Welcome home 1/3!

"Welcome Home" banners, cookies, leis and a limousine were some of the props used by wives and friends who greeted about 200 Marines from 1st Bn, 3d Marines, Sept. 3 at Platt Field.

The Marines deployed for six months to Okinawa, Japan as part of the Unit Deployment Program. A chauffeur (l.) opens his limousine's door for Cpl. Lon Dykes and his wife, Vanessa. (Above) A warm embrace.

Change of command

Adm Hays to head Pacific Command

by SSgt. J.C. Haynes USPACOM, Camp H.M. Smith — Adm. Ronald J. Hays will relieve Adm. William J. Crowe, Jr., as Commander in Chief, U.S. Pacific Command in ceremonies to be held Wednesday at 5 p.m. at Hickam's Parade Mall.

The honored guest will be Gen. John W. Vessey, Jr., Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

While the ceremony is not open to the general public, military personnel, DoD civilian employees, their families and guests are welcome to attend. In the event of inclement weather, only invited guests will be able to attend a brief ceremony in the Hickam Officers Open Mess due to space limitations.

Parking will be available in Lot A, of the Wing Headquarters building. Attendees are requested to be seated in bleachers at the Parade Mall no later than 4:45 p.m. There will be signs to designate the parking and seating areas.

Military attendees are encouraged to wear the following uniforms: Army, light green short sleeve shirt with garrison cap; Navy, summer white, ("A" for women); Marine Corps — Summer Service C; and Air Force, light blue short sleeve shirt with epaulets.

Adm. Crowe, who has served as Commander in Chief of the U.S. Pacific Command since July 1, 1983, has been confirmed by the U.S. Senate to become the 11th Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, D.C.

Adm. Hays, who is a naval aviator, becomes the 13th naval officer to hold the position of USCINCPAC. As the senior U.S. military commander in the Pacific and Indian Ocean area, he will head the largest of the unified commands and direct Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force operations across 108 million miles.

During his 35 years of service, Adm. Hays has seen duty all over the world. His key assignments include commanding officer of Attack Squadron-85; commander of the U.S. Naval Station, Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico; commander, Carrier Group-4; deputy commander and Chief of Staff to the CINC, Atlantic Fleet; and Commander in Chief, U.S. Naval Forces, Europe and U.S. Commander, Eastern Atlantic.

Admiral Hays has a BS in Naval Science from the U.S. Naval Academy.

His personal awards include the Distinguished Service Medal, with three gold stars; Silver Star Medal, with two gold stars; Legion of Merit; Distinguished Flying Cross, with a silver and gold star; and Bronze Star Medal, with Combat "V".

Admiral Ronald J. Hays.

Admiral William J. Crowe Jr.

SecDef addresses military retirement

"In the past few months, there has been considerable speculation about potential changes to the military retirement system. The speculation, often well intentioned but ill-informed, has been based on criticism from both the public and private sectors about the perceived generosity of the system.

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff and I have steadfastly maintained that any recommendation for change must take account of — first, the unique, dangerous, and vital contribution to the safety of all of us that is made by our servicemen and women; and the effect on combat readiness of tampering with the retirement system. Concurrently we must honor the absolute commitments that have been made to retirees and those currently serving. We remain committed to these principles.

"Notwithstanding our opposition, the Congress, in its recent action on the pending Defense Authorization Bill, has mandated a reduction of $2.9 billion to the Military Retirement Fund. At the same time, the Congress has directed the Department of Defense to submit options to achieve this mandated reduction. Nonetheless, we will continue to insist that whatever changes the Congress finally makes must not adversely affect the combat readiness of our forces, or violate our firm pledges.

"I want to emphasize to you again, in the strongest terms, that the dedicated men and women now serving, and those who have retired before them, will be fully protected in any options we are required to submit to the Congress. Our proposals will affect future entrants only. You can be assured that our efforts on this issue will not falter."

FMFPac anniversary

Corps' largest field command is 41

by Sgt. Chuck Jenks

Camp H.M. Smith — On Sept. 17, the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, the most powerful and largest field command in the Corps, will celebrate its 41st anniversary.

The headquarters, based at Camp H.M. Smith, overlooks Leeward Oahu in a panoramic sweep from Diamond Head to Ewa Beach, and is named in honor of LtGen. Holland M. (Howlin Mad) Smith, the pioneer of modern amphibious warfare techniques and first commanding general of FMFPac.

Originally created in 1933, the FMF became an integral part of the fleet as a permanent amphibious expeditionary force. During its early years, the FMF underwent structural reorganizations until Sept. 17, 1944, when it was officially designated Headquarters, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, and was based at Camp Catlin, Oahu, Territory of Hawaii.

At that time, LtGen. Smith, during the most intense fighting in World War II, effectively led six Marine divisions, five aircraft wings and Service Command, FMFPac, to victory against the Japanese.

Five years after World War II, the headquarters moved from Camp Catlin to Pearl Harbor, where in the early 1950s, command decisions were made as Marines fought against the North Koreans. In September 1952, 30,000 Marines of the 1st Marine Division and 1st MAF began their landing on Inchon, Korea.

Following the Korean War, the Corps' strength in the Pacific diminished and the FMF headquarters moved to its present location in the Koolau Mountains of Oahu, where the Aiea Heights Naval Hospital layed dormant since the end of World War II.

From 1954 to 1964 various FMFPac units participated in the military advisory programs in Southeast Asia. In March 1965, the 9th Expeditionary Brigade went ashore at Danang, Vietnam.

Today, LtGen. DWayne Gray commands FMFPac which is comprised of more than 80,000 Marines and whose area of responsibility covers half the earth's surface.

FMFPac is made up of the 1st and 3d MAFs — 3d Marine Division, 1st MAF and 3d FSSG on Okinawa; the 1st Marine Division, with its supporting units at Camp Pendleton and Twentynine Palms; the 3d MAF at El Toro, Tustin and Yuma; and the 1st MAB based at MCAS Kaneohe Bay.

Understanding what MPS is all about

Editor's Note: On Aug. 30, the Air Station's largest tenant command was renamed the 1st Marine Amphibious Brigade, and assumed the mission of planning for operations in conjunction with the Maritime Prepositioning Ships program and the MPS-3 squadron. The following article, written by LtCol. John S. Lowery of MCDEC Quantico, appeared in the November 1984 issue of Marines magazine. While a number of milestones have been reached since the article first appeared, it does provide a good overview of the MPS program. Portions of the article are being reprinted to help local Marines, sailors and their families to understand the Brigade's new MPS mission. This is the first in a series of three articles.

On order of the National Command Authorities, an MPS squadron, which consists of four to five specially configured, Navy-commanded merchant vessels, moves rapidly from a forward location to a port or beach in or near the objective area.

The ships are loaded with combat equipment and supplies required for a potent, combined arms Marine brigade. Approximately 16,500 Marines and sailors of the brigade and its Navy Support Element move by Military Airlift Command aircraft to an airfield close to the port or beach.

