 Jean Ritchie - iconic folksinger and dulcimer player from Kentucky - received in 1952 a Fulbright Scholarship enabling her to travel to the British Isles to trace the origin of her Kentucky versions of songs and compare them with British versions. During the course of her travels, she and her husband, with the assistance of prominent British folk song authorities, made many field recordings, some of which are found on this recording. Included here are old British ballads, drinking songs, children's songs and games, hand bell ringing, dance tunes, lyrical love songs, and an excerpt from a Mummers' Play, among others. Instruments include fiddle, Northumbrian small pipes, melodeon, and pipe and tabor (drum) played by one individual. Liner notes explain each track and provide lyrics. Biographical information about Jean Ritchie is also present.

Released on Folkways as FW03825 / FS 3825. Orphaned at age 2, William Thomas Dupree grew up in the same New Orleans boys' home where Louis Armstrong first played the cornet. Continuing his music education with barrelhouse piano musicians, Dupree became known for his gritty yet soulful piano blues and boogie-woogie style. During the Depression, he started boxing for a living and earned the nickname "Champion Jack," which stuck with him for the rest of his life. (Taken from Smithsonian Folkways website)

Rejected Recordings from "Folk Songs of Hungary." The music on the album, released just one year after the Hungarian Revolution was crushed by Soviet tanks, speaks of simpler pursuits: courting, love, drinking, and more love. - 1964

Holcomb's white-knuckle performances reflect a time before radio told musicians how to play, and these recordings make other music seem watered-down in comparison. His high, tense voice inspired the term "high lonesome sound."

Vice-President Alben Barkley, interviewed by Sydney Shallot, during 1953. The recording is frequently interrupted and took place while Mr. Shallot accompanied Mr. Barkley on his travels. The tape was used in producing a Folkways record: "Veep;" Alben W. Barkley Tells His Own Story (FW03870). This tape includes some segments that were used on the record along with additional segments that were not used. It includes comments on hog-calling, complete with a demonstration. The tape also includes a fragment of an Israeli song and a cantorial, that presumably are only on the tape because they were originally on the tape prior to the interview.

CDR copy--Various native performers. Production notes: Music of the Shango cult, recorded in Trinidad by George Eaton Simpson. George Eaton Simpson, of Oberlin College, travelled to Trinidad in 1960, to record two quite different types of cult music, both of which incorporate at least some African elements. The Shango Cult is an amalgam of beliefs and practices of the Yoruba tribe of Nigeria, with those of Catholicism. The music is quite African in sound quality, generally including drums and/or rattles and frequently featuring a call-and-response pattern. The "Shouters," who refer to themselves as "Spiritual Baptists," are primarily Christian, incorporating fewer African elements into their religion than the Shango cultists do. Their hymns, without drums and rattles, but with occasional handclapping, sound similar to hymns sung in the U.S. If you find this recording of interest, you might want to CDR copy--Sung by the Tex-i-an Boys. Production notes: Recorded at the University of Houston. FW-ASCH-7RR-1009, in a black tape box, is identical to the Smithsonian Folkways recording, "Songs of Texas - Sixteen popular folk songs of the Lone Star State, sung by the TEX-I-AN Boys" (FW05328), issued in 1961. The TEX-I-AN Boys are John A. Lomax, Jr., Pete Rose, Ed Badeaux, Jim McConnell, and Howard Porper, all of whom live in the vicinity of Houston, TX. They are basically Folk Revival singers in nonmusical professions, e.g., geologist, real estate developer, music teacher, etc. They accompany themselves on guitar, banjo, mandolin and autoharp.

Five men from the Houston area perform "Sixteen popular folk songs of the Lone Star State," most of which have become well-known throughout the country. The songs reflect some of the realities and history of Texan life: cowboys, farming, love, a powerful hurricane, the Alamo, the blues, and a country dance. One song with an interesting history (Billy Barlow) has been traced back to 14th Century England. The Tex-i-an Boys hope that you will find their songs "singable"; and they promise that when you can sing them with "proper reverence," you will be made "honorary Texans!" Extensive liner notes provide the background of each song, as well as the lyrics.

Historically, in rural America, dancing by young people was frowned upon by their elders, whereas children's games were permitted. Therefore, young people, eager to interact and dance, employed the expedient of substituting children's games for dancing, adapting the games, referred to as play parties, to their needs. Sometimes the end result was similar to the forbidden dancing, but without instrumental accompaniment. On this recording, Pete Seeger and his young daughter Mika, joined by Rev. Larry Eisenberg, sing traditional play parties, which they obtained primarily from the collections of Lynn and Katherine Rohrbough. In accordance with traditional practice, the play parties are sung without accompaniment, save for handclapping. The liner notes, written by Pete Seeger, discuss the history, development and characteristics of play parties, and provide the lyrics.

Stretching across western New York State from Lake Erie to the Hudson River, the picturesque Catskills have a long rich history and have also been known for their rich folksong tradition. Barbara Moncure, although an Ohio native, spent many of her summers in the Catskills, collecting folk songs from bearers of the folk tradition. The songs she sings were learned from persons whose identities and life histories are delineated in the liner notes. Harry Siemsen, a Catskills resident who learned his songs from oral tradition, engaged in a variety of professions and was the official historian for the Town of Kingston. He sings two songs on the album as solos, and he and Barbara join forces in singing three lighthearted dialog songs.

 Recorded in: Pennsylvania, United States, January, 1957.
 Folkways 2005
 CDR copy Tape Info: On FW-ASCH-7RR-1469, Mike and Peggy Seeger and Ralph Rinzler perform three songs in January, 1957, recorded at the WSRN (Swarthmore College Radio), by Ralph Rinzler. The back of the tape box says, "Partial Master for FA2005," which is American Folk Songs Sung by the Seegers - FW02005; however, the tape box has negative comments for all three takes, and, having listened to FA02005, it's clear that none of the three takes on this tape were used on the LP.

Folkways 2354

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-1470 consists of six songs sung by Ellen Stekert. The tape box says "Return to Ken Goldstein" and "NY State Folk Songs," but nothing else, and no information was included within the tape box. These six songs are included among the 18 songs Ellen Stekert sings on "Songs of a New York Lumberjack - Sung by Ellen Skekert Accompanying Herself on Guitar" - FA2354. On the LP, all the songs she sings are from the "nearly one hundred songs" she collected from an elderly former lumberjack, Mr. Ezra "Fuzzy" Barhight then 81 years old and living in Cohocton, New York. The LP was edited by Kenneth Goldstein. The LP was issued in 1958; there is no additional information, either with the LP or the tape box, as to when Ellen was recorded, when she recorded "Fuzzy" or current location of the recordings of "Fuzzy."

