Grunts, 'wingers' teach each other

Story and photos by Sgt. Stephen Frank

When a grunt calls for an air strike, he generally gets an air strike, with planes or helicopters suddenly appearing out of nowhere to rain destruction down on the bad guys.

A lot of those grunts might wonder how the aircraft actually came to be there, just as the pilots might wonder how the grunts came to be where they are, and why.

"When I came over to the ground side I had a lot of questions, and these guys had a lot of valid questions for me," said Capt. Kelly Cross, an F-4 pilot currently assigned to 3/3 as a Forward Air Controller.

"I also noticed that we spoke two different languages. I couldn't understand the terminology they were using, and they couldn't understand me," Capt. Cross added.

To get those questions answered and break the language barrier, Capt. Cross came up with the idea of an exchange program, with grunts travelling to the wing side to see how that part of the Corps operates, while pilots visited the ground side to see how business is conducted there.

"The idea was for these guys to get hands-on experience at what the other side does, to see what goes on," said Capt. Cross.

CG hails Medical Service Corps

On the occasion of the 41st anniversary of the Medical Service Corps Aug. 4, I extend my best wishes and congratulations to all health care administrators and science officers of the Medical Service Corps.

For more than four decades, you have distinguished yourselves through superlative and selfless service and brought great credit to your Corps, the Medical Command and the Navy. In all corners of the world, and especially on Marine bases, your Corps with its diverse specialties has continually demonstrated the highest professionalism and outstanding devotion to duty.

On behalf of the Marines of my command, I wish you a happy anniversary and a hearty "Well Done."

News In Brief

President Vetoes Defense Bill

President Reagan has vetoed the FY89 Defense Authorization Bill.

The announcement came at an Aug. 3 press conference, where the president expressed dissatisfaction with parts of the bill that place restrictions on the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) as well as various arms control and defense spending measures. President Reagan said that the bill's provisions would signal a basic change in the direction of our national defense and called for Congress to go back and produce another bill he can sign.

Senate Supports Pay Raise

The U.S. Senate overwhelmingly supports a 4.1 percent pay raise for the military.

A sense of the Senate resolution offered by Senator John Warner (R-Va.) was approved with strong bipartisan support 91 to 1 Aug. 4.

The resolution does not authorize a military pay increase, but strongly reiterates the senate's belief that the military should have one. A provision for the 4.1 percent increase was contained in the 1989 Defense Appropriations Bill vetoed by President Reagan.

In spite of the veto, veteran Hill sources say the resolution demonstrates strong bipartisan support for the military raise, which includes a basic pay and allowance for subsistence increase of 4.1 percent and a basic allowance for quarters increase of 7.1 percent. The pay raise, when passed, would be effective Jan. 1, 1989.

Caution urged in Philippines

Due to the continued violence directed at U.S. service personnel in the Philippines, anyone considering travelling to or through that area is urged to contact their unit administrative and intelligence officers. These officers will provide a briefing on the nature of the violence, and safety precautions necessary to avoid becoming a victim.

Windward Triathlon Sunday

The 1988 Windward Triathlon will begin at 6 a.m. here Sunday. Approximately 300 competitors will be cycling down Mokapu Blvd. and running the 10-mile portion of the race through the Air Station. The Military Police is asking residents to exercise caution during the early morning hours. Mahalo!

Sailor rescues linesman in electrical accident

By Sgt. T. Shearer

The keen observation and calm, cool reaction of Senior Chief Petty Officer Clifton Carter, Co. A, 3rd Medical Bn., helped save the life of a local electrical linesman injured here Saturday.

The accident caused an Air Station power outage that lasted more than six hours.

Carter, a hospital corpsman, was driving down Mokapu Blvd. at 9:15 a.m., when he observed a linesman having trouble on a 'cherry picker.' "I saw him out of the corner of my eye," said Carter, "but wasn't paying much attention until I saw sparks fly."

The linesman was using an umbrella that apparently came into contact with the wires. "It was like a flash of light with an arc between the wire," said Carter. "I immediately pulled over because the guy had to be hurt."

As soon as he stopped a second team of linesmen, who was working down the road, pulled up to help in the rescue. The man on the wire was unconscious as the second team lowered the 'cherry picker' he was working in.

When they got the injured man to the ground he was trembling violently and unresponsive. His pupils were dilated, meaning he was going into shock, said Carter. I checked his vital signs and started to treat him for shock.

In the meantime other cars had stopped and Carter sent one man to the back gate to call for an ambulance. Although other people at the Water, rodents in Hawaii common cause of disease

Leptospirosis is a disease that is found in all states, but occurs more frequently in Hawaii than in any other state. There have been 15 cases reported to date in Hawaii in 1988. The symptoms are similar to those of meningitis, hepatitis, and influenza. They include fever, headache, chills, vomiting, vague feeling of bodily discomfort, muscle pain, and occasionally jaundice (yellowing of the whites of the eyes and skin).

The organism occurs worldwide and disease transmission takes place through skin contact, especially if abraded, or mucous membranes (lining of mouth, eyes, nose, etc.) with water, moist soil or vegetation contaminated with urine of infected animals. This occurs most commonly in Hawaii through swimming in fresh water streams or drinking water directly from the streams. The rodent and mongoose populations in Hawaii are thought to contribute to the high incidence of leptospirosis.

The illness lasts from a few days to three weeks and can be asymptomatic to severe, and can be fatal from the time of contact with the causative organism until the first symptom appear is usually from four to 19 days. Treatment consists of prescription medications and possible hospitalization.

Prevention is based on not swimming, wading, or drinking potentially contaminated water. In Hawaii this includes all fresh water streams.

More lenders agree to auto loan reform

CAMP H.M. SMITH, Hawaii — A number of Hawaii lending institutions have recently come to agreement with military officials on a previously announced automobile/vehicle lien policy that affects hundreds of military buyers in Hawaii.

Because negotiations are still underway with some other lending institutions, a complete list of those who have agreed to the policy is not yet available. However, the list will be printed in the Hawaii Marine when it becomes available.