The brigade's tactical aircraft, except those aboard MPS ships, flight-ferry to the same or nearby airfields. The equipment and supplies aboard the ships are then quickly offloaded, depreserved and transferred to the troops.

The timetable calls for the brigade to be combat-capable and ready to move on designated objectives within five days — less in some cases — after the MPS squadron arrives in the expeditionary area. If required, the brigade can then fight for up to 30 days without resupply.

To execute an MPS operation, the fleet commander forms a naval task force. He assigns to the task force commander at least an MPS squadron, Marine brigade and Navy support element. The fleet commander may also assign other ships to the task force, such as escort vessels, an aviation logistics support ship or a hospital ship.

Once deployed, the brigade will remain under the operational control of the naval task force, at least until it is combat capable. Thereafter, it may change control to another commander for operations ashore.

There will be three MPS squadrons which will be administratively assigned to the Military Sealift Command and will be under the operational command of a fleet commander.

The ships will be under long-term charter to MSC and manned by civilian crews. They will have some unique features not commonly found on commercial ships, but which are required for MPS operations.

Spaces aboard the ships will be humidity controlled for the preservation of equipment and supplies. The ships will have the capability to offload themselves in adverse weather conditions, either at pier-side in three days, or from "in the stream" across a beach in five days.

The three MPS squadrons will be based to make the most of their global response capabilities. One squadron is to be in the Eastern Atlantic; another will replace the less-capable Near-Term Prepositioning Ships in the Indian Ocean; and the third squadron will be in the Western Pacific. This plan provides a global reach capability.

The MPS brigade is composed of the same four basic elements as any other Marine brigade: Command, Ground Combat, Air Combat and Combat Service Support Elements. It is, however, larger and has more firepower than most Marine brigades.

The command element, with 770 Marines and sailors, provides the command, control and coordination capability over the other three elements and interfaces with external agencies. The command element of an MPS brigade consists of an H&S Company, plus detachments from a communication battalion, radio battalion, counter intelligence, headquarters battalion, force reconnaissance and civil affairs.

The ground combat firepower and mobility of the MPS brigade is provided by the 6,044-man ground combat element. In addition to an infantry regiment of three full battalions, the GCE has a tank battalion with 53 tanks. Its two artillery battalions contain 36 cannons; 24, 155mm howitzer towed; six, 155mm howitzer self-propelled; and six, eight-inch howitzer. Additionally, the GCE has 96 TOW heavy antitank weapons and 109 LVT-7 assault amphibian vehicles.

MPS-3 basing slated

The four ships to be used by the 1st MAB in its new role as the MPS-3 Brigade will be operationally based at Guam and Tinian.

House Representative Ben Blaz, of Guam, made that announcement recently at a press conference in Washington, D.C.

The MPS-3 squadron will consist of the maritime prepositioning ships PFC DeWayne Williams, Cpl. William Button, 1stLt. Baldomero Lopez, and 1stLt. Jack Lummus. Current plans call for the four ships to deploy sometime during the latter half of 1986.

4th Recon Co 'toughens up' in Utah

by Sgt. Tim Shearer

Camp Williams, Utah — When the two elements of 4th Force Reconnaissance Company, 4th Marine Division, joined for a two-week exercise, recently, the mountains here became a training area for Marines who deal in danger, and live for excitement.

It was the first time Reserve Marines from the company's headquarters, located in Honolulu, Hawaii, and their detachment, home based in Reno, Nev., came together for training.

Force reconnaissance companies slip, drop or slide behind enemy lines, and gather information for the Marine Amphibious Force. They operate with five-man teams, and their training must prepare them for the physical, as well as professional rigors they face.

During the first week, their training was used to emphasize individual skills. Machine guns, tear gas and parachutes were used as they went through a grueling 40-hour program with 14 stations and miles of wasteland to cover.

"A recon man has to know how to deal with the stress and physical punishment of long hours," said Maj. Robert Borek, company commander. "In short, we wanted to toughen them up and wear them out."

When the main body moved from Hawaii to Utah, those who were jump qualified parachuted in. With the help of Utah Army National Guard aircraft and crews, parachute operations continued through the exercise.

Drops were made during the first week into a designated drop zone to refresh procedures that would be used in a practical exercise the following week.

"By repeating safety procedures over and over, it becomes second nature," said SSgt. John Underhill, a parachute rigger with the Honolulu Inspector-Instructor staff. "You don't want people unfamiliar with the equipment jumping into combat."

Along with parachuting, the Marines received classes on rappelling, rock climbing and helicopter insertion, all used by recon to get into the area where they operate.

"Being with a unit like this is exciting; there's always something new and adventurous to do," said LCpl. Felix Aenonu after rappelling from a tower. "But, it isn't done to have fun. Knowing how to do it right will save us in combat."

To stimulate the fatigue and pressure recon experiences during a war, the company's staff designed the 40-hour training package. They were divided into five-man teams and moved through an area with stations set up to teach individual recon skills.

"Our goal during the 40 hours was to get basic training out of the way so we could concentrate on the practical exercise during the second week," said Borek. "The intense progression of classes doesn't allow time for rest, they have to stay alert and active, much like in combat."

Among the classes they received were rappelling, ambush site selection, Soviet weapons familiarization, gas chamber and how to do reconnaissance reports.

To get the most out of their stay, members of the company coordinated closely with the soldiers stationed at Camp Williams, a training base for the National Guard. One class, provided by the Army staff, was on Soviet and NATO weapons.

MSgt. Bruce DeYoung, a former Marine infantryman now with the Army's 19th Special Forces, explained the importance of knowing your enemy's as well as your allies' weapons.

"If you're operating behind enemy lines, which you will be doing as a reconnaissance unit, you need to stay as inconspicuous as possible," he said. "The sound of your weapons will give away your position in an ambush. If you use foreign weapons training session, many of the classes were held at night. In a pitch black tunnel, the voice of GySgt. David Kalama brought the weary Marines to life.

"It was 1965 in the Republic of Vietnam... a group of Marines were nestled into a so-called safe area of Da Nang... but the VC started hitting... too many Marines lost their lives learning about jungle ambushes the hard way."

Kalama, a platoon sergeant with the company, and a Vietnam veteran, taught the Marines about one of the keys to survival in the reconnaissance business — how to spring, and even more important, how to avoid ambushes.