Roger Welsch, born and raised in Nebraska, taught German and folklore at Nebraska Wesleyan University. He authored "A Treasury of Nebraska Pioneer Folklore," containing materials collected by the WPA in Nebraska during the Great Depression, from which he has selected many of the songs on this recording. Reflecting Nebraska's history and heritage, he has grouped the songs under five headings: The Crossers, The Settlers, Immigrants, War, and Hard Times. Mr. Welsch accompanies himself on the 12-string guitar, banjo and autoharp, while being assisted by Terry Schmitt on the 6-string guitar. The recording was produced by KFMQ, Lincoln, Nebraska, "as a tribute to the Nebraska Centennial Celebration." Liner notes provide detailed historical background for each song as well as the lyrics.

CDR copy Performer(s): Folk songs; sung by Roger Welsch accompanying himself on 12-string guitar, 5-string banjo, and autoharp, in part with Terry Schmitt, singing and playing the 6-string guitar. Blues selections by Delta bluesman Son House, obtained by Sam Charters from the Library of Congress folksong archive. Tape 2 of 2 given to Moe Asch by Charters to produce an album of blues artist from the Delta, notes indicate "the single most important section in the blues development." Tapes result in FW02467, Son House and JD Short: Blues From the Mississippi Delta. This album presents the distinctive blues born from the hardships of life especially African-American life in northern Mississippi. In addition to their music, this collection includes the men's speech: Son House presents a description of "the key of minor." Back of box notes "Charters".

Songs by Son House and J. D. Short; sung by the composers accompanying themselves on guitar.

Fascinated by horses and cowboys but not by school, Harry Jackson (1924 - 2011) left his home in Chicago at age 14 to become a ranch hand and cowboy in Wyoming. While there, he learned cowboy songs from the oral tradition, which he sings here (in 1959), in traditional manner, unaccompanied. The songs portray the life of cowboy in an authentic, unadorned fashion that is light years removed from Hollywood cowboys and country/western simulations. After serving in WWII, Harry Jackson became a prominent artist, focusing on realistic western paintings and sculpture portraying cowboys and Indians.

A collection of Jewish folk songs, wedding songs, and some songs of Israeli origin, sung in Yiddish. Perhaps a sequel to "Jewish Freilach Songs (FW06809 / FW 6809)," although the album does not appear under the Folkways label. Instrumentation: Violin, Piano, Octofone, Accordion, Voice. Recorded 21 April 1961.

FW-ASCH-10RR-0359: Jewish Poems and Stories in Yiddish [sound recording]

1 Item (sound-tape reel; analog; 10 in.)

Narrator: Levinton, Catalina

Language: English.

Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.

CDR copy; copy exists in DAMS system

FW-ASCH-10RR-0359, and -0360 contain Yiddish stories and poems read by Catalina Levinton, a professor from Argentina who recorded an album of stories and poems in Spanish for Folkways: Recital Poetico (FW09925), but nothing in Yiddish. The Yiddish poems and stories on these tapes are by prominent Yiddish writers, including Sholem Asch (father of Moses Asch), Itzhak Manger, Abraham Reisen, Abraham Sutzkever, Hyman Leivick, and others. Second "takes" are sometimes included. A list of included stories and poems, apparently prepared by Ms. Levinton, in both English and Yiddish, is in the tape box; a copy is enclosed in the jewel case. Small cards, also listing the stories and poems (but not as fully) and containing durations, in a different handwriting from Ms. Levinton's, are also in the tape boxes and will only be in the (new) tape boxes, as there is not enough room in the jewel case for them.

Irish popular dances consist for the most part of jigs, reels and hornpipes. They may be played on practically any instrument, for it is the tune and the lilt of the rhythm which counts, rather than the tune of a certain instrument (PDF lines notes p. 4)

Recordings used for Folkways record FW 6818, "Irish Popular Dances," featuring various artists. "The dances given here are among the oldest of the long and round dances" (PDF liner notes p. 9)

 - Mono - 15 ips These poems appeared in the "Cahiers de la Quinzaine," "avant-gaurde" magazine published in France from 1900 to 1914 in which the works of most of the young French intellectuals inspired by Peguy appeared. The poems in this album were recorded in the Cathedral of Beaune by French actors who came to Burgundy during the German occupation. They worked with courage and conviction under the imaginative direction of Jacques Copeau and Pierre Schaeffer to recreate and feel again the spirit and soul of free France. One feels in this unusual and moving performance of voices chanting in unison a religious ecstasy which was a prelude to the Liberation.

FW-ASCH-5RR-0762 is a recording made by Moses Asch of ocean waves. The tape begins with an introduction from Mr. Asch, stating that the recording was made on August 28 at 2:00p.m; however, he doesn't mention the year, although it may be 1957, the year in which -0764 was recorded by Mr. Asch. He further states that the location was the oceanside of Southampton, a town on Long Island, New York.

FW-ASCH-5RR-0763 is primarily an interview in which Moses Asch interviews a Native American woman of the Shinnecock tribe on Long Island, New York - a tribe of some 600 members and the only one of the 13 tribes originally on Long Island. Also, there is a brief instructional session in which the same lady teaches some children about the history of the tribe, e.g., how the tribe taught early European settlers about offshore whaling (pordor) which the Europeans then further developed. That is followed by a brief interview of a small child by Moses Asch. Probably recorded on Aug. 26, 1957 - date shown on the back of -0764 (see below).

FW-ASCH-5RR-0764 is a continuation of -0763. is primarily an interview in which Moses Asch interviews a Native American woman of the Shinnecock tribe on Long Island, New York - a tribe of some 600 members and the only one of the 13 tribes originally on Long Island. Probably recorded on Aug. 26, 1957 - date shown on the back of -0764 (see below). Although Moe is still present, he mainly lets the unidentified Shinnecock lady take over. Three short songs are sung, including an Indian version of the hymn Jesus Loves Me.

FW-ASCH-5RR-0766 records an airplane flight from New York City to Chicago, IL. No date is provided. Moses Asch's voice is heard briefly, so apparently he made the recording. Moe recorded some of the the pilot's comments, which were often of a somewhat folksy, humorous nature, some of which probably wouldn't be acceptable today (after landing, the city girls should hold on their hats while the country girls should hold on to their skirts). He mentions that the cruising altitude was 20,000 feet, and frequently points out the cities and other geographic features below. He mentioned that some woods below them in PA have good "hunting and fishing." They can't avoid some thunderstorms which he predicted might result in some turbulence, although in reality there wasn't much. A short additional track records some traffic sounds, perhaps while travelling from the airport to wherever he was staying. See other sheet for track titles and durations.