The new policy allows military people who are not in default on payments on vehicles purchased and financed in Hawaii to ship their vehicles out of the state in conjunction with official orders. Lending institutions who do not come to agreement may, under current law, disallow shipment of a vehicle out-of-state, or require buyers to pay off an account in full with large balloon-type payments, before shipment is allowed.

Any servicemember planning to finance a vehicle with a Hawaii lender is advised to check thoroughly with lenders to see if they are among those who have agreed to the new policy.

Re-up ceremony set for POW/MIA Day

The 1988 National POW/MIA Recognition Day will be observed Sept. 16. A joint observance will be held at 7 a.m. on the Harborfront patio of the Arizona Memorial Visitor Center.

Military personnel from Hawaii-area commands are invited to participate in a reenlistment ceremony, which has become part of a traditional Pearl Harbor observance.

The reenlistment ceremony will be limited to 40 people, eight from each service. If any service cannot register eight people, then the other services will be allowed to take more to fill out the 40 openings.

The uniform for participants and guests is summer service dress or appropriate civilian attire.

Participants will need to submit their immediate reenlistment contract and certificate of reenlistment, etc., to the COMNAVBASE Public Affairs Office no later than 3 p.m., Sept. 9.

Immediately following the ceremony, reenlistees will be transported by special boat to the memorial for morning colors, after which they will be afforded an opportunity to fly personal flags if desired.

Any Kaneohe Bay personnel interested in participating in this ceremony should contact GySgt. Lanclos, Joint Public Affairs Office, at 257-5728.

CG reflects on MEB as his tour nears end

BGen. George L. Cates assumed command of the 1st Marine Expeditionary Brigade June 12, 1986, and will relinquish command of the Brigade to BGen. John A. Studts Aug. 19.

A combat-decorated artilleryman, BGen. Cates commanded the 11th Marines and served as the Chief of Staff, 1st Marine Division, prior to his selection to brigadier general and assignment here.

During the 26 months under BGen. Cates' helm, the Brigade has significantly increased its training and operational tempo, and has assumed responsibilities as one of the Corps' three Maritime Prepositioned Forces. In an interview with Hawaii Marine last week, BGen. Cates reflected on his 26 months of command here, offered advice to the Marines of the Brigade, and discussed his plans for his next assignment as the Deputy Commanding General of the Marine Corps Research, Development, and Acquisition Command in Quantico, Va.

Hawaii Marine: Looking back on the two years you've commanded the Brigade, what do you see as the Brigade's most significant accomplishments?

BGen. Cates: Well, in the total 26 months and a few days there have been a lot of accomplishments, but I think that just discussing three of those would give you some perspective as to what I've tried to see that we get done here.

I would say the first thing is the successful execution of a substantial operational tempo. It has been substantial to the degree that people who have been in this Brigade three years or more, or Marines who have served in the Brigade previously and returned, have indicated that in the time they have served here, they have not seen an operational tempo like we have had in the last 26 months. This extraordinary tempo of operations we've sustained includes completion of 13 six-month unit deployments to Okinawa and Iwakuni, 10 Marine Corps Combat Readiness Evaluations, nine major MPF-related exercises and operations, more than 13 major live-fire exercises and combined arms exercises, and more than 20 significant squadron deployments for training such as WTJ and Top Gun. So I think the success with which we have carried that out is a real accomplishment.

The second accomplishment has been directing the training focus to where I've always felt it should be — at least for the infantry side of the house — which is on the squad and platoon level. If you have confident, well-trained squad leaders, you're going to have good squads, and it goes all the way up the line, so that's where I think the focus rightfully belongs. We've made a lot of progress here doing that.

The last accomplishment I want to address would be the increased use we made of local training areas here on Oahu, and increasing or expanding training areas throughout the Hawaiian Island chain where that has been feasible. We're training now in places in the Hawaiian chain where we haven't trained in years.

We have revitalized the Molokai training facility. We're sending companies, platoons and combat support units, like the engineers, to train on Molokai for four or five days at a time. It provides a super opportunity for a young commander and his NCOs to get away from the telephone and to be unencumbered by the routine things we have to do everyday in garrison, and focus strictly on training. We have constructed the combat marksmanship course here within Ulupau Crater and utilize the natural terrain there for the squad hill-assault course. Those types of things I view as making better use of the terrain you have at hand. And with dollars getting more scarce, we're going to have to turn more and more to things we can do close at hand.

On the aviation side, our fixed-wing aviators have always been very competent at air-to-air combat, but they were lacking somewhat in close-air-support — delivering ordnance from aircraft to the ground in support of ground troops. We have made a lot of progress in that aspect.

For the helicopter gents, we now fly helicopters around full of Marines and/or equipment as opposed to flying helicopters around empty, just fulfilling NATOPS requirements. It's a drastic difference coming into a landing zone with a chopper that's fully loaded as opposed to an empty chopper, so we are taking every opportunity we can to fill those birds up with people and or equipment. I think we're providing improved training, not only for the ground Marine and the ground combat service support Marines that we have, but for the helo crews themselves.

Finally, the BSSG is in the field more than they have been. They're showing, just as I suspected, that they can do the same high quality work out in the weeds that they do here in garrison. And they enjoy that.

