Running can increase your aerobic capacity and lower your blood pressure. Running can relax you, help you quit smoking, and reduce the risk of heart disease. Running can reduce depression and lift your spirits. Running can help you think and make you more creative. Running can make you more athletic and energetic and full of vitality. Running can improve your self-image and make you more self-confident. In short, running can change your entire outlook on life and make a new person of you.”

DIANA NELSON PASSES AT 75

By: Mark Washburne

It is with sadness that Streak Runners International (SRI) and the United Running Streak Association (USRSA) recently learned of the passing of Diana Nelson of Dixon, Illinois on 12 February 2022. Started on 11 January 1982 and ended on 2 October 2007, Ms. Nelson's first streak lasted 9,396 days (25.72 years) and is now listed as the 6th longest retired female streak in the world.

Shortly after her first streak ended, she began a second streak on 19 November 2007 but we do not know when it ended. If anyone knows the last day she ran during her second streak or knows of a family member or friend who might know, we would be most grateful if you tell us so that we can accurately record her second streak for our list.

Ms. Nelson did not have a computer and was not on email. We, therefore, have limited correspondence from her over the years beyond confirming her streak was still active. The below letter was written to our running streak association in 2007 when she first registered her running streak with our association. We are also including her Personal Records at races.

Please click here to see her obituary: <https://www.thejonesfh.com/obituaries/Diana-Nelson-4/#!/Obituary>

We extend our condolences to the entire Nelson family.

I'd Rather Be Running

Jan. 12, 2007

I took my first running steps in March 1980 at my "then" husband's urging. I went to the corner and back (.2) and was out of breath! He kept encouraging me and bought me my 1st logbook for my birthday. I started recording August 31, 1980 and I was running 2 miles by then. Jan. 10, 1982 was the 13th day I missed. I never dreamt I would still be running without taking any days off.

I didn't place in my 1st 8 races. I've also never placed in the (14) Bix 7's in Davenport, Iowa. It averages 13,000-14,000. I probably haven't placed in 7 or 8 other races. A lot of races around here are small 100-200.

Dixon's [Illinois] "Reagan Run" has grown to 700 last year tho[ugh].

I usually run early morning (5AM) or so when I go to work at 8. I love the quiet. Running is a great stress reliever and I wouldn't know what to do without it.

I'm so happy there's a club for us "streakers." I waited to join so I could start with a 25 year streak. My miles before I started my streak were 1735.

I'm looking forward to [the] newsletters and I want to know more about Margaret Blackstock [the top known female streak runner at the time]. I have never read anything about another women "streaker" before. I've cut out several articles about men with more years than me.

Sincerely,
Diana Nelson

UKRAINIAN RUNNER VIKTORIIA NIKOLAIENKO KEEPS STREAK ACTIVE DURING WAR

By: Viktoriia Nikolaienko
Kozhanka, Ukraine

Hello! My name is Viktoriia Nikolaienko. I'm still running. I continue my streak.

I started running every day on April 14, 2018. From the very beginning, I set myself the goal of running daily for 1,000 days. But when I passed this mark, I finally realized that I am a streak runner and continue running every day.

I was inspired by a man who showed by his example that running every day in any weather, season, time of day - it's real. He ran 3 km a day. I wanted to have a similar experience for myself and I decided to run without a single pass - every day!

In May 2018, I started preparing for my first marathon with a coach, which I ran in October 2018, while continuing to run every day.

In February 2019, I was inspired by the examples of ultramarathoners and prepared for my first hundred (100 km run), which I ran in June that year. My time was 10 hours and 28 minutes. Since then, ultramarathons have become for me the distance where I began to reach new heights.

Viktoriiia Nikolaienko

In August 2020, I became a silver medalist of the Ukrainian Championship, ran 185km in 24 hours.

In October 2020, I represented our country at the Last One Standing World Championships, where I set a women's record for the Kyiv track and ran 254.6km.

Running for me is the best way to know myself "deeper." Once I made a conscious decision to run without a pass and this habit completely changed my life. To date [14 May 2022], I have run 1492 days without missing a single day! The sun, a heavy downpour, a stormy wind, in the cold, ice underfoot, snow with a blizzard, evening jogs - I go through all this and I know that I am only getting stronger.

