The proud tradition lives on . . .

On this, the 209th birthday of our Corps, we pause to reflect on the pride and tradition which has been upheld by Marines since that glorious day in Tinian, Philadelphia, on November 10, 1775. Although the weapons and tactics have changed, the Marine Corps remains the most effective and best trained military force in the world today. LCpl. James Malchiodi, a Military Policeman at the Air Station, and LCpl. Deann Wynder, of CommSpt Co., signify the promising future of our Corps. "Gunny," owned by Maj. John D. McGuire, CO of H&S Co., BSSG, signifies the name given by the German army to all Marines who fought so valiantly during World War I — Teuffelhunden, or "Devil Dogs."

A MESSAGE FROM THE COMMANDANT OF THE MARINE CORPS

To all who have earned the title MARINE; to the superb Navy men and women who serve alongside our Corps; and to our precious families — those silent heroes who endure uncertainties, hardships, and loneliness — and from whom in return we receive extraordinary love and devotion; to each of you — a heartfelt HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

As we move into our 210th year, I ask that all MARINES pause for one brief moment to rededicate themselves to Country, to Corps, to family, and to each other. We are a unique and special breed — a breed with the most important and demanding of all missions — the defense of our Nation!

The name MARINE knows neither defeat nor dishonor; it knows only pride and professionalism. We are proud "Soldiers of the Sea," you and I, and our generation must uphold the highest traditions of our beloved Corps — a Corps of MARINES!

God bless you and Happy Birthday to the UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS.

New training system under development

The U.S. Navy has awarded McDonnell Douglas Corporation a contract, valued at $438 million, for full-scale development of the T-45 Training System.

The training system will be used to train up to 600 Navy aviators a year for carrier-based fighter and attack squadrons. Using the system, the Navy expects to cut the cost of training pilots by 50 percent.

McDonnell Douglas will be responsible for all elements of the system, including the aircraft, flight simulators, academic instruction, logistics support and a computer-based training integration system. This is the first time the military has bought a complete training system with a single contractor.

The Douglas Aircraft Company division of McDonnell Douglas is the prime contractor and system integrator on the T-45 Training System. Teamed with McDonnell Douglas are British Aerospace, upon which the Hawk aircraft design, the T-45A trainer, is based; Sperry Corporation provides the simulators, and Rolls Royce the aircraft engines.

Savings with T45TS will result from a combination of factors:

A more fuel-efficient aircraft than those presently used;

Requirement for fewer aircraft because advanced simulators will be used to reduce flying time needed to qualify pilots;

Lower maintenance costs on aircraft and ground equipment; and Fewer people needed to maintain the training system.

Some 300 T-45A aircraft are needed for the Navy's training requirements. McDonnell Douglas and British Aerospace will build the aircraft jointly, with final assembly to be done in Long Beach.

Under terms of the contract, McDonnell Douglas will build two test aircraft. Construction of those test aircraft will begin late next year, with first flight scheduled for late 1987.

McDonnell Douglas and British Aerospace are modifying the Hawk design to make the plane capable of aircraft carrier landings and takeoffs. The changes include a dual-wheel nose landing gear and catapult bar; strengthened main landing gear; a tail hook to catch carrier-deck arresting cables; relocated speed brakes; and general structural strengthening to accommodate the stresses of carrier operations.

Present plans call for work to begin on the first 12 production aircraft in 1988. Those aircraft, along with the associated ground training systems, are scheduled to be in operation with the Navy in 1990 at the Naval Air Station at Kingsville, Texas.

The T45TS program calls for Sperry to build two types of simulators — operational flight trainers with wide-view visual systems, and instrument flight trainers. The two simulators have a high degree of commonality to keep costs low.

Sperry will rely heavily on the technology now used in the F/A-18 Hornet simulators it is building for the Navy. Many of the pilots trained in the T45TS will eventually be flying in the McDonnell Douglas F/A-18.

Some 30-35 percent of the academic work during training will be done through computer-aided instruction programs, which will allow the student aviator to proceed at his own pace and get more individualized instruction in less classroom time.

The training integration system will provide the most efficient use of aircraft, classrooms, simulators, instructors and other resources through computer-aided scheduling and management of the various parts of the training system.

It also will track individual student progress through training.

Statue overlooks Vietnam Memorial

By Tom Joyce
American Forces Information Service

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial sits on two acres in Constitution Gardens in Washington, D.C., dedicated to honor the "courage, sacrifice, and devotion to duty and country" of the approximately 2.7 million Americans who served in the war zone. Some 300,000 were wounded and approximately 75,000 permanently disabled.

Since the memorial was dedicated on Nov. 13, 1982, it has been visited by more than three million people, many of them friends and relatives of the more than 58,000 honored dead whose names line the black granite walls.

A jury of eight internationally recognized artists and designers selected the memorial's design through a national competition.

Ms. Maya Ying Lin, who submitted the winning design, wanted to create "a park within a park, a quiet protected place unto itself." For that reason, she chose polished black granite for the two walls of the memorial. Its mirror-like surface reflects the images of the surrounding trees, lawns, and monuments.

Each wall is 246 feet, 8 inches long. The East wall points to the Washington Monument and West wall points to the Lincoln Memorial. The walls are supported by 140 concrete pilings driven 35 feet into bedrock. The memorial is more than 10 feet tall at its highest point. The names were carved using a computer-generated photo stencil sandblasting process developed specifically for the memorial. The black granite used for the walls, safety curbs and walkways is from Bangalore, India, the only place in the world it could be obtained in the sizes required.

