West Street, Boston, MA. The plate is broken. SRS002039, SRS002054, and SRS002069 are cropped versions of this image. Since Elmer Chickering, the original photographer, was based in Boston, the students may have been at either Wellesley or Radcliffe colleges.

ENG043: Bakewell -- Haddon Hall

Former owner: Vernon family

Manners family

Rutland, John Henry Montagu Manners Duke of, 1886-1940

Owner: Manners family

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of articles and guide entries, a booklet about the site, and additional information about the house and garden.

A fortified medieval manor house dating from the 12th to the early 17th centuries, Haddon Hall was owned by the Vernon family for 400 years, from which it passed to the Manners family by marriage in 1567. The property was virtually uninhabited between 1701 and 1912, at which time the 9th Duke of Rutland, while still the Marquess of Granby, returned and began an extensive restoration of the house and gardens. Situated along the River Wye amidst rolling countryside in the Peak District National Park, Haddon Hall retains a romantic aura. At the time the site was photographed by Thomas W. Sears restoration efforts had not yet begun and his images are limited to distant views of the "castle" and its adjacent gardener's cottage and Elizabethan stables.

Persons associated with the property include the Vernon family (former owners, ca. 1190-1567); the Manners family (owners, 1567 to date); and John Henry Montagu Manners, Duke of Rutland (former owner, 1912-1940).

Haddon Hall related holdings consist of 1 folder (7 glass negatives)

ENG049: Branscombe, Devon -- Miscellaneous Sites in Branscombe, Devon

Notes: Situated in southeast Devon, Branscombe is a picturesque village stretching along a valley leading down to a beach at Branscombe Mouth. Thomas W. Sears visited it during his 1908 trip to England and photographed a variety of locations, including many of the village's thatch-roofed cottages and other buildings. Sears also depicted the landscape of the area, from beach scenes to grazing cattle and sheep. Many sites in Branscombe photographed by Sears have been placed on the Statutory List of Buildings of Special Architectural or Historical Interest, whose www.britishlistedbuildings.co.uk website has aided in their identification. A few of the images may be of other locations in England (see individual bibliographic records), but are included because they were originally found in Sears' files amongst the Branscombe photographs.

The folder includes worksheets, photocopies, and additional information.

Photographs of Branscombe by Sears were featured in The American Architect, Vol. XCVI, No. 1758 (September 1, 1909).

ENG048: Derbyshire -- Chatsworth Estate

Landscape architect: London, George

Wise, Henry, 1653-1738

Brown, Lancelot (1716-1783)

Paxton, Joseph Sir, 1803-1865

Horticulturist: Paxton, Joseph Sir, 1803-1865

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies, and additional information about the house and garden.

One of the most famous estates in England, Chatsworth is the home of the Cavendish family. Its first house was built in the 16th century by "Bess of Hardwick" and her second husband, Sir William Cavendish. The property passed through the family until in the late 17th century the 1st Duke of Devonshire undertook major construction of both the house and formal gardens, with George London and Henry Wise as the latter's designers. Significant changes to the surrounding park and garden were made by the 4th Duke in the 18th century, and Lancelot "Capability" Brown was commissioned to destroy most of the formal gardens and to give the park a natural romantic look. The present garden's design is the work of Sir Joseph Paxton, who came to Chatsworth in 1826. Under Paxton exotic plants from the Americas and Asia were introduced, and the Emperor Fountain and Great Conservatory (demolished around 1920) were constructed. The images in the Archives of American Gardens were taken in 1906 by American landscape architect Thomas W. Sears and feature the exterior of the Chatsworth mansion, its surrounding gardens and park, and estate villages such as Edensor and Beeley. Edensor was designed and built in the 19th century, replacing an earlier village that was razed because it obstructed the view from the Chatsworth mansion.

Persons associated with the gardens include George London (landscape architect, 17th century); Henry Wise (landscape architect, 17th century); Lancelot "Capability" Brown (landscape architect, 18th century) and Sir Joseph Paxton (landscape architect and horticulturist, 1826-1865).

ENG051: London -- Franco-British Exhibition

Creator: Kiralfy, Imre, 1845-1919

Notes: The folder includes worksheets and photocopies of articles.

The White City built on 140 acres in west London included 120 buildings and 20 pavilions, an elaborate outdoor bandstand with seating in the gardens, and a stadium for the 1908 Summer Olympics. Exhibitions were staged in the summer months every year starting in 1908, first partnering Britain and France for a celebration of industry, culture and empire. In 1909 the Second Imperial International included Russia; in 1910 a Japanese-British exhibition was held. In 1911 the focus shifted to the coronation of George V, with featured themes being the British empire, monarchy, commercial and industrial power. In the following year, 1912, the summer event celebrated ties between Latin America and Britain, and the last great event in 1914 honored the Anglo-American relationship.