In the fall of 2021, I ran for the World Championships (track - 24 hours) in Romania. I set ambitious goals for myself, because in my character I "only go forward."

In 4 years of running I have covered 17,506.603km (10,880.425 miles).

For these 4 years I not only ran every day, but also took part in competitions in different countries and cities: 🏆🥇🥈🥉 Ukraine, Poland, Moldova, Romania. During this time, I became the champion, as well as the national record holder of Ukraine for 24-hour running and Backyard Ultra.

Now there is a war but life goes on. There are still many interesting challenges ahead. Dreams are waiting to be realized. Running for me is life and my inner beauty. 🔥

Viktorii Nikolaienko

I have two small children: a 5-year-old son and a 10-year-old daughter. When the war started, I lived in the Kyiv region. I soon moved my children to Lviv. We stayed in Ukraine. During airstrikes, my children and I ran to a shelter and hid there.

The war started for us on February 24 at 4:30am. The dogs in the yard started howling loudly and I woke up. At 4:40am, explosions, noise of planes in the sky, I woke my husband up and told him, "wake up, war is on!"

At 5 in the morning, I informed my parents and wrote to my Polish coach Sebastian Biało-brzeski, "Happy birthday coach! The war has started."

On February 26, my children and I left the Kiev region for Lviv. The road was not easy. My 5-year old son was bad all the time. He got sick and then my daughter got sick with a high temperature.

Sirens were blaring all over the city. We had to hide in a cold basement parking space, where after the first hour our bones started to freeze. I didn't have a chance to exercise normally. I just maintained my daily streak run on the floor near the entrance between sirens and treating children (2-6km every day in the first week of the war).

The second and third week of the war I was running 10-17-25 km every day.

On March 19, we returned home with our children.

We were incredibly happy, especially my husband. Our town is not occupied, not bombed, and we feel safe.

On March 24, I decided to leave for Romania. I started preparing for the next running season.

Here are my Training volumes:

- December 733.65 km
- January 740.63 km
- February 554.18 km (unfortunately, due to the war the amount was reduced)
- March 343.20 km

So, I realized I'm not in my best running shape for the last month but still made a goal with my intention to run again a 24-hour race.

The road turned out to be difficult, especially when I returned to Ukraine due to delays in trains and hours of waiting at stations without sleep caused by a large number of refugees and constant monitoring of traffic changes. I decided on the spot to go to Bucharest as soon as possible. A lot of transfers in one direction (5 trains, bus, taxi, car). In fact, the road took 48 hours without sleep.

Florin Simion met me in Bucharest and helped with everything related to my stay for the 24-hour race. Florin is an amazing man, ultra-runner, and family man! He has such beautiful kids and the best wife! They welcomed me very warmly at their home and when I was on my way home, my eyes and my son's were all wet. Florin tried to help me with everything he could. Many thanks to you Florin for everything!

Viktoria Nikolaienko

The very start for my 24-hour race in Plošť turned out to be difficult for me, although the distance is good, nice track! First, I was exhausted on the road without sleep. Secondly, the wind during the race was personally draining and other participants started to leave. At the 93th km, I felt pain in my right butt, which continued to block my right leg while running. I decided to stop at 95km and get a massage. It didn't help, unfortunately.

When I ran the Backward Ultra in 2021, while running for 46 hours and 308km, I did not take a single pain pill: no-spi or nurofen or nimesil. I think, if it comes to taking painkillers from the start, it should be stopped so as not to worsen your health. I personally decided so for myself that it's not worth it at all. Once the morning came, it became easier and I finished with 101km or 62m.

I was the only women among men, so I came in first place in the statistics. I also received a prize with a cash reward, which was a complete surprise to me, especially donations from participants.

I would like to thank Ben Ami the organizer of the Plošť. You will remain in my memory for a long time together with the volunteers. Ben kept me going pretty hard the whole time especially before, during, and after the trip to Romania! I am grateful for all the words of support and the organization of this race. It changed me, gave me "new wings," and belief in a stronger victory over myself. You all are amazing people! I liked the track and if the race was held in more or less calm weather, this race should be a great personal strong record for me. So, a race rematch is behind me! 😊
Ben Ami thank you for making me feel happy at this launch!!!