There are 58,007 names on the memorial. About 1,300 are classified as missing in action. Eight women are listed: seven Army nurses and one Air Force nurse. There are no civilians.

The names are listed in chronological order according to date of the casualty. The first men to die were military advisors, killed on July 8, 1959. The list of names starts and ends in the center of the two walls. Beginning with July 1959, the names read to the right to panel number 70 on the east wall. The names then continue on panel number 70 on the west wall, reading to the right, and reaching the center of the monument and the names of the last casualties in

Cont. on A-8

The bronze statue of three American servicemen, cast from sculptor Frederick Hart's clay model (above), will be unveiled on Veteran's Day when it becomes part of the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C.

Memorial added to Park Service

On April 27, 1979, a group of Vietnam veterans formed the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund (VVMF) so Vietnam veterans would have "a tangible symbol of recognition by American society," says Jan Scruggs, president and founder of the VVMF.

On Veterans Day, November 11, Secretary of the Interior William Clark is scheduled to accept the Vietnam Veterans Memorial — built through VVMF efforts — as a new addition to the federal government's National Park Service System.

The VVMF was set up as a nonprofit, charitable organization. No government money was used to build the memorial. Scruggs says the people of America were all saying "thank you to the veterans" when they donated almost $9 million toward its construction.

The U.S. government will now be responsible for maintaining the memorial and the grounds. However, the VVMF will maintain a fund for catastrophic damages to the memorial, to maintain the statue, and to update the names and symbols on the memorial.

Women to improve communication skills

A one-day seminar to help professional women develop communications skills, sponsored jointly by three professional women's groups, will be held Nov. 17, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the Hawaii Regent Hotel.

"Professional Women: Communications Issues" is the subject of the conference produced by the Hawaii Women Lawyers, the Hawaii chapter of the American Medical Women's Association, and the Hawaii chapter of the Society of Women Accountants.

The conference intends to provide information and techniques to women to help develop the skills in communication necessary to meet the challenges offered by their profession.

"Women are confronted with unique concerns in the professional sphere, because there are still relatively few of us, we have few role models and little source material available to help develop communication skills," says Joyce Neeley, an attorney, and one of the members of the organizing committee for the seminar.

The speakers we have invited to address the participants have been asked to describe effective communications techniques and skills for women which can be successfully adapted into our professional lives," she adds.

The morning program will feature five speakers, each of whom will present their experiences and give advice for developing better skills in this area.

The afternoon program consists of a round-table discussion on communications problems, encountered by professional women. The morning speakers and representatives of the sponsoring professional organizations will join to answer questions from the audience.

The seminar will also feature a noontime address by Emily Couric, a nationally known writer specializing in the legal professional and women's issues.

Attendance is open to the public. Reservations may be made by calling Marie Ka-Ne at 524-8000. Entrance fee is $25 and includes lunch and printed materials.

DACOWITS : more diversified and involved

HQMC — Its mission may be relatively unknown to the public, but since 1951, when Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall invited 50 women of distinguished accomplishments to visit him in Washington, the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services has had a dramatic and far-reaching impact on all servicemembers, women and men alike.

What Secretary Marshall had in mind 33 years ago was to get more women volunteers to help out on the homefront during the Korean conflict. DACOWITS' first mission was to advise the secretary on how to bolster recruitment of women for the Armed Forces, increase their retention rate and better utilize their capabilities. Their efforts paid off.

Through a nationwide recruiting program, public appearances and field trips to military installations, DACOWITS was instrumental in helping the services overcome their manpower shortage — nearly 50,000 women served on active duty at the peak of the Korean conflict.

Today, the committee's purpose is broader in scope. Its membership, appointed in three-year terms by the Secretary of Defense, remains a diverse group of professional and accomplished citizens chosen on the basis of their outstanding reputations in business, the professions, public service and civic leadership.

Its goals, while predominantly geared toward the quality of life for military women, often impact on the service community at large.

DACOWITS is an advisory group, but its recommendations, often tackling policies which are prejudicial to the equal advancement of military women, have resulted in some sweeping legislative changes. Among them are admission of women into the military academies; eligibility of dependent parents of military personnel to use civilian medical facilities; authorization for women with minor children to serve on active duty; removal of promotion ceilings on women in the Armed Forces; and a clearly defined policy statement from the Secretary of Defense on sexual harassment.

These examples represent a few of the historical strides made by DACOWITS for the retirement of women in the military services, but they are indicative of the broad influence and top level political recognition they've earned.

DACOWITS, which has included prominent citizens like Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman Supreme Court Justice, has conferred with presidents, Congressmen, and secretaries and service chiefs of each branch of the Armed Forces.

The committee's ongoing examination of service objectives and quality of life for its service members is carried out through periodic meetings and visits to military installations. In achieving its purpose, the committee conveys to the public the need for and the role of women as an integral part of the armed forces.

It also encourages public acceptance of military service as a citizenship responsibility and as a career option for qualified women. DACOWITS provides a vital link between the Armed Forces and civilian communities.

Now in its fourth decade of service, DACOWITS has on its work calendar these specific goals, including:

- removal of combat restrictions for women in the Navy and Air Force with the repeal of Title 10, U.S.C., section 6015 and 8549;
- establishment of equal minimum admission standards to all service branches, excepting only those legitimate physical differences;
- ensuring all military women are properly uniformed to perform their specific duties;
- enhancing the role of women in the reserve forces

- and the National Guard;
  - availability of adequate housing, health care and child care for all service personnel;
  - monitoring and countering sexual harassment with appropriate education programs and reporting procedures for violations of regulations; and
  - focusing on the morale of military women and their perceived value to the military.
- Secretary Marshall's idea has turned into realistic opportunities for women in the military and has also touched the entire armed services community throughout the world.