During World War I the site was used for training troops and during World War II the buildings were converted for parachute manufacturing. In the years between the wars the site was used for a British Industries fair. The stadium built for the 1908 Olympics was used for racing greyhounds until it was demolished in 1985. In 1949 the BBC bought some of the property for its first Television Centre

Persons associated with the property include: Imre Kiralfy (developer of White City and stadium grounds, 1907-1908).

ENG097: Sharpethorne -- Gravetye Manor

Garden designer: Robinson, William, 1838-1935

Former owner:

Robinson, William, 1838-1935

Notes:

The folder includes worksheets, photocopied book excerpts, and additional information about the house and garden.

Gravetye Manor was the country home of William Robinson, "the Father of the English Flower Garden." His estate comprised about 1,100 acres and included an Elizabethan manor house dating to 1598 that Robinson restored in the 1880s. Eschewing the rigid formality and carpet bedding style of Victorian gardens, Robinson argued for a more informal approach to planting that incorporated a "wild" naturalizing and mingling of native plants from many regions of the world. A prolific author, Robinson founded, edited and owned seven periodicals during his lifetime, and published 14 books between 1868 and 1917. His writings and Gravetye Manor itself serve as his legacy to the gardening world. Following Robinson's death in 1935 the gardens underwent a period of neglect until 1958, when the property became a hotel. Restoration of the gardens has been undertaken in recent years, and in 2010 Fergus Garrett of Great Dixter (a garden heavily influenced by Robinson's ideas) was brought in as a consultant. The Thomas Sears images in this Archives of American Gardens collection capture Gravetye Manor during its peak in the early 20th century and include two that were published in 1925. The remainder, therefore, would have been taken during a return visit to Gravetye in 1908. It is not known, however, in which year any individual images were taken.

Persons associated with the garden include William Robinson (former owner and garden designer, 1884-1935).

Gravetye Manor related holdings consist of 1 folder (22 glass negatives, 2 lantern slides)

Image(s): [\[Gravetye Manor\]](#) [\[glass negative\]](#): a pergola and stone walk.

Photographer: Sears, Thomas Warren, 1880-1966

Notes: The same pergola appears in ENG045022, ENG045027, and MD056073. Images ENG097010 and MD056073 show the brick columns as unpainted, while ENG045022 and ENG045027 show painted columns, suggesting that Sears visited the site initially in 1906 and again in 1908, following the painting. Although one of the images, ENG097010, would place the location of the pergola at Gravetye Manor, home of William Robinson, no evidence has yet been found for this style of pergola at that site. Likewise, despite lantern slide MD056073 (produced from source image ENG097010) being physically associated with other images of Edgewood, MD056, it does not appear to be of that garden. More likely, Sears used it as a reference or source for the pergola that he did design for Edgewood.

ENG070: Shere, Surrey -- Shere Church

Notes: Shere was one of Thomas W. Sears favorite English villages and its church is the subject of several photographs. Parts of the Church of St. James date to the 12th century, with several subsequent additions, including a lych gate designed in 1901 by Sir Edwin Lutyens. This was one of the churches featured in Parish Churches of England, although the image of the church included there is not found in this series. Sears visited Shere in 1906 as well as in 1908.

The folder includes worksheets and other information.

Site has been featured in C. Howard Walker and Thomas W. Sears, Parish Churches of England (Boston and New York: Rogers and Manson Company, 1915), plate 23.

ENG059: Shere, Surrey -- Beaumont Garden

Former owner: Beaumont, Somerset Archibald, 1835-1921

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of images of the site, and other information.

Somerset Archibald Beaumont, a Liberal member of Parliament in the 1860s and 1870s, was also one of the founders of the Anglo-Austrian Bank. Thomas W. Sears stayed with him at his home in Shere, Surrey, for a few days during his 1906 trip to England. Beaumont's country property included a conservatory attached to the house, a bowling green, and extensive plantings of ornamental and specimen trees and shrubs, all of which are documented in Sears's photographs. Although some sources refer to the property's name as "Hurstcote," the potential for confusion with other properties of the same name has led the Archives of American Gardens to adopt the name "Beaumont Garden."

Persons associated with the garden include: Somerset Archibald Beaumont (former owner, ca. 1890-1921).