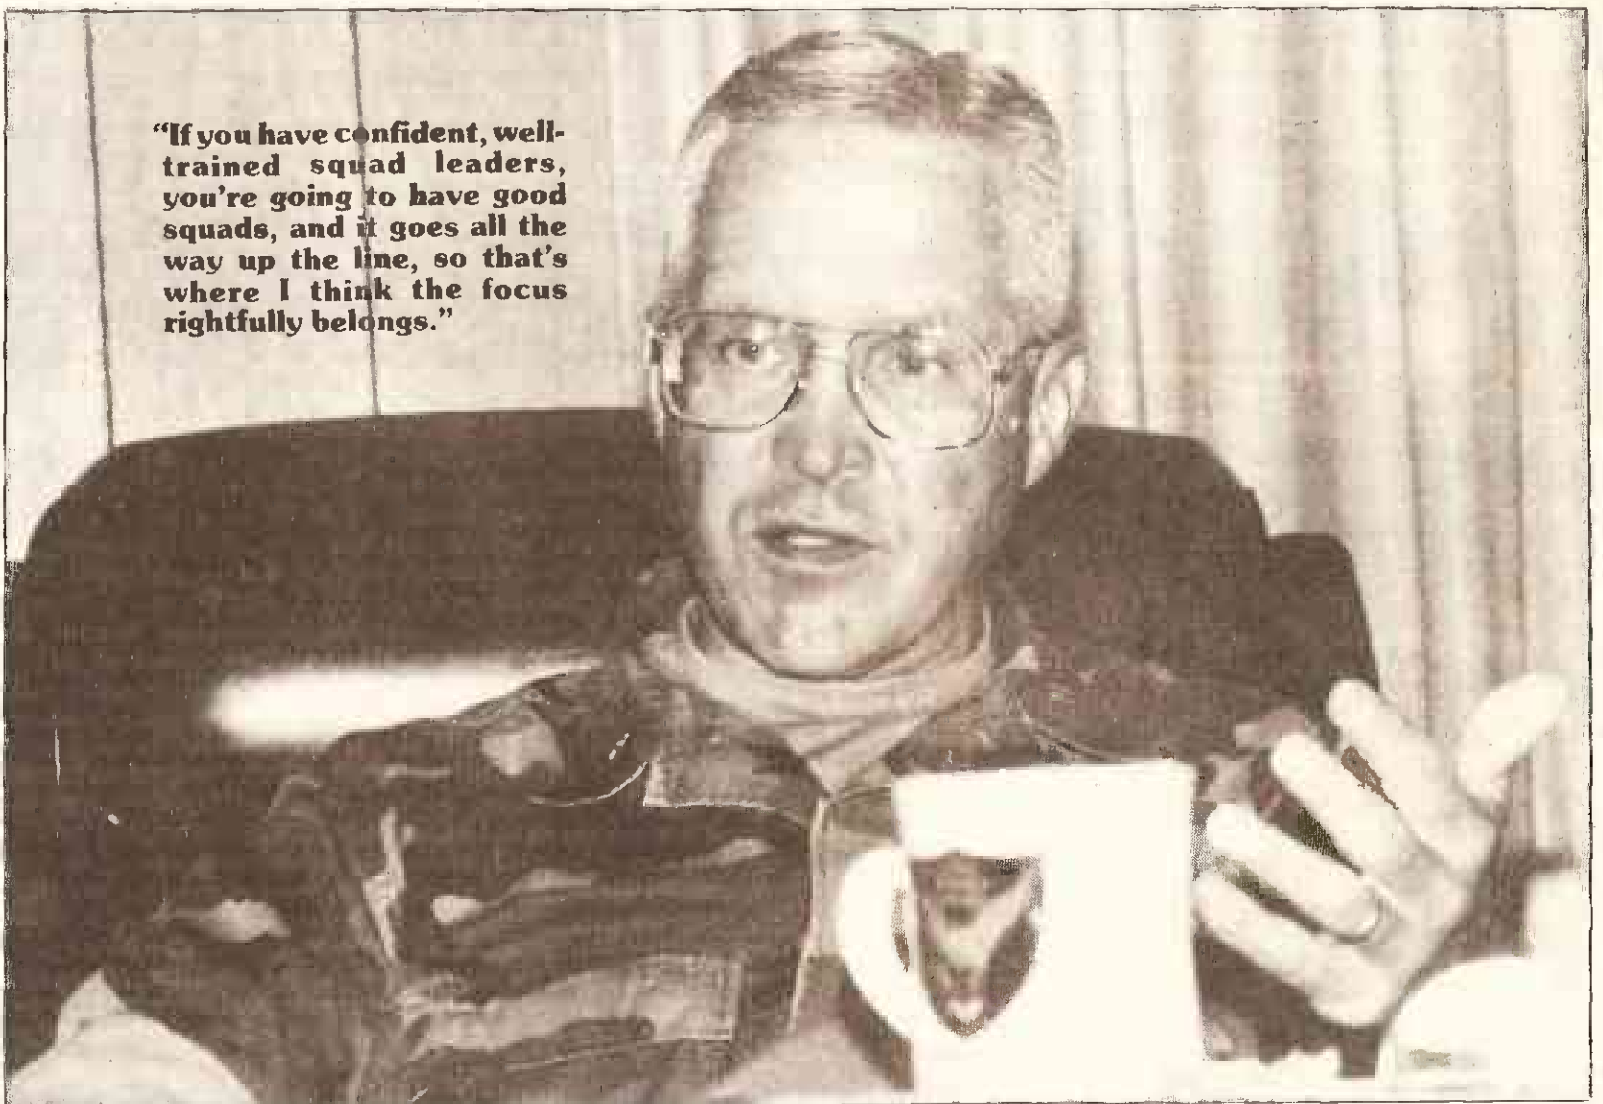

So, I would say that those three accomplishments are something to give anybody a little bit of perspective of what I regard as progress we've made here within the Brigade and putting the focus where it ought to be.

Hawaii Marine: During your tenure, 1st MEB made the transition from a standard amphibious brigade to a Maritime Prepositioned Force-oriented Brigade. What were the high (and low) points of the transition?

BGen. Cates: First of all, MPS matters are exceptionally complex and time consuming. We've made substantive progress in coming up on the power curve for the MPS business. But there's still a whole lot more to do. Given the personnel turnover we've experienced this summer, just retaining the proficiency we have attained will require a great deal of classroom time and hands-on time in the field.

We desperately need, I think, the kind of exercise where the Brigade commander calls the shots and sets the pace. In other words, if we don't do something exactly right, we need to have the type of exercise where I can say, "Okay, let's stop. Let's go back and re-do that in order to nail down the procedure solidly and get it right." There are always some troublesome areas each time we go through

"If you have confident, well-trained squad leaders, you're going to have good squads, and it goes all the way up the line, so that's where I think the focus rightfully belongs."

an MPS evolution. These areas may result from the weather and the accompanying sea state, or they may have to do with pieces of equipment that don't function as advertised, or they may have to do with systems aboard an MPS vessel that could be better. We need the time to be able to say, "Let's stop this and go back and do it the right way. Let's learn from this mistake we just made, so we can get it right and continue to do it right." In the big exercises which we have participated in, there is little, if any, opportunity to do that because the pace is set by someone else. And those opportunities we have had to exercise our MPS business have been of somewhat limited value with respect to doing what I feel we need to do in order to gain all the confidence in MPS expertise which we ought to have. That's not to be critical of those kind of exercises; it's just that the other two MPS brigades have had opportunities for unilateral exercises and we have not. And there's none coming down the pike in the foreseeable future. I guess if there is a low point that would be it: The fact that we haven't had the opportunity to do that type of exercise at our own pace.

