Congested streets in the city of Newark are an ongoing concern, but city council chambers were far from packed during a hearing held for public comment last week.

Mayor Harold Godwin, city council members, Lt. Tom Lemin of the city's traffic division, and Ralph Reeb, a representative of the Delaware Department of Transportation, stood by to hear residents' opinions on how to improve traffic flow.

Five people showed up to give them suggestions.

Godwin said some of the ideas were news to him. "There were

Base rates going up by an average of 13.3 percent for all customer classes

Starting in August, utility customers of the city of Newark will see higher bills for electric service. "The bills issued on Aug. 1 will include July consumption and will have the new rate," explained city finance director George Sarris. "This is consistent with the way we have done (rate adjustments) in the past."

Newark's city council voted Monday to approve rate increases for all customer classes in Newark. According to Sarris, the rate increase is necessary "to offset dramatic increases in the cost of purchasing electricity" on the wholesale market.

"We are adopting a recommendation of the city's electric utility consultant for an additional increase in our current Purchased Power Cost Adjustment and an increase of approximately 13.3 percent in base rates," Sarris told council.

Base rates for the residential customer class will increase by approximately 11.5 percent while primary industrial customers will have a base rate increase of approximately 15 percent. The University of Delaware will see the highest base rate increase of Gary Hayman, a longtime Newark resident, said the city needs to do something about the heavy traffic along Cleveland Avenue and New London Road, particularly during rush hours and Sunday mornings.

Hayman said he and fellow members of St. John's AUMP Church, located on the corner of Ray Street and New London Avenue, are afraid to walk cross the street to attend church services. Many members live within walking distance but the area has few crosswalks, and the ones that do exist are not bold or bright enough to make drivers stop, Hayman said.

A reported 10,000 cars drive along the road every day, and Hayman said residents are getting fed up with the hazardous walking conditions along that

Farmers Market brings variety of tastes to East End Plaza on Main Street every Sunday morning

Vendors not easy to see hidden behind antique mall and barber shop

By KATY CIAMARICONE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Scott Clower of Newark really wanted a new set of wheels this summer. He asked his parents to lend him some dough, but they politely declined. So Clower did what most people do when they need money — he got a job.

He started small — going around to offices selling flower bundles out of a bright red wagon. But it didn't take long for him to get his big break.

His parents noticed a sign seeking vendors for a local Farmer's Market to be held each week. Clower decided to give it a shot, and since summer started, he has been selling flower bundles at the Farmers' Market on East Main Street.

Once a week, he gets up early and cuts the flowers, bundles them together and puts them in water. He loads them into the family station wagon and makes sure he has enough change in his cardboard money box.

Then he brings the flowers to Main Street where he manages his flower stand on Sunday mornings.

In just a few weeks, the 10-year-old earned enough money to buy the wheels of his dreams — a shiny, brand new pair of rollerblades.

"He said to me, 'It feels so good to be able to buy something with money that I earned by myself,'" said his mom.

The Farmer's Market is located at 280 E. Main Street, in the Newark Natural Foods parking lot, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sundays through October.

Hidden from the street by other retail stores, the market is not yet attracting large numbers of customers.

But, who can resist a 10-year-old who just recently began his climb up the corporate ladder by selling flower bundles out of a little red wagon? What's better than a farm owner who dishes out recipes along with her fresh fruits and vegetables? What can top jars of golden honey made from bees which nest at a local farm?

Organizers and vendors hope it is only a matter of time before community members discover these hidden treasures.

"We're trying to build community activity — I mean, people can come here and get their fruits and vegetables, or they can just come by and have a cup of coffee and munch on a pastry," said Bob Warren, president of the board of stewards of the Newark Community Cooperative Inc., sponsor of the weekly event.

Warren said he asked about 10 local vendors to set up shop there, so it could remain "at a workable level."

One elderly visitor said she comes to the market to get her weekly dose of energy — garlic — which she has a pinch of each morning, along with a spoonful of honey.

Others looking for a more traditional remedy for all that ails them might want to visit Ursuline Academy student Claire McKenner and her friend, Sarah Smothers, who sell fresh-baked apple pies, muffins, and glazed raisin bread from Amber Waves, the bakery owned by McKenner's father.

"This is my first week, but business has been good so far," McKenner said. "It's a way to make a little extra money."

Carol and John Feldmann sell all-organic vegetables, including new potatoes and cabbage there each week.

They also sell jars of honey fresh from bees which the couple raise along with more than 100 chickens on their Clifton

All ages enjoy 'going to market' to buy or sell produce

▶ MARKET, from 1

Manor farm near Middletown.

"The stores add water to their honey," Carol said. "We don't add water to ours - it's like liquid gold for allergies."

Robert and Pam Stegall, owners of the certified-organic Calvert Farm in Rising Sun, Maryland, get up at the crack of dawn every Sunday morning to prepare seasonal products such as sweet corn, peppers, garlic, onions, potatoes and cabbage, for sale.

"They're good if you slice them up and put them in a pan with some rosemary or some butter," Pam Stegall told a customer purchasing some new potatoes.

The Farmer's Market is the perfect solution for Josh Hauser, whose dad owns the Maple Hill Farm. Hauser started dabbling in the family business approximately one year ago. "I moved back here from Pennsylvania, and I didn't want to get a real job so I started growing vegetables in my back yard," he said.

He'll be selling mushrooms, cabbage, peaches, and other incredible edibles at the Farmer's Market through the fall.

As for Scott Clower, he wasn't at the flower stand last weekend - he's on vacation.

But, he will resume his duties when he returns and stay until October, when the Farmer's Market goes out-of-season.

Whether he decides to follow in his mother's footsteps and own a full-time flower business someday is still up in the air for now.

"It's a little too early to tell," his mother said. "He's only 10."

But, even at 10, the kid is taking his stand very, very seriously. "On the second week, he didn't sell all of his bouquets, and he said, 'Oh my goodness! I had a profit loss!' It sounded so funny to hear a 10-year-old say that."

Homes in Newark have highest levels of radon in Delaware

▶ RADON, from 1

ocuries per liter (pCi/L), although no level is safe, Koul said.

According to the state health department, 10.88 percent of the 2,849 samples taken in the Newark zip code of 19711 were above the 4pCi/L level, ranging up to 163.9pCi/L, the highest in Delaware.

Readings taken in Newark's 19713 zip code ranged from .3 to 31.2pCi/L and from .4 to 53 pCi/L in the 19714 zip code.

In Hockessin, 26.9 percent of the samples tested above the threshold level with the highest at 42.2.

In Bear's 19701 zip code 370 radon samples were taken with 42 being higher than 4 pCi/L and the highest level being 16.5 pCi/L. In the 19702 zip code, 507 radon samples were taken with 36 being higher than 4 pCi/L and the highest level being 13.4 pCi/L.

"Radon disappears from the home in 3.8 hours and a decay particle remains, mixes with the dust particles and when people breathe it in it can cause lung cancer," Koul said. "Radon is not safe at any level, and as with any carcinogen, there is no safe threshold. It may take years for the tumor to form but the damage is done."

On average 15,000 people a year die from radon exposure, Koul said. Radon can be present in old homes, new homes, schools and other types of buildings because it is "not there by-invitation-only and it is indiscriminate," Koul said.

The only good thing about the situation is that it can be prevented and fixed with mitigation, Koul said.