A lot of people have written and supported me from all over the world. Mark Washburne and the Streak Runners International community of streak runners – THANK YOU!

Alex Holl Lazarus Lake and the large Backyard Ultra global family - you are amazing, thanks for your donations! Lazarus, thank you for the inspiration and I promise to NEVER EVER GIVE UP on your path. We will meet again at the Backyard World Championship, because someday to run 100 hours is also my dream.

Sebastian Białobrzieski thanks for helping my husband with meds!!! Not everyone knows, but my husband is epileptic and has had this disease since childhood. His condition has started deteriorating since January, so we are going to have a difficult road in treatment.

U.S. National 24-Hour Running Team thank you for your continued support! Tracey Outlaw so much gratitude for coming all this way through the war!!! For the raised funds that my husband and I were able to help Ukrainian families and territorial defense thanks to you. Special thanks for the help of my family!

Taras Lukash thank you for being in my life! You are a true friend who takes maximum care of the fate of the other. Because of you, your mother has become a close person to me and my children. She is like that guardian Angel who cares and protects. She became my third mother 😊 among birth and godmothers. She wanted me to go to Romania so bad I just had to make that trip for her sake. HER support was so strong in Lviv that with all inner confidence and security I conquered this journey through the territory of Ukraine during the war to Ploestia. Николай Шумбасов. Many thanks to you! Thanks for agreeing to get funds from us in m. Oleshki and help those people who needed it.

I'm back in the house in Ukraine. This is my home, my peace, even in the midst of war. And remember that Ukraine will win!!! Because Ukrainians are never as weak as you think.

TIM WOODBRIDGE'S STREAK HITS 45 YEARS

By: Tim Woodbridge
Allentown, Pennsylvania

Thanks for the 44th anniversary wish from the USRSA - always enjoy getting those e-mails! I'm really looking forward to year 45 coming up!

Also, thanks for the quarterly newsletters! It is amazing to me how much this group has grown over the last few years. That last newsletter took a long time to read through, but I loved it! It really is fun to read some of the streak stories! Reading those updates from Alex (50 years); Bill and John (45 years) and those streaks that are longer than mine – helps to keep me motivated! But I have to admit – I also enjoy reading those that are hitting their one or two year streaks – as those help to remind me how much fun it was to tick off those runs when I first started!

If you google 1978 – you’ll see that Jimmy Carter was President; Top TV show was Cagney and Lacey; and Love is Thicker than Water (Andy Gibb) was the top song – on the radio – on AM/FM back then as well! First Star Wars action figures were released. Everyone was playing Space Invaders. Animal House and Grease were the big movies... Not in Google – I went out for a run on Sunday, March 5th, 1978, then the next day as well, etc. etc.

Lots of great memories during that time – 30 Boston Marathons; running home from college (Boston to Florida in 34 days); my annual birthday runs; It’s a bit hard to swallow – but will hit 65 in just a couple of months. Although they say that’s the new 45... (My knees would not agree with that though...)

As we all know – each year brings its own challenges – and having to work around Covid for another year sure kept things interesting again this last year. That said, I have to say this has been a very “calm” year compared to the prior 3 years – of course that usually means the storm is right around the corner!

I think all of us, no matter where we fall on the list, understand that we are blessed to be able to do what we do each day! No matter what happens – we have to enjoy what we do on the road each day – for as long as that lasts – and be happy and proud of what we’ve accomplished!

Over the last 10 years I have had to “re-behave” in terms of training regimen mainly due to some arthritis in my knees. (My Dr. tells me it was as much from my high school and college basketball days as from all the years of running!) I do a lot more biking and swimming now, but still run about 3 miles a day – with a total of about 82,000 miles run during the streak, which is a lot for a high school and college miler!

I have mentioned this before – but I still did my annual birthday “run” this last year. While I’ve done it as a triathlon the last 30 years, my gym is now renting out the gym on the weekend, so it became a duathlon this year! So I ran 14, then biked 50 miles... I’ve always said this “run” is my game – so I can make up the rules as I go along! Starting to get ready for birthday number 65 in June!

