Kevin Smead and son Spencer, 18 months, enjoy DADA (Delaware At-Home Dads Association) as a chance to socialize with other fathers and children, including 18-month-old Katie Lou (in car), and father Boyd Fleming.

Just another day with dad

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Just over a year ago, Newark resident Stuart Ungar, decided to initiate a search for other guys like him. Not weekend jocks, computer geeks or stamp collectors, but dads, dads raising kids, everyday, all day.

The idea for a father's group surfaced when Ungar and his wife, Laura, were expecting their first child, 17-month-old Aaron. "I wanted to connect with other men who have made the same decision as I did," said Ungar.

After spreading the word through friends, children's activity groups and other venues, Ungar recruited a group of dads who agreed to meet.

Now celebrating their one year anniversary, the Delaware At-Home Dads Association, or DADA, has about six fathers who meet regularly to hang out, take field trips or grab lunch.

Members admitted that their get-togethers offer a welcome respite from the sometimes isolated lifestyle of a stay-at-home parent.

"I wasn't getting out much," said John McIntyre, laughingly. "The first several months were the toughest for me."

McIntyre, whose wife Megan is a lawyer, has been a full-time dad to one-year-old daughter, Lydia, since shortly after her birth.

Parking changes approved

Pedestrian mall planned for Hullihen Circle

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

City council approved an agreement this week between the city of Newark and the University of Delaware to eliminate some parking spaces along South College Avenue.

The agreement is part of a University plan which includes turning Hullihen Circle into a landscaped, pedestrian mall. The Circle, between Hullihen Hall and the Morris Library, previously has been used as a driveway and parking area.

"Our main concern is safety," explained UD government relations director Rick Armitage. "It has never been safe to have vehicles driving around that lot looking for parking spaces next to the library."

Armitage stated the University administration is also interested in adding green space in that area.

The change will displace approximately 50 parking spaces

Stabbing suspect identified

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark Police are still investigating the stabbing of a Newark teen that occurred on Saturday, June 10, at the Newark Shopping Center.

According to Media Officer Mark Farrall, the police had positively identified the assailant and charges were pending, as of deadline on Wednesday.

The suspect, known as "Jay," was described in police reports as a 19-year-old white male, approximately six feet, one inch tall with a goatee.

At the time of the incident, he was wearing a white tank top and blue jean shorts. Police had not yet released additional informa-

Charges possible in fatal accident

Newark Police reported this week they are expecting to place charges in the fatal traffic accident on Elkton Road on May 25. Media Officer Mark Farrall said the police are awaiting a report from the State Attorney General's office.

Two teens died in the single-car accident when the car in which they were passengers struck a utility pole near Otts Chapel Road. The driver of the vehicle and another passenger were injured in the crash but have since been released from the hospital.

Additional charges coming in robberies

Newark Police are investigating the second robbery in a week at Little Caesar's Pizza on New London Road.

According to police, Douglas Paul Anastasia, 23, of Landenburg, Pa., entered the pizza shop just as it was opening for business on Saturday, June 10, around 10:45 a.m.

Anastasia allegedly displayed a knife and demanded that the manager of the shop give him money from the safe.

"The manager refused to turn over the money and became engaged in a fight with the suspect," stated Media Officer Mark Farrall.

Police reported Anastasia, with the manager in pursuit, left the shop and fled toward Fairfield Apartments where he was stopped in the parking lot.

Newark Police arrived on the scene and took Anastasia into custody. He was charged with robbery and possession of a deadly weapon in that incident.

The pizza shop was also robbed around 11:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 3, by a suspect described as a white male in his 20s, 5 feet, 8 inches tall with a medium build. During the earlier incident, the suspect displayed what appeared to be a handgun in his waistband and fled with an undisclosed amount of cash.

Farrall said the police are investigating the possibility the two incidents as well as other robberies in the Newark area recently are related.

In a separate and unrelated investigation, Newark Police also report an unknown person took money from the timelock safe at the Little Caesars sometime between 10 p.m. on June 4 and 10 a.m. on June 5.

Fairfield News also robbed

Fairfield Shopping Center was the scene of another robbery on Wednesday, June 7, around 7:50 p.m. According to Newark Police, an unknown white male, 20 to 25 years old, approximately 5 feet, 10 inches tall, 180 pounds, with blonde, close-cut hair with short "gelled spikes," wearing an orange shirt, baggy khaki pants and black boots, entered the Fairfield News and demanded money. Witnesses said he was armed with a black-handled steak knife. He fled on foot toward the Fairfield Apartments with several cartons of cigarettes and an undisclosed amount of money.

Anyone with information about this or other robberies in the area is asked to call Newark Police at 366-7111 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Graffiti losses continue to mount

Newark police report unknown persons painted graffiti on two Army vehicles parked at Newark Shopping Center between 7 p.m. on June 9 and 8:20 a.m. on June 10. Damage was estimated at $1,000. In addition, two rental vehicles belonging to Enterprise Rent-A-Car were painted with graffiti during the same period. Damage to those vehicles was also estimated at $1,000.

Third DUI charge in five years

Newark Police charged Robert Justin Farraday, 27, of Newark, with his third DUI in five years after he was found slumped over the steering wheel of his vehicle which was still running. Police said the vehicle was observed in the middle of Kershaw Street with all the tires flat on the driver's side on June 4 around 3:10 a.m. Police do not know what happened to the tires. A third conviction for driving under the influence requires mandatory fines and jail time in Delaware.

Cause of iron in city water is a mystery

City of Newark water department staff are still unsure what caused an increase in iron deposits in the water supply last week.

Wallace McCurdy, a resident of Dallas Avenue, said he called the city after his wife complained about the rusty spots on her washing.

"I went up to the municipal building and got the packet they give out to remove the spots," said McCurdy. "But I would like to know what happened and whether we could monitor the system to keep it from happening in the first place."

According to William Zimmerman, recently hired water quality engineer for the city, the typical reasons for the increase in iron were ruled out.

"It was very localized, affecting about a quarter of the city," Zimmerman told city council. "We received about 60 phone calls - all in (the Dallas Avenue) area."

Zimmerman said water department staff opened 50 hydrants over Saturday and Sunday, June 10 and 11, and the high-iron water cleared out.

Zimmerman said a drop in water pressure accompanied and helped cause the iron problem.

In response to questions from residents, Zimmerman emphasized the problem did not arise from the city's interconnection with United Water Company.

"It was very perplexing," said city manager Carl Luft.

A proposed iron treatment plant is part of the city's long-range plan to deal with water supplies in Newark.

Public parking still available around Hullihen Circle which will be relocated to a lot on the far side of Hullihen Hall where there will be spaces for handicapped drivers as well as University employees.

As a result, some parking spaces along the street have to be removed to allow access to the reconfigured lot. University officials initially proposed eliminating 10 parking spots and meters for which the city will be compensated at the rate of $2,781 per space per year.

"This works out better than parking revenue," said city manager Carl Luft, "because the University is reimbursing the city for parking at the rate of 75 cents an hour, 12 hours a day, and those spaces aren't filled all the time."

However, after further review by city staff, the agreement was amended to only eliminate six spaces.

"(Public Works director Rich Lapointe) and I agree that four, full-sized vehicle metered spaces could be installed along the east side of South College Avenue, approximately 50 feet south of Kent Way," said Police Chief Gerald Conway in a memo to the city manager. "The location of these meters should not interfere with the proposed entrance to the University of Delaware lot."

Armitage explained that the University and the Delaware Department of Transportation would also modify the signage and realign crossings at Amstel Avenue as part of the project.

In response to questions about other public parking for library patrons, Armitage noted people who come in the evening to the Morris Library can use the University Visitor's Lot across the street. "There are 162 spaces there," he said.

The metered lot on the west side of the library will also have public parking available.

Some city residents were concerned that the new parking locations would be inconvenient for the handicapped and more dangerous for everyone.

However, Armitage said the distance to the new south lot is actually slightly shorter than the old parking lot.

In addition, statistics gathered from the University Public Safety records indicate most of the incidents in Hullihen Circle since 1997 have involved criminal mischief or larceny. "However, there were six (motor vehicle) accidents in the Circle in 1997, three in 1998 and three in 1999," said Armitage.

The only assaults in the area were one in 1997 and one in 1998 inside the Morris Library itself.

Stay-at-home dads support each other

► DADS, from 1

Leaving his profession as a kindergarten teacher was the most logical decision financially, not to mention his experience as a child care provider. But the idea to join a father's group took some getting used to, McIntyre confessed.

"I was taking Lydia to gym-boree class and Stuart was there," McIntyre said. "I was the only guy there and Stuart gave me his card and told me about the group but it took me a month or two before I actually called him back. I was a little apprehensive at first and I guess I didn't know what to expect."

McIntyre is glad he decided to call just as his new-found peers are.

"We'll share our ideas and talk about what (our kids) are doing," said Ungar adding, "They're all really pretty close in age and it's nice to see how they are (developing)."

Not to mention, the kids are gaining socialization as well.

"We'll go home at night and Aaron will be talking about his day and he'll go through and name Lydia, Spencer and Katie Lou," said Ungar. "He's already developing friendships which is amazing."

Boyd Fleming, who stays home with 18-month-old Katie Lou, interjected, "We keep each other updated on our home projects, too."

Being an all-male parent group offers even greater comfort for dads who are, in a way, pioneers.

Kevin Smead, who stays home with his 18-month-old son Spencer, said there is still sort of this stigma about a father hanging out among kids.

"Being with other fathers doing the same thing offers a good setting for us, as parents, to do and talk about what parents normally do 'and talk about,'" Smead said matter-of-factly. "We are just parents who happen to stay at home with our kids."

Some of DADA's dads said they have been to other playgroups that primarily consist of moms, but the experience lacked the connection they gain from their male group.

"I went to this one playgroup that a lot of mothers go to, but I wasn't 100 percent comfortable there," Ungar said. "I am here."

As Fleming and Smead discussed their latest gardening projects and McIntyre spoke about Lydia's recent doctor's visit, the bond between this unique group of men was apparent.

They talked about when their spouses were going out of town, how much vocabulary their child has developed, what type of activity they wanted their child to participate in and how "Barney" shows can sometimes be appreciated.

All the while, each father kept close tabs on the youngsters who wandered around the yard, tried to eat sand out of the sand box or took a vested interest in rocks lying on the pavement.

