ATTACK

If no logical reason is apparent for the attack, use the following table to determine the purpose. Encounters with persons of Level 6 or higher will also involve companions equal to the Level Guideline and will be 1D6 Levels lower than their liege. Nobles and Gentlemen will also have bodyguards equal in number to their party size. Thirty percent of all attacks will be to subdue the player(s), and all attacks marked with asterisks will be to capture the player(s). Intelligent encountered attackers will no attack a superior party but will harass and harry them, instead.

Tarantis History

The City State of Tarantis was founded in 1792 BCCC (2,541 years ago) by two nomadic tribes, the Gishmesh Tribe and the Paldorian Clan. The Gishmesh Tribe originated just south of the Lake of the Crown Beast (Hex 4607) and followed the Azurerain River, finally selecting the present location of Tarantis on which to settle and build a permanent base for their raiding operations. The Paldorian Clan, skilled sailors and fishermen, originally lived southeast of Tarantis but moved up the river Bushkill to find better fishing. The merging of these two disparate clans was the result of numerous raids upon the Paldorians by the Gishmesh, who found the Paldorian women more pleasing to the eye and more numerous than the women of their own clan. In addition to the brides and sacrifices carried away by the Gishmesh, a number of sailors, craftsmen, and fishermen were captured and added to the labor force of the Gishmesh tribe. In the course of time, due to intermarriage and increasing familiarity with one another, peace was declared, the raids ceased, and the members of the two tribes became merged into one group, although the aggressive Gishmesh were still the dominant force.

Originally only a cluster of dwellings and a few mercantile and craft establishments protected by earthworks, the growing city found an increased need for protection after several raids by the Karzulun between 1882 and 1885 BCCC nearly obliterated the town. In 1885 BCCC, the city of Tarantis was officially laid out, rebuilt, and fortified with high stone walls for protection. In that year, also, the first hereditary monarch came to power and began to organize the existing government of Tarantis. However, the dominant strain of the aggressive Gishmesh made total rule impossible; the government only managed to restrain total anarchy in this raucous city, not to control it. All but one of the rulers of Tarantis have been of LEX alignment. Between the years 2266 and 2309 BCCC, Ryobl the Red attempted to bring complete law and order to the city, but his efforts were largely unsuccessful, and, after several attempts were made on his life, he disappeared, never to be seen again. His legacy to the city is evidenced by the highly successful Tarantine Merchants' Association and several lesser religions. After the disappearance of Ryobl the Red, Grantadt, his successor, organized the skillful pirating operations that ply the waters between the city states to this day. Scattered skirmishes occurred over the years between the fleets of the Invincible Overlord and the pirates of Tarantis, but the Overlord, busy with wars with the World Emperor, has never made a determined attempt to eradicate the pirates.

In the year 4020, a protective province of Tarantis was formed; close ties between the clans and tribes in this area and the Paldorian Tribe brought the Province of Jarmeer into existence especially to protect the villages of Tallulah, Bastinadi, and Borsippa, which were the targets of frequent raids by forces of the Overlord. A second protective province was formed in 4145. It is Ganzir-Galad, located directly east of Tarantis. The area of Ganzir-Galad has a long and bloody history of wars with the Karzulun raiders, and the protection offered by association with Tarantis has not been as effective as was hoped when the province was formed.

In 4240 BCCC, Edario I, formerly a captain of the Nighthawk, the finest ship in the Tarantine fleet, overthrew the ruling monarch of Tarantis, a 12 year-old boy named Greataust II, who suffered from a mysterious illness which kept him bedridden. The overthrow was hailed by the pirates and people of Tarantis as a necessary change because it was believed that the advisors of the ailing king were siphoning large portions of the city treasury into their own pockets. The young king was banished with a small retinue of retainers and a nurse to a lonely citadel far to the south of Tarantis. Several years later, it became known that a raiding group of bandits had burned the tower to the ground and murdered all within. Edario I, the new monarch, established a secret spy group known as the Blue Cobras to be his eyes and ears in every level of society in order to crush any repeat of his successful attempt to overthrow the government. Edario also passed a law that all future rulers of Tarantis would be required to serve in the naval branch of the service. As a result, his son, Atar, became a cabinboy at the age of 9 on the ship Gishmesh, the sister ship of the Nighthawk. When Atar was 12 years old, he had his first taste of combat with the warships of the Invincible Overlord, which attacked the Gishmesh while she was on a routine sea patrol. During the bloody battle that followed, Hedrick the Hammer, captain of the Gishmesh, was rendered unconscious by a vicious blow to the head. Atar, who was hiding in a lifeboat nearby, dragged the captain into the boat and lowered it into the water, escaping under cover of the smoke created by the war cannons and a mysterious blue fog that rolled suddenly in from the west. After six days at sea with no water or rations, the boat drifted ashore just south of the town of Bastinadi. Atar, although nearly dead from fatigue and exposure, managed to drag himself to the village to raise help for his captain. However, despite the best efforts of the finest leech in the village, the captain died shortly thereafter. Atar returned to Tarantis and was given a heroes welcome, despite the death of his captain and the sinking of the Gishmesh. Of the crew of the Gishmesh, only Atar returned alive, and he was given the Medal of Paldor for his supposed bravery. Atar never mentioned to his father that he had survived only due to fleeing the scene of battle and allowed the citizenry to believe that it was his overwhelming concern and devotion to his captain that caused him to leave the Gishmesh to her fate. He was commissioned aboard another ship and later proved to be an able leader and a fierce fighter. When he was seventeen, he was given the command of the Nighthawk II, the successor to his father's ship. As captain of the Nighthawk, he conducted more successful raids than any other captain in the long history of Tarantis.

In 4285, Edario's fears were realized when he was felled by an Assassin's Dagger, but Atar the Lion (as he had become known) became his father's successor despite the efforts of the group that had murdered Edario to overthrow the government. At the age of 22, after mercilessly routing and executing the aspirants to the throne, Atar the Lion was crowned ruler of Tarantis. On the eve of his coronation, Atar married his childhood sweetheart, Larrette Lafaite, an act which infuriated many of the more influential nobles who had unmarried daughters they had hoped to align with the ruler of Tarantis. His second official act was to appoint his closest friend, Monach the Canny, as Chief Advisor, following twelve days of riotous feasting, drinking, and merrymaking.

Atar the Lion has ruled Tarantis for 48 years. Although his alignment is LNA, he employs all alignment types within his government in order to keep a firm base of power. His reign, although marked by much violence and tyranny and marred by political squabbles, payoffs, and scandal, has resulted in a more ordered life among the people of Tarantis and the provinces. In a brilliant political move, he reached an agreement ten years ago with an individual known only as the Seahawk to move the pirate operations away from Tarantis to the village of Birezna (Hex 2625). For a small fee, the Tarantine Merchants' Association will license and insure the passage of a ship; if it is unlicensed, the pirates are free to seize the ship. The goods of the seized ship are then sold to the Tarantine Merchants for considerably less than value, enabling them to make a handsome profit in the resale of the goods. In return, the pirates receive some portion of the license fees, the proceeds from the sale of pirated goods, and the protection of the government of Tarantis. This move by Atar has done much to diminish the squabbling within his cabinet between the Lawful individuals and the Chaotic individuals over the operation of pirate ships under the auspices of the city state.

Government, Customs, Mores, and Behavior

The City State of Tarantis is ruled by Atar the Lion, the hereditary monarch, and his cabinet, which consists of the offices of Chief Advisor, Minister of Finance, Minister of Foreign Affairs, Minister of Land Management, Minister of War, Minister of Domestic Services, and Head Sage. The cabinet holds regular meetings twice a year with the Sultans of the Provinces to share information and official reports, but Atar the Lion may summon the cabinet into session at any other time of his choosing. Although the cabinet may suggest policy changes, the final decision in any matter is in the hands of the monarch. Although Atar has occasionally disbanded the cabinet entirely and selected new ministers, he retains Monach the Canny as his Chief Advisor. Atar disbands the cabinet periodically in order to keep the reins of power in his own hands and prevent any cabinet member from becoming more powerful than himself.

A somewhat chaotic judicial system attempts to maintain order in Tarantis. Laws are enforced by sheriffs, deputies, Royal Guardsmen, and the Blue Cobra force. Public disturbances are commonplace and are usually ignored unless the action harms a citizen or public property, threatens a governmental official or law enforcement person, threatens to disturb normal commerce, or blocks thoroughfares. The judicial system of Tarantis is divided into three courts: the Court of Citizen Arguments, the Court of Serious Offenses, and the Court of Lesser Offenses. The Court of Citizen Arguments handles lawsuits, civil actions, and all minor accusations. The Court of Lesser Offenses tries Petty Thievery (less than 10 GP), Brawling, Duels, and Public Nuisance. In the Court of Serious Offenses, all cases other than Murder and Horse Theft are heard, including Manslaughter where reasonable cause might be proven, Theft of more than 10 GP, and Pettifoggery. Those who are convicted of their crimes are sentenced either to the dungeon or to the workfields of Ganzir-Galad; neither sentence holds much hope for survival. Murder and Horse Theft are punishable by death (except, of course, in the case of Assassins hired by the government to weed out undesirable elements from the citizenry). The judicial system is plagued by payoffs and scandles. Many assassinations of court magistrates have taken place recently; rumor has it that some of the lower court magistrates are attempting to move into the more highly respected court positions by creating vacancies for themselves by having the holders of the coveted positions "removed from office."

The only true arm of the law is that of the spy network, the Blue Cobras. These secret police, a highly trained team of experts, have infiltrated every level of society to seek out dissenters and undesirables in Tarantis. Any organized rebellion consisting of more than 5 people has a 1 in 8 chance of coming to the attention of Atar, and that attention is most undesirable. The Blue Cobras work directly under Monach the Canny, Chief Advisor to Atar. Another team of spies known as the Shi-Cho work under the Minister of Foreign Affairs and are based in the two provinces of Jarmeer and Ganzir-Galad.

Thanks, in part, to the efforts of the Blue Cobra, many of the city's more outspoken citizens have disappeared over the years. Some have been convicted of sedition and sent to the dungeons; others have gone to the provinces. The bones of others lie in yet undiscovered places. Hatred between alignments within the city state is fueled by the strongly-held religious beliefs of the citizens of Tarantis. These conflicts can run rampant during certain religious holidays, but arrests are kept to a minimum during these times to avoid alienating the entire community from its government.

The two Provinces are ruled by Human kings known as Sultans. These Sultans are sworn to allegiance to the government of Tarantis, but they have not always been happy with the services they have received in return. The Sultanate is an appointed position gained by bribery and political maneuvering. The Sultans may be replaced at any time for any reason by Atar, so the position holds little job security. In addition, the people of the Provinces occasionally rise up in revolt against their current Sultan, necessitating a replacement. The Sultans do have a voice in the cabinet, but it is a small one.

The Merchants' Association is an organization of merchants, farmers, and tradesmen formed to keep the amount of quarreling to a minimum. Inferior products, trade disputes, and guild differences are ironed out between the representatives of the various trades in the association. The Merchants' Association has no voice in political affairs except for their not inconsiderable mercantile power. The arrangement with the Seahawk was made by Atar to silence the objections of the merchants to having Tarantis be known as the City of Thieves and Pirates. The merchants maintained that it was bad for business. To counter the unacknowledged power of the Merchants' Association, the cabinet has threatened to enact a high tax on merchandise and foodstuffs sold.

The trade and barter system is still the most widely used in Tarantis, although coins are gaining popularity. Some gold, copper, and silver is mined in the Lealand Scarpe directly east of Tarantis. Fine teakwood is sent down the Azurerain River from the Forest of the Crying Wood. Iron ore sometimes arrives from the village of Garzan (Hex 4933) just inside the Province of Ganzir-Galad. Fishing is still one of the largest trades in Tarantis, since both ocean and fresh water fish are readily available.

The few scattered skirmishes between the fleets of Tarantis and the Invincible Overlord of the past have completely stopped in recent years. This fuels the rumor that Atar is paying a large homage to the Invincible Overlord, a situation which, if evidence of it ever reached the ears of the populace, would probably result in a large-scale revolution. The citizens of Tarantis hate, despise, and fear the Invincible Overlord and his forces and would not take kindly to any action that might be interpreted as pandering to him. Several of the members of the cabinet have arranged privately with two of the captains of the Tarantine fleet to form a small attack force to prey on the ships of the Overlord in order to put to rest the rumors that threaten their positions in the government. However, a member of the Blue Cobras has infiltrated the group and discovered the scheme; the small coalition has not yet been brought to the attention of the monarch.

For a city of its size, Tarantis is quite squalid. No prohibitions against animals have been made, and, as a result, many households have a miniature barnyard full of dogs, cats, pigs, fowl, and cattle surrounding them. The refuse encourages rats and insects to proliferate, and there is a one in six chance of contracting dysentery upon eating or drinking in this city state. Individual establishments, however, are not uniformly unhealthy; refer to each description to determine level of cleanliness. Unless otherwise noted, the following rates for bed and board are in effect.

Inns

Class	Bed/Cot per Night	Rooms	Food	Grog	Wine
Noble Class	5 or more GP	10 or more GP	9 or more GP	6 or more GP	10 or more GP
High Class	1 or more GP	6 or more GP	4 or more GP	3 or more GP	7 or more GP
Good Class	5 - 9 SP	2 - 5 GP	19 - 39 SP	1 - 2 GP	3 - 69 SP
Low Class	1 - 4 SP	6 - 19 SP	1 - 18 SP	3 - 9 CP	1 - 2 SP
Beggar Class	1 - 4 CP	1 - 5 SP	1 - 4 CP	1 - 2 CP	2 - 9 CP

When a person encounters a person of a higher social rank, that person must lower his or her head and walk slowly until the higher ranking individual has passed. For this reason, rank tends to separate the mercantile establishments as well; persons of lower rank tend to congregate in places different from those of higher rank. Among the lower ranking citizens, the courtesy of lowering one's head to a person of higher rank goes largely ignored unless encountering someone of considerably higher rank.

Religions

Eighteen religions are presently practiced in Tarantis. The two main religions are Pudage, the religion of the Gishmesh Tribe, and Guedankst, the religion of the Paldorian Clan. Pudage is practiced by about 45% of the population of Tarantis. Its deity is Adorak Tau, the Sun God, and several rites are practiced in the course of worship. Daily meditation and worship of the sun is required, and group Invocations are held weekly. Every month, an official Sun Dance is performed by the Temple Maidens. These Maidens are members of the families of the devotees of Pudage and must serve for one year upon reaching their thirteenth birthdays. This high honor is not without its risks, however, because, once a year, four of the Maidens are chosen by lottery to be the sacrifice at the High Holy Day of Pudage, the Twilight Sacrifice. The hierarchy of the religion consists of the High Priest, Priests, Temple Attendants, Altar Boys, and Temple Maidens. The first-born male child of each Pudage family is required to serve as an Altar Boy for two years, from his fourteenth to his sixteenth birthdays. It is at this time that an Altar Boy may decide to enter the Priesthood. The alignment percentage among the worshippers of Adorak Tau is CEX: 20%, LEX: 55%; NEX: 5%; CGX: 20%, and worshippers are required to tithe ten percent of their incomes to the Temple. The treasures of Pudage are the large Sapphire eye in the statue of Adorak Tau in the Temple (can cast one Instant Death spell per day), the Spear of the Sun, and the Amulet of Tulanus. All members are required to care for other members when the need arises.

The second most popular religion in Tarantis is Guedankst, the religion of the original Paldorian Clan who worshipped Selanii, the Goddess of the Sea. Guedankst is practiced by about 40% of the population. The required rites of the religion include Luta Cleansing once a week, a Divine Reading each month, Abysmal Meditation twice a year at prescribed times, and the High Holy Day, the Day of the Fish, once each year. The unusual public dance performed by the followers of Selanii on the Day of the Fish has become something of a tourist attraction and is one of those occasions when the forces of the law find it necessary to make some arrests. Not only do the curious come to watch the dance, but members of opposing religions often attend the dance to harrass the dancers and other believers. Guedankst requires no living sacrifices; its members believe that all sins will be punished in this life and count Murder, which they believe Human sacrifice to be, among the punishable sins. The followers of Selanii also believe that righteousness will be rewarded in this life; they do not believe in an afterlife. The hierarchy of the religion consists of the Holy One, Abbots, Blue Friars, and Friars. Only those of extreme righteousness may enter the priesthood, but promotion is a largely political affair within the sect. The alignment percentage of this group is CGX: 80%; CNX: 12%; NGX: 5%; CNA: 3%. The treasures of Guedankst are the Golden Seahorse, a large idol in the Temple of Selanii, and the Blue Book, the contents of which are known only to the Holy One, who holds office until death.

Several minor religions also occupy the citizens of Tarantis. Olni Kodue is a religion dedicated to the worship of Tolna Budane, God of Light. Other citizens worship Zin Naou, God of Disease. A favorite among the female population is the worship of Polna Ku, Goddess of Desire, in a religion called Roule Dona. The Sages of the city belong to a sect known as the Seekers of Insight and worship Learden Su, God of Knowledge. These four minor religions are practiced by a total of 13% of the population of Tarantis. 12 other religions are represented in Tarantis and are practiced by about 2% of the population.

The Two Provinces

The Province of Jarmeer lies north of the River Astorin, south of the River Eldhraun, and west of the Azurerein River. It was formed for the protection of the clans in this area, who have close hereditary ties to the Paldorian Tribe. Their principal villages of Tallulah, Bastinadi, and Borsippa were the frequent targets of raids by the warfleet of the Invincible Overlord. After the Province was formed in 1420, a Sultanate was established to provide a voice for the people of the Province within the government at Tarantis. The present Sultan, Adbar Olana attained the position in 4313 after the former Sultan was convicted of conspiracy to murder Atar the Lion. The raids on the area have decreased somewhat in the past five years due, in part, to the deterrent forces of the Tarantine fleet, but one raid last year at Tallulah nearly destroyed the village. Atar immediately sent workers to Tallulah and rebuilt the village with funds from the government treasury in order to forestall any uprising by the homeless against his government and to encourage the people to remain at Tallulah rather than to move to Tarantis and, thereby, increase the indigent population. The capital city of the Province of Jarmeer is Borsippa.

The other Province of Tarantis is Ganzir-Galad, located directly east of Tarantis. This small province was formed as a protection against the wandering bands of raiding nomads that are the plague of the Ebony Coast. Since Ganzir-Galad was formed in 4145, twenty-five Sultans have lost their lives in wars with the nomads, the fiercest tribe of which are the Karzulun raiders, who ride camels and carry huge Scimitars (see the Karzulun Tribe section for further description). The people of Ganzir-Galad are not happy with the results of their association with Tarantis; they do not feel that they are being given enough protection, and, in fact, they are not. The Province was formed for the protection of Tarantis from the raiders rather than for the protection of the inhabitants of the Province, although the government will never admit to this. The present Sultan of Ganzir-Galad, Oldibruch Agnot, has reined only two years. The capital of this Province is the village of Ganzir-Galad, after which the Province was named.

Physical Description of the City State of Tarantis

The prominent features of the physical layout of the City State of Tarantis date from the major rebuilding which took place in 1885 BCCC. The city is in the general shape of a rectangle and is oriented almost precisely north-south and east-west. The east-west dimension of the main city is slightly over 2,300 feet, and the north-south dimension is slightly over 1,600 feet. Tarantis is completely surrounded by 40' high walls constructed of a rubble core held together with concrete and faced on the outer side with hard yellow limestone blocks and on the inner side with brick. The walls are 12' thick at the base and taper slightly to a 10' thickness at the level of the open wall walk atop the walls. Three large gates provide the primary accesses to the city. The East Gate, known as the Gate of the Setting Sun, is the major city gate. The gate building is a fortified rectangular block 120' x 240' and 60' tall. The walls of the building are of solid stone construction and are 10' to 20' thick. Three arched passageways lead through the building at ground level to give access to the city. Each of these arched tunnels is 20' wide and 20' high. They can be secured by several sets of thick bronze gates and three iron portculli. The three levels within the building serve as barracks for part of the army and contain extensive stored provisions in case of siege. Several catapults and ballistae are mounted on the open roof of the gate building. The South Gate, known as the Portal of Radrethia, is located in the center of the south wall and is a fortified rectangular block 120' x 180' by 60' tall. It is of a similar construction to the East Gate, but only two arched tunnels pass through it to give access to the city. The River Gate, or Northern Portal of Scarlet Clingfire, is a replica of the South Gate and is located in the center of the northern city wall, giving access to the wharves and docks. The city walls are reinforced by rectangular towers at each of the corners of the walls. Each tower is 40' x 60' and rises to a height of 60'. In addition, square bastions project from the outer walls between the towers to provide extra positions for flanking fire.

The city is divided into three major sections by the avenues leading from the three gates to the Marketplace and Bazaar. Paved with russet brick and deep brown cobblestones, these broad avenues are set at frequent intervals with ceremonial arches and commemorative gates and have trees of many different species planted on either side. Additional broad streets divide the three major sections into the eight quarters of the city. These quarters are, clockwise from the East Gate, the Nobles' Quarter, Merchants' Quarter, Shopkeepers' Quarter, Trademen's Quarter, Thieves' Quarter, Seamen's Quarter, Sages' Quarter, and Temple. The northeast corner of the city is occupied by the palace and citadel block which extends in a northerly direction to the beach. A quay at this point protrudes into the river, ending in a watchtower. The palace block is 840' east-west by 480' north-south.

The Karzulun Tribe

The Karzulun are a nomadic people which range from the Braztook Hills to the Terad Mountains. Although they have no written history, a rich fabric of legend exists around them. The tribal legends are told by the wisemen of the tribe, who entrust the keeping of the legends to the eldest son upon reaching his sixteenth year. It is assumed that this tribe has lived in these parts for many centuries. They exist by preying on other inhabitants of the area, although the women and children provide the main sustenance by gathering wild roots, vegetables, and berries which are cooked into a pungent, spicy stew that serves as the staple food. The Karzulun dress in light colors such as white, tan, or yellow. Their dress consists of extremely flowing pants gathered at the ankles and secured around the waist by a broad sash worn under a loose overcoat with long sleeves and a protective hood for the males. The high-ranking males may wear a turban and short, sleeveless tunic instead of the hooded coat. The women wear long, flowing robes of white often embroidered around the hem with brightly-colored silk thread. Older girls and married women are also required to wear a head covering called a shabadka, which resembles a shawl with small, silver bells at the corners secured to the head by decorative combs.

The Karzulun are a ruthless people leading a difficult existence. After raiding a town, they frequently behead the inhabitants and hang them by the feet from tall poles erected for that purpose. The victim's head is attached to the top of the pole. This is believed to be a religious rite of thanksgiving for a victory. As a result, the battle cry of the Karzulun will strike Fear in the hearts of any intended victims unless a Saving Throw of 25% or less is made. The Karzulun are masters at hiding in open terrain. There is only a 1 in 10 chance of spotting them in hiding.

The present leader of the Karzulun is a large, muscular man named Hasan Ben Sober, who has been the leader of the tribe for 10 years. He wears bright yellow clothes and a red turban and wields an enormous Scimitar. He has 4 wives and 21 children ranging in ages from 8 months to 28 years. Hasan Ben Sober: Karzulun, male, left-handed, 7' 8" tall, weighs 240 lbs., 45 years old, 8th LVL FTR, HTK 48, Weapons: Scimitar and Dirk, Armor: Leather and Shield, Pouch containing 10 PP, 4 GP, and 10 SP.

Minister of War

The Minister of War is in charge of all the branches of the service and ensures that they are ready for battle at all times. He originates duty assignments to the generals and admirals who pass them along to their troops. Once every month or so, the Minister inspects the military units and makes a report on their current status to the Chief Advisor. The office of the current Minister of War is decorated with many medals and citations for meritorious conduct. As Minister of War, he is authorized to award medals of valor, the highest of which is the Medal of Paldor, to deserving individuals, but his were awarded to him by Atar the Lion himself. When not out inspecting the troops, he is in his office reviewing reports from the spies that have been planted in the city and surrounding areas to forewarn the government of any seditious activity.

Minister of Land Management

The Minister of Land Management is in charge of the conservation and commercial uses of the forests, fields, and gardens of the palace and surrounding area. No one can buy land, cut down a tree, or work in the gardens without first getting his permission. He is in charge of the harvest and distribution of timber for construction and other industries requiring wood. Even the royal gardeners must report to him daily concerning the production of the palace gardens. The current Minister of Land Management is very interested in the propagation of plants. His office resembles a jungle; potted plants are suspended from the ceiling and grouped around the room on the floor. Several vines grow from large pottery bowls on the Minister's desk, obscuring the visitor's view of both the desk and the Minister of Land Management when he sits behind it. The office of the Minister of Land Management is often the scene of bribery and payoffs as people come to him to make deals enabling them to reap greater profits from their various land-related business ventures.

Minister of Domestic Services

The Minister of Domestic Services is in charge of running the domestic affairs of the palace in as efficient a manner as possible. He hires and fires all of the employees of the palace such as cooks, blacksmiths, jesters, maids, butlers, and housekeepers. When the domestics report for work, it is he who allots each day's work to the workers. He spends most of his time supervising the work being done and ensuring that no one is sleeping on the job or otherwise dallying in the performance of his or her labors. The Minister of Domestic Services is also in charge of ordering the comestibles for the kitchen and serves as the official Taster to test for poisons in the food to be served to Atar the Lion. It is a precarious position and one not coveted by most officials aspiring to higher office.

Minister of Foreign Affairs

The relationship of the government of Tarantis with other governments is the responsibility of the Minister of Foreign Affairs. It is to him that all Ambassadors, Diplomats, and Spies sent from Tarantis to other cities and countries report every month, and it is from him that they take their orders. He keeps track of peace and trade treaties and alliances between Tarantis and other cities and states as well as among other cities and states that do not include Tarantis in their agreements. He acts as a special envoy of the Tarantine government to allied cities and states in times of crisis.

Minister of Trade and Finance

The Minister of Trade and Finance is in charge of regulating the trade with other cities and making sure that accurate records are kept of all matters pertaining to trade. He has several accountants working for him to ensure that the accounts are kept current. These accountants report to him on a weekly basis, and he reports to the Chief Advisor. He is also in charge of the Minister of Revenue, a lesser Minister, who accepts all incoming funds from the tax collectors. The Minister of Revenue relays this income to the Minister of Trade and Finance, who turns it over to the Chief Advisor. All income is then sent to the Treasury, and a monthly report is made to Atar the Lion concerning the state of the Treasury.

Head Sage

The Head Sage is charged with overseeing the Wizard, the Priests, the Physician, the Scribes, and the Monks in their duties. It is through him that all requisitions for supplies must go, and, after he has approved them, he passes the requests on to the Chief Advisor. He tracks the progress of the Wizard's current projects and helps the High Priest decide on the rituals to be performed. He oversees the drafting of legal documents. The Head Sage is also in charge of the Monks who train the soldiers in their particular form of hand-to-hand combat. He spends some of his time in his office writing memos to the Scribes and the Wizard concerning documents to be written and magic items to be created.

Chief Advisor

The Chief Advisor to the Ruler of Tarantis, Monach the Canny, is second in command to Atar the Lion. When Atar is out of the city-state, the Chief Advisor runs the government of Tarantis and the surrounding Provinces. All Ministers report to him, and he relays any important information to Atar. His carpeted office is littered with reports and reading material, and the bookshelves are full to overflowing with more of the same. A safe containing documents to be discussed at the next meeting sits in a corner of the room. His daily duties are to study and approve or disapprove all documents and reports before they go to Atar. A door connects his office with an open courtyard where he spends much of his time perusing legal documents. Monach the Canny is the best and oldest friend of Atar the Lion and is trusted without reservation by him. Monach is very learned and is shown a great deal of deference by those about him, not only because of his knowledge and ability but also because he has the ear of the king.

Military Units of Tarantis

Palace Guard

The main duty of the Palace Guard, commanded by Motzu Ching, is to patrol the palace day and night. These hundred men are also trained to fight as Heavy Cavalry. To become part of the Palace Guard, a Fighter must be in the Tarantine army, exhibit outstanding ability, and be of noble status. A Scale coat covering a green tunic with a light green border and an iron Helmet is the standard armor of the Palace Guard. The Shields they carry each depict a black lion rampant on a green field. On the backs of their Shields, the troops each carry several steel-tipped Darts in metal holders forged for that purpose. When on horseback, they carry Lances, but, on patrol, they carry short, iron-tipped Spears instead. They are armed with iron Longswords at all times. Motzu and the officers also carry iron Daggers. He has divided his unit into ten squads and assigned nine of his best men as Lieutenants, one from each squad except the squad he commands. The Lieutenants act at his direction. The Palace Guard is quartered in the palace. 20% of the company is always on duty, stationed throughout the palace, and another 10% is on standby to handle any disputes involving the nobles of Tarantis.