The high points have been the flexibility and the professionalism of the young Marines in the Brigade whenever we have had the opportunity to ply our MPS trade. Nowhere has it been more evident than in the Team Spirit series of exercises, where this Brigade had very high visibility in the exercise scenario. Our young Marines came through in a manner that reflected not only pride in themselves and their work, but in the Marine Corps. And I'm not talking now just about their ability to download ships, issue equipment and receive equipment. I'm talking about their conduct on liberty. They acted like Marines are expected to act, and were good ambassadors in a foreign country.

Hawaii Marine: As the commanding general of 1st MEB, you have had the unique opportunity to command the only complete standing MEB. What were the advantages and challenges associated with this special command?

BGen. Cates: Since we have all of the Marine-Air Ground Task Force components here — the command element, ground combat element, the aviation combat element, the combat service support element — together 24-hours-a-day, it provides opportunities that don't exist in any other MAGTF for face-to-face coordination and training. That gives us a shared closeness and capability that is very difficult to measure, but which is something you can feel, and the results are visible. So I think this is a big advantage of having this type of organization which is, as you state, the only one of its type in the Corps.

Another advantage is that (HQMC) personnel assignment policies for Hawaii provide us the capability to have continuity that is not existent in most Marine Corps organizations. When Marines report here, I know that I'm going to be able to have those people on board, male or female, for minimum of three years — sometimes more. This is a big plus. In most other organizations I've been in, personnel turbulence and the ensuing lack of continuity has been one of the biggest detractors with the greatest negative impact. So I think we're blessed here because of current assignment policies.

The environment here in Hawaii is a distinct advantage: the climate, the weather, the ability to contribute to society with which we are provided. The only detractor concerning Hawaii, I feel, is the impact on our junior Marines because of the high cost of living they have to undergo when they come to this area.

The challenges are numerous and encompass all those normally associated with command. Like all commanders, I looked forward to each one; they're what makes command such a special position.

A personal challenge for me as a ground officer was the opportunity to get up to speed on equipment which flies — and the unique Marines who fly those pieces of equipment, maintain them and support them to keep them flying. It is a rare opportunity for a ground officer to be this closely associated with — and especially to have command of — a major subordinate command that has things that fly around in the air. I think I have a much greater appreciation and understanding of Marine aviation because of it. Most other Marine Corps aviation organizations are geographically separated from their ground brethren. Under those circumstances, it takes extraordinary efforts to develop a closeness between the two, not only for coordination but for training. On the other hand, in 1st MEB we're in the process of aligning a medium helicopter squadron with an infantry battalion for the entire UDP work-up. They train together, conduct their MCCRESs together, and deploy in close proximity — usually within 30 days of each other.

Hawaii Marine: Promotions for young officers are difficult these days, and augmentation seems even more difficult. What advice would you have for the young lieutenant who aspires to have your position, 15 to 20 years from now, as commanding general of a brigade?

BGen. Cates: I can assure you it is easier to get promoted than it is to get augmented for officers today. I know this is an issue that has very high priority for the Commandant, and there are steps being taken to try to increase the opportunities for augmentation.

That said, if I were going to give advice, I would simply say take any assignment or duty you're given, and just do the very best you can.

I would also offer not to become so concerned with career patterns or the next promotion that you try to do everything perfectly, which boils down to trying to do everything yourself. If an officer takes that approach, what he's doing is depriving his subordinates, primarily his NCOs, of opportunities to grow and to mature into the type of NCOs he needs.

The thought process seems to be that if I'm going to be competitive for augmentation, I have to do everything just right, I can't afford any mistakes. But, that's not true — mistakes are going to be made.

What you need to do is issue the right kind of guidance, supervise to the right degree and let these young folks do, on their own — without you looking over their shoulder every 30 seconds — what they need to be doing.

The last thing is be yourself. Every individual has inherent strengths and shortcomings. What I would suggest is to capitalize on the former and strive to improve the latter.

Motor 'T' keeps Station movin'

By SSgt. William Paro

"They" can offer everything from small trucks and tractor trailers to forklifts and cranes. "They" are responsible for about one million miles travelled during 2112 an average year. "They" are the Marines from the Station Motor Pool.

"We're here to support the units and sections aboard the Air Station," said James Brown, garrison mobile equipment manager. They do this by operating, for the most part, a U-Drive motor pool — the using unit provides their own driver.

"We have drivers assigned to the motor pool, but not enough to supply a driver with every vehicle," said Brown.

Among the many services provided by the motor pool, is the Liberty Bus. The Liberty Bus is a convenient means of transportation to Waikiki for Marines not wishing to fight the traffic.

The bus leaves the motor pool nightly at 6:30 p.m., heading for Fort DeRussy, making stops in front of the Joint Recreation Center and the Marine Corps Exchange. After dropping off the passengers, the driver picks up any Marines needing a ride back to the Air Station. After an hour layover at the motor pool, the bus begins the route again. The last bus departs Fort DeRussy at midnight.

The Station Motor Pool has approximately 430 vehicles and pieces of engineering equipment, which are used by Station and Brigade personnel. "Other units have their own motor pools, but they don't have the same equipment, such as busses and vans. By providing this equipment, we help them in their mission accomplishment," said Brown.

In addition to operating the Liberty Bus and providing vehicles to other units, Brown added that one of their duties is picking up and dumping the dumpsters.

The motor pool is manned by 24 Marines and 33 civilians who perform a number of different jobs, one being a 24-hour-a-day job.