FW-ASCH-5RR-0897 was recorded by Jim Garland in the Holiness Church of God of Pineville, KY, with Reverend George Neal. A mix of singing, preaching, praying and testifying was recorded. The recording took place on May 17, but the year isn't specified. Electric guitar accompaniment backs up the hymn-singing. The recording is less than perfect - partly because Jim sometimes changed tape speeds, switching from 7 1/2 to 3 and 3/4 when the congregation switched from singing to talking and vice versa, but the switching wasn't always well-timed.

FW-ASCH-5RR-0899 features the singing and guitar playing of Mary Ruth Johnson and her son, Jean Kenneth Johnson, performing modern white gospel songs. They were recorded by Jim Garland, who was from Appalachia in eastern Kentucky and who recorded various singers and church services from that area. Although not dated, I would guess that the tape was probably recorded in the late 1950's. Many of the songs are standards of the genre. See other sheets for track listings and durations. Poor recording.

FW-ASCH-5RR-1132, apparently recorded by Moe Asch, consists of two parts, presumably both recorded in Los Angeles, written on the back of the tape box. The first section was recorded in a "small café" and consists of three instrumental selections (not well-recorded) played on electric guitar, bass and drums. The second section recorded ambient sounds in Pershing Square, also in Los Angeles. Once again, it is not well-recorded and it is difficult to understand what people - apparently not very close - are saying. Moe's voice is heard when someone asks him for a match, and he replies that he doesn't have one because he doesn't smoke. See other sheets for track titles, durations, and copy of back of tape box.

FW-ASCH-7RR-1444 contains a short dramatic reading, about an American volunteer in the Spanish Civil War. Probably, it is a reading from the novel, "For Whom the Bell Tolls" by Ernest Hemingway. Told in the first person, the speaker is rather bitter and sad about the loss of Spain to the fascist generals, but he is ultimately confident that fascism will eventually be defeated. During the Spanish Civil War, Hemingway was a reporter in Spain. The back of the tape box says, "Hemingway" and "transfer from 13" 78 rpm. Apparently, the recording was not used by Folkways. The reader is not identified and further information isn't provided.

FW-ASCH-5RR-2617 contains children's songs (although some might be considered to be more for adults than children) sung by Hermes Nye, who recorded several albums for Folkways. (This particular recording and the concept, however, weren't used by Folkways.) Almost all the songs were obtained by Nye from major folk music collections, which Nye announces, along with page number, prior to singing each song. The song collections include the Seeger American Folk Songs for Children, Carl Sandburg's American Songbag, Folk Song U.S.A. of John and Alan Lomax, etc. The tape, dated 7/8/1957, was recorded very informally, with interruptions when he makes a mistake and occasional comments. Poor quality, lots of drop outs

This tape were recorded on Nov. 7, 1953, at a square dance in Springfield, Missouri. The performers include callers, fiddler, banjo player, bass player, and, on one track only, a pianist. Most tracks are square dances with calling; at least one track is exhibition dancing without calls, and another is tap dancing with piano accompaniment. None of the personnel are identified. The tapes are poorly recorded, and perhaps have deteriorated over time; the 2nd half of -2619 contains ripples, which are probably the source of the sound volume fluctuations. The back of the -2619 tape box states that the first and last tracks feature the Missouri Champ as caller; the penultimate track caller on that tape is "local." One square dance track on -2619, without calling, features, "Exhibition Dancing." The back of the tape box of -2619 has a number "3," and -2620 has a number "2," so presumably -2620 was recorded prior to -2619. See other sheets for list of tracks and durations.

FW-ASCH-7RR-4443 and -4444 are recordings of Mary Jo Davis of Fayetteville, Arkansas, singing traditional folk songs unaccompanied. The recordings were produced by Mary Celestia Parler. In a "memo" in tape box of -4444, she says current tape is a "fresh recording" to replace an older one. Tape box of -4444 has date of 3/14/55, but that may be date of copy, not original. M. Parler was a professor of English and folklore at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville. Both she and her "field assistants" recorded local singers. In her book, "An Arkansas Ballet Book," first published in 1963, four songs of Ms. Davis are included, two recorded by Ms. Parler and two by one of her field assistants, Merlin Mitchell. The book includes "Black-Jack Davy," of Ms. Davis, as recorded by M. Mitchell on 6/16/1950. Only one of Ms. Davis'es songs is on a Folkways recording: Black-Jack Davy, on Folk Music U.S.A. (FW04530).

CDR copy

FW-ASCH-5RR-4445 contains the singing of Robert Dixon, who was the Director of Music for Meridian Public Schools in Meridian, Mississippi. A newspaper clipping from the Meridian, Miss. Star (date not present), discusses Mr. Dixon, his background, education and three-stringed dulcimer. (A copy is in the CD jewel case, tape box; the original in the Rinzler Archives.) He associated with folksinger John Jacob Niles, was influenced by him, and some of the songs associated with Niles are on this tape. Mr. Dixon's style of dulcimer playing is a straightforward rapid strumming. He style of singing is more classical than folk. For some songs, he accompanies himself on a harp. He sings well-known versions of traditional songs.

 CDR copy- Tape Info: All the tapes on this CD were originally "mystery tapes," put in acid-free boxes and numbered immediately preceding the move from the Victor Bldg to Capital Galery. Minimal information, if any was available. FW-ASCH-5RR-5 988 consists primarily of unaccompanied religious chanting, probably by lay persons rather than clergy. The various tracks had apparently been recorded on separate occasions and spliced together. The lyrics are a mix of religious Latin, e.g., Santa Maria, Christe, Sacramento, dolor, Senora, etc., and what sou See front for additional information.

Story about tigers

Restrictions on access. Listening only. No Duplication Allowed.

CDR copy- FW-ASCH-5RR-5987 consists of very short alternative alternative takes of excerpts of folk tales of Indonesia recited by Harold Courlander; the complete tales were released on FW07102, Folk Tales from Indonesia Told by Harold Courlander, in 1951. The five tales on the record all involve a small mouse deer (chevrotain) by the name of Kantchil, who outwits the larger animals, generally including tigers. (About 10 species of mouse deer are found in tropical Asia. They are neither deer nor mice, but in a family by themselves, although closely related to true deer.) The tales are reminiscent of Brer Rabbit stories.