As a young man, Motzu Ching, the son of a noble family, did as his father instructed and enlisted in the army. He has become renown as a peace keeper and has the respect of all the people. Motzu is a muscular man with thick, black hair, moustache, and beard. When not on duty, Motzu can often be found fishing at the end of the palace quay. Motzu loves the peace and quiet on the quay and goes there to relax.

Shu Shar's Bowmen - Light Infantry

This group of one hundred men is commanded by Shu Shar, the son of a rich merchant. They are the elite bowmen of the Light Infantry. Their normal duty is to patrol the coast from Tarantis to the Bard Citadel in Hex 1928. When on patrol, their armor consists of a Scale coat over a white tunic trimmed in gold brocade and a helmet sporting a purple plume. On horseback, they carry Lances and Shields featuring a Griffon passant on a white field. On foot, the Shields are changed for Bucklers, and they carry Composite Bows instead of Lances. All troops are armed with Longswords. When on patrol, the unit, which is stationed at the Bard Citadel during these times, often hires entertainment to while away the time they spend at the Citadel. The entertainment usually consists of a traveling circus or a caravan of Houris. When not at the Bard Citadel, the company is quartered in the palace in Tarantis. 25% of the company is always on duty patrolling the coast and watching the harbor from the Bard Citadel.

Shu Shar did not fancy taking up his father's trade and decided to enlist in the army, hoping to become a legend in his own time. He is a master Bowman and can shoot a squirrel between the eyes at 50 yards. Shu Shar is a tall man with a light complexion. His Lieutenants, Bushindor Auk, Leoru Pashlet, and Ghanti Lynlit, are also from Shu Shar's home area and attended the same archery school. All are excellent shots. The Bowmen of Shu Shar played a prominent part in keeping a unit of Heavy Cavalry at bay and forcing another to surrender during the Battle of Dyrfirwall Woods.

Thirin's Company

This group of one hundred mercenaries, commanded by Captain Thirin Ki, is contracted to Atar the Lion for 6,000 GP per month. Their normal task is to police the city and surrounding countryside. They are organized as Heavy Cavalry but are also trained to fight as Heavy Infantry. Their armor consists of Scale coats over deep blue tunics bordered in yellow silk and iron Helmets. On horseback, they carry Lances and Shields with a yellow lightning bolt across a blue field. On foot, the Shield is exchanged for a small Buckler of the same color and insignia, and the weapon used is a short, steel-tipped Spear. All troops are armed with iron Longswords and several Throwing Daggers. Officers also carry Maces or Hand Axes.

Captain Thirin Ki is a younger son of a noble family who saw more opportunity for advancement as a mercenary than in local politics. He is becoming renowned for his competence in military matters. His Lieutenants, Lhasi Gi and Fintalus Pur, and Sergeant Mendano Beka are also from Thirin's home area and would be loyal to him at all times. Captain Thirin is a stocky, dark-complected man with a thick shock of black hair. He sports a thin moustache and has a reserved, quiet air, but he occasionally visits the Big Jug Tavern for a night of relaxation.

The company is quartered in the palace. 25% of the company is on duty at all times. Five-man detachments are stationed at each of the three gates while the other two detachments patrol in the city proper. Five-man units of militia are frequently attached to each of the mercenary squads at night to help keep the peace. The mercenaries are easily able to deal with all normal disturbances but sometimes call for the Palace Guard when a person of noble rank is involved.

The company played a prominent part in the recent Battle of Crowrun, breaking a unit of light cavalry and forcing another unit of mercenary heavy horse to surrender.

Tai Chhin's Company - Heavy Infantry

This group of one hundred men is commanded by Tai Chhin the Fearless. When not in battle, their normal duty is to patrol the northern Dyrfirwall Wood to the northeast of Tarantis and as far north as the Starfalls Stream and east to the Remenant River. They are the pride of the footmen of the Tarantine Army and see more action than any other company. Their armor consists of a Scale coat over a blue tunic and an iron Helmet with a red plume. They carry steel-tipped Spears, Longswords, and red Shields with a black Lion rampant upon it.

Tai Chhin, the son of a noble, always loved the sights, sounds, and smells of battle and enjoyed giving orders, so he enlisted in the army and worked his way quickly up the ranks. Tai is respected by his men as a fearless Fighter; he asks no more of any man than he would do himself. Tai is a handsome, clean-shaven man with short, black hair and dark eyes. When not at war or on patrol, Tai enjoys playing chess and can often be found in the barrack pitting his skills at strategy against those of one or more of his men. The company is quartered in Barrack IV.

Two Lieutenants serve under Tai, commanding the squads on patrol, but, when in battle, Tai is the supreme commander of the company. The company is best known for ambushing the Orcs of Surintal during the Orc Uprising.

Arhat's Marauders - Heavy Cavalry

This group of one hundred men is led by Chieh Arhat the Dangerous. Their normal duty during peacetime is to patrol a narrow strip of area due east of Tarantis, including the southern portion of the Dyrfirwall Wood, along the Belit Road to the fork and as far south as the Trollhraun River as well as east to the Anshar Forest. They are the best of the Cavalry unit of the Tarantine Army, the first to go into battle and the last to retreat. Their armor is a Scale coat over a grey tunic trimmed with a narrow band of white. On horseback, they carry Lances and silvered Shields bearing the insignia of a Snake coiled about a Spear. When on patrol, they are generally avoided by the population because they have a reputation for burning down villages in the name of Atar the Lion. At their sides, they carry the weapons of choice, and, concealed at the backs of their Shields, they have 6 Darts each.

Chieh Arhat, who is originally from Paldorius, came to Tarantis to offer the services of himself and his fearless band of loyal followers to Atar the Lion. Atar enlisted them in the Cavalry, and they have served him faithfully since that time. Chieh is a dark, shifty-eyed, heavy-set man who frequents Keesha's Roadhouse in his leisure time and loves to start barroom brawls. Chieh carries a +3 Battle Axe at his side.

His company is quartered in Paldorius in order to keep Leklark under surveillance and ensure that he doesn't attempt a revolt against Atar the Lion. It is rumored that Chieh's company subdued two companies of enemy Cavalry during the Battle of Leland Scarp, incurring only 15% losses themselves, but none who were at the battle will speak of it. Many have applied to join Chieh's company, but the standards for qualifying are extremely high and few outsiders have been admitted to date.

Shen's Company - Light Cavalry

This group of three hundred men is led by Shen Shu and his Lieutenants, Ping Po, Wen Chang, and Yung Lo. Their normal duty is to patrol the area south of the city of Tarantis as far as the mouth of the River Trollhraun. Their armor is a Scale coat over a blue tunic and an iron Helmet topped by a blue plume. On horseback, they carry Lances, Battle Axes, and red Shields emblazoned with black statant Dragons. In battle, this company is divided into three units of one hundred men each and attacks from three different positions simultaneously. The units have set up a system of sounded trumpets to communicate important information such as readiness to attack or dire distress from one unit to another.

Shen Shu is originally from Gishmesh and came to Tarantis to enlist in Atar's army. For his courageous conduct at the Battle of Three Nations, he was promoted to Lieutenant. When his Captain was killed in the Battle of Dyrfirwall Wood, Shen was again promoted. As Captain of this vast unit, Shen assigned the rank of Lieutenant to three of his best men, Ping Po, Wen Chang, and Yung Lo. Shen picked these men because they hail from Stonebow and Redflood, the cities in which they are stationed when not on patrol, and are familiar with the area of patrol. 30% of each unit is always on duty. Their most memorable battle was during the Troll Wars when they overpowered the army of Kergrief of the Dark Sky clan; there were no survivors of the enemy army.

Shensi's Sappers - Infantry

This group of one hundred men is led by Shensi Wen. They are divided into ten groups of ten men each, and their normal duty is to develop new and better siege machines. They have a workshop located in the city in which they work on the planning and building of new machines to replace and improve upon the old ones. Their armor consists of a Scale coat over a yellow tunic and a Helmet sporting a yellow plume. They have constructed five Catapults that they intend to use when a town or castle is being besieged. These machines can also be used as diversion to enable the men with the Battering Rams to assail the walls and create entrances for the Infantry and the Cavalry.

Shensi Wen has been an engineer all of his adult life. He believed that he could reap greater benefit by providing his services to Atar the Lion than by working independently, and he has never regretted his decision. Shensi is of medium build and has a smooth complexion and neatly-trimmed hair. He is enlisted in the Tarantine Infantry, but he gets extra pay because of his special skill. His company is quartered in Barracks II of the city, and 25% of his company is always working on new ideas for siege machines and repairing old ones. Each Catapult squad is protected by a squad of bowmen.

Lan Tik's Company - Heavy Infantry

This group of three hundred men is led by Lan Tik, Lieh Tzu, and Huang Tii. Their primary mission is to patrol the area north from Gishmesh to Bokoza, including the Magain Flats. Their armor is a Scale coat over a brown tunic and a Helmet crested with a black plume. They carry steel-tipped Spears and yellow Shields bearing black Eagles displayed upon them.

Lan Tik has been a military man since he was sixteen, and experience has taught him good military strategy. He has bushy brown hair and eyebrows, but his moustache and beard are neatly trimmed. Age has begun to take its toll; the hair and beard show traces of grey, and his eyesight is beginning to fail. The fear of retirement has exacerbated Lan Tik's already short temper, and he is quick to vent his frustrations on any person or object unlucky enough to be nearby when he is angered.

Unlike Lan Tik, Lieh Tzu is good-natured and fair with his squad. His men are very devoted to Lieh and have much respect for him. His hair is neatly kept, and he has a muscular build. Lieh enlisted in the service because he was out of work and needed the money to support his aged father and two unwed sisters. He has been promoted twice and awarded two medals for valor.

Huang Tii, the roughest of the three leaders, has been known to beat his men for tarnished armor or a dull Sword. He has demoted men for no apparent reason; as a result, his squad has the highest desertion rate of any in the Army. He is a swarthy, dark-eyed man with curly black hair and beard but no moustache. Although a good strategist, Huang has been on the verge of being discharged for conduct unbecoming an officer several times.

The company is stationed in Gishmesh and is best known for the defeat of the Orcs at the Battle of Magain Flats during the Orc Uprising.

Guyu's Company - Heavy Infantry

This group of one hundred men stationed in the city of Tarantis is led by Guyu Pai. It is a defensive unit that helps to patrol the city when at peace. They are a crack Infantry unit and wear colors of distinction. Their armor is a Scale coat over a bright orange tunic and an iron Helmet with brown plumes. When on patrol, they carry steel-tipped Spears, Longswords, several Throwing Stars, and white Shields with brown Lions passant beneath two orange stars emblazoned upon them. Officers also carry Quarterstaves.

No one really knows Guyu's background. All that Atar the Lion knows of him is that he is of a noble family of a distant country far to the south and that he is very much interested in politics. He is heavy-set, and the deep blue eyes in his round face are cool and unfathomable. He has a long scar on the left side of his face that is rumored to be the relic of a single-handed victory over three Hill Giants. His Lieutenants, Cadmar, Belevan Blacklegs, and Pui the Eager know no more about him than anyone else; they met him in Matansar on the Ebony Coast and traveled with him to Tarantis to fight in the service of Atar the Lion. He is very fond of seafood and, when not on duty, can often be found in the Kismet Cafe having a solitary meal of crabs and perch.

The company is quartered in Barracks III above the North Gate. In their barrack, they have a war chest containing 200 GP, 150 SP, and 4 gems worth 400 GP each. The company played a prominent role in the Battle of Dyrfirwall Wood, holding off a unit of Heavy Infantry and a unit of mercenaries until reinforcements could arrive.

Twai Lu's Company - Light Infantry

Known among the rest of the Tarantine forces as the Company of Cowards, this company of one hundred men is commanded by Twai Lu, fourth son of a noble Tarantine family. Although they are definitely the worst company in the Tarantine Army, it is not for lack of courage; bad leadership has made this company the laughingstock of the Tarantine armed forces. Their normal duty is to patrol the area from the Fighter Citadel in Hex 2629 south to the River Trollhraun and east to the River Crowrun. On horseback, their armor is a Scale coat over a brown tunic and a helmet sporting no crest. They carry Lances and Shields emblazoned with a brown Dragon rampant on a red field. On foot, the Lances are exchanged for Composite Bows, and the Shields are exchanged for Bucklers. All troops are armed with Longswords. The patrol unit has been ambushed many times by assorted bandits and marauders, but, so far, have managed to ward off their attackers, although usually sustaining heavy losses in the process.

Twai Lu was born of a noble family of Tarantis who enlisted him in the military so he could learn the manly art of war. Because of his family's political power, Twai was made the leader of a unit almost immediately; the mistake was discovered soon after when, due to a grave tactical error, his entire company was nearly obliterated during the Battle of Magain Flats. Twai is a big man with a thin moustache and a smooth complexion. He is not very intelligent and is very poor at military tactics. If it were not for his Lieutenants, Gai the Falconer and Pantuda Rou, the company would have been annihilated long ago. It is their leadership abilities that have made the company at least fit for minor patrol duty in largely safe territory.

The company is quartered in a barrack near the Fighter's Citadel, and there are always 30% of them on patrol. They do not like the duty they have, but the General feels that the patrol is in their best interest since he cannot remove Twai Lu from command due to the high standing his family occupies in Tarantine politics. Nevertheless, rumors abound that Twai will soon be stripped of his rank, and one of his Lieutenants will replace him. They are what keep the men of his company from deserting en masse.

Poyi's Company - Light Infantry Crossbowmen

This company of one hundred men is commanded by Poyi. They are the elite company of crossbowmen of the Light Infantry, so they see more action than the other crossbow unit. Their duties are to patrol the area south of the River Trollhraun to Algeran and east to the other side of Blackpit as far as the marshes. On horseback, they carry Lances, Battle Axes, and silvered Shields bearing a white Pegasus rampant regardant. Their armor is a Scale coat over a grey tunic and a Helmet. On foot, they carry Heavy Crossbows, and their Shields are exchanged for Bucklers. When on foot, they wear Leather armor instead of the Scale coat.

Poyi, the youngest son of a farmer, enlisted in the Army to make life easier for his family. He sends half his pay to them by messenger each payday. He is an excellent crossbowman and was promoted because of his natural tactical skill and his courage. When his Captain was killed in a drunken brawl, Poyi was made the new commander. His Lieutenants, Eyulf Snee and Patridge Quo, are of noble families and are less than happy about having to take orders from someone not of their own social rank. Poyi is clean shaven and solidly-built. His straight, blond hair falling to his shoulders and his light blue eyes speak of an ancestry not native to the area, although his family has lived in the Tarantine area for many generations.

The company barrack is in Meri-Amar; 30% of the company is always on patrol. They played a prominent part in helping to save the Fighter's Citadel during the Troll Wars.

Chu Jung's Company - Light Infantry Crossbowmen

This company of one hundred men is commanded by Chu Jung. Like Twai Lu's company, they are a terrible military unit. The normal duty assigned to them is to patrol the Isle of Plaxsy and the area around the castle in Hex 2126, a relatively easy task but the least prestigious assignment in the Tarantine Army. They wear Leather armor over yellow tunics and plain iron Helmets. They carry yellow Shields emblazoned with black Lions rampant over a single black star. This unit was assigned to its current patrol because it could never seem to arrive at its assigned destinations on time. The General interpreted this as a serious fault and relegated them to the Isle of Plaxsy as a corrective measure.

Chu Jung has been in the military for less than eight years, but, because of his father's political power, he was given a commission and a unit to command. Unfortunately, he has no sense of direction and must constantly ask his men for bearings. Jealous of his quick and undeserved rise to power, his Lieutenants, Quon Yo and Led Palitt, have taken an intense dislike to him and never answer his questions truthfully. If it were not for Sergeant Feerfall, this company would never make it to the scene of a battle. Chu Jung is a small man of average abilities at everything except telling direction. He frequently gets lost in the trip from the barrack at Gishmesh to the galley at Tarantis.

50% of the company is always on patrol. 25 of them patrol near the castle in Hex 2126 while the others make the trip to Tarantis to set sail for the Isle of Plaxsy. The company's greatest achievement was when they arrived in time to save a company of Light Cavalry and a unit of Militia during the Battle of Dyrfirwall Wood. Their help was accidental, however, because they had been attempting to travel to Gishmesh after a routine patrol during Chu Jung's first few months of command.

The Roaring Lion - War Galley, Navy

This ship has a crew of two hundred men and is commanded by Captain Yangshoe. Their normal duties are to patrol the Winedark Sea north of Tarantis and to protect the coast from raids by troops of the Invincible Overlord. The crew consists of 150 rowers (50 belowdecks and 100 above), 30 Marines, and 20 Sailors. The belowdecks rowers wear no armor but are armed with Longswords in case they must defend the ship from boarding. The abovedecks rowers wear a Scale coat over a brown tunic but have no Helmets or Shields. The rowers and marines are also armed with Longswords, and the Sailors carry Cutlasses and Dirks. Besides a ram, the ship is equipped with two short-arm Catapults for long-range fights. The ship bears the flag of Atar the Lion, a white field bearing a black rampant Lion.

Captain Yangshoe has been a Sailor since he was shanghai'd to be a cabin boy for a pirate ship at the age of 8 years and finds that the life of a sea Captain for Atar's Navy is much safer than being the Captain of a pirate ship. Yangshoe lost his right hand in a sea battle and has replaced it with an iron hook. His face is heavily scarred from scratching himself with the hook; he tends to forget it is no longer a hand.

The best performance of the crew of the Roaring Lion was when they sunk 3 Overlord war galleys during the Battle of Bastinadi.

The Dragon Fish - War Galley, Navy

Like its sister ship, the Roaring Lion, the Dragon Fish has a crew of two hundred men. It is commanded by Captain Lungshan. The normal duty of the Dragon Fish is to patrol the Winedark Sea south of Tarantis. The crew consists of 150 rowers (50 belowdecks and 100 above), 30 Marines armed with Longbows and Broadwords, and 20 Sailors armed with Cutlasses and Dirks. The 50 rowers belowdecks are unarmored but have Longswords to defend the ship in case of hostile boarding, and the 100 abovedecks rowers wear Scale armor and are also armed with Longswords. 10 of the Sailors man the two Catapults which are mounted fore and aft and are used for missile warfare. In addition to the flag of Atar the Lion, the ship bears a white flag emblazoned with a Dragon Fish proper.

Captain Lungshan is a violent individual who dislikes repeating his orders. He has thick, straight, black hair and deep-set brown eyes. He is an excellent tactician at sea and has won many skirmishes without taking any serious damage to the ship. His officers fear and respect him, but a rumor of planned mutiny is spreading aboard the Dragon Fish.

When in port, 10% of the crew of the ship are always on harbor patrol. Their most prestigious battle was when they fought the legendary War Galley, the Pride of Pandora, during the Battle of Three Nations. Although the Dragon Fish prevailed, she took grave damage and had to be almost completely overhauled shortly thereafter.

Tarantine Militia

This unit is called upon when the city-state is at war. It consists of one hundred men armed with Slings and rocks as well as Longswords. During times of peace, the men of the militia go about their daily tasks. The militia unit is led by Mushan Guy, who is quite skilled with a Sling. He can predict within an inch exactly where his flung stone will hit a target. Mushan has trained his unit thoroughly, and, of all the Tarantine militia units available, they are the best. They helped to repel many would-be invaders with minimal losses during the Orc Uprising and the Battle of Dyrfirwall Wood. The unit wears whatever armor they can afford, but Atar provides each man with an iron Helmet crested by a blue plume. Twice a week, members of the unit help patrol the city.

Redflood Militia

This unit, based in Redflood, is called upon when Tarantis is at war. It consists of 100 men armed with Spears, Longswords, and Shields. They wear whatever armor they can afford, but they are issued Leather Helmets by Atar the Lion. The unit is led by Sergeant Tu Shou. The men of the militia normally go about their daily lives in times of peace but are called upon to patrol Redflood once per week.

Tu Shou is a proud man who takes his job as leader of a militia unit seriously. He spends much of his time patrolling Redflood or making requests for better equipment for his unit. His usual plan of attack is to ambush the enemy from behind whatever cover is available. The unit played an important part during the Troll Wars by capturing a company of Light Infantry and learning of the battle plans of the enemy army.

Gishmesh Militia

This unit is called upon whenever Gishmesh is threatened by attack. It consists of one hundred men armed with Battle Axes and wearing whatever armor they can afford and the Leather Helmets issued by Atar the Lion. During times of peace, they go about their daily lives, but, twice a week, they are called upon to help patrol Gishmesh and keep the peace. Their commander is Lieutenant Wang Mu, one of the better officers of the Tarantine Heavy Cavalry.

Lieutenant Mu, a heavy-set man with curly brown hair and brown eyes and well-versed in strategy and tactics, is of noble status and volunteered for duty as commander of a militia unit because he felt that, if they were not organized, they would be easily outmaneuvered by any military unit that they encountered. Believing the militia to be the second line of defense against invasion by land of the city state of Tarantis (the first being the forces of the two Provinces), he set about making his unit one of the crack militia units in the area. His favorite attack is by ambush. The unit played a prominent part in stopping a unit of Cavalry Heavy Horse during the Battle of Magain Flats.

Bard Citadel

This stronghold is owned by a 4th Level Bard and is also used by Shu Shar's company as a military outpost. The Bard's name is Chungko, and he has 110 of his own men located within his stronghold. The infantry unit uses his citadel as a lookout point to watch the sea traffic as it enters and leaves Dahute Bay. Chungko lets the company use his citadel as a lookout point because they help to protect him and his servants from attack.

Chungko is a man of mystery. No one knows where he and his followers came from or why. He bought the land on which his citadel is built and has been allowing the Tarantine Army to use his property for about three years. Chungko is a bald, medium-built man with a fair complexion and a thick, blond moustache.

Fighter's Citadel

The stronghold of Langmar the Fighter is located in Hex 2629. It is also used as a military outpost by Atar the Lion, who had a barrack built nearby to house his men and equipment. Langmar allows it because the presence of Atar's men provides more protection against attack and brings him additional revenue. At one time, Atar planned to attack the stronghold and occupy it for its strategic value, but an agreement was reached with Langmar to lease the land near his stronghold on which the barrack stands for 200 GP per month.

Langmar, a rugged-looking Fighter, has been mentioned in many local legends. He carries a magic Sword possessing many special properties. Rumor has it that Langmar is in league with several Demons planning to usurp Atar's position, but there is no hard evidence of this, so besides being a military outpost against foreign invaders, Atar's men are there to keep Langmar under surveillance.

All of Langmar's 150 men are armed with +1 Longswords and wear Banded armor over light green tunics and iron Helmets. They are CLS FTR, ALN LEX, LVL 1 - 5, HTK 30 - 35, ARM IBA, ACL 3, WPN +1 Longsword. Langmar has an extensive armory in his stronghold containing many Longswords, Spears, Crossbows, Longbows, Shields, Maces, and Flails.

Ho Chi's Castle

Ho Chi's Castle is located about five miles south of Gishmesh, and some of the armed forces of Tarantis are always on patrol there. Ho Chi is gracious about the forced protection by the men of Atar the Lion and occasionally provides a banquet for the troops complete with entertainment to break up the monotony of the military life.

Ho Chi purchased the land from Atar the Lion and built his castle on it with the understanding that it would also be used as a military outpost, although the troops are actually stationed in Gishmesh. He has many servants and slaves, and his castle is elaborately decorated and lavishly appointed. His female slaves sometimes serve as the means of entertainment of the troops. Ho Chi, an old and venerable man, has made his way successfully through life by meeting the challenges before him with cunning and imagination. His courtesy to the ruler of Tarantis is not without ulterior motive. The soldiers often unwittingly provide him with information about the city state and its defenses that he plans, in time, to put to his own use. His servants and followers respect him because of his fairness toward them, but he can be very severe toward any miscreant in his employ and prizes loyalty above nearly all other attributes in his followers.

Beggar (058) Haghead Row

Neron the Lame
FTR	CGN	022	010	010	002	016	042	163	171	053	044	103	None

Neron was cursed by a Witch after he slew her familiar seventeen years ago. Respected by the other Beggars, he is often fed by them, and they refer to Neron as their Guildmaster. Neron has limited soothsaying abilities, the results of which he often bestows upon his benefactors (PROB 40% accurate).

Slavering Ima
BEG	CNX	011	002	010	003	012	163	042	063	063	052	044	Club

Ima is a schizophrenic who often switches personalities in the middle of a conversation. She may then go berserk, afterwards falling unconscious. She is reputed to have killed a Vampire six years ago.

Beggar (060) Coldrake Lane

Kabby the Spotted
BEG	CNX	024	010	009	011	015	122	104	152	043	067	051	Hatchet

Kab is fairly spry for his advanced age and is reputed to be a former Wizard who was badly deformed while researching a powerful, ancient spell. A guardsman once gave Kab a gold piece and was promoted the next day. Other tales of good fortune following close on the heels of charity to this Beggar abound, and Kab shares much of his bounty with other Beggars.

This tavern and eating place is frequented by the worst of the Barbarians in Tarantis. The place always smells of unclean bodies and alcohol. It is owned by Blaine Asger, a former Barbarian who decided to open a place where his brother Barbarians could eat and drink without other people commenting on their habits. The Inn serves only Barbarians, and, although it is located in the center of town, others avoid it for fear of being killed if they get too close. Blaine serves stronger drinks to the Barbarians than most people drink, and they cost more. Ale: 5 SP, Beer: 10 CP, Mead: 10 SP, Wine (all kinds): 2 GP. He has five female slaves working for him, and his head cook is also his wife. The Inn serves very fine food. The house special is roast mutton, which costs 2 GP per serving. They also serve Pheasant (5 SP), Turkey (2 SP), Venison (5 SP), and Chicken (10 CP). Blaine's wife, Helga, is an excellent cook. She came from a very well-to-do home but was disinherited because she would not renounce her love for the Barbarian. She does not care if she gets no inheritance from her family so long as she has Blaine's love. Blaine is a big, strong man with curly black hair which he refuses to have cut. He has been known to get into fights because of his short temper; one night, he beat a nobleman nearly to death and spent three years in prison because of it. Although he is short-tempered, Blaine has many friends among the citizens because they know that he can be depended upon in times of trouble. His belligerent attitude has changed somewhat over the years thanks to Helga, who gives him all the gentle comfort he needs. He sometimes fears, however, that all the peace and quiet in his life will drive him mad and wishes that he could go adventuring again. He doesn't let Helga know how he feels, though, because he gave her his word when she agreed to marry him that he would settle down in one place for the rest of his life.

The Blue Moon Inn is situated on River Rat Row very near the Northgate. Luke Guru, the proprietor, is considered by the townspeople to be very strange. This Inn will not be recommended by many in Tarantis because most people are afraid of Luke, having heard many strange and gruesome tales about the Blue Moon Inn. It is frequented by adventurers from out of town who have heard the wild tales and let their curiosity get the better of them. Some say that anyone staying overnight at the Inn will have horrible nightmares of being hounded by a pack of wolves, brought down, and torn to shreds. Some say that anyone entering the Inn will never be seen again. Others say that Luke is a Demon of some sort. (Of course, hearing these stories should intrigue the players, and, if they have any curiosity at all, they should check the tales out.)

The truth of the matter is that Luke has been cursed with the mark of the Werewolf and prowls the woods at night, searching for prey. He is constantly hunting a cure, but most people are too frightened of him to associate with him, let alone help him. Those with whom he does entrust his secret and to whom he turns for a cure (which, obviously, he has yet to find) are always sworn to secrecy, so the rumors about his Inn continue unchecked and unexplained. Luke will pay a very high price for a cure if one can be found. 5,681 GP are hidden in a Wolf's head mounted on the wall over the bar.