The first step for individuals is to test their homes for radon levels after 12 hours of the windows and doors of the home being closed tightly. Contractors can do testing or residents can contact the American Lung Association, the state health department or go to a hardware store to buy a radon test kit and do it themselves. Koul gave out test kits to those who attended the meeting.

If a resident tests for radon and discovers levels that are "excessively high" or even just above the threshold, he or she can do mitigation to lower the radon exposure.

According to Koul, there are two types of mitigation: passive, which is usually done at the time of construction, or active mitigation.

Passive mitigation includes using a four- to-six inch layer of gravel below the slab foundation with a continuous polyethylene sheet overlapped at the seams and sealing and caulking of any openings to stop venting from the ground.

Active mitigation uses the addition of a three-to-four inch PVC pipe that runs from the permeable layer under the slab to the roof. A fan at the top of the pipe more actively draws radon from the soil into the stack. An active mitigation system usually has a system failure warning device attached.

Koul recommended that the residents test the radon levels after the mitigation equipment has been installed to ensure that it is working properly.

"Mitigators have to be certified with the state and the state will provide anyone with a list of recommended mitigators," Koul said. "The cost of mitigation runs from $800 to $2,500, but you can do it yourself on your own house if you are handy. You would have to be certified to do it to anyone else's home, though."

One resident asked if an air filtration system would help get rid of radon in his home.

Radon is heavier than other particles the systems handle, however filtration systems are "good because they take care of other pollutants but it is not a form of mitigation for radon", Koul said.

Some residents asked about the risk of well water containing radon. Koul said that the issue has not been resolved but there is evidence that radon in well water increased the air levels of radon in the home.

The handful of area residents attending the meeting seemed surprised to hear that there are no Delaware regulations regarding radon. Ulbrich, who was appointed to the governor's cancer control council, said she is working on legislation to mandate testing and trying to "bring all interested parties to the table."

Some people seem to be concerned about their privacy. They feel that the value of their home or community may drop if they report radon levels, Ulbrich said. When selling a home, individuals must disclose the radon level of their home if they have tested for it.

"There is concern about privacy, but my number one concern is the health issue," Ulbrich said. "There are some things we have to wait for the government to do and some things we can do on our own. We know radon is a cause of lung cancer and we can take what action we can."

For more information call the radon services at the state health department at 1-800-464-4337, Koul at 302-739-4731 or Ulbrich at 368-5122.

road. "It may seem incidental, but it's an aging population and it's hard for them to get across the street," he said.

Hayman, who attended the meeting along with his 70-year-old mother - also a resident - suggested the city install flashing lights or more effective road signs, so eventually, drivers will start stopping there automatically to let pedestrians cross.

"(The busy road) has begun to frustrate the neighborhood," he said. "It may not seem important to a lot of folks, but at some point, there's gonna be an accident and somebody's gonna get hurt."

Robert Bennett of Newark said the sidewalks on the west side of Elkton Road are also dangerous - so narrow they cause problems for pedestrians.

"We're trying to make Newark more pedestrian friendly," Godwin responded.

Newark resident Jean White said she is worried about proposals to cut corners along some intersections so large trucks can turn more easily. It would destroy the attractive grid pattern of downtown, where "tiny streets" are a staple of the city, she said. The situation would help "outsiders" travel through town faster, while slowing down locals, she said.

Concerns voiced at last week's traffic workshop, as well as at another one in October, will help city council compile a list of Newark's needed roadway improvement projects.

Godwin said council will submit the list to the Delaware Department of Transportation before the end of the year, so DelDOT officials can get started on possible changes.

The mayor said he thinks the October meeting will be more well-attended, since University of Delaware students will be back in town and locals will be back from vacations.

just under 19 percent.

Sarris said the plan preserves equity between the different rate classes and gives the city the flexibility to significantly decrease future rates by way of the PPCA. "We hope to be able to adjust the purchased power cost annually when the generator (under construction near Smyrna) project is complete and the market settles down a bit."

City consultant Jay Kumar told council in April that the city's power cost was estimated to be 14 percent more in 2001 than in 2000.

"Our last rate adjustment in the city was a decrease of 10.10 percent in January 1996," said Sarris. "Since that time, deregulation of the wholesale electric market has increased the city's purchase cost of electricity by almost 50 percent."

Sarris said the city has to recover a $7.2 million shortfall between the $14 million cost of buying electricity in 1996 and the $21.8 million the city expects to have to pay in 2001. Sarris said the towns of Milford, Middletown and Smyrna have already had electric rate increases this year, while Seaford and New Castle are considering them.

Sarris said the city has delayed raising rates, hoping that the electric markets would moderate. "Unfortunately, the economy has now slowed and the country is experiencing an energy crisis on all fronts," Sarris said. "Through April of this year, utility revenues are $1.7 million below budget. Most of this shortfall is in the electric fund (which is) $1.5 million behind our pace through the same period last year."

The city of Newark uses utility revenues to pay for other city operations. "Utilities are the biggest supporter of activities in the general fund - police, parks - really the entire city operation," said Sarris.

Prior to this rate increase, Newark's rates were below the rates of all classes of Conectiv customers. As a result of restructuring in Delaware, Conectiv rates for residential customers were reduced by 7.5 percent as of Oct. 1, 2000, and remain frozen through Sept. 30, 2003.

Conectiv also voluntarily froze all of its retail rates for the same period.

Newark's rate increase means costs for city customers now exceed the Conectiv rates. "(However), after year 2003, Conectiv will be able to charge its retail customers the market power cost and in all probability, Conectiv's rates will increase substantially for all customers," said Kumar.

Radon risk can be eliminated

Cancer incidence in Delaware is not news. It has long been a concern to residents in a state with a history of industry and environmental practices which contributed to the possibility of the disease.

Not mentioned much, however, is the question of radon – a gas which cannot be seen, smelled or tasted but which poses a health risk in one in 15 homes nationwide.

Radon, which occurs naturally in soil, rock and water, is formed by the breakdown of radium, a radioactive product of decaying uranium.

Radioactive particles from this breakdown inhaled into the lungs cause thousands of deaths per year and pose the second leading cause of lung cancer in the United States.

The occurrence cannot be predicted but simply rises up through porous soil under a home or building and enters through gaps in the foundation or other openings such as pipes, drains or walls.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has compiled statistics indicating that readings of radon of 4 picocuries per liter or above should lead to mitigation and ventilation of the unseen gas from the building.

Some of the highest readings in the state have been found in the Newark area.

This does not mean that every home and family is at risk. But, it does suggest more reason for concern than might previously have been shown.

At a level of only 2 picocuries per liter, a person who never smoked has the same risk of dying of lung cancer as the risk of dying in a home fire.

At that same level, people who smoke have the same the same risk of dying of lung cancer as two times the risk of dying in a car crash.

Do yourself and your family a big favor. Go to the hardware store and get a test kit. Finding out your home has radon fumes could save your life and that of your children.

The possibility of cost to mitigate the danger – or slightly lowering your property value at some future date – cannot be worth the deadly risk.

PER CHANCE

A valuable community resource that's for the birds

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

Give me the name of an organization with a worldwide reputation headquartered in our community whose name is not MBNA, Astro Power, the International Reading Association or the University of Delaware.

My guess is that many readers will think long and hard before coming up with the name Tri-State Bird Rescue and Research Inc.