Commanding General, FMFPac

On 10 November, another illustrious page of Marine Corps history will have been written and recorded as we celebrate our 209th Birthday. Marines throughout the Pacific can take great pride in their part in the writing of that history.

As we share this proud and happy occasion we must remember and reflect upon the fact that, during the past year, fellow Marines made the ultimate sacrifice in their unselfish effort to continue the pursuit of peace. What they did is expected of us all.

In turning the page to the 210th year of service to our nation, we see a bright future for our Corps. Our force modernization efforts, coupled with the quality of our Marines, will ensure the existence of a combat ready and fully capable Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

As we combine the traditions of the past with our goals of the future, we must rededicate ourselves to those virtues which have earned us the confidence of our countrymen and allies alike and have marked us a band of brothers, an unbeatable fighting team.

Happy Birthday, Marines

C.G. Cooper
Lieutenant General, USMC

Commanding General 1st Marine Brigade

Fellow Marines! As we celebrate our 209th Birthday, another glorious page has been added to our history. During the past year Marines, and sailors serving with the Corps, have endured hardships and danger, sacrificing self-interests for freedom and the call to duty, safeguarding the nation so every American can live in peace.

Millions have worn the Marine Corps uniform. Many have been wounded and killed in action against the enemies of our country. Generation after generation of Marines have shown courage, loyalty and love of the Corps. Our tradition of being a force in readiness, first to fight, is a legacy that our friends and enemies around the world have come to know and respect.

Our future looks brighter than ever before, as we move into our 210th year. Looking to the future we must rededicate ourselves to our Country, our Corps, our families and to each other — a commitment to preserve our Corps' superb reputation, that it continues to shine bright for the future generations of Marines to come.

November 10th is our day. A day for Marines, young and old, active and retired, and their families, to share in the celebration of our birthday. Marines throughout the world are celebrating this special occasion with parades, cake-cutting ceremonies, and many other birthday activities, showing off their pride and looking back over their accomplishments with satisfaction of a job well done.

I take great pride and satisfaction in knowing that we are all part of a strong combat ready 1st Marine Brigade.

Happy Birthday Leathernecks!

O.K. Steele
Brigadier General, USMC

Commanding Officer, H&SBn, FMFPac, Camp H.M. Smith

Another chapter in the history of the Corps will be completed on 10 November . . . the 209th Chapter.

It reads as many previous chapters have read . . . about successes, hardships, families, devotion and love of country.

Each of you who bear the title Marine is recorded somewhere in this chapter. Our individual and collective efforts become the pages of history . . . a history that reveals the professionalism in which we take such great pride.

As we begin Chapter 210, set your sights high. Keep faithful to those proven qualities which leave the indelible mark . . . the mark of a Marine.

Happy Birthday, and may God continue to bless each of you.

J. A. Poland
Colonel, USMC

Commanding Officer Marine Barracks, Hawaii

This year we Marines are indeed fortunate to find ourselves stationed worldwide in ever vigilant but peaceful roles on this 209th anniversary of the founding of our beloved Corps. We take a few solemn moments to remember friends and fellow Marines who have come before us or who have paid the supreme sacrifice in the defense of our country. We heartily thank them for our heritage and resolve that our part of the making of today's and tomorrow's history will add honor to our Corps' laurels.

The Marines of Marine Barracks Hawaii and their dedicated families as well as to Marines wherever duty calls, Happy 209th Birthday.

M.J. Dube
Colonel, USMC

Birthday

Commanding Officer

Today is a day for all Marines, young, old, active or retired, and their family members to share a justifiable pride in the accomplishments our Corps has made over the past 209 years. Throughout the world, Marines are celebrating this special birthday occasion with parades, cake-cutting ceremonies and Birthday activities. Not only is this present period of our history a time to be proud and joyous, but it should also be a point which to reflect on the special place in history our Corps holds and the debt we owe to the hundreds of thousands of men and women who have served before. This year, as we look back on our individual and collective accomplishments, we can all take great satisfaction in knowing we are a part of and have contributed to a strong, ready and unequalled Corps. Everyone's job has been important and be assured that our continued maximum effort is required as we look to the future.

The "Esprit de Corps" that has made us unique in military history continues to flourish, because the name "Marine" remains synonymous with success, valor and the ultimate in professionalism.

On this, as on every day, Marines and their families can be proud of what they represent to the country and the world. I wish you all a very Happy Birthday and much success for the future. Continue your outstanding performance and make our 210th year our most illustrious.

Sergeant Major

After 209 years of serving as our Nation's elite force in readiness, we are still a breed apart.

Gallantry and comradery in arms have enabled our small Corps to build a name for itself that is known throughout the world, still feared by our enemies, and respected by every military service in existence.

The name "Marine" was not easily won, and we in the Corps should not allow ourselves to forget how it was accomplished. To maintain the honor associated with our name, we must conduct ourselves in a manner befitting one who is part of such a tradition. As we celebrate this special occasion in memory of the many thousands who earned the title "Marine," the Corps today, as in the past, is the most famous military organization in the world.