FW-ASCH-5RR-5988: Christian chanting, middle east, piping

1 Sound recording (sound-tape reel; analog; 5 in.)

Language: English.

Notes: FW-ASCH-5RR-5988

Restrictions on access. rr.

CDR copy- FW-ASCH-5RR-5988 consists primarily of unaccompanied religious chanting, probably by lay persons rather than clergy. The various tracks had apparently been recorded on separate occasions and spliced together. The lyrics are a mix of religious Latin, e.g., the terms Santa Maria, Christe, Sacramento, dolor, Senora, etc., and what sounds like a slavic language. Yet the scales used often sound Middle Eastern. The tape concludes with two bagpipe pieces.

CDR copy Tape Info: These recordings feature Warde Ford, of Crandon, Wisconsin, near Wolf River. Warde and other relatives were involved in lumbering and many of the songs they sing are from the lumber camps. Warde was originally recorded by Sydney Robertson Cowell as part of the WPA Northern California Folk Music Project, begun in 1938, when Warde was in California to work on the Shasta Dam. Some of those recordings are in the CFCH Archives; all of them are in the American Folklife Center, Library of Congress and are available on their website, identified as "California Gold." From 1952 - 1955, Sydney Robertson Cowell re-recorded Warde Ford and other family members, notably Warde's uncle, Robert Walker. Warde had enlisted in the Army, and in 1954 - 1955 was stationed in Munich, Germany, where he was recorded at the studio of Radio Free Europe, where these recordings were made in August 1954. Many of these recordings, and those of his uncle and other family members can be found on Wolf River Songs, FW04001. See other sheets for song lists and their durations.

CDR copy Tape Info: These recordings feature Warde Ford, of Crandon, Wisconsin, near Wolf River. Warde and other relatives were involved in lumbering and many of the songs they sing are from the lumber camps. Warde was originally recorded by Sydney Robertson Cowell as part of the WPA Northern California Folk Music Project, begun in 1938, when Warde was in California to work on the Shasta Dam. Some of those recordings are in the CFCH Archives; all of them are in the American Folklife Center, Library of Congress and are available on their website, identified as "California Gold." From 1952 - 1955, Sydney Robertson Cowell re-recorded Warde Ford and other family members, notably Warde's uncle, Robert Walker. Warde had enlisted in the Army, and in 1954 - 1955 was stationed in Munich, Germany, where he was recorded at the studio of Radio Free Europe, where -0690 through -0695 were made August 1954. Includes one song sung by Warde's uncle - Robert Walker. FW-ASCH-7RR-0696 tape box says, "These songs were recorded afresh 3 months after the first 6 tapes." But top of tape box has date of 9/21/55; perhaps that means this tape is a copy of tape made 10 months earlier. Many of these recordings, and those of his uncle and other family members, can be found on Wolf River Songs, FW04001. See FW-ASCH-7RR-0690 through -0693 for additional songs sung by Warde Ford. See other sheets for song lists and their durations.

CDR copy Tapes FW-ASCH-7RR-0743, -0744 were recorded on Machias Seal Island, Maine, prior to March 19, 1956. They include sounds of puffins, terns and fog horns and were recorded by Floyd J. Owen of Stratford, Connecticut . A letter from Mr. Owen dated 3/19/56, in the -0744 tape box, addressed to Folkways, states that he was glad to hear that the recording would be released soon; the letter then discusses the subject of photos for the LP cover and suggests that the record be advertised in the National Audubon Magazine. However, I can find no evidence that any Folkways recording ever utilized any material from these tapes. A copy of the letter is in the new tape box. The back of the tape box for -0743 has detailed information about the different tracks; a copy is in the CD jewel case and new tape box. The back of the tape box for -0744 states that the tape was an excerpt from an hour-long recording; -0744 lasts only for eight minutes.

South American Birds

Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0745 contains various bird songs, all allegedly recorded on 8/16/1951. There is no indication of who made the recordings. All of the birds indicated are to be found in the South America. There was a tremendous amount of editing, with many splices. Although four tracks are indicated on the tape box, it proved impossible, given the large amount of editing and the fact that one track contains four species, and another contains recordings from at least three locations, for me to assign track numbers in line with what the tape box displays. Some tape fragments were present in the tape box, which I put together randomly at the end of the tape. Tape box information on birds recorded & location is in CD jewel case.

17 tracks

Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0746, is contained in a solid black tape box, which often means that it was used to produce a Folkways LP; however, I can find no corresponding LP. There is no documentation other than what is stated on the recording itself, except for the title "Rain Forest". And "1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th handwritten on the box. The recording contains many animal sounds - largely birds, but also insects, frogs and a buffalo, etc. Spoken introductions usually just state the track or cut number, although several are more extensive. One states that the track was recorded on Ceylon; another states that the track was recorded "near Indonesia," while another mentions the Ucayali river, which is in Peru. Although Folkways issued an album entitled "Sounds of a tropical rain forest" (FW06120) intended to accompany an exhibit on Indians of Peru, it was actually recorded in a Zoo and on Barro Colorado Island, Panama. Therefore, there seems to be no link to the Folkways recording and this tape.

Language: English.

Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0747 consists of frog calls which were used in conjunction with a presentation entitled "Amphibean Calls and Their Significance," presented by Charles M. Bogert at an August 1954 Florida meeting of the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists. The calls are grouped into four units: (1.) Warning calls, mating calls and screams of fright; (2.) Calls illustrating north/south trends, generally showing that higher-pitched and faster calls are in the South; (3.) Calls showing correlation between pitch and size of frog. (Larger frogs have lower-pitched calls.); and (4.) Sample calls of individual species of one genus in one region, illustrating the great diversity. Three pages of notes pertaining to the calls have been placed in the new tape box. FW-ASCH-7RR-0748 and -0749 are dubs of FW-ASCH-7RR-0747. Dr. Bogert also "conceived, narrated and documented" an important Folkways Record: Sounds of North American Frogs (now SFW45060), four years after this tape was made and which includes some songs from this tape, but many additional songs also. CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0753, recorded on 7/14/1953 and 7/15/1953, is entitled "Sound Patterns." The recording was probably made by Frederic Ramsey, jr., as his name and address are stamped both inside and outside of the tape box. The tape consists of two subdivisions, as briefly described on the tape box. The first is "EXPERIMENTS WITH BRASS, STEEL, COPPER PIPES - FUNDAMENTALS, OVERTONES - Roger Maren, Amelia and Frederic Ramsey, Jr." The second subdivision is "SHORT WAVE - BAND, 6 - 12 MC. Carriers, monitored and un-monitored with & without crystal phasing; code picture transmission; scrambled voices." (But I don't hear any scrambled voices.)