"Guys can be a loving, caring and supportive role model to their kids that is completely normal," said Ungar. "I think there is kind of a line of progression for men where, for instance, I saw my father expressing more emotion than his father probably did."

Fleming said this experience also marks an evolution for society. His wife, Martha Buell, a human development professor at the University of Delaware, told him research has shown that when a dad stays home, the working mother is more involved with their child than a working father would be if the mother stayed home.

"I would like to think that if I was out working I would be as involved as she is, but I just don't know if I would have been," said Fleming.

Although a couple of fathers in the group said they miss working, sometimes, they all agreed that having the opportunity to be closer to their children offered rewards that strongly outweighed the benefits of a paying job.

As for the work of cooking, cleaning, and laundry, the fathers said they already performed those tasks anyway, so it wasn't such a harsh adjustment.

Society, however, has some catching up to do.

According to McIntyre, it would be nice to have changing tables in public mens' bathrooms, and all the fathers said it would be nice if people didn't assume they took a day off from work to spend time with their kids.

In the meantime, the DADA group continues to meet weekly and hold special events like pool parties, dad's night out, and trips to Longwood Gardens.

One of the most memorable events, Ungar recalled, was a trip to the Baltimore Aquarium. "I felt we all had a great time," said Ungar. "Aaron was saying 'fish', 'turtle' and 'dolphin', and he was intensely into the experience."

His crowning achievement was that lunch went well that day to the amazement of the adults. "We ate at a nice small restaurant in little Italy," said Ungar. "Four dads with four toddlers, and it pretty much went without a hitch!"

For more information about DADA, call Stuart Ungar at 894-1958.

Smith and Bruzik's chairs were displayed

Newark High School art students, senior Tyler Smith and junior Heather Bruzik, designed and constructed chairs which were exhibited in the High School Student Design Program in the Philadelphia Furniture and Furnishings Show at the Philadelphia Convention Center in May. Smith's chair was a ceramic organic tree design and Bruzik's was made out of stained glass.

Weber, Lasher selected for Youth Chorale

Amy Weber, the daughter of Steve and Karen Weber of Newark, and John Lasher, the son of Robert and Victoria Lasher of Newark, have been selected to participate as a member of the American Christian Youth Chorale, one of our country's premier musical organizations.

For 33 days, beginning June 28, Weber and Lasher will travel thousands of miles across the United States, performing in concerts, programs and services at leading churches, Bible Conference Centers, and well-known sites.

Shemanski, Johnson accompany Roth

Junior Achievement students Christine Shemanski and Crystal Johnson of Middletown High School and Andrew Amsler and Debbie Panning of Newark High

Newark High students Tyler Smith and Heather Bruzik designed chairs which were exhibited in the High School Student Design Program in Philadelphia.

School recently spent a day with U.S. Senator Bill Roth and the Ways and Means Committee at the Capitol in Washington, D.C. The students participated in discussing a bill to open free trade between the United States and China.

This opportunity was available through Junior Achievement's Job Shadowing program. Watching a U.S. Senator at work is just one of the careers that over 1000 local students shadowed in this year's program. Students went from chemical labs to banking centers to TV and radio stations to the White House in this year's effort to expose students to the breadth of career potentials available to them.

Junior Achievement of Delaware Inc. serves over 20,000 local students annually in K-12 workforce preparation programs.

Caravel

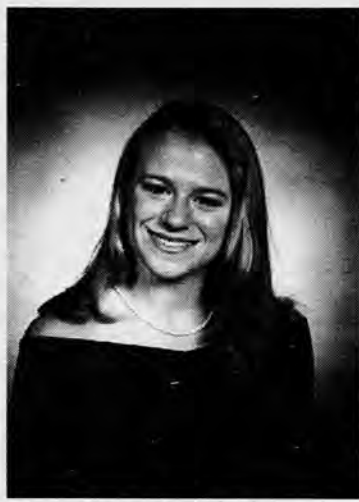

Academy

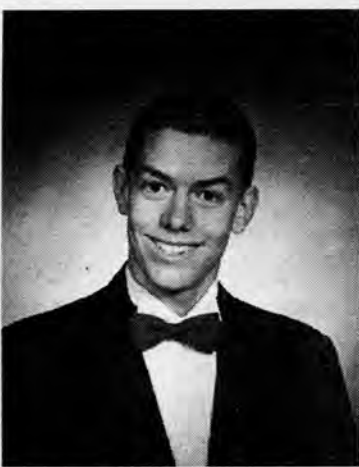

Valedictorian
Jessica Leigh Love

Jessica began her career at Caravel at the age of four when she entered Mrs. Hayburn's Red Room. Since then, she's been a World Finalist in Odyssey of the Mind; first clarinet in symphonic, concert, and marching bands; captain of the academic bowl; a journalist for the News Journal; a cast member in four Caravel productions; and a participant in soccer, Math League and the student government, for which she has served as class secretary, recording historian, and CSG president. In tenth grade, she was a delegate to the Hugh O'Brien Youth Seminar and was nominated for National Affairs for her work at Model United Nations. Last year she attended the University of Delaware's Summer College. A member of the National Honor Society and Who's Who Among American Students, Jessica was recognized as a National Merit Commended Scholar. This year, she received the Andrew D. Saxton State Leadership Award, a place at ABC's Best of the Class, fifth place in a statewide French competition, and Honorable Mention for the Delaware Theatre Company's Young Playwright's Festival. She was a finalist in the News Journal Academic All-Stars Award. Jessica has been admitted to Washington College and the University of Chicago but has accepted a scholarship to the University of Delaware, where she will major in English and Environmental Science. She wants to thank all of her incredible friends, supportive teachers, and numerous family members, especially Mom, Dad, and Michael.

Salutatorian
Meredith Koerber Long

Meredith has attended Caravel for fourteen years beginning in Pre-kindergarten. Throughout her high school career, Meredith has been an active member on the Caravel volleyball team, Executive Committee, and the class treasurer during her junior and senior years. Meredith also participated in Prom Promise, softball, Model U.N. and Math League. As a sophomore, Meredith received the Female Ambassador in Mathematics award, and was also awarded the George E. Glynn Scholarship given by the Alumni Association. Meredith has been accepted to several colleges including East Carolina University, Elon College, Virginia Tech, Radford University, James Madison University, and Randolph Macon College. She will attend Virginia Tech in the fall, majoring in communications and International Relations. Meredith hopes to study abroad during her college career. Meredith would like to thank Mr. Glynn for his time, advice, and patience while filling out endless forms her senior year. She would like to give a special thanks to her parents, Mrs. Valentine and her friends for their support. A special thank you to her best friend, her sister, Ann Marie.

Salutatorian
Nathaniel David Beers

Nathan first came to Caravel in sixth grade and has earned straight A's almost every marking period. Some of his major accomplishments in high school are maintaining a 4.0 grade point average, being recognized as a National Merit Commended Student, completing high school in three years, and graduating as a member of the National Honor Society. During high school he participated in Math League, the Upper School Play, Ice Hockey, Tennis and Yearbook. Outside of school, Nathan has been actively involved with his church's youth group, as well as other groups in the area. He applied to Messiah College where he was accepted and given two scholarships totaling $30,000.00 for four years. Nathan plans on attending Messiah this fall and hopes to serve God in full-time ministry as a career. For all of their loving support, counsel, and help through the years he wishes to thank his parents, his immediate and extended family, his friends and Jesus Christ.

Salutatorian
Joy Elizabeth Owens

Joy began attending Caravel Academy in sixth grade. Throughout high school she participated in volleyball, basketball, yearbook, Prom Promise, and Executive Committee. She has been nominated for Who's Who Among America's Students and has been a member of the National Junior and National Honor Society for the past four years. Joy has been accepted to the University of Delaware, Greensboro College, and West Chester University, and plans to attend West Chester in the fall, majoring in elementary education with a minor in math. After her college graduation, she plans to teach second grade, pursue her master's degree in education, and eventually pursue a political career and become governor of Delaware. Joy would like to thank her parents for their love and guidance, and her brother Jason for his "brotherly love" throughout the years. Joy would also like to thank her friends for all the memories that have made her high school years so unforgettable.

Caravel Academy Class of 2000

Graduation was held on June 7, 2000, in the Caravel Academy gymnasium at 7:30 pm. The traditional ceremony included the graduates passing through an arch of roses held by members of the Junior Class. The girls wore long white dresses and the boys, white pants and maroon blazers. Mrs. Carol Peoples Manubay presented each member of the class with The Millennium Medal. Prior to the presentation of diploms, the graduates were "robed" and as they walked across the stage a personal profile was read. Mr. P. Carl Rice, Headmaster, congratulated each graduate as they walked across the stage. President of the Board, Mrs. Dorothy M. Peoples presented the diplomas. Miss Ashley Melnick, a Middle School student, participated in the ceremony by singing the National Anthem.

Following the ceremonies, the Class of 2000, their families and friends were honored at a reception given by the Peoples family. In addition, the Class of 2000 was feted at other social events. The Junior/Senior Prom was held on April 14, 2000, in the Three Little Baker's Celebrity Room. A highlight of the prom was crowning the king and queen, Peter Romano and Tiffany Eshelman. On May 17, 2000, Mrs. Peoples and the Board hosted the Senior Banquet at Brantwyn Country Club.

EDITORIALS COLUMNS • PAGES FROM THE PAST • LETTERS

The burning question was not trash this Spring

Several years ago in this very space we wrote about the "burning season" in Newark.

Seemingly on a deranged schedule of its own, the day came each Spring when it was time to drag sofas, chairs and other large pieces of trash into the streets and intersections of Newark and set them on fire.

Police at the city of Newark and the University of Delaware repetitiously reported the incidents of glowing items for several weeks each year as trash and furniture was discarded during the move-out of thousands of University students.

Appeals to students to cooperate with city trash collection efforts seemed to go unheeded.

But city staff were undaunted. Each year they sent out their notices regarding bulk collections, adding dimensions, weight, and estimated time for a crew to pick up the items. They notified landlords about fines versus costs to comply with the procedure.

That reduced, but did not entirely solve the problem.

But, an innovative tweaking in the past two years seems to have made a major difference in the amount of trash lining the streets, as well as the property incinerated for disposal or entertainment.