While this is a definitely a bit of a “lone wolf” sport most of the time, it certainly can’t be done on your own! I always say – each day is by the Grace of God – and the support of my wife Cathleen (I included her in my updated picture as we just traveled up for our 45th time – running and then volunteering with the Pro Fluid Operations - up to the Boston Marathon), over all these years (including 30 years as my pit crew at the Boston Marathon – with most of those years toting up to 4 kids along for the ride!). Even my kids have sat in a parking lot at 11:45 p.m. while I jumped out to get my streak saver mile in...

Again – thanks to the association for keeping up on all the streaks! So keep up the great work – and may everyone be able to keep on running!

“Ruminations on running - 6 years on”

By: Adam Shaw

When I first went over a year of running and added my name proudly to the roster of those here in runeveryday I didn't really think about whether I'd be here 5 years later having ticked off 6 years of running. And I definitely had no idea about what an impact it would have had on my life. So, as I hit the 6th year anniversary, I thought I'd put together some random ruminations on 6 years of running.

I didn't want this to be about how I feel fitter than ever before, that I think I've had far less illness (colds etc) than before or that I think I've aged in a healthier way keeping weight off more easily. There has definitely been a whole host of health/physical benefits from running every day but I thought I'd focus this on some more general things, of which I'm sure a few will resonate with so many other runners out there.

It's great doing it with a friend, even if they aren't there.

I started running with Mike Jones who first got me into exercise. And when you are running every day, when you have those low days, when you feel like maybe today is the day you'll stop, it's great to know there's someone there also doing it and that you can't stop as they will forever let you know that they managed to do one more day than you. It just gives you that extra incentive to get out and do it.

And on those low days, it's amazing how a run can pick you up.

This was a big surprise for me. And I guess it's something everyone who exercises knows. Having that time out exercising takes you out of the work-day stress, takes you out of the home-stress, the money-stress or whatever it is that's on your mind. Taking that time out is really healthy and helps you reset and refresh.

Standard short routes help too.

Having those short routes where you can literally go out without thinking, do the quick 2km/1.3 miles means you don't have to think too much. I've a few regular short routes. I think the most common one I've done almost 200 times now. These short ones just fill that gap to maintain the streak.

Vacations/holidays become more interesting.

As a family we always like to travel to new countries and explore. So, running has added another dimension to that. When we go on vacation now, I'm often having to get up really early to get my run in before we go out sightseeing. Running means you get to see places at odd times of the day to see a different side of the place you're visiting. You have to know where you are location-wise so you can find a nearby park or place to run to which means you get a much better feel for a new city, town, village or even jungle. It has also led to some quite interesting or different runs too... running round Tobacco Caye in Belize... an island that's only 400m in circumference. Being flashed at by an animal spotting camera in a jungle which was hoping to catch Jaguars, running by monuments in Sri Lanka, through the streets of Delhi and in snowy Warsaw to name a few. Vacations, holidays and travel also add in complications too. One of my more carefully planned runs was where my only time available in the calendar day was between flights at Qatar airport. I carefully planned how I should run with a carry-along bag from Terminal A to D ("he's late for a flight!"), back again ("he's got the wrong terminal!") and back again ("?!") so that I'd get 2000m in.

There's fun to be had with those oddball runs.

Although the airport run was slightly odd, there are a few other slightly strange ones I've done too: running 20km around a car park; running 4km around the kitchen to try out new trainers with my daughter thinking I've gone mad; the runs in the garden when recovering from Covid etc.

But add in Strava art and they become even more fun.

One of my first Strava art runs was to write "happy birthday" for my daughter. It didn't quite get the reception I expected - her reaction was, "that's great daddy, but I wanted a bike." Since then I've done a fair number of messages in my runs (including happy birthday to Mike Jones, my co-runeveryday'er). Even an RIP Ron Hill and a fair few others.

But running every day has its own stresses.