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0773 is both interview and soliloquy of Kevin Roth's 91 year-old grandmother, Regina. Kevin has included a letter to Moe along with the tape, in which he refers to the recording as "a very special new documentary tape i.. "Songs, Stories, and Philosophies of an Orthodox Jewish Grandmother." She presents, in rambling manner, in thick dialect with occasional lapses into Yiddish, her views of life, religion, being Jewish, being a good person, etc. along with descriptions of her youth, husband, sister, their early days, etc. Also, she sings fragments of various songs in Yiddish, Romanian and Hungarian. The tape was recorded by Kevin in July, 1983. As singer, composer and dulcimer player, Kevin Roth recorded a variety of albums for Folkways See other sheets for track list and durations.

FW-ASCH-7RR-0830: Remembrance Songs: Family of Sara Morris Gelbert

1 Sound recording (sound-tape reel; analog; 7 in.)

Language: English.

Notes: FW-ASCH-7RR-0830

Intro--Little Siulva--I don't want to play in your yard--I'm nothing but a big wax doll--Who killed Cock Robin--School days, school days--Daisy (A Bicylce built for two)--After the ball--Comrades--I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls--Swet bunch of daises--Just wearing ? For you--Alice Blue Gown--Give me all your love dear, or else give me none--You had a dream, I had one too--Just a litle love, a little kiss--Every little movement--Then you'll remember me--In the good old summertime--Come, come, I love you only--End of a perfect day--Two little girls

Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.

CDR copy. FW-ASCH-7RR-0830 primarily contains popular songs from the turn of the 20th Century (and perhaps a decade or two in both directions), sung by an unidentified seemingly middle-aged woman accompanying herself on piano. While singer and date of recording aren't provided, the tape box says, "For the family of Sara Morris Gelber." (The tape box also says, "Then you'll remember me" and "Remembrances.") The singer introduces the recording by saying, "In a frankly sentimental mood, I give you these songs, sung to us and with us by my mother, beginning with the earliest ones I can remember." The only songs I can identify as folk songs are "Who Killed Cock Robin" and Come, Come , I Love You Only, which I think is a translation of of German folk song. For many of the songs, only the chorus is sung.

Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.

CDR copy-- FW-ASCH-7RR-0835 contains straightforward renditions of well-known folk songs prominent during the early Folk Revival, sung with guitar accompaniment, by Dick Pigman. Quite possibly, he obtained most of the songs from Burl Ives recordings and songbooks (perhaps Lomax songbooks also).

 10 songs
 Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.
 CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0843 contains dubs of 78 rpm records of the Piatnitsky Chorus, including instrumental accompaniment, which is usually an accordion. The tape also contains several instrumentals with many instruments. The tape may have been used in producing the Folkways recording, "Russian Folk Songs: Songs and Dances of Central Russia," (FW06820) featuring the Piatnitsky Chorus and Orchestra; however, although there is some overlap, there are some songs on the record not on this tape and vice versa. No written information accompanies the tape.

FW-ASCH-7RR-0847: Whitman: Mix of Rest of RI - Seashore Fancies
 1 Sound recording (sound-tape reel; analog; 7 in.)
 Author: Whitman, Walt, 1819-1892
 Language: English.

 Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.
 CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0847 contains a reading of a prose work of Walt Whitman, about the sea, entitled Sea-Shore Fancies, contained in a book of Whitman's works published in 1892. The reader is not identified. Actual sounds of the sea are included. This particular prose work isn't included in the Folkways record of Walt Whitman's works. The beginning of this work, perhaps an additional take by the same reader, can be heard on FW-ASCH-7RR-0850. The label on the -0847 tape box says, "Whitman; Mix of Best of RI." However, the only thing on the tape is the Whitman selection described above; perhaps "R.I." is the reader.) No other information is provided.

FW-ASCH-7RR-0850: Out My Window

1 Sound recording (sound-tape reel; analog; 7 in.)

Creator: Schwartz, Tony

Language: English.
Notes: FW-ASCH-7RR-0850
Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.
CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0850 is entitled, "Out My Window;" recorded and narrated by Tony Schwartz, it presents the sounds to be heard outside the front and back windows of Tony's reconvered brownstone house in the middle of Manhattan, on a typical day. His front window faces a residential street while the the back window faces a courtyard, schoolyard and church. An incredible variety of sounds is to be heard, including children, cats, dogs, fog whistle, street repair, construction, a woman hanging out clothes, jets overhead, an air-raid siren (which apparently inspired local dogs to bark and howl), garbage trucks, etc. Among the more interesting sounds were street vendors, a pitchman selling knife sharpeners, kids beating out rhythms on car fenders and mailboxes, a Spanish gospel song, a parade with marching band, a local politician explaining why he should be elected and a street musician playing jazz on a saxophone. Tony Schwartz recorded 11 albums for Folkways, none labelled "Out My Window." However, about half the albums contain sounds along the lines of what is on this tape. Conceivably, some of the sounds from this tape were used on the recordings, although I couldn't readily confirm that. Perhaps this tape was submitted to Folkways as a prototype for an additional album which wasn't produced.

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-0852 contains dubs of field recordings of worksongs of "Negro longshoremen of the Bell Steamship Company" recorded by Alan Lomax in Tampa, Florida, in January, 1940. The originals, in the American Folklife Center of the Library of Congress, are listed and further described in their Traditional Music and Spoken Word Catalog, at <http://memory.loc.gov/diglib/ihas/html/afccards/afccards-home.html>, Curiously, these selections are not listed in the old printed Library of Congress Checklist of the Archive of American Folk Song; perhaps they were recorded a little too late to be included. The singers are John Henry Epps, Nathaniel Wellman, Jeziel (?) and Charlie Rutledge.

 CDR copy Mose Wright (c.1890 - 1973) was a Mississippi sharecropper and the great uncle of Emmett Till, the fourteen-year-old boy brutally murdered in the summer of 1955. Emmett Till was staying in Mose Wright's home on a plantation near Money, Mississippi when two white men, Roy Bryant and J.W. Milam, kidnapped the young boy for allegedly whistling at Bryant's wife. The two men threatened Wright at gun point, warning the old man to keep his mouth shut or, "you'll never live to be sixty-five." Wright would later testify against Bryant and Milam in his great nephew's murder trial.