In a pilot attempt last year, the city placed three, 30-yard dumpsters for large items near student rentals.

This year, the city rented more than a dozen of the containers similar to those used in demolition. These were strategically placed in carefully chosen locations throughout the city where students could not possibly miss them, or find it too onerous to "carry out the trash."

They seem to have done their job. Residents and city councilmembers this week praised the clean look of the streets before and after the week of graduation.

They were especially impressed by the fact that the containers were not allowed to overflow.

Newest councilmember Christine Rewa, who lives in a downtown area with numerous student rentals, noted the dumpsters were empty and ready again for use within 24 hours after they filled.

Best of all, there were almost no incidents of furniture bonfires this year.

Now, we can move on to more permanent solutions for graffiti, vandalism and disorderly conduct which turns off visitors, shoppers and residents in Newark.

Those problems need some tweaking as well.

Mandatory sentences a problem for Delaware

By LIANE SORENSON

NEWARK POST GUEST COLUMNIST

Recently, many constituents have asked me when I am going to "do something" about mandatory sentencing. I must admit, I was quite surprised. However, I have been working on this issue for awhile now because I believe that minimum mandatory sentencing has tied the hands of Delaware judges, ruined the lives of many Delawareans who made a relatively minor mistake and cost the taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars. I believe it is time for a change. That is why Senator Myrna Bair and I are the lead sponsors for Senate Bill 331.

Senate Bill 331 proposes to allow all minimum mandatory sentences in the Delaware Code to sunset two years after the bill's passage. The bill would also create a special Commission to review these sentences and recommend to the legislature which sentences to re-enact.

Of course, the intent of this legislation is not to do away with minimum mandatory sentences for serious crimes, like murder, rape or robbery, or to "get soft on crime", but rather Senate Bill 331 provides the courts with more flexibility in sentencing.

Under the minimum mandatory sentencing guidelines, some first time offenders found in possession of relatively small amounts of a drug are sent to prison - when parole and drug rehabilitation would have been a more effective and less costly path.

According to a recent report, issued by the Department of Corrections, Delaware's prison population has increased by 58% in the past ten years. Minimum mandatory sentencing has cost the taxpayers of Delaware an exorbitant amount of money. Over the past four years, Delaware has spent $180 million to add 2,500 prison beds. That $180 million, could have sent 125,000 students to Delaware Technical & Community College for one year! What we spend to incarnate just one individual in Delaware could pay the tuition for 16 people to attend Delaware Technical & Community College.

I feel very strongly that now is the time for the General Assembly, to take a step forward, and make changes to the minimum mandatory sentences of the past decade.

June 17, 1925 Slide at Canal Traps Six Men; Three killed

"Little Culebra," as the deep cut in the C. and D. canal at Summitt Bridge is called, took its heaviest toll in recent years yesterday morning, when three workmen were killed and three others seriously injured by an earth slide.

The men were caught without warning when thirty feet beneath ground level one side of a cofferdam surrounding them gave way and nearly 100 tons of earth and heavy timbers fell on them.

One slip fatal to alleged bootlegger

Federal agents attached to the Wilmington-Prohibition director's office, aided by State Police, arrested Mr. and Mrs. James Arthur Kennedy, of near Newark, charging them with selling liquor containing more than the legal amount of alcohol.

The arrest was made Saturday, on a small farm lying near the Maryland line, between the Barksdale road and Nottingham road, about four miles west of this town.

June 14, 1978 Police 911 imbroglio drags on

A final agreement between the city of Newark and New Castle County over the 911 emergency phone number hasn't been reached, but the two jurisdictions are expected to meet soon to continue discussing the proposal.

Newark has expressed a reluctance to staff the proposed emergency call center, which would relay all police, ambulance, and fire calls, mainly because of economics and convenience.

City nixes pleas for more parks

Newark has enough recreational parkland now, and doesn't need to buy any more, city council decided Monday.

Faced with the option of trying to purchase 32 acres of property near Casho Mill and Barksdale Roads, known as the Krygier Tract, or 16 acres of property off Paper Mill Road, known as the Lang Tract, council chose neither.

June 16, 1995 Christina Budget largest ever

By unanimous vote the Christina School Board passed the largest budget in the history of the district at their meeting on Tuesday.

The balanced budget of $162,414,000 million contains only a 1.6 percent increase in property tax income for the coming year. Almost $5 million will be drawn from reserve funds to meet planned expenses.

The record budget follows the March announcement that the school board would not seek an operating expense referendum in 1996.

Water maps changed here

On Monday night, Newark city council passed an amendment to the city water map which according to Roy Lopata, planning director, will result in a "substantial reduction" in the recharge water resource protection areas. A recharge area renews and restores the city's water supply with aquifers and filtration systems.

The burning question was not trash this Spring

Several years ago in this very space we wrote about the "burning season" in Newark.

Seemingly on a deranged schedule of its own, the day came each Spring when it was time to drag sofas, chairs and other large pieces of trash into the streets and intersections of Newark and set them on fire.

Police at the city of Newark and the University of Delaware repetitiously reported the incidents of glowing items for several weeks each year as trash and furniture was discarded during the move-out of thousands of University students.

Appeals to students to cooperate with city trash collection efforts seemed to go unheeded.

But city staff were undaunted. Each year they sent out their notices regarding bulk collections, adding dimensions, weight, and estimated time for a crew to pick up the items. They notified landlords about fines versus costs to comply with the procedure.

 Newark High '39

Congratulations and thanks to the "committee" and all their help for the wonderful Newark High School Millennium Year 2000 Reunion. It was wonderful, and I hope that the Newark High school Alumni Association can be reviewed and again become active.

 From: Monroe C. Hite Jr.
 Newark

I would like to thank Mayor Godwin, City Council, City Manager Luft, Newark Police, and all City of Newark Employers for their foresight and planning for a smooth, safe and orderly exit of the University of Delaware students from Newark. Two months before graduation, residents were instructed to call for an early pickup of unwanted items, such as sofas, chairs, refrigerators, trash, cans and other items. These suggestions were made to keep the city safe, attractive, healthy, and free from unwanted predators. Preplanning made it convenient for the students who are leaving the university.

The City of Newark placed dumpsters in various places throughout the city. Special pickups were made during the week and including Saturday, May 27. The Newark Community was informed via the Newark Post that trash and garbage would be picked up on Monday, May 29 that was a holiday. The City picked up trash on Monday, May 29 as well as, on Tuesday, May 30 for the convenience of the residents.

The City of Newark is to be commended for the services provided during graduation and holiday services. Thank you to all dedicated workers.

Red light 'runners' are high priority on local highways

The Delaware State Police plans to step up enforcement of red light runners along the Route 40 corridor.

Captain David L. Baylor said those looking around for a marked patrol car before running a light could be in for an unpleasant surprise.

Troopers will be positioned in unmarked vehicles that do not resemble police cruisers. Those running the lights will then be pulled over by other troopers.

Baylor recently took over as Commander of Troop 9 in Odessa, the jurisdiction that handles enforcement in the Bear-Glasgow area.

Baylor said the problem has worsened over the past year as traffic has grown along Route 40.

The situation has reached the point that a number of motorists are going beyond accelerating their vehicles through the latter stages of a yellow light to deliberately running a red signal, he said.

Among the worst areas is the Routes 40, 7 and 1 area.

Motorists routinely run lights in that area, including the left-hand turn signal out of the Eden Square Shopping Center. Often, the light on the westbound lane of Route 40 is green for several seconds before motorists turning left out of Eden Square clear the intersection.

Other problem areas, according to Baylor, is Route 72 and 40 and the intersection of Route 896 and Route 40.

At the 896 and 40 intersection, troopers are also looking for speeding cars and large trucks that zoom through the intersection.

The speed of the big trucks has drawn fire from local legislators and residents.

"Our purpose is not to raise revenue...it is to ensure that highways are safe," Baylor said of the stepped up enforcement, which is slated to get under way in the near future.

Enforcement at intersections has already been made a statewide priority of the Superintendent of the Delaware State Police, Baylor noted.

The fine for running a light runs about $50 — a low number when compared to the figure in other states. Baylor said. However, it is often a three-point violation, which when coupled with other violations can substantially raise car insurance costs.

Locally and nationally, accidents caused by those running lights are causing an increasing amount of concern.

Injuries and loss of life are heavy from such accidents because of side impact collisions. Sides of vehicles often do not have air bags or other sorts of protection from collisions, Baylor noted.

Delaware is now one of a number of states that can use cameras that take down the license plate numbers of those running red lights. Tickets are then mailed to the owners of the offending cars or trucks.

"It is now up to DelDOT to work out the system," Baylor said.

Mission Statement

It is our mission to inform readers of local government activity that touches the lives of the citizens it serves; to celebrate the freedom of speech granted all of us by the Founding Fathers of our Constitution by publishing letters of opinion and matters of record; and, most importantly, to offer news of people, places and events that chronicles the Greater Newark community.

Delaware Police pursuing their Summer Enforcement Campaign

Traffic on Delaware's highways during summer months increases nearly three times its normal traffic pattern. This summer the primary goal of the Delaware State Police Summer Enforcement Campaign is to gain compliance of the motoring public with regard to the following violations related to aggressive driving:

- Speeding
- Failure to yield the right of way
- Passed stop sign
- Disregard traffic signal
- Driving left of center
- Improper passing
- Following too close
- Improper turning

Police hope to reduce injuries and deaths resulting from traffic crashes involving speeding and/or aggressive driving with education, public service announcements, and news stories. They will target specific areas, which have continually exhibited a high number of traffic crashes and drivers who drive aggressively.

During the major summer holidays, overtime enforcement will be funded through the Office of Highway Safety Grants.

The Delaware State Police also will be conducting "Operation School Zone" at area high schools, Driving under the Influence Patrols, and red-light, speed and aggressive driving patrols.

State Police said they will utilize as many additional officers as can be spared, in order to make this one of the safest summer seasons in Delaware history.

Math, Science and girls

Although the gender gap has narrowed over the years, boys continue to out-perform girls on standardized tests of math and science achievement. At the same time, girls' attitudes about math and science have become more negative.

By Maria Pippidis

Many girls feel that they are not good at math and science and say that they do not like these subjects. These trends are troubling because girls' grades in math and science classes are often equal to or better than those of boys. In other words, girls can do math and science.