The Boar's Head is run by Barlow Aldro, a one-time adventurer who came to Tarantis to find a wife and remained to become a respectable citizen. Barlow will serve anyone; he believes that all men are equal and treats all his customers the same regardless of race. His drinks are moderately priced from 5 CP to 2 GP. His shop is located at the edge of town; he chose this location in preference to one which Margie, his wife, selected just a block from her parents' home. Barlow prefers not to be too involved with his in-laws. The tavern is nicely furnished thanks to Margie, who has a flair for decorating. The tablecloths are white and the napkins are light green. Although Barlow has tried to impress upon Margie the idea that running a tavern is a man's job, she continues to offer advice and suggestions for redecorating and improving the clientele. The tavern is mostly frequented by wary adventurers seeking advice. Barlow knows much about Tarantis and the surrounding area (75% accurate), and he sells his information at reasonable prices. Ching's Chow (409) Black Rose Lane

Ching

FTR CNE 090 053 009 010 059 156 157 103 167 163 155 IKN

Ching runs a low-class eatery which is actually a front for his waterfront criminal activities. Ching is the leader of a gang of ruffians and tricksters who prey on strangers and travelers. So far, Ching has been lucky, and the forces of the law in Tarantis do not suspect that he is other than the usual waterfront riff-raff.

Ching does enough business with sailors, dockhands, and underworld characters in his seafood restaurant to eke out a meager living, but he is too greedy to settle for fortune cookies when he could have a fortune. He is smart enough, though, to realize that he must keep up appearances to fool the law. To this end, he requires the newest members of his gang to work in his restaurant, serving meals, fixing drinks, and washing dishes. This also relieves him of the necessity of hiring outside help that might become suspicious of his activities and report him to the authorities. Currently, he has Ta Lon (CLS THF, LVL 021, HTK 010, ACL 009, ARM 010, AGL 154, WPN DDG), Lo Yang (CLS THF, LVL 021, HTK 008, ACL 009, ARM 010, AGL 133, WPN DDG), My Chi (Fem, CLS FTR, LVL 021, HTK 012, ACL 007, ARM 030, AGL 122, WPN DRS), and Tiger Claw (Fem, CLS FTR, LVL 021, HTK 009, ACL 007, ARM 030, AGL 133, WPN DRS) working for him as serving people. Should the need arise, all four are good with Knives.

Ching has an elderly friend working for him as bartender. Old Chan (7th LVL Magic User of the School of Illusions) is very clever at eliciting information from people in such a circumspect manner that his victims seldom realize that they have said anything of importance. Second in command to Ching is Chong (CLS FTR, LVL 082, HTK 040, ACL 005, ARM 050, AGL 174, WPN ILS), who is in charge of 24 of the thugs in Ching's gang. These thugs vary in Fighting skill (17 at LVL 020 through 060) and Thieving skill (7 at LVL 030 through 060), but all carry iron Knuckle Dusters, Saps, and Garrotes, as does their leader, Chong.

Ching also has a "special task force" consisting of two Half-Elven Houri/Thief/Bards (LVL 050 in each), named Li "Sunflower" Ling and Mahyamuru "Lotus Blossom" Jivanum, and a Half-Elven Assassin/Houri (LVL 082/092) named Tasyam "Raven" Locanah. These three femmes fatale are among the most beautiful women of Tarantis (all have 189 CHA) and the most dangerous (all are ALN CNE). Ching uses them sparingly and only against powerful foes. They each have a magical Garrote (+2 to damage and +2 to attack) and Diamond Necklaces of Invisibility.

Cosmic Cart Cafe (410) Falcon Alley

Redbone Ash

MAG CNE 060 031 009 010 107 094 187 177 115 146 125 SQS

The Cosmic Cart is a very small but popular bar. It is visited mostly by Mages, Sages, and Alchemists, although an occasional Fighter or two may be found here; they are usually seeking advice from the others in matters of the occult. Redbone Ash is the proprietor of this nicely decorated, small establishment. The interior is paneled in glass with cut crystal accents. In the center of the room is a crystal statue of a Pegasus in flight. It is Redbone's most prized possession because the Pegasus is his favorite creature; he dreams of owning one as a pet some day. Because fighting is not allowed in the Cafe, Redbone doesn't take kindly to strangers and will be wary of them until he feels he can trust them not to brawl in his establishment. Ale: 1 SP, Wine: 2 SP, Firewater: 4 SP, Cider: 5 CP.

Treasure is kept in the wine cellar beneath the Cafe in a magically-sealed vault. The treasure consists of 669 GP, 87 SP, 5 large Emeralds worth 50 GP each, 4 Opals worth 40 SP each, a silver and brass Wand of Slumber, and a Cloak of Selective Magic Negation which is operable three times a day.

Coxy Tup

Coxy Tup runs the Cozy Cup Tavern, a hideaway for escaped prisoners and slaves, runaways, wayward husbands, and adventurers looking for unusual information about Tarantis and the surrounding area. There are usually 2 - 12 people of LVL 010 - 082 in the tavern during the day. Coxy Tup likes this kind of crowd and serves them diligently. He has a standing bet posted over his bar that anyone who can beat him at armwrestling gets a free drink, but, so far, everyone who tries has had to pay for their own drinks. Two slaves dressed in revealing costumes work as barmaids to serve the customers. His bar is located in the poorer part of town near the waterfront, and his drinks are fairly priced. Ale: 2 SP, Wine: 6 SP, Hard Liquor: 1 - 30 GP.

Dragon's Blood Tavern (412) Tajal Din Row

Ulse Lai

FTR NGX 061 035 007 030 084 082 124 112 172 163 103 IDH

This tavern was named by the owner to commemorate his killing of a Dragon during a solo adventure. On the one hand, this claim by the owner of the tavern, Ulse Lai, seems highly improbable since Ulse is small and weak-looking and usually gets pushed around unless he has his bodyguard (CLS FTR, ALN NEX, LVL 030, HTK 015, ACL 004, ARM 060, AGL 123, WPN IRS) with him. He depends upon potions for defense when he goes adventuring, which he seldom gets to do because few groups would risk their security to take him, and he stocks an abundance of potions in his tavern for this purpose. On the other hand, the strange tale of the single-handed slaying of a Dragon by this meek little man could be quite believable by the very fact that it is so outlandish that only a fool would dare to tell it if it were not the truth, and Ulse Lai is definitely not a fool. In addition, everything about the tavern is reminiscent of the event which must surely have been the greatest in the little man's life if the tale is true. Everything in the tavern except the drinks is red. The walls, tables, and chairs are all painted dark red. The glasses are of a red tint. The tablecloths are of red linen, and behind the counter, hanging on the wall, is a mounted Dragon's head. Granted, it is a small Dragon, but it is a Dragon, nevertheless. In the mouth of the Dragon are two of Ulse's potions, and there is a bag containing 20 potions located in an invisible cask which appears only when the secret words (Loo Dorans) are spoken.

FTR NEX 021 008 009 010 051 136 102 097 112 115 116 XRS

The Dragon's Lair smells as bad as its name implies. In the middle of the room is a bronze statue of a Dragon. A small access hatch in the stomach of the Dragon statue opens to a compartment in which Zeno keeps his treasure. No one but Zeno knows of the existence of the cache, and it is so well concealed that there is only a 5% chance of discovery. The treasure consists of 708 GP, 256 SP, and 28 CP. This money is kept in a small Onyx chest worth 383 GP. Zeno is a slob and never bothers to clean the bar. He never cleans himself, for that matter. To make matters worse, he keeps seventeen house cats that he does not allow outdoors. The stench in the bar is almost unbearable, and it is frequented only by Half-Orcs and their ilk. Needless to say, Zeno does not do much business, but he will have a lot of information (only 50% correct) to sell for the right price.

Chio Futa

THF LEA 091 034 009 014 061 167 106 117 187 186 167 UDG

The Dueling Swords Cafe is frequented mostly by the Guards in the city. The wine and beer are inexpensive and good. The reason for this can be traced to the fact that they are usually stolen. Chio Futa, the owner of the Dueling Swords, runs a fencing operation for stolen goods from the back room of his establishment. Some of the city Guards are involved in his operation; the merchandise is usually taken from traveling merchants "arrested" for some minor infraction of the law and then released when they (voluntarily or not) give the "arresting officers" a portion of their goods to avoid spending time in the city jail. Other merchandise is simply stolen from passing adventurers. Bribery, blackmail, and assassination are just a few of the other ways Chio makes extra money. Although he is unaware of it, someone has hired an Assassin to kill him. Chio's son, Vitru (CLS THF, LVL 062, HTK 031, ACL 009, ARM 010, AGL 174, WPN BTK), helps him at the Cafe. Vitru is well aware of his father's activities and is making every effort to learn the business.

Lep Stax

MAG CEX 092 046 009 010 031 165 184 154 183 174 123 WFS

The Eight Star Tavern is a bawdy bar located in the vilest section of town. The drinks are cheap, and the customers are usually rowdy. The featured entertainment consists of a raucous band; the band is enthusiastic, if unskilled, and the customers hardly seem to notice the din created in the name of music. The noise of the band, however, is no mischance. It is a planned cover for the activities being conducted beneath the main floor of the Eight Star Tavern. Secret meetings take place in a concealed room behind the wine cellar nearly every night. Lep Stax, the owner of the Tavern, is one of the powerful members of an underground organization dedicated to the overthrow of the government. Spies from this group have infiltrated portions of the government network and send reports to Lep Stax on the activities of the various governmental bodies. Although he is suspected of treason and has been arrested several times, Lep has never been convicted of hostile activities toward the government due to an astonishing lack of proof. The government agents which have been sent as spies to the Eight Star Tavern have never returned, and few are now willing to risk it. The bar is tended by Lep Stax's slave (CLS FTR, ALN CEX, LVL 010, HTK 027, ACL 009, ARM 010, WPN IBS) while Lep attends to more important business below-stairs. Hidden beneath the bed in a concealed compartment is a stash of weapons that the organization has been collecting to use when their plans for the overthrow of the government are complete.

The Firevine Guesthouse is owned and operated by Tweedel T. Rumpart, an eccentric old man hailing from Andalusia. Tweedel is a veteran campaigner, but he is now too old and senile to adventure any more. He is cared for by his two daughters, Hali (CLS FTR, LVL 072, HTK 040, ACL 009, ARM 010, AGL 174, WPN SBA) and Lani (CLS FTR, LVL 081, HTK 041, ACL 009, ARM 010, AGL 164, WPN SRS), who also help him tend the bar and clean up after the guests. Tweedel resents the fact that his daughters think he cannot take care of himself, and he gets very upset if anyone mentions his health or his age. Usually, he will offer to fight the offender "with one hand tied behind me back!" and his daughters must then remove the hapless individual from the premises and calm their father. The daughters are robust girls and experienced Fighters; they learned everything they know of fighting from their father. They learned nothing at all from their mother, who ran away with a sailor when they were young, so the food at the Guesthouse borders on inedible. The drinks, however, are good. Ale: 5 CP, Mead: 4 CP, Wine: 3 CP. Their treasure is hidden under the bar in a triple-locked metal box and consists of 325 GP, 51 SP, and 122 CP as well as a +2 Battle Axe.

This unusual establishment is the only smoking bar in the City State. It appears, at first glance, to be a regular bar, and the usual drinks are served at prices about average for the City State. However, a large cabinet of small drawers is also behind the bar; each drawer contains a different aromatic, exotic tobacco imported from all over the known world by Blanx Crossis, the proprietor of the tavern. To the right and left of the main bar are doors which open into small smoking rooms containing sleeping cots and assorted smoking paraphernalia. Every sort of smoking device known can be found in this establishment as well as any type of material which can be smoked. The establishment is favored by Dwarves and city officials who can afford the sometimes outrageous prices of the special blends that Blanx Crossis offers his customers. This tavern is owned by one of the most popular people in Tarantis and serves only the most distinguished of the citizens. The proprietor of the tavern is Gurney Heward, who has become extremely rich and famous from his association with the upper classes who frequent his establishment. He was not unfamiliar with the ways of the rich, however, when he opened his tavern. He is the youngest son of a minor noble of another area, but he decided to seek his fortune in adventuring rather than accept the crumbs of dignity and fortune that his older brother, who would inherit most of their father's estates, might mete out to him. In his travels, he learned of the different exotic drinks offered in other lands. Finding that the life of a wandering adventurer did not suit his cosmopolitan tastes, Gurney settled in Tarantis and opened a small, elite drinking establishment, serving not only the normal drinks available but also the exotic ones that he discovered in foreign lands. His prices vary from 20 CP to 100 GP, and his customers include the Royal Guard and the most respected and wealthy nobles of the city. Gurney's serving wenches are among the most attractive in the city; they see to the needs of the drinking customers only and provide no extracurricular activities.

Though young, Gurney is intelligent, strong, and good-looking. He is considered to be the most eligible bachelor in the city. He loves the theatre and rarely misses a new performance. His taste in clothes, wine, and food are impeccable, and he never lacks for an attractive companion. He keeps his treasure in an empty barrel in his wine cellar. It consists of 8,260 GP, 281 SP, and 15 gems valued at 1,000 GP each.

The Happy Hour is a tavern that will serve almost anyone. For this reason, it is frequented by young people who have not yet formed any racial or social prejudices. The tables are cleared by the one waitress whenever she gets the chance, but the youths do not seem to mind the general mess and sometimes simply clear the tables themselves. Located in the center of the city near the marketplace and easily accessible to anyone, the tavern is usually crowded right up to midnight when the bar closes. It is decorated with the heads of many monsters, and the owner of the tavern, Stredgx Consti, who tends the bar himself, enjoys regaling the gullible youths with tall tales of how he single-handedly captured and killed each and every one of them. In reality, most were purchased from adventurers down on their luck. Stredgx encourages the patronage of the younger generation because they are easily made drunk on his potent beverages and provide easy pickings for his thievery when in that condition. Most of his drinks are laced with a special drug which induces a feeling of happiness and well being and causes a certain amount of carelessness about personal possessions that Stredgx finds most useful.

The Hideaway Tavern caters to the citizens who do not wish their romantic liaisons to be discovered and is often visited by some of the most prominent people of Tarantis. Booths arranged along the walls of the establishment have privacy curtains which may be drawn shut when the booths are in use, and the lighting is extremely poor except within the booths. A cheerful-looking bartender draws the drinks which are served by several beautiful and very discreet waitresses. Rac Zsis, the owner of the Hideaway, has become a successful and powerful man with this venture. Naturally, any official who had made use of his establishment would hesitate to refuse whatever reasonable (or not so reasonable) request made of him by Rac Zsis. Rac does not press his advantage, however, and his business transactions always run smoothly. He fears only the occasional irate spouse of a customer. Hogg Eudo

Hogg Eudo named his tavern after his father, a Fighter with an iron hand. His father lost his real hand in a minor war when Hogg was only a baby. After the war, Hogg's father owned a prosperous farm which he and Hogg's mother operated until they both died in a fire that claimed the life of Hogg's younger brother as well. Before that, however, Hogg had moved from his father's house and opened his tavern. Now, he tries to run both the tavern and the farm. He has seriously considered selling one or the other and might look favorably on a generous offer for either. The tavern is located in the middle-class section of town near the general store. He sells all the normal drinks in addition to a special concoction served in an iron Gauntlet and named, appropriately, the Iron Hand. The Iron Hand is an extremely potent drink, and the soldiers and mercenaries of the city make a sport of betting on how many one or the other of their champions can drink before passing out. The rule is that the drink must be imbibed standing up because the participants get more enjoyment out of seeing the loser topple from a standing position than from a sitting one. Many people frequent the tavern, and Hogg holds some sort of special event every night. Mondays are two-for-the-price-of-one days (Iron Hand drinks are excluded). On Tuesdays, the customers are allowed to entertain with singing, dancing, or whatever takes their fancy. On Wednesday, games of knucklebones are organized, and on Thursday other games such as armwrestling and darts are held. Friday is the day for tall tale contests in which the winner who tells the best adventure story, true or not, gets a free Iron Hand. Saturday is Ladies' Day, and all drinks are half-priced to females. On these occasions, male dancers are sometimes employed as entertainment, which is only fair because, on Sunday, ladies are not allowed in the bar. On Sunday, a special show for men only takes place which features singers, jugglers, magicians, comediennes, and exotic dancers. Hogg enjoys running his tavern, and it does a brisk business. He has had many offers of partnership, but he turns them all down.

Hogg is very tall and weighs around 350 pounds. He is a clean person, contrary to anything his name might imply, and goes to the Myrrha Massage Parlor frequently. He is fond of colognes and uses only the best. He is very careful with money and keeps all his financial holdings in the bank. Although, when he was younger, he longed for adventure, he is now content with his life as a prosperous and popular innkeeper.

When Guido Sardul inherited this tavern from his father, he renamed it The Laughing Bear to commemorate his supposed slaying of a Bear with a single stroke of his mighty Sword. This is Guido's story, and no one knows if it is true or not since he only hunts alone. Nevertheless, a very large Bear's head adorns the wall above the bar. People whisper behind his back that he is a drunk and unfit to own a tavern, and they are probably right. Only adventurers from out of town ever stop at this tavern; people in town often recommend his tavern to strangers to keep troublemakers out of the more respectable establishments. In addition to the poor quality of the drinks, another drawback to frequenting the tavern is the Rattlesnake that Guido gives the run of the place, refusing to put his pet in a cage for the protection of his patrons. Because his business is poor, Guido has been to the bank for several loans and is on the verge of being arrested for nonpayment of his debts. Oddly, the prospect of spending time in jail is not one of his worries, but he is concerned about what might become of his pet if that should happen. Mergatroid the Mischievous (Gnome)

ILL CGN 087 043 009 010 078 124 178 103 155 177 157 DKN

The Old Axe is primarily a hangout for Dwarves, Gnomes, and Halflings (in that order). They come from all over the city and the surrounding countryside to guzzle the Ale and swap stories. As befits the clientele, the public area is all set below ground; the Inn consists of the ground floor and the first (and only) level above ground. The Old Axe is owned by two old friends, Jak the Axe (Dwarven Battle Axe +2 and Hand Axe +1) and Mergatroid the Mischievous (Gnome, 8th Level Illusionist and 7th Level Thief, Knuckleduster +1 and Rapier +1). Jak is a staid individual who tends to enjoy watching the action rather than participating in it. Mergatroid, on the other hand, likes to get into the thick of things and is very active. Both can eat and drink great quantities and have the overhanging bellies to prove it.

Working as bouncers are six Dwarves wearing Chainmail and armed with Foot Maces and Knuckle Dusters. Eight female Gnomes work as waitresses and servants (all are 3rd LVL Fighters); Jak and Mergatroid tend the bar. Three times a week, musical entertainment is provided by four Dwarven Bards who live in the Inn. They provide this service in lieu of rent.

This bar is favored by the younger crowd, but a few of the older generation who enjoy the company of youths will occasionally drop in for a few drinks and a round of tall tales. The Pebble and Pot is a clean, safe bar, and the management frowns on rowdies. As long as no fighting breaks out, however, everyone is allowed to drink at the Pebble and Pot. The bar is run by Petri and Kora Korin who established it to provide a place where people could have some fun and a few drinks without getting into trouble. Petri and Kora come from the village of BokoZIA, 40 miles north of Tarantis. Petri is tall and has jet black hair, and Kora is short and has very long, blonde hair. They have been married for eight years and live in the back of the bar. They have no children, but they do have a very spoiled magical dog named Zora. Zora guards their little hoard of treasure, 58 GP, 29 SP, and 281 CP, and keeps intruders and ruffians away.

Bell keeps a collection of weaponry beneath the false bottoms of several clothing chests. One of the clothing chests has a second false bottom below the first in which is contained a bag containing 3,000 GP, a gold ring worth 200 GP, and a +2 Dagger.

The Playhouse caters to anyone with money to spend. In it, Peri Polter has created a world of fantasy where, for the right price, the customer can live the fantasy of his or her choice. The Playhouse employs five very powerful Illusionists (CLS ILL, LVL 143 - 174, HTK 030, 042, 028, 029, 038) who can conjure up nearly anything one might desire. The games and fantasies that are lived out here are kept very private and discreet and never go beyond the walls of Polter's Playhouse. Because it does such a constant business, reservations for a session at the Playhouse must be made at least two weeks in advance and paid for at the time the reservation is made. The cost ranges from 40 GP per session to 1,600 GP per session, depending on the fantasy required. An extremely unusual or extraordinary fantasy that would require a lot of work to prepare might run up to 3,500 GP, but Peri is willing to bargain. The Playhouse is a great tourist attraction and is located next to the palace wall on Southgate Road. Because he does such a great deal of business, Peri is very rich; he keeps most of his money in the bank, but he also keeps some "spare change" (about 700 GP) in the Playhouse for miscellaneous expenses.

Kaneal Pigcton

FTR LEN 031 029 009 010 075 146 179 155 134 156 137 SDG

The owner of this Inn, Kaneal Pigcton, is a sneaky, weasel-like individual. Kaneal will try to extract information from his customers by masquerading as a concerned, compassionate father-figure. Once he gains his victim's confidence, he will try to use whatever information he has been given to blackmail the parties concerned. Kaneal doesn't do this for the money; he thinks of it as some kind of game. He leads a boring life and thinks that this type of behavior spices it up. He practices this craft only on young and inexperienced (or very unintelligent) travelers, leaving the more experienced and wiser adventurers alone.

The Inn is clean, the food is passable, and the prices are reasonable. Stables are located in the back of the Inn for boarding horses; the cost is 3 SP per night. Three indentured slaves work in the stables. They are CLS FTR, LVL 011, HTK 017, 016, 018, WPN None. 3,067 GP-worth of treasure is kept in the wine cellar guarded by two trained attack dogs.

The Red Beard Inn is a combination restaurant and bar. It is frequented by most of the respectable citizens of the city. Located in one of the most beautiful parts of Tarantis, the Red Beard does a flourishing business due to its excellent cuisine, good service, elegant atmosphere, and passable drinks. Dar Bek, the proprietor of the bar, has become very wealthy in this business. He is assisted by his wife, Grieta, who works as chief cook, his two daughters, Seta and Mya, who serve as waitresses, and his son, Jopor (CLS MAG, LVL 052, HTK 026, ACL 007, ARM 030, AGL 143, WPN DDG) to whom he leaves the management of the bar. The Red Dog Tavern is a "seconds" tavern owned by Paystar Melator. Paystar buys the Beer and Ale that is rejected by the better establishments; consequently, he serves some of the worst drinks in town. Most people in town do not frequent this tavern, so the poor of the city, the Beggars, have the place to themselves. Travelers sometimes stop at the Red Dog for information; Paystar seems to know a great deal about the City State and the surrounding area and is very talkative. He is also very gullible and can be easily tricked. His prices on Beer and Ale are 5 CP to 25 GP, but he will bargain. Behind the bar is a box containing 15 CP, 10 SP, and 3 GP. In the back room of the tavern, in a sack on a table, are 100 CP, 150 SP, and 22 GP.

The owner of this tavern, Samsu Puf, enjoys the company of his pet Wolf more than he does that of Humans. However, being a practical man, he decided that, in order to provide himself with a steady income, he should have some sort of business. With his brother, he opened the Roaming Wolf, naming it after his own nickname. Samsu sells all the normal drinks in addition to one of which he learned during his many travels which seems to be a favorite of all who visit his tavern. However, Samsu is an unpredictable man with a bad case of wanderlust, and he finds it difficult to stay long in one place. Periodically, he packs a few belongings in a knapsack and, with his pet Wolf at his heels, disappears for a few months on some wild adventure or other. When he returns, he always brings odd souvenirs which he sells to the curious of Tarantis. When Samsu is not at the tavern, his brother takes over. His brother is plotting to get him out of the business completely because it brings in a good profit which the brother does not want to share with Samsu.

Trost Rall

The owner of the Roaring Bull is a bullfighter on the side. Hung along the walls are the heads of Bulls over which he has achieved victory. The drinks are fairly priced from 5 CP to 15 GP, and they are worth the price. His establishment is located on the corner of the block next to the bank so that people can get their money out of the bank and spend it without having to walk too far. Trost has four female slaves serving his customers, and he does not allow anyone to annoy them. His tavern is ornately furnished with standard tables covered with red tablecloths and sporting red napkins.

Trost is a big man with broad soulders, a thin moustache, and a beard. He loves music and seafood, and, when he is not in his own tavern, he can be found at the Kismet Cafe. He is a bullfighter as a hobby, not a profession, but he will take all bets that there is no bull that can stop him. However, he fears that, one day, he will be wrong and will fight a bull that will seriously wound him or end his life. His fierce pride will not allow him to pass up a bet made by another regarding his prowess with the bulls, but he no longer actively seeks them out as he once did. Trost keeps all his treasure beneath the false bottom of an apparently-empty chest behind a few empty barrels. The treasure consists of 50 CP, 288 SP, and 197 GP.

Only officers of ships are allowed to drink in the Seafarer. Although it is located only a half-block away from the less-than-savory Waterfront Tavern, the Seafarer exhibits none of the sleaziness that proliferates on the waterfront. It is highly recommended by Captains of ships and other high-ranking sailors. Although the drinks cost a bit more than average, they are of excellent quality, and the clientele considers the atmosphere to be impeccable. Ale: 10 SP, Beer: 10 CP, Mead: 15 SP, Wine: 10 SP to 3 GP. The decor of the Seafarer is distinctly nautical. The bartender wears a sailor's outfit and has an eyepatch, and there is an anchor hanging on the wall. The tablecloths are of canvas, and models of many ships are displayed on a shelf behind the bar. The owner of the Seafarer, Gar Drag, is known by most of the officers who come to the tavern because he is the former Captain of the ship, Cutan. He became a tavern owner after an accident with a falling mast caused him to lose his left leg. He lives a quiet, simple life; although he enjoys the companionship of the men who visit the Seafarer, he sometimes longs for the feel of a deck beneath his foot and the sound of waves lapping at the prow of his vessel.

Run by Kimball Estoc, this Cafe is named for the hourglass which sits upon the bar. It is filled with powdered silver, and it cannot be removed because it is nailed to the bar. The Sands is frequented by traveling merchants and the more prominent people of the city. The prices for food and drink are somewhat high, but the quality is excellent. Kimball originally came from the village of Paldoucis, but she left at an early age when her parents died under mysterious circumstances and she was sent to Tarantis to live with her aunt. On the journey to Tarantis, she found the hourglass filled with silver powder along with a small knapsack full of gold. She hid these items from her aunt until she was of an age to leave the protection of the older woman. Then, she used her secret fortune to purchase and outfit the Silver Sands. The powder is actually platinum powder and is worth 1,500 GP. Kimball employs two serving girls, Ariadne and Bella. Both girls are hard workers and are amply repaid for their efforts. In the basement of the Silver Sands is a large chest filled with 550 SP and 280 GP, the remnants of her find and the proceeds of her business. The chest is guarded by a Boa Constrictor.

A marble fountain is situated along the east wall and pours scented water into a marble catchbasin. The floor of the Cafe is dirt, however. Planted in the floor are an assortment of plants and trees which receive sunlight through glass-covered holes in the marble ceiling. The Cafe is run by two Nymphs, Casmira and Starr. They came from the Dyrfirwall Woods two years ago and sold several of their Emeralds to buy this Cafe. Casmira is of medium height and build with blonde hair, and Starr is short and slender with auburn hair. Halflings and Elves are the main patrons of the Rock, but a Human or two can sometimes be found. Laronda Curtar is very jealous of the two Nymphs because her husband is constantly raving about what great beauties they are, and she would do practically anything to sabotage the Rock and cause the two Nymphs to leave the area. The emblem of a Dragon's head adorns the door to this tavern. The owner is an elderly, withered man named Janvel Swain. Once a man of quality and vigor, Janvel had the misfortune to run afoul of a Sorcerer who cast a spell upon him which deprived him of most of his energy and caused him to age prematurely. Though only 35 years old, Janvel appears to be 75. While he continues with his normal life, Janvel is continually searching for a way to reverse the effects of the spell. He carries a deep-seated hatred for the Sorcerer who treated him so unkindly. Unknown to Janvel, the Sorcerer is in the city for a meeting with the ruler of Tarantis. If Janvel knew of this, he would probably attempt to find and kill the Sorcerer. Once a proud man with thick, black, curly hair and a thick, neatly-trimmed beard, he is now stooped with a rough white beard and gray hair. He still wears fine clothes, but he does not go adventuring as he used to do. However, he retains his personal armor and weaponry in a chest in his house, although he rarely travels farther than the marketplace. Beneath a trap door in the floor of his home, Janvel has hidden 408 SP, 2,965 GP, and three Jade pieces worth 450 GP each.

Sudrah of the East is a kindly soul given to generous acts of charity. He operates the Flophouse to provide shelter and food (mostly bread and soup) to the poor. Anyone is welcome, but those with coins are expected to contribute whatever they can afford. The only rule that Sudrah enforces is that no one may engage in the mental, verbal, or physical abuse of another staying in the Flophouse. Sudrah views his establishment as a haven for the poor and harried.