Various interviews with people in the advertising field
Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.
CDR copy. FW-ASCH-7RR-0991 is one of a series of at least four tapes devoted to interviews conducted by the same unidentified person - almost certainly Tony Schwartz. Tony recorded a variety of Folkways albums based on field recordings he made in the 1950's near where he lived in New York City; however, these tapes apparently weren't used by Folkways. The first three of the four tape boxes contain the code "VG-3" and tapes contain brief interviews of commercial artists (-0991 and -0993 are identical, so only the first is being digitized; -0992 was recorded at 3 & 3/4 ips and is not being digitized at this time. Similar straightforward questions were asked of each artist, such as: "What do you do?" "What kind of training did you have for your job?" "What do you find most/least rewarding about your job? Does your job allow you any opportunities to express yourself? etc. If the artist was female, she was asked about whether her gender had made it more difficult to find a job, etc. Because the interviews were rather brief - often less than 10 minutes - there was not much opportunity for in-depth discussion. The tape contains five separate interviews.

CDR copy. FW-ASCH-7RR-0994 is one of a series of at least four tapes (-0991 through -0994) devoted to interviews conducted by the same unidentified person - almost certainly Tony Schwartz. Tony recorded a variety of Folkways albums based on field recordings he made in the 1950's near where he lived in New York City; however, these particular tapes apparently weren't used by Folkways. The box for this tape contains the number "VG-4." Although the questions and interview style on this tape are similar to the questions and style of the other three tapes, the current tape is somewhat different, as the interviewees are all secretaries rather than artists. Similar straightforward questions are asked of each secretary, such as: "What do you do?" "What kind of training did you have for your job?" "What pleases (displeases) you most about your job? The secretaries all seem to be satisfied with their jobs, their consistently male bosses and their work, although all managed to mention, when asked, at least one thing they disliked. The first secretary, perhaps in her twenties, was a private secretary for a V.P. of a publishing company;

the second, seemingly middle-aged, was a private secretary for the President of a company; the third, seemingly middle-aged, was a secretary within a steel corporation which had branches throughout the country. In addition to typing, taking dictation, opening mail, and filing, the secretaries all had to do some personal things for their boss, such as ordering theatre tickets, turning on the lights in the boss's office, and even writing personal checks.

CDR copy--Recorded by Pete & Toshi Seeger in the winter of 1951 at two Texas prison farms, this album represents some of the oldest and most traditional work songs found among African American prison communities in the southern United States. Traditionally a participatory art form, these songs were typically sung while groups of 10-30 prisoners performed tasks such as chopping and hoeing. With origins reaching back to their West African ancestry as well as during the era of African American slavery, work songs served the purpose of alleviating the mundane nature of repetitive tasks as well as providing a forum for the song leader to keep the group together through rhythms and lyrics. Pete Seeger narrates and dubs various songs from 78s.

This reel is devoted solely to an informal presentation, with audience feedback, requests, and questions, of the New Lost City Ramblers, a prominent old-timey trio consisting of Mike Seeger, John Cohen and Tom Paley. They sing five songs, and discuss how they originally got together. Reel 2 from the same Coffee Hour can be heard on FW-ASCH-7RR-1840.

FW-ASCH-7RR-1837 is reel 1 of "Workshop 5," recorded on 6/29/1962, announced at the outset by moderator Sam Hinton, as a discussion of popular music. However, to a large extent, it's a monologue by musicologist Dr. Charles Seeger presenting his hypothetical model of the historical development and differentiation of popular, art and folk music. No music is presented. Other panelists include Andrew Rowan Summers and Jean Ritchie. To emphasize the low regard with which folk music is held in most of academia, Dr. Seeger points out (after obtaining audience confirmation) that no one from Berkeley's Music Dept. was present. See FW-ASCH-RR-1841 for continuation of this Workshop.

Reel no. 2 includes Dr. Charles Seeger, Mike Seeger, Andrew Rowan Summers, Jean Ritchie and Sam Hinton, and Malvina Reynolds (who was in the audience). Reel no. 2 contains a spontaneous free-ranging discussion on the nature of folk music, its definition and what it encompasses, without reaching any conclusions. The nature of bluegrass and it's relationship to folk music is also discussed, along with an alleged decline in the quality of popular music. Mike Seeger plays Little Maggie, etc., on the banjo in Scruggs style to illustrate his points. The relationship of Stephen Foster and the Star-Spangled Banner to folk music is also discussed. Unlike reel no. 1, all participants play a significant role in the discussion. (Dr. Charles Seeger was predominant in Reel #1.).

Moderator Sam Hinton states at the outset (perhaps the tape begins after an intermission) that the session is "for the purpose of discussing children's music, here and at home." Children's music is both performed and discussed by Sam Hinton, Bessie Jones, Jean Ritchie and Dr. Charles Seeger. (Only Bessie and Jean sing) For about ten minues at the end, Dr. Seeger denounces modern music education for children, claiming it is probably now at the "lowest stageithat was ever known in history." A handwritten sheet in the tape box lists the songs, ending with three sung by Mike Seeger that were apparently sung after the tape had ended.

Reel 3 includes Dr. Charles Seeger, Mike Seeger, Andrew Rowan Summers, Jean Ritchie, Sam Hinton, and, from the audience, Malvina Reynolds and Merritt Herring. It contains a spirited, spontaneous, free-ranging discussion on the characteristics of folk and popular music and their interactions, often focusing on change, whether within a tradition, within popular music (subject to more rapid change), or across genre lines and over time. Legitimacy of a modern singer changing or composing a "folk song" is discussed. In passing, the following are considered: John Jacob Niles, Marian Anderson, Rodgers and Hammerstein, rock and roll, jazz, improvisation, etc.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2324 contains a panel discussion held at the initial Newport Folk Festival on 7/12/1959, on the subject of "What is American Folk Music." The panel members include Prof. Willis James of Atlanta Univ., Alan Lomax, Moses Asch, and Prof. Stanley Hyman of Bennington College. The moderator was Marshall Stearns. At the outset, each panel member gave an introductory speech of about 15 minutes. That is followed by a discussion, the beginning of which (perhaps the majority) is missing. The fidelity of the tape is poor. See other sheet for track listing with durations.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2362 contains three interviews, conducted by Tony Schwartz, of account executives of advertizing agencies. The executives describe their jobs and answer questions such as: 1. what training did you have for your job; 2. What do you do in a typical day; and 3. What do you like most (and least) about your job. Tony Schwartz produced many recordings for Folkways and conducted various other interviews, including interviews of commercial artists and secretaries. (See FW-ASCH-7RR-0991, -0994.) Tony lived in New York City, and most, if not all, of his recordings and unreleased interviews took place there.