"As dispatcher, we are responsible for the accountability of all the vehicles assigned to the motor pool," explained LCpl. Joe Lopez, one of the motor pool's four dispatchers.

"Our responsibilities also include knowing to whom each of the vehicles is assigned, and assigning and rotating the use of the vehicles.

To handle the daily wear and tear on the vehicles, the motor pool has its own maintenance section. "In our maintenance section, we do everything from minor repairs and major overhauls to body work and paint jobs," said Brown.

"We are a support unit," added Brown. "If there is anything we can do to help the Station complete its mission, we are here."

DoD gives OK to expand drug tests

By Evelyn D. Harris

AFIS — On May 10, Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci announced that DoD's drug testing program had been certified, effectively giving the go-ahead for expanding the program to all activities.

In a memorandum to the service secretaries, directors of defense agencies and other top officials, Carlucci said, "I strongly believe that drug testing is a powerful tool in eliminating drugs at the workplace. Our experience with the military demonstrates that testing works. I do not believe that there is a serious drug problem among our civilians, but any possible loss of productivity, danger to personnel or threat to national security associated with drug abuse must be eliminated."

According to Sharon Cooper, DoD's director of domestic drug programs, about 20 percent of DoD employees are in positions subject to testing. And of those, no more than 30,000 employees a year (about 15 percent) will actually be tested.

Because agencies must give employees 60 days advance notice, testing under the new program will probably begin in early fall.

However, said Cooper, plans to test civilian applicants for sensitive jobs could begin sooner, because they are not subject to the same delays. Armed Forces applicants, including those for service academies and advanced course ROTC, who have not become members before June 1, must be tested for drug and alcohol use before entry. A person is an Armed Forces member once he or she has taken the required oath.

The list of testing-designated positions includes those working with sensitive information and political appointees and was developed by the services and DoD with the approval of the Justice Departments. As in the military program, strict guidelines and controls assure the accountability of the samples and accuracy of the tests. Initial and possibly even follow-on tests of samples will be performed in military laboratories, which have a good track record for accuracy.

A small number of Army and Navy civilian employees have been subject to drug testing since 1985, and these programs will continue. DoD isn't the only government department testing employees: President Ronald Reagan's initiatives for a drug-free workplace include random drug testing of civilian employees holding certain sensitive jobs in all agencies.

BGEN CATES/from A-2

Hawaii Marine: What pet projects are you taking with you to Marine Corps Requisition, Development and Acquisition Command (MCRDAC)?

BGen. Cates: I have three. The first is to field a barrel for the M60E3 machine gun to the Fleet Marine Forces that meets the requirements.

The second project I'm taking back may be an exercise in futility: combat rations. In my opinion, MREs were designed for backpackers and weekend hikers. We in the Marine Corps and in the military service do not need something that takes gallons of water and 20 minutes to prepare in order to have a nourishing meal to eat.

One pet peeve I have about Meals Ready-to-Eat is that the plastic those things come in is are going to be around somewhere when your grandchildren's grandchildren are putting on Marine Corps green. We ought to be able to do a lot better than that.

The last project that I'm taking back to try to resolve is to get an automated system for tactical and technical fire direction and fire support coordination. We need the means to fully automate the interface of target acquisition with the tactical and technical fire direction capability at the battalion level and below. We also need to be able to have in there a capability to effect, at least initially in my view, certain facets of fire support coordination. And I'm not talking about bits and pieces of such a system, which is sort of what we have today; I'm talking about a total automated system.

Those are the three things on my wish list. The first, is an absolute necessity, the second I feel is necessary but I'm sure a lot of people will disagree with me. The third, in my view, is an absolute requirement.

Hawaii Marine: What advice or thoughts do you have for the Marines of the 1st MEB?

BGen. Cates: First, all Brigade Maines must know that dollar resources are getting scarce. That means, simply, we have to make the absolute maximum out of every training opportunity we have. For example, when the ammo's late getting to the range, the NCOs and lieutenants have got to have something in their hip pockets to pull out for training until the ammo gets there. We have to learn to use resources that are closer at hand to fulfill our training requirements.

The second thing I'd like to say to all Marines is to share your ideas with peers, subordinates and seniors. We are in a very difficult, demanding profession and there have to be better ways to do our business. The ideas are out there, and I — and every general in the Marine Corps — need the input from our people. So send those ideas forward. Let us take a look at them. If they won't work, we'll tell you why. If they will work, we'll implement them — we'll make it happen.

The last point I'd like to make to the Marines of 1st MEB is to remember you are Marines 24-hours-a-day. You have the respect of your country and its citizens. Don't ever let them down — not ever.

• Another sergeant was apprehended for DWI after he was stopped for lane weaving on Mokapu Rd. A test of his breath resulted in an .18 percent blood alcohol content.

Assaults/Breaches Of Peace

• A private first class was apprehended for housebreaking, underage drinking and a breach of peace. Another private first class found his clothes thrown on the floor of his room. He stated that the other Marine had committed the offense because the two had been involved in a fight earlier that evening. The suspect, who had been drinking, was apprehended.

• A corporal, lance corporal and two privates first class were apprehended for breach of peace after a sergeant reported a fight near the barracks. The Marines stated that while walking from the Enlisted Club, a group of unidentified males harassed the Marines until a fight started. Witnesses reported that the unidentified group had instigated the fight.

• A lance corporal was apprehended for a breach of peace and failure to pay just debt. The Marine rode in a taxi from Waikiki to the barracks. After arriving at the barracks, he and the taxi driver became involved in an argument over the cab fare. The lance corporal struck the man, and the driver kicked the Marine.

• A civilian was apprehended for assault after a sergeant reported that the man had struck him in the head with a beer bottle. The sergeant was taken to Pearl Harbor for medical treatment.

'Purple Foxes' end 6-month UDP

By Cpl. David Kershberg
Wives and families of the 'Purple Foxes' waited restlessly within hangar 101 for the Aug. 3 return of Marine Medium Helicopter (HMM) Squadron-364. The squadron returned from a six-month deployment to Okinawa. The deployment of '364 was far more than a temporary change of station for the unit; it was six months filled with training evolutions and exercises.