Actually, Sudrah is very rich, but most of his wealth is being held in trust by his relatives in Arroworth (Ebony Coast, Campaign Map 13, Hex 5206). Sudrah has many friends in the lands between Tarantis and Arroworth, including Pariksit the Bold (Castle in Hex 3229, Tarantis Campaign Map 4), the Mountain Minstrel (Citadel in Hex 5132, Tarantis Campaign Map 4), and Nicstrin of Orestone (Village in Hex 4905, Ebony Coast Campaign Map 13).

Sudrah has a companion who runs the Flophouse when he leaves on his yearly vacations to his home. Her name is Sparsa Lotus Blossom; she tries to emulate Sudrah in his operation of the Flophouse. She is just as kind and generous as he is, but she is not as well able to fend for herself. Sudrah is skilled in Enchantment Magic (9th Level), Air Magic (5th Level), and Sage Abilities (3rd Level). This tavern is run by a woman, Thyra Dogny, who claims that she is able to foretell the future. For a small fee (25 GP), she will reveal your past as well as your future. Thyra is well known for her practice of fortune telling, and she has told the future for many of the high-ranking government officials. It is rumored that her soothsaying is responsible for the demise of several of the nobles of the city who were unwilling to meet the future she revealed to them. Of course, others argue that, if she could foretell the future, she would tell those who would commit suicide upon hearing her predictions that this is what they will do. Because she doesn't do that, people say, her predictions become false. Actually, her predictions are mostly false. Whatever is true is only true by accident. She enjoys seeing the rich and powerful tremble at her words and quake at what the future supposedly holds for them, so she invents horrible tales of riches lost, scandal, deaths of loved ones, disfigurement, and

Finbar Griggs

FTR NGX 031 016 004 060 106 169 136 082 148 145 124 IBS

This tavern was named by the townspeople because it burned down so many times. The charred sign over the door actually reads, "Griggs' Tavern", but most people have forgotten the original name of the place. The owner is Finbar Griggs, a one-time adventurer who settled in Tarantis after an encounter with a supernatural force that nearly cost him his life. Finbar decided that the quiet life suited him better, and hearing the exploits and adventures of others who patronize his establishment keeps him happy. Although Finbar insists that no weapons be carried in his tavern, it seems that, once in a while, something will cause a fire at the Flaming Tavern. The last time, it was a dispute between two hot-headed Second Level Mages with Fire Bolts at their disposal which caused the tavern to be ignited. Before that, a Halfling smuggled a pet Fire Lizard into the tavern, and the beast accidentally caught the curtains aflame when the Halfling had passed out under the table. The Halfling died in that incident, but the Fire Lizard escaped. If the tavern burns again, Finbar Griggs will not be able to afford to have it rebuilt; he has invested his entire fortune in a gravity-fed sprinkling system that keeps the place constantly damp unless a drought is in progress. As a result of the dampness of the building, Griggs has been plagued by Snakes and Giant Slugs, so he has a pet Mongoose that roams freely about the building helping to eradicate these pests.

Finbar is a well-muscled man with a receding hairline and a neatly-trimmed moustache. His hair is brown, as are his eyes. All of his earnings are kept in the cashbox under the counter. The cashbox contains 10 SP, 5 GP, and one Aquamarine valued at 15 GP.

This tavern is frequented by those people who want to have a drink in peace and quiet. The owner of the tavern, Heron Wyler, ensures that they enjoy this unusual privilege by asking all to check their weapons at a special guardroom installed for that purpose and by providing plenty of muscle in the form of burly bouncers to remove any undesirable element with all due speed. Heron himself constantly circulates among the patrons of his tavern, making sure that everyone is happy and that all goes well. Heron is a very kind and understanding person who tries to be friends with everyone. He has given money to many charities and is thinking of adopting a son to be his heir. His tavern, although crowded with furniture and guests, is always kept clean. The bouncers are dressed in white robes and have no weapons other than their not-inconsiderable strength. Heron believes that violence begets violence and only fights when it is absolutely necessary. No one has ever seen him fight, but it is rumored that he once broke a man's neck with his bare hands. Heron looks like a man who could easily do such a thing. He is tall and muscular with well-developed shoulders and arms and a thick, bull-like neck. He has reddish brown hair worn to his shoulders and a curly red beard and moustache. His eyes are blue, and he is left-handed. He does not keep much cash at the Tavern of Purity; most of his holdings are in the bank.

The Topless Tavern (454) Cut Throat Alley

Lo Ping

MAG CEX 041 023 007 030 085 116 178 092 126 147 176 DDG

This tavern is named the Topless Tavern because no one is allowed in who is wearing a covering of any sort on the upper torso. As a result, it is a favorite hangout for those with body tattoos; a great deal of competition goes on in comparing the artistic qualities of the myriad tattoos displayed in the Topless Tavern, and none is more proud of his (or her) collection than the owner of the tavern himself, Lo Ping, whose entire upper torso is one massive work of art. This tavern is not usually frequented by females, but the waitresses and barmaids are female, much to the delight of the majority of the customers, and most of them are also heavily tattooed. Lo Ping believes that the customer is always right and is ready to provide whatever his customer might desire to be satisfied. He has been known to deal with many of the criminal element of Tarantis and uses black magic to control a Demon which he plans to employ to kill a very popular official of the realm. The drinks at the Topless Tavern run the average price of Ale: 1 SP, Beer: 10 CP, Wine: 5 SP, and Mead: 3 SP. In addition to his tavern business, Lo Ping also rents sleeping rooms on the second story of the building. They are small and not lavishly furnished, but each provides a double bed with sheets, blankets, and pillows, a wash basin on a stand, and a small clothes chest with a towel and a hand mirror lying atop it. No light is provided, but Lo Ping will furnish a candle in a holder if it is requested. Aside from his interest in tattoos, Lo Ping is very fashion conscious. All his clothes are tailor-made of black silk and are always at the height of fashion.

Located on the north side of town, the proprietors of the Universal endeavor to satisfy their customers' every possible desire. Exotic dancing girls, imported wines, and reasonable prices are just a few of the things that cause people to flock to the Universal every night. Richrob Riff, the proprietor, is a jolly old man who gained his name and his fame in his younger days by robbing from the rich and giving to himself. Richrob's wife, Rossetta, is in charge of the dancing girls and the wine list. Their son, Pu, is the bartender, and his wife, Sungi, waits tables. The Universal charges 5 SP just to get in the door, and then it usually costs another 5 SP to get a table. All types of customers are encouraged except for the much-hated Orcs. There is a side room which, for 30 SP, can be rented for a hour of dalliance. It is comfortably furnished, and an inside bolt provides an extra measure of privacy. Rossetta knows much (correct) information concerning individuals such as Atar the Lion, Larette Lafaite, and Monact the Canny.

Waterfront Tavern (456) Kings Row

Sert Wasp

FTR NEX 092 052 004 060 063 181 143 122 152 189 102 IRS

The Waterfront Tavern is located on Kings Row next to the north gate of the city leading to the docks. It is frequented by sailors who have been to sea for a long time. When any ship docks, this is usually the first place the hands stop to spend their hard-earned wages. The bar serves many different hard liquors as well as Ale: 3 SP, Beer: 5 CP, Mead: 10 SP, and Wine: 2 GP. The Waterfront Tavern is run by Sert Wasp, who also runs a ring of Thieves and Harlots. Though always dressed in tattered clothes, Sert does, in fact, make quite a profit from his various ventures. He has a crude disposition and sometimes releases his hostilities by beating his slaves. He keeps none of his financial holdings at the tavern with the exception of the cashbox, which contains 121 GP, 30 SP, and 36 CP.

Whistle Twotone and his fiance, Dori Wai, run this quaint but dark establishment. The Inn has a good reputation as a clean and mellow place. However, after a few drinks, Whistle will usually start a religious discussion with somebody in the bar. Very seldom do these discussions end in a fight, but, if the other person disagrees with Whistle, he will usually ask that person to leave. He will then buy the rest of the customers a round of drinks. As a result of his liberal spending habits and his custom of buying the drinks, the Weeping Willow is only moderately prosperous despite its wide popularity. Dori is a very beautiful young lady with dark brown hair and large brown eyes. Although Whistle is not the jealous type, he will bounce anyone out of the building who tries to molest her. The house drink is a mixture of coconut juice and a mysterious clear liquid with an unusually high intoxication level. This drink is called a Zombie and costs 14 GP. Two of these are all the management will allow any customer to purchase in one night. Ale: 10 CP, Grog: 15 CP, and Wine: 5 SP are also sold here.

The White Wall Tavern (458) Kings Row

Surv Ova

CLR LGX 112 063 004 060 165 186 143 187 154 174 166 WMF

The White Wall Tavern is located near the marketplace next door to the Flower Shop. It is frequented by people of Good Alignment, but some strange-looking characters have occasionally been seen in and around it. It is run by Serv Ova, who has been in a secret battle against Evil most of his life. His mission began when he killed a Demon while hunting in the woods. He uses the tavern as a source of income to fund the war he wages in secret. Surv Ova makes an appearance at the tavern every now and then to prevent his secret from being discovered, but he leaves the everyday running of the business to his bartender, a small, rat-like man named Parttu. The walls of the tavern are painted white, and the tavern is always kept clean by the white-robed waitress. The White Wall has very good drinks at the standard prices. Ale: 1 SP, Beer: 5 CP, Mead: 5 SP, Average Wine: 5 SP, Good Wine: 7 SP, and Imported Wine: 1 GP. In the back room of the tavern, which serves as Surv Ova's office, is a Prayer Scroll, as well as prayer beads of gold and ivory worth 125 GP and a box of incense.

Wildcat Inn (459) Dove Street

Pan Sur

CLR NNN 081 036 004 060 168 175 154 181 178 173 053 IME

The Wildcat Inn is a hotel as well as a restaurant and a tavern. On the first floor are the restaurant and tavern facilities. The second and third floors serve as the hotel area; each floor contains ten rooms, each of which can be rented for 1 GP per night. The accommodations do not differ significantly from room to room. When unoccupied, the rooms are always neat and orderly. Each room has at least one window which can be closed against the night air by interior shutters. The rooms each contain a bed with sheets and blankets, a table with a chair and a lantern, a clothing chest, and a wardrobe. Pan Sur named the Inn for the unusual and exotic meats served. The prices are somewhat extravagant, but the wealthy of Tarantis do not seem to object, and a reserved table at the Wildcat is a prestige item. The restaurant is lavishly set with green linen tablecloths and napkins and pewter service. The walls are covered in green watered silk above oak wainscoting, and thick green carpets cover the floor. Between the carpeted areas, oak parquet flooring can be seen. The house specialties are Griffon: 50 GP, Roc: 75 GP, Displacer Beast: 27 GP, Dragon: 90 GP, and Chimera: 40 GP. The Ale and Wine are of excellent quality, and the prices are tolerable. Ale: 5 GP, Average Wine: 20 GP, Good Wine: 50 GP per bottle, and Imported Wine: 100 GP and up. Pan Sur keeps eight slaves waiting on the tables (CLS FTR, ALN NXN, LVL 021, HTK 022 - 030, ACL 009, ARM 010, WPN None), some of whom harbor notions of escaping. The bar is always filled with cheerful music and people having a good time. The bartender is a close friend of Pan Sur named Hoc Fan. When not selling drinks, he makes himself busy polishing the bar, the silverware, and the glasses. Hoc Fan is tall and burly and, when the need arises, he doubles as the bouncer. This is rarely necessary because the clientele consists of the wealthy of the city, who are also usually well behaved.

Zorah's House of Fortune (460) Itutmish Lane

Zorah of the Dawn Star (Fem)

MAG NGX 116 042 009 010 109 113 189 156 155 178 146 IDG

This establishment is operated by Zorah of the Dawn Star, who runs a high-class gambling house. She caters only to the well-to-do. Stakes are high; the minimum bet is 50 GP, and the maximum bet is 25,000 GP. The House is included in every game unless a private game is arranged with Zorah for 1,000 GP. Private games are played in private rooms. These private rooms are elegantly decorated, comfortably furnished, and serviced by two beautiful female servants (CLS HRI, LVL 011, ACL 010, ARM 005, DEX 156, 178, CHA 167, 178) and two very strong guards (CLS FTR, LVL 041, ACL 008, ARM 025, STR 165, 188, CON 164, 187, WPN SSC). The House Rules include the following very important items. 1) No weapon larger than 3' in length is permitted within the building. 2) Any practitioners of magic shall restrict their magic to entertainment or defense of the House. 3) No I.O.U.'s will be accepted. Judge's Note: Other rules can be added, but the punishment for any violation should be the stripping of all monies, weapons, armor, and magic items from the offender and the barring of the offender from the premises forever.

Zorah's House of Fortune consists of three above-ground levels and four underground levels. The upper levels contain public and private gambling rooms, a well-stocked kitchen and storage area, a bar, and a sitting room complete with exotic dancers to entertain the lucky winners. Serving the bar is Abdul Ben Deka, who is Zorah's Djinni, though only Zorah, the workers, and some of the regulars know this. Abdul is a good seven feet tall and is easily three and a half feet broad at the shoulders. He wears a multi-colored turban and flowing robes. He is not armed, but he will conjure a broad-bladed Scimitar for use in combat if the need arises. Most of the time, his magic is all that he needs, so he will rarely conjure the Scimitar. All kinds of food and drink are available to customers at very expensive prices, but everything is of the finest available and expertly prepared. Talented musicians provide constant musical background, and they expect small tips for their efforts.

The lower four levels contain living quarters for all the workers, Zorah's bedchambers, baths, a library, a laboratory, smoking rooms, the treasure vault, and other, less important rooms. Zorah is very skilled in the School of Enchantment Magic (11th Level), as well as in Houris skills (6th Level). She also has some skill as a Thief (4th Level). All told, Zorah employs about 40 people at the House of Fortune. She has over 120,000 GP locked away in her subterranean vault.

Universal Combat System

GAME STATISTICS VARY CONSIDERABLY WITH EACH GAME SYSTEM, AND THE MOST SENSITIVE OF THESE STATISTICS ARE THOSE USED TO RESOLVE COMBAT. RATHER THAN COMPLETELY IGNORE THIS VITAL AREA, AS MANY OTHERS DO, WE HAVE PROVIDED TWO STATISTICS TO PERMIT YOU TO ADJUST THE ONE CLOSEST TO THE SYSTEM YOU USE. REFER TO THE DEFINITIONS OF ARM AND ACL.

ARMOR TYPE - ARM

ADD ALL THE FOLLOWING DESCRIPTIVE RATINGS (RATINGS ARE FOUND TO THE LEFT OF THE DESCRIPTION) TO DETERMINE THE ARMOR TYPE (ARM). MULTIPLY THE ARMOR TYPE (ARM) BY THE RATING OF THE CONSTRUCTION MATERIAL USED TO DETERMINE THE TOTAL DAMAGE THE ITEM CAN ABSORB WITHOUT FAILURE. WHEN USING THIS SYSTEM, ONLY THE SHIELD OR BODY ARMOR WILL ABSORB DAMAGE, NOT BOTH.

Windy Ghimgrau

THF CEN 021 013 006 043 035 124 113 105 096 156 113 Short
Sword

Ghimgrau is assisted by twelve Goblins, HD 1 CEN, ACL 7, HTK 3 - 1 - 2 - 2 - 3 - 1, WPN Dagger. He often substitutes items of clothing of lesser value and similar make for those of his clients. Washing is 1 CP per article of clothing and 2 CP for blankets, tapestries, and like items. Strongbox contains 15 GP and 57 CP.

Laundry (178) Palace Way

Ancit Jalla

FTR CGN 032 012 008 021 074 126 145 103 147 104 126 Mallet

Ancit is noted for laundering the most expensive articles with great care and knowledge. He can remove any stain, but some types of stains require costly treatments (1D6 x 10 GP). Common Bundles 3 SP, Fancy Bundles 5 SP, Expensive or Delicate Bundles 1 GP. PROB 10% of Costly Stain. Ancit has four apprentices, six bonded servants, and eight menial freemen working for him, NNN, LVL 1, ACL 9, HTK 3 - 4 - 6 - 4 - 2 - 5 - 3 - 3 - 4, WPN Truncheon. Customers include Tradesmen, Merchants, and Nobles, NA 1D6, LVL 1D6.

Trim Florain

FTR LGN 041 026 009 019 075 105 113 137 105 164 175 Cudgel

Florain has built her business upon one principal - mass cleansing done quickly and cheaply. Mixed laundry is a common problem because all bundles are boiled in one huge vat with articles lifted out of the giant kettle with long poles once every ten minutes. The water in the vats is changed once per month. Florain relies upon an otherwise dense Troll with a "photographic" memory to sort out laundered articles. Burghix the Troll: HD 7, ACL 2, HTK 48, Damage 2D6/2 Attacks, develops an occasional "headache" (PROB 10%) which results in the confusion of the customers' laundry. Bundles 8 CP each. Customers include anyone: NA 3D6. Strongbox holds 15 SP and 428 CP.

Earding Ramitrin

FTR CEN 031 017 007 033 076 134 145 143 152 163 112 Dirk

Earding is very proficient and produces all manner of leather goods: Sandals 6 CP, Loin Cloths 2 CP, Robes 8 SP, Conical Hats 3 SP, Shields 3 GP, Hardened Jacks 9 GP, Suit of Armor 24 GP, Boots 6 GP, Cloaks 6 SP. Saddles 10 GP, Trappings 15 SP, Blankets 5 SP, and Helms 3 GP. He is assisted by four Gnomes; HD 2, NNN, ACL 6, HTK 6 - 7 - 6 - 5, WPN Dagger, and two journeymen, LVL 1, CGN, ACL 7, HTK 3 - 4, Weapon Dirk. Earding often triples the price of any item if he feels he is being harassed when bartering. Strongbox holds 47 GP, 39 SP, and 63 CP. Six fur pelts worth 25 GP each are hidden in the rafters. Patrons are Nobles, Gentlemen, and Marines; NA 2D6.

Korienna the Princess

FTR	CNG	031	010	009	013	073	085	154	153	125	172	163	Hand Axe

Korienna crafts Belts 2 SP, Pouches 3 SP, Sacks 5 SP, Headbands 1 SP, Jackets 8 GP, Whips 3 GP, and Suits of Leather Armor 22 GP. The soft leather goods are very supple and strong because the leather from which they are made is rare. An orphan, Korienna has confided to friends that she is of royal lineage, but local citizens who have heard of this deride her; thus, she gained her nickname, "the Princess." She has 48 SP and a Djinni Bottle hidden in a large leather sack behind a stack of crates in her basement. Customers include Guardsmen, Mercenaries, and Merchants; NA 3D6 - 2

Rudboar Corum

FTR	NGN	032	019	009	016	054	167	145	126	125	163	145	Military Pick

Rudboar was once an apprentice Siege Mage but changed professions after being seriously wounded. He uses minor cantrips to aid him in producing fine Leather armor at reasonable prices; War Masks 3 GP, Helms 5 GP, Shields 15 GP, Suits of Armor 30 GP, Neckguards 1 GP, and War Cloaks 6 GP. There is only a 20% chance of any item being in stock because he does not employ any helpers. Because he prefers to work alone, he often talks to himself, and he is rumored to have an invisible familiar. A locked leather trunk contains 16 GP, 32 SP, 43 CP, and Boots of Striding.

Leather (183) Masjid Lane

Dinidan Ar-Phran

FTR	CNG	021	012	009	019	064	104	123	106	114	155	153	Whip

"Din the Dumb" is a very quiet, serene individual who prefers to barter by sign language. He was raised in a monastery where the vow of silence was strictly enforced. Din produces Belts 1 GP, Belt Pouches 1 GP, Scabbards 1D6 GP, and Girdles 5 GP. He keeps a Horn of Deafening hidden in his strongbox along with 49 GP and two jeweled Daggers worth 50 GP each.

Leather Goods (184) Seaweed Lane

Dyzabolt the Lofty

FTR	LGN	031	016	008	024	075	095	154	165	176	175	167	Morning Star

Dyzabolt produces soft Wine Skins 2 GP, collapsible Shields 18 GP, collapsible Helms 7 GP, collapsible Saddles 28 GP, and Jacks 20 GP. The leader of the Temple of the Dancing Snake, Boa Rac, keeps his face hidden within the hood of his flowing robe; it is said that his face is so hideous that any who look in his eyes will die of fear. He leads thirteen Priests, CLR, LEX, LVL 1D3, HTK 22 - 24 - 21 - 19 - 20 - 15 - 10 - 17 - 16 - 24 - 9 - 11 - 12, ACL 7, WPN Mace, in conducting rituals of appeasement to the Dancing Snake God. Three times a year, the Priests set out in groups of three (one group each time) to capture Humans, Elves, Dwarves, and Halflings of Good Alignment to use in their monthly sacrifices. The Priests are most diligent in their search because, if no sacrifice of this type is available at the time of sacrifice, one of them must be chosen by lot to die within the sacrificial pit. A deep pit surrounded by low stone benches is the centerpiece of the Temple. 25' down, a clutch of Giant Cobras wait to devour the monthly sacrifice. A huge stone Cobra painted with red, yellow, and green enamel oversees the offering of the sacrifice. Its eyes are two giant Rubies worth 3,000 GP each but rumored to be cursed. Beneath the Temple are catacombs containing cells for prisoners, rooms for the Priests, and the temple treasury, the door to which is guarded by the Giant Cobras in their lair.

Suston Kantar

A young man of high charisma, Suston Kantar has collected around himself 15 acolytes who provide for the upkeep of the temple by begging in the streets. A relatively new sect in Tarantis, the temple is furnished only with a marble statue of a beautiful man in flowing robes and holding a Trident set upon a 4' high pedestal. Around the statue, strewn on the marble floor, are sixteen large velvet pillows for the use of worshipers who come to meditate in the temple. At the feet of the statue is a bronze bowl worth 15 GP which is used for burning an incense that produces a deep feeling of euphoria when inhaled. The effect of the incense is to create the belief in the person inhaling it that he or she has no problems whatever; all is right with the world. One piece of this incense sells for 5 GP at a small booth just inside the temple door which is manned by one of the acolytes. The euphoric effect lasts 1D6 hours and causes those under its influence to double reaction times. The temple has no treasure because Suston uses all monies brought in to buy materials to create the incense, to which he is deeply addicted.

Many Sorcerers come to this Temple to learn the control and conjuration of the element of Water from the great Water Wizard, Melkon Homm. Wizards may advance one level per six months of study in Water Sorcery at a cost of 1D6 x 100 GP per month. The people of Tarantis think very highly of those who are members of the Temple, and many citizens bring offerings to the Temple on a regular basis. In this way, they hope to ensure that, should personal property catch fire, the Water Wizards will use their powers for the benefit of the citizens. The Water Wizards have never refused to aid in times of difficulty, both in dousing fires within the City State and in controlling floods during the rainy seasons.

The open-air theatre is a round structure with bleachers rising up fifty feet on three sides and a large curtained stage on the fourth side. On either side of the stage is a gate at which guards collect the entry fees. Comedies, tragedies, and dramas are staged here, but the most popular entertainments are the animal acts and jugglers. The theater is owned by Fermlight, an aristocrat who is also the head of the Players' Guild. Fermlight is always looking for people with talent to add to entertainment offered by his theatre. Currently, he is in search of a Snake Dancer and is willing to pay such a performer 10 GP per hour. Fermlight keeps all his treasure, consisting of 6,540 GP, 5 large Agates worth 50 GP each, and assorted jewelry and trinkets worth 735 GP, in his wardrobe, hidden beneath a false bottom.

Nashira specializes in healing magiks only, and many otherwise wild animals are her "pets", including a Puma, HD 4, HTK 18, ACL 4, Bite 2D6, 2 Claws 1D1, a Brown Bear, HD 3, HTK 15, Bite 1D6 + 1, 2 Claws 1D4, Badger HD 1, HTK 4, ACL 3, Bite 1D4, and a Wolf, HD 1, HTK 7, ACL 7, Bite 1D4, 2 Claws 1D3. Nahira will heal only Good alignment types, but there is a 50% probability that she will help those of Neutral alignment. A complete healing is possible in 1D6 days, including the restoration of missing parts, providing two individuals plus the "healed" character devote the next sixty days in Nashira's service. She sends parties out into the wilds to spring traps, attack marauding Orcs, and slay Monsters which kill for purposes other than to get food. Quests do not include "return" time, and parties are often sent hundreds of miles away. Herbs of all types and unusual preparations fill Nashira's shop. A necklace worth 1,460 GP is draped over a vial of tasteless concentrated acid on her work bench.

Theodric manages a zoo supported by several noble families; however, an admission price of 3 CP each is charged to visitors to keep out "undesirables." Virtually every animal and insect is cared for meticulously within several "habitat cages" developed by Mages long ago. Guards are provided by the Taran, and Nobles pay work crews to feed the animals and clean the cages regularly. Animals for games are temporarily housed at the zoo for 10 GP per HD per week by aristocrats of the city. The zoo attracts scholars from many distant lands, and local Innkeepers are required to pay one day's receipts once per year as a special tax; the money is used to pay for repairs to the zoo.

Courts of Tarantis

The High Court of Tarantis

This court holds trials for those who are accused of committing the most serious of offenses: Murder, Treason, and Arson. The judge is Lord Hagneck Gowen. Defendants have been known to commit suicide rather than be judged in his court. Hagneck believes that those who commit a major offense should die for it. He has sentenced many men to death in the past and will send more to the gallows or chopping block. He is not particularly concerned about the guilt or innocence of the defendant, believing that it is better for some innocent men to be put to death than for one guilty one to escape. In this court, a defendant may either hire an attorney or put up his own defense, and the outcome is not changed much either way. Most defendants who have not had a Lawyer have been sentenced to death on the first day of their trial; others have had to wait until later. The prosecutor, Eyulf Gutzon, is as zealous to put an end to crime by any means as is Hagneck. Eyulf is a skillful manipulator and can twist nearly any testimony to make the defendant appear in the worst possible light. Hagneck sentences men to die in many different ways, depending upon the nature of the crime and the social status of the criminal. Arsonists are usually burned at the stake, and murders are either hanged or beheaded. Those found guilty of Treason are usually tortured to death or drowned in Dahute Bay. Judge Gowen especially hates Assassins and has been known to sentence accused Assassins to death without bothering to hear any testimony. Naturally, there have been many attempts on Judge Gowen's life, and the Assassins' Guild has a permanent, although extremely secret, contract on his life of 10,000 GP to the party who can deliver his head to their doorstep.

Hangman

Marhot Lukan is a hangman of fearsome reputation. He loves his job and has been doing it for over twenty years. He is able to name the exact number of times a body will turn before the person dies from hanging. Tarantines fear him and his gallows because he has a reputation for being a sadist, improperly setting the ropes to make his victim suffer more before death. There are many ropes in his home. One particular one is mounted on his wall and has over two hundred knots in it. Lukan uses this device to count the number of people he has successfully hanged. He constructs the gallows himself with the help of any assistants assigned to him by the court. Lukan often requests that the condemned person aid in the construction of the gallows and dig the grave in which he or she will be buried. Marhot always carries a rope at his side and has been known to take active part in lynchings. Citizens leave him alone, fearing to fall victim to his deadly rope. It is rumored that Marhot is a Werejackal, but no one has yet discovered this to be the truth and lived to tell of it.

Court of Citizen Arguments

Magistrate Semg Anktar is in charge of the daily court which handles the sundry lawsuits, civil actions, and minor accusations brought against citizens by one or more other citizens. A tall, powerful man, he listens to the arguments of the lawyers who, by law, must present citizen's complaints to the court, and, based upon the information he receives (but biased in favor of the greater amount of bribery received by his clerk, Shangkar Paltry, in the name of the complainant or the defendant), renders a decision on each case. Magistrate Semg also handles all non-religious marriages for a fee of 12 SP each, as well as official name changes for 12 SP. This tends to give him a very busy schedule, especially since he holds court for only five hours a day. Much of the rest of his time is spent at his estate engaged in his favorite sport, horse-ball. Other than being very open to bribery, he is a good magistrate with an excellent knowledge of human behavior, but he is something of a cynic, having witnessed human nature in its baser forms many times over his years as magistrate.