Nevertheless, in high school when students are allowed to choose courses, girls are more likely than boys to opt out of advanced math and science. As a result, girls are often less prepared for certain academic disciplines. This limits both their college major and career choices.

Until recently, it was believed that male-female differences in math and science were caused by biology. More recently, researchers have focused on the influence of the social environment on children's math and science achievement.

Very early on, boys are given the chance to tinker with toys or objects (for example, building blocks, racing cars, and simple machines) that involve many of the principles inherent in math and science.

Girls often lack these experiences, so they enter math and science classrooms feeling insecure about their abilities. Girls then begin to believe they cannot do math and science as well as boys.

It has been found that when parents believe boys are better at math than girls, they are willing to let their daughters drop out of math class when the going gets tough. With sons, however, the same parents encourage persistence. The message girls get is that they are not as good as boys.

In response to the research findings, educators have tried to make math and science accessible, equitable, and exciting to all students. The idea is that students will learn more if teachers give them the chance to do math and science and not just to hear about it. Students will then feel more confident about their abilities and realize that math and science can be fun!

Daddy Poems
Selected by John Miklos, Jr.
Illustrated by Robert Casilla

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

A five-year labor of love, Newark resident John Miklos Jr. compiled "Daddy Poems" because he couldn't find many poems about fathers to read to his two children.

Special to the Newark Post

Newark resident John Miklos Jr., himself a father of two young children, has assembled a collection by poets such as X.J. Kennedy, Nikki Grimes, Juan Felipe Herrera and Mary Ann Hoberman, that are especially welcome at Father's Day.

With the addition of original poems by Miklos and others, "Daddy Poems," is filled with morning rituals and bedtime routines that provide a poignant look at the times shared by fathers and children.

Miklos, editor-in-chief of Reading Today published by the International Reading Association based in Newark, believes reading is an important part of the bedtime routine for children.

"We read to our children from a wide variety of material, including poetry," said Miklos. "I found lots of 'Mommy' poems but few about Dads."

Miklos spent a year compiling the poems, which were rejected for publication the first time around. With time and revisions, he said the collection grew to represent one of the most rewarding efforts in his life.

Robert Casilla, a noted illustrator of children's books and other works, said drawing for "Daddy Poems" was a special assignment to him.

"I grew up in a home with no father figure, so being a father is very important to me," said Casilla. "The illustration for the cover reflects what has occurred many times with both of my kids late at night while I'm hard at work in my studio."

"Daddy Poems" is filled with stories from piggyback rides to wild and wacky baths.

Young dancers to tour with international company

Whitney Demarest, 13, (on right) and Lindsay DeLooze, 16, will tour Europe with an international youth ballet this summer.

Special to the Newark Post

Two dancers with the Mid-Atlantic Ballet Company in Newark have been chosen to perform with an international youth ballet that will tour Europe for three weeks this summer.

Lindsay DeLooze, 16, and Whitney Demarest, 13, will perform a variation of the "Swan Lake" ballet at selected cities in France, Germany and Belgium during June and July with the Blue Lake International Ballet Ensemble, made up of 40 young dancers from across the country.

The Bear residents auditioned for the international ensemble while studying with New York City Ballet and American Ballet Theatre principal dancers at the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp in northern Michigan last summer.

They had intensive rehearsals in Michigan before leaving for Brussels, Belgium, this week.

While traveling in Europe, they also will take master classes from European ballet instructors in each city.

Upon returning from Europe, the ensemble has a week of performances in midwestern cities before the girls return home to Delaware.

DeLooze and Demarest both study with Sara Taylor Warner, founder and artistic director of Mid-Atlantic Ballet.

DeLooze, a sophomore at Middletown High School, has performed locally with the Mid-Atlantic Ballet, Stage Lights Dance Studio, Delaware Ballet Theatre, and the Russian Ballet Theatre.

She has studied ballet, tap and jazz since age 3 and hopes to one day perform on Broadway.

Demarest has performed locally with Mid-Atlantic Ballet, the Newark Dance Festival, and the 2000 Grand Opera House's Wellness Gala, the Russian Ballet Theatre, Delaware Dance Company and the Delaware Ballet Theatre.

Demarest, an eighth-grade student at Middletown Middle School, has not yet decided on her career ambitions, but said she is sure music and dance will have an impact on her future endeavors.

Art from the ground up

By TERRI GILLESPIE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Connie Cox knew the house on Sunset Road in Newark long before she and her husband, Michael, had any thoughts about buying it. The perennial garden in the empty lot next door was the attraction.

It was the early '70s, the couple was living in student housing at The University of Delaware, and Cox would ride her bike along the street and just stop and look ... and dream.

By the time they became the owners years later, the lot next door had been built on, the perennial garden was gone, and the only visible plantings on their property were "a pear tree and an azalea," Cox relates. "We were sure in the spring that something would come up."

When her optimistic prediction didn't bear fruit, Cox took up her tools and began the process of converting the yard into a gardener's artwork.

Today, there's a lush, romantic cottage garden at the rear, complete with benches and a two-level water garden.

In the front yard, flower beds have been created against the house, at the sidewalk edge, and along the tree lawn. And then there's the shade garden, the rock garden, the vegetables, the berry bushes, and the grape arbor. Not to mention, the flower box over the garage doors, and the shelves of orchids and other potted plants on the screened-in porch.

Her husband was no bystander in the process, although he claims she is the real gardener. "I just move the dirt here, and then I move the dirt there," he said.

It's apparently a long-standing joke between the two of them. Cox quickly agreed that her husband is an excellent digger, and also first-rate at "pruning" with a chain saw.

"I really do enjoy it. I think it's beautiful," said Michael Cox.

As for his wife's gardening talent, he thinks it's "in her genes."

Cox said her mother has always enjoyed plants and her father was dean of the College of Agriculture at The University of Delaware.

"My parents got into woodland gardening with native plants, and that got me interested," Cox said. "My dream would be to start my career over and work at Longwood Gardens."

The shade garden is her current project, with ginger, ferns, true geraniums, and bleeding heart, among other plants.

Sharing their garden with others is part of the fun, the Coxes say. Friends had a party celebrating their love and commitment there, it has been the site for birthday parties, and the "Swedish summer cottage" is the delight of the couple's three grandchildren. Created from an old garden shed, the structure is set up for a tea party, and has stenciling inside and out.

The couple will welcome visitors on Saturday, June 24, as one of the 11 "backyard garden" sites included in the second annual Newark Garden Tour.

Their garden actually served as the inspiration for the annual event after friends who had provided music at one of their garden parties went to Wilmington Garden Day and told them, "You know, we should have a garden tour in Newark."

Their garden undergoes changes every year, depending on where bare spots need to be filled, what needs to be moved, whether there's been a "hosta takeover," and what Cox picks up at plant sales and through exchanging cuttings with friends and relatives.

She has mountain laurels from a friend's family, peonies from her husband's great-aunt's home, and the original azalea that graced the property when they bought it. "That way," Cox said, "the plants have meaning."

Gillespie is a member of the Newark Arts Alliance.

The stone wall Connie Cox is seated on has been moved not just once but twice as she and her husband, Michael, created a romantic cottage garden in their backyard.

Newark Garden Tour showcases both beautiful, practical ideas

Tour sites and entertainment are lined up for the second annual Newark Garden Tour. According to project coordinator Marilyn Magnani, 10 diverse, owner-designed gardens will be included in the event, scheduled for Saturday, June 24, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The stops on the tour demonstrate what can be accomplished in a "backyard garden," so that you can take home ideas for your own space. Included are: an English room-type garden; a small lot sculpted into a romantic cottage garden complete with child's playhouse; and the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship's landscaping. The church will also have a light lunch available for purchase.

Music will be featured in at least two of the sites on the tour.

Tickets - $8 in advance and $10 the day of the tour - are available by calling Magnani at 738-6953, or at the Art House, Delaware Avenue, Newark.

Girls can become scientists too age every child's achievement in math and science. To close the gender gap, though, schools and parents will have to continue their efforts. Here are some ideas for parents.

► OUTLOOK, from 12

Give sons and daughters early math and science experiences. Visit a local science museum. Think about the toys you buy for your children. Don't forget that girls like chemistry sets, too.

Find out what your child is doing in math and science at school and in the childcare setting. Does your child come home excited about a neat experiment he or she did that day?

When children enter high school, encourage both boys and girls to take math and science. It's never too early to learn about college entrance requirements.

Let your children know that both boys and girls can become anything they want to be... even a mathematician or scientist!

Workshops registering

Jewish Family Service of Delaware, serving all denominations, has ongoing workshops for individuals interested in women's issues, healing services, family court mandated divorce workshop for adults and children, yoga and meditation classes, and bereavement support groups. To learn about these and other programs, call Jewish Family Service at 478-9411.

Meet ghosts at Fort Delaware

Stories of supernatural phenomena persist at Fort Delaware State Park, on Pea Patch Island in the Delaware River south of Wilmington.

On Oct. 31, 1998, a laundress appeared to several people, still performing her duties from 140 years ago. A man in a black cloak with a lantern has been visible on several tours. Pictures on the wall of the General's office appear to come to life. In August 1999, a visitor was tapped repeatedly on the shoulder and each time he turned around no one was there. Capt. George W. Ahl has made an appearance, apparently delighted with the goings on.

On July 7, park visitors will have the opportunity to seek out the historic fort's ghosts and apparitions. The program begins at 7 p.m. and is by reservations only. Cost of $12 includes river transport to the fort aboard the passenger ferry Delafort that runs from Delaware City to Pea Patch Island. Parking is free. Call 834-7941.

Day Camp in Middletown

Applications are now being accepted for Middletown Day Camp which runs from July 10-14, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Middletown High School. This camp is open to the public ages 8-12, without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, age or national origin.

4-H Day Camp will provide classes such as foods, sewing and frame making, in addition to educational field trips. The fee is $80. For more information, call Heather Charles at 831-8965. Applications are due by June 19.

William Penn High Class of 1990

Plans are being made for the 10-year reunion of the William Penn High School Class of 1990 and your help is needed locating alumni. 400+ alumni still need to be located. If you have information on how to contact members of the class or would like to help with planning, please call Lisa at 328-4782 or e-mail LEASE224@aol.com. Alumni can also register with HighSchoolAlumni.com for free.