Tri-State, which traces its history to 1976, maintains a wild bird clinic, undertakes research projects and conducts training and educational programs, but is best known for the work of its oil spill response team.

Its present headquarters at 110 Possum Hollow Road opened in 1992 on 800 acres of protected natural parkland. In 1998 it was named The Frink Center for Wildlife to honor its founder, the late Lynne Frink, and her husband for their vision, leadership and dedication in developing one of the nation's largest wildlife facilities.

The Frink Center, staffed 365 days a year, has three veterinarians, a professional staff under the direction of Christina Motoyoshi, and approximately 150 volunteers. It has a surgery and clinical laboratory, a conference center, indoor hospital wards, an oiled bird ward, waterfowl pools and 48 outdoor aviaries.

During 2001 it will treat more than 3,800 injured or orphaned local birds of many sizes and types, as well as those along the Atlantic Coast and in distant locations that have been contaminated by oil spills. The feathered patients currently being treated range from tiny Chickadees to larger species such as eagles, falcons, owls and swans.

The motivation for founding the center was a major oil spill from the Liberian tanker Olympic Games, which ran aground in the Delaware River in the winter of 1976.

It was one of three large spills in the waters of the Northeastern United States in a three-year period. Because no organized assistance was then available, thousands of birds and other animals died.

Today Tri-State professionals and trained volunteers respond not only to spills in the Delaware River and Bay, but are called to assist with emergencies throughout the world.

The center's staff has developed many techniques now widely used in the treatment and rehabilitation of oiled wildlife. Its members dealt with a wide variety of birds, and with such large animals as beavers and turtles.

Tri-State staffers have assisted in cleaning wildlife affected by the widely publicized Exxon Valdez tanker spill in Alaska, with spills in Saudi Arabia during the Gulf War, and with contamination that followed the grounding of a Greek tanker in the Mississippi River near Venice, Louisiana.

Early this year, Dr. Heidi Stout, director of the Oil Spills Program, joined an international team that succeeded in saving a number of pelicans, sea lions and marine iguanas coated by oil from a spill in the Pacific waters of the Galapagos Islands near Ecuador.

Less glamorous, but equally valuable is the care given to birds injured by automobiles, caught in traps, poisoned, shot or attacked by cats.

Most of these birds recover and are

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To: Editor
From: Bert H. Dutton

I have been a resident of Newark for about 60 years. In that period of time I have seen it grow from 5,000 people to the present 30,000.

I have had many reasons to drive from my home on Nottingham Road to downtown and out to town to many other areas. I believe that the traffic problems we suffer in Newark are worse than any other cities I have driven in, including many in Florida.

I do not know where the trucks that fill Nottingham Road, New London Road and Paper Mill Road are going. It seems as if they are all trying to end up on Elkton Road including those that come into Newark on South College Avenue and those from Cleveland Avenue.

I suggest that the one-way section of New London Road be made two-way so the trucks going South on New London Road could end up on Elkton Road at the intersection with Main Street, Elkton Road and Delaware Avenue. A traffic signal would control the traffic from all these roads as they merge in various directions. This intersection with its "Yield" sign only has always been a dangerous one. This also would eliminate the huge trucks from making a left turn from Hillside onto West Main Street.

The computer control of the lights on Main Street could be extended to the new light at this new intersection and through all of Elkton Road. Parking on the new two way street could be restricted and it could be widened.

To: Editor
From: Dr. Floyd E. McDowell Sr., Bear

The latest health care media hype on job activity at state and national levels is the so-called Patient's Bill of Rights. Minor changes, such as access to the nearest emergency room and right to one's choice of physician are equivalent to a crumb or two rolling off the corporate insurance/pharmaceutical/American Medical Association feast table toward the mass of sick/injured citizens held hostage in the corner of the dining room.

And, as for the right to become bankrupt suing an insurance company HMO, let us get real. Texas has had a Patient's Bill of Rights for five years and has experienced only 10 suits against their HMOs. California and Georgia, as other examples, have similar laws and have not had a single suit filed.

These "Patient's Rights" bills will do nothing to correct the serious issues we need to deal with to provide a comprehensive program and cost effective health care system that will totally cover all citizens for all of their health care needs.

Practically all moral nations that cover all citizens at all times use the single-payer health care system. These single-payer systems require that all health care decisions be made by physicians and other health care professionals while our political representatives allow profit-driven health insurance companies to exert control over health care and other related decisions.

The significant, comprehensive health care reform desperately needed in our state is provided in the recently finished Delaware Health Security Act developed by the new Delaware Health Security Coalition.

In 1995, Solutions for Progress conducted a thorough program and cost effective study of what a Delaware single-payer health care system would accomplish in our state. Documented results showed that if the study's findings were applied in 2002, a single-payer system would provide Delaware citizens the following: total comprehensive health care coverage for all citizens without any extra insurance, co-payments or deductibles; coverage would include all expenses for services such as physicians and specialists, hospital, dental, pharmaceutical drugs, mental health, drug rehabilitation, long-term care and even special needs such as eye glasses, hearing aids, wheel chairs, special beds, etc.

This study not only showed we now have health care funds to totally cover all health care needs but eliminating the completely unnecessary health insurance industry via a single-payer system would save $400 million in 2002 private/public health care funds while returning all health care decision-making to physicians and other health care professionals.

Beginning in fall 2001, our Coalition will contact, inform and invite key political decision-makers (i.e. Governor, state legislators, all political parties and state, county and local organizations in our state to join the Coalition in support of our Delaware Health Security Act. A similar Coalition underway in Maryland now has over 1,000 state, county and local organizations committed to their health care reform plans. For those interested in the Coalition, I can be reached at 1-888-439-0215.

More water quality notices promised

State Representative Stephanie A. Ulbrich (R-Newark South), prime House sponsor of legislation to improve the safety of drinking water in Delaware, promised a brighter future for water quality with new legislation on the books in Delaware.

"As a member of the House Drinking Water Task Force I have been involved in an effort to examine how to provide all Delawareans with clean and safe drinking water," said Ulbrich. "By establishing a notification process, in which all public water suppliers are on equal level playing field, we can make sure that all customers are kept in the know."

Under the provisions of Senate Bill 192, public drinking water suppliers are required to inform the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) of any contamination. DHHS is responsible for the creation of a Safe Drinking Water Information System, providing Delawareans with information on when a drinking water system has been inspected, what violations are detected and any enforcement action that results from violations. All Delaware public drinking water companies are required to issue an annual water quality report to their customers.

Patient's Bill of Rights added to consumer protection in Delaware

Governor Ruth Ann Minner recently signed the Delaware Patient's Bill of Rights, the most sweeping consumer protection law for Delaware health insurance customers in the state's history.

"Delaware families should have the right to make their own decisions on health care, and a right to appeal a decision on who pays for what if they disagree with the insurer's determination," Minner said as she signed Senate Bill 181. "The passage of the Patient's Bill of Rights is a major step forward for health care in Delaware."

Delaware's Patient's Bill of Rights provides additional consumer protections, improves the referral process and provides greater coverage for emergency room care, prescription drugs and clinical drug trials.