The helicopter squadron, along with a detachment from HMH-463, was transported to Okinawa early February aboard four Air Force C-5s. Within the stronghold of each C-5 were three CH-46E Serviceability, Reliability and Maintainability (SRM) helicopters. These 'helos' are basically the same as the standard CH-46E, but have been thoroughly refurbished.

A total of 12 birds were transported to Okinawa; six from Naval Air Station North Island, and six from here.

In order for the helicopters to fit aboard the cargo planes, they had to be partially dismantled. The birds were broken down into three major components: the forward head and transmission assembly, the aft head and vertical shaft assembly, and the main gear struts. The disassembly of the helicopters proved to be good training, as it is not often called for.

Upon arrival to MCAS Futenma, '364 reported for service with Marine Air Group (MAG)-36.

Once the helicopters were assembled, inspected and given functional check flights, the squadron set out to become the first unit to fly 12 of the camouflaged birds on Okinawa.

The squadron began the heavy deployment training schedule immediately, preparing for Team Spirit '88. The detachment from 463 provided three manned CH-53D helicopters, while '364 piloted 10 of their CH-46 Sea Knights for the mid-March commencement of the exercise.

While at Team Spirit the Purple Foxes performed a number of missions, including reconnaissance, resupply, insertion of reconnaissance forces and troop movements. They also participated in extensive boat operations, giving support to the beach assault phase of the exercise.

The termination of Team Spirit brought about a period of maintenance and preparation for inspections, which are often observed after an active exercise.

During June the squadron sent a detachment to the See 364/A-9

Marine family hosts Israeli student

By SSgt. William Paro
A Kaneohe Bay Marine family recently hosted an exchange student here as part of the Lions Club International Youth Camp.

Aviv Cohen, a student from Israel, spent a week at the home of MSgt. C.J. Donarski, 1st Radio Bn., before attending the camp. "The students spend a week in sponsors homes where they have a chance to relax and become acquainted with the area," explained MSgt. Donarski. The camp, held at Hawaii Loa College, brings together young people between the ages of 16-19 for a 10-day period.

MSgt. Donarski is a member of the Mt. Olomana Lions Club and heard about the program. Each year, the Lions Club sponsors an international Youth Camp where youths from around the world get together to discuss each other's way of life.

This year, 29 students came from Austria, Canada, Holland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Korea, Luxemburg, Turkey, and the United States. The students gather at the college where they sit down with counselors and discuss topics concerning leadership, politics and relationships.

"The conference's main purpose is to get young people to talk to each other," said MSgt. Donarski. "Some people don't really seem to know what other people are really like. If they sit down and talk to each other, they may be able to get rid of any prejudices," he explained.

While at the conference, the students each get to explain their way of life. "We give a presentation on some of our customs, such as the clothes we wear and the food we eat," said Cohen. "People are people, no matter where they are from. They just need a chance to get to know each other."

Cohen is one of six students that are representing Israel during this conference. He found out about the program from his mother who is also a member of the Lions Club. She suggested that it would be See FAMILY/A-8

EXCHANGE/from A-1

The exchange began in late June, when a group of pilots and enlisted Marines from throughout MAG-24 joined 3/3 during a heliborne assault that the grunts carried out in support of HMM-262's MCCRES.

The 'wingers' were issued 782 gear and were then farmed out to the ground units to see how their counterparts operated. Captains were paired with company commanders, lieutenants were paired with platoon commanders, and the enlisted Marines were put into the line units at the squad and fire team level, according to Capt. Cross.

"For a lot of the air guys it was a chance to do the 'gee whiz' kind of stuff that they joined the Marine Corps for in the first place, and it also gave them a better view of what goes on down on the ground," said Capt. Cross.

The Air Wing returned the favor recently when they opened their doors to a group of Marines from 3/3, giving them a two-day indoctrination into the workings of a flight squadron.

On the first day the grunts were shown a flight simulator, and after a class on how the machine operates, were allowed to actually sit in the cockpit and try their hand at shooting down some 'bo-geys'.

The second day of the indoctrination began with a static display of an F-4S Phantom II from VMFA-235, complete with loaded bomb racks, and a brief about the capabilities of the aircraft.

The Marines then sat in on an actual pre-flight brief, before watching the aircraft take off. Once the birds were in the air, the Marines travelled to MACS-2 where they watched radar screens and listened to radio traffic as the pilots of '235 squared off in an aerial dogfight.

The 3/3 Marines then returned to the runway to watch as the aircraft returned to the Air Station, including one plane that had had an in-flight emergency, losing one engine.

"Hopefully, now the air guys have a little better understanding about what the ground guys do, while the grunts get a better understanding about what goes into actually supplying air support," said Capt. Cross.

"And hopefully all of them now have a better overall view of the Marine Corps and how it goes about accomplishing its mission," he added.

Capt. Kelly Cross, a Forward Air Controller assigned to 3/3, uses hand motions to describe an aerial maneuver to a group of Marines from 3/3 during a recent exchange program.

Camp Smith recognizes Marines

CAMP H.M. SMITH Six Marines were recognized during the monthly parade here on Bordelon Field recently.

Cpl. Juan F. Velasquez received the Navy Achievement Medal for professional achievement while serving as assistant discharge processing chief, Separations Company, Headquarters Battalion, MCB, Camp Pendleton, Calif., for April 1986 to April 1988.

Through creative reorganization, he developed a streamlined, methodical operation of document processing for Marines returning from the Western Pacific for separation. His ingenuity and attention to detail were constantly exhibited as he, and the Marines in his charge, processed more than 5,700 Marines for separation. His sound judgement, decision making and expert knowledge of his job, ensured the separating Marines were processed efficiently and received all separation entitlements.

Sgt. Timothy A. Collins was presented the Certificate of Commendation for outstanding performance of duty while serving as the Analyst, Manpower Information System Support Office, FMFPac, from Sept. 1, 1986 to April 30, 1988. Tasked with implementing the Real Fammis Reporting Retrieval System within the intermediate level commands on Oahu, a job normally assigned to a staff NCO, he immediately familiarized himself with the intricacies of the system and spent much of his off-duty time learning all of its capabilities. He then instructed all clerks regarding the procedures and capabilities of the system, provided sound guidance to the commands when problems surfaced and ensured the data base was accurate.