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-2722 presents James and Jerry Rutherford (brothers) of Cary, KY, singing popular gospel songs and some earlier hymns, country style, recorded in 1966 or 1967 (see below). Per tape box, James is 16 and Jerry is 13. They are accompanied by an unidentified guitarist. Jim Garland comments that he knew the brothers' parents and grandparents, all having lived in Cary, KY, and that the songs are the type of song heard in the Church of God. A photo of the two brothers, dated June, 1966, has James as 15 (one year younger than age on tape box) while age of Jerry is 13 - same as on tape box) and a recording contract signed by Jim Garland (for Moe Asch) and Gladys Kinkaid (for the brothers), were found in the tape box (photo and contract now in Archive folders). Tape Info: FW-ASCH-7RR-2720 through -2725 contain recordings made by Kentucky singer Jim Garland of local singers and church services.

CDR copy Tape Info: FW-ASCH-7RR-2720 through -2725 contain recordings made by Kentucky singer Jim Garland of local singers and church services. FW-ASCH-7RR-2724 features the Brown Family, who call themselves the Kentucky Gospel Singers. They include Walter Brown, the father, who is the singer and guitarist, his son Floyd, who plays double-necked Hawaiian guitar, Ed Fuson, who plays bass, Della Brown (Floyd's wife) and Theda Brown (Walter's daughter). All but the last two songs feature Walter as soloist. The last two songs (not on this CD) are sung by the two ladies. Walter Brown composed about half the songs on the tape. He is a member of the Holiness Church and "goes from place to place visiting churches and singing." Jim Garland prepared a sheet of additional information about the Browns and has also typed out the lyrics, all of which will be retained along with the tape in a new tape box.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2767 are field recordings made by Frederic Ramsey on the same field trip that resulted in the Folkways series "Music From the South." Unfortunately, most of the four pages of notes in the tape box don't correspond to the songs on the tape. However, "I'm Too Close" sung by Ella Cash, is found both on the tape, and on one of the typewritten pages in the tape box. And four of the eight songs of the Starlight Gospel Singers are on both this tape and on "The Music From the South, Volume 8: Young Songsters," (FW02657). Based on the four pages of notes, Ella Cash was recorded in Little Rock Baptist Church in Heiberger, AL, on May 2, 1954, and the Starlight Gospel Singers were recorded on at least three occasions in April and May, 1954, in the vicinity or in the towns of Heiberger, Greensboro and Sprott, all in Alabama. Members of the Singers are Nathaniel Benson, Joe Massey, Cleophus Sanders, James Belcher, Leo Holman, Arthur James Gill. The typewritten sheets have been removed from tape box and will be placed in a Frederic Ramsey folder.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2770 contains part of two radio shows, perhaps broadcast from Mexico. The first program is in Spanish and focuses mainly on folk music from around the world, Canada (Quebec), Israel, Italy, and Hungary. The show also includes two popular songs from the early 1900's. At least twice "Folkways Records" is mentioned as the source recording. For about the last two minutes, there are opening announcements in Yiddish for the next program. On the outside of the tape box the following has been handwritten: Folkways Records; Prog. #73; Octubre 5 de 1980; The Jewish Hour. The printing on the tape box contains only Spanish, stating that the tape was "Hecho en Mexico," providing evidence that the radio broadcast was from Mexico.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2780 contains standard U. S. folk songs and one instrumental performed by various bluegrass musicians of Virginia. Of the eight tracks, all but one are on the Folkways album "Bluegrass From the Blue Ridge: A Half Century of Change: Country Band Music of Virginia" (FW03832), released in 1967 and recorded by Eric Davidson. The instrumentation is standard: fiddle, banjo and mandolin, guitar and bass are present. The tape box says, "Band Master - 2." Prominent among the musicians are Wade Ward, Fields Ward and Spud Gravelly. For additional information, refer to the Folkways album. The one song on this tape that is not on the Folkways album is "Someday We'll Meet Again, Sweetheart."

FW-ASCH-7RR-2791 is a recording of Hermes Nye, accompanying himself on guitar, singing a variety of English language songs with little in common except their light-hearted or humorous nature. Hermes Nye performed on five solo albums for Folkways; however, none of the songs on this tape seems to have been used by Folkways. The songs are quite varied in origin and subject matter, ranging from an authentic cowboy song to old popular music dialect songs imitating or describing, if not poking fun at, various ethnic groups, such as Germans, Italians and native Americans.

CDR copy

FW-ASCH-7RR-2794 is a recording of interviews conducted by Norman Studer of residents of the Catskills in New York State. The tape consists of many small excerpts of individual interviews of many residents, mainly elderly, describing many aspects of life in the past, including about rafting, fiddling, individual colorful personalities, etc. The recording relates to some extent to a Folkways Record issued in 1961: All the Homespun Days - A Narrative Poem of New York State Life, With Documentary Recording, Written and Read by Norman Studer (FW03853). However, I don't find anything specific from this tape that was used on the Folkways record. A handwritten sheet was in the tape box listing some of the excerpts; a copy is in the jewelcase. Of some interest are one song (Don't You See That Old Grey Goose Smiling at the Gander), the Arkansas Traveller played on fiddle with dialogue, and a discussion of a song about rafting. Because there are so many short excerpts, I have only placed markers between some of them.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2795 corresponds almost precisely to the Folkways album entitled: The Original Read-In for Peace in Vietnam (FW09752), issued in 1967, recorded at Town Hall, NYC, produced by the Committee of the Professions, having, as Chairman of the Evening, Stanley Kauffmann. It consists of various prominent authors reading from their publications or manuscripts, or, in the case of Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee, from the Bible. Some presentations are prose, some are poetry. Some well-known actors are present, including Tony Randall, Maureen Stapleton, Hal Brooks, Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee. Tony Randall managed to inject some humor into an otherwise intense, serious event. The tape was in a solid brown tape box, with the handwritten note on the inside, saying, "Wrong tape! Do not use! Lou Menashe" (Mr. Menashe produced the Folkways recording.) I have no clue as to what was wrong with this tape or how it differs from whatever tape was used. There are approximately 6 other tapes in the FW-ASCH series that are from the Vietnam Read-In.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2805 is one of a series of at least six tapes of interviews of Kiowa Indians recorded by Harry Smith. Although some of his recordings of Kiowa Indians were used on the Folkways album, "The Kiowa Peyote Meeing" (FW04601), the current tape wasn't used and there is no mention of peyote in it. This tape, recorded on 4/3/1964, consists of two sessions - the first was recorded in "Tingley's Pawn Shop," and contains very informal conversation, plus one 49 song which sounds like a typical traditional Indian song. Harry Smith has provided neat handwritten notes which are included in the reference CD jewel case and tape box. The second session, recorded at "FloraBelle Harrington's" contains informal conversation, largely about tornadoes and religion, plus three short songs, two in English. The tape box says 4/1. There is no indication as to the precise location of the recording sessions other than the above; however, the sessions used on the Folkways recording were made in Anadarko, OK, so perhaps this tape was recorded there also.