Protections include:

- Insurance companies and HMOs must notify on an annual basis of the manner in which complaints about benefit denials are heard by the insurance company.
- If patients submit their complaints incorrectly, insurance companies and HMOs must explain the proper manner in which they should be submitted.
- Patients must be told the name, address, and telephone number of the person handling their complaint.
- Insurance companies and HMOs must strict timelines for internal resolution of patient complaints.
- Complaints relating to medical or clinical matters must be considered by an insurance company representative who is an expert in the medical field in question.

provide a full explanation of the reason for its denial. Insurers will also be required to explain to the patient the way that they can seek a review of the insurance company's decision by an outside panel.

• Outside reviews of insurance company decisions will be available for all benefit denials.

• Patients will be covered for emergency room care, even if the emergency room a patient goes to is not in the patient's network.

• A patient with a network doctor will have the right to go outside the network to a specialist if no appropriate specialist is available in the network. When that happens, the patient will not have to pay the out-of-network specialist any additional fee.

• Insurance companies and HMOs must have policies for 'standing referrals,' allowing the patient's primary care or network doctor to approve a treatment plan with a specialist that will eliminate the need to obtain the insurer's approval prior to each visit with the specialist.

• Patients will be covered for side effects that may arise from their participation in clinical drug trials.

"Signing this bill moves us closer to having some of the most extensive health insurance laws in the nation," said State Senator Patricia M. Blevens (D-Elsmere), Chair of the Senate Health and Social Services Committee. "It gives the patient greater assurance of what service will be covered and that their insurance company will promptly answer their health care needs."

State Representative Pamela S. Maier (R-Drummond Hill) added, "The more direct access a patient has to their caregiver and the more rights they have to that access, the better our health system against the patient, the insurance company must will be."

Christiana ranked among Best Hospitals for heart care and treatment of hormonal disorders

Christiana Care Health System was ranked 47th in the nation in heart care and 49th in treatment of hormonal disorders – a category which includes diabetes and thyroid conditions – in the July 23 U.S. News & World Report magazine's annual "America's Best Hospitals" list.

The Heart Center at Christiana Hospital is a high-volume regional referral center for cardiovascular care. The number of cardiovascular diagnostic and interventional procedures performed annually at the Heart Center has steadily increased since it opened 15 years ago, topping 28,000 last year.

U.S. News began publishing this annual "report card" on the nation's exceptionally capable medical centers in 1990. The list names the top 50 hospitals in 17 specialties.

This year, data was sifted from 6,116 U.S. hospitals to arrive at 168 "best hospitals" in at least one of 17 specialties.

Additional criteria required that top hospitals must belong to the Council of Teaching Hospitals, be affiliated with a medical school, or have at least nine technology services from a prescribed list of 17. These restrictions narrowed the field to 1,178 hospitals.

Christiana Care is the region's leading health care provider, serving Delaware and neighboring areas of Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey, with two acute-care hospitals in New Castle County, Delaware.

The facility also serves as a regional referral center for cancer, and a broad continuum of health care services, including home health care, community and center-based programs, preventive medicine and rehabilitation, long-term and transitional care, and primary care physician offices.

Christiana Care is a member of the Council of Teaching Hospitals and is one of the nation's largest, non-government, not-for-profit teaching institutions (affiliated with Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia). Christiana Care is a leading provider of care with 42,000 admissions, 6,800 births and nearly 127,000 emergency department visits recorded last year.

Tax refund contributions raise close to $10,000 for diabetes research

Legislation sponsored by State Representative Richard A. DiLiberto Jr. (D-Newark East) has raised nearly $10,000 for diabetes education and research in Delaware.

According to DiLiberto, the money was donated through the tax form check-off program that allows taxpayers to contribute a portion of their tax refund or make an additional contribution to the Delaware Diabetes Education Fund.

The Fund was established by legislation sponsored by DiLiberto.

"(Nearly 900) Delawareans contributed in the first year of this vitally important program," stated DiLiberto. "This money will go to help the over 36,000 people in Delaware who have been diagnosed with diabetes and will also be used to educate the 30,000 more who have gone undiagnosed," DiLiberto continued.

The Delaware Diabetes Education Fund was developed after DiLiberto's recommendation while serving on the Diabetes Task Force of the Delaware Health Care Commission.

Money raised through the check-off program is collected by the Delaware Division of Revenue and distributed to the Delaware Branch of the American Diabetes Association.

Diabetes is the sixth leading cause of death in Delaware. It is estimated that health care and lost productivity costs associated with diabetes in the United States amount to $98 billion a year.

NEWARK OUTLOOK

Working towards success

Summer is one of my favorite seasons! It always brings fireworks, fresh fruit, and fairs. County and state fairs provide 4-H'ers a wonderful place to showcase the work and skills they have put into making a 4-H project.

For some 4-H'ers, the project is an item (a framed photograph, a rocket, a selection of vegetables, a garment, a family genealogy), sometimes an animal (sheep, dogs, gerbils, cows, horses, and yes, even tarantulas), and sometimes a skill.