Beaumont Garden related holdings consist of 1 folder (8 glass negatives)

Garden has been featured in Landscape Architecture (April 1925), p. 198.

It is possible that Nolen was the photographer of both images. However, although Nolen traveled with Thomas W. ENG023: Surrey -- Sutton Place

Former tenant: Harmsworth, Alfred Charles William 1st Viscount Northcliffe, Harmsworth, Mary Elizabeth Milner 1st Baroness Northcliffe, d.

1963

Gardener: Watson, Donald

Goatley, Joseph

Garden designer: Jekyll, Gertrude, 1843-1932

Notes:

The folder includes worksheets, a photocopied book excerpt, and additional information about the house and garden.

At the time of Thomas W. Sears' visit in 1908 Sutton Place was the estate of Alfred Charles William Harmsworth, 1st Viscount Northcliffe. Harmsworth leased the property from its owners, the Salvin and Witham families, from about 1900 to 1918. The original manor house was built about 1525, but the gardens have undergone many transformations over the years. It appears that Gertrude Jekyll was involved in much of the design of garden renovations undertaken around 1902. By 1908 the site included extensive lawns and specimen trees, a walled garden, a rose garden, water features, and long borders of perennials with grass walkways. Baroness Northcliffe, Mary Elizabeth Milner Harmsworth, took a keen interest in the gardens, and contemporary sources also cite the work of two gardeners, Donald Watson and Joseph Goatley.

Persons associated with the garden include Gertrude Jekyll (garden designer, circa 1902); Alfred Charles William Harmsworth and Mary Elizabeth Milner Harmsworth (former tenants, circa 1900-1918); Donald Watson (gardener, circa 1900-1918); and Joseph Goatley (gardener, circa 1900-1918).

ENG104: Surrey -- Westbrook
 Garden Jekyll, Gertrude, 1843-1932
 designer:
 Former owner: Turner, Hugh Thackeray, 1853-1937
 Turner, Mary Elizabeth Powell, d. 1907
 Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of images of the site, and other information.
 Westbrook was the home of Arts and Crafts movement architect and china painting artist Hugh Thackeray Turner and his wife Mary Elizabeth Powell Turner. It was designed and built by Thackeray Turner in 1899-1900, who worked with Gertrude Jekyll on the design of its gardens (Turner and Jekyll also collaborated on the design of the Phillips Memorial in Godalming). A sunken garden with a lily tank at its center was a key feature of the site. The original plan also featured woodland paths to a boathouse and footbridge on the River Wey. Thomas W. Sears visited Westbrook on August 2, 1906, where he had tea with Mrs. Turner and took several photographs of the site.
 Persons associated with the garden include: Hugh Thackeray Turner and Mary Elizabeth Powell Turner (former owners, 1899-1937) and Gertrude Jekyll (garden designer, ca. 1900).
 Westbrook related holdings consist of 1 folder (4 glass negatives)

ENG098: Surrey (near Godalming) -- Orchards

Garden Jekyll, Gertrude, 1843-1932

designer:

Architect: Lutyens, Edwin Landseer Sir, 1869-1944

Former owner: Chance, William Sir, 1853-1935

Chance, Julia Charlotte Lady, 1864-1949

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, a photocopied book excerpt, and additional information about the house and garden.

Orchards was the country home of Sir William Chance, 2nd Baronet, and his wife, Lady Julia Chance. Designed and built between 1897 and 1902 by Sir Edwin Lutyens, with gardens by Gertrude Jekyll, it was their first collaboration on an entirely new house and garden and an important milestone for both. Not coincidentally, Jekyll lived just down the road from Orchards at Munstead Wood (also the work of Lutyens), and it was her house that inspired Lady Chance to engage this team for her own home. Orchards' formal gardens were located on the east side of the house and included the so-called "Dutch" garden, an extensive kitchen garden (in reality an expansive flower garden showing Jekyll's horticultural artistry to its best advantage), a vegetable garden (at some distance from the house), and a shrub garden adjacent to the south terrace. There was also a croquet lawn and a loggia terrace that provided not only comfortable seating but an overview of the "Dutch" garden. Several of Thomas Sears's 1906 photographs of Orchards were published in The American Architect in 1909.

Persons associated with the garden include Gertrude Jekyll (garden designer, 1897-1902); Sir Edwin Lutyens (architect, 1897-1902); Sir William Chance (former owner, 1897-1935); and Lady Julia Chance (former owner, 1897-1949).

Orchards related holdings consist of 1 folder (18 glass negatives; 3 lantern slides)

ENG105: Surrey -- Unidentified Garden [possibly ENG050 Great Tangley Manor or ENG104 Westbrook?]

