INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

So great is the number of French words, names and terms in use for dining and culinary purposes, that it would require a large volume to list all of them, and it has been difficult to decide just where to draw the line between those which do and those which do not need explanation or translation, but I believe that the selection contained in this dictionary will be found of practical service when compiling or revising menus or bills of fare, etc., and on other similar occasions.

It should also be remarked that this book is not intended to take the place of works like Fellows' "Chef's Reminder and a Selection of Dishes," or Senn's "French Menus," both of which excellent books are in purpose a dictionary of dishes—instead of, like this, a dictionary of words and phrases.

The making of the book was suggested by the little volume entitled "Latin de Cuisine," published several years ago, and in conception (before this work commenced to grow to its present larger size), I found many suggestions and a good deal of assistance in a study of its pages.

In conclusion, I take pleasure in acknowledging that in the somewhat arduous task of compilation I received much valuable assistance from Mr. Adolphe Meyer, author of "The Post-Graduate Cookery Book" and other equally well known works.

A FEW GRAMMATICAL RULES

ADJECTIVES, PAST PARTICIPLES AND ARTICLES MUST AGREE IN GENDER AND NUMBER.

Adjectives, past participles and articles must agree in both gender and number with the substantives which they qualify.

It is a common error—but one to be carefully avoided—to follow a feminine substantive with a masculine adjective, or a plural with a singular.

The rules for forming the plural are given on page 5.

The general rule for forming the feminine of an adjective is to add e to the masculine, as petit, masculine, petite, feminine. This is the invariable rule with past participles (as sauté, masculine, sautée, feminine).

The principal exceptions to the rule as it applies to adjectives are :

- (1) Those ending in the masculine with a silent e, remain the same in the feminine.
- (2) Those ending in el, eil and n (and also words of one syllable ending in s and t) form the feminine by doubling the last letter and adding a silent e (as bon, masculine, bonne, feminine).
Épais, exprès, muet and sujet do not come within the description given above, but they follow the same rule.
- (3) Those ending in f, change the f into ve (as neuf, masculine, neuve, feminine.)
- (4) Those ending in x, change the x into se (as heureux, masculine, heureuse, feminine).
- (5) Those ending in er and et follow the general rule of adding a silent e, but they also take in the feminine a grave accent (as amer, masculine, amère, feminine).
- (6) Those ending in c, change the c into que (as Turc, masculine, Turque, feminine).

There are three exceptions to this rule, blanc, franc and sec. In the feminine they are blanche, franche and sèche.

EXCEPTIONS.

There are a few exceptions to these rules, among them being :

Long, masculine, longue, feminine.

Frais, masculine, fraîche, feminine.

Doux, masculine, douce, feminine.

Beau (bel before a vowel), masculine, belle, feminine.

Mou (mol before a vowel), masculine, molle, feminine.

Nouveau (nouvel before a vowel), masculine, nouvelle, feminine.

Vieux (vieil before a vowel), masculine, vieille, feminine.

FORMING THE PLURAL.

As a general rule, the plural of both substantives and adjectives is formed by adding s (as pomme, singular, pommes, plural).

The principal exceptions are that:

- (1) Words in the singular ending in s, x, or z (as fil, noix, nez), remain the same in the plural.
- (2) Words ending in au, eau, eu, ieu, oEU, take x in the plural instead of s (as maquereau, maquereaux).
- The same rule applies to a few words ending in ou (as chou, bijou, joujou).
- (3) Words ending in al and ail change those terminations into aux (as animal, singular, animaux, plural). There are though a few exceptions to this rule, including carnaval, éventail and sérail, which take s in the plural; and ail, which becomes aulx in the plural.
- (4) Compound words when composed of
 - (a) Two substantives or an adjective and a substantive, take the plural on both words (as choufleur, singular, choux fleurs, plural).
 - (b) Two substantives separated by a preposition, take the plural on the first word only (as chef d'oeuvre, singular, chefs d'oeuvre, plural).
 - (c) A substantive and a verb, take the plural on the substantive only.

The plural of past participles is always formed by adding s. There are no exceptions to this.

THE POSITION OF ADJECTIVES AND PAST PARTICIPLES.

Exactly the contrary to the rules of the English language, adjectives in French nearly always come after the substantive (as de l'eau chaude, warm water).

The principal exceptions are the following (which come before the substantive, as un bon ami, a good friend):

Beau, bon, grand, gros, jeune, joli, mauvais, méchant, meilleur, moindre, petit, saint, vieux, vrai.