Basic Boating

Newark Parks and Recreation is offering the Certificate of Boating Safety program that fulfills the requirement for all boaters born after Jan. 1, 1979. Open to anyone 12 and over who wish to be certified and learn how to operate a boat in a safe manner. The class will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday evening June 20 and 21 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Newark Senior Center, 200 White Chapel Drive, Newark. Cost is $26 for Newark residents and $29 for non-residents. Preregistration is required. For more information, call 366-7060.

Register for D.A.P. derby

The 2000 Pushmobile Derby

will once again be held on Samoset Road, between MBNA and the Christiana Care Center off Route 4. The race will begin at 9 a.m. and drivers must be at the track by 8 a.m. Registration will be held on June 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. The trial run dates will be from July 15 and July 26 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. If you have never raced in the DAP Derby, you must qualify at one of these trial runs. If you have any questions, please call 656-PUSH and leave a message.

Pond Fishing with Dad

On Sunday, June 18 at the White Clay Creek State Park, 425 Wedgewood Road, Newark, there will be fishing excursions for children and their dads. Meet at the Carpenter Recreation Area Parking Lot at 10 a.m. A license is required for ages 16 and up and rods are available for loan with reservations.

For information, call 368-6900.

Worship service in Spanish at First Baptist

Money School Classes planned

Summer Money School classes, many of which will be conducted in the Newark area, will continue the efforts of last November's "Every Woman's Money Conference" held at the University of Delaware.

Topics include money management and saving, investing, managing life changes, and buying insurance. The classes will be held throughout Delaware and taught by financial professionals. Most of the classes are free.

A complete Money School listing of classes through August can be found on the Internet at www.greenpurse.com.

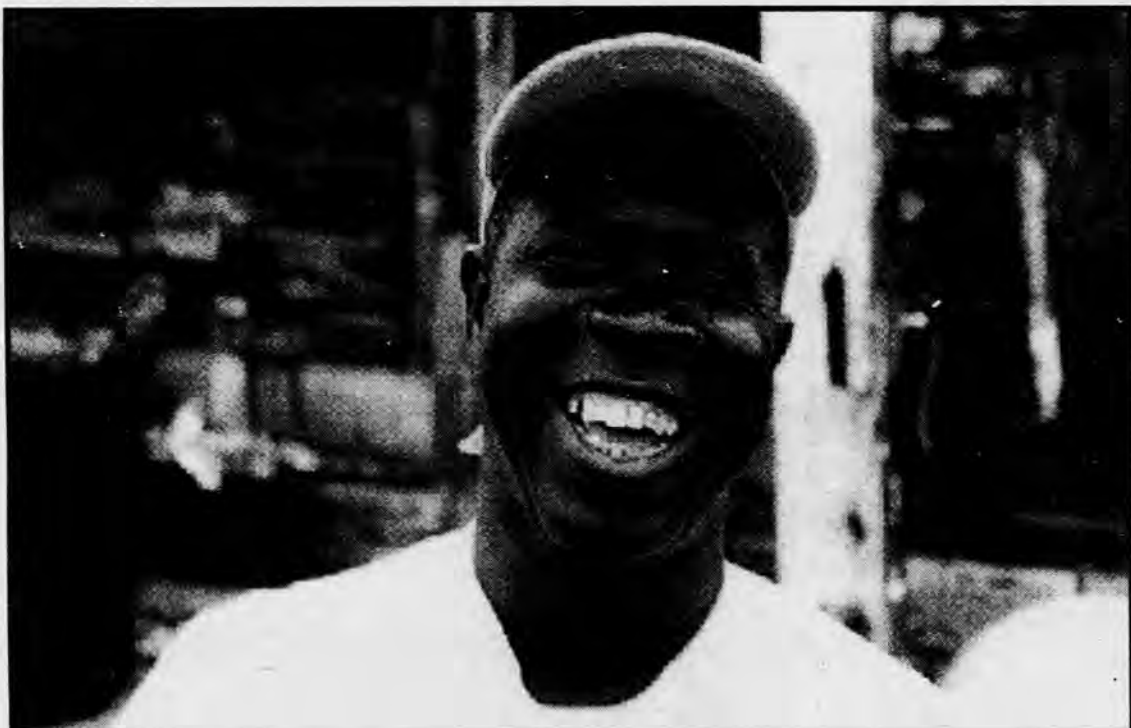

This year's Everywoman's Money Conference will be held Saturday, Nov. 11 at Clayton Hall, University of Delaware.

Bargain Bazaar in Middletown

On Saturday, July 22, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., there will be a bargain bazaar for new and used items. It will be held at Middletown Middle School parking lot next to Boys and Girls Club, South Broad Street (Route 71) in Middletown. Rent is $10 for unlimited space and the set-up time is 7:30 a.m. Make check payable to Jeanette Watkins at 26 Airdrie Drive, Bear, DE 19701. Call her at 832-0910.

SCORE workshops

The Delaware chapter of SCORE, the Service Corps of Retired Executives, will present workshops in July at Hodgson Vocational-Technical High School. A Small Business Start-up Series, consisting of three workshops: Entrepreneurship - Thursday, July 6; Thinking of Starting Your Own Business - Wednesday, July 12; and Writing a Business Plan - Tuesday, July 18 and Tuesday, July 25, will be presented from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Package price for the three workshops is $70 or prepaid, $65. Participants may attend single workshops in the series for the usual single meeting fee. Additional information about the workshops and registration can be completed by calling 573-6552.

HIGH SCHOOLS UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE LEAGUES

1999-2000 HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS YEAR IN REVIEW

LADEN WITH TALENT, LOADED WITH EXCITEMENT!

By MARSHAL MANLOVE
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Talent scouts needed to look no further than Newark and Rt. 40 corridor for athletic talent this year.

From baseball to wrestling, our area high schools produced more team and individual champions than any other part of the state.

At least one school from this area made a mark in every sport and Newark high school had the number one high school football lineman prospect in the nation in Kwame Harris.

Our softball teams from Caravel, St. Mark's, Glasgow, and William Penn were all top ten teams and Hodgson and Newark each posted winning seasons.

The Newark football team carved its name into the record books with its third consecutive championship.

The St. Mark's programs continued to dominate in boy's soccer, volleyball, wrestling, girl's soccer, girl's swimming, and girl's cross country, girl's basketball.

Our teams played against each other in a few championship games; Glasgow and St. Mark's met in the girl's basketball final, William Penn and Caravel in the softball final, St. Mark's and Newark in the football final and St. Mark's and William Penn in the division one wrestling final.

Our athletes were the best in many sports. Glasgow high featured the boy's soccer player of the year in David Scroggs, and the volleyball player of the year in LaShanda Simpson.

Michelle Albanese, from St. Mark's, was the basketball player of the year.

Ryan Smith was named outstanding wrestler in the state championships and the 2000 Delaware Sports Male Athlete of the Year.

Kwame Harris was the football player of the year.

Ashley Dilworth, from St. Mark's was the soccer player of the year.

Erin Mulshenock, from William Penn, was the girl's swimmer of the year.

Christiana's Danielle Bailey was the girl's track athlete of the year.

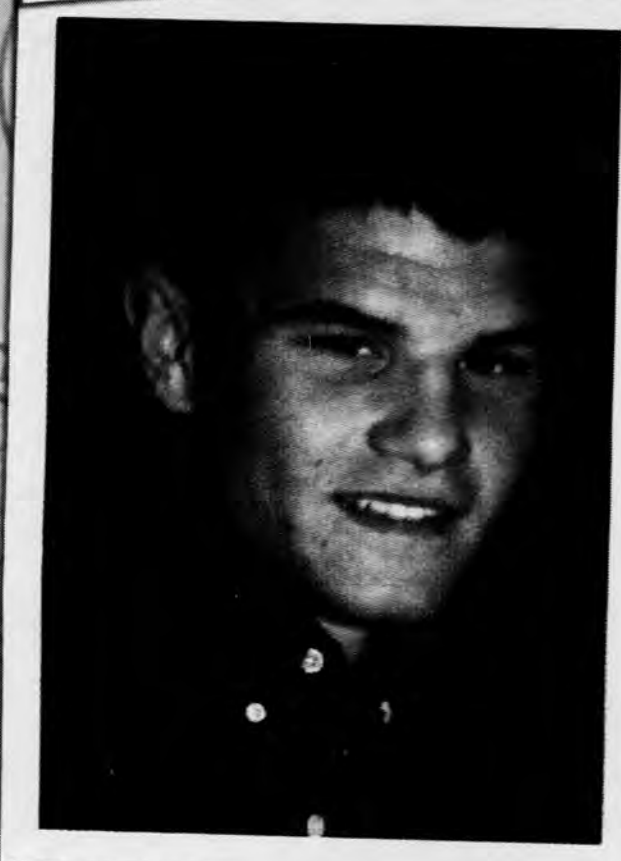

Erica LaBar, from William Penn, was the field hockey player of the year.

Athletes from our area were even producing for schools out of the area.

Jennifer Oakes, from Bear, was named the 2000 Delaware Sports Female Athlete of the Year for her distance running contributions to Padua Academy.

David Litchfield, from Newark, was the boy's swimmer of the year for Archmere Academy.

1999-2000 HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS YEAR IN REVIEW

LADEN WITH TALENT, LOADED WITH EXCITEMENT!

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Talent scouts needed to look no further than Newark and Rt. 40 corridor for athletic talent this year.

From baseball to wrestling, our area high schools produced more team and individual champions than any other part of the state.

At least one school from this area made a mark in every sport and Newark high school had the number one high school football lineman prospect in the nation in Kwame Harris.

Our softball teams from Caravel, St. Mark's, Glasgow, and William Penn were all top ten teams and Hodgson and Newark each posted winning seasons.

The Newark football team carved its name into the record books with its third consecutive championship.

The St. Mark's programs continued to dominate in boy's soccer, volleyball, wrestling, girl's soccer, girl's swimming, and girl's cross country, girl's basketball.

Our teams played against each other in a few championship games; Glasgow and St. Mark's met in the girl's basketball final, William Penn and Caravel in the softball final, St. Mark's and Newark in the football final and St. Mark's and William Penn in the division one wrestling final.

Our athletes were the best in many sports. Glasgow high featured the boy's soccer player of the year in David Scruggs, and the volleyball player of the year in LaShanda Simpson.