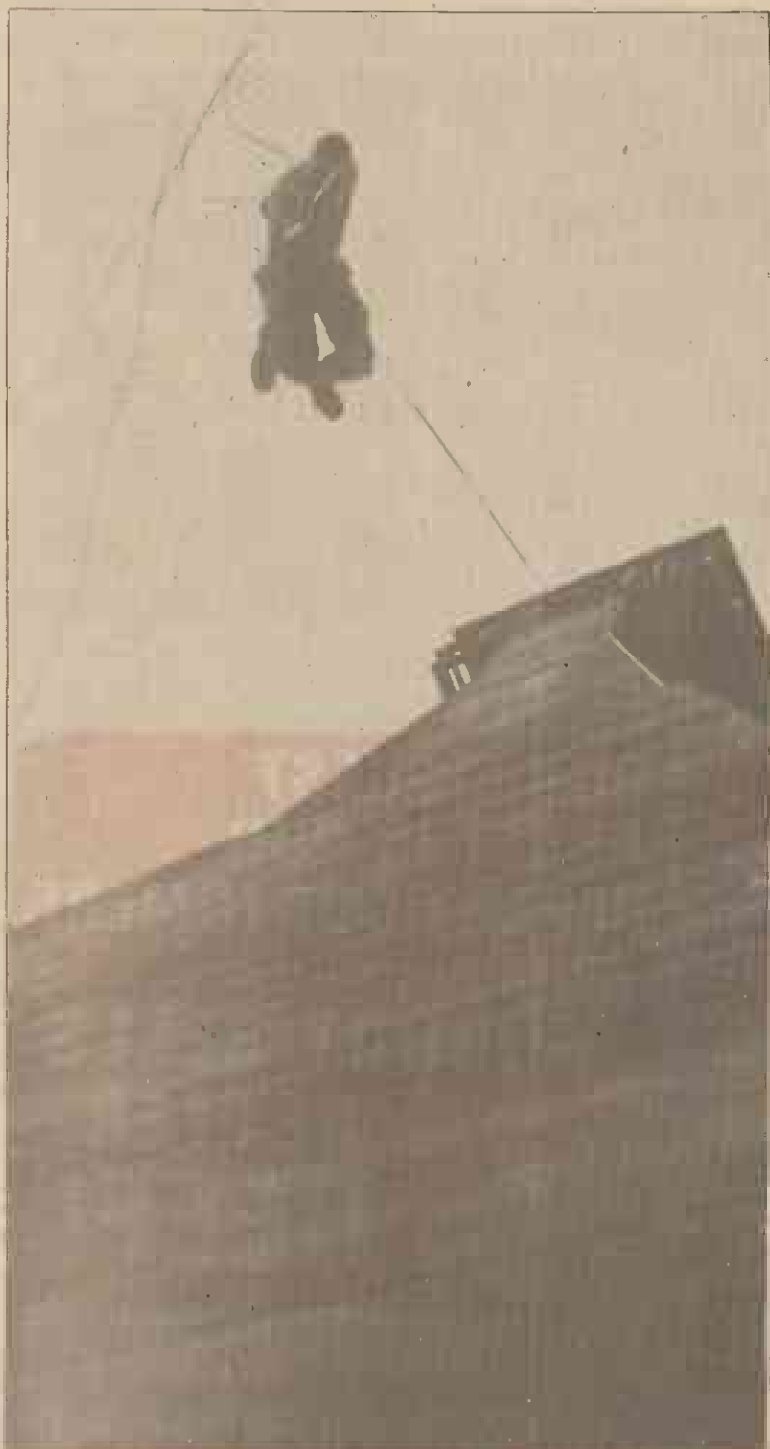

"You have to stay alert and always expect to encounter the enemy," he exercise was formulated. After a weekend off at Salt Lake City, the Marines took to the field, with a mission much like they would face in combat.

"A state department official was kidnapped and it was our job to get him back," said Borek. All aspects of a combat environment were incorporated into the mission.

Starting from the rear, defenses had to be set at the company command post; teams were inserted into the areas they would operate; a POW camp was set up for those captured; and a tactical exercise control group determined kills and wounds.

For four days in the field, Marines lived out this mission. They performed recon patrols of the area, it will confuse the enemy for a short time, hopefully long enough for the kill."

Operating far away from support units requires men to carry everything they will need. If they have a working knowledge of enemy weapons, they can use them if rounds for their own run out.

"This is kind of eerie," said LCpl. Andrew Diaz, while handling an AK-47 Soviet assault rifle. "The weapon seems pretty sound, and I'm glad to learn about it; but I feel better with our M-16A2. Our rifles have a better feel and I like the sights better."

During the 40-hour said. "There are flaws in even the best ambush that you can detect. Pay attention and find them and you'll live. Slack off and anything can happen."

Enemy soldiers will look to set up an ambush in the same areas Marines would. "When you see a spot that looks perfect for an ambush, take a second look before you enter. If you see anything, stop, look and wait," he said. "As a five-man team, you aren't geared to engage the enemy so it's best to get out of the area."

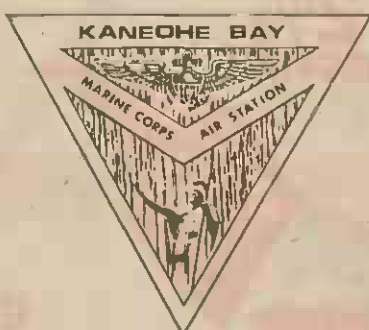

With a week of training behind them, the scenario for the next week's practical gathering information for a planned assault on the POW camp to rescue the official. When the time came, the information they had obtained enabled them to strike quickly and get the prisoner out with minimal losses — three dead and one wounded.

"It came off well," said Borek. "Our plan of developing skills during the first week and applying them in the second was sound. The men had good knowledge and were ready to perform."

With continued training, the Marines from 4th Force Recon will stay ready.

Station commendations

Air Station Marine of the Quarter, LCpl. Harry F. Warrington, operates a computer for SOMS' Weather/Observations Division.

Air Station Sailor of the Quarter, SN. Betty C. Arnold, guides a crash rescue boat.

Meritorious masts were presented to two Marines and two sailors of SOMS by Air Station Commanding Officer, Col. Robert P. Rogers, in a ceremony held recently.

Cpl. Dru L. Pontius, Station Comm Center, and LCpl. Harry F. Warrington, SOMS' Weather

Forecast/Observations Division, were honored for being selected Air Station NCO of the Quarter and Marine of the Quarter, respectively.

BM3 Sandra F. Bleasdale and SN Betty C. Arnold, SOMS' Waterfront Operations Division, were selected as the Air Station's Petty Officer and Sailor of the Quarter, respectively.

Pontius was cited for increasing the operational efficiency of the Air Station's Military Affiliated Radio System, by exercising "initiative, enthusiasm, professional ability and keen foresight."

Bleasdale was rewarded for the "streamlining of systems and procedures" within the Waterfront Operations Division, while Arnold was identified as an asset to the same unit, because of her excellent maintenance and preservation of the Sapphine 24, a 40-foot crash rescue boat.

Warrington was cited for his "enthusiastic dedication" and "positive impact on unit esprit" since joining the Weather Forecast/Observations Division.

MPS/ from A-3

combat element has 68 helicopters and 78 fixed-wing aircraft. The helicopters include troop transport, heavy-lift, observation and attack and includes 12, CH-53E, 12, CH-53D; 8, CH-53E; 12, UH-1N, and 24, AH-1T.

The 78 fixed-wing aircraft assigned to the MPS brigade provide more combat power. Among them are two squadrons of F-4 Phantoms (to be replaced in the near future with F/A-18 Hornets); 19, A-4M Skyhawks (or 20, AV-8B Harriers), 10, A-6E Intruders; four, EA-6B Prowlers; four, RF-4B Phantoms; six, OV-10 Broncos; six, KC-130 Hercules, and five, OA-4M Skyhawks.