Past participles always come after the substantive (as Ris de veau braisé, Poulet sauté, etc.

PREPOSITIONS.

The only prepositions that come within the scope of this work are:

à, at, in, to, "for the purpose of," by means of.

Après (denoting time), after.

Avant (denoting time), before.

De, of, from. Also with, after a word meaning "to fill."

De is used without the article to signify quality, number, weight or measure (as un morceau de fromage, une bouteille de vin) and when an English adjective is rendered in French by a noun (as Burgundy wine, vin de Bourgogne).

En, in.

Sans, without.

Sous, under.

Sur, on, upon.

In general literature, en is only used to signify "in," when the sense is rather vague and indefinite as "in place," "in summer," etc., the word dans being used for the definite meaning (as dans ma poche, in my pocket), but for menu purposes, dans is never used, the word en always taking its place (as en caisses, en tasse, etc.), except when à (followed by le, la, l') is used.

THE DEFINITE ARTICLE.

The definite article le (masculine), la (feminine), les (plural, either masculine or feminine), must in the French of ordinary life be placed before every noun. Even if several nouns follow in succession, each must be so distinguished (as—the salt, pepper and vinegar, le sel, le poivre et le vinaigre).

To avoid tiresome repetition, the article has been practically eliminated for menu purposes, except after the preposition à (meaning “in” or “with”), as à la rémoulade.

It may, though, as a matter of courtesy, be used before the name of a country. Before a vowel or an aspirate h, le and la become l'.

In the masculine when the sense calls for de to precede the definite article in the singular, the two take the form of du before a consonant, and in either masculine or feminine, the two take the form of des in the plural.

CAPITALS.

The promiscuous use of capitals should be carefully avoided, as (except of course at commencement of sentences) they are in French permissible only for proper names and the names of countries, cities, etc. Even adjectives such as French, English, etc., are written without capitals (français, anglais, etc.).

The more general use of capitals for menu purposes must be guided by individual taste, but it should always be consistent in application.

WHEN “À LA” IS OMITTED.

As the present fashion favors in many cases the dropping of the “à la” (though that is itself short for à la mode or à la mode de), it is necessary to lay special stress on the fact that the single word thus left to name the style, must still be treated exactly the same as if preceded by à la or à la mode—that is to say, if an adjective it must always be feminine-singular, no matter what the gender and number of the dish itself, because the word “mode” is feminine-singular.

For example, if you wish to say new peas, the translation is pois nouveaux (the adjective nouveaux, masculine-plural, the same as the noun pois); but if you are writing peas, new style (in the fashion referred to), you translate it pois, nouvelle (the adjective nouvelle, feminine-singular, because it refers to the word, “mode,” style).

If when correcting a menu, you are in doubt whether the adjective following a noun, qualifies it and should consequently agree with it in gender and number or should stay feminine to agree with “mode,” see if you would translate it by using the English word “style” and if so leave it feminine-singular.

When à la is used, it generally follows the name of the dish without any comma between (as Mousse de jambon à la Vénitienne) though the use of the comma is permissible. When the à la is omitted, always divide by the comma (as, Mousse de jambon, Vénitienne).

PRONUNCIATION

A

- A, like English Ar (as "table," pronounced tar-bl).
Ai, like English Ay.
Aim, ain, like English Ang.
Am, an, like English Ong (as nearly as it is possible to describe it—something between arnng and ong), except when the m or n is doubled (as année) then pronounce as stated for "a" (arn-nay), etc.
Au, like English o (long).
Ay, like English a-e (together in one sound) except when followed by another vowel, then pronounce like ay.

E without an accent:—

- (1) In words of one syllable and at the close of a syllable in longer words, pronounce er, but very short (as de pronounced der, saying the er as short as possible).
 - (2) at the end of words of more than one syllable, do not pronounce at all.
 - (3) at the end of words when followed by a, r, or z (silent), pronounce like é.
 - (4) at the end of words when followed by r sounded or any other consonant, pronounce like è.
 - (5) in femme and a few other words, pronounce like ar.
- Ê, with the acute accent (é), like English a, short.
È and ê, like a (long), as tête, pronounced tayt.
Eau, like o (long).
Ei, like ay.
Ein, like ang.
Em, en (see am).
Eu, like ur (exactly like ö in German schön).

I

- I, like English e.
Ian, like e-arnng (in one sound).
Ien, like e-arnng (in one sound)—except at end of word, then, e-ang.
Im, in, like ang.
Ion, like e-ong (in one sound).