I now find in the back of my mind I always have that question - how and where can I get my run in...? It even impacts my wife and family. How many others out there have experienced their partner rolling their eyes when they've suggested a holiday to them, knowing that rather than saying "that sounds amazing, I've always wanted to do a cruise down the Nile" the first response is "will there be a running machine on the boat?" or "sounds great but where will I run?"

And a small thank you to...

The midnight specials. A 2km run at 11:45pm followed by another short run at 12:01am. Two days done in a short period of time. Means you can have 47 hours of rest! Very handy if travelling or when work gets too crazy, or even when you're feeling injured.

Overall, it's been a great 6 years. I wouldn't change it and I can't see myself stopping now.

50 States + DC Streaker Stats Traversing the Tundra

By: Steve DeBoer

Modern streak (daily) running began in the United States in the 1950s. The only streaker we know of before 1966 is 1952 Olympian Ted Corbitt. In 2012, we finally achieved the 50 States + DC goal – a documented streak runner in them all. In November, 2015, we had for the first time an active registered streak runner in all states and DC. Though that did not last, we have now achieved that goal again.

As of 5/1/22 49 states + DC have had a female running daily (ND has never had a streaking woman). Below is a list of each state, their first documented streaker and some other interesting statistics. Ages of active oldest runners are as of Jun 1, 2022.

CT – Amby Burfoot ran daily for over 9 months and only missed 3 days for 15 ½ months.

MD –Bob Ray was first American to run daily for 20 & 30 years.

CA – Mark Covert was 1st to run daily for 40 and 45 years; Jon Sutherland was 1st to run daily for 50 years but has moved to UT. Youngest, Sierra Stempke, began daily runs before age 4; has most of any state ever (281 as of 4/20/22).

PA – Bruce McLanahan ran daily in high school (mentioned in Runner's World 1977 article on streak running by Nick Marshall).

MN - Steve, Dave and Wendell DeBoer were first family to have 2 and 3 streak runners. Julie Maxwell has longest retired female streak (33 ½ yrs). MN has had highest rate streaking of all states since the mid-70s.

WA – Joel Pearson began daily running with his dad, Jim. Jim's other children, Paige and Hopper, and brother Don, make their family the first one with 5 streakers. Thorson family in MN now has the most – 7.

IL – Ken Young is only male runner to be first in 2 states (IL & AZ).

FL – Lois Bastien (age 85), oldest active streak runner; Lois Bastien (43 yrs) has the longest identified streak (retired or active) in world for women and is oldest woman ever.

WY – Elaine Rountree is only female runner to be the first in 2 states (WY & NV). Eileen's first streak is the oldest for women but not discovered until 2011.

ND – only state never to have female running daily for one year; ND only 6 streak runners ever, HI only other state with 10 or less (8).

AK – Bruce Sackinger reached one year November 2015, first time all 50 states have had an active, certified daily runner, 61 years after Ted Corbitt reached the year mark of the first registered streak in the US.

NM – Last state to have a certified streak when Jared Ostroski reached one year on October 24, 2012.

Currently all 50 states + DC have males actively streaking. Only ND has no active female (and has never had one). AK is the only state that has never had a streak runner age 60 and above (Debbie Zulz is 58 currently). There has been at least one run stalker over 70 in 37 of the states. The only states to never have a streak runner age 25 or under are AK (Sara Sharpe was 32 when started) and OK (Brandon Collins was 29 when started). There has been at least one run stalker under 13 in 23 of the states.

CHRISTINA PINTO-PEARSON JOINS SRI FROM THE UNITED KINGDOM

I'm Christina and I'm from Gloucestershire in the UK. I first started running in February 2020. I had tried running a few times before that but it never really stuck largely due to my chaotic job as a child protection social worker. I just couldn't find a routine in all the crisis work.

Back in 2020, I had become self-employed setting up my own business doing social work and life was a bit easier to organize. I could barely run but every day I went out and tried to run a little further, building up to being able to run 5K in one go.

I remember setting myself a challenge to make it all the way up a big hill where I live. Every day I would end my run with this hill.... every day I made it a little further up the hill....I felt like Rocky when I finally made it to the top 😊.