Bringing a lawsuit before the court is done in the following fashion. First, the plaintiff(s) must select a lawyer from one of the many at the House of Law. Then the lawyer, after gathering all of the evidence he can, informs the person on the receiving end of the action that he is being sued and registers the suit with Shangkar, at which time any "gift to the court" which might be forthcoming is also received by the clerk. The trial for the suit will come up in 1D6 months after registration (1 month if the plaintiff pays a bribe of more than 100 GP). At the trial, the lawyers have two hours to present all evidence to the judge; by custom, each lawyer is granted one hour to present his case. Magistrate Semg Anktar then spends no more than 15 minutes deliberating the case before deciding in favor of either the plaintiff or the defendant. Each side in each case must pay court costs of 50 SP, and token payments of 1 SP from each side are additionally made to the judge, the clerk, and each of the four guards in the Court of Citizen Arguments. Magistrate Semg is able to handle only two cases a day at this rate; the last half hour of each day is reserved for marriages and name changes. As a result, most marriages are handled by the temples due to the incredible length of time it takes to arrange to have a civil marriage performed.

Court of Serious Offenses

Magistrate Lord Aswan Teng presides over the Court of Serious Offenses, which handles all cases except Murder and Treason, two crimes carrying the automatic death penalty. The court handles all Thievery, Fraud, and Manslaughter in which reasonable cause, such as self-defense, might be proven. In this level of the court system, the accused is allowed to have council, but the lawyer may only advise the accused and may not speak for him or her. Lord Teng is an extremely intelligent man who honestly and diligently seeks the truth, and he sees no dishonor in using torture to arrive at it. He listens to all testimony and asks his own questions of the defendant and the witnesses. It must be remembered that the court system at this level presumes that a person is guilty until proven otherwise, and the judge may take a prosecuting attitude toward the defendant. Occasionally, Teng sets a trap for the guilty party by announcing a surprise witness or new piece of evidence to be presented at a later time. This tactic assumes that the guilty party will attempt to obtain the evidence or locate the witness, at which time the guards of the court can apprehend the individual.

Sentences for the following crimes are handed down by Teng, although they are fairly uniform with little respect to money, prestige, or power. If found guilty of theft, the defendant must repay his or her victim the value of the items stolen; if the party is unable to pay, he or she is sold into slavery and the money given to the victim. If the Thief used force in committing his crime, a dozen lashes are applied to the guilty person's back in addition to the previous sentence. If the victim dies as a result of the violence, the crime becomes Murder, which carries a death penalty, but the estate or family of the perpetrator is required to recompense the estate or family of the victim for the worth of any stolen items. If a defendant is found guilty of theft by Fraud, the defendant must return as much of the stolen funds as possible and is given a dozen strokes with the lash before being released. If the defendant in a Manslaughter case is found guilty, but the crime was committed in self-defense, the person is branded on the thumb as though the crime were dueling and then released. If the crime was committed in the heat of passion, the guilty party is given twelve strokes with the whip and a sentence of 1D10 years in the prison. Any person found guilty of a crime punishable by death is either hung (Social Level 10 or lower) or beheaded (Social Level 11 or higher), except for unusually heinous crimes in which the judge is free to fix the means of death himself. Teng's court contains eight Court Guards, the prosecutor, Tongshoe, 1D6 prisoners, and 2D6 spectators.

Tongshoe is the sole prosecutor for the Court of Serious Offenses and has, over the years, developed a good, working relationship with Magistrate Teng. Tongshoe is a learned man who takes great care in presenting his case in order to reveal the truth of the matter. Although he is the prosecutor of the court, he is no less zealous in the search for truth than Magistrate Teng. Slow and methodical, he is, nevertheless, a skilled expert in the law and can defeat most attempts to use special circumstances and custom to circumvent the legal system. The chance of the truth being found is 80% for each case. In the case of NPC trials, the truth is the responsibility of the Judge to determine.

Court of Lesser Offenses

Magistrate Lord Prompter presides over the Court of Lesser Offenses which handles all of the non-felony offenses. Lord Prompter is a loud, boisterous man; his demeanor belies his canny grasp of the fine points of the law which allows him to handle the slickest litigation trickster. He will assist the prosecution if he thinks they are doing a bad job of it. In this court, there are no lawyers for the defendant, who must marshal his own defense. Lord Prompter usually decides each case quickly; frequently, the decision goes against the defendant because Lord Prompter operates under the presumption that the defendant must have been doing something wrong to get into his court in the first place, and, in the second place, if the defendant was doing nothing wrong this time, he or she probably broke the law at some other time but was not caught. Therefore, Lord Prompter usually finds for punishment to rectify any lawless behavior passing unnoticed in the past. The defendant is allowed to speak in his own behalf, but, it is widely known that Lord Prompter prefers to have cases resolved quickly, and any long-winded defense is not in the defendant's best interest.

Most of Lord Prompter's cases fall into four categories: Petty Theft (objects worth less than 1 GP), Brawling, Dueling, and Public Nuisance (under which a variety of petty offenses are prosecuted). Petty Theft is punished with six strokes of the Whip and the returning of the stolen goods or the value thereof by the Thief to his or her victim. However, if the Thief appears before Prompter more than five times, he or she will be sent to the higher court for Felony punishment. If the charge is Brawling, and no one was seriously injured, the defendant must pay for any damages sustained to the property of others and take three strokes from the Whip. If the defendant is unable to pay or is an outlander, an extra six strokes with the whip are added to the punishment. If the defendant killed someone in a fair duel, he or she is branded on the thumb, but, if that person is ever involved in another duel, whether or not anyone is killed, he or she receives 18 strokes of the lash. If no one is killed during a duel, both sides receive the branding and are released. If a person is charged with making a Public Nuisance, the defendant will receive three strokes of the Whip for a first offense and five strokes for each offense thereafter. Lord Prompter varies the punishment as he deems necessary, depending upon the circumstances of the commission of the crime, his current mood, and the weather (he suffers from Gout, which flares up during the rainy seasons and causes him to be excessively cross).

The court of Lord Prompter will contain Fu the Faceless, Artemis the Glib, Tangar the Correct, two court guards, and 1D6 various petty criminals. Fu the Faceless wields the Whip and the brand as the Magistrate directs. He keeps his Whips well oiled and the brazier well fired with several branding irons at red-hot at all times. A quiet, hooded man of great physical size and strength, he can deal with all but the strongest offender single-handedly. When dealing with women, however, he is gentle and takes some care to avoid disfiguring them with the blows of his Whip. Artemis the Glib is a foreign litigant who quickly learned the local laws and bought an appointment to prosecute in the City State. Whenever he prosecutes in Prompter's court, Artemis will begin a long and elaborate speech, boring in the extreme, which will be interrupted by Prompter, who will ask Artemis to get quickly to the point. If Artemis is prosecuting a person, roll 1D6; 1 - 2 indicates that the defendant is found innocent, 3 - 5 indicates that the defendant is found guilty, and 6 indicates that the defendant is found guilty and is given double the normal punishment due to Lord Prompter's intense irritation with Artemis's long-windedness. Tangar the Correct (better known as Tangar the Corrected) is the other litigant in the Court of Lesser Offenses. He is a young man who has only recently learned his craft and is very nervous. He often makes such mistakes as accusing the wrong person of the crime, losing his notes on the case, and forgetting various minor points of law or believing that some law exists when, in fact, it does not. When Tangar is prosecuting a person, roll 1D6; a 1 indicates that Tangar makes a mistake and laughter fills the courtroom until Prompter is forced to strike his cymbal to bring the court to order.

The Court of Merchant Matters

The Court of Merchant Matters is held once a week to handle problems between the merchants and shopowners of the city and to make judgements as to whether or not any merchants or manufacturers are producing overly shoddy goods. The court is made up of seven randomly-selected merchants, vendors, and shopowners drawn by lot the week before. The randomly-selected judges hear complaints about short weighting and other fraudulent practices. Tricking an outlander by fraudulent means is not considered a crime, however. The decision of the Merchant's Court is final in such matters, and the Court of Citizen Arguments will not hear a case that has already been decided by the Merchant's Court. If one of the selected judges is also a party to a complaint on the day he or she is to serve, that merchant steps down from the position of judge when his or her case comes before the court. The loser in each complaint is required to return any funds derived from his or her activity, in addition to paying court costs of 10 GP. Lawyers are not allowed to practice in the Court of Merchant Matters; each complainant and defendant must speak in his or her own behalf. If a merchant is found guilty of selling especially shoddy goods to townspeople and other city tradesmen, that merchant is tied to a chair mounted on a platform which is carried three times around the city by six strong men. Examples of the merchant's poor goods are placed on another platform and carried behind him. This is done in an attempt to warn the populace of the poor quality of the merchant's goods, and to shame the merchant into either leaving town or upgrading his wares. The building in which the weekly court is held is guarded by Irness Axeman, who is paid from the fines collected and who aids in strapping the more belligerent merchants to the display chair. The building contains the records of earlier decisions, the two display platforms, and a locked chest containing 120 GP.

The House of Law

Once an abandoned tavern, the House of Law now serves as the central office for all Lawyers of the City State. By custom, no Lawyer who does not have an office in the House of Law may practice his craft in the City State. This naturally restricts the number of Lawyers in the city to 6 due to the limited office space in the building. A Lawyer without an office in the House of Law may only advise clients upon legal matters and may not present cases before judges. With the exception of some government Lawyers, the Lawyers of the City State must work their way up from lowly apprentices to the position of Law Clerk. At that point, the would-be Lawyers must wait until an office is open in the House of Law to become full-fledged Lawyers. Openings only occur if a Lawyer dies, retires, or moves out of the city, all of them rare occasions. If a Lawyer dies, retires, or moves and has no heirs at Law Clerk level, the opening goes to the eldest Law Clerk. This system results in some very old Law Clerks and some very young Lawyers. The Lawyers are able, by restricting the number of practicing attorneys in the city, to command exorbitant fees for their services. The old taproom of the tavern now serves as the waiting room for the offices upstairs, and, to keep the peace in a room where antagonists often meet, three guards are on duty in the room during all office hours.

Euryptis is considered one of the better general lawyers of the City State. He can adequately handle any kind of civil or criminal case, gives excellent advice, and is considered an expert in rare coins; he is often consulted concerning the authenticity of coins put forward by travelers as "rare finds." A careful-speaking, middle-aged man, he is assisted in his work by one apprentice and two clerks. His offices consist of two rooms, both filled with various scrolls, law tomes, and writing instruments, all neatly arranged. Euryptis is well-respected because he did not inherit his office. He earned it when the previous owner died with no heirs. Because of the low pay of a Law Clerk, and because he spent what little he did receive on rare coins, Euryptis has never married, but now that his station in life has improved, he is looking for a likely wife (mainly an intelligent woman able to converse with him on coinage of previous eras). His fees are reasonable; he will prepare a will for 10 GP (although one of the clerks does the actual work), and he will advise or represent a person for a mere 50 GP plus expenses. Beneath his desk is a hidden compartment containing a cashbox which holds 2 GP, 4 SP, and a collection of old copper pieces worth 20 GP.

Ank Tank-an-Sanic is the oldest of all the Lawyers in the House of Law and is considered the grand old man of law. He is an excellent Lawyer who, during his long years of practice, has handled nearly every kind of case imaginable and is, therefore, very experienced in all types of law cases. A kindly-appearing old man, he is a skilled manipulator of people and evidence. Unless the opposition has bribed the court, he has a 60% chance of winning civil cases when he directly intervenes. It is said that to hear his theatrical presentation provides good entertainment, and the mere rumor that he is presenting a case to the court is enough to pack the gallery with spectators. He is currently in semi-retirement, preferring merely to advise people for 100 GP and draw up wills for 20 GP, but an interesting case would draw him back into active work for 200 GP and expenses. He intends to retire and let his grandson, who works as one of his clerks, take over his practice, but he is putting it off because he has spent so much of his life in the practice of law that he has few outside interests. His three-room office is filled with the normal law books and court papers necessary to the running of a successful law business. A petty cashbox is hidden in one of the drawers of his desk; it contains 20 GP, 35 SP, and 47 CP. He knows, from a past client, of a treasure buried up the river by pirates. He has not pursued it himself because he feels that he is not fit for strenuous work, but he will offer half of the treasure to any adventuresome clients that appear in his office and are willing to make the trek. The chest full of treasure lies buried under a tree by the side of the river, and Ank has a fairly good map of its location. It will be easy to find, but, as it is uncovered, six Zombies armed with Broadswords and having 16, 14, 19, 10, 11, and 12 HTK will rise up to attack any who attempt to unearth the treasure. The chest contains 300 SP, 100 GP, a gold and Ruby brooch worth 150 GP, 12 Black Pearls worth 50 GP each, a silver Dagger worth 30 GP, four Amethysts worth 12 GP each, and a gold goblet worth 120 GP.

Hidden beneath some of the clothing is a carefully written notebook of interesting information that has been discovered but never used in a court case. The book is worth 1,500 GP for all of the useful blackmail information that it contains. Patan's clerks are the equivalent of 2nd Level Thieves as their second class and are widely known (although mostly by reputation) throughout the city. Ravan has a reputation for concocting false evidence and buying false witnesses in order to win cases for his clients. It is said that he deals with the Thieves' and Assassins' Guilds to intimidate an occasional witness who might testify against his clients. Ravan covers his shady activities very well and blends in enough true testimony to confound anyone who might try to check his facts. He trusts no clerk and, therefore, works alone. Ravan charges 120 GP plus expenses for his services, and his expense vouchers are usually double whatever the actual expenses of a case may have been. Despite his somewhat unsavory reputation and high fees, wealthy clients who cannot afford to lose their cases seek him out with enough regularity to allow him to live sumptuously. His office contains the usual law scrolls and tablets and a cashbox holding 360 GP and 456 SP.

Agnel recently inherited his post and the offices of his father before he was really ready to run a law business. Although an excellent preparer of wills and a fair advisor, he has not had enough experience in the courtroom to do well in such a situation. Because of this, he avoids courtroom appearances. According to custom, he must appear in the civil court once during the year or lose his office. His two offices are cluttered with law tomes and scrolls, numerous wills, and various office supplies. He charges 10 GP for advice and wills and 50 GP plus expenses for courtroom work, but, until the year is half over, he will decline all clients who wish him to appear in the courtroom. He is assisted in his work by two apprentices and a single Law Clerk. When not in the office, he will be found wandering the beaches near Tarantis, looking for the rumored entrance to the vault of Redhand the Freeboater. He will hire a party of adventurers to assist him in his search for 1 GP per week plus a share of the treasure if it is found. The chance of the entrance to the vault being found is 1% per week, non-cumulative. The vault consists of three rooms, each locked. The first is guarded by ten Zombies, HTK 11 - 14 - 7 - 9 - 13 - 8 - 8 - 13 - 9 - 10, ACL 5, WPN Shortsword. The second room contains ten Heavy Crossbows rigged at a height of about 4' from the floor to fire at the door when it is opened (chance of being hit 1 - 3 on 1D6 for first members of a party through the door). The last room contains 5 Zombie guards, HTK 15 - 13 - 14 - 10 - 9, ACL 5, WPN Shortswords. Unfortunately, there is no treasure in the vault.

Segwar is the only lawyer knowledgeable about outlander laws, customs, and mores. His skill and oratory abilities allow him to quickly sway the judge in most cases he handles, but the legal complications of outlander cases necessitate a 10% failure rate that even a bribe to the judge will not change. He has two apprentices and two clerks working for him. One of the clerks is his son, a young man to whom Segwar plans to leave his law practice when he retires at a time far in the future. Segwar is considered quite a sportsman and regularly stages hunts in the Dyrfirwall Forest for his friends. Shrewd business dealings by his ancestors made Segwar's family quite wealthy indeed, and he works as a lawyer as a recreation rather than for a living. His fees are 230 GP for himself, 15 GP for each of his Law Clerks, and 2 GP for each apprentice, plus expenses. His set of two cramped offices are filled to overflowing with papers, law books, notes on cases, and writing instruments. Despite the best efforts of his apprentices to keep things neat, Segwar is not a tidy man by nature, so his offices always look extremely cluttered. Oddly, he is able to find anything he needs in his office in a moment unless his apprentices have put it away in its "proper" place. Under a pile of papers is a cashbox containing 115 GP, 23 SP, and 56 CP.

Tax Collector

Fu Wong, Servitor of the Treasury, is despised and widely hated. He sends his men out once a week to collect the various sales and property taxes from the populace at large. Normal citizens can't bribe him, but local nobles or rich merchant's are often ignored by the collectors. He is not to be bribed in the normal sense because he does not take cash rewards from those he favors. He prefers to be paid off in favors. Wong is a real dealer in power and uses his office to gain influence. Recently, he used his influence to get his own ideas on taxes presented to Atar the Lion rather than those of his superior, the Treasurer. He is a seeker of power for its own sake and regularly uses his tax collection influence to acquire more power.

Wong is in charge of five tax collectors who handle the ordinary collection of taxes. They are empowered to call up the town guard (who don't like it) when a person becomes hostile or refuses to pay the taxes. If the required taxes are still not paid, or the person assaults the tax collector, the tax collector has the power to temporarily arrest the offender, with the help of the town guard. The tax evader is held until double the normal taxes are paid. If a tax evader cannot pay, his property is seized by the government and sold, and his family is sold into slavery, the profit of which goes to the treasury. The tax collectors wear hoods to conceal their faces, which gives rise to their nickname, the Hooded Bandits. As a group, they are fairly honest. Wong has been known to set up traps to catch cheating tax collectors. In exchange for total obedience to Wong, the collectors have special compensation in the form of 2% of all taxes collected and immunity from all city taxes.

The City State Jail

The jail of the City-State is divided into two sections, the torture chamber and the prison section. The entire complex is run by Lord of the Dark, Shang the Unnamed. Shang, like his father and his grandfather before him, faithfully serves Atar the Lion by tending the prisoners of the City-State. He is a tall man, but few know his true identity because he has never been seen in his public capacity without his executioner's hood. He oversees most of the torture and punishment for the various courts, with the exception of the Court of Lesser Offenses, which has its own flogger who is not under the direct supervision of Shang due to the numerous floggings which must be administered each day. In addition, Shang is in charge of the administration of the jail, seeing to it that the prisoners are fed and the cells cleaned when he deems necessary. Shang is careful of the stronger of his prisoners and sees to it that they are kept fit and healthy if they are not slated for the torture chamber because they are expected to produce maximum work when taken out in the prisoner work force to labor for Atar the Lion. A skilled torturer of the first water, Shang can keep a person alive in great pain for weeks; he knows when to decrease the pain to prevent the object of his torture from becoming insane with the pain or dying from the shock of it. It is said that he plays his tools of torture on the body of a person as though on a fine instrument, causing his victims to sing the truth (60% - CON% chance per week of learning the truth). He is especially sensitive to the moment when his victim has told all he or she knows of a matter and can no longer be a source of useful information. Shang takes no special delight in torture, despite his proficiency in it; he considers it part of his job and does not feel that it is evil work. He believes that any mistakes which are made are the fault of the law and the court. Because of his great knowledge about the human body, which he has gained from his work, he is often consulted on matters of healing and the prevention of pain.

Shang is concerned about his two sons, who do not seem suited to the family profession. The eldest son, Angleer, enjoys the torture aspect of the job too much and inflicts pain when it is not needed or inflicts so much pain that he totally breaks his victim without getting maximum information from him. The other son, Teni, has the skill of his father, but he plans to become a warrior because he is uneasy with the work his father does.

Shang is assisted by three torturers and five prison guards. Currently, his prison contains twenty-three prisoners, five persons who have been brought in for questioning (light torture), and one particularly heinous Assassin who tried to kill a Holy One and has been sentenced to be tortured to death for his crime. Of the prisoners, only four are anxious to escape. The four all have more than five years to serve on their sentences. The five people who have been brought in for questioning are also extremely concerned about getting out. They have been confined to the same cell and are busily digging themselves a tunnel to use as an escape. By their calculations, the group is only five days away from finishing the tunnel to the sewers beneath the City State. Once they have broken through to the sewers, they plan to use them to get out of town. Players placed in the city jail will be put in the cell with the group of tunnel diggers. If the players should complete the tunnel, which will take five nights of digging, and escape, their escape will be discovered within 1D6 hours and the Town Watch will be called out to search. Shang the Unnamed will personally offer a 50 GP reward per escaped prisoner recovered, dead or alive, which will be quickly doubled by the Taran for a total of 100 GP per head.

Amir Sutab is only a figurehead; he has no real voice in matters of political or economic import. The real power behind his office is The Malix Proctor, Ablamar. Ablamar would do anything to get Sutab's office. Ablamar has incriminating evidence of the misappropriation of royal funds and other indiscretions performed by Sutab. With his evidence, Ablamar has blackmailed the mayor into issuing bills to promote his own political causes. Unknown to Ablamar, Sutab has placed a contract on his life with the Assassins' Guild, but no attempts have been made as yet to collect it.

The Arena

Once every week, the Arena of the City-State holds mock-battles and other sporting events. When the Arena is in session, shops close, the courts become empty, and even Thieves take a vacation. The Arena is free to all citizens; non-citizens must pay 1 SP to get in. This is because the costs of operation are defrayed by the gambling done on the fights held in the Arena as well as by support given to it by local nobles, who are bound by tradition to aid in its upkeep. The Arena can seat 4,000 people and is enclosed by a roof to provide protection from the weather. The interior is lit by a magical Permanent Sphere of Light that acts as a miniature sun, totally lighting the area, although it is not hot to the touch. Any attempt to remove the Sphere will cause it to go out.

The schedule varies somewhat at the Arena. Generally, the entertainment begins with a fight between a Bull and a Brown Bear, followed by two Fighters armed with Cestuses. Afterward, an Elephant or other large animal is pitted against a trio of large cats, usually Lions or Tigers, depending upon which is handiest at the time. Sometimes, the entertainment includes a team of four Horse Lancers fighting a trio of Archers riding a four-man War Chariot; at other times, a succession of condemned criminals armed only with Short Swords fight a variety of large carnivores such as Lions, Tigers, or Bears. If the criminal survives his encounter with the animal, he is pardoned and may become a Gladiator; he is never freed. The first big event of the day is usually a pitched battle between two groups of ten to fifteen Gladiators armed with various hand-to-hand weapons, followed by a match between two picked Gladiators which is rarely to the death. Several boxing matches usually take place between this and the second big event of the day, which is either a fight to the death between the Champion Gladiator and a challenger or, if no challenger steps forward, between the Champion Gladiator and six prisoners or captured demi-humans such as Goblins. Several smaller skirmishes between pairs of trained Gladiators are held before the final big event, which is usually some sort of very large monster such as an Ogre being pitted against a number of Gladiators, armed condemned men, or demi-humans. The type of monster varies, but Ogres are the ones most often captured for this sort of sport.

The Arena is composed of three levels. The first level is the actual enclosed Arena. The second level, below the first, is the training quarters for the Gladiators. The third level, nicknamed "The Zoo", consists of holding pens for the animals, convicted criminals, demi-humans, and monsters.

The first level is surrounded by a 15' tall wall designed to prevent escape by those people and animals within and enhanced by an invisible Field of Force that, even for the small area covered, costs the owner of the Arena, Leng Sen, quite a bit of money to keep in good working order. Various betting shops and food stands are set up on this level, and they turn a good profit for Leng, who employs 15 slaves to run the stands, all of whom do an excellent job for fear of being put into the Arena. The seats of the Arena are hard stone, but several box seats, including a special one for the sponsor of the day's entertainment, are placed at strategic locations for the best possible view of the proceedings within the Arena and contain several cushioned chairs. Order is kept in the stands by a dozen guards armed with Clubs, who use their weapons freely if the spectators get too rowdy. Located in rooms beneath the stands are various holding cages for the animals, people, and monsters awaiting their turn to enter the Arena. A system of levers and pulleys is used to enable Sen to control the opening of all doors leading into the Arena to keep the events organized and going with minimal delay. A large pit leading down to the lowest level is hidden behind a black door. It is into this pit that the cleanup crew of 10 slaves armed with Spears (for putting any dying people and animals out of their misery) toss the corpses from the melees in the Arena, with the exception of the corpses of the Gladiators, who are given burials in keeping with their status. Behind a red door that also opens to the Arena floor is an infirmary where wounded Gladiators are tended, and several doors open to ramps leading to the second level of the complex.

The second level of the Arena complex is the training area for the Gladiators. On this level, under the watchful eye of Tenk the Deadly and Pike the Bold, Gladiators (who are either citizen volunteers, pardoned condemned criminals who survived their first fight in the ring, or soldiers captured from other armies) train in the fine and varied arts of killing people and animals. Each Gladiator is trained in the art of Sword play, and, after some proficiency is reached with this weapon, the Gladiator is allowed to select another weapon in which to specialize. The Gladiators are all armed with Short Swords and the hand-to-hand weapon of choice and wear Ringmail tunics and Helmets. The Gladiators are also trained in the art of faking injury and death so that, during a Gladiator-against-Gladia-tor fight, they do not have to actually be dead to give the audience the thrill of seeing them "killed." This is a necessity because good Gladiators are expensive to train; only those who, through great prowess and popular appeal, become familiar to the audience at large over a period of time are exempt from faking death, but they are still expected to fake the killing of their comrades. The twenty Gladiators currently on Sen's staff will be found on this level each week, busily engaged in fights with harmless wooden weapons or lifting weights to improve their strength. All but one live in the large barrack room on this level. The one exception is the current Champion Gladiator, Obed the Berserker. Obed is a giant of a man who has shattered the eleven attempts for his championship with mighty blows of his Battle Axe. A "mad-man" in combat, he enjoys a good battle, though he finds his encounters with groups of demi-humans and poorly-armed convicts to be boring because (he says) they don't put up much of a fight. Sen cannot put a Gladiator in the Arena with him every week because he often forgets that he is not supposed to actually kill his opponent. Even sparring with him with blunted wooden weapons can be dangerous because he has broken bones with them, despite the padding worn by the Gladiators during test bouts. Obed the Berserker has his own private room, a good supply of wine and other refreshments even though regular Gladiators are allowed only one tankard of wine a day, and, due to betting on himself, enough of a fortune hidden away to buy his freedom from the Gladiatorial ring if he wished. However, he feels that he has several good years left at the Arena and wishes to remain to earn even more money with which to set himself up comfortably when he does retire. Also on the second level is the Weapons Room which contains not only 100 Short Swords but also two of every type of weapon known to man, ranging from an Elephant Goad Ank to a War Fan. Also on this level is Sen's treasury which, on the day after an Arena exhibition, is loaded with about 19,000 GP and 5,000 SP that represents the profits from the betting and the gate and food stand receipts. The treasury is emptied the following day, and, until the next set of games, it contains a mere 50 GP and 200 SP to cover minor expenses. All twelve arena guards and three Gladiators guard the massively built locked door to the treasury when it is full, but only one guard is on duty the rest of the time. The slaves who compose the concession and clean up staff are housed on this level as well.

The third level is used to store animals, condemned men who have been slated for the Arena, and various lots of captured demi-humans (presently, only Goblins). The cells beneath the Arena contain only fifteen convicts at present because Sen hasn't had the time to get more in since the last exhibition. One of these is aware of an exit from this level to the sewers of the City State through an unguarded pit into which the offal and excrement from the Arena is dumped. Another is in possession of the knowledge of the whereabouts of a treasure map to a great treasure buried on an island near Tarantis. If he is included in any successful attempt at escape, he will gratefully lead his rescuers to the location of the secreted map (Judge's choice). The level also contains 20 Goblins, HTK 11 - 9 - 8 - 8 - 5 - 6 - 8 - 8 - 11 - 11 - 12 - 12 - 12 - 12 - 14 - 13 - 10 - 10 - 10 - 10. When released, they will rush toward the surface, ignoring whoever released them and attempting to kill anyone or anything that gets in their way. The monster pens contain three Giant Baboons, HTK 11 - 17 - 16, three Zombies, HTK 21 - 20 - 15, WPN Short Sword, and a single Croc-man, HTK 15. The pit into which the dead from the Arena are thrown can be opened on this level; the corpses are fed to the monsters and Goblins. The uneaten remains are tossed into the shaft that leads into the sewers beneath the city. Anyone attempting to leave by the shaft will encounter a group of 14 Sewer Rats, HTK 7 - 1 - 3 - 3 - 4 - 4 - 5 - 5 - 6 - 7 - 5 - 1 - 5 - 7, who feed upon the scraps which come down the shaft. The Sewer Rats will attack anyone who comes down the shaft. Three guards on this level tend the monsters and humans and will attempt to prevent any escape.