Sgt. Todd A. Fredrick was presented a Certificate of Commendation for exceptional performance of duty while serving as an administrative clerk for the Base Adjutant Section, MCB, Camp Butler, Okinawa, Japan from June 1987 to June 1988. Displaying a high level of knowledge, Sgt. Fredrick was responsible for the Base Directives which included reviewing command directives. In addition, he served as an instructor for Naval Correspondence classes given to both military and civilian personnel.

SSgt. Wendy J. Kennedy received the Navy Achievement Medal for superior performance of her duties while serving as the production chief and training NCO for the Automated Service Center and the Automated Data Processing Center for FMFLant, from November 1985 to November 1987. Possessing invaluable organizational ability, she was responsible for a training program that encompassed Marine installations in the Atlantic Fleet, ships detachments and Marine Barracks in Europe.

A Meritorious Service Medal was presented to MGySgt. Gerald Telephone Pothier for outstanding meritorious service as Communications-Electronic Chief, G-6 Division, Headquarters, FMFPac from March 1984 to October 1988. Demonstrating outstanding leadership and exceptional technical expertise, MGySgt. Pothier developed the Vin-

MCAA Symposium/Convention

QUANTICO, VA. The Marine Corps Aviation Association 17th annual Convention and Aviation Symposium will be held on Oct. 6-9, in Boston, Mass.

According to Executive Secretary, Col. Stan Carpenter, this is the first time the Association has met in the New England area and the "Beantowners" are going all out to make the Association welcome. Carpenter said that members of the Association should have already received their registration and information packets; however those who have not, should contact National Headquarters as soon as possible.

Membership, which is currently more than 4,000, is open to all Marines who are serving or have served with Marine Corps Aviation. The Association supports a strong scholarship program, is dedicated to preserving the history of Marine Corps Aviation, and recognizes excellence through the awards program.

"This is like a vacation for me," said Cohen. "The schooling in Israel is very intense so this is a chance for me to relax."

Cohen recently finished high school and will go into the Army soon after returning home. "Everyone in Israel must go into the Army after graduating high school. I was really impressed with the brotherhood that the Marines display," added Cohen.

Another thing that really impressed Cohen about the American way of life was how it's made up of people from so many different origins. "Seeing them all together as a nation, and the fact that they all get along together is great," he said.

"This trip is like a little errand I am doing for my country, to tell people that we are no different than anyone else."

The squadron re-formed at Okinawa, and late in July joined the advance party of HMM-262, the next squadron from here to deploy. The helicopters of HMM-364 were accepted by the newly arrived detachment from Kaneohe, and packing began for the return home.

The return advance party arrived here July 15, followed by the main body Aug. 3.

What do the Marines of HMM-364 feel about the deployment?

"This was my third deployment to Okinawa, and it was the best," said Cpl. Lloyd G. Moses of '364, who feels that the teamwork and cooperation displayed during the deployment were exceptional.

Boxing smoker

Fights draw 1,200 fans to E-club

By Sgt. T. Shearer

The Windward Enlisted Club was packed to the rafters Aug. 7, as hundreds of sports fans turned out to watch island sluggers match blows in an open boxing smoker.

The fans weren't disappointed as 24 fighters showed up to battle in the ring. The weight classes ranged from 132-212 pounds.

In the first bout, Roddy 'Cuervo' Romero out of Co. E., 2nd Bn., 3rd Marines, danced his way around James 'Brown Bomber' Williams, Co. A, 3rd Assault Amphibian Vehicle Detachment, to take the decision in three rounds of 132-pound action.

The second bout brought two 174-pounders together and had the crowd on its feet. Eric 'The Hammer' Edwards from Headquarters Co., 3rd Marines, came to fight while Larry Estes out of BSSG-1 Motor Transport, came to brawl. Within seconds of the opening bell, both boxers landed series of punches and fought their way to the canvas. After the referee got them off the mat it was Estes dominating the match in a no-nonsense, punch-till-you drop manner. Estes took the decision after the scheduled three rounds.

The third bout, between two 151-pounders, saw the first TKO of the evening when Emon 'The Hurricane' Edwards, Headquarters Co., 3rd Marines, soundly defeated Mark 'Ice Man' Aguayo from Weapons Co.,

2/3. The referee stopped the bout after Aguayo was shaken in the second round.

The fourth pair-up brought a pair of 200-pounders, both from Headquarters and Service Co., BSSG-1, together. Quentin 'California Quake' Triche shook Phillip 'Tapeworm' Williams from the beginning. Williams went down hard in the first round. Triche finished him off at 1:25 into the second round, scoring the TKO.

Bernard 'Rockwell' Torre, Weapons Co., 2/3, handled the only fighter to travel from Camp Smith, Gregory 'Bonecrusher' Bruce. The second round bell, and had Krawczyk on the run. The fight was stopped at 1:55 into the second round when Krawczyk ran out of steam and refused to go on.

Joe 'Scoop' Jascur, Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, fought the fastest bout of the night, against Uwe Roth of SOMS Crash Crew. Jascur packed a reach advantage, and put it to use scoring the only first-round knockout of the night. Jascur brought a right hand from the back-40 that sent Roth to the canvas at 1:26 into the first round.

Leonard Stull, Maint. Co., BSSG-1, fought through a stream of blood from his nose to score a TKO against Rick 'Super Luka' Sacca, BSSG-1 Motor Transport, in the second round of a 150-pound fight.

The ninth fight, a 182-pound punchers delight, brought Cederic 'The Juice' Lattimore, Co. B, 7th Comm. Bn., into the ring against an outmatched 'Smoking Joe' Blackmon of Headquarters Co., 3rd Marines. The opening bell of the second round found Lattimore beating Blackmon into a corner and then punching him through the ropes. The referee stopped the fight midway through the third to give a TKO to Lattimore.

Chambers from Co. B, 7th Comm. Bn., took a decision from Ruben 'Lil Chief' Adjip, HMH-463, in 168-pound action. Chambers had him on the run through most of the fight, and although Adjip landed his share of blows, the match was all Chambers'.