To coordinate the air power, the brigade will employ the fully automated Marine Air Command and Control System, which has some of the military's most advanced tactical air control equipment.

Finally, for ground-to-air defense, the ACE provides six, I-Hawk and 72 Stinger missile launchers.

To logistically support this powerful MPS brigade, the CSSE has 3,087 Marines and sailors, organized to provide a full support: supply, maintenance, engineer, medical/dental, automated data processing, material handling equipment, personnel services, food services, transportation, military police, disbursing and financial management.

Navy support element

The MPS program depends heavily on the Navy Support Element, which provides vital ship offload services for the brigade, both pier-side and "in the stream." It has one or more cargo handling battalions, a Navy beach group, and a Navy special warfare detachment.

Duties of the cargo handling battalion(s) involved working the hatches and cranes of the MPS ships during the offload. The Navy beach group moves the equipment and supplies from ship to shore in much the same manner as in amphibious operations. Finally, the Navy special warfare detachment furnishes anti-swimmer defense for the ships and clears sea lanes and beaches of obstacles.

Additional ships

In addition to the MPS ships, there are two other types of vessels which may be an important part of an MPS task force. These ships are the new Aviation Logistics Support Ship, the TAVB; and Hospital Ship, the TAH.

Each TAVB will carry a Marine aviation intermediate maintenance activity on board. This organization is

"The events in Lebanon and the Middle East serve as recent reminders that the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps must be constantly ready..."

House Armed Services Committee

vital to keeping the aircraft flying. Its availability allows the brigade aircraft to deploy with only a small aviation spares support package, saving some 160 valuable strategic airlift sorties. TAVBs are conversions of existing merchant ships, civilian-crewed and assigned to the MSC.

The TAH is superior to the hospital ships of the earlier eras. With 12 operating rooms and 1,000 beds, it can furnish additional lifesaving support for MPS operations. TAHs are converted tankers, civilian-crewed and MSC assigned. Navy medical personnel embark for deployments.

MPS enhances strategic mobility for Marines, but with a reduced demand upon existing sea and airlift forces.

Due to the ongoing major Navy shipbuilding program, there will be enough amphibious shipping by 1994 to move the assault echelons of a MAF, Division/Wing/Force Service Support Team, and a MAB.

By employing MPS, the fleets can get three more potentially equipped brigades, with their supplies, to conflict areas more quickly. That is a dramatic improvement — amphibious plus maritime pre-positioning. The rapid response force capability of the Marine Corps has at least doubled.

NEXT WEEK: A look into the economics of MPS, and what MPS can do.

Credit card theft on rise

By Tom Joyce

Today's mail included a letter from home and the bills from the credit card companies that arrive each month. On one bill you notice a $100 charge for a performance of Puccini's Madam Butterfly. Not only did you not order tickets, you don't even like opera.

Chances are someone else enjoyed the concert at your expense. Finding out who it was is nearly impossible.

Credit card fraud is registered in the hundreds of millions of dollars each year. Visa International, the world's largest credit card company, reported losses of $138 million in 1984 alone. Seventy percent of that was from lost or stolen cards. The other 30 percent was from counterfeit cards.

Federal law restricts card holders' liability to $50 on unreported lost or stolen cards. If you report your cards lost or stolen before they are used, you are not liable for any unauthorized charges.

Dan Brigham, a public relations associate with Visa International, says all credit cards should be handled like money. "The Achilles heel of credit cards is the account number, the expiration date and the name on the card," he says. "With that information, anyone can fabricate a card or make transactions against your card."

Brigham suggests cardholders should become more aware of what they are doing with their cards. He suggests consumers recover the carbon paper from retailers after each transaction. "That is where the counterfeiters get their information," he cautions.

"Examine your statements as soon as you receive them. Make sure all charges are authorized. Especially in the case of counterfeit cards, the monthly statement is the first time someone will know their card is being used by an unauthorized individual."

Brigham also advises against giving your card number to people over the telephone. One of the newest scams is that someone will call a number at random and induce a person to divulge their account information, most often misrepresenting themselves.

They will then use the information to transact illegal business against the card. Brigham says if you initiate the phone call, the rules are different. But if someone else initiates the call, be wary.

There are other ways of protecting your cards. Brigham suggests distributing your valuables all around your body, especially if you are going to be in a crowd situation. "Put your money in one pocket, your cards in another. Pin your wallet pocket shut and check for your valuables often."

The credit card industry is doing its part to make cards less susceptible to fraud. Cards are being redesigned, and new technology is entering the retail market to make cards safer. "The ultimate goal," says Brigham, "is to make it so every transaction made against a card can be authorized by the card holder."

Most credit card companies provide toll free numbers to report lost or stolen credit cards.

Hair dryer safety

SAVE GAS TRY THE BUS

Burns, electric shock and overheating are the major hazards associated with hair dryers and styling appliances, according to the Federal Fire Department.

When metal or plastic components heat up, the appliance can cause serious burns when contacting the skin. Since most dryers are used in the bathroom near sinks and tubs, the chance of shock or electrocution is also increased.

Fire can result from running dryers or curling irons for long periods of time or leaving them unattended. The following are safety rules to prevent fires and burns:

Don't use dryers, curling irons or styling brushes near or in water.

If one accidentally drops into water, shut the electricity off at the circuit breaker.

Don't dip electric or styling instruments into water to dampen hair.

Don't poke hairpins or wire through grill work or in any part of the appliance.

Never cover the air vents as this will cause overheating.

If the appliance has an electrical burning odor to it, discontinue use and replace the appliance. Do not attempt to repair it yourself.

Never leave hair dryers, curling irons or any other such appliance turned on when you leave the room or the house.

Don't set dryers down while they are turned on. The vibration may cause them to fall and cause injury or fire.

Keep all appliances out of the reach of small children, and teach older children the correct safety rules.

All E-4s eligible for housing

by SgtMaj. Rudi Williams, USA

AFIS — Because of a change to regulations, all E-4s now have the same priority as E-5s and E-6s when it comes to family housing assignments.

Before the change, E-4s with less than two years service were ineligible for government housing. "The terminology 'ineligible' is both obsolete and offensive," Robert A. Stone, deputy assistant Secretary of Defense for Installations, said in a memorandum to the military services and DoD agencies.

In a related change, E-3s and below can now be included by the services in future requirements for military family housing construction and acquisition.

"What we're saying is DoD won't stand in the way if the services want to include E-3s in future requests to build family housing — particularly in locations where there are a lot of them assigned," said another DoD official.

Under the previous policy, E-3s couldn't even be considered for government housing. The new policy makes them eligible for substandard quarters, i.e., given "equal priority" to compete for "substandard housing."

Officers and civilians can also volunteer to live in substandard quarters, but only if there are not enough enlisted people to fill vacancies. Those who accept such quarters are charged only 75 percent of their housing allowances.

Conditions that would cause housing to be declared substandard include a lack of adequate closet, bathroom, dining room, and storage space and antiquated appliances or heating systems. Such housing is, however, habitable.