Leng Sen, the owner of the Arena, purchased it from the previous owner and founder when she retired. Sen is a hard taskmaster who pushes his staff to its limit in order to get as much work out of them as he can for as little money as possible. He has degraded the level of danger in the Arena by having Gladiators fake fights and by rigging some of the fights, but the crowds have yet to diminish because of it. A shrewd operator, he intends to make a fast fortune on the Arena and then retire to a life of wealth and leisure, as his predecessor did. Due to the amount of overhead needed to run the Arena, his plan will require more time to complete than he thinks. He is always guarded by two bodyguards, Chan and Khanat, when he visits the lower levels of the Arena because he fears the attack of an escaped convict or a monster.

The statistics given for Gladiators, Arena Guards, and Convicts are to be re-used at will to fill out the ranks of NPCs used in the running of the Arena.

The Armory

The Armory is located near the Main Gate. This is where most of the weapons are repaired and where war machines are constructed. It is supervised by Merwin the Despot, a man who has been constructing siege machines for two decades. He was impressed into the Tarantine Navy forty-three years ago and has attempted to desert several times. Two guards, under the direct orders of the Taran himself, accompany Merwin. He is assisted by Kared Byre, a Captain in the Tarantine Army. Together, they have created some brilliant siege machines. Another part of the shop is used to repair broken weapons and war engines. Twelve guards, four carpenters, six laborers, a weaponsmith, and an armorer work in shifts constantly. A large backlog of damaged arms and armor has piled up. Stored are 4 Onagers, 5 Dart Throwers, 38 Ladders, 68 Spears, 22 Light Crossbows, 38 Longbows, 16 Short Swords, 11 Halberds, 8 Polearms, 3 Blowguns, 49 Shields, 65 Dirks, 4 Chainmail Tunics, 8 Leather Jacks, 3 Holy Water Sprinklers, 5 Voulges, 2 Battle Axes, 2 Arbalests, a Multiple Crossbow, and a Battering Ram (70% are damaged).

Volunteer Fire Brigade

Rothgard the Warder maintains the firefighting equipment in a small stable near the North Gate. The citizens take pride in their fire brigade, and the Taran presents medals once per year to any deserving citizen for acts of valor. Volunteer Mages are required to keep a Water Creation spell in reserve at all times. The brigade is empowered to impress all citizens below PSL 6 into temporary service with jugs and Axes in an emergency. Rothgard also operates a temporary shelter for stray pets and animals in the stable.

Keen Sightings

The range of unobstructed sighting possible should be varied according to creature type. For the purposes of this guideline, a man of normal height is assumed to be the observer. Allow 5 miles per foot of height from 1' - 10', an additional 2 miles per foot from 11' - 50', and 1 additional mile per foot thereafter - for unobstructed viewing. Probability of discernment of details is equal to 2% times height, in feet, of detail; a bonus to the basic probability is given for details within 1000' of the observer - within 100. +50%, within 200' +45%, within 300' +40%, etc., to within 1000' +5%. There is a 10% per mile discernment penalty after the first mile from the observer. Thus, a viewer may sight a 20' Dragon at a distance of 15 miles and discern that it is, in fact, a Dragon 40% - 150% = 00% of the time. In other words, the Dragon would appear only as a dot on the horizon.

Obstructions will impair sighting, and it is incumbent upon the Judge to determine the correct method of sighting to be used according to situation. Judge must determine what measurement increment is to be used for the distance and height ranges listed according to the specific circumstances. For instance, in a mountain gorge, the obstruction distance might be in feet or yards, whereas, traveling on the mountain's spur, the obstruction distance might be thousands of yards or miles. The following guideline is for ground level sighting and is recommended for determining obstacles in any direction corresponding to a hex field. North, NE, SE, South, SW, and NW. The PROB of Flora and Fauna is indicative of that life within the distance of the obstacle and has nothing to do with sighting.

Hydrographic Terrain

Only streams, rivers, and lakes have been printed on the campaign level maps. Other hydrographic terrain is encountered upon scouting or prospecting one of the .20 mile hexes - 1056 feet across - following the format of the Keen Sighting guidelines. Add 10% to encounter probability for river and coastline hexes and subtract 40% for desert hexes.

For generating an indicated water course, use the following table. Add or subtract from relevant dimensions 10% where prudent. Keep in mind that the dimensions should increase when moving downstream and decrease when moving upstream - apply a 5% bonus to reflex this difference. Subtract 3 from all die rolls not made for hill or mountain hexes. Rolls not on the chart indicate no overall change.

Prosperous Prospecting

Prospecting a .20 mile hex requires one week of time with attendant encounter die rolls. Once found, the Deposit Type is diced for, and workers must be hired to "mine" the deposit. Roll for Ore Grade, and then determine the value of the "worked" minerals using the following formula: 1700 x Cubic Feet of Ore Deposit Volume x Yield Percentage x Value Multiplier. The product is the value in Gold Pieces of the refined or "worked" mineral. Note that Marble and Gems are not determined in this manner. *For the GP value of Marble from a Marble deposit, use the following formula: Marble Class Percentage x Marble Type Number x Cubic Feet of Deposit x Yield Percentage. *For Gem ore GP value of rough stones, use the following formula: 10 x Cubic Feet of Deposit x Value in GP of Gem Type. A stone cutter jeweler (as Engineer) can increase or decrease the value of each cubic foot of rough gem stones. Dice on the Stone Cutting table, adjusting +1 for DEX above average and -1 for below average DEX of the jeweler.

Triumphant Grand Tactical

The campaign maps use a scale of 5 miles per hex. Within each 5 mile hex are 625 small hexes, each .2 miles across (1056', or 352 yards). Each .2 mile hex contains 22.2 acres, or 967,032 square feet. A .2 mile hex may be more finely divided by making it the encompassing hex; each small hex within it will be 42.24' wide. Following is a small section on a simplified rule on movement/terrain points.

Simplified Movement/Terrain Points

Each turn of movement on the Grand Tactical hexes is 1 hour long. Your movement points are the same as your dungeon move distance in inches; see the following table. Each hex costs the movement points listed to enter; if you do not have enough remaining points to pay the cost listed, you cannot enter the hex. (Optionally, a player may always move one hex, despite terrain penalties.)

Movement Points	Terrain Point Costs to Enter a Hex				Hours of Daylight
	General	Slopes	Hydrographic
Encumbered 3	Road ½	Gentle 2	River Ford, Stream, Deep		Winter - 8 hours
Armored Foot 6	Plains/Steppes 1	Rise 4	Gully, or Swift Current +3 to Cross		Spring - 12 hours
Heavy Foot 9	Brush 2	Steep 6 NH	Small Gully or Slow		Summer - 16 hours
Light Foot 12	Light Woods 3	Cliff 9 NH	Current +1 to Cross		Fall - 12 hours
Heavy Horse 15	Dense Woods 5 NH	Talus/Rocks 6 NH	(Crossing cost is additional to other terrain)
Medium Horse 18	Packed Desert 2
Light Horse 24	Dunes 4 NH

NH - Horsemen are not allowed except in the case of dunes and dense woods, where they are required to dismount and walk their horses.

Deduct 1/3 of your movement points for each of the following conditions: snow, mud, extreme heat or cold, or non-moonlit night turns.

Constitution Check

Player(s) must make a Constitution Check whenever they attempt to climb steep hills or cliffs, move when having not eaten in the last 6 hours, or move when having not slept in the last 10 hours. A Constitution Check is performed by rolling a 20-sided dice with any result equal to or less than your CON to succeed. Failing the check by rolling higher than your CON reduces your movement points by half on succeeding turns if you do not take a turn out to rest and not move. Successive failures after the first reduce your movement points by half again, until rested. The Judge should give bonuses or penalties on top of this guideline for circumstances and player actions.

Movement Obstacles

To determine movement obstacles, dice on the following tables, adjusting for the type of terrain in the 5-mile hex in which the .2-mile hexes are located. Movement penalties for Uplands and Lowlands are solely dependent upon the Slope Grade, which is determined independently each .2 mile hex for that particular contour. Flatland penalties are a function of the feature encountered and should be adjusted by the Judge according to the severity of each situation. Avoiding obstacles by encircling them negates the penalty. Obstacles which indicate Flora or Fauna also require some input by the Judge because no tables are provided for each habitant. Note that the encounter with Fauna opens the possibility of hunting by the players and adds a feel of realism to the wilderness. The numbers following Uplands indicate the range of the die roll to be used.

61 - 70 Torturous	-12"	-8"
71 - 80 Breakneck	-14"	-10"
81 - 90 Precipice	-16"	-12"

Adjust movement penalty for DEX above 12 to +3" and below average to -3". Only footmen can ascend to Ledges. For Horses, dice normally, although they cannot ascend slopes steeper than Abrupt. Donkeys and Goat-like beasts dice as high DEX for purposes of slippage. Probability of slip is half the degree of slope stated as a percentage. Thus, a man ascending a slope of 30 degrees has a 15% chance of slipping; treat as a fall for damage. Adjust for DEX above 12 at -10% and DEX below 9 at +10%, as well as for each movement penalty beyond the first at -05%. Therefore, the man climbing the 30 degree slope can reduce his chance of falling by 05% if he slows his movement by 8".

When prudent, the Judge should adjust the movement/time scale to tens of feet/10 minutes or .2 mile hexes moved/hour. Hills generally consist of 1 - 10 contours of 2' - 200' in height each, and mountains would usually consist of 30 - 180 contours of 2' - 200' each. Contours descend in overall length as they stack, but more than one contour can exist on the same lower contour, forming spurs and ridges with defiles. The sub-table for Lowlands gives the overall dimensions of the features, and the Uplands sub-table gives the heights of the rises with respect to the position of the viewer from a lower contour; it does not preclude the possibility of a higher contour beyond the viewer's position. These guidelines need the discerning eye and practiced hand of a skilled Judge to be applied well.

Lofty Trees

Trees range in height from 4' - 400' when mature. The tree size table gives the number of .2 mile hexes that the stand of trees will occupy. The tree type is actually the strain predominant in that stand of trees and is a function of latitude. The latitude is stated in number of 5-mile hexes from the equator located between the 5-mile hexes of row XX17 and XX18 of the Barbarian Altanis, Desert Lands, and Ebony Coast Campaign Maps. Actual Climatic Zones will vary; the guideline is intended as a simplified aid only.

Fauna

These guidelines are intended as an aid in developing a world in which your players can hunt, engage in trapping, and "live off the land." Insects, birds, and small mammals can be dispatched with one blow. For this reason, many are listed as 0 hit die, and this indicates that one point of damage will subdue or kill the creature. Giant creatures range from 2 - 16 hit die. The Armor Class, Hit Die, and Move of the fauna listed is recorded as AC - HD - MOVE.

Civilizations and Technological Levels

The following chart can be used to determine the relative technological/civilization level of a village or section. There are actually eleven levels, increasing in sophistication; a "0" on the ten-sided die is considered either 0 or 10, at the Judge's option.

Civilization	Leader	Defenses	Technology
0. Anarchy	Warlord	Manor, Caves, Pits	Papyrus, Stone Wheel
1. Democracy	Hetman	Earthworks, Ditches	Stirrup, Waterwheel, Bronze
2. Tribal	Chief	Pallisade, Patrols	Agriculture, Rudder, Iron
3. Agrarian	Mayor	Citadel, Militia	Sundial, Linen, Candles
4. Religious	Cleric	Temple, Traps	Lantern, Chariot, Felt
5. Tributary	Governor	Keep, Garrison	Screw, Windmill, Silk
6. Oligarchy	Noble	Outside Troops	Crossbow, Chainmail, Spinning Wheel
7. Republic	Senator	Walls, Machines	Hourglass, Stagecoach
8. Aristocracy	Overlord	Fortress, Reserves	Knitting Machine, Compass, Plate Mail
9. Feudal	King	Castle, Vassal Armies	Rockets, Glasses, Damascus Steel
10. Dictatorship	Emperor	Multi-Fortress, Allies	Telescope, Calculus, Sextant

Population Density

The population density of an area will largely be determined by the civilization and tillable land within the area. There are 13,856 acres and 21.65 square miles in each 5 mile hex. Hunting tribes require one square mile per member, but one square mile of farmland will support a population of 320. Agriculture requires a density of 30 per square mile for maximum utilization. A village of 220 pure hunters would require a hunting range of ten hexes for support. A village of 660 farmers which farmed an entire hex would support an additional 5,740 population group.

The wilderness map assumes that all hexes are lightly wooded, excluding mountains. The woods shown are especially dense, requiring horsemen to walk mounts. The only true clear terrain hexes are those within and adjacent to the names of plateaus and plains. Tillable land is the farmland cleared by farmers. Any civilization above Level Two has 10 - 100% tillable land within the hex in which it is located. Thus, agriculture hexes will support a population of 640 to 6,400. When entering a hex containing a village, tower, or castle, a 6 on a six-sided die indicates that the feature in question has actually been found, and a 5 indicates that a small farm or hamlet (10 - 60 population) has been found instead. Players following a road, coastline, or river that intersects a village, negates the necessity of "encountering" same.

Baronies

Upon building a stronghold, a player-character must clear every four hexes (five miles each) radiating from the hex in which his stronghold is located. While clear terrain hexes can be maintained monster-free by patrols, mountainous, swamp, and dense wood hexes cannot be maintained free of monsters. For this reason, Barons usually do not maintain patrols in these areas, preferring the more tillable, clear terrain and hilly hexes.

Investments will increase the population of a hex by ten able-bodied men per month per 1,000 GP invested. Adjacent hexes are affected at the rate of five men per month unless mountainous, swamp, or dense forest hexes.

Income

Time is stated in game months unless otherwise specified. A Barony will yield income from the raw materials, basic commerce, fiefs, and taxes based upon the number of five mile hexes with population centers, their civilization levels, and adjacent cleared hexes. Multiply the civilization level by the population to obtain the maximum income possible from the population center. Each adjacent hex (excluding hexes counted adjacent to another center, and uncleared hexes) will yield 10% of the population center income. This maximum, if taken in any one month, would reduce the area to zero income for one year and result in widespread discontent, disease, and reduction in the population by 10% - 60%. Judicious income taking is a function of the Baron's class.

Judicious Percentage	Cleric 24%	Fighter 20%	Thief 15%	Assassin 13%	Magic User 8%	Druid 20%

Each percentage point over the judicious amount will increase the probability of non-response to a general level call-up by 2% and the desertion rate by 1%.

Satellite baronies cannot exceed the number of non-player characters permitted the Baron by his Charisma. Each barony must be cleared, a stronghold built and garrisoned, and a non-played character of 8+ level installed as an administrator. Players who go off adventuring cannot administer a barony. The non-played character must have served the player 4+ game weeks and, once established, no longer counts toward the NPC total of the player.

Population centers can be converted in alignment by: 1) Subjugating them and maintaining a police force, 2) Building a 10,000 GP temple and installing a priest, or 3) Investing 10,000 GP in the village to provide employment. Changing the alignment of a village requires one game month per 20 population. Any investment will yield a return of 10%/game month except seasonal returns, which yield 20% during the season and nothing in the off-season. Raw materials present can be determined by the Judge, and radical changes in income are possible (+/- 40%).

It is incumbent upon an employer to feed and house his workers and fighters. Basic subsistence costs 20 GP/game month for each employee. Armies can "live off the land," depending upon the tillable land in each hex. Dice as normal for the percentage of tillable land. Each percentage point will feed 10 men if passing through or 20 men each day thereafter up to a maximum of 10 days. Hexes subjected to the maximum depletion rate beyond ten days will feed 10 men/percentage point/day for ten additional days and thereafter must be treated as if maximum income (plunder) had been taken.

Trade Guide

Because most inhabitants are self-sufficient, trade is limited to towns or armies where specialization is evidenced. Since all village populations are stated in Able-Bodied Men, the actual maximum market potential is roughly four times greater. Demand is the willingness to buy, not the ability to produce. High prices demand wealthy customers.

Product Class	Demand/Week	For example: Wine, classed as Common, sold in a village with a population of 200 - $200 \times 4 = 800$; $800 \times 1\% = 8$ quarts of wine, which, since wine sells for 1 GP per quart, would yield 8 GP per week.

The Tarantine Palace

1. Grand Reception Courtyard - This courtyard is lined with stone benches whereon persons desiring an audience must wait their turn to speak with the Taran. The order of selection is as follows: City State Nobles NA 2D6 - 1, Emissaries and Messengers from Foreign Rulers NA 1D6 - 1, Prominent Citizens of PSL 7 and higher NA 3D6 + 2, Military Leaders NA 1D6 - 1, Citizens of PSL 4 - 6 NA 4D6, Merchants and Traders NA 3D6, Citizens of PSL 1 - 3 NA 1D6 - 1, and All Others NA 2D6. Many guards search for hidden weapons and check all but Daggers into a guarded bin protected by an elite squad. Nobles may retain a ceremonial Sword or similar weapon. Twenty-four guards, FTR, NX - LG, LVL 2, HTK 12 - 10 - 11 - 10 - 12 - 9, ACL 2, WPN Sword.

2. Chamber of Doom - Convicted citizens and recalcitrant nobles are forced to await their judgement within this chamber decorated in somber colors and horrific murals. Manacles line the walls near the stone benches, and the chamber is unheated. Prisoners and Interpleaders NA 5D6 and twenty Guards, FTR, NX - LE, LVL 2, HTK 12 - 11 - 11 - 13 - 10, ACL 2, WPN Mace.

3. Private Audience Waiting Chamber - Persons bringing tribute or expensive gifts are taken into this chamber wherein three large tables are set with condiments, desserts, and rich wines served by 6 Dancing Girls, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 3 - 3 - 3 - 1, WPN Dagger. Order of selection of persons waiting for an audience is based entirely upon the relative value of the gift. Applicants NA 3D6 + 2, and ten Guards, FTR, NX - LG, LVL 2, HTK 7 - 10 - 12 - 14 - 15, ACL 3, WPN Spear.

4. The Onyx Throne Room - In the west end of this huge, columned Throne Room, the Taran holds public audiences from the Onyx Throne. The path leading to the Taran is lined with 36 Elite Bodyguards, FTR, NXX, LVL 4, HTK 23 - 30 - 25 - 20 - 18 - 17 - 18 - 22 - 16 - 14, ACL 3, WPN Spears and Swords. The chamber is also attended by personal retainers of the Taran, NA 3D6 + 10, LVL 1D6 + 2.

5. Office of the Grand Vizier - Monact the Canny awaits the Taran's summons within this office. A small library and several cabinets filled with scrolls and tablets line the walls. Sixteen personal retainers of the Grand Vizier, FTR, LGN, LVL 1, HTK 3 - 7 - 2 - 1 - 1 - 2 - 3 - 4 - 2 - 6 - 5 - 4 - 2 - 3 - 3 - 4, ACL 6, WPN Short Sword, protect his person.

6. The Garden of Repose - Highly regarded guests, Ministers, and the Taran use this exotic garden to consider proposals and deliberate decisions of import. Ten Guards stand at each end of the garden, FTR, NX - LG, LVL 2, HTK 12 - 10 - 8 - 4 - 6, ACL 3, WPN Spear and Sword.

7. The Inner Council Room - Around a large, oval table are arranged the chairs in which the council members sit when the council meets. A large map of the Ebony Coast is depicted in tile laid in the floor. Four Elite Bodyguards, FTR, NXX, LVL 4, HTK 18 - 23 - 20 - 17, ACL 3, WPN Halberds and Swords, guard each door.

8. Council Dining Room - Several long tables and serving cabinets are arranged in this room, which is used for court dinners. A large hearth for warming food stands in the southwest corner. The silver dining service worth 4,240 SP is guarded by two Palace Guards, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 12 - 11, ACL 3, WPN Spear and Sword.

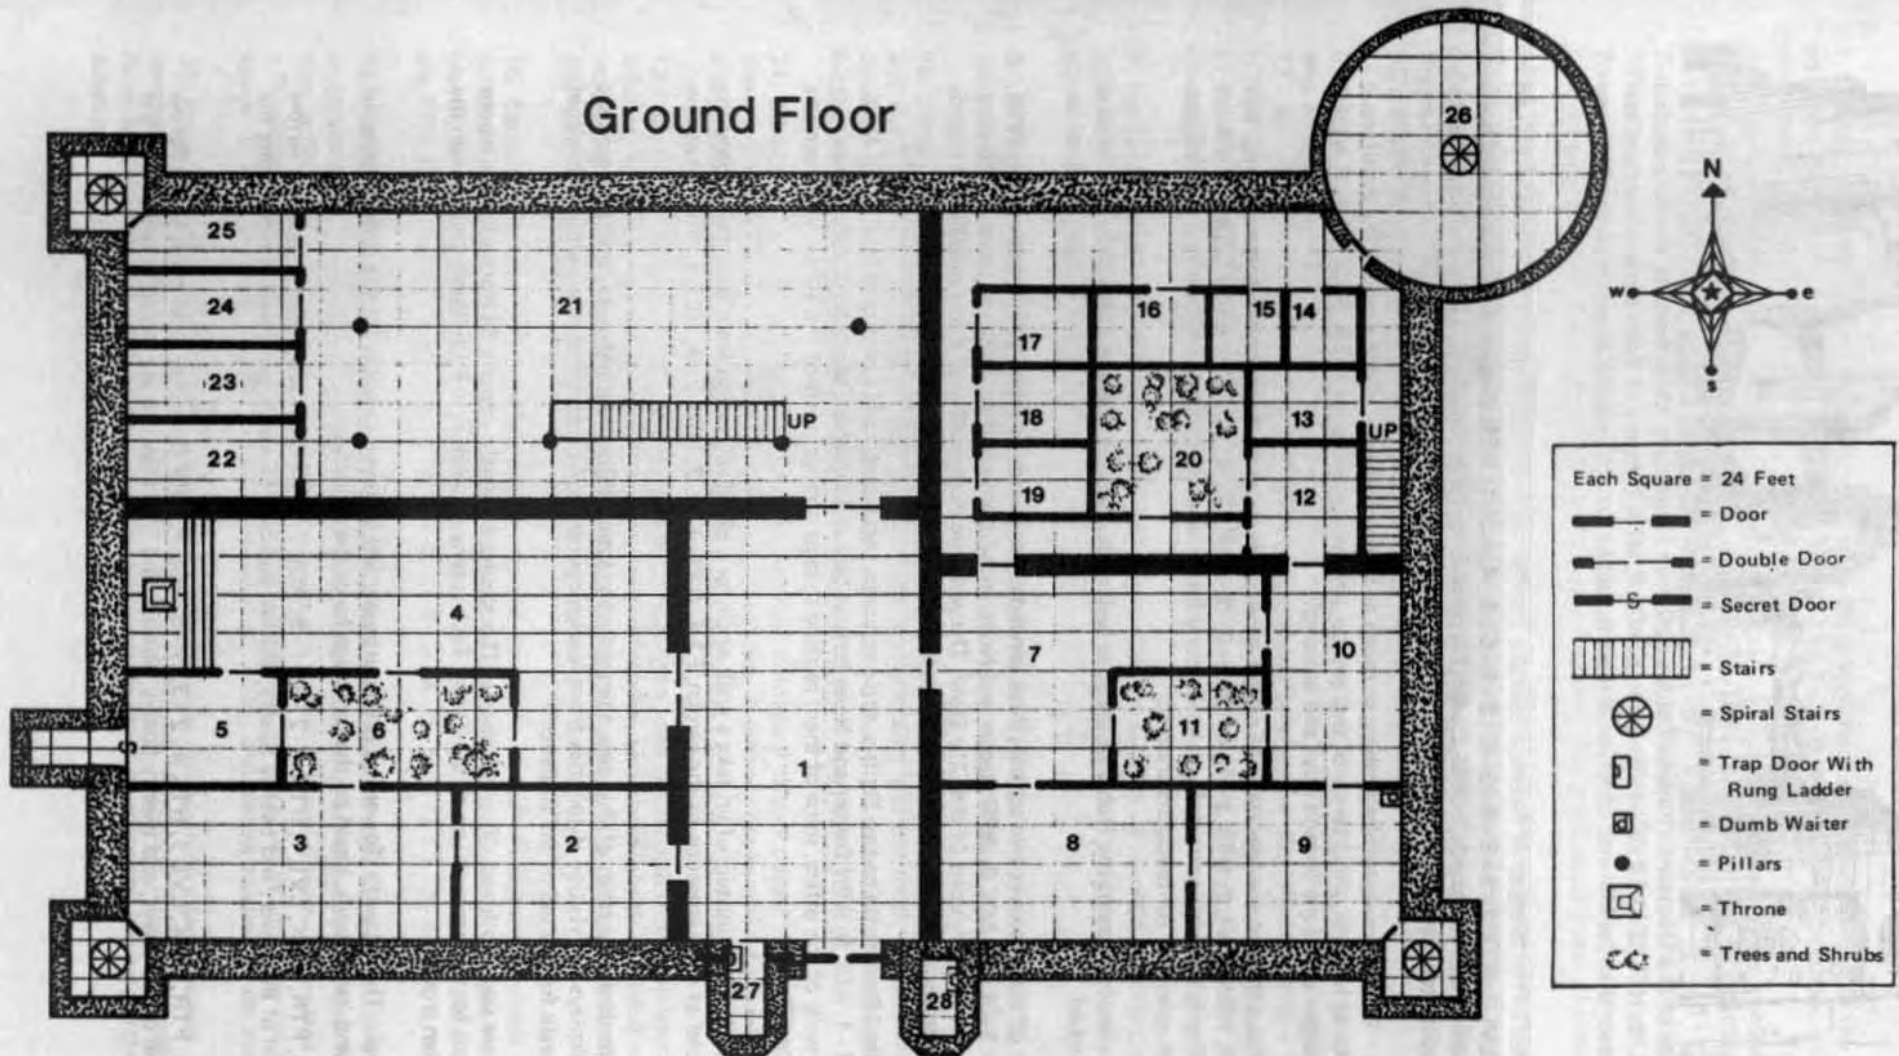

9. Imperial Kitchens - Two ovens, two large tables, and several cabinets with cooking utensils line the walls. Three cooks and four kitchen servants work here, FTR, NX - LG, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 3 - 1 - 1 - 4 - 3 - 5, ACL 7, WPN Dagger. The Minister of Domestic Affairs tastes all foods served to the Taran's family. Six stewards are generally serving guests somewhere in the palace. A door in one corner of the room leads to a spiral staircase which descends to the basement level kitchen storage room and ascends to the levels above.

10. Guard Barrack - Guards live and eat here when not on duty or "on leave." At any one time, 4D6 guards will be present, and 3D6 guards will be sleeping, FTR, NX, LVL 1, HTK 5 - 3 - 1 - 2 - 2 - 4 - 6 - 5 - 8 - 2 - 3 - 4 - 6 - 1 - 2 - 3 - 3 - 6, ACL 9, WPN Short Swords. The room contains 100 bunks, 60 chests, and three tables. There are always 25 guards on patrol within the palace.

11. Garden of Lurette - This small garden is used for private discussions and is the frequent meeting place for the Ministers and their spies.

12. Office of the Minister of Domestic Services - The Minister's office contains a scribe, three servants, two guards, and two errand boys, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 4 - 3 - 4 - 5 - 2 - 1, ACL 9, WPN Dagger and None (errand boys and servants). The Minister of Domestic Services also serves as the official Taster for the castle.

13. Minister of Finance - The office of the Minister of Finance holds a scribe, an accountant, three servants, two guards, and two errand boys, FTR, NNN, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 4 - 3 - 4 - 5 - 2 - 1 - 5, ACL 9, WPN Dagger and None (errand boys and servants). It is to the Minister of Finance that the Minister of Revenue reports, and he, in turn, reports monthly to the Taran on the financial state of the city.

14. Minister of Revenue - The office of the Minister of Revenue contains a scribe, an accountant, three servants, four guards, and two errand boys, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 3 - 4 - 3 - 5 - 2 - 1 - 5 - 4 - 4, ACL 9, WPN Dagger and None (errand boys and servants). The Minister of Revenue has four guards, not to protect his person, for he is considered a minor official, but to see to it that no tampering of the books takes place.

15. Minister of Land Management - This office resembles nothing so much as an exotic jungle. Hidden among the proliferous potted and hanging plants are a scribe at his desk, three servants, two guards, and two errand boys, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 4 - 3 - 4 - 5 - 2, ACL 9, WPN Dagger and None (errand boys and servants).