O

- O, like English o.
Oeu, like ür.
Oi, oe, like o-ar, but all in one syllable (as roi, pronounced ro-ar, said together as one sound).
Oin, like o-arnng (in one sound).
Om, on, like ong.
Ou, like oo.
Oy, like o-ar-y (same as oi, but with the y applying on the next syllable as royal, pronounced ro-ar yarl).

U

U, like German ü (learn the sound by saying "u" with your lips rounded for whistling).

After q, unless followed by i, u is generally silent (as quatre, pronounced kartr).

Ue, silent at end of word.

Um, un, like urng.

Uy, like u-e (pronounced as one sound).

Y, like English e.

Ym, like ang.

Other combinations of vowels, ia, ie, ieu, io, ua, uc, ui, etc., are pronounced according to the rules for the individual letters, except that the combination is run together into one sound.

CONSONANTS.

B, the same as in English.

C (1), like English k when before a consonant or before a, ai, au, o, oe, ou, u (as caisse, pronounced kase), and usually at the end of a word, though in some instances (as estomac, flane, blanc, etc.) it is silent.

(2) like s, or ss before c, i or y (as douce, pronounced doose), or when it is marked by a cedilla (ç).

Cc, like the English k, except before è and i when it is pronounced ks or x.

Ch, usually sh before a vowel (as chaud, pronounced sho), but it has the sound of k before a consonant and in most words derived from the Greek (as Bacchus, pronounced Back-us).

D, as in English, except at the end of words when it is not pronounced at all (except in proper names as David, etc., and in the word sud).

F, as in English, except that it is silent in neuf (before a consonant) and in clef, chef d'oeuvre, cerfs, oeufs, boeufs and nerfs.

G (1) Hard (as in the English word garden) before a, ai, o, ou, u and all consonants.

(2) like sh (something between sh and zh) before e, i and y.

At the end of a word it is generally silent. Also elsewhere in a few words, doigt, vingt, signet, etc.

Gn, "liquid" in sound (as mignon, pronounced me-nyon, all run together).

H, always silent.

J, pronounced sh (something between sh and zh).

L, as in English, except that it is usually silent at the end of words terminating in il (as persil, pronounced perz-e) and it is also "liquid" in sound when preceded by i in a word (as bouillon, pronounced boo-e-ong, all run together), *fil*s and *pou*ls.

M, as in English, except that mn is pronounced nn in automne and condamner.

In other words both letters are sounded (as insom-nie, etc.).

Also see Am and em.

N, as in English. Also see An and en.

P, as in English, except that it is silent at the end of words and in a few other cases (as sept, baptême, compte, temps, prompt, etc.).

Ph, like F.

Q, qu, usually like K.

Qua, pronounced Kwa in a few words of three or more syllables (as aquatique, etc.).

R, as in English, except that you must "roll" it a little more at the beginning of a word.

R is, though, generally silent at the end of words of two or more syllables terminating in er, ier (as berger, pronounced bersh-a, etc.), except amer (pronounced armair). L'hiver (pronounced le-vair), la cuiller, l'enfer and a few others.

Rr, like a single r when followed by a silent e (as beurre).

S (1) a hard hissing s at the beginning of words and before or after a consonant as sel, soir (pronounced so-ar, all in one syllable), etc.

(2) the soft sound of z between vowels (as rose, pronounced roz, etc.), except in compound words.

At the end of a word s is silent, except fil, ours, vis, moeurs, gratis, lis and foreign names.

Sc (1) as s or ss before e, i and y (as scène, pronounced sain).

(2) as sk before a, o, u, l and r (as esclave, pronounced esklarve).

T, generally the same as in English, except that it is silent at the end of words (except fat, sept, huit, dot, brut and a few others); that Ti is sounded like si, and Th as a single T.

V, as in English.

X, generally Ks, but

(1) as gs, if the syllable ex is followed by a vowel or h, and in the beginning of words of Greek origin.

(2) as K if it is followed by ce or ci.

(3) as Z in deuxième, dixième.

(4) as ss in dix, six, soixante, Bruxelles.

(5) Silent at the end of a word, except when the next word begins with a vowel and then it is pronounced s (as dix ans, pronounced dees-arng).

Z, as in English, except that it is silent in assez, nex and chez and in the second person plural of verbs.

In conversation, words ending with a consonant are generally run into the next word if it begins with a vowel or aspirate h (as des enfants, pronounced dez-ong-fong).