Michelle Albanese, from St. Mark's, was the basketball player of the year.

Ryan Smith was named outstanding wrestler in the state championships and the 2000 Delaware Sports Male Athlete of the Year.

Kwame Harris was the football player of the year.

Ashley Dilworth, from St. Mark's was the soccer player of the year.

Erin Mulshenock, from William Penn, was the girl's swimmer of the year.

Christiana's Danielle Bailey was the girl's track athlete of the year.

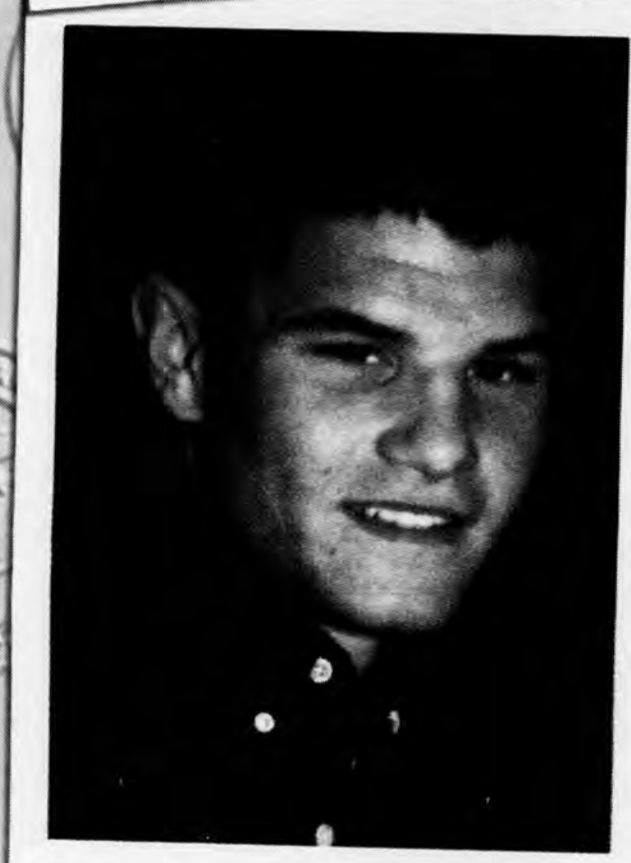

Erica LaBar, from William Penn, was the field hockey player of the year.

Athletes from our area were even producing for schools out of the area.

Jennifer Oakes, from Bear, was named the 2000 Delaware Sports Female Athlete of the Year for her distance running contributions to Padua Academy.

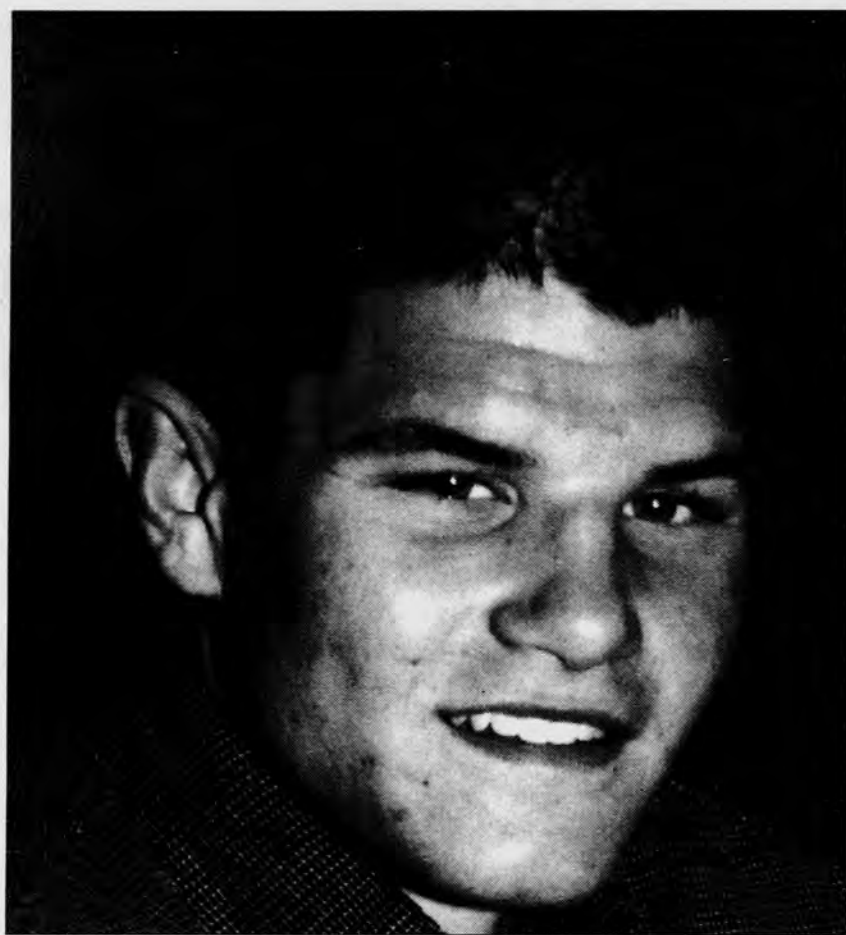

David Litchfield, from Newark, was the boy's swimmer of the year for Archmere Academy.

This section, with recaps of the entire 99-00 school year and the lists of our area's all-state selections, is dedicated to all of our talented, hard-working and rising stars.

From the top: Erica LaBar, Ryan Smith, David Scruggs and LaShanda Simpson, and the Yellowjackets show what it took them to be winners. See page 26.

MALE ATHLETE OF THE YEAR

RYAN SMITH – HODGSON

Ryan Smith from Hodgson Vo-Tech was a landslide choice for the Male Athlete of the Year.

Smith, a graduating Silver Eagle wrestler, was also named the 2000 Delaware Sports Athlete of the Year for his state championship wrestling season at Hodgson.

Smith won the 152 pound state championship against the highly touted Nathan Sherer from Delmar, and older and much taller downstate athlete.

Smith's performance in the state championship tournament earned him the outstanding wrestler award, one coveted by all that compete at that level.

Smith is a calm and humble young man who was a co-captain of the four-time state champion Silver Eagles.

Assistant coach Dee Meyer said, "Ryan Smith is the hardest working athlete I've ever had. He showed why he earned the right to be captain of this team in a lot of ways. He wasn't a vocal leader, he led by example. He always, always, gave everything that he had."

Smith finished with over 100 career victories and had over 40 this year alone and was beaten by anybody in the state.

Meyer said, "Ryan would never show emotion. If he was up, down, didn't matter. That can be very intimidating to an opponent. And his conditioning was superior. In the final match, even though he was down, his determination and stamina was key. After he pulled back into the lead and kept pressing, you could see the other guy break. Ryan Smith can't be broken that way. That is why he will do well in life, and is a reason we were so proud to have him represent our school and our state."

FEMALE ATHLETE OF THE YEAR

ERICA LABAR – WILLIAM PENN

The gifted and humble Delaware high school field hockey player of the year was chosen out of a group of five finalists for this year's honors.

The University of Delaware bound LaBar scored an amazing 43 goals in her senior year at William Penn in a sport not known for such an offensive display.

The Colonial field hockey team advanced to the finals of the state tournament against Wilmington Christian after winning two emotionally charged playoff games against St. Mark's and Delmar where Erica's heroics were key to victory.

Her field hockey coach Paige Ferneau said that Erica, "Is the main reason we are successful this year. She works very hard and is unselfish and her teammates respect and care for her."

LaBar's deceptive speed gave defenders fits on the hockey fields and also catchers on the diamond while she was running the basebaths during softball season.

LaBar was also a catcher herself for the Colonials who advanced to the finals in the state tournament. She has a cannon for an arm and played flawlessly behind the plate.

Her speed made her a choice for the leadoff role in head coach Dave Taylor's team, but her power also made her a clear cleanup hitter as well as evidenced by a two homerun nine RBI day this past season.

Softball teammate Michelle Whalen said "Air" is someone she loves to be associated with. She said, "You can always count on her to have a smile on her face. She's a competitor on both the playing field and in the classroom."

*Congratulations to our athletes!
We are very proud of you!*

And the winners are...

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

The first annual Marshy awards for the areas top achievers are now to be announced. There were three seasons, seven high schools, a variety of sports and an assortment of categories that will be discussed.

Coach of the Year: Tom DeMatteis, St. Mark's

Until June 3, the last day of the season, this was a tough category to pick a clear winner. But after DeMatteis guided his Lady Spartan soccer team to the state championship (crumbling the A.I. duPont dynasty in the process) adding to the boy's title from the Fall, DeMatteis became the overwhelming winner.

DeMatteis

His teams were a combined 39-1 with the only loss coming during an early season girl's match against A.I. duPont.

Special mentions: Marge Dougherty, Hodgson boy's and girl's outdoor track teams - Dougherty led both Silver Eagle teams to undefeated Flight B championships. The girl's championship was the school's first ever title for a Hodgson girl's team.

Jerry Lamey, Hodgson's wrestling coach - Led the Silver Eagle squad to an unprecedented fourth straight Division II dual meet championship.

The Silver Eagles then went on to win the Blue Hen Conference (which included William Penn) and then the unofficial state team title (which included every school).

Nancy Griskowitz, St. Mark's volleyball. The Spartan volleyball team looked to be in a rebuilding year, yet they went undefeated for the second straight year, giving Griskowitz a 47-0 career record at St. Mark's and two championships.

Butch Simpson, Newark football. Three consecutive years, the Yellowjackets won the Division I state championship; a feat never accomplished in the history of Delaware high school football.

David Jones, Christiana track. The Vikings upset the heavily favored Salesianum track team in the county championships, and then took the state title the following week to cap an undefeated regular season.

Steve Baker, Caravel softball. Baker became just the second head softball coach to win three state championships when the Bucs won their second straight softball crown this year.

Manlove

Team of the Year: Caravel Academy Softball

Clearly playing the sport with the most schools capable of winning on any given day, the Bucs repeated as state champions with the same 20-2 record as the year before. The Bucs didn't have a single senior on the team, only three juniors, yet played with the discipline of a college team. Head coach Steve Baker and assistant coaches Mike Salony, Dana Hicken, and Jeff Campbell ran this team like a well oiled machine.