A DoD housing survey shows that higher ranking enlisted members think more should be done to help their lower ranking counterparts, "but not at the expense of E-4s through E-6s."

What does 'Hispanic' really mean?

by SgtMaj.
Rudi Williams, USA

AFIS — Someone always became annoyed when the old Interagency Committee on Mexican-American Affairs met in the late 1960s to discuss issues concerning Americans of Spanish ancestry.

"Someone would get up to make a speech and say, 'I'm Mexican,' or 'I'm Cuban,' and this would sometimes annoy Puerto Ricans, Chileans or others in the audience," said Manuel Oliverez, a former member of the committee and now manager of DoD's Hispanic Employment Program.

Symbolism and semantics often stood in the way of working on the issues. To solve the problem, the committee and other groups started searching for an all-encompassing word that had "no negative baggage, was neutral, but still connoted some of our culture and heritage," said Oliverez.

They tried several: "Iberian-American" for Spanish. "But not all Americans of Spanish descent are from Spain," said Oliverez, who is of Mexican descent.

"Not everyone felt comfortable with Iberian-American because they felt it didn't cover all of the groups — everyone wasn't from Europe," said Oliverez.

They tried "Latino-Americano." That didn't quite make it because we're not all from Latin American," Oliverez said.

"Latino-American" was the most common designation at the time. It included people from Central and Latin America or any person of Spanish origin from Latin America.

"Finally, the word 'Hispanic' was adopted because it had a basis in the word "Hispaniola" (an island in the Caribbean) and because it allowed each subgroup "to retain its identity — Cubans are Cubans, Puerto Ricans are Puerto Ricans, and Mexicans are Mexicans," said Oliverez. "It's a word that no one objected to."

The dilemma was that "we are a varied people; from very white and blonde to black and in-between," said Oliverez. "There are Afro-American, Italian and Oriental Hispanics; to be Hispanic, you don't have to be a mixture of populations indigenous to the southern United States, Central and South America, or Spain."

"However, for the process of programs for jobs, political issues, social and economic issues in the United States, 'Hispanic' serves as a word which in one concept depicts all of the various subgroups into one Hispanic family," said Oliverez.

Oliverez believes choosing one word to represent all people of Spanish ancestry has had positive benefits for all concerned.

"You don't have goals in DoD for the employment of Puerto Ricans, Cubans, Mexicans or any other group," he said. "You have goals for Hispanic-Americans. And you try to find the most qualified Hispanic-Americans to make contributions to the mission of DoD."

Oliverez thinks that the various subgroups add strength to the American society through their diversity. Asked how the word Hispanic is accepted by visitors from Spanish-speaking countries, Oliverez said, "The average Mexican, for instance, coming to America would consider Mexican-Americans to be 'Norte-Americanos.'

"A Hispanic-American like myself, for instance, sees himself as Mexican within the Hispanic umbrella. But the way I perceive myself is not necessarily the way a Chilean, a Paraguayan or an Argentinean may perceive me. He probably perceives me — although looking very much like him and speaking Spanish quite a bit like him — as an American," Oliverez said.

"Hispanics see the fabric of American society as something like a tapestry, and all of us are different threads and hues — all coming together making America," he said.

"... We're very proud of our heritage, our language, culture, traditions and values," Oliverez said. "Hispanic Heritage Week is an acknowledgement that America is a pluralistic society made up of many pieces and parts; all working together."

Hispanic Week activities

In recognition of National Hispanic Heritage Week, Sept. 15-21, activities to honor the many contributions by Hispanic Americans in the development, progress and defense of our nation will be held.

The following activities/events are scheduled:

Sept. 15 — The Naval Station Chapel, Pearl Harbor, will recognize worshippers of Hispanic extraction during all church services.

Sept. 17 — Hispanic meal, 11 a.m.-1 p.m., Camp Smith Dining Hall; Family Night, 4:15-6 p.m., Naval Station Galley, Pearl Harbor.

Sept. 18 — Anderson and Pless Dining Halls at MCAS Kaneohe Bay, will serve Hispanic meals throughout the day; Special Mexican Meal, 11:15 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Pearl Harbor SUBASE Galley; Hispanic Week dinner special, 5:50-8:30 p.m., Barbers Point Officers Club.

Sept. 19 — Special Mexican meal, 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m., cosponsored by Barbers Point and Naval Magazine, Lualualei, will be held at the Officers Club, Barbers Point. Summer white uniform for enlisted and summer khaki for officers.

Sept. 20 — The Enlisted Club at MCAS Kaneohe Bay will host a special Hispanic breakfast starting at 7 a.m.

A Hispanic cultural exhibit will be on display at Camp Smith throughout the week.

Hispanic pride

One woman's climb to success

by Donna Bolinger

AFIS — Liz Rodriguez can tell you stories about her childhood in a Texas border town, where she and other Mexican-American children were punished for speaking Spanish on the school playground.

Those were the days, she explained, when Hispanic pride was at a low point and many Hispanic Americans had lost sight of their language, their traditional names, and their heritage.

Yet Rodriguez' parents taught her and her seven brothers and sisters to take pride in their Hispanic heritage. Above all, they instilled in their children the drive to overcome through education, hard work and determination the obstacles to success faced by many Hispanic-Americans.

Rodriguez is a success by any measure. Last year, she was one of only 64 women selected from more than 100 federal agencies to participate in the Women's Executive Leadership Program — a pilot program for women in the federal government who have excelled in their fields and show strong managerial potential.

As part of this program, Rodriguez has applied her technical, political and budgetary skills in several government activities, the most recent of which is the DoD Strategic Defense Initiative Organization.

There, she works on the forefront of directed energy technology as program and technical manager for high-energy laser programs.

Rodriguez recognizes that society's changing attitude toward Hispanics, particularly during the past five years, has helped open opportunities for her.

However, she said it won't be until all Hispanics are aware of the opportunities available to them — and their ability to take advantage of those opportunities — that they will claim their rightful place in American society.

Even with a changing attitude toward Hispanics and a resurgence of pride within the Hispanic-American population, there's still an absence of role models for Hispanic youth, especially young girls, according to Rodriguez.

"I'm very proud that I'm Hispanic, especially because I still remember so vividly what it was like to be treated like a second-class citizen," she said.

"Now that I'm aware of the role my ancestors had in developing this country and the contributions they made, I feel a stronger pride in my heritage," Rodriguez concluded.

Cancer marathon slated

The Pacific Foundation for Cancer Research will be holding the "Hawaii Marathon of Hope for Cancer," a statewide campaign to better acquaint the people of Hawaii with the foundation and its support of local cancer research and treatment programs.

The two-month campaign will culminate with the "Hawaii Marathon of Hope for Cancer Walk/Run" on Sept. 28, starting at 7 a.m. Each walk/run course will be six miles long, starting at Sans Souci Beach Park and extending around Diamond Head.

All businesses and organizations are invited to participate. The goal is to get 10,000 people to walk or run to aid in the fight against cancer. Each participant will be asked to collect pledges for each mile walked or run.