When lockdown hit here in the UK, I just continued running about on my own around the trails, running every day - just for fun. I slowly got fitter, a little bit quicker. Unbeknown to me, all the hills I was running up were serving to really improve my running.

Later in the year, I thought 'I'm ready to run with people' so I emailed our local running club and joined. After a few delays from further lockdowns, I finally met up with other runners. I was really nervous to begin with but meeting so many like-minded and friendly people who I could chat to about all things running was great. Everyone was so welcoming. I have made lots of new friends and have learnt so much from people in the club.

Last year, I had never even seen a race before so went along to marshal at the Frampton 10K, a local race, and after this I plucked up the courage to enter the Gloucester 10K which was my first ever race. Then it seems I caught the 'bug.'

I entered all the local races. I did some speed work, park runs, learnt all about different sorts of training.... fartleks, intervals, Kenyan hills, and more. I even got roped into representing our running club being part of the senior women's team at the Regional and National Road Relays (now that was an experience running with these aspiring Team GB athletes in their tiny pants and crop tops!! 😂). I loved it, although it was highly competitive, it was also a lovely relaxed atmosphere and the crowds were so encouraging of us normals bringing up the back of the pack.

Over time, I've been getting a bit more confident in my own abilities and now I just love club runs and I've managed to get a bit quicker. I did a 45min 10K recently which I was over the moon about. It's given me such a confidence boost as I honestly just run for fun. It's great to have people tell me I'm improving and have potential to improve some more!

In terms of my streak, I'm pretty relaxed about it, at the moment, for a few days a week, I just jog a slow mile with the dogs. I've had to run through a few illnesses which has been so hard.

I know I sound like a right wimp here but it's been mentally tough to get out and do that mile when I felt so rough. However, I did it, taking it super slow and actually it made me realize that I can do more than I think I can.

The streak is just my routine now. When people ask how long I'll do it for, I'll tell people it's like brushing my teeth. Are you going to not brush your teeth one day? 😊 I mean I'll just carrying on streaking until I can't! Maybe one day, I'll forget? Who knows!?

In the main, I just love running, feeling fitter and find it all loads of fun. I'll pretty much give anything a go.

Years ago, I was so unfit so it's improved my life in so many ways: I lost weight, I sleep better, my well-being has improved, I feel healthy, the dogs love running with me, my husband started running with me, I've been exploring all the countryside, I don't feel guilty about stuffing my face! I could go on for ages.

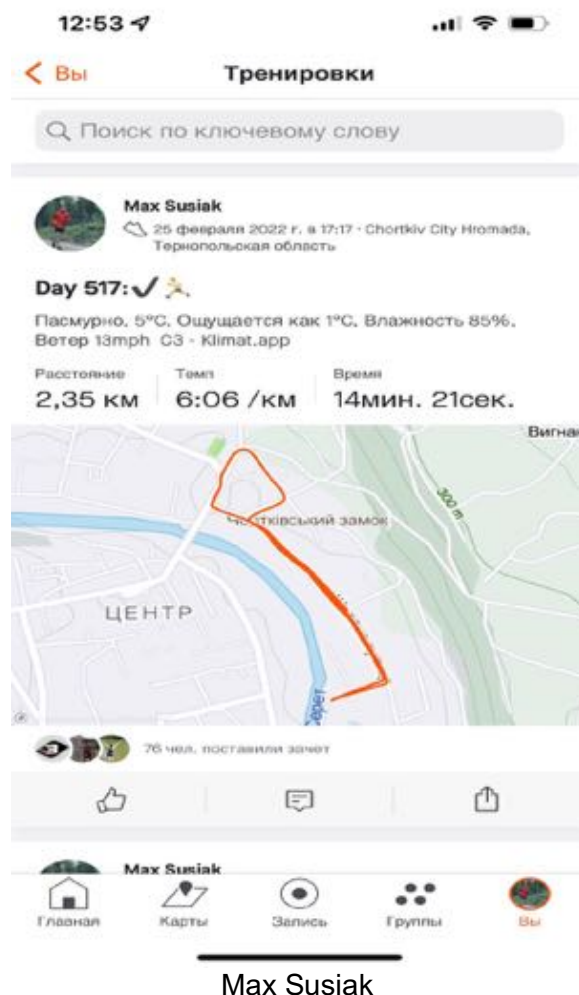

I also have friends and family who have very ill health and work with people every day who for whatever reason are unable to be active. I believe that we have to make the most of our bodies and our time on this planet.