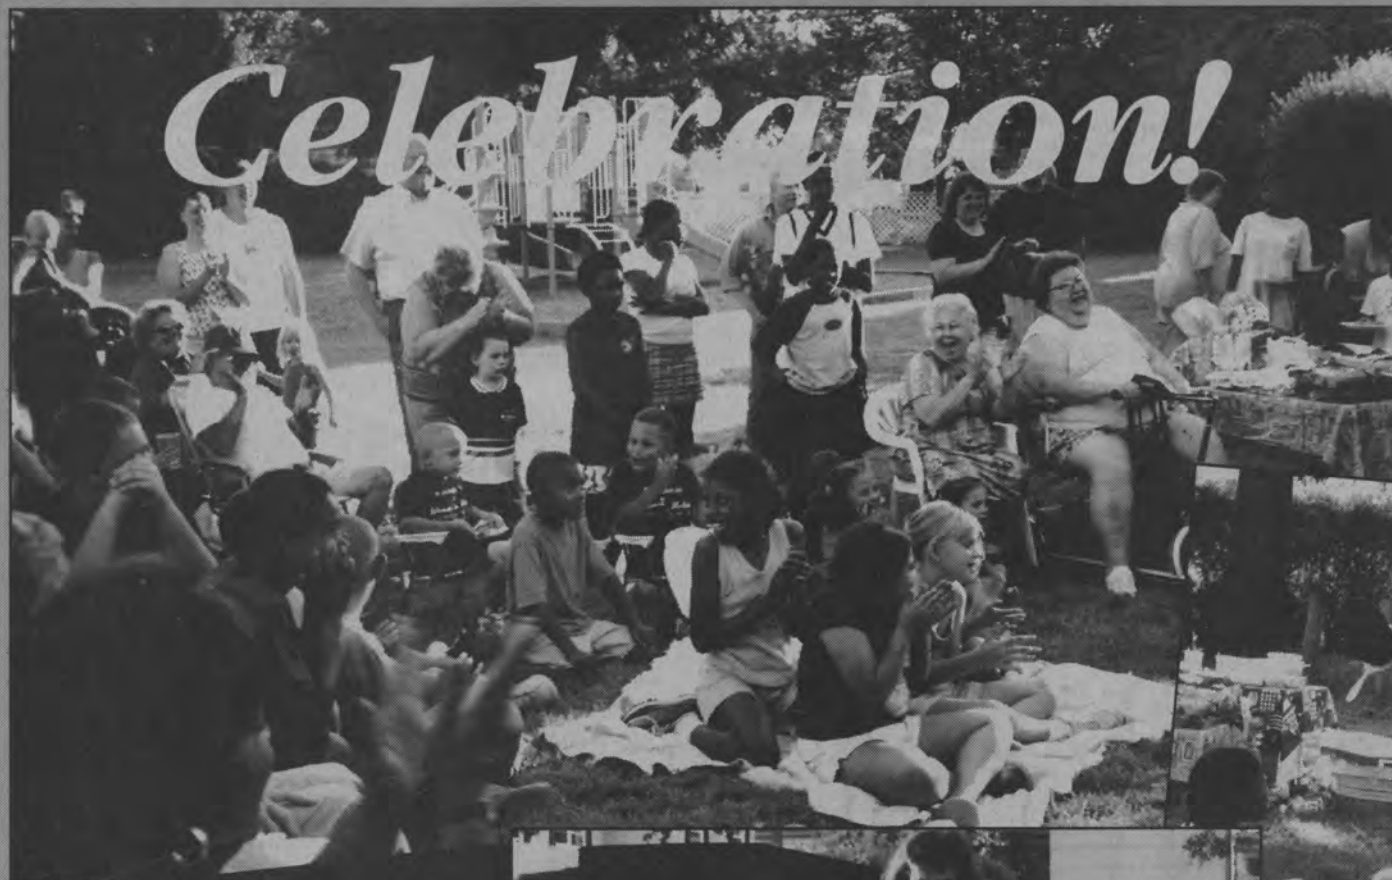

Four-H'ers who learn to be camp counselors are trained in behavior management, working with various age-groups, designing and teaching classes, and working together to accomplish a common goal. Those youth who work with animals learn how to feed, care for, and manage animals on a daily basis. Through these activities and experiences, 4-H members also learn about self-discipline, initiative, and developing a good work ethic.

The dictionary defines ethic as "a set of moral principles or values... (a) guiding philosophy." Employers often lament that our teens' work ethic is on the decline and that "nobody knows how to work anymore." In the small midwestern town where I grew up, being called a "good worker" was high praise indeed.

The 4-H program strives to prepare 4-H'ers for work in the "real world." Setting goals, making progress toward those goals, and achieving are all part of the 4-H experience that are also important to means failing along the way. Learning how to fail and go on is almost more important for our 4-H members because, as we all know, no one is successful all the time.

Being successful means work, and lots of it. Sometimes the work is fun; sometimes it's well, work. This week we helped set up the 4-H Building at the Delaware State Fair in Harrington. We had several 4-H youth and their parents who worked very hard to turn an empty building into a showcase for nearly 3500 Delaware 4-H projects.

Tessa Rodgers, Matt Gott, Mary Beth Daly, Fran Gott, Brittany Pearson, Alicia Blevin, Joey Daly, Lauren Herfindahl, Elizabeth Blevin, Emily Harvey, Marian Harvey, Megan Vattilana, Heather Milne, Mark Vattilana, Michelle Ernst, Alex Hall, Arno Kissell, and Candace Ernst each gave up a day or two to help us prepare. It was hot. It was dirty. It was tedious. At the end of the day, our kids were still lifting, sweeping, arranging, carrying, and counting. I was proud of their work ethic.

Special to the Newark Post
by Tina Jackson

The East End Civic Association's third annual picnic was well attended with over 100 residents and invited guests.

State Senator Steven Amick (R-Newark West), State Representative Stephanie Ulbrich (R-Newark South), Newark Mayor Hal Godwin, Newark

city councilman Jerry Clifton, city building director Junie Mayle, Bob Thomas of the Newark Historical Society and Ernie Lewis of the City Refuse Department were among the invited guests who attended. The Association honored Ernie Lewis for his 39 years of service to the community.

A performance by Magic of Guido was made possible by a donation from local developer, Jeffrey Lang. Guido geared his act towards the numerous children in the crowd, but the adults found him just as entertaining.

Newark resident Steve Kobsa also delighted the children with a continuous flow of bubbles from his bubble machine.

The Association, now in its fourth year, provided hot dogs, hamburgers, chips and beverages for the picnic. Each family contributed their favorite picnic dish.

This annual event is a pleasant opportunity for neighbors to meet neighbors and to strengthen our sense of community at the East End of Newark.

Bad statistics live on, continue to affect our thinking, according to UD professor in recently published book

Statistics play an important role in shaping the nation's thinking about key social issues but all too often those statistics are dead wrong, according to University of Delaware professor Joel Best, who chairs the sociology and criminal justice department.

In his new book "Dammed Lies and Statistics: Untangling Numbers from the Media, Politicians and Activists" published recently by the University of California Press, Best writes statistical information is misused by people and organizations interested in shaping the national policy debate to their own ends.

Best said his interest in the manipulation of statistics was spurred by a graduate student's dissertation prospectus, which attempted to grab attention by quoting a statistic that claimed "every year since 1950, the number of American children gunned down has doubled."

Best decided to look carefully at the figure, which was published in a journal in 1995. He did the math and found that if only one child had been killed by gunfire in 1950, an annual doubling would have brought the figure to 32,768 by 1965, to 1 million in 1970, to 1 billion in 1980 and to more than 35 trillion by the date the journal was published.

Investigating further, he found the basis of the claim: a 1994 report by the Children's Defense Fund that found the number of American children killed each year by guns had doubled since 1950, not doubled each year since 1950.

Even at that, Best said the number is not as dramatic as it might first appear, given that the nation's population grew about 73 percent-nearly doubling-during the period 1950 to 1994.

The lesson should be clear, Best says: "Bad statistics live on; they take on lives of their own."

"Dammed Lies and Statistics" is designed to help readers think critically about social statistics presented as fact, and Best centers his work on a wide assortment of contemporary issues including abortion, cyberporn, homelessness, teen suicide and the U.S. census.

Restoration funded for Civil War sites at Fort Delaware

The U.S. Senate has approved $2 million in federal funding to continue the massive restoration effort on one of the nation's endangered Civil War sites, Fort Delaware on Pea Patch Island.

This additional allocation will allow the Army Corps of Engineers to continue its repair of the crumbling seawall that holds the southeast end of the island together. Officials have estimated that because this structure has endured decades of deterioration and decay, as much as 10 feet of mud has eroded from the 228-acre State Park each year, placing in jeopardy Fort Delaware and its artifacts.

U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden, who spearheaded this restoration effort in Congress, called the announcement, a major step toward ensuring the long-term stability of the island.

"There is no doubt about it - if we ignore Pea Patch Island, it will go away," said Biden. "More of the island washes away each year and unless we do something to mitigate the erosion, a big part of our state and national history will be lost forever."

In addition to the historical importance of Pea Patch Island, Biden noted that it houses the largest heronry north of Florida, and provides critical habitat to thousands of wading birds.

The funding was approved as part of the 2002 Energy and Water Appropriation bill. According to Biden's staff, this is the fourth straight year he has gotten federal funding for the project, bringing the total federal commitment to $5.75 million.

The bill now must be reconciled with a similar bill that passed the U.S. House of Representatives.

Suburban Swim League holds championships

American Majors beaten by Midway in sixth

Midway scores in final inning

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

There's never a good time to fall into the loser's bracket. But having to play a team that already has won four straight games is an especially cruel assignment.