There is a $6 entry fee which includes a T-shirt and numerous prizes. The prize for the pledges over $200 will be two round trip tickets to New York to see a Broadway show. The second highest amount collected will win a weekend for two in Las Vegas.

For more information call 942-2700.

Hawaii Marine golf champs

The third round of play at the 1985 All-Marine Golf Tournament ended Aug. 29 at MCRD, Parris Island, with Hawaii Marines placing throughout the competition.

MSgt. Skip Best, representing the Air Station, tied for fourth in the Men's Open Division with a 79-82-72 for a 233. PFC M. Hernandez, Marine Barracks Hawaii, was 11th after firing an 81-84-77 for a 242.

In the Men's Senior Division, MGySgt. Steve Holliday and B. Nickerson were 11th and 13th, respectively. Holliday, an Air Station Marine, shot a 92-81-84 for a 257. Nickerson, from Camp H.M. Smith, registered an 80-93-87 for a 268.

Dive club

The Aku Marine Dive Club, in the Air Station Marina, meets on the second and fourth Tuesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. Club members dive regularly on weekends and holidays, and special weekday or night dives can be arranged.

The club also owns a 22-foot dive boat and is accepting members who are certified Scuba divers, and are on active duty, or retired military. Their family members are also welcome to join.

Labor Day weekend sparks softball fever

Cindy Schneider (L), of Bad Company, races for the base as Outlaw's, Irene Higgins, awaits the throw action.

by Sgt. David Pinkney

Labor Day Weekend Softball Tournament action here had 20 men's and 13 women's teams vying for top honors.

A team from the Military Enlistment Processing Station of Honolulu were the victors in the men's division;

The winner of the Outlaw/Bad Company game was to face Wiki Wiki Wahines in the championship game. Outlaws beat Bad Company, 3-1. The Wiki Wiki Wahines made it to the finals without a loss.

The Outlaws walked away with the championship in the inning, with the bases loaded, center fielder David

Sweet of MEPS stepped in and hit a grand-slam homer making the score 4-0. MEPS went on to win, 11-3. After breezing past H&MS-24, 12-2, and advanced to the quarter finals on Monday.

By defeating Lumpy Gravy in the quarter finals, 8-7, MEPS was matched against Odd Squad for the championship. MEPS and Odd Squad went into an extra inning tied, 3-3. MEPS managed to base hit their way to victory, winning the championship, 4-3.

According to 1st Lt. George Amerine, commissioner of the K-Bay Athletic League, the league was started so that teams here meet teams from the other side of the island, play some ball and have a good time.

and the Outlaws, of the Pearl Harbor League, topped the women's division.

The Outlaws started their climb to the top by defeating Mix Emotion, 6-0. They eased by Mama's, 6-5, which moved them into the quarter finals on Sunday. The Wiki Wiki Wahines defeated the Outlaws and sent them into the loser's bracket to face Bad Company in the loser's bracket.

women's division after beating the Wiki Wiki Wahines, 4-1, in the first game and, 4-2, in the second game.

The MEPS team played their way straight to the winner's circle. Some teams came close, but not close enough to hand MEPS a loss, who went up against "K" Battery, 1/12, for their first game of the tournament.

Weight management

An eight-week weight management program will be held at Castle Medical Center's auditorium Sept. 11-Oct. 30, on Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m.

The course is designed to help individuals lose weight through proper nutrition, exercise and behavior modification. It will include private counseling and a personal computerized nutrition profile and body composition analysis.

Each session will begin with a weigh-in, followed by a period of moderate exercise. A tasty, low-calorie dinner is served at each meeting. Instructors for the program include a nutritionist, exercise physiologist, psychologist and health educators from Castle Medical Center.

Fee for the program is $85 for individuals, $150 for a couple. A cash incentive program for pounds lost will be offered to participants.

Registration is required and can be made by calling 263-5286.

Foster care

The Hawaii Department of Social Services and Housing is seeking military families interested in taking care of foster children ranging in ages from birth through 17 years old.

The children are from families undergoing crisis situations and need care until they can return home or move into adoptive homes.

Applicants should be at least 23, married or single, be in good health and have an adequate income to meet their own needs.

For more information contact the Foster Home-finding unit at 548-6739.

PACAF bands to perform

Hickam AFB — The 600th Air Force Band, based at Clark AB, Philippines, will present musical shows throughout the military and civilian communities here beginning Saturday. Highlighting their visit to Hawaii will be a musical production at the Waikiki Shell at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 23 during Aloha Week.

'Oktoberfest'

The Hale Koa Hotel's annual salute to the German tradition, the Oktoberfest, will be held on Sept. 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29 in the Banyan Tree Tavern.

Tickets are $6 per person, and are on sale now at the hotel Activities Desk and all military ticket outlets.

Music will be performed by "The Tyroleans," and a performance of polkas and contests will round out the festivities. German foods, such as sauerbraten and bratwurst, will be on sale.

Times for the festivals are Sept. 25, 26, 5 to 11 p.m.; Sept. 27, 28, 6 p.m. to 1 a.m.; and Sept. 29, 5 to 11 p.m.

Social Security benefits almost everyone

Small beginnings

Social Security began in Hawaii in 1936, with the second district office to open in the United States.

A small office was opened in the Honolulu post office building to issue Social Security cards to all Hawaii residents, a difficult task because of the remote locations in the territory.

Applications for Social Security cards were distributed to all employers, who in many cases completed them from their records; the employees then signed and returned the cards to the Social Security office.

The first Social Security claim in Hawaii was paid in 1940. Now, some 50 years later, there are over 122,000 beneficiaries receiving over $536 million a month.

The Honolulu office moved several times before its final location at the Prince Kuhio Federal Building on Ala Moana Blvd. A staff of 134 people administer the program in Hawaii.

For over 20 years, the only Social Security office in Hawaii was located in Honolulu. Neighbor islands were serviced by resident representatives who operated one-man offices in Hilo, Wailuku and Lihue.

All of the applications were sent to the Honolulu office to be processed, which meant that processing time for applications for benefits was considerably long.

In 1961, the first neighbor island office was opened in Hilo. Shortly after that, offices were opened in Wailuku and Lihue. In 1970, another office opened in Waiipahu.

Today, each office in Hawaii is equipped with terminals hooked into the main Social Security terminal in Baltimore, Md. A claim filed in Hilo can be processed as quickly as one submitted in Honolulu.

The Social Security program, headed by Pacific Area Manager Bruce McCullough, extends to all the Hawaiian Islands, Guam and American Samoa.

Social Security has come a long way in Hawaii in 50 years and will be even further improved in the next five years when more automated procedures are implemented.

Applying for benefits

There are certain items needed when you apply for Social Security benefits.

If you are applying for retirement benefits, proof of age is needed, and a birth, or baptismal certificate, should be submitted. For those whose birth was not registered, two documents are needed, documents that were recorded closest to your year of birth.

For applicants with military service, discharge papers are needed because military credits paying to 1957 were not reported. The only way to receive credit for your service is by using your discharge papers as proof.