FW-ASCH-7RR-2807 is one of a series of at least six tapes of interviews of Kiowa Indians recorded by Harry Smith in the town

Indians were used on the Folkways album, "The Kiowa Peyote Meeing" (FW04601), the current tape wasn't used and there is no mention of peyote in it. However, the liner notes for that album indicate that Harry originally intended there to be about eight albums and one of them was to be "Litha Chesney's Ballad Boxes." This tape, recorded on 4/3/1964, consists solely of songs - usually older country and/or popular love songs, but a few usually considered folk songs, e.g., Putting on the Style and In the Pines - sung by Litha Chesney.
Conversation with Harry Smith takes place throughout. No Indian songs are present. Harry Smith's song list is included.

Similar to FW-ASCH-7RR-2807, this tape contains more singing of predominantly sentimental country songs sung by Litha Chesney, this time recorded on 4/24/1964. A few folk songs - or possible folk songs - are A Single Life Choose, Chickasaw Nation, Careless Love and The

Cowboys' Christmas Ball. (The latter song is in the Lomax collection, "Cowboy Songs".)

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-4036 is Workshop 7, reel no. 1, recorded 6/30/1962. The Workshop is entitled: The City Folksinger - Where Does He Start? The moderator is Merritt Herring. Participants include Dr. Charles Seeger, Andrew Rowan Summers, Jean Redpath, and John Cohen. Andrew Rowan Summers presents an extended and interesting narrative about his early years in Virginia and how he experienced and began performing folk music. Jean Redpath also describes her early years in relation to music. Dr. Charles Seeger, father of Pete Seeger, asks pertinent questions and provides some commentary. Tape box indicates "Sam" (presumably Sam Hinton, who is on other tapes at the Festival) is present, but, if so, I don't know that he speaks. There are no musical examples or excerpts presented on this tape.

CDR copy Tape Info: The following tapes were recorded at the 1962 University of California - Berkeley Folk Festival. FW-ASCH-7RR-4038 is Reel 2 of Workshop 6, recorded on 6/30/1962. Bessie Jones is featured, presenting a free-ranging narrative, including song excerpts, information about her youth, and many humorous stories relating to life on plantations during slavery. Because the presentation is interwoven into a seamless whole, I haven't attempted to break the material up into tracks, which would be a distraction. Song excerpts include: You oughta Get Tired, Old Grey Mule, Sandaree, Way Go Lily and Way Down Yonder. The stories and reminiscences could have been given titles of: Egg Cracking, Gambling, My God Your God, Praying to the Devil, Lazy Enoch, and Raising vs. training.

CDR copy Tape Info: The following tapes were recorded at the 1962 University of California - Berkeley Folk Festival. FW-ASCH-7RR-4047 is part of "Concert Workshop 2" recorded 6/28/1962. Participants include Dr. Charles Seeger (most prominently), Mike Seeger, Jean Ritchie and Sam Hinton. In addition, Malvina Reynolds speaks from the audience. Probably, this tape is from near the end of the workshop, as it largely contains responses to questions from the audience, albeit the questions are often used as take-off points for extended conversation among the panelists. The discussion relates primarily to children's music, including such topics as: the inappropriate constraints placed on children's musicality by our music education system; puritanical constraints on song content; and children's musical culture. Some musical examples are presented, some of which are perhaps complete, while others are fragmentary. (Only lengthier examples are shown on sheet at front of jewel case.)

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-4053 is a concert/workshop (workshop
no. 4), featuring Appalachian folksinger and dulcimer player, Jean Ritchie, recorded 6/29, 1962. She doesn't perform, but discusses four folksingers she recorded, and plays the recordings she made of them.
Two of the persons whose taped performances she plays are fiddler
Clarence Farrell, of Alpine, TN and Ivy Scott, of the North Carolina Outer Banks. When Jean Ritchie was in Scotland, she recorded two singers whose songs she plays, namely, Elizabeth White and Ella Ward, both of Scotland. She also discusses Jeannie Robertson, Scottish folksinger whom she claims she (Jean) was the first to record.

CDR copy FW-ASCH-7RR-4054 is tape no. 2 of a concert at the Festival. It consists of cowboy songs, sung by Slim Critchlow, recorded 6/28/1962. According to a handwritten sheet found in the tape box, Jean Ritchie, Roscoe Holcomb, and the New Lost City
Ramblers were at the same event and their songs are listed after Mr.
Critchlow's, but they are not on this tape, and perhaps those songs weren't recorded.

Charles Olson Reads from Maximus Poems IV, V, VI

Restrictions on access. No duplication allowed listening and viewing for research purposes only.

CDR copy Tape Info: An unidentified man (English professor?) reads poems by Charles Olson, perhaps entirely from The Maximus Poems. They are often in the 1st person, told by "Maximus of Gloucester" and often relate to the town of Gloucester and fishing, although the precise meaning is frequently obscure. The recording took place on Mar. 4, 1957, at "KPFA, Berkeley." The following background on Charles Olson and his poetry is quoted directly from Wikipedia : Charles Olson (27 December 1910 - 10 January 1970), was a second generation American modernist poet who was a crucial link between earlier figures like Ezra Pound and William Carlos Williams and the New American poets, Olson was born to Karl Joseph and Mary Hines Olson. and grew up in Worcester, Massachusetts (where his father worked as a mailman) and spent summers in Gloucester, Massachusetts, which was to become the focus of his writing. In 1950, inspired by the example of Pound's Cantos (though Olson denied any direct relation between the two epics), Olson began writing The Maximus Poems, a project that was to remain unfinished at the time of his death. An exploration of American history in the broadest sense, Maximus is also an epic of place, Massachusetts and specifically the city of Gloucester where Olson had settled. Dogtown, the wild, rock-strewn centre of Cape Ann, next to Gloucester, is an important place in The Maximus Poems. The whole work is also mediated through the voice of Maximus, based partly on Maximus of Tyre, an itinerant Greek philosopher, and partly on Olson himself.