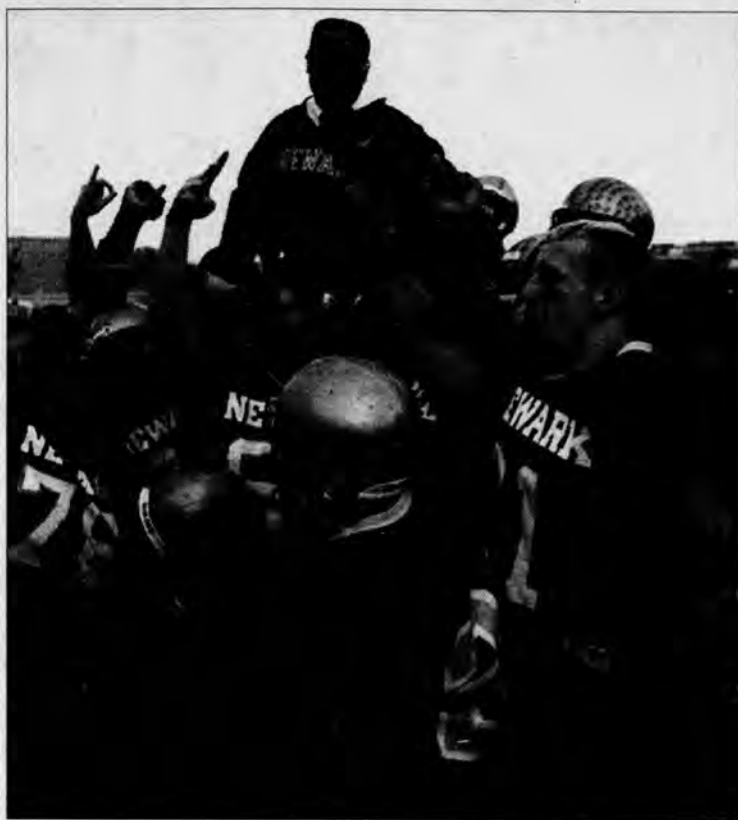

Special mentions: William Penn wrestling team. Head coach Jack Holloway guided the Colonials to an undefeated season and the Division I dual meet state championship. Key regular season dual meet victims included Hodgson and St. Mark's.

St. Mark's girl's swim team. The Spartan swimming dynasty has won their last 150 dual meets, a record that is close to becoming a national record.

St. Mark's boy's soccer team. Repeated as state champions and were undefeated in 20 games.

St. Mark's volleyball team. Repeated as state champions and were undefeated for the second straight year.

St. Mark's girl's basketball team. John Fiorelli led the Spartans to a 25-1 state championship and they were undefeated Newark football. The Yellowjackets won their third consecutive title a new Delaware high school football record.

Hodgson Vo-Tech wrestling. The Silver Eagles won their fourth consecutive Division II dual meet wrestling state championship, something that has never been done before.

The Best Athlete From Here, Playing There Award:

Jennifer Oakes, from Bear, attending Padua Academy. Oakes was the recent recipient of the 2000 Delaware Sports Athlete of the Year award for her accomplishments in cross country, indoor and outdoor track. Oakes was second in the Division I cross county championships with a time that broke the old course record. She went on to break the indoor state record in the 1600 meters winning a state title in that event and the 800 meters. She repeated those two championships in the outdoor season.

Special mention: David Litchfield, Archmere Academy. Litchfield, from Newark was named the boy's swimmer of the year for his performance with the Auks this year. He was the state champion in the 100 meter breaststroke and the 200 meter freestyle.

The Softball Player of the Year Award:

Jackie Homiak, Caravel Academy. Neither the Delaware Softball Coaches Association nor the Delaware Sportswriters and Broadcasters Association names a softball player of the year, so here, and at Delaware Sports (the high school sports television show) this honor goes to Homiak who threw 18 complete game shutouts this year, including shutting out every team in the state tournament.

A popular sports drink named St. Marks' Dana Travis their player of the year for the second straight year, but no one from that company could confirm that anyone from there has seen a single softball game in Delaware since the award's inception.

The difference between these two players? Homiak won the state championship with her Buccaneers this year and has two titles in her three years to Travis' one in four.

Special Mentions: Dana Travis from St. Mark's, of course. The St. Joe's bound righty struckout over 170 hitters this year to follow up a 200 strikeout season from the year before.

Lisa Scanlon, Glasgow- The Wilmington College bound Dragon threw two no-hitters this year leading her team to a 17-2 record.

The All-Heart Team:

Notice that every member of this team is a wrestler who happened to win a state championship this year. No other sport is as physically, emotionally, mentally, and spiritually as challenging as wrestling.

To excel in this sport, an athlete has to have heart above all other things.

Special Mention: Every other champion from every other sport.

Fall

Football

The Newark Yellowjacket football team won a state record third consecutive Division I high school football championship when it defeated St. Mark's 22-0. The Spartans made their first trip to the championship game since the 70's and came off an exciting defeat of the previously unbeaten Riders of Caesar Rodney who had given Newark their only loss of the year. Newark was too much for the Spartans at Bill Cole Stadium in New Castle on a 60 degree day in December. Pat Ferris had three interceptions in the fourth quarter alone; Seth Montgomery rushed for 170 yards (after a 300 plus day against William Penn in the semis); and the massive front line of Kwame and Orien Harris, and Micah German caused havoc for the Spartan passing attack which was five for 28 in the air.

Boy's Soccer

St. Mark's won its fourth consecutive state championship defeating Salesianum 3-2 in overtime and capped an undefeated season. Nolan Dzielak's goal at the 92 minute mark was the decisive play. He said, "Everybody stepped up their play from the second half on." Head coach Tom DeMatteis said, "Winning four in a row is unbelievable. We did it with will and determination. We really controlled the second half. They did a nice job, but it was just a matter of time before we came through." Goalie Pete Ferrante said,

"This team is awesome. Everybody here respects everyone else for they can do on the field."

Field Hockey

William Penn went to the championship game against Wilmington Christian, but lost 3-0. The game of the tournament was the semifinal match between the Colonials and St. Mark's. Erica LaBar scored the game winning goal on a penalty stroke with no time remaining to finish off an incredible comeback to drop the Spartans 3-2. Kerry Falgowski and Michelle Huynh-Ba provided St. Mark's with a 2-0 lead which held until there was 6:46 seconds left in the game. LaBar scored what seemed to be a cosmetic goal for William Penn, but Gloria Compello caused a frenzy in the stands when she tied the game with 19 seconds to go. Quickly jumping on a loose ball and moving downfield towards the Spartan goal, LaBar's penalty stroke was awarded after a defender fell on the ball for a penalty.

Volleyball

St. Mark's won their second consecutive championship knocking off Ursuline Academy 15-9, 15-7 in the final match to win their fourth championship of the 90's. Jr. Setter Leah Den Hoed had 20 assists and six digs while first-team all-state player Laura Calosi picked up five kills and nine digs. Den Hoed said of Ursuline that, "They're very tall. Playing them for the third time this year we knew where we had to be to pick the blocks at the net." Head coach Nancy Griskowitz said, "We just played the same game we always do against Ursuline." Kelly Papili had nine kills for St. Mark's who won 99 of out their last 100 matches.

Delaware High School Cross Country State Championships

Down the final stretch they came; Park, Hewes, Sullivan, Justison, Lazorick. Five efficient teammates in the top 20 of the race that counted, the state championship. The 17th place finish by Stephanie Lazorick was 11 seconds faster than the time of 21st place finisher Abby Nerlinger from Brandywine, and enabled the Spartans to defeat the pre-race favorite Bulldogs by two points.

Winter

Boy's Basketball

As the Colonial Field Hockey team proved in its tournament game against St. Mark's, a William Penn team should never be counted out of a game. The same was true in the boy's basketball final but the hole the Colonials were trying to climb out of was just too deep. Trailing 37-20 at half time to the Tigers of A.I. duPont, the Colonials scratched back to within a point late in the fourth quarter but the Tigers managed to hold on to win their first ever boy's basketball championship.

Girl's Basketball

An all area basketball final was featured when St. Mark's took on Glasgow.

The Dragons played the majority of the year without one of their stars, Kellye Hines, but battled through the troubled times to take on the juggernaut Spartans. Despite an off night by the player of the year, Michelle Albanese, the Spartans strong fourth quarter catapulted them to the crown behind the strong play of Erin Calloway, Lisa Krzywicki, Tracee Mosch, and Lindsay Hageman.

Wrestling

Once again, our area grapplers were the best. Sixteen of the 26 individual championship finalists were from our area. William Penn had four individual state champions in Greg Quailles, James Fromal, Joe Ferrara, and Ray Calloway. Hodgson had four champions in Jordan Sianni, Mike Welch, Ryan Smith and Derrick Davis. Three Silver Eagles pinned their opponents in the final match. St. Mark's had a champion in Andrew Donofrio, and Newark's Bram Walker won an individual title for himself. William Penn and St. Mark's packed the stands in a dual meet in Pike Creek where the Colonials reclaimed their stake to the number one division I ranking, 25-21, in a match with only one pin. The Spartan's Bobby Shaw was the only winner in the biggest and baddest wrestling tournament in the country, the Mid-Atlantic Wrestling Classic. The Silver Eagles of Hodgson were beaten by William Penn head-to-head in the middle of the year, but rallied to win the Blue Hen Conference team title, and the unofficial team title at the state championships.

Swimming and Diving

The Spartan girls swimming dynasty continued to roll on into the new century increasing their dual meet winning streak to 150 and winning their seventh consecutive state championship. The Spartans broke two state relay records; one in the 200 medley and the other in the 200 free. The new medley record set by Katie Kuczmariski, Kelly Shinton, Lisa Morelli, and Lindsey Spry was by .01 of a second besting a 1997 St. Mark's record that featured Morelli's older sister Lauren. Morelli, Spry, Sara Stephens, and Katie McGillan were the members of the 200 free relay team. Cassie Connell, the Newark high sophomore swimming sensation, was suffering with a cold, and still managed to win her second 200 meter freestyle championship although off her own state record pace from last year.