Child and widow benefits are based on the applicant's relationship to the carrier, and this relationship must be proven. In the case of a child, a birth certificate is needed. For a widow, a marriage certificate will do.

If you have worked up to the time you apply for benefits, you should also submit your W-2 tax form for the last year.

Social Security benefits are based on your earnings. To receive the correct benefit, all of your earnings are needed. Your W-2 is used as evidence of earnings to credit them toward your benefit amount. By having all of these documents available at the time of application, the claim can be processed quickly. Most delays in processing Social Security claims are caused by waiting for the documents mentioned in this article.

Claims

Over 122,000 people in Hawaii receive Social Security benefits totaling $536 million a month, which includes retired, survivors and disabled people.

Retirement benefits can be paid at anytime after age 62. Benefits taken before age 65 are reduced; and, if taken at age 62, the reduction is 20 percent.

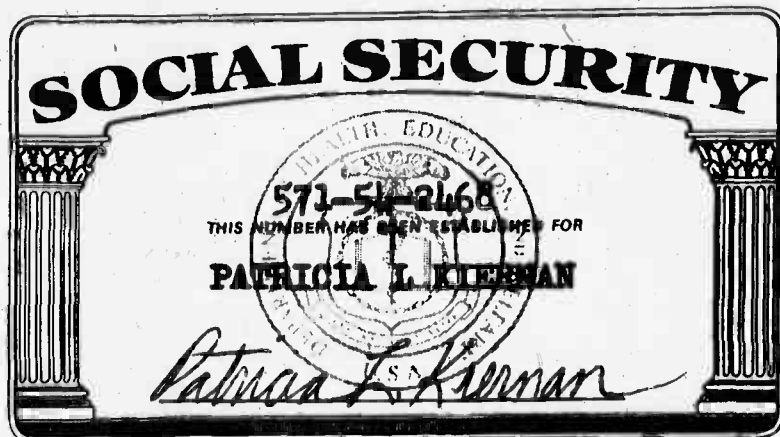

Survivors benefits are payable to children under age 18; ages 18-19 if a student is in high school; and to any child who became disabled before age 22 and is unable to work.

Surviving spouses are eligible if they are age 60 or older, or if they have a child under age 16 of the deceased worker in their care. Widows and widowers age 50 and older who are disabled and unable to work are also eligible.

Workers who have a disability expected to last 12 months, or more, can receive benefits for as long as they are disabled. The disability must be severe enough to prevent them from doing any type of work.

Children and spouses of retired and disabled workers are also eligible for benefits. The specific requirements are the same as for survivors benefits.

More information on Social Security benefits is in the pamphlet entitled "Your Social Security," available free at any Social Security Office.

Going to New York? Relax at the USO

The "Big Apple" can take a bite out of your wallet, especially if you're a tourist seeking accommodations and the Broadway lights. But to members of the armed forces, a trip to New York can be inexpensive.

New York offers servicemen and women two USOs, one at Times Square and another at Kennedy Airport. Both can help keep your expenses down.

The Times Square USO, named the Gen. Douglas MacArthur Memorial Center, is located at 1540 Broadway on the corner of Broadway and 45th Street. It's open all year, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., on Sundays. A snack bar is always available. On Saturday night, there is a light supper for military and their guests, from 4 to 6 p.m. On Sundays, the Catholic War Veterans host a breakfast from 9 a.m. to noon.

The MacArthur Center also has city maps, limited tickets to theaters, movies and sporting events. They also have a good selection of two tickets for the price of one available.

The USO, in the Pan Am

Worldport at Kennedy International Airport, offers activities for military travelers who have six to eight hour layovers between flights. The center, located on the departure level, is open all year from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday-Friday, and 3 to 8 p.m., Saturday and Sunday. It is also equipped with nurseries.

For inexpensive accommodations in the "Big Apple," you can't beat the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Club, located at 283 Lexington between 36th and 37th Street. A clean and comfortable bed is $8 per night, and most rooms have only two beds. Also, the location is convenient to midtown, the subway and bus lines, and within walking distance of the United Nations, the Empire State Building and USO.

So the next time you want to get away from it all, consider the "Big Apple" with the USO and Soldiers' and Airmen's Club bargain offers.

For information on the USO and Soldiers' Sailors' and Airmen's Club, call the USO at (212) 719-2364 or the Soldiers' Sailors' and Airmen's Club at (212) 683-4353.

Mess halls to cut down on fat, salt

by Donna Bolinger

AFIS — Starting next spring, meats served in military dining facilities will have smaller servings of gravy ladled over them.

Vegetables will be sauteed in polyunsaturated fats whenever possible, and poultry will be basted with salad oil, rather than butter or margarine.

Salt will be removed from most dishes, and monosodium glutamate, garlic salt and celery salt will be thrown out of the military kitchens altogether. Even rice, noodles and pastas will be cooked with less salt.

And new entrees featuring chicken and fish will be offered in addition to the popular red meat selections.

These changes are among many in the Armed Forces Recipe Service, the 1,700-odd recipes used by all enlisted dining facilities and general messes. The purpose behind the changes: to help trim waistlines and unclog arteries.

Marge Kehoe, chairperson of the Armed Forces Recipe Service Committee and head of the Navy Food and Nutrition Programs Branch, said these recipe revisions are part of an effort that began two years ago.

Kehoe explained that in the military, recipe changes don't happen overnight. They are first tested at the U.S. Army Natick Research and Development Center in Massachusetts; proposed variations are considered by the Joint Service Committee. If the changes meet with their approval, more than 40,000 new recipe sets are distributed to U.S. military food service facilities around the world.

While their goal is to get service members to eat healthier foods, food service personnel recognize that their efforts are successful only if these foods get eaten — and that they'll be total flops if they drive service members from the dining facilities.

"If we don't offer them what they want in the dining halls, service members will go somewhere else and get it," pointed out Germaine Gotshall, chief of the Air Force's Food Management Division.

The notable exception is the Navy, because 80 percent of the Navy general messes are afloat. "You could say we have a captive audience," Kehoe said. "People can't go somewhere else for an alternative." She said that under these circumstances, even more than usual, food becomes a critical morale factor.

So when revising military recipes, food service personnel make special efforts to preserve the flavor of foods and provide menu choices to please just about every food preference.

"We're making concerted efforts to reduce the level of fat and salt, but we want to make sure the foods are acceptable, too," Kehoe said.

So along with these healthier choices, dining facilities still offer the standard favorites like hot dogs, hamburgers and fries. Service members support many of the changes already under way. Where offered, salad bars are popular, and food service personnel report that low-fat and skim milk are being drunk more and more.

And although beef is offered at just about every lunch and dinner meal, service members are selecting fish and chicken dishes with increasing frequency.

When life's balance no longer is healthy

Like so many people, Carol found the mounting stresses of juggling career, home and personal relationships to be overwhelming. Emotional balance was difficult and, at times, impossible. Missing work on a regular basis, lack of concentration and errors caused her employer to question judgement and ability. Her job was in jeopardy. Withdrawing from family and friends only enhanced Carol's feelings of hopelessness and rejection. She felt out of control.