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of images of the sites, and other information.

The four images in this series appear to have been taken by Thomas W. Sears in Surrey during August 1906. Although it has not been possible to make a positive identification of any of the sites, some or all of them may depict Surrey gardens known to have been photographed by Sears, such as Westbrook (ENG104), Great Tangley (ENG050), and the Beaumont Garden (ENG059).

ENG044: West Sussex (including Fittleworth) -- Miscellaneous Sites in West Sussex

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies, and additional information.

Thomas W. Sears took these photographs of the area around Fittleworth and Pulborough in what is now West Sussex during his 1908 trip to England. "Fittleworth" was the identifier that Sears chose to use on the label for his box of glass plates. Subjects on which he focused included bridges in the valleys of the River Arun and the River Rother, historic buildings such as Fittleworth Mill, and other scenes of village and rural life. Several sites in the area photographed by Sears have been placed on the Statutory List of Buildings of Special Architectural or Historical Interest, whose www.britishlistedbuildings.co.uk website has aided in their identification.

ENG057: Wiltshire -- Wilton House and Vicinity

Garden designer: Caus, Isaac de, 1590-1648

designer:

Architect: Wyatt, James, 1746-1813

Notes:

The folder includes worksheets and photocopies of articles.

Like other great country houses in England Wilton House has been expanded and rebuilt over the centuries, with contributions from some of the most renowned architects working in the Palladian style. The gardens have evolved as well: in 1645 designer Isaac de Caus published etchings of his newly styled French formal Wilton Garden, set within the 21 acres of parkland that comprised the estate gardens. Features included elegant parterres bordered with clipped hedges, balustrades, galleries, statues, fountains, colored gravel walks and other walks under trellised vaults and pavilions. One natural feature left untouched was the River Nadder, and this became identified as in the English style as opposed to the highly ordered great gardens of the Continent. In the next century a footbridge based on Palladio's design for the Rialto in Venice was built over the river. The bridge complements the Palladian style house designed by architects Inigo Jones and his son-in-law John Webb. In the early 19th century architect James Wyatt re-used the provincial baroque carved limestone façade of the grotto at the end of the Great Walk, installing it on a building on the grounds known as the Old Schoolhouse. Wyatt also relocated on the grounds a 16th century porch from the earlier version of the main house, attributed to artist Hans Holbein.

The parterre was demolished and replaced by lawns, and contemporary gardens include a water garden, an Oriental garden area with linked ponds crossed by Chinese style red bridges, and a rose garden. Other public facilities include an adventure playground and a garden center. The current Earl of Pembroke and his family still own Wilton House and reside there. Wilton House was visited by Thomas W. Sears in 1908 and by the Garden Club of America's June 1929 tour to England. A complete copy of the GCA tour itinerary was printed in the Bulletin of the Garden Club of America (Fourth Series, No. 5), September 1929, pp. 6-25.

Persons associated with the garden include First through 17th Earls of Pembroke, Herbert family (owners since circa 1550); Isaac de Caus (1590-1648) (garden designer, 1632-1633); Inigo Jones (1573-1652) and John Webb (1611-1672) (architects, circa 1633-1647) and James Wyatt (1746-1813) (architect, circa 1805).

Wilton House and Vicinity related holdings consist of 1 folder (14 glass negatives; 4 lantern slides)

Garden Club of America Collection, ca. 1920-[ongoing].

Garden has been featured in "Inventing the Garden" by Matteo Vercelloni, Virgilio Vercelloni and Paolo Gallo, Getty Publications, 2010, pp. 80-81.

ENG050: Wonersh, Surrey -- Great Tangley Manor

Architect: Webb, Phillip Speakman, 1831-1915

Landscape designer: Webb, Phillip Speakman, 1831-1915

Former owner: Flower, Wycham

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopies of images of the site, and other information.

Great Tangley Manor was first mentioned in the Domesday book in 1017. The main part of the house reflects alterations made in 1582. In 1880 the property was acquired by Wycham Flower. Flower commissioned noted Arts and Crafts style architect Phillip Speakman Webb to make additional changes and to design the moat and gardens. Additional renovations occurred in the late 20th century, including the internal division of the house into two separate dwellings. The gardens, however, have been largely preserved in their traditional design.

Persons associated with the property include: Wychem Flower (former owner, ca. 1880-1910) and Phillip Speakman Webb (architect and landscape designer, ca. 1880-1900).