16. Minister of Foreign Affairs - The office of the Minister of Foreign Affairs makes use of three scribes, three servants, two guards, and four errand boys, FTR, NNN, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 4 - 3 - 5 - 2 - 3 - 5 - 4 - 2 - 4 - 3, ACL 9, WPN Dagger and None (errand boys and servants). This office is lavishly appointed and holds many heavy wooden cabinets wherein various Treaties, Trade Agreements, and reports from spies and Ambassadors are held.

17. Taran's Robing Chamber - This room contains the Robes of State, as well as thirty other changes of wardrobe and several suits of armor for the Taran. It is locked.

18. Minister of War - The Minister of War employs two scribes, three servants, two guards, and two errand boys, FTR, NNN, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 4 - 3 - 5 - 2 - 3 - 1 - 3, ACL 9, WPN Dagger and None (errand boys and servants), to carry out his commands and aid him in administering the military units of the City State. The walls are decorated with many medals and awards given to the Minister of War during the course of his lifetime for his performance in the line of duty.

19. Head Sage - The office of the Head Sage contains two Scribes, three servants, two guards, and one errand boy, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 4 - 3 - 5 - 2 - 3 - 1, ACL 9, WPN Dagger and None (errand boy and servants). Many scrolls and tomes may be found on shelves which line the walls of the office, some of them relating to legal arrangements of the Taran with members of the council and citizens of the City State.

20. Garden of Ministers - In this garden, the Ministers often take a walk or sit for a bit of relaxation from their tasks. Only the Ministers and the guards which stand at each entrance to the garden, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 8 - 4, ACL 4, WPN Crossbow and Sword, may enter.

21. Parade Grounds. On the hard-packed clay earth of this area, the soldiers practice drills and maneuvers, and it is here that the Taran stages military parade displays for visiting dignitaries from foreign countries. At such times, seats are set up within the shade of the overhanging crosswalk for the use of the audience.

22 - 25. Stables - In these stables are stalls to house 70 - 140 horses. The stables currently contain 84 horses for the troops stationed at the castle and 12 horses for the personal use of the Taran. Tack rooms are nestled in each Stable and contain the necessary equipment for the equestrian troops.

26. The Wizard's Tower, First Level - The Wizard's Tower has been purposely left unkeyed to allow for the Judge's personal discretion in describing the Tower and its contents, based on the campaign he or she moderates.

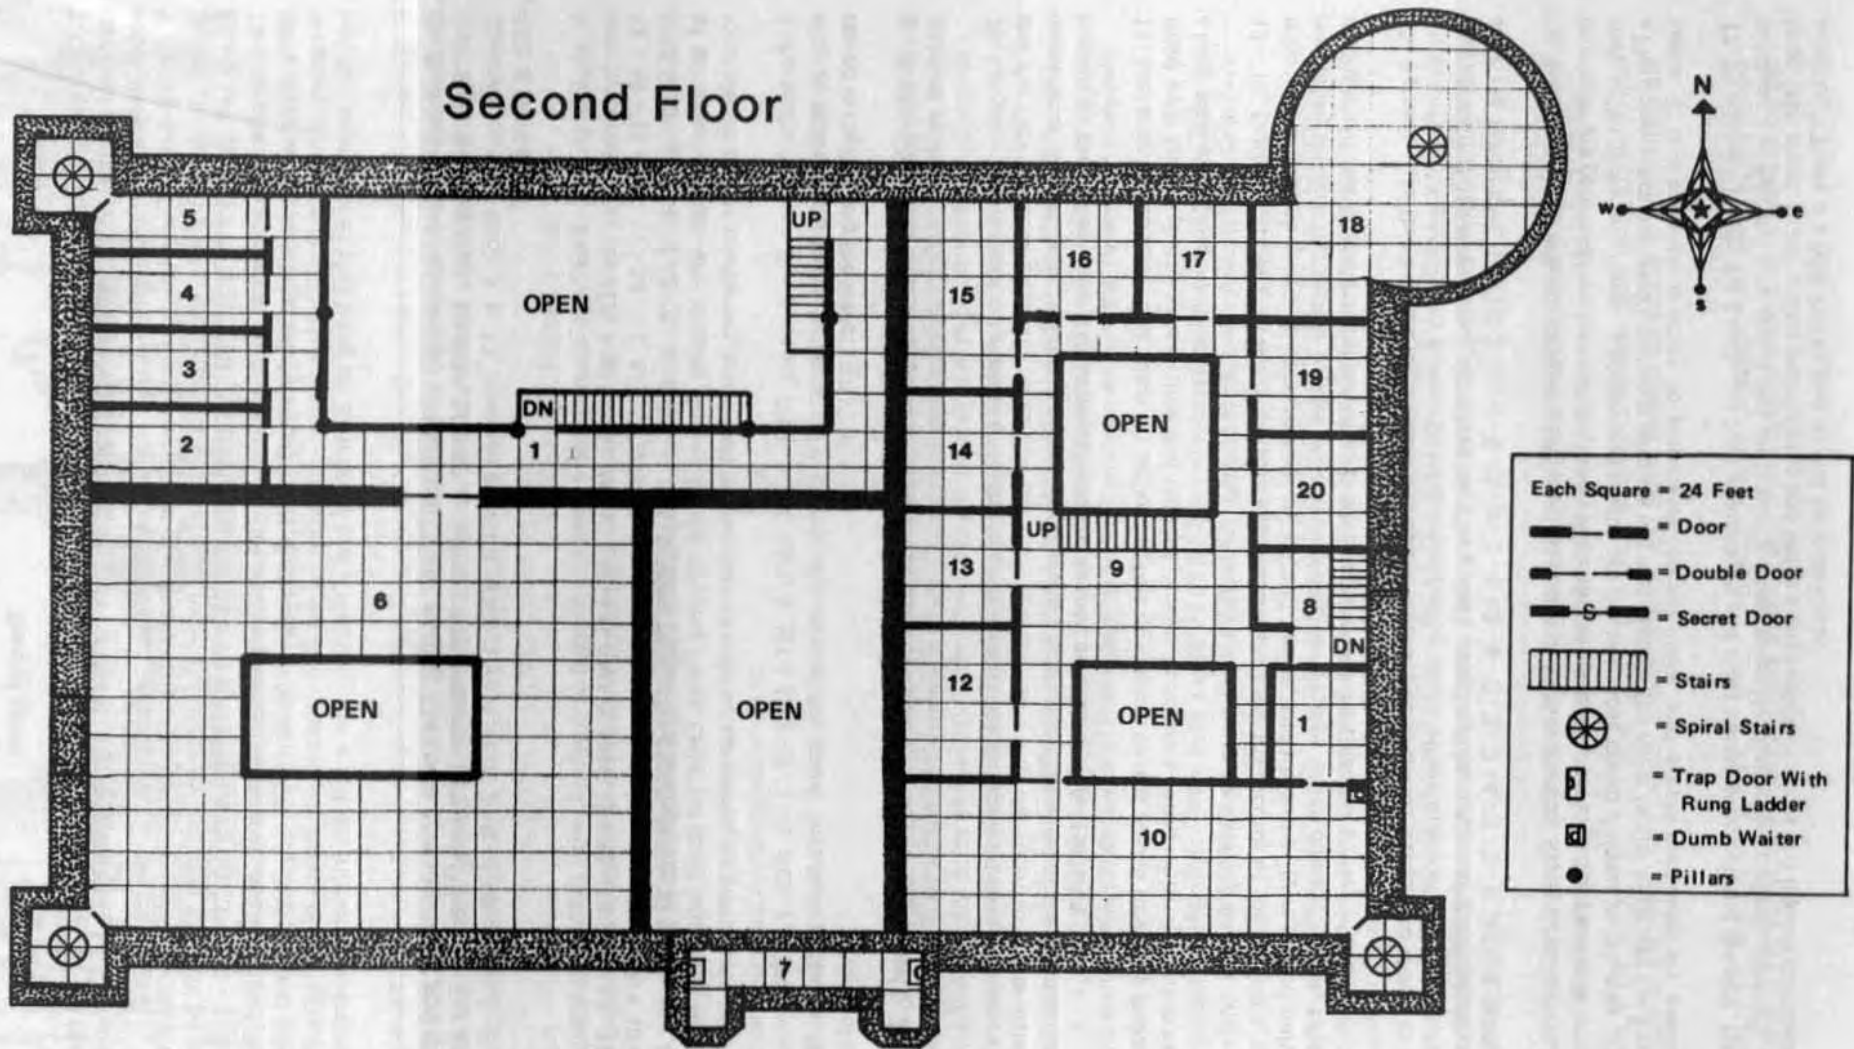

27. Portcullis Tower - Ten Archers, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 4 - 2 - 3 - 1 - 5, ACL 7, WPN Crossbow, take turns at the Arrow slits. A ladder leads to the next level of the tower, and twenty Spears, Shields, and Short Swords are stored in racks along the walls.

28. Portcullis Tower - Ten Archers, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 4 - 2 - 3 - 1 - 5, ACL 7, WPN Crossbow, take turns at the Arrow slits. A ladder leads to the next level of the tower, and twenty Spears, Shields, and Short Swords are stored in racks along the walls.

Second Level

1. Catwalk - The stairs and catwalk give access from the ground floor to the second level of the castle. On the catwalk, also, are stationed Archers, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 8 - 9 - 11 - 7 - 8 - 9, ACL 4, WPN Crossbow, who may defend this access to the upper levels in case of invasion.
- 2 - 4. Barracks - These barracks are reserved for mercenary companies under long-term contract with the Taran. Each has 100 bunks, chests, and stools. Mercenary companies have more liberal leaves, and only 5D6 will be on "active" duty in the palace at any one time, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 5 - 4 - 5 - 4 - 3 - 1 - 6 - 3 - 4 - 2 - 3 - 3 - 4 - 1 - 2 - 5, ACL 8, WPN Short Swords. Two Sergeants, FTR, NXX, LVL 3, HTK 15 - 14, ACL 7, WPN Longswords, and a Captain, FTR, NXX, LVL 5, HTK 30, WPN Scimitar are in charge of the mercenaries. Each chest contains 4D6 GP, 5D6 SP, and 6D6 CP (PROB 20% of Special Weapon). An additional 25 Mercenaries accompanied by 5 Militiamen are always on patrol in the city. Duty assignments are handled with colored tiles hung on each bunk every morning. For a full description of mercenary units, see Book 1, p. 14.
5. Barrack - This barrack houses Shu Shar's Bowmen when they are on duty in the city. The barrack is often empty because the Bowmen make frequent trips to the Bard Citadel nearby. The room contains bunks and trunks for each member of the unit. Each trunk contains 4D6 GP, 5D6 SP, and 6D6 CP (PROB 20% of Special Weapon). For a full description of Shu Shar's Bowmen, consult Book 1, p. 13. Bowmen are FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 5 - 4 - 5 - 4 - 3 - 1 - 6 - 3 - 4 - 2 - 3 - 3 - 4 - 1 - 2 - 5, ACL 8 WPN Bow.
6. Martial Monks - This huge area houses a complete martial arts school, with sleeping quarters, divided from the rest of the area by curtains, for the 4D6 + 30 Monks, MNK, LG - LN, LVL 3, HTK 14 - 15 - 13 - 12 - 13 - 11 - 14 - 15 - 14 - 16 - 13 - 15 - 17 - 16 - 15 - 13 - 12 - 14 - 11, ACL 7, WPN Quarterstaves, who are on duty teaching 3D6 + 10 students, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 3 - 1 - 2 - 4 - 2 - 2 - 1 - 3 - 5 - 2 - 1, ACL 9, WPN Dagger, and taking turns at the Murder Holes opening into the ceiling of the Throne Room and Waiting Rooms on the Ground Floor. Only the most fanatically loyal followers of the Taran, who must also be expert marksmen, are permitted the duty of training Longbows on every guest to avert treachery.
7. Portcullis Tower - Ten Archers, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 4 - 2 - 3 - 1 - 5, ACL 7, WPN Crossbow, take turns at the Arrow slits. A ladder leads from the lower level to the next level of the tower, and twenty Spears, Shields, and Short Swords are stored in racks along the walls.
- 8 - 9. Stairwell - Six Elite Bodyguards, FTR, NXX, LVL 3, HTK 12 - 11 - 13 - 15 - 14 - 12, ACL 3, WPN Sword, protect the stairwell at all times. Each stairwell has an Alarm Gong to summon additional help if needed hanging on the walls.
10. Library - In this room are stored tomes and records used by the scribes, ministers, officials, and military units of the castle and the City State. Shelves and racks line the walls and are built into the room to create aisles of files for storage of these documents. Several large tables surrounded by chairs are arranged in the center of the room to facilitate the gathering of information by the scribes, who are the most frequent users of the library, NA 1D6, LVL 1.
11. Librarian's Quarters - Eric takes an active interest in magical talents passed down by lineage in families, and his room is filled with family charts, census tiles, and family histories. Ponderous books which have been deemed invaluable are sealed in a large glass case along the north wall.
- 12 - 14. Scribes' Quarters - Twenty Scribes and messengers keep the records of the Ministers, particularly those of taxes and tributes, here. Each group is administered by a Chief Scribe, and his authority is second only to the Head Sage. Ministers requesting services from these offices are often referred to another office due to "overload." Many of the state records are disorganized and spread throughout these three chambers and the Library.
15. Barrack - In this barrack are housed the Palace Guard. A number of bunks and chests to accommodate this elite group fill this room, in addition to several tables surrounded by chairs where many of the guard while away some off duty hours playing knucklebones or eating, fill this room. For a more complete description of the Palace Guard, see Book 1, p. 13. Guards are FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 5 - 4 - 5 - 3 - 4 - 1 - 6 - 3 - 4 - 2 - 3 - 3 - 4 - 1 - 2 - 5, ACL 8, WPN Short Sword.
16. Infirmary - The threat of disease being a constant danger within the City State, all persons living within the castle of PSL 7 or greater are confined here immediately upon becoming ill. Outsiders are expelled posthaste from the palace if it is found that they suffer from any illness. Leprosy and plague are the two most feared diseases in this area. Attended by seven servants and a Physician (once per week), patients who are not members of the royal family must pay for any treatment they receive in advance. It is a common practice to amputate infected limbs, and simple medicines are available, though quite expensive.
17. Physician - Hrath the Leech has four apprentices and eight nurses which attend the sick. He relies heavily on medications purchased within the city and is not particularly knowledgeable. Expensive potions, powders, and salves are locked within a huge, iron chest. Hrath enjoys entertaining and keeps a large stock of wines and liquors purchased under the guise of "medical supplies." There is a 50% PROB that he will be intoxicated.

18. Wizard's Research Chamber - Forgotten experiments and many dangerous surprises fill this room, which is avoided by the present Wizard. Although knowledgeable about the method of recharging the architectural and defensive runes of the Castle-Palace, the relatively inept Wizard cannot comprehend the processes developed by his venerable father, who "disappeared" in a cloud of yellow smoke in this chamber some five years ago. Things appearing half alive move slowly within murky jars and crystals. A pallor of fear and distress seems to fill the dusty air itself. Cobwebs cover vats and glassware still smouldering from chemical reactions begun over a decade ago. An iron fence containing no gate commissioned by the present Wizard after his father disappeared bars access to the room from the spiral staircase.

19. Storeroom - Within this storeroom is kept enough preserved foodstuffs, grains, and water to feed the occupants of the palace for two months. Vermine are an occasional problem here when the Wizard fails to maintain the proper enchantments.

20. Armory - Ten Heavy Crossbows, twenty-five Light Crossbows, sixteen Longbows, twenty Short Bows, five Longswords, six Military Picks, thirty-two Polearms, and forty Short Swords are stored along the north wall of this room. On the east wall are stored ten bundles of thirty Arrows each, fifteen Spears, six bundles of fifteen Quarrels each, six Slings with pouches of Lead Shot, and a Blowgun with ten Darts. Arranged on the south wall are forty Shields, forty Helms, and ten Chainmail tunics. An anvil and forge with tools stands in the center of the room.

Third Level

1. Seraglio - Continuing the custom set by former monarchs, the Taran keeps a harem of 30 concubines from as many different nations, 25 dancing girls, and 16 serving maids in this huge area. Pillow-strewn areas are partitioned off with expensive tapestries to form an assortment of smaller rooms in which several of the females keeps her small store of personal belongings. In fact, the Taran spends little time here, and all the women of the palace may have quarters here, should they desire female companionship. Ten Amazons, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 8 - 11 - 10 - 9 - 6 - 7 - 5 - 12 - 6 - 8, ACL 8, WPN Spear and Swords, protect the only entrance, and only females or the Taran are allowed within.

2. Catwalk - The catwalk is guarded by twenty Palace Guards, FTR, LNN, LVL 2, HTK 4 - 6 - 7 - 6 - 4 - 10 - 8 - 7 - 9 - 13, ACL 6, WPN Crossbow and Sword, at all times. A large gong located at the top of the staircase may be used to sound an alarm, if necessary. The staircase itself can be sprung with a lever located on the catwalk to cause it to become a slide. A small cauldron of oil above the stairs can be tipped onto the slide to prevent firm footing.

3. The Taran's Chamber - Only by depressing three keys in the right order will one be able to unlock the iron door to the Taran's chamber. A peephole covered with a plate can be slid aside to ascertain who is on the catwalk outside. Atar will be within the chamber 20% of the time during the day and 60% of the time during the night. A +2 Shield, a +1 Scimitar, and an ornate Helm are mounted on the west wall. A complete collection of weapons of all types is mounted on the south wall. Arrayed along the east wall are the Taran's huge wooden bed, three trunks of clothing, several cabinets containing military gear, and a low table holding a relief map of Tarantis.

4. The Taran's Chamber - The Taran leads an active life and heads several political groups designed to further Tarantine trade and break down old customs which restrict foreign contacts and treaties. Her chamber is filled with art objects from many lands, and a huge wall map showing the principal countries of the known world dominates the north wall. Four serving maids tend her many wardrobes and exotic plants. A large bath is located near the west wall, separated from the rest of the room by a gauze curtain. The Royal Jewels of State are mounted in a glass case in the northwest corner of the room: Tiara 8,957 GP, Necklace 4,680 GP, six Rings 1,925 GP, and two Armbands 770 GP each. Any attempt to open the case without saying the word, "alinkaime," will result in the entire chamber filling with a potent Sleeping Gas (ST -6). The door is protected by a Rune of Stunning (up to 36 levels) against any male not wearing the Ring of Atar.

5. Nursery - This nursery contains only female offspring and is attended by six servants, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 6 - 5 - 4 - 5 - 2 - 3, ACL 9, WPN Dagger, and four nurses. The door is guarded by two Palace Guards, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 11 - 12, ACL 3, WPN Spears and Swords. Within the room reside four little princesses ranging in age from two years of age to eleven years of age.

6. Female Servants' Quarters - Fifteen handmaidens and seven nursery women live here in relative luxury. A small fountain sprays perfumed water into a marble pool in the center of the room, and each woman's living area is cordoned off by satin curtains. Sleeping furs, wardrobe cabinets, small trunks, tables, and chairs are to be found in 30 curtained areas arranged around the walls.

7. Dining Room - Three butlers and two serving girls, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 6 - 7 - 3 - 2 - 4, ACL 9, WPN Dagger, serve meals prepared in the downstairs kitchen and brought up in the dumbwaiter in Room 8. Serving trays, eating utensils, and plates of gold and silver worth a total of 2,680 GP are locked within the ironwood cabinets on the east wall. A large, ornate, oval table is used by everyone on this floor, but the monarchs seldom dine here, preferring to take meals in their quarters unless some state dinner requires their presence downstairs.

8. Dumbwaiter and Storage - Provisions are stored here for use in the event of siege. A dumbwaiter operated by a large hand-crank brings huge trays of food from the kitchen below. The dumbwaiter is sealed with an iron-banded trapdoor when not in use.

9. Guard Captain's Planning Room - This meeting room is seldom used but contains plans of the Palace-Castle and nearby areas for use in planning patrols and defensive measures in the event of an attack. A secret passage leads from this room to the stairwell in the southeast corner of the room.

10. Pandemonium Room - Women near childbirth and infants below the age of two years are cared for in this chamber by sixteen servants and four mid-wives. The room is guarded by four Palace Guards, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 5 - 4 - 9 - 11, ACL 5, WPN Spear and Sword. Currently, eight babies and two very pregnant concubines are being housed in this room.

11. Palace Guard Captain's Chamber - The present Captain of the Guard does not enjoy ceremonies nor palace life and spends little time in this ornately-decorated room. For further information about the Captain of the Guard or his Lieutenants, see Book 1, p. 13. He lets his Lieutenants use the room when on duty on the Third Floor. A collection of arms is arranged along the south wall, and several gaming tables and piles of sleeping furs are in the center of the room. An enchanted Gong sounds in unison with any alarm gong struck within the castle and is mounted on the north wall. A +2 Spear and three Shields are hung near the door. There is a 30% chance that 3D6 Palace Guards will be "gaming" in the room with 1D2 Lieutenants at any one time.

12. Male Servants' Quarters - This room is furnished with twenty bunks, nightstands, and trunks. 4D6 interpreters, scribes, butlers, fitness experts, wine tasters, falconers, and other servants will be here at any one time, FTR, NXX, LVL 1 - 2, HTK 3 - 7 - 4 - 5 - 6 - 4 - 12 - 10 - 5 - 4 - 3 - 4, ACL 9, WPN Dagger. Twenty Short Swords and Shields are mounted near the door for use in the event of trouble.

13. Armory - In this room is stored the prized collection of weapons accumulated by the Taran. Twenty-two Shields, ten Light Crossbows, a Canesword, five Short Swords, two Longswords, six Scimitars, a Boomerang, six Throwing Stars, three Darts, thirty-one Daggers, a Short Composite Bow, three Lances, seven suits of Plate Armor, two Quarterstaves, and equipment for making repairs on arms and armor are contained within this room.

14. Males' Nursery - The male offspring are cared for in this chamber until the age of 7 years. Fourteen servants, FTR, NXX, LVL 1 - 2, HTK 4 - 7 - 8 - 6 - 5 - 4 - 3 - 10 - 4 - 2 - 6 - 3 - 4 - 2, ACL 9, WPN Dagger, are assigned to teach elementary customs and manners. Each of the seven boys within is treated like a petty king, and each has a personal bodyguard. The room is filled with games, toys, miniature ships, blunt weapons, and flags. The door is guarded by two Palace Guards, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 12 - 13, ACL 5, Spear and Sword.

15. Guard Room - Only the elite of the Palace Guard who have been carefully screened for loyalty are permitted to take this station. Thirty Heavy Crossbows and thirty Light Crossbows are kept cocked and loaded here at all times. A heavy cauldron of boiling oil is maintained at the top of the staircase, and passes of colored tile are required of everyone wishing to ascend. Thirty Palace Guards, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 12 - 11 - 10 - 12 - 14 - 9 - 10 - 11 - 8 - 7, ACL 5, WPN Spears and Short Swords, are on constant alert here. An additional 3D6 Palace Guards are resting within the chambers.

16. Wizard's Laboratory - Strange equipment fills this chamber. Most of it was accumulated by past Wizards and cannot be used without considerable research, but some of it is used by the present Wizard. A Multiple Crossbow is mounted facing the stairwell, and many potions, urns, and coffers filled with unknown substances are ranged on shelves and tables about the room.

Basement Level

Three wells are located in each basement level room except the Treasury Rooms. Most of the area is no longer used, although it was once an important part of the daily activities of the occupants of the castle. Now, Giant Rats, Giant Snakes, Giant Spiders, and other creatures preferring the dark recesses have been reported by the guards who are assigned to the still-used portions of this level. The guards have little stomach for being assigned here, and it is often used as a punishment. The storage cellar and dungeon are the only guarded areas.

1. Dungeon - Several torture areas, cells, and pits are located here, but only the cells and torture areas nearest the stairwell are ever used. A forgotten archive of allegedly arcane books is located in the southeast corner, locked within a cell. Giant Rats plague the prisoners unfortunate enough to be confined here, especially at feeding times. Giant Roaches are often seen on the ceilings and walls, and the stench is nauseating. Sixteen guards, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 2 - 1 - 4 - 5 - 2 - 3 - 6 - 5, ACL 5, WPN Spears and Swords, are stationed near the stairwell and the well.

2. Wizard's Zoo - This large laboratory was obviously designed to contain living creatures, but it has been neglected for five years. Huge stocks of grain and other foodstuffs have been scattered about the floor. Moldy carcasses and unidentifiable piles of animal matter have putrefied within iron cages. A few cages stand open, their locks broken by some mysterious (to the observer) force of great strength. The fetid air attests to processes still active.

3. Storage - Extensive stores of wine, grain, dried meats, vegetables, wood, oil, and other perishables are stored within this huge basement area. Two Guards are stationed at the foot of the stairwell, FTR, NXX, LVL 1, HTK 6 - 4, ACL 5, WPN Short Sword. Protective runes designed to preserve are emblazoned over each bin or room and function well as long as only the correct stuffs are stored therein. The Wizard must recharge these runes once per lunar month to maintain their potency.

4 - 5 - 6. Secret Passages - These secret passages lead to the Royal Treasury and are each protected by two Lions, HD 3, HTK 14 - 15 - 14 - 13 - 16 - 14, ACL 6, 2 Claws 1D3 and Bite 2D6 - 1. The Lions are trained not to attack any party accompanied by a person wearing either the Royal Crown or the Royal Tiara.

7. False Treasury - All members of the palace except for a select few believe this is the location of the Treasury. Deposits are carried to this location and are later transferred in secret to the actual hoard in Chamber 10. Two Lions are chained to the north wall; their chains are long enough to attack anyone who enters the room if they are not first winched close to the wall by the use of a handcrank near the door. The Lions are HD 3, HTK 12 - 13, ACL 6, 2 Claws 1D3 and Bite 2D6 - 1. Two Elite Guards are stationed in the stairwell, and four guards are in the Guardroom beyond, FTR, NXX, LVL 2, HTK 8 - 7 - 9 - 6 - 5 - 6, ACL 5, WPN Short Swords. Chests filled with stones are piled about the False Treasury, and 190 GP litter the floor.

8. Lion Keeper - Clavan the Shrewd, FTR, LGN, LVL 4, HTK 27, ACL 6, WPN Scimitar, is one of Atar's most loyal retainers and has undertaken the task of maintaining the Taran's Lions. The court believes that he died in a hunting accident eight years ago. An alarm gong connected to the Taran's room can be used to alert the palace in the event of intrusion. Clavan has four murder holes and a barred opening in his iron-reinforced door out of which he can fire six loaded Heavy Crossbows. A sixty feet deep pit, 40' x 40' in area, can be opened in the floor by triggering a lever within his room.

9. Treasury Entrance - A Giant Lion, HD 10, HTK 54, ACL 6, 2 Claws 1D6 and Bite 3D6 + 1, named "Avelatar," and two female Lions, HD 3, HTK 14 - 11, ACL 6, 2 Claws 1 D3 and Bite 2D6 - 1, prowl this area.

10. A female Lion, HD 3, HTK 16, ACL 6, 2 Claws 1D3 and Bite 1D6 - 1, and four cubs have laired next to the door, separated from the rest of the treasury by a triple-locked, ½" barred iron grating extending to the ceiling. Sixty leather sacks filled with 200 GP each, 127 sacks filled with 200 SP each, 315 sacks filled with 200 CP each, 45 bars of gold worth 120 GP each, 36 bars of silver worth 120 SP each, 50 bars of Iron worth 120 IP each, ten silver urns worth 250 SP each and each filled with 325 EP, a gold, gem-encrusted coffer worth 2,050 GP and filled with 210 PP, an Amber vase worth 340 GP and filled with necklaces, bracelets, torques, rings, and chains worth a total of 9,560 GP, an iron chest containing an adamantite Shield worth 3,480 GP, a mithril Mace worth 960 GP, a Chainmail tunic of platinum worth 2,640 GP, and a velvet pouch holding a Sunstone worth 5,100 GP, two Sapphires worth 1,100 GP each, eight Onyx worth 130 GP each, and a Gold Pearl worth 19,450 GP are stored in this room. A 20' long silver chain worth 1,220 SP suspends a golden candelabra worth 5,310 GP over the hoard. A Topaz statuette of a Dwarven Lord worth 6,250 GP sits on a stack of 25 bronze casks filled with salt and worth 90 GP each. Thirty large jars of oil worth 200 GP each and an ornamental Scimitar with a gem-studded Scabbard worth 615 GP stand in the southwest corner.