As we all know, customs and traditions are passed on from one generation to the next. The "Esprit de Corps" of every Marine has been brought about by his or her ever present feeling of pride, not only in their unit, but in themselves. It is also with this feeling that we carry on the customs of formally cutting the Birthday Cake on the 10th of November each year.

As we move into our 210th year of service, Marines who have always been dedicated "Soldiers of the Sea," safeguard our nation throughout the world so that the United States and every American citizen may have peace and security and enjoy our freedom.

The "Esprit de Corps" that has made us unique, throughout military history continues to flourish because we are embodied with the motto "Semper Fidelis," thus ensuring that the name "Marine" remains synonymous with success and valor.

The Sunset Parade at Marine Barracks, Hawaii, will feature the precision of the barracks drill platoon as well as the musical talent of the marching band.

Sergeant Major, FMFPac

November 10th marks the 209th birthday of the United States Marine Corps. Whatever the need during more than two centuries, Marines have responded whenever the call came. We were ready to be the first to fight.

Since that November day in 1775 at Tun Tavern in Philadelphia, well over three million Americans have worn the Marine uniform. "From the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli," thousands have been wounded and killed in actions against the foes of our country; and each generation has shown that courage, loyalty and sacrifice were indeed, very special qualities of Marines. Because of them and what they did, we have today a certain legacy, a certain tradition, and an eternal spirit that friends and foes alike around the globe have come to know well. As we gather once again to observe the anniversary of the founding of our Corps, we can, unquestionably, take pride in our past. May those generations of Marines who gather after us be able to do the same — because we, on our watch, were ready for today.

To all Marines, Family and Friends, Emma and I wish you a Happy Birthday.

L.M. Bradley
Sergeant Major, USMC

Sergeant Major 1st Marine Brigade

My best wishes to all Marines and their families everywhere on this 209th birthday of our Corps.

Our mission remains fixed; it is to win wars. We are the ones trained to seek out, close with, and destroy the enemy; and we will continue for the next 209 years.

Only with a Corps of elite, dedicated Marines can we continue to be the finest military organization on this earth. Long live our Corps!

Sergeant Major Camp H.M. Smith, Hawaii

As we gather to celebrate the 209th Birthday of our Corps, it is appropriate that we as Marines take a moment to reflect on the accomplishments of Marines past and present. From the early days of the Colonial Marine Corps to the present, Marines have always distinguished themselves by being the epitome of soldierly virtue.

As we move into the "Golden Era" of our Corps' history, we must rededicate ourselves to those principles which have been the mainstay of our past successes. We must maintain our commitment to honor, valor and fidelity in order to preserve our Corps' reputation and ensure that the candle of leadership is kept burning brightly for future generations of Marines.

With this thought in mind, I send best wishes to all Marines and their families on this 209th anniversary of our Corps.

E. T. Alvarado
Sergeant Major, USMC

Sergeant Major Marine Barracks, Hawaii

As we pause from our regular duties this November 10th to celebrate our 209th Birthday, let us remember those who have gone before us and who have given us their legacy.

Let us also remember all of the great traditions that have been handed down, that have given us the name which is synonymous with all that is great: Marine.

To each Marine, their wives and families, I extend to you all my very best wishes for a Happy Birthday.

Semper Fi,
A. R. Aguilar
Sergeant Major, USMC

The sergeant's legacy is told

EDITOR'S NOTE: This poem, also published in Leatherneck, was brought to the Hawaii Marine staff by GySgt. Manuel Raices from the avionics section of H&MS-24. He received it from the author, Joseph M. McNally, who was a Marine in the '50s, after he enlisted McNally's son John. Raices was a recruiter in Jersey City, N.J.

After leaving active duty, Joe McNally became the Director of Admissions at William Patterson College in New Jersey. The old saying "Once a Marine, always a Marine" is reinforced by Joe's note to the "Gunny":

"Thank you for your personal interest when my son John became one of your recruits."

Semper Fi,
Joe McNally

The Sergeant
by Joseph M. McNally
March 1956

A handful of stragglers was all that was left
From the last rear-guard platoon.
And they beat their way through the underbrush
Beneath the cannons' boom.
A reinforced enemy had attacked this night
Our men put up a magnificent fight,
But the orders came down — "Back to high ground,"
Or stay and meet your doom.

The young lieutenant had said to the old-time Surge,
"Sergeant, I'm placing you in charge.
Take your men and bring up the rear and see that the enemy does not get too near."
The Sergeant saluted. His salute was keen
For he had been many years a U.S. Marine.
So he placed his men in the underbrush while the main group went back before the enemy charged.

First the enemy cannon roared.
Then out of the hills the enemy poured.
The enemy crept forward. The night was still.
The Sergeant thought of Bunker Hill —
Don't open fire 'til they're down in the valley.
Then give 'em hell and don't let them rally."
The word was passed through the underbrush.
A handful of men watched the enemy horde.

The midnight stillness grew and grew,
The enemy group grew larger too,
As they crept up the valley toward the underbrush greens,

They were met by a handful of fighting Marines.
"Open fire," the Sergeant's weapon let loose —
The enemy thought all hell had broke loose.
Their ranks were broken — their attack was through.

The Sarge looked around at his weary men.
He knew the enemy would come forward again.
"All right you guys, get off your rear.
Leave me some ammo and then pack your gear.
You're going back to the rest of the bunch.
I'll join you later. Save me some lunch."
And he sent them back with a salute and a grin.