Joseph Granata, Supply Co., BSSG-1, found out 'who framed the rabbit' as he scored a TKO over Lyle Strong, Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron.

Strong threw some good punches on the onset, but found Granata to be a fighter who should be avoided. Strong tried to dance his way around the ring, but Granata found his way in, midway through the second round, and tagged him for the TKO.

Vincent 'Mac Attack' McNatt, Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-24, took a unanimous decision over Victor 'The Christian' Anthony, 2/3, in the last bought of the evening. Anthony took standing counts in the first round, and although he tried to battle back, McNatt overpowered him to win the 170-pound battle.

In all, BSSG-1 had four fighters on top, 3rd Marines and 7th Comm. Bn. had three winners and Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron along with Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron pulled one victory each.

Joseph Granata leaves Lyle Strong on the canvas.

Hard hitters, quick movers and a few brawlers meet to trade punches action came in the second round when Torre was shaken and received a standing eight count. He immediately came back and knocked Bruce to his knees with a hard right to score a TKO at 1:50 into the round.

The sixth bout brought an apparent crowd favorite, Mitchell 'Headcrusher' Krawczyk from BSSG-1 Motor Transport in to face Joel 'The Widowmaker' Pipher, 1st Radio Bn., in a 212-pound slugfest. Krawczyk, spurred on by chants of "Crush! Crush! Crush!", pleased the fans as he came out swinging hard in the first round. The fighters were fairly well matched in the beginning, but Pipher came on hard after the sec-stream of blood from his nose to score a TKO against Rick 'Super Luka' Sacca, BSSG-1 Motor Transport, in the second round of a 150-pound fight.

The ninth fight, a 182-pound punchers delight, brought Cederic 'The Juice' Lattimore, Co. B, 7th Comm. Bn., into the ring against an outmatched 'Smoking Joe' Blackmon of Headquarters Co., 3rd Marines. The opening bell of the second round found Lattimore beating Blackmon into a corner and then punching him through the ropes. The referee stopped the fight midway through the third to give a TKO to Lattimore.

Women Bandits take Sports Festival '88

Untouchables strain in pain for a gain in the festival standings.

Shouts of encouragement and victory could be heard throughout the Air Station Saturday, Aug. 6, as the Women's summer softball league competed in their first Sports Festival sponsored by the K-Bay Women's Athletic Club.

Five softball teams participated in racquetball doubles, 3-man basketball, volleyball, 100 yd. dash, softball throw, 3-legged race, 880 run, tug-of-war, tennis doubles, and an outrigger canoe race. More than 80 women competed in the ten events which began at 9 a.m., and ended with an awards ceremony and barbecue at Fort Hase Beach.

The top three teams in the festival were the Bandits, K-Babes, and the Untouchables. "The festival was a great success, and all the teams can't wait for the event next year," said Phyllis Morton, coordinator of the festival and team captain of the second-place finishing K-Babes.

Shark Bait!!!

Jim Pflutradt (left), and Jim Griffin display a 10-ft.-10-inch tiger shark they caught approximately one mile off Pyramid Rock recently. Pflutradt and Griffin have caught many tiger sharks lately; however, this 463-pounder was the largest shark they've caught. This tiger was hooked drifting a small stingray over waters 120 feet deep.

Don't drink and dive!

Drinking and water sports don't mix. Alcohol has a dangerous effect on the body's temperature control system by causing blood vessels near the skin to dilate. This brings blood to the surface of the skin where it cannot be cooled by the body core, thus lowering the body's temperature. This can cause hypothermia, which in turn results in loss of muscle control, fatigue and drowning.

BEAT THE SCHOOL JAM

Attention all motorists! Remember that schools are starting and traffic will be extra heavy. The 43,000 University of Hawaii and community college students return to the highways next week on Aug. 22. Start your morning commute 20 to 30 minutes earlier and revive that car pool you let slip over the summer. Be smart and avoid the annual traffic jam this year.

Hawaii Pacific College

Business Administration, Computer Science, Liberal Arts, and the MBA

REGISTRATION NOW OPEN FOR FALL SEMESTER

Hawaii Pacific College is an independent, non-profit institution conveniently located in downtown Honolulu. HPC, accredited by the Accrediting Commission for Senior Colleges and Universities of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges, is offering nearly 500 courses for degree-seeking students and adult students seeking self-improvement. Many courses are offered in the day and evening. Ask about our Financial Aid Program (money is still available). HPC will help you find a job through its Cooperative Education Program. The following courses are approved for V.A. benefits. Students may register now at HPC, 1164 Bishop Street, Second Floor.

FOR INFORMATION CALL 544-0249 OR 544-0200. REGISTER NOW!

GREAT REVIEWS...

...ACROSS THE NATION

"The Suzuki Samurai has been designed to afford very high levels of safety, through both outstanding crash avoidance capability and very high levels of crash worthiness."

"Through our tests the Samurai displayed excellent response and stability. At no time was the vehicle close to overturning."

"In all test track cornering situations, the Samurai reached levels of cornering speed which would place it well up among the best automobiles available today, and well above the performance of other light utility vehicles."

...THROUGH AMERICAN AUTOMOTIVE PRESS

"The Samurai's dependability has been quite impressive..."

"The Samurai's turning ability is steady and responsive..."

"We gave the Samurai good points for maneuverability, engine performance and chassis balance..."

RE: SUZUKI SAMURAI - PRACTICAL CAR RENTAL

Dear LYN,

At the risk of sounding like a Suzuki Commercial, the following is my opinion of the SUZUKI SAMURAI.

When we first became aware of the adverse Consumer Report on the Samurai, our reaction was one of surprise. The Samurai has consistently proven to be our best Rental Vehicle as it has been;

- Mechanically problem free which translates to no down time other than normal maintenance.
- A proven customer pleaser. We've heard no complaints on either performance or handling (stability) and in the rental car business, believe me, we'd hear.

In short, the Samurai is a totally trouble free rental vehicle, which I would recommend to anyone.

Sincerely,
J. Halpin