11. Inner Treasury - Three green porcelain chests worth 65 GP each contain three gem-encrusted silver urns worth 315 GP each and filled with 1,400 Pearls worth 25 GP each. Forty bars of adamantite worth 200 AP each, twenty-two bars of platinum worth 200 PP each, fifteen bars of electrum worth 200 EP each, and seventy bars of gold worth 200 GP each are stacked on a raised platform. A huge +3 Longsword with an Amethyst-studded hilt worth 14,780 GP hangs on the south wall and casts a purple glow throughout the chamber. A marble statue of an Amazon carrying a Medusa head (worth 3,150 GP) wears a coronet with three Sapphires worth 3,490 GP. A large golden mask worth 2,815 GP sits upon and ebony and ivory game table worth 1,350 GP. Within the table are ten golden playing pieces studded with Black Pearls and worth 860 GP each.

The Soaring Stars Club

An elite social club on the west side, the Soaring Stars Club is "the place to be." Anyone who is wealthy, popular, or of the nobility belongs to the Stars. Contacts can be made here and information bought or sold; the gossip flows freely. The Stars Club features a large bar made of wood from the near-extinct Moonwood tree. It is delicately and beautifully carved with scenes of the heavens and earth, Nymphs, Satyrs, Elves, and other creatures of the woods frolicking about, and fantastic creatures such as Unicorns and Pegasi. Moonwood tables and chairs surround the bar. A large dance floor made of polished marble with a stage is set against the back wall. Some type of entertainment is usually provided for the enjoyment of the patrons.

To the right of the game room is the hot baths room. In it, seven small wooden tubs are filled with warm water agitated with wooden paddles by a slave girl at each tub (CHA 15 or higher). In the very back of the Club is a fortune-telling room. Milisca, a seer from Seraphine works here, telling the future for 15 GP per reading. She is 80% accurate in her readings (-10% per day into the future).

Sagel Ranir is the manager of the Soaring Stars Club. He is a quiet man who is not given to the frivolities of the rich, despite his own considerable wealth. Untoo Twee, the bartender, greatly enjoys his job because he hears all the local gossip among the high class clientele. He also likes to talk and cannot be trusted to keep a secret. Untoo has a bad leg and walks with a limp. He received his injury while in the military during the Battle of Crowrun.

No one with a PSL of 7 or lower can become a member of the Club. Membership costs 50 GP per year, and any unacceptable behavior is reason to lose membership, as well as status.

The Burnt Dragon Club

The Burnt Dragon is a club for those professing to be Magicians (or people involved with magic) only. Not only is it a place for relaxation, with various games, hot baths, and the like, but it is also a place where Mages can gather to discuss new techniques and ideas. Club membership is 100 GP a month, but all food and drink is free to members. Both the food and the drinks are of very high quality, so the membership fee is well worth it. To gain membership, an individual must prove magical abilities and be PSL 9 or higher. The club is managed by Thetavelus, a prominent Magician and good businessman. He employs three bouncers who guard the door, FTR, NNN, LVL 3, HTK 12 - 14 - 15, ACL 6, WPN Scimitar. The bar is tended by Thetavelus or Zeresia, his pretty, young wife.

Atop the bar is a revolving crystal ball radiating prismatic colors. Three similar balls hang from the ceiling over the bar. Expensive murals and tapestries adorn the polished wooden walls of the club. Visitors are not allowed in the club because a lot of trade secrets circulate here that are not meant for the ears of outsiders.

Meriem Catwolf Folk

The "Meriem" are a highly-intelligent, free-roaming race of the Catwolves closely related in appearance to Warcats. Unlike the Warcats, however, the Meriem are completely sentient, have a highly-developed sense of honor, have evolved a civilization independent of Human-kind, and believe themselves to be descendants of an instellar race. Their ferocious appearance is enough to dissuade most predators, but chief of their defenses is the ability to Charm other creatures (up to 10 HD or 10 LVL once per day) if they can induce the creature to look directly into their eyes. Although they are four-legged, the Meriem possess an opposing thumb and three fingers which are retractable on their front paws. Their tails have sensitive touch, and the Meriem use them with great dexterity to signal in sign language, indicate direction, climb, and grasp simple objects.

The Meriem's thick fur coat provides a protective covering equal to ARM 024 to ARM 063 (ACL 8 to ACL 4), depending upon the size of the creature. Coloration of their fur is light and ranges in soft shades from pure white (smallest size) to golden yellow. Size ranges from 4' to 10' in length with body weights from 100 to 600 pounds (HD 1D6, 2 Claws 1D2, Bite 1D6). They bear their young in litters (1D4 cubs) only once in a female's lifetime and form a family grouping of 2D6 adults to protect the young during the first three years only. They live 4D6 + 110 years normally.

The Meriem disdain the ownership of objects and have little intercourse with traders and others evidencing materialism. They have been known to exchange services for knowledge, however, and are believed to possess a vast store of knowledge in their "Revered Ones" (Meriem over 100 years old).

The Meriem range freely in and out of Tarantis on their own business, and it is considered treason to kill a Meriem within the walls of the city. The Meriem never speak, but many Humans have learned their sign language or gestures. Some Meriem have developed spell abilities (PROB 5%/20 Years of Age) which do not require spoken enchantments. They prefer "healing" magic and sometimes perform this service to avoid the necessity of hunting. Friendships between the Meriem and Humanoids are rare but have been reported. In such cases, a telepathic link has become apparent between the two species after several years of contact (+2% per Year). The Meriem will never stay in one place long, except in a family pack, and can travel as swiftly as a Light Horse for up to 3 hours without tiring.

The Azurerain Pirates

Detailed more fully in the City State Campaign Installment contained in Pegasus 6, the stronghold of Birezna, where the Pirates who work hand-in-glove with the government of Tarantis, are located, is given a cursory description in the following pages. The hexes referred to in the descriptions are those of the map of the five-mile hex numbered 2625 on Campaign Map 4.

The Azurerain Pirates

Background

Ten years ago, a freebooter approached Atar the Lion, the ruler of Tarantis (Hex 2327, Campaign Map Four) with an interesting proposition. An agreement was reached between Atar and the man who has since been known as the Seahawk.

The Seahawk gathered together all the local pirates, privateers, buccaneers, and the other refuse of the water and molded them together into a brotherhood - an association of independent captains which would eliminate competition between them. Atar and the markets of Tarantis would share in the enterprise. It soon became recognized that ships licensed by the Tarentine Merchants' Association would be guaranteed passage by the Brotherhood if a slight fee was paid. Vessels which were not registered would be fair game for the pirates. Seized goods were then auctioned by the Brotherhood monthly. It has been rumored that Atar sometimes denies registration to vessels carrying goods he covets and then buys them at the auction when the ship is taken by the Brotherhood.

In time, a camp grew around the market site about 18 miles northeast of the city of Tarantis. The Seahawk, a cautious type, developed a system of protection for his men. Lookout points were situated along the Azurerain River. Agents of the Brotherhood were sent into the cities and towns along the river. It is rumored that, by this time, agents can be found in most major cities in the known area. A carrier pigeon system was instituted about five years ago, thus insuring quick communications between outposts. It is not uncommon for magic to be used to notify the Seahawk of wealthy prizes.

Ships used by the Brotherhood vary in type. Most are owned by the Captains although ships are also known to be under the ownership of patrons who receive a portion of the booty when it is sold. The main type of vessel is a clinker-built, shallow-draft ship, close in design to the Viking war boat. This type of ship can be used with sails or oars and is quite capable of long sea journeys. Smaller river craft are also used. In most cases, the crew is entirely composed of members of the Brotherhood although some vessels use slaves as rowers.

The governing body of the Brotherhood is the Council of Captains. Each captain (who must possess a ship and at least fifty men) has a vote in Council deliberations. The Captain-General has three votes and decides the action if a tie vote results. The Tarentine Merchants' Association and Atar the Lion each get one vote. General meetings are held twice a year, and at least three-quarters of the Captains must be present in order to have a voting quorum. New Captains are appointed as voting members only with the approval of two-thirds of the voting membership. Quarrels within the membership are normally decided by a formal duel if agreement cannot be enforced by the members. Violations of the Articles of Association of the Brotherhood are tried before a judicial board consisting of the Captain-General and two Captains elected every two years.

Shares of sold booty are normally divided in the following fashion although minor variations are known to exist.

30%	Master of the vessel. Usually the Captain.
10%	Officers and bodyguard.
30%	Crew.
10%	Captain-General.
15%	Brotherhood treasury.
5%	Atar the Lion and the Tarentine Merchants' Association.

Average Ship Characteristics

Length: 65' to 70'

Beam (width): 13' to 15'

Crew: 55 - 60, usually two per oar.

Officers: 3 - 5

Average Speed: 3 - 7 knots rowing, 4 - 11 knots sailing, usually with one mast and a large, square sail.

Armament: Some ships mount small ballistae on a platform on the bow. Individual crewmen are armed with their personal weapons. Some Captains elect to use unarmed slaves as rowers, but the rest of the crew is armed.

Offices of the Tarentine Merchants' Association

Representatives of the Association can be found in many towns and cities of the known world. A typical building is three stories high. Living quarters for the agent and his family are found on the second floor. There are also living quarters for the guards (2 - 8 Fighters, all in Leather Armor, bearing Longswords). The strong box is also found here.

The third floor contains storerooms and a carrier pigeon loft. 5 - 15 birds are kept, watched over constantly by a trainer. Using these birds, the agent always keeps in touch with the home organization. Messages are always sent in code, and the code is known only to the agents.

The first floor holds the offices for the Association. Record files are maintained by 1 - 4 scribes. The licensing office is in the rear. Licensing permits and the Association's seal are kept in a locked strong box during business hours and transferred upstairs-at night. Average costs are 1 CP per ton of common goods, 1 SP per ton of luxury goods (wine, fine cloth, etc.), and 1% of the value of valuables (jewelry, fine books, spices, magical items, etc.). Slaves are priced according to the use of the slave. Common slaves are insured for 1 CP per 10 slaves. Trained slaves are 1 SP each. Harem girls, fine cooks, body servants, and scribes are insured for 1 GP each.

Permits may be denied (and the information passed along to the main office) if the cargo exceeds certain values):

Cargo Value	Chance of Denial	Attack Chance
0 - 50 GP	1%	1%
51 - 100 GP	5%	7%
101 - 500 GP	8%	10%
501 - 1,000 GP	10%	15%
1,001 - 5,000 GP	15%	20%
5,001 - 25,000 GP	20%	30%
25,001 - 100,000 GP	30%	45%
100,001 - 500,000 GP	40%	60%
500,001 - 1,000,000 GP	50%	80%
1,000,001 - 2,500,000 GP	75%	95%
More than 2,500,000 GP	80%	100%

Attack chance is the percentage roll to determine if the Brotherhood will attempt to take the unlicensed merchant vessel. Note that bribery may be resorted to by shippers to attempt to gain a proper license.

1. Watch Tower - Hex 1120. A platform built in a very large oak tree serves as a watchtower. It holds 10 men on each of its two stories and is entered by a rope ladder which is only lowered when the guard is changed every 18 hours. If danger or a prey approaches, carrier pigeons are released to relay the message upriver to Bireznia. Guard: FTR, LEX, LVL 2, ARM 060, HTK 8 - 6 - 6 - 5 - 5 - 5 - 4 - 7 - 8, WPN Heavy Crossbows and Cutlasses.

2. Ferry - Hex 2015. Black Diccon, Half-Orc, THF, NNN, LVL 5, HTK 21, ARM 020, WPN +1 Dagger, charges 1 SP per man or beast and 3 SP per wagon or cart. Beneath his black, hooded robes, Diccon wears a reinforced breast and back plate, and he distrusts anyone who is not obviously a Fighter or a Pirate.

3. Stone Tower - Hex 2115. A Light Ballista is mounted on the roof of the 20' tall, 15' diameter stone tower which holds 15 men, FTR, LEX, LVL 1, ARM 060, HTK 5 - 4 - 4 - 3 - 2 - 7 - 5 - 4 - 3 - 4 - 6 - 6 - 4 - 4 - 2, WPN Various, and a Captain, FTR, CEX, LVL 3, ARM 060, HTK 20, WPN Cutlass.

4. Auctioneer - Hex 2215. In a two-story, stone building, the locals bid on the loot stolen by the Pirates. The auction takes place on the last two days of each month. A below-ground vault holds goods being stored for auction. The stairs to the vault are always guarded by two men, FTR, LEX, LVL 2, ARM 060, HTK 7 - 6, WPN Cutlasses and Boarding Pikes. The vault door is trapped with 2D6 poisoned, spring-fired Darts. Only the auctioneer, MAG, LEX, LVL 3, ARM 080, HTK 12, WPN +1 Dagger, and the Seahawk have the key.

5. Seahawk's Hold - Hex 2316. The Seahawk, FTR, LEX, LVL 9, ARM 050, HTK 38, WPN +2 Cutlass, is often absent from the Hold (20% PROB he is in Tarantis, 40% PROB he is on a raid, 10% chance he is at the Red Lion Inn). The stairs to the second floor are guarded at all times by two Pirates, FTR, LEX, LVL 1, ARM 060, HTK 6 - 5, WPN Cutlass. A trapdoor in the Seahawk's room on the second floor leads to a hidden stairway to a tunnel below ground level which serves as an escape tunnel and is barred by a magically-locked, heavy door. Only those who live at the Hold know the secret password required to deactivate the spell. A treasure room to the left of the door contains locked strongboxes holding 15,000 GP, 15,000 SP, 25,000 CP, 10,000 GP in jewelry, 15,000 GP in gems and potions of Ether Form, Dominate Birds, Flying, Persuasiveness, and Dragon Control. The treasure is guarded by an Iron Golem which will always attack unless the control word, known only to the Seahawk and his closest companions, is spoken.
6. Accounting House - Hex 2316. Two Clerics, two Scribes, and six slaves, HTK 8 - 6 - 2 - 1 - 5 - 4 - 4 - 3 - 2 - 2, WPN Maces and None (slaves), work here, keeping the records of the auctioneer and the Pirates in order.
7. Temple of Neptune - Hex 2317. This is a local shrine to the patron of the river. All monetary donations are used to plate the marble statue of Neptune; all non-gold items are exchanged for gold plating. The current worth of the statue is 22,500 GP. The statue stands on a high dais surrounded by a 15' wide and 30' deep moat filled with river water. The temple is presided over by Nordak the Cleric, two acolytes and three custodian guards, HTK 24 - 13 - 13 - 10 - 11 - 7.
8. Armory - Hex 2317. The armory contains 2 Light Ballistae, 25 casks of oil, 150 Ballista Bolts, 50 Heavy Crossbows, 100 Light Crossbows, 2,000 Crossbow Bolts, 300 Cutlasses, 500 Boarding Pikes, 200 Knives, 150 small Shields, 100 sets of Leather Armor, and 100 Grappling Hooks. Five Pirates guard the contents, FTR, LEX, LVL 1, ARM 060, HTK 6 - 5 - 5 - 4 - 3, WPN Cutlasses and Pikes.
9. Rope Maker - Hex 2417. Boldikker, Goblin, FTR, CEX, LVL 1, ARM 060, HTK 4, WPN Dagger, makes ropes for use by the Pirates. 56 GP are hidden beneath a rope coiled in the upper loft.
10. Red Lion Inn - Hex 2116. Big John, FTR, NEX, LVL 4, ARM 060, HTK 21, WPN +1 Mace owns the Inn. Fast Eddie, THF, NEX, LVL 3, ARM 060, HTK 11, WPN +1 Dagger, runs the knucklebones games in the corner. He often cheats, but the chance of detection is 5% cumulative per roll. Rooms upstairs (PROB 40% available) are 2 SP per night, including breakfast and a drink on the house. Customers are Pirates, NA 10D4, LVL 1 - 2. The establishment's till is kept in a locked cash box and contains 120 GP, 100 SP, and 55 CP.
11. Granary - Hex 2117. The watchman, FTR, NEX, LVL 2, HTK 8, ARM 060, WPN Club, guards 20 - 200 tons of grain, depending upon what the latest raids have produced.
12. Barrack - Hex 2216. The barrack provides living quarters for 50 + 1D20 Pirates and their personal belongings. The Pirates are FTR, CEX, LVL 1 - 2, ARM 060, HTK 4 - 6 - 7 - 3 - 9 - 2 - 5 - 3 - 7 - 8 - 5 - 6 - 2 - 5 - 4, WPN Cutlass.
13. Lathey's Place - Hex 2317. Captain Bigboot Lathey, Orc, FTR, CEX, LVL 6, ARM 050, HTK 25, WPN +1 Cutlass, and his cronies are the Seahawk's main competition. They control about a third of the Brotherhood's votes and are always trying to undermine the authority of the Seahawk. Bigboot will pay money for any information which may prove damaging to the Seahawk.
14. Bellagio's - Hex 2318. Captain Bellagio, FTR, NEX, LVL 5, ARM 050, HTK 38, WPN Cutlass generally votes with the Seahawk on policy matters.
15. Brig - Hex 2418. Cells contain 1D8 Pirates (usually jailed for fighting), 2D6 prisoners being held for ransom, and 1D4 others. All cells are on the upper level of the building. The lower levels contain quarters for the overseers and field slaves. There are quarters for 150 slaves, who are chiefly employed in working on the nearby fields, and 10 overseers armed with Whips. Slaves are kept chained at all times, and attrition rate is high - 10% chance of disease cumulative per month held in slavery. Slave raiding is one of the Pirates' many activities.
16. Watchtower - Hex 3118. A wooden tower 20' high and 15' in diameter holds a ten-man garrison, FTR, LEX, LVL 1, ARM 060, HTK 6 - 5 - 4 - 3 - 2 - 1 - 4 - 5 - 6 - 5, WPN Cutlasses and Light Crossbows.
17. The Keep - Hex 2612. A beacon fire on the roof of this stone Keep is sometimes used to guide ship to the camp or relay signals. The normal garrison is 20 men, FTR, LEX, LVL 1, ARM 060, HTK 6 - 5 - 4 - 3 - 2 - 1 - 4 - 5 - 6 - 4, WPN Light Crossbow. A trap door on the first floor leads to the caves below.
18. Ruins - Hex 2610. Here are the remains of what was once a large building which was destroyed by fire long before the Pirates found it. The area is shunned by the superstitious sailors, although some say that the place was once a rich temple to a local cult of killers.

Events and Encounters in Town

If an encounter is rolled for in the town, roll 1D20 for the type of occurrence.

- 1 A party of drunken Pirates (HTK: 8, 6, 4, 3, and 3) accost the party and demand that they buy a round for them at the Red Lion. They will fight if the party doesn't come across.
- 2 Old Wilf, a one-legged retired Pirate offers the party a secret map (fake) of the dungeons below the Seahawk's house for 200 GP. If pressed, he will say that he is not able to search them himself because of his bum leg. (This encounter may only happen once. If it is rolled a second time, roll again.)
- 3 Mother Juju, an old hag, offers good luck charms to the party, 1 SP each. They are worthless.
- 4 A band of slaves is being led to work in the fields, and one attempts to escape. He runs toward the party while the overseer chases him. It is a serious crime to aid a slave and a duty to capture all escaping ones.
- 5 A drunken Pirate is observed being robbed by a small boy. The boy, Grido, knows all about a secret tunnel that leads beneath the mountain to a hidden temple.
- 6 An impressment gang has a 35% chance of noticing a player-character and will seek to capture him.
- 7 Party is offered employment by a representative of the Tarentine Merchants' Association as a crew member for a raiding expedition.
- 8 An Elf, chained to a wagon, whispers to the party leader that he will pay handsomely if they will release him.
- 9 A scantily-clad woman (Argelis, Class: Fighter; Alignment: CG; LVL: 4; Social Level: 4; STR: 15; INT: 12; WIS: 11; CON: 13; DEX: 15; CHAR: 17; POW: 16; END: 14; STA: 13; AGIL: 16; SPD: 16; LED: 18; LCK: 8; GAM: 7; Weapon: Longbow) walks toward the party. If the party says anything suggestive or improper, Argelis will fight. She is a member of the crew of the Revenger. HTK: 23.
- 10 A rough-looking character gives the party leader a scrap of paper and whispers, "It must be done tonite, matey." The paper has a large black spot, and beneath it is written: Prog the Grim. (This encounter may only happen once. If rolled a second time, roll again.)
- 11 A beautiful woman asks the party leader to help her to find her father who is rumored to be a prisoner of Bigboot Lathey. She will pay 1,000 GP if her father is released. Lathey demands 2,000 GP for the ransom of the prisoner.
- 12 A ship-less Captain, Tindel the Red, Class: Fighter; Alignment: LG; LVL: 3; Social Level: 3, STR: 17; INT: 11, WIS: 14; CON: 14; DEX: 9; CHAR: 11; POW: 17; SPD: 13; END: 14; LED: 11; STA: 15; LCK: 8; AGIL: 8; GAM: 14; HTK: 16, approaches the party and confides that he is a little down on his luck but is seeking investors to help him get a new ship. He shows the party half of a treasure map showing the legendary island of Dariabar where fabled riches are concealed. (This encounter may only happen once. If rolled a second time, roll again.)
- 13 A street vendor approaches, selling "official" Pirate head scarves for 2 CP each. He is very persistent.
- 14 Two Pirates begin a fierce brawl as the party passes. There is a 25% chance that one of the party is struck by one of the combatants.
- 15 A rum-seller runs past the party yelling, "Stop, Thief!" to a fugitive disappearing into a doorway ahead.
- 16 A lady of the evening propositions the party leader.
- 17 A drunken Pirate lies sprawled in the gutter muttering about men and "a dead man's chest." He has 3 SP in his pocket and a treasure map (fake) hidden under his bandana. (This encounter may only happen once. If rolled a second time, roll again.)
- 18 A recruiter for the ship, Levantine Lady, accosts the party and seeks a trained archer for the ship's company.
- 19 A Pirate walks past the party carrying a woman over his shoulder. The woman appears drugged. If aided, the woman will pay the party 100 GP.
- 20 A mounted messenger knocks down the party leader. He carries a list of unlicensed shipping to the Seahawk.

The Pirate stronghold is refuge for about 418 Pirates and their families. If the Judge does not have "The Azureain Pirates" in Pegasus 6, he or she must create the necessary stats for any Pirates encountered in this section since there is not enough space in this project to include all the information contained in the Installment.

Village Shops

After locating the technological level of the village, roll on the chart in the technological level indicated. Roll for no more than one - third of the shops in that category. The remainder shall be rolled for from the lower technological levels.

Village Technological Level Chart

Roll a 12 - sided die to determine the village technological level. A roll of 12 indicates a re-roll. The column of numbers next to the technological level indicates the number of government works buildings to be rolled for.

ATTACK

If no logical reason is apparent for the attack, use the following table to determine the purpose. Encounters with persons of Level 6 or higher will also involve companions equal to the Level Guildline and will be 1D6 Levels lower than their liege. Nobles and Gentlemen will also have bodyguards equal in number to their party size. Thirty percent of all attacks will be to subdue the player(s), and all attacks marked with asterisks will be to capture the player(s). Intelligent encountered attackers will no attack a superior party but will harass and harry them, instead.

This product is a Judges Guild Universal Role Playing Adventure designed for use with all game systems and requires a separate rules system for its use. The categories of statistics listed are selected to be applicable to the majority of the published rule systems but should not be considered the only statistics open for use. Should the particular game mechanics employed require the use of an additional term or statistic not found in this format, the Judge is encouraged to add it. All unused categories may be ignored. The values of the statistics given assume that the natural span of human characteristics ranges between one and twenty with the normal person averaging at ten. Since adventurous characters are above average, their beginning characteristics are generated with 3D6 to give a range of three to eighteen. A comparison chart is provided to permit the Judge to quickly convert values on the 1D6, 2D6, 3D6, 1D20, and %D ranges from one to the other. Interpolation may be necessary with some figures, but the Judge should keep in mind that these are suggested values only and may be modified to suit the tone of the campaign he or she is moderating.

The basic assumptions on the rationale for Magic vary so widely from one game system to another that one set of statistics cannot cover the field adequately. Therefore, each spell or magical effect is given a general name such as Stop Person or Invisibility. Unusual effects or articles are described in the text where first encountered or in a special section at the end. The Judge can then assign an equivalent spell or effect from the game system being used.

During the initial reading of this product, the Judge should note the quantities and distribution of the treasure and artifacts. Each game system and each campaign tends to run at a level of reward unique unto itself. The Judge is reminded to adjust the amount of treasure available by adding or deleting to correspond with the campaign he or she moderates.

Game characters are given varying amounts of description depending upon the importance of the character to the adventure. Minor individuals are listed where first encountered in the text and have only the most cursory details given. Major individuals are listed where first encountered and have as much detail given as is desirable for their intended role. In addition to the text listing, an alphabetical listing of the characters and their game statistics may be given in chart form at the end of the product. The explanations of the possible character statistics follows in the order given. In the cases of statistics STR through CHA or PSY (depending on which is used last), the first two numbers indicate the actual ability, and the last number indicates the number of times per day that the ability may be tested without checking for stress damage.

CLS - Class is an indication of the character's profession or main occupation. Abbreviations are explained on a following table.

ALN - Alignment is an index of a character's predisposition toward the moral or ethical choices to be made during the game. Alignment is abbreviated in descending importance from left to right. The third letter indicates only a suppressed desire.

LVL - Class Level is an index of the experience and skill acquired in the character's main occupation or profession. The first two numbers indicate the actual class level, and the last indicates the total number of occupations in which the character has gained skill.

HTK - Hits to Kill is the number of hit points necessary to render a character unconscious when reduced to zero or to slay the character when reduced to a negative amount equal to the character's CON.

ACL - Armor Class is an indication of the degree of difficulty of hitting based upon the defender's armor.

ARM - Armor Type is a summary of the amount of damage it is possible for the character to absorb due to the protection of worn armor and clothing. Wearing a lot of armor will lower the AGL and SPD of the character. During normal combat, the amount of damage which can be absorbed per round is equal to one-tenth the ARM with all decimal amounts dropped. For instance, ARM 022 will provide 02 points of protection per round. The ARM is the sum of the pieces of armor listed in the following charts.

PSL - Personal Social Level is an Index of the character's social standing. The first two digits indicate the level in the area in which the character resides, and the third number indicates the level of notoriety gained within a twenty-mile radius.

STR - Strength is an Index of the character's ability to apply physical force.

INT - Intelligence is an Index of the character's reasoning power, learning ability, concentration, and memory.

WIS - Wisdom is an index of the character's intuitive judgement and knowledge gained from experience.

CON - Constitution is an index of a character's ability to withstand pressure and physical hardships without permanent harm as well as the recuperative powers of the character.

DEX - Dexterity is an indication of a character's coordination and manipulative ability.

CHA - Charisma is an Index of the character's personal magnetism and persuasiveness.

END - Endurance is a measure of the amount of physical stress to which the character can be subjected.

AGL - Agility is an index of the character's ability to maneuver the entire body.

LED - Leadership is an index of the character's ability to command the respect of subordinates, motivate others, and boost morale.

LCK - Luck is an index of the character's relationship with the forces that control that character's fate. The first two digits are the actual LCK, and the third is the number of times this characteristic can be tested without incurring the "wrath of the gods."

PSY - Psionic Ability is an index of the character's ability to channel and use psionic powers.

WPN - Weapon is an indication of the weapon commonly carried and most likely to be used in combat. Abbreviations are explained on a following table.

UNIVERSAL COMBAT STATISTICS

GAME STATISTICS VARY CONSIDERABLY WITH EACH GAME SYSTEM, AND THE MOST SENSITIVE OF THESE STATISTICS ARE THOSE USED TO RESOLVE COMBAT. RATHER THAN COMPLETELY IGNORE THIS VITAL AREA, AS MANY OTHERS DO, WE HAVE PROVIDED TWO STATISTICS TO PERMIT YOU TO ADJUST THE ONE CLOSEST TO THE SYSTEM YOU USE. REFER TO THE DEFINITIONS OF ARM AND ACL.

ARMOR TYPE - ARM

ADD ALL THE FOLLOWING DESCRIPTIVE RATINGS (RATINGS ARE FOUND TO THE LEFT OF THE DESCRIPTION) TO DETERMINE THE ARMOR TYPE (ARM). MULTIPLY THE ARMOR TYPE (ARM) BY THE RATING OF THE CONSTRUCTION MATERIAL USED TO DETERMINE THE TOTAL DAMAGE THE ITEM CAN ABSORB WITHOUT FAILURE. WHEN USING THIS SYSTEM, ONLY THE SHIELD OR BODY ARMOR WILL ABSORB DAMAGE, NOT BOTH.