For the end of this story, we'll have to wait
Until we reach the pearly gate
And hope that the Commandant will permit us too
To pass through the gate in our Marine dress blue.
For early that morning the Sarge was overrun
And he passed through the gate with a
"Job — Well Done"

And if the Army and the Navy ever look on heaven's scenes They'll see the Sarge in that special part of heaven reserved for fighting Marines.

Memorial addition

May of 1975.
Symbols mark each name. A cross indicates a person is still missing in action (the cross is not used as a religious symbol). A diamond next to a name indicates that person was killed in action. Crosses can be converted to a diamond if and when those listed as missing are confirmed dead. A circle will be inscribed around the cross for any individual reported missing who may return alive.

At the entrance to the memorial stands a life-size bronze statue depicting three American fighting men. Jan Scruggs, founder and president of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, says the statue, sculpted by Frederick Hart, is "very humanistic and reflective of the young fighting men who served in Vietnam."

Scruggs adds, "The three men have very intense expressions on their faces. They are looking directly at the memorial wall. They look courageous, but vulnerable."

Also at the entrance to the memorial is a 50 foot bronze flag staff containing the five service emblems.

Since the memorial has become one of the most popular tourist sites in the nation's capital, new lighting has been installed. Scruggs says that installation of the lighting will provide not only for improved safety and security, but will also "make the memorial come alive at night as well as better accommodate the large number of visitors who come to the site almost 24 hours a day."

The new lighting illuminates the memorial walls as well as the flag and sculpture.

Veterans Day activities

The Hawaii State Veterans Day Committee will present the following activities on Veterans Day, Sunday.

At 9 a.m. a parade from the Ewa end of Ala Moana Park to Ft. DeRussey will travel along Ala Moana Blvd. At 11 a.m. there will be a Massing of the Colors at the National Cemetery, Puuowaina, to be held at the Dedicatory Stone at the lower end of the Courts of the Missing.

Program is scheduled to be held at the Cannon Club at Fort Ruger beginning with no host cocktails at 5 p.m. Tickets are available by calling Gary Johnson, chairman, at 732-0791 or 677-3531.

Girl Scout news

Girl Scouting is alive and well at Kanoho Bay.

The station is home to 13 Girl Scout Troops at the Daisy, Brownie and Junior levels, serving girls in grades K through 6. There are approximately 180 girls and over 30 adults involved in the program, who meet in leaders' homes, at Dependent Recreation and at the new Scout Hut.

Plans are being formulated for many activities, including overnights, camping trips, service activities, a Girl Scout Olympics and participation in the Girl Scout Parade in March.

Girl Scouting here is looking for more members, and the only limitation is leadership. For parents of Junior Girl Scouts not yet placed in troops, a meeting will be held Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. at the Scout Hut, the old Fireside Pizza.

There are girls on waiting lists for all grade levels — Daisies (K), Brownies (1-3), Juniors (4-6), Cadettes (7-9) and Seniors (10-12). If you would like to help bring learning and the adventure of Girl Scouting to these girls, call Susan Braaten at 254-5613 or Girl Scout Council of the Pacific at 845-9911.

You don't have to be a parent. Anyone who believes in the program's values can help. The rewards are great.

Toys for Tots

Marines from 4th Force Reconnaissance Company in Honolulu have started this year's Toys for Tots drive to collect thousands of toys to bring a happier Christmas to underprivileged children in Hawaii.

Individuals wanting to donate toys or gifts should contact HN2 Bob Easton from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 471-0202/0203.

A FLOCK OF SEAGULLS

Marine expresses birthday greeting

We have come a long way
And we are still growing strong;
It's been 209 years,
Now, that seems awfully long.

But we must not stop now,
But continue to endure,
Protecting our country is a way of life,
And for this there is no cure.

Now, I've talked to many Marines
During my time in,
And they say "You must not break!"
But I say don't even bend.

Though we go through ups and downs,
Through hard times and through curves,
Remember Semper Parati Do or die!
And hang on to your nerves.

Many years long ago
Before we joined this organization,
We saw our own brothers come and go
To protect this superior nation.

So don't stop now, I ask, Marines
Continue to set the pace
Until this Earth is no more
For the sake of the human race

Don't stop being Marines
Is the specific question I ask
Do your best and complete your tour
Is all that's your task

Now, before I close this message
I'd like to ask that you please all stand
As I propose this toast
To all Marines throughout the land

Happy Birthday Marines
It only comes once a year
So pick up your glass and look to your comrade
And toast a birthday cheer!

And for those unable to make it here
Or for any birthday throughout our Corps
Let's not forget, they're one of us too
So let's toast and cheer once more

I say may God be with you
And always on your side
And take you pleasantly in life
As you struggle to survive

by Cpl. Eugene Haynesworth, H&MS-24

Toy alert

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service is helping Fisher-Price Toys alert parents about a safety problem with an activity bar toy for cribs.

Fisher-Price, in cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, issued the safety alert about its No. 155 Play Gym. In late March the company received a report that a one-year-old child died when a hooded sweater became entangled on a Play Gym set. In May 1980, a previous death was reported due to a child's clothing getting caught on a set.

In 1981, Fisher-Price began labeling the crib toy to warn parents to remove the toy from the crib when the child is able to push up on its hands and knees or reached five months of age.

AAFES Quality Assurance technicians say the No. 199 Play Gym, which Fisher-Price began marketing in March, is similar in design to the No. 155 Play Gym. The No. 199 Play Gym carries the same warning. Parents should be aware of the unlabeled No. 155 Play Gyms that may still be in use.