After dropping its first game of the tournament to Newark National last Saturday, Newark American fell into Tuesday night's loser's bracket final. Awaiting them was a torrid Midway team that after having lost its first tournament game, ripped off four straight victories.

Midway's good karma continued with an exciting 4-3 victory over Newark American at the Capitol Little League complex. The result advanced Midway to the District 2 championship where it had to reel off two more victories against Newark National to advance to the state championship tournament. The loss ended Newark American's season.

Newark American, trailing 3-2 and down to its last strike in the top of the sixth, tied the score when Brandon Mullins, who had singled, raced home from third base

Local swimmers excel in meet

One of the biggest events of the summer is the Suburban Swim League championships. This year was no exception as nearly 500 swimmers gathered at the Western YMCA pool Saturday morning to see who would be crowned the 2001 champions.

The championships actually began with over 1,300 swimmers competing in time trials. This marks about half of the league, which had over 2,700 kids competing this summer.

The week-long time trials and championship meet capped a season that ran from Memorial Day weekend to mid-July.

"We think it's a great balance of swimming and fun," said league president Kent Steeves.

"Each meet is a big event. There are at least 25 volunteers working and putting in time so that every dual meet can be held.

"Then there's the many things like sleepovers, breakfasts, dinners and all kinds of activities that the kids do together. It's great combination of fun and competitiveness."

The league, comprised of 24 community pools throughout New Castle County, is divided into three divisions - Red, White and Blue.

This year's team champions were North Star in the Red, Oaklands in the Blue and Penn Acres in the White. The team that finishes first in the White and Blue divisions gets to move up to the next group the following year. The team that finishes last in their division drops down to the next lowest division.

As far as age group champions go, the 8-and-under girls champs were North Star (Red), Drummond Hill, Maple Valley and Three Little Bakers (White) and Crestmoor (Blue). The 8-and-under boys champs were Skyline (Red), Drummond Hill (White) and Meeting House Hill (Blue). The 10-and-under girls winners were North Star (Red), Western YMCA (White) and Crestmoor (Blue). The 10-and-under boys champs were North Star (Red), Drummond Hill (White) and Crestmoor and Meeting House Hill (Blue).

The 12-and-under girls winners were Skyline (Red), Oaklands and Western YMCA (White) and Wedgewood (Blue). The 12-and-under boys champs were Skyline (Red), Delaware Bluefish (White) and Arundel and Memorial (Blue).

The 14-and-under girls champs were North Star (Red), Drummond Hill, Maple Valley and Western YMCA (White) and Penn Acres (Blue). The 14-and-under boys titlists were Fairfield (Red), Maple Valley (White) and Penn Acres (Blue).

National tops American in battle of Newark

Win puts National in final

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

There was no doubt that a team from Newark would be in the District 2 Major Division championship game. It was just a matter of which one.

Newark National defeated Newark American 4-0 in the winner's bracket final Saturday morning at Stanton Middle School to advance to Wednesday quickly in the bottom of the sixth.

Jonathan Domenici led off with a shot to right field and scampered all the way to third base. Leadoff hitter Billy Crowe then slapped a single to left field to score Domenici and give Midway the victory.

"You have to give Midway a lot of credit," said Newark American manager Jerry Aniska. "They lost their first game and have won five games in a row. That's tough to do."

Newark took a 1-0 lead in the top of the third inning when J.T. Bowman doubled to center field and came around to score on Chad Lane's ground ball.

Midway answered in the bottom of the inning when Matt Harden blasted a two-run home run over the left field fence.

Harden gave Midway a 3-1 lead with a run-scoring double in the fourth.

Newark American started its comeback in the fifth inning. Lane doubled to score Rocco Bradley; cut the Midway lead to 3-2 and set up the sixth-inning dramatics.

"We never gave up," Aniska said of his squad. "We battled back - we were down to our last out there and still came up with the tying run. I'm proud of the way we played.

"You know, a lot of people thought this would be a team that would lose its first two games and go home. But we didn't believe that. This group worked hard and did a great job."

Midway also ousts Canal

Midway, which dropped its opening game of the District 2 tournament to Canal, came back to knock off Canal last Friday night.

The win was Midway's third straight in the loser's bracket and eliminated Canal from the tournament.

Midway went on to beat Capitol Monday night to earn the right to play Newark American.

night's championship game. David Eissner pitched a two-hitter and the National offense pushed across three runs in the last two innings to seal the victory.

"That's a big win," said Newark National manager George Larson. "David did a great job for us and we were able to get a few runs. It was a very good game." After two scoreless innings, National got its first run in the third inning. Jared Keith led off with a walk and eventually came around to score on two errors.

Newark National added another run in the fourth when Andrew Young led off with a triple to right-center. Two batters later Brian Sklodowski singled home Young.

Jimmy Keener started the fifth-inning rally with an infield single and Keith followed with a double to right-center. Packer Larson then doubled both runners home to give National its 4-0 lead.

Eissner, meanwhile, was keeping the Newark American batters in check.

Joe Kaiser and Mike Carr picked up back-to-back hits for American in the first inning but they were left stranded. Eissner then held American hitless the rest of the game.

National pitchers have thrown three shutouts in their first four games. Packer Larson has pitched one and Eissner has pitched two.

Canal Seniors win District 2 baseball crown

Team tops Suburban in final

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

It may have taken a year longer than it wanted, but the Canal Senior Division All-Star team finally got to celebrate a District 2 championship.

Canal, which was edged by Newark National in last year's district title game, knocked off Suburban 6-4 Saturday afternoon at Claymont's Dyer Field to capture the District 2 championship. The victory completed a four-game sweep through the district and advanced Canal to this week's state tournament in Georgetown. The winner of the state tournament will advance to the Eastern Regional in West Deptford, N.J.

A five-run second inning gave the winners a 6-0 lead. Pitcher Billy Harris did the rest in shutting down a Suburban team that had scored 64 runs in its previous four games.

Harris allowed just three hits over the first five innings. Suburban rallied for four runs in the sixth inning to make the game interesting but Harris stranded runners in getting out of the sixth and allowed just one base runner in the seventh.

"I just wanted to stick with my routine," said Harris, who struck out nine. "I kept my pitch sequence and really concentrated on keeping the ball low. They hit a lot of ground balls."

After Nick Poore singled home Chris Lewis in the first inning, Canal broke the game open in the second.

Mark DiMaio led off with a walk and Mike Mundy doubled him to third base. Joe Roth drove both home with a double to left-center. Lewis followed by reaching on an error and Roth was able to score on the play. Ryan Sassaman then singled home Lewis and Ryan Buckland followed with a double to plate Sassaman.

"We hit the ball hard early," said Canal manager Ernie Spence. "We played well early, made the plays and a got a great effort from Billy Harris. We got in a little trouble there in the sixth inning with a couple of walks and hits. But, they're a good hitting team and they're going to hit the ball. Billy did a great job of setting down and getting out of it."

The district title is Canal's second in five years. The 1997 Senior All-Stars also won the state championship and was one game away from the Eastern Regional crown and a trip to the World Series. Last year's Newark National team did win the Eastern Regional and went to the World Series.

"This is the first step," said Harris. "We've heard that winning our district is the hardest thing. We saw what other teams have done and know we have a chance."

Canal girls fall in states

Final rally comes up short

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The emotional roller coaster continued for the Canal Major Division All-Star softball team. Unfortunately, the ending to the state championship wasn't quite as euphoric as the final district game.