FIRST SECTION

FRENCH—ENGLISH

Including a number of German words and their translation; a few other miscellaneous food words, and wine names with brief descriptive notes.

For English words with their equivalents in French (and in some cases in German), see the Second Section, commencing page 95.

EXPLANATION OF ABBREVIATIONS.

m., after a noun, signifies "masculine gender."
f., after a noun, signifies "feminine gender." } Any qualifying adjective, participle or article, must be in the same gender as that of the noun.

pl., after a noun, signifies "plural." Any qualifying adjective, participle or article, used with such a word must also be in the plural (besides agreeing with it in gender—"masculine" or "feminine").

pa. p., signifies "past participle." A word so marked is the past participle of a verb and expresses usually something done—as bouilli, boiled; cuît, cooked, etc. It must agree with the word it qualifies in both gender and number—if the noun is marked m., the past participle must be in its first form, as bouilli; if the noun is marked f., the past participle must be made feminine also by adding e, as bouillie; if the noun is in the plural, the past participle must be made plural also by adding s, as bouillis, m. pl.; bouillies, f. pl.

Past participles are always placed after the nouns they qualify, as canard rôti.

adj., signifies "adjective." The adjective also must always agree in gender (m. or f.) and number (s. and pl.) with the noun which it qualifies. In this dictionary, adjectives appear in the masculine gender, but the feminine is indicated by the affix immediately following. As—bon, ne, adj., means "bon," masculine, and "bonne," feminine. As though there are many different changes, always turn to the rules on page 4 if in any doubt.

Adjectives are usually placed after the noun, as pois nouveaux, but for exceptions see page 5.

The plural of adjectives is usually formed by adding s to the singular—as, bons, m. pl.; bonnes, f. pl. For special rules see though page 5.

* signifies "in general use."

† signifies "seldom, if ever, used."

Other Works from the Book Department of THE CATERER.

The Financial Side of Hotel Keeping (Second Edition) Price $2

By "J. Elliott Lane" (Charles Martyn).

(300 pages, handsomely printed and bound.)

This book is entirely different from any other work on the hotel business. The main "story" takes up the matter of location, investment, equipment, etc., the "financing" of the business after starting, and many points touching on policy, organization, etc., and the management of the back part of the house. Following this is a series of papers on the restaurant business.

The "supplementary section" is of almost equal interest. It contains a full report of the discussion on the "whole and half" and "single portion" systems (the opinions of seventy-five hotel proprietors, restaurateurs and department heads); the discussion on the possibility of instituting a system of references (outlining several private systems in actual use, etc); more than fifty notable banquet menus of recent date (with, in many cases, descriptions of the decoration, service, etc.); reproductions of the bills of fare (full a la carte, with prices, etc.) of nearly 50 of the best known hotels and restaurants in New York—from the most expensive down to the "popular price" establishment; opinions on the question of "profit sharing" with employes, a little symposium on "the steward's position," the curriculum of the professional school of the Swiss Hotel Men's Society, etc.

How to Make Money in a Country Hotel (Third Edition) Price $2

By "J. Elliott Lane" (Charles Martyn).

(200 pages, handsomely printed and bound.)

The reason for the great success of this work is probably to be found in the fact that the author does not content himself with merely advising "greater economy" or "better business methods"—instead he gets right down to a practical hold of the subject and shows how to economize and how to increase one's trade. Going further into the matter, he presents an easy method of analysis that will show just where any leaks exist and where any loss is being sustained; tells "how to serve three good meals at a one-dollar per day rate, and yet make a good profit," presents detailed menus itemized for cost to show what can be profitably served at the rates obtained at the average country hotel; makes many suggestions for the improvement of the table and takes up the question of what sized portions should be served, the most effective, satisfactory and economical methods of service, the matter of banquet business, the proper control of supplies, etc. One of the most interesting parts is perhaps where Mr. Lane takes up in detail the cases of three country hotel proprietors who have failed to make a satisfactory profit, and shows where the faults lie and how, even under the same conditions, it is possible to make a very fair amount of money.

The main work is supplemented by a most valuable collection of articles and receipts selected for their practical value (especially to the hotel man who is doing business on a comparatively low rate).

The Wine Steward's Manual Price only $1

The only work of the kind published. 110 pages of reading matter, illustrations, etc. Handsomely bound in cloth.