The CPSC and Fisher-Price also advise parents against putting children in cribs while the infants are wearing hooded or loose-fitting garments that could become entangled around a child's neck.

Marine models

"Hawaii's Most Watchable Marine" contest will be held during the Regime Fashion Show in front of the Marine Corps Exchange, here, at 11 a.m. Friday.

The contest will be open to Marines from the Air Station, with the overall winner receiving about $1,000 in gifts and prizes. Entrants will be judged on stage presence, grooming, sex appeal, physical appearance and personality.

There will also be two Audience Choice Awards — Mr. Good Legs and Mr. Super Smile. The winners will each receive $300 in gifts and prizes.

Also appearing during the fashion show will be the Governor's Official Beauty Queen Models. After the show, they will be available for a photo session.

For more information about the fashion show or the contest call Marcia Forsythe at 373-9603.

Visiting the Philippines

A large number of Marines are visiting the Republic of the Philippines while on leave with insufficient funds, without a round-trip airline ticket and without proper military attire, according to a recent FMFPac message.

Marines arriving in the Philippines have been relying totally on MAC space available flights for their return trip to their original destination.

Often personnel must wait several weeks for flights, and as a result, they are requesting leave extensions the day before, the day of, or the day after their leave expires.

Since January 1984, the Subic Bay chapter of the Navy Relief Society has given financial assistance to 56 Marines on leave in the Philippines. Marines must be issued stragglers orders back to their commands, and a confirmed flight must be arranged. Normal processing time is two weeks.

Requests to the Philippines should be screened to ensure that Marines have sufficient funds, a return trip airline ticket and a complete military uniform.

MSG class

A critical requirement exists for male Marine sergeants or below, for the Marine Security Guard class starting Jan. 8.

Nominations must be submitted by Nov. 23 to CMC. Marines with a rotation date earlier than December must indicate that they will extend their RTD to sometime during December. The RTD will not be waived more than 30 days.

Marines must be qualified according to MCO 1306.21, have at least two years on station, and be a volunteer. There are no MOS restrictions.

Island bus schedule

Marines requiring transportation on and off the Air Station have an economical mode of travel.

Established by the Air Station's commanding officer, the liberty bus is designed to provide free transportation for active duty personnel to and from Waikiki.

The liberty bus schedule is as follows:

Bus stop	Times
Joint Reception Center	6 p.m.	8 p.m.	11 p.m.	1 a.m.

By air, land and sea Operation Bell Volcano tests Marines' mettle

by Cpl. Pat Lewandowski

PACIFIC MISSILE RANGE FACILITY, Barking Sands, Kauai, Oct. 31 — The 37th Marine Amphibious Unit conducted a successful amphibious and heliborne landing here last week.

Operation Bell Volcano, a predeployment training exercise, involved more than 3,000 Marines and sailors who comprise Battalion Landing Team 2/3, Marine Medium Helicopter (composite) Squadron-262 and MAU Service Support Group-37. In addition to the MAU, two aircraft carrier task forces were also in the waters off Kauai, launching air strikes against a simulated enemy known as the Indoaryan People's Army.

The People's Army occupied the island with two battalions, approximately 1,600 men. They were armed with various weapons, including mortars, anti-aircraft guns, and portable anti-air missiles. Their air force was made up of several types of aircraft capable of sustained combat for only a few days.

As the Wednesday morning attack started, AV-8C Harriers from HMH-262 bombed the beach area, softening the enemy position. Once the enemy was pinned down, CH-46 Sea Knight and CH-53 Sea Stallion helicopters came in to land the MAU Marines. Marine Cobras patrolled the flanks of the air assault, protecting it from enemy attack.

Marines from Companies G and F, 2nd Bn., 3d Marines, formed a perimeter defense near LZ Flamingo, located on a small road near the beach. They waited for the arrival of reserve forces by amphibious assault, which had been delayed because of high surf conditions. The pounding waves subsided, allowing the amphibious elements to come ashore. Flanked by TOW (Tube launched, Optically tracked, Wire guided missile) crews and tanks, tracked landing vehicles carried the remaining combat units ashore.

With the landing area secure, the Marines moved up to their primary objectives.

Elements of "G" and Weapons Companies, 2/3, advanced on the enemy forces with Dragon anti-tank weapons and M-60 machine guns protecting their flanks. The overwhelmed enemy created a smoke screen and retreated, only to come roaring back in armored personnel carriers which the Dragon platoon deftly destroyed.

As the Marines approached a stream crossing several kilometers from the objective, they came under simulated artillery fire. Weapons Co. sustained 40 percent casualties during the barrage. Since evacuation by air was impossible due to the close proximity of the enemy, ground vehicles transported the injured back to the beach and waiting landing craft.

Although the hard-charging Marines were pinned down for a time, they did not falter. Platoon commanders quickly reorganized and planned the next offensive. Under dense vegetation, they made their way across the stream, poking holes in the enemy's lines with small arms fire and mortars.

During the battle at the stream, Marine and Navy attack aircraft took the fight to the enemy with 500 pound bombs and air-to-ground rockets, knocking out several air defense sites and the last remaining enemy armor. The persistent air attacks caused the Indoaryan forces to regroup behind the first objective, the airfield command and control center. Marine units took the site and closed in on the final objective.

The command center taken, Marines from G and F Companies came on line to assault the last enemy stronghold on the airfield, six kilometers from the initial landing. The Indoaryan Army had been using a surface-to-surface missile site to interrupt communication and sea traffic on the island. With little enemy resistance, the Marines destroyed the site sending the enemy into the hills beyond.