After splitting the first two games of its best-of-three state championship series against Middletown-Odessa-Townsend (MOT), Canal dropped a heartbreaking 2-1 decision in the deciding game Monday night at Middletown's Silver Lake Park.

Trailing 2-0 heading into the final inning, Canal made a valiant attempt at tying - or even winning - the game. MOT, though, was able to twice throw out the potential tying run on the same play.

Danielle Burns started the sixth-inning rally with a sharply hit ball to right field. Danielle Lafferty followed with a single. That's when the craziness started.

Jessica Harris then hit sharp grounder up the middle to score

Burns. The ball skipped by the MOT center fielder and Lafferty also tried to score. Lafferty, however, stumbled a bit rounding third and was called out on a bang-bang play at home plate.

Harris, while the ball was being thrown around, kept running and was on her way to third when Lafferty was called out. MOT's catcher, in an attempt to get Harris at third, fired a ball that squirted past third base and into foul territory.

Harris, thinking the ball had gotten further away, attempted to run home but was thrown out.

Instead of trailing 2-1 with nobody out and runners on second and third, Canal saw found itself trailing 2-1 with two out and nobody on base.

Brittney James followed with a single to keep the game alive but MOT got the final out to end the game. It was MOT's second straight state championship.

"I really thought our first girl (Lafferty) was safe," said Canal manager Joe Farrell of the close play at the plate. "People sitting behind home plate said they thought she was safe. But what are you going to do? There's no way to argue that or appeal that call."

"And Jessica was just trying to make something happen. They're kids out there and she was excited to see the ball get away and took off for home." After three scoreless innings, MOT took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning. MOT pitcher Caitlyn Reynolds limited Canal to just one hit through the first five innings. Reynolds was also backed up by some fine defensive play.

"They really made some nice plays out there," Farrell said. "On the few occasions we did hit the ball, they made the plays."

Canal's James matched Reynolds, allowing just one hit the entire game.

Saturday night at the Camden-Wyoming Little League complex, Canal won the first game of the series 7-4. MOT answered with a 12-2 victory Sunday night at Silver Lake to force the deciding game.

"We really played a lot better (in the final game) than we did Sunday," Farrell said. "The girls understood the significance of the game and really came out ready to play. I'm proud of how hard they played."

"They had a very good run."

Big innings had carried the Bear Babe Ruth 11 year-old all-star team throughout the state tournament. The championship game was no exception.

Bear erupted for six runs in the fifth inning a 7-1 victory over Piedmont and the 11 year-old Babe Ruth State Championship. The win also advanced Bear to the Mid-Atlantic Regional in Mount Laurel, N.J. The regional begins Aug. 3.

The championship game was a pitcher's duel until Bear's big inning.

DiMaio kept the rally going with a two-run single to right-center. With two outs, Daniel Eby hit another two-run double to finish the scoring.

In all, Bear scored six runs on six hits during the rally. "It seems we were able to do that all tournament," said Bear manager Mark Blades. "The boys just kept playing hard and it worked out."

Jordan Oncay pitched the first three innings for Bear, allowing just three hits and a single third-inning run. Stephen McCloskey pitched the final three innings and gave up just one hit.

"We split up the games between pitchers throughout," on Margiotta's single. Piedmont tied the score in the third inning on Mike Godwin's run-scoring single. Bear had earned an earlier 6-3 victory over Piedmont and scored six runs in the fifth inning to secure that victory. Bear also beat New Castle and Fox Point in its first two games.

Members of the Bear championship team include: Stephen McCloskey, Jordan Oncay, Matthew Margiotta, John DiMaio, Vinnie Ranauto, Mark Blades, Brian Potts, Daniel Eby, John Rolewicz, Donny Roberts, Matthew Panchisin and Ryan Viets.

Larson said. "It's like 1 and 1-A. Both have done a terrific job."

"You have to give their pitcher a lot of credit," said Newark American manager Jerry Aniska. "He did a good job. He just kept us off balance all game.

"But we're not done yet. We have a chance to come back and play them again."

The District 2 champion will advance to the state tournament which gets underway Saturday at