We often don't know how lucky we are until things are taken away. So, I'm grateful every day I can run.

Health is so important so I will run whilst I can and for those who can't.

It's great to be linked to other streakers around the world!

MAX SUSIAK'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 517 DAYS DUE TO WAR IN UKRAINE

Good evening Streak Runners International community, my name is Max Susiak. My streak was interrupted after 517 days [message dated 27 February 2022]. Unfortunately, 518 days I could not go for a run because it was very dangerous and we had a curfew. I wanted to continue my streak to 1000 days, but very disappointed that it broke up! Thank you for your care. The picture is of my last run. Our country is strong and it will win!! Glory to Ukraine!

VASYL CHEREVYCHNYI KEEPS STREAK ALIVE DURING WAR IN UKRAINE

My name is Vasyl Cherevychnyi. My run is still going on. I find time for at least two kilometers a day. It gives strength and confidence that we will win.

Full-fledged training is not available. But I will run while there is at least the slightest opportunity.

I am now in the Kyiv region. We will defend our land and the world from Russian invaders. Glory to Ukraine.

JOHN DAVIS' STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Proud to have finished 5 years on my current streak. My first streak was 8.17 years which was interrupted for a couple of weeks to have a stent put in my left anterior descending artery (LAD), which is also known as the "Widow Maker." Thanks to running, my recovery was swift and no widows were made.

I continue my running streak and I am playing tennis twice a week and pickleball 4 times a week. I get great pleasure in beating guys younger than my daughters in both sports, all because of my running streak.

My goal is to die with my running shoes on, or until I no longer know where they are.

Run on my streaking friends!

3 years today [26 February 2022]!!! So happy to have been able to run on so many places and with so many people!

To be a runstreaker in Sweden has its challenges with very cold Winters and warm summers but that is also the best with it - you need to challenge yourself! And during Covid my runstreak has been my savior! I hope it will go on for many years from now!!!

Keep on running. :)

STIAN LOKKEN'S STREAK JOINS SRI FROM NORWAY

Since I work at my desk and inside most days I have to get out after work. I run outside all year and love the feeling. In the summer, I go for hikes in the mountains in Norway. But still managed to combine this with the daily streak.

Running and hiking is also a great way to meet friends and family and also spend time with them without planning too much.

My wife and I even planned our honeymoon so we both could attend a marathon race in Maui, Hawaii at the same time. Wherever we go, we always have our running shoes and clothes in the hand luggage since you never know when to run sightseeing next time. :)

MICHELLE CRAREN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Two years in...I'm an off-and-on runner of 25 years, beginning as a mediocre indoor and outdoor track and field athlete in 8th grade, always hating "long" (more than a mile) distances through my college rugby career, and mostly "on" since 2013. I've been plagued in the past by overuse injuries, had knee surgery in 2016, and always thought of myself as a 2-3 days/week runner...that was all my body could handle, right?

Fast forward to March 2020, and after a February ski trip, my knee was bugging me again (big surprise), and I was deep in the doldrums of late winter, surrounded by the uncertainty of living in New York City as the news became direr, and so I thought what the heck, maybe I'll try a mile a day, at minimum, and see if my knee feels better, worse, different?

Two years later, I can't say my knee feels perfect, and I've since been diagnosed with arthritis in one big toe, but I've run at least a mile, mostly masked for over a year, mostly solo; in snow, rain, temperatures from the single digits to almost 100 degrees, before dawn, after dark, during the more sunsets than I can count; through knee pain, my first cold since early 2020; after 8 mile hikes and days on the slopes, and sometimes after a couple beers; on vacation in France, the Adirondacks, boardwalks of Long Island, but mostly the streets and parks of Manhattan.