Great Tangley Manor related holdings consist of 1 folder (6 glass negatives)

The signs include "Large Rooms To Be Let, J Steel & Son, 17 Water Street," "Vivian & Sons Copper & Yellow Metal Warehouse, 16 Water Street," "Old Ship Inn," and "Simpson & . . . Ironmonger." Thomas W. Sears took several photographs in Liverpool on Sunday, July 7, 1906; Water Street is a known location in Liverpool, and the Vivian & Sons firm is known to have a branch in Liverpool, making this city the likely location for these images. However, Sears may also have visited the city in 1908, making the dating of the image less precise.

Notes: Hereford Garden Suburb was a planned development on the outskirts of the city of Hereford, England, constructed between 1906 and 1908. The lantern slide was made by H. E. Stanley, 290 Westminster Street, Providence, Rhode Island. It appears to depict a designer's rendering of the intersection of Barrs Court Road (bottom) and Bulmers Avenue. In the center of the drawing Bulmers Avenue forks to the right and Lingen Avenue to the left. Photographs of that area under construction appear in J. S. Nettlefold, "Hereford Garden Suburb: The Value of Cooperation," The Town Planning Review, Vol. 4, No. 2 (July 1913), pp. 145-149. Although the rendering differs from what was actually built, several structures are still recognizable in contemporary (21st century) street views.

Although one of the images, ENG097010, would place the location of the pergola at Gravetye Manor, home of William Robinson, no evidence has yet been found for this style of pergola at that site. Likewise, despite lantern slide MD056073 (produced from source image ENG097010) being physically associated with other images of Edgewood, MD056, it does not appear to be of that garden. More likely, Sears used it as a reference or source for the pergola that he did design for Edgewood.

FR012: Maincy (near Melun) -- Château de Vaux-le-Vicomte

Former owner: Fouquet, Nicolas, 1615-1680

Architect: Le Vau, Louis, 1612-1670

Interior designer: Le Brun, Charles, 1619-1690

designer:

Landscape architect: Le Nôtre, André, 1613-1700

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopied book excerpts, and additional information.

The Château de Vaux-le-Vicomte and its gardens were created in the seventeenth century and served as the inspiration for Louis XIV's Versailles. Following his purchase of the estate in 1641, owner Nicolas Fouquet commissioned architect Louis Le Vau to design the château, Charles Le Brun to design the interiors and garden statuary, and André Le Nôtre to plan the gardens. The garden's design included parterres, fountains and water features, terraces, and avenues of hornbeams laid out in rectilinear lines. Stone statues and ornamental urns provided accents. Completed in 1661, around the time of Fouquet's arrest and fall from power, the garden has undergone a few modifications over the years, but continues to evoke the majesty of le Grand Siècle.

Persons associated with the garden include Nicolas Fouquet (former owner, 1641-1661); Louis Le Vau (architect, circa 1641); Charles Le Brun (interior designer, circa 1641); and André Le Nôtre (landscape architect, 1641-1661).

Château de Vaux-le-Vicomte related holdings consist of 2 folders (15 lantern slides; 10 slides (photographs); 6 glass negatives)

SCT006: Crieff -- Drummond Castle

Landscape Kennedy, Lewis

designer:

Owner: Drummond family

Notes: The folder includes worksheets, photocopied book excerpts, and additional information about the house and garden.

The seat of the Drummond family since the 14th century, Drummond Castle is best known today for its elaborate French-inspired parterre garden, laid out in the 1830s by Lewis Kennedy, who had worked at Malmaison in France for Empress Josephine. Designed in the shape of a St. Andrew's Cross, at its heart is an unusual obelisk-shaped sundial dating to the 17th century. Other garden elements, such as fountains, terraces, urns, and statuary, indicate Italian stylistic influences. Although the garden was somewhat redesigned and simplified after World War II, it still contains much plant material reflecting its historic past, including yew hedges, individual yews, and two copper beeches planted in 1842 by Queen Victoria. The property is now under the aegis of the Grimsthorpe and Drummond Castle Trust, established in 1978 to maintain the castle, gardens, and surrounding lands.

Persons associated with the garden include the Drummond family (owners, 14th century to date) and Lewis Kennedy (landscape designer, 1830s).

Drummond Castle related holdings consist of 1 folder (12 glass negatives; 1 lantern slide)

Garden has been featured in G. Allan Little, ed., Scotland's Gardens (Edinburgh: Spurboks in association with the Scotland's Gardens Scheme, 1981), pp. 136-139.

Garden has been featured in James Truscott, Private Gardens of Scotland (London: Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1988), pp. 122-127.