Four-bedroom Ashley offers room for the larger family

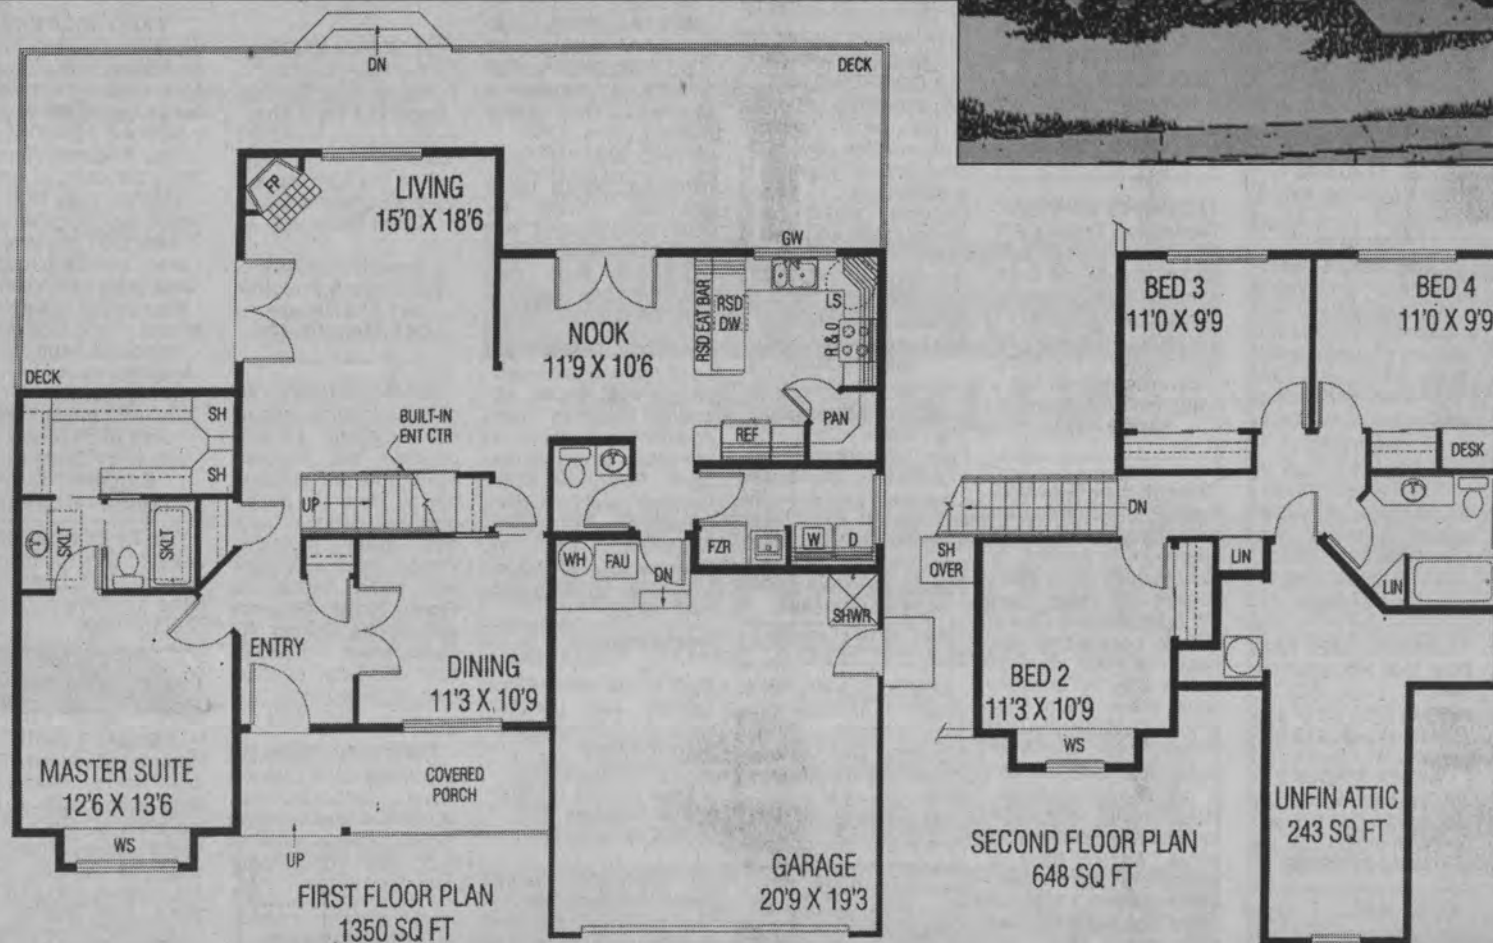

The Ashley is ideally suited to a larger family needing more than the traditional three-bedroom home. There are four bedrooms with an optional attic area. To make the home even more desirable, it has a dormer over the second bedroom, windows with half-moon accents, and a covered porch in the front. It is also compact and will fit the narrow lots of today's building sites.

The entry to the Ashley has a number of doors leading to various rooms. A door to the left goes to the master suite, with window seat in the front and the bathroom/closet in the rear. The bathroom with a tub allows walk-through access to the closet.

French doors to the right lead to the formal dining room with a huge window in the front and a pocket door that leads to the hall opposite the kitchen/nook. Straight down the hall is the oversized living room with a corner fireplace and a built-in entertainment center under the stairs.

A large window overlooks the backyard and deck, while French doors on the side open onto the deck. The nook, located between the living room and the kitchen, also has French doors leading onto the rear deck.

The corner kitchen has an eating bar, raised dishwasher, corner Lazy

Susan, and large corner pantry. Everything has been designed to be convenient and easy to use. In the hall is a half bath, with the utility running parallel to the kitchen. It has a sink and room for the freezer. A door leads to the two-car garage, which has its own shower area. This is ideal when one is muddy and wet, saving getting the home messy.

Up the stairs in the center of the home are three bedrooms, one with the added feature of a window seat and one with a built-in desk. A full bath with a tub and two linen closets is centrally located. There is also the unfinished attic area that has 243 square feet of bonus room.

The Ashley has so much potential for meeting a family's needs, from a playroom to an office.

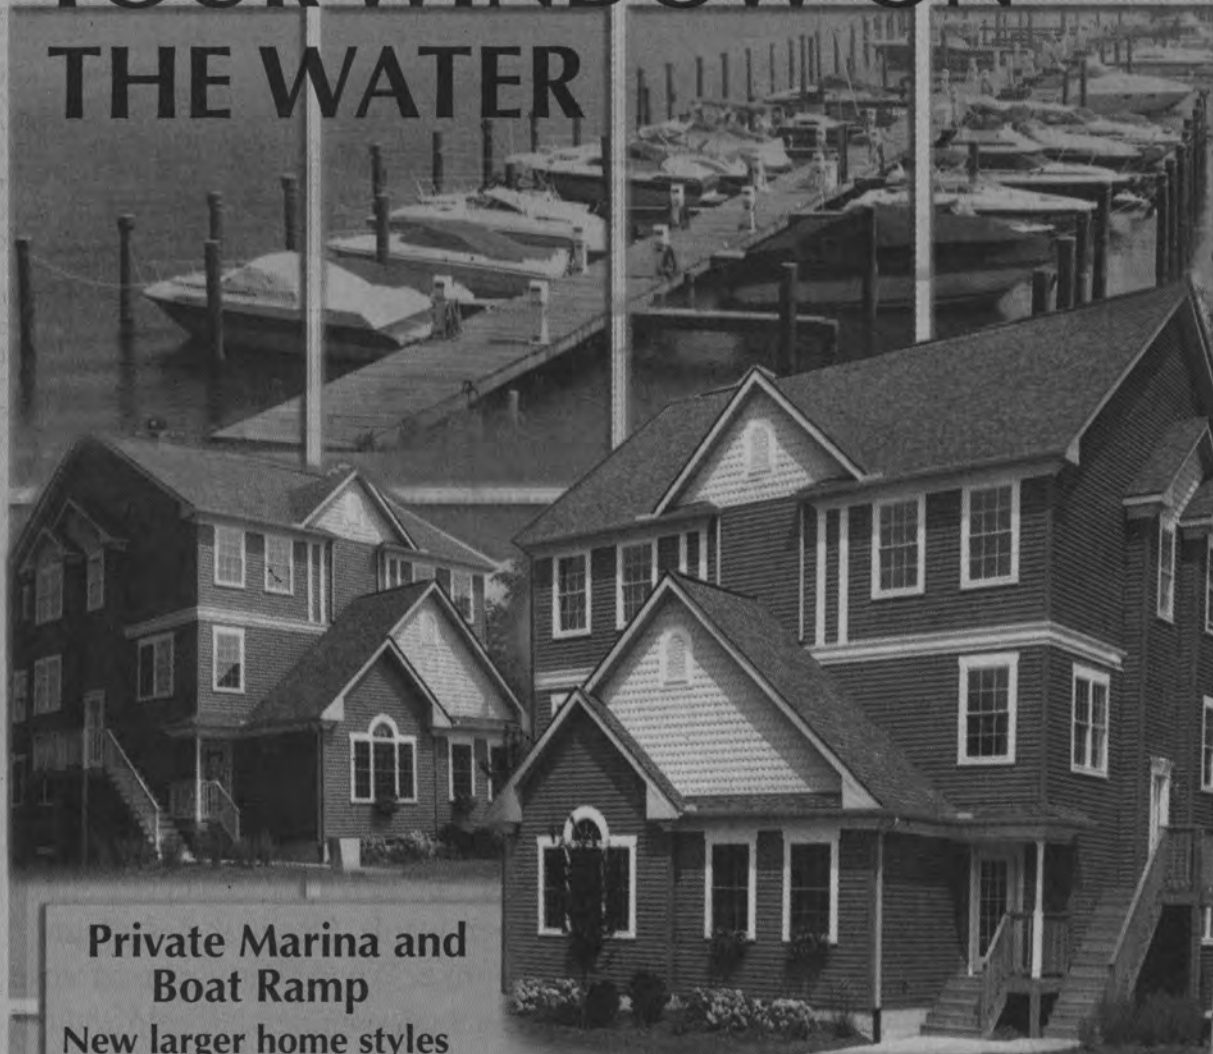

For a study plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, sections, and an artist rendering, send $24.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Please specify plan name the number (407-23). A catalog featuring hundreds of home plans is available for $14.95, or save by ordering both for $29.95. For faster processing, call 1-800-562-1151.