► REVIEW, from 25

Boy's Indoor Track

Newark's Jason Forbes was the individual star of the indoor season for our area winning the long jump and triple jump championships, but it was Glasgow's Julius Milbourne's four second place finishes in the state championships that helped Glasgow win the team state championship. The Dragons also picked up ten team points from the exciting Jeremy Swift, who doubles as a member of the state championship Dragon Cheerleading squad. The Spartan 4x800 relay team of Kyle Berseth, Josh MacPherson, Tim White, and Mike Lahm captured the gold. Our area leapers took five of the six places in the long jump and the triple jump. Along with Forbes, Jon Watson from Christiana, Swift, Jonathan Fletcher from William Penn, Romeo Varfley and Kyle Heyward from Glasgow, all won key team points for their schools.

Girl's Indoor Track

Christiana's Danielle Bailey broke two state records in this year's championships; the 55 meter dash and the 200 meter dash. The junior Viking was the headliner in a cast of young sprinting talent throughout the state. Glasgow sophomore Kim Chase was the state's best jumper. She was a consistent winner in the long and triple jumps, and is already close to breaking the state record in the triple jump. Bear's Jennifer Oakes can be seen laying on the ground at the end of nearly every event that she runs. The senior Panda from Padua Academy has her picture next to the word "heart" in the dictionary. Her come-from-behind photo-finish victory in the 800 meters left the second place finisher in shock and in tears. The Colonial field team, coached by Brad Lane, were the key to William Penn success both indoors and outdoors. Stephanie Crawford, Lateefah and Tiaana Vaughn combined strength, quickness and technique to push their squad to a third place finish.

Spring

Tennis

Ok, so there wasn't a team championship to be had in tennis, but we had the number one girl's single champion in Katherine Bushey. Bushey mowed down her opponents all year. Until the championship match against her rival Wallis Molchen from Tower Hill, no player won more than two games against her all year. Even in the final, Molchen only won three games. The Newark boy's team was under appreciated all year. They finished 11-4 during the season and were one of only two Blue Hen Conference teams to crack the top ten at the state championships. Dave Boylin-Kolchen and Phil Wilcox reached the number one doubles finals for Newark and Jon Reifschneider reached the third singles final for St. Mark's. Since 1974, the only area team to win a state championship was the 1996 Newark boy's team.

Lacrosse

The Spartan boy's and girl's teams both advanced to post season play. The girl's team suffered a setback when team captain and high scoring forward Leslie Drewes tore her ACL in a game against Archmere, but coach Bill Eichanger will have high scoring forwards Kayte Hall and Sara Stephens returning next year to build upon this year's success.

Outdoor Track

The story of the season was the Christiana boy's team who shocked Salesianum in both the county and state meets. Quinn Martin, Virgil Rush, Andre McMillan, Jon Watson, Joe Dury, Tim Bradley, Matt Johnson, Ken Gomez, Segun Olagunju were among the list of contributors in this well balanced lineup. Julius Milbourne took home two golds for Glasgow. Jason Forbes won the long and triple jumps and the 110 high hurdles for Newark in the state championships. Both Hodgson track teams went undefeated in the regular season. The girl's team only won three meets last year, and this year put the first girl's championship banner up on the walls of the Silver Eagle gym. Danielle Bailey and Kristin Tunnell were individual state champions for Christiana. Kim Chase won an outdoor triple jump title for Glasgow. Daveneia Payne won the first ever state individual track championship for Caravel when she took in the Division II shot put. Armond Williams won the state Division II high jump championship with his jumping partner Mitch Ryan taking a second. The top six place finishers in all the events were littered with our athletes.

Baseball

A repeat wasn't meant to be for the Spartans, but St. Mark's has a team still young and talented enough to make a run for a couple more years. There was a classic semifinal game against Dickinson as Mark Romanczuk held the Rams hitless for six innings before allowing six runs in the top of the seventh. In classic Spartan form, a four run bottom of the seventh, launched the Spartans into the finals.

Softball

Not much more can be said about the great Delaware high school softball season and the teams on our area. Caravel repeated without a senior on the team and beat a William Penn team who wouldn't say die against St. Mark's in the semifinal round. The Colonials were without a hit for six innings and trailed 2-0 in the seventh when the Spartans committed three errors, Dana Travis threw two wild pitches, and Michelle Whalen drove in the game winning run to create a Colonial-Buccaneer championship. Jackie Homiak shutout every playoff team with the help of the best defense in the state and head coach Steve Baker became just the second coach to win three state titles.

Girl's Soccer

There were only two threats to win the soccer championship this year and one was St. Mark's. They won in dramatic fashion to put a halt to the A.I. duPont dynasty on a last minute goal by the player of the year Ashley Dilworth. The goal came just a few minutes after the star senior was briefly knocked out as a result of a collision with the Tiger's Danielle Nourie. Dilworth ended her brilliant five year career with 109 goals and helped Tom DeMatteis become the only coach to win both the boy's and girl's titles in the same year.

Newarkers among St. Mark's 382 graduates

By CORY PENN

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

It was a night of pomp and circumstance as friends and families gathered in the St. Mark's gymnasium June 4 to watch their loved ones officially say good-bye to high school.

The school band played triumphantly as the 382 graduating students filed down the aisle, with their green and white robes waving behind them and their bright futures ahead.

Many of the class received honors for excellence in specific areas of study, as well as acknowledgment for overall academic achievement. Sixty-three of the graduating students earned membership into the National Honor Society, and 86 students received the President's Award for Educational Excellence. Twenty-two students also received various academic awards and honorable mentions in the areas of art, business technologies, English, foreign language, mathematics, music and science.

Graduate Brian Ventre, who welcomed those attending the ceremony, attributed such great academic success to the parents and teachers of those graduating. Ventre offered thanks to these influential characters in the students' lives for guiding and supporting them through the last 12 years of schooling.

The pulsing flashes of hundreds of cameras as the students individually walked across the stage signaled that the proud parents knew their effort was well spent.

But even after four years, many students were in amazement that it was already time to graduate.

"I'm kind of watching it all go by. I can't believe I'm here," graduate Dan DeFlaviis said.

Denise Woodward, a National Honor Society member, shared the same sentiment about the day. "It hasn't sunken in yet," Woodward said. "Until I hear my name called, I won't believe it's happening."

Whether they believe it or not, they have all completed high school and 95 percent of the class will be attending various colleges across the country in the fall.

While many students said they will miss their high school friends, most, like senior Tyler Blackwell, accept that this stage of their lives has come to a close. "In the back of your mind, you just know it's time to go."

The graduates include:

Robert Neil Abrahams, Venessa A. Addali, Christopher William Agnew, Brianna Marie Albano, Aaron Michael Alexander, Cindy Nicole Alexander, Gillian Loraine Andrews, Colleen Marie Armstrong, Jaime Michelle August, Andrew Joseph Aviola

Lowe's employees work for the community

Lowe's Heroes donated and installed a new handicapped accessible playground this month at the Ronald McDonald House on Rockland Road.

This project is just one example of how Lowe's employees and representatives from other local non-profit groups and agencies help communities across the country.

The Ronald McDonald House of Delaware provides a "home away from home" for families of ill or injured children receiving treatment at area hospitals. The House serves more than 1,000 families each year.

"Our new playground will provide a safe place outdoors for children to play while their families stay at the Ronald McDonald House," said Pam Comforth, executive director of Ronald McDonald House. "Because of wonderful friends, like Lowe's Home Improvement Warehouse, we are truly the 'House that Love Built®'"

Lowe's Heroes was created in 1996 by Lowe's Home Safety Council, a non-profit organization founded by Lowe's Home Improvement Warehouse. The Lowe's Heroes teams focus on five areas: fire safety, disaster preparedness, child safety, home security and senior safety. To date, Lowe's Heroes has awarded more than $1.5 million for community outreach efforts.

Lowe's Home Safety Council (LHSC) was established in 1993. Members of LHSC include national safety-related organizations, manufacturers and notable individuals who have the desire and ability to contribute to this effort.

Lowe's Companies Inc. is the second largest home improvement retailer in the world, serving more than five million do-it-yourselfer retail and commercial business customers through more than 580 stores in 39 states. Headquartered in Wilkesboro, N.C., Lowe's is the 18th largest retailer in the U.S. as well as the 40th largest retailer worldwide. The 54-year-old company employs more than 100,000 people.

Building a Self-Sustaining Individual Giving Program

The National Society of Fund Raising Executives (NSFRE) is sponsoring Terry Axelrod who will lead an all day workshop for members and friends of NSFRE for raising more money, even on a self generating system on a multi-year basis on Wednesday, June 28 at the Delaware Art Museum, 2301 Kentmere Parkway, Wilmington. Registration and continental breakfast will be from 8:30 to 9 a.m. with the program starting at 9 a.m. Price is $65 for NSFRE members and $85 for non-members. Checks are payable to Brandywine chapter NSFRE and are to be mailed by June 21. For more information, call

Dodge INVENTORY CLOSEOUT

Newark Dodge must sell 150 units by Tuesday, June 21st, 2000. In order to do so, Newark Dodge is going to make automotive history by holding an inventory Closeout Sale. Consumers will have the opportunity to purchase select new 2000 DODGE cars, trucks or vans at thousands below invoice pricing. This tremendous closeout features incentives not normally available at Newark Dodge. If you have been waiting to buy or lease ... now is the time!

NO HAGGLING NECESSARY!

Sales & Management teams will be on duty to monitor the sale of hundreds of new 2000 DODGES at EXCESSIVE CLOSEOUT PRICES. This is truly an opportunity the public will not want to miss. All factory rebates and cash incentives on selected models will be passed on to qualified customers with the purchase of a new DODGE.

REBATES AS HIGH AS
$2000

0.9% APR FINANCING AVAILABLE!
DURING THIS SPECIAL CLOSEOUT EVENT

When you choose to purchase or lease your new DODGE at Newark, finance representatives will be on hand for on-the-spot approval with special financing available to qualified buyers on select models. Credit terms will be available with NO MONEY DOWN! Appraisers have been ordered to give top dollar for all trade-ins.

IN CONSIDERATION OF AREA DEALERS AND TO AVOID DISRUPTING THE LOCAL MARKET, WE CANNOT ADVERTISE OUR CLOSEOUT PRICES. BRING ALL DECISION MAKERS FOR A SALE OF THIS MAGNITUDE MAY NEVER HAPPEN AGAIN! NEWARK'S INCREDIBLE INVENTORY CLOSEOUT SALE ABSOLUTELY ENDS TUESDAY, JUNE 21st, CLOSE OF BUSINESS!
