

Bushland Garden

YORK, WA

THE BUSHLAND GARDEN was established in 2004 as a way of showcasing a range of Western Australia's waterwise flora in the town of York, for the enjoyment of the community. The site was formerly a clay pit for brickmaking during the town's early days, and then was used as a disposal area for a hotel destroyed during the Meckering earthquake in the 1960s.

MEMBERS of the York Branch of the Wildflower Society of WA are responsible for the ongoing development and maintenance of the Garden. This project is funded from the proceeds of an annual plant sale held each May, of local species propagated by York Branch members.

ONLY WA NATIVES are grown, with an emphasis on Wheatbelt and Southwest species so that the brochure can be a valuable guide when deciding what to plant in a home garden in these areas.

MANY DECLARED RARE FLORA (DRF) species are included. This classification signifies a species is rare in its natural environment.

NO WATER IS USED on the Garden except on plants during their first summer.

THE YORK BRANCH meets each 4th Thursday at the Community Resource Centre and members work in the Bushland Garden each Thursday morning. In spring, wildflower tours are conducted in surrounding nature reserves.

PHOTOS were taken by Audrey Sole, Bruce McGregor, Esther Tomek, Simon Nevill, Forest & Kim Starr, Brian Walters, Geoff Derrin and Russell Dahms, with TEXT AND LAYOUT a joint effort by members of the York Branch of the WSWA. Assistance was also provided by the Alice Springs Naturalists Club. PRODUCTION AND PRINTING of the brochure was made possible through a grant from the Shire of York. COVER PHOTO: Thomasia glabripetala Sandplain Thomasia. Shrub to 1.5m. Flowers Sept-Oct. Declared Rare Flora.

Finding the Bushland Garden: Follow Avon Tce north, turn left at the Sandalwood Yards and the Garden is at the next intersection on the corner of Ford & Grey Streets.

Using this Brochure: Refer to the habit category (eg prostrate, large shrub etc) of the plant you are looking at then locate the flower or fruit from the photos in that section. More information about each species can be found on WA's Florabase at <https://florabase.dpaw.wa.gov.au/>