As nightfall approached, 2/3 again reorganized and tightened their perimeter expecting a fierce night attack. The enemy counter-attack never materialized, but Indoaryan forces were active in the hills above the airfield, firing mortars into the Marine position below. A search and destroy mission was ordered, and Golf Co. was sent out to destroy the position making a 12-mile march in the dark.

Without making a sound or using light, they stalked the enemy. With surprise on their side, they captured the position high atop a terrorist training camp located on a hill. Stranded enemy units fled to other hills only to be picked up by members of Echo Co., who had attacked Kakelu Ridge close to the other position.

As dawn broke, 2/3 prepared to return to their ships waiting offshore. The tactical withdrawal went smoothly as the Marines were airlifted back to the assault ship. Company F slowly withdrew from its defensive position around the embarkation area protecting the rear of the Marine withdrawal.

"Operation Bell Volcano was the final test of the landing plan before the 37th MAU departs for the Western Pacific," said Capt. Raymond Held, intelligence officer, 1st Marine Brigade. "There were valuable lessons learned out here as the MAU tried to communicate, coordinate and support itself under combat conditions."

"Because it was a raid operation, the 37th MAU did not deploy combat support elements," he continued. "The battalion carried what they needed to sustain the fight for two days, allowing themselves to train as realistically as possible. This type of exercise demonstrates the rewards of constant training," concluded Held.

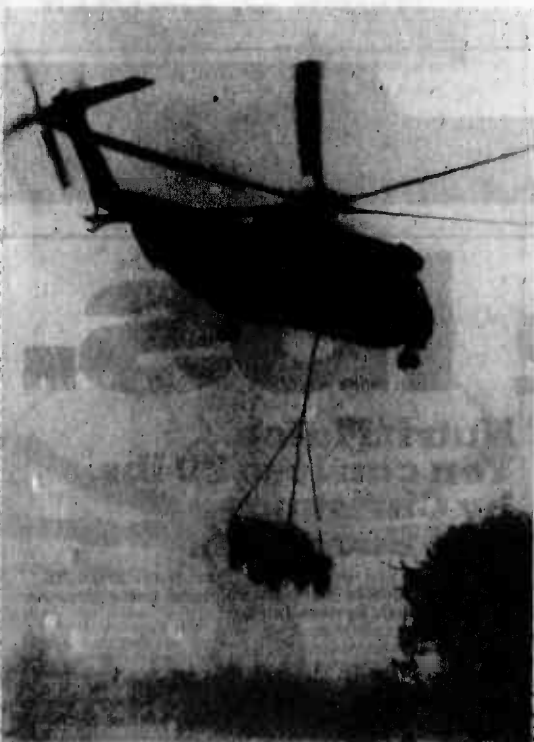

An M60A1 tank crew from BLT 2/3 keep a watchful eye on the beach during the amphibious assault phase of Operation Bell Volcano. The Pacific Missile Range Facility at Barking Sands provided the 37th MAU with an ideal training area to test the MAU landing plan last week before departing for a Western Pacific deployment.

Marines from E Co., 2nd Bn., 3d Marines, exit an amphibious assault vehicle to set up a hasty perimeter defense.

A CH-53 Sea Stallion helicopter lifts a gamma-goat out of LZ Flamingo during a tactical withdrawal. HMM-262 provided heavy lift and attack support for BLT 2/3.

Marines from the 3d Forward Area Air Defense Battery, fire a simulated Stinger anti-aircraft missile at an approaching Marine aircraft during Operation Bell Volcano. The 3d FAAD joined the enemy forces last week on Kauai to give Marine pilots an opportunity to practice evasive maneuvers.

Marine bball teams dominate

by SSgt. Greg Berry

The Hawaii Marine men's and women's varsity basketball teams posted back-to-back victories for a treat Halloween night at the Station Gym.

The women hosted Army Field Station, Kunia, and battled them to a 63-42 score to boost the Marine team's record to 3-3 for the season.

Jamie Burns keeps a hand on things as he blocks a shot by Hawaii Marines' Rudy Butler.

Weekend Sports

The home team didn't take any flack from Kunia, as the Hawaii Marines scored first on a penalty shot by Jonna Vaden. Kunia managed to tie the score twice early in the first quarter, but once the Marines started rolling nothing seemed to slow them down.

Tammy Cullison was the first Hawaii Marine to score from the court. She led the team in the first half with 13 points, followed by Jo Ann Rofulowitz with 11 points, and Vaden with 9.

Kunia's Velma Luke led the scoring for her team with 10 points in the first half and a total of 14 for the game.

In the second half the Hawaii Marines slowed their pace, with Cullison, who fouled out of the game, not scoring, and Vaden adding 6 points. But Rofulowitz snapped the net for 12 more to lead the team with 23 points total.

"If I had a game ball, I'd give it to her," said Coach Sam Davis about Rofulowitz. "This was her best game both defensively and offensively. The team as a whole is pulling together, and that helps."

Davis explained that the team is getting ready for the WestPac tournament in January, and that they're training hard for the chance to represent Hawaii at the All-Marine tournament.

The Hawaii Marine men followed the women's example and blasted Fort Shafter, 110-67. The lopsided victory pulled the team's season record to an even 4. The following night, they bombed Schofield 96-67 to move into the plus column, and capped a three-game winning streak Monday night with a 101-90 victory against Tripler.

The women also boosted their season record Monday night to 4-3, with a 47-43 squeaker against Hawaii Loa.