How to taste and judge wine. The arrangement, etc., of the wine cellar. The care of champagne. Some diseases of wines. The proper fining of wines. The bottling of wines. Cellarage of bottled wines. Uncorking wine. The decanting and serving of wines. The correct wines for different courses (with examples of different styles). The correct glasses for different wines and liquors (illustrated). The art of drinking wines. Controlling the issue of wines, etc. Notes on champagne. The production of champagne. A special chapter on port wine. How to handle wines. A table of vintages, showing good and bad years. Clarets. Business suggestions for the restaurant, cafe and bar. Advice to the bartender. The mineral water question, etc., etc., etc.

The Post-Graduate Cookery Book.....Price (cloth bound) $2

By Adolphe Meyer, for 11 years chef of the exclusive Union Club, New York.

(Nearly 300 pages. About 1,000 receipts.)

"The Post-Graduate Cookery Book" is a work containing matter supplementary to, or in advance of, the regular standard works on cookery and kindred matters.

Other cook books are, of necessity, to a great extent compilations, but the "Post-Graduate" is different.

It has a special intrinsic value to the purchaser, for it contains a large number of receipts for special dishes which have never appeared in print elsewhere. Some of these receipts are new, others are for special dishes which have helped to enhance the reputations of famous establishments both in Europe and this country.

"The Post-Graduate Cookery Book" is addressed principally to chefs, stewards, managers and proprietors who have "graduated" in the hotel business, but everything in it is explained so clearly that it is of almost equal value to those less experienced.

Dainty DishesPrice (cloth bound) $1

By Adolphe Meyer, author of "The Post-Graduate Cookery Book," "Eggs and How to Use Them," etc.

A book of specially "dainty dishes" which give an up-to-date epicurean touch to the service. It must not though be thought that the receipts are all too expensive for the average house. Many of the "made" dishes are, on the contrary, economical in preparation and very profitable to serve.

"Dainty Dishes" offers many opportunities to vary the daily bill of fare or the banquet or ball supper menu.

Eggs and How to Use Them.....Price $1

By Adolphe Meyer, Author of "The Post-Graduate Cookery Book," etc. (Third Edition.)

About 150 pages. Cloth bound.

We wish to call special attention to the third edition of this, the most exhaustive work on egg cookery ever published. It contains about 600 receipts, classified as "poached, shirred, molded, omelettes, etc., etc.," and with titles in both French and English. Every receipt has been thoroughly tested.

This edition contains a large number of new dishes devised since the publication of its predecessors.

New and Standard Mixed Drinks.....Price, $1

By Henry Roos.

48 pages. Cloth bound.

A new work, pocket size, containing about 100 receipts for new and standard mixed drinks, classified for ready reference, with an introductory chapter on bar work, the care of wines, etc., and illustrated with engravings of all the principal standard styles of glasses.

Other Works from the Book Department of THE CATERER.

Foods and Culinary Utensils of the Ancients Price (cloth bound) 50c.

An interesting, cleverly illustrated volume of 72 pages compiled from standard historical works. The contents are divided as below:

- Assyria and the Other Kingdoms of the "Tawny Men."
- Egypt and the Egyptians.
- The "Vegetable Kingdom" of Ancient Egypt.
- Greece Before the Age of Luxury.
- Rome in the Days of Her Greatest Prosperity.
- The Ancient Jews.
- The Chinese.

The illustrations include banquets in the days of ancient Egypt and Rome, Egyptian and Roman culinary operations, ancient drinking vessels, a number of Chinese sketches, etc.

Fables of the Hotel Profession and Poems of Good Cheer.

A dainty little volume of 88 pages. Price in gilt lettered cloth 50 cents; in heavy paper covers, 35 cents.

The "Fables" (by Charles Martyn) are little stories of the hotel business, which "hit off," in semi-humorous manner, many typical characters and conditions.

"Poems of Good Cheer" (by Frank W. Doolittle) is a title made generously broad to cover a number of verses on the hotel business, those engaged in it and the good things dispensed.

The Caterer Publishing Co.,

Established 1893. New York

Publishers of THE CATERER, the "monthly text book" of the hotel, club and high-class restaurant business. Subscription price, $2 a year; $1.25 for six months.

THE CATERER keeps its readers informed on everything that is new in the hotel, club and high-class restaurant business—new ideas in service, reports of special occasions (such as banquets, etc.), new items of equipment, new points in system, etc. Every issue also contains a variety of other matter of general interest, "what's happening among our subscribers," etc—all written in entertaining style.