Get ready: Election time is coming up

AFIS — Fifty-nine percent of the Marine Corps people did it in 1984. So did 64.5 percent of the Navy people; 43.2 percent of the Army; 60.4 percent of the Air Force; and 58.5 percent of the Coast Guard. They voted or attempted to vote in the 1984 general elections.

Overall, 55.3 percent of the military members participated in general elections, an increase of 5.6 percent over the last general election.

With off-year elections fast approaching, now is the time to begin thinking about registering to vote in November, says Phyllis Taylor, deputy director of the Federal Voting Assistance Program.

"Most states require registration a minimum of 30 days in advance of an election," she says. "And now is the time to begin contacting voting officials to determine what the unique requirements are for your state."

Taylor says voting assistance officers have been designated and voting information has been distributed to the field. Even though many election officials have a "window time" for accepting registration cards, most will hold the cards until the appropriate registration period.

"We found in the last election that the biggest problem associated with voting by absentee ballot was the transit time," stresses Taylor. "Thus it is very important to register and request your ballot according to your state's guidelines."

Voting assistance officers have copies of the 1984-85 Voting Assistance Guide that gives detailed information concerning voting requirements for each state. Taylor suggests that people attempting to vote study the guide carefully.

"If military personnel have not received their ballots two weeks before the election and have exhausted all local avenues to resolve the problem, they should contact the Federal Voting Assistance Program Office," says Taylor.

Program personnel will try to resolve the problem by contacting the state in question. They can be reached at AUTOVON 225-0663/0664. Or write: Federal Voting Assistance Program, Room 1B457, Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20301.

Marines show each other the ropes.

Having friends who look out for you and who you look out for in return comes with being a Marine. Simply put, you count on the Marine next to you.

The sense of community you experience as a Marine isn't duplicated in the civilian world. It's more or less every man and woman for themselves. Which only makes sense when you think about it. After all, they don't have that much in common. They've never gone through tough training together. Very few have had to show their inner fortitude in difficult situations.

And those are probably some of the reasons why Marines have the pride they do. In themselves, their families, their Corps and country. Marines have a lot of experiences and training in common. Think about that if you're thinking about becoming a civilian.

You can count on the Corps.

Inspect that used car before you buy

Americans spend about $85 billion dollars a year to buy more than 17 million used cars. Some of them get bargains; others get more than they bargained for in mechanical grief.

Your chances of being one of the lucky ones will increase if you buy the car on a sunny day (rain and night can hide a lot of defects) and if you inspect the car carefully or have an independent mechanic inspect it for you. It is also helpful to have a friend shop with you.

Here is a checklist to take along that may be helpful in separating the cream puffs from the lemons:

In the Lot

Is oil spattered on the engine's undercarriage or in a puddle under the car? Could indicate an oil leak.

Is the tail pipe or exhaust system rusty?

Is the car level, or does it sag? Suspension problem.

Are there ripples, or different shades of paint? Could indicate car was in an accident.

Any signs of rust? Check inside wheel wells, truck, door frames.

Bounce each corner of the car. Does it bounce more than once? It could have worn shock absorbers.

Do all the lights, including turn signals and warning lights, work?

Any frayed wiring? Are belts and hoses worn?

Do the oil sticker and odometer reading correspond?

Rusty or oily radiator water? May need radiator repairs.

Water drops on oilstick? Could indicate a cracked block, very serious.

Are the battery cables corroded? Does the alternator light come on when car is started? Could indicate problems with the electrical system or battery.

Worn seats or carpet? May show hard use. New carpet in an old car may be hiding signs of age or rusting.

Do the brakes sink to the floor when pushed down? May mean brake trouble.

More than two inches of play in the steering wheel?

May mean steering problems.

Do windshield wipers, windows, and doors work?

Are the tires worn unevenly?

On the Road

Does the oil light stay on after the car is started?

Does the car idle too fast?

Do all gears, including reverse, shift smoothly?

Does the car hesitate or "buck" when accelerating?

Does it lack power going up a hill?

Is there a lot of white or blue smoke from the tailpipe? If so, the engine could need an expensive overhaul.

Any strange noises?

Is there a smell of gasoline? May mean a gas leak or a choke problem.

Do the brakes grab or pull to one side? Are they noisy? Could mean a brake problem.

Does steam escape from radiator or hoses? May indicate a cooling system problem.

Mixing cleaners can be deadly

The first men of modern history to be gassed were British and Canadian troops at Ypres in France during the first World War. A shocking, horribly painful and terrifying killer had been turned loose.

So many persons were gassed during the war and the horror of poison gas was so great that the use of that weapon was banned by all civilized nations. The searing pain in the lungs and windpipe as the victim strangles is too terrible for any of us to imagine. That is, unless you've been there.

There are people among us who have done it. They weren't soldiers; nor were they murderers. They were well meaning, industrious homemakers; people who were simply trying to make their kitchens and bathrooms sparkle.

They use one cleaner for this, another for that, and since both household cleaners worked well alone, it just logically followed that the two together would do the job twice as well.

A cleanser, some bleach for whitening and a little ammonia as a disinfectant poured into a toilet or onto the floor of a shower stall instantly produces clouds of colorless but murderous chlorine gas. The airspace in a kitchen is confined. The tiny space in a family bathroom becomes a gas chamber.

The moral of this story: don't be a mixer of cleaning compounds. Think back to your high school chemistry classes and remember all those awful smells that were produced when chemicals were mixed in solution. It is a scientific fact: if you mix ammonia, chlorine, lye, acids or active metal oxides (like drain uncloggers), the laws of natural science are going to change the chemical makeup from an innocent house cleaner into a killer.

A spotless home is a joy to behold, but it's not worth dying for.

ALL THE ROMANCE OF POLYNESIA IN A WEDDING

What a better time and place for a wedding of your dreams than now while in romantic Hawaii. Choose the setting of your dreams and have as romantic a wedding as the one featured on the Today Show. Already married? Why not re-affirm your wedding vows in the romantic setting of Polynesia. As presented on the Today Show, Reverend R. Walker, has several packages to make your experience a part of the romance of Polynesia.

Courts-Martial Report

Cpl. Patrick N. Smith, BSSG, was convicted during a Special Court-Martial, Aug. 23, of three counts of failure to be at his appointed place of duty; four counts of disobeying orders from a SNCO and petty officer first class; and one count of disobeying a lawful order from a commissioned officer. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for two months; forfeiture of $125 a month for two months; and reduced to private first class.

LCpl. Brian L. Weber, Weapons Co., 3/3, was convicted during a General Court-Martial, Aug. 13, of three counts of unauthorized absence; missing a movement of his unit; and wrongfully appropriating an automobile. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for 42 months; was reduced to private; forfeiture of all pay and allowances; and to receive a Bad Conduct Discharge.

LCpl. Jeffery A. Wilson, 1/12, was convicted during a Special Court-Martial, Aug. 19, of unauthorized absence and missing the movement of his unit. He was sentenced to confinement at hard labor for three months and reduced to private.