First playoff game becomes real cliff hanger

by SSgt. Dave Smith

Intramural flag football play-off action pitted two rivals, H&HS and SOMS, in a low-scoring defensive game which was as exciting as any match-up between Dallas and Washington.

The only points SOMS put on the scoreboard in the first half were handed to them when the H&HS offensive line allowed a safety. But the two points under the visitor's score were quickly topped when Travis Gillespie ended a 60-yard scoring drive with a 28-yard run into the end zone. John Millen proved his kicking accuracy with the extra point.

As the half-time whistle blew, the score was H&HS, 7 — SOMS, 2. Coming out strong in the second half, SOMS was quick to demonstrate their winning intentions with a smooth offensive drive putting their score at 8; the extra point was blocked by Larry Jones.

Both defensive lines stiffened as possessions routinely changed hands and the clock ticked off valuable seconds. The SOMS punting unit, led by a long-kicking Michael Blyden, kept H&HS from taking over the ball with any semblance of good field position.

The H&HS team began to sweat — one minute remained and their hurry-up offense would meet the supreme test.

After several unsuccessful plays, H&HS quarterback, Joe Lovan, hit Mark Milligan with an 18-yard pass for a much-needed first down. Another quick pass hit Jim Hewey at the 36-yard line; and then it was Hewey again — this time for an 18-yard gain to the 18 yard line. Lovan made a quick dash to the 16, only to realize that the clock was still running and there was time for only one more play.

The decision was made, and with the crowds on either side of the field on their feet screaming for defense, touchdown and a few other things, the H&HS field goal kicker ran onto the field.

The weight of the entire squadron was on Millen's shoulders as he hurriedly took his position a few steps behind the offensive line. A miss would mean no more championship play.

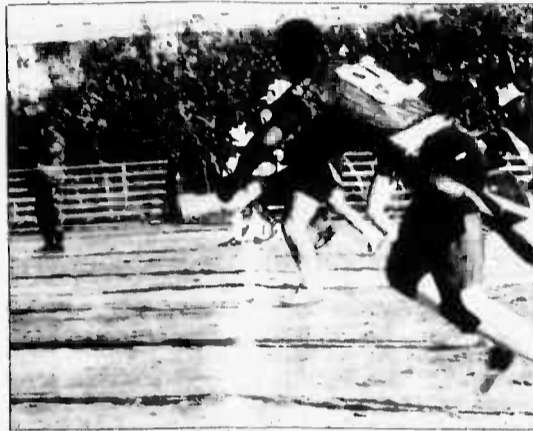

The snap was made, the ball was placed, and Millen began his approach. A clean toe-to-football connection was made and the pigskin sailed squarely between the uprights with only one second remaining on the clock. H&HS won 10 to 8 in the first play-off game; and SOMS... well, there's always next year.

A third down play goes bad as SOMS quarterback, Antonio Cisneros, is run out of bounds.

Ground was given up grudgingly by linemen in the rivalrous game between SOMS and H&HS.

H&HS's John Millen puts his foot into a kick-off during his team's winning playoff game with SOMS.

Flag Football

The Intramural Flag Football Championship Game will be tomorrow at 1:15 p.m. at Pop Warner Field. Spectators are urged to support their favorite team.

Physical fitness has always been a must in the Corps; and if you're like most Marines today, noon is short on food and heavy on sweat.

As joggers lace up their waffle-soled running shoes and head for the pavement, racquetballers and tennis buffs slip on their sweatbands and trot to their respective courts, and weightlifters search for mirrors; those who enjoy a bit more contact during their mid-day sweat sessions are starting to form below the hoops in the gym.

The basketball fanatics are preparing for battle.

As soon as 10 combatants assemble, free throws are shot to determine teams, and usually shirts play skins. The first offensive possession is decided by the scientific "do or die" method — one man moves out 25-30 feet and launches a mortar shot. If he hits, his team gets the ball.

To keep playing, a team must keep winning. Consequently, an all out attack is required by every team member during the game. If 10 or 15 other ballplayers are waiting to play, the losers may never get back on the court before lunch hour is over. Noontime basketball action, on the air station's NBA, is hardly a place for non-hackers, literally. Players serve as their own referees and "murder" is the only move strictly forbidden. Remember, if you lose you're off the court. There is only one objective — to WIN!

Some cardinal rules in the NBA are: never let an opposing team member go in for an uncontested lay-up if you have the chance of at least blocking his vision with your forearm or fingers; never let a spring-legged jumper return to the court on his feet; and never show cowardice by refusing to climb over the backs of your opponents to get a rebound.

The unwritten rules of NBA do not address offensive fouls so you should never worry about them or let them affect your method of play. Knowing that there is a knee, forearm or elbow waiting for you when you drive, coupled with the fact that you cannot foul out of a game, your best bet is to lower your shoulder and play Earl Campbell.

Everyone who plays NBA usually has at least one basic move upon which they rely to warrant the respected NBA title "Hot Dog." Some can palm the ball; others can dunk; some are experts of the behind-the-back or through-the-legs dribble; and still others own one part of the court from which they can't miss.

Arguments are frequent and, at times, boisterous. The language used to plead a case is sometimes strong enough to part your hair. But no matter how vicious NBA is, when the survivors head for the showers, hard feelings are forgotten and friends are still friends. After all, walking unassisted out of the gym after NBA is a victory in itself.

Remember... it's heat for the first 24 hours, followed by ice packs.

See you at the gym!
