INTRODUCTION

Calhoun County, Kansas Territory, was organized September 24, 1855. The county seat was located north of the Kansas River, and seven miles east of Topeka at Calhoun Bluffs. In 1858 the citizens of the county voted for a free state constitution and to move the county seat to Holton. The name of the county was changed to Jackson on February 11, 1859.

The county covered a much larger area than it does today, including what is now Pottawatomie County and the northern part of Shawnee County. There have been many changes in the boundaries over the years and those researching pioneer families in adjoining counties could look to Jackson County records for information.

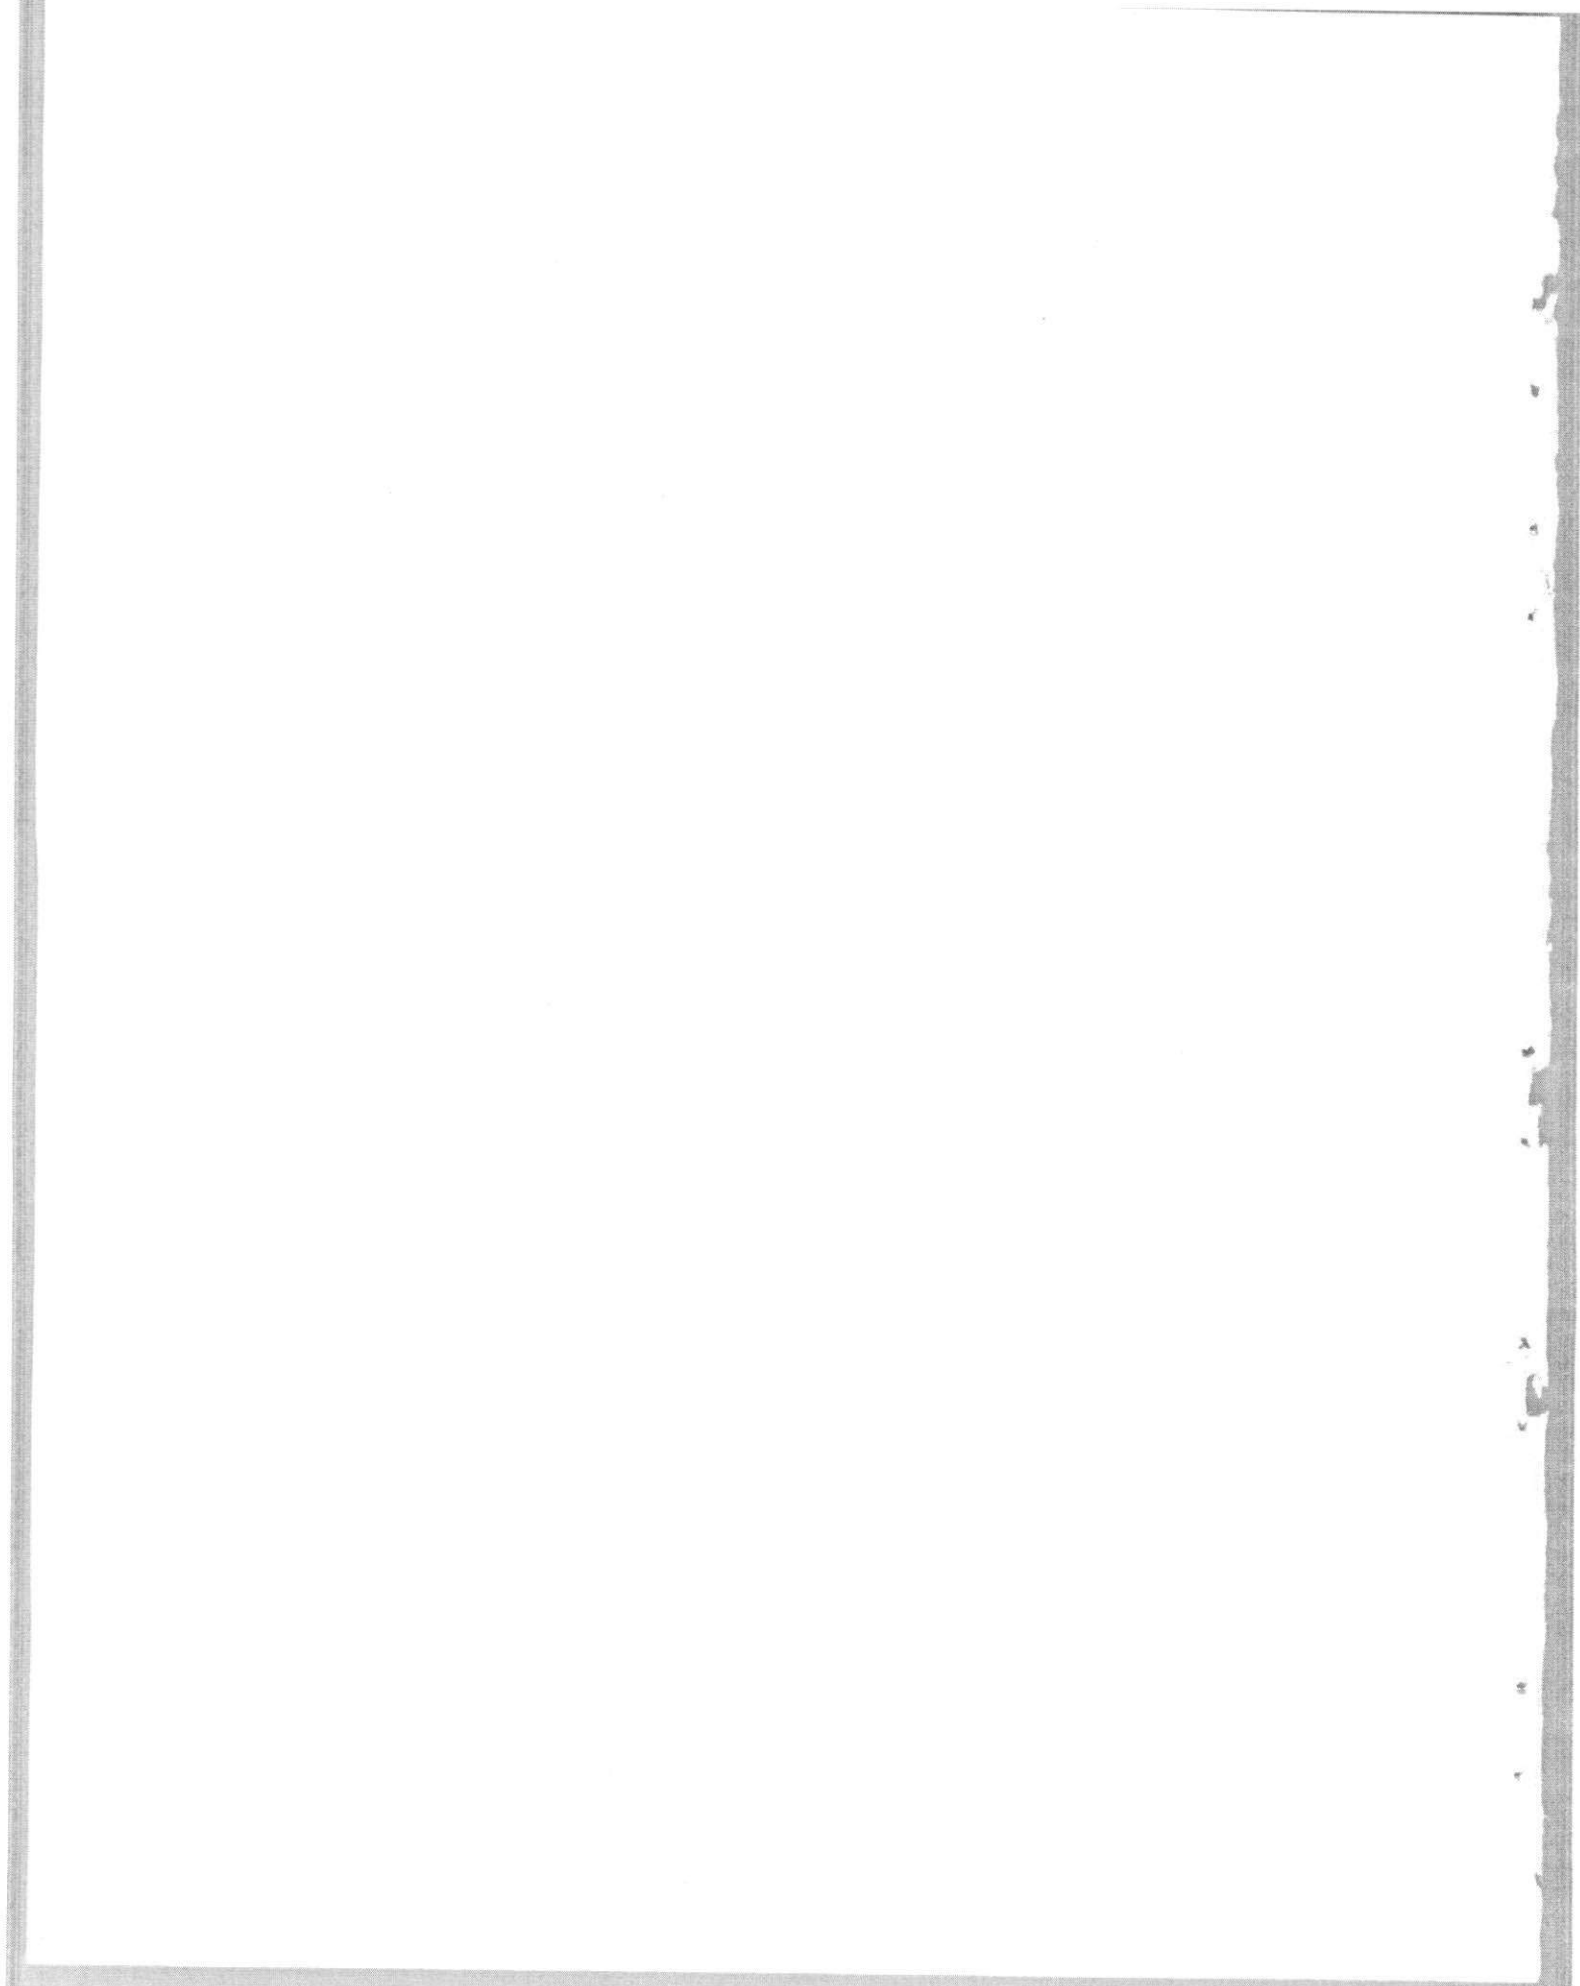

This book is intended to be a research aid for those tracing their Jackson County ancestry. Due to the problems of interpreting handwriting and spelling in old records, it is impossible to do a book of this kind without errors. The records cited should be consulted for this reason and for the additional information they contain.

The surnames of the brides and grooms are arranged in alphabetical order. This results in each marriage appearing twice, once in the brides' surname group, and once in the grooms'. In the first column, names are separated by abbreviations, the need arising due to some marriage dates not being given in the records. The second column gives the date of the event. In column three, the first number is that of the record cited, and the number or numbers appearing after the hyphen are the page numbers. Using the first entry on page 1 as an example, Nancy J. Abel married S. S. Rutter, on Dec. 24, 1878. The cited Record is 4, which is Marriage License Book B, page 128.