It has turned into my minimum 1 mile of meditation each day, to think alone, or listen to a podcast or audio book, and most importantly to get out of my apartment. I'm not sure how, if, or when my streak will end (a major illness or injury, I suppose?), but for now I can't see any reason not to keep going.

I started streak on February 29, 2016 and it's still going on. In 2021, I earned over 10,000 km of mileage. I'm not feeling well from my lower back this year, so I'm trying to get at least 10km of mileage every day.

The races have been canceled one after another due to the influence of the pandemic, but we aim to complete the ultramarathon (100km) in June. Of course, I will also streak the day before and after the race.

On run streak 730 days or 2 years running. Marathons to date is 787 but targeting my 800th in the UK next month during a 12 in 12 event on Walton on Thames.

I also plan my first 48-hour event next week [message dated 28 February 2022]. It's the first of these events ever held in a Ireland. Not sure how that will go. I have done a few 24 hours events but this is new territory for a member of the 100-marathon club in Ireland and the UK.

Holly Gallagher

HOLLY GALLAGHER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I started my running streak without knowing it was a thing. I have always been an athlete and enjoyed running but I started running every day as everything was canceled or closed due to the pandemic. I needed time to process and think. Running helps me do that.

I made it a goal to run a 5k every day until we weren't sheltering-in-place. Then as restrictions loosened, then tightened, I committed to running a 5k each day for a year. I completed that goal and kept making new ones.

Meanwhile, I discovered what a run streak was from an article from Runner's World on Facebook and began to keep track of my stats. I have encouraged my family to join me. My youngest daughter and I started a family running club, we call it 'Keep Your Distance.' We encourage each other with prizes, goals and we keep stats to see our progress. Last year our club ran well over 2021 miles and everyone in the club has become an official stalker.

My shortest run these past 2 years has been 1 mile and my longest was 26.2 as part of The Big Surreal Virtual Challenge. During this Streak, I've also run virtual events to Finish the Run for Ahmaud and for the Red Cross.

Running every day has taught me to set goals, be consistent, and to endure. It has helped me keep my distance, to keep going: mentally and physically. "To run and not grow weary" (Isaiah 40:31).

Despite lock downs, sickness, curfews, traveling and now busier schedules, I have been able to run every day. I am so thankful for that.

I started my run streak the day I was laid off of work at the beginning of the pandemic in 2020. I was off work for over 3 months and running every day got my mind off of being unemployed and what was going on in the world with the pandemic.

I ran a lot of miles before the pandemic and completed 12 full marathons prior to my run streak but running every day quickly turned into an addiction.

In the past 2 years, I have run through a tropical storm, a blood clot in my leg, and throat & nose surgery.

During my streak, I have run 2 full marathons, my first 50K trail race, and have logged over 4,000 miles.

I am grateful for staying healthy to keep my streak intact and looking forward to continuing it as long as I can.

Larry Guzy

LARRY GUZY'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Started my streak 3.18.2020 when the gyms shut down and I couldn't alternate running and strength training. I had not intended to do so many miles, but it just seemed like a good number per day, 10k...6.2 miles.

As it turned out, I continued through 365 days early in the day and loved the quiet of no traffic, planes, even people during the early Covid shutdown and as life started to come back. When I read an article about someone local to the Atlanta area ceasing a streak after 27 YEARS, I could not believe anyone could do that for so long and discovered there were thousands who were just as crazy, so I decided to join the fun.

Having just completed only 2 years, 730 days of a 10k every day, 4528 miles, I find it difficult to consider not running daily. At 74, I know I won't be around long enough to rise to the top, but that's ok. Everything I read about health indicates that dementia and many other ailments are at bay and my 2 open heart surgeries of 2010 and 2014 are unlikely to happen again.

After 52 years of marriage, a successful business ownership career, and having served as the National President of the Sons of the American Revolution 2017-2018, I love the quiet of a solo run. Have run in all the countries we have visited. The run itself makes that area even more memorable. I look forward to the next 365.

When I started running every day on 19th March 2020, I didn't know what a streak was and I was just trying to do something to get through lockdowns. Running every day for a year seemed like an impossible feat.

Fast forward and I've just completed year two and have started working my way into year three. The biggest difference in year two was the reintroduction of races! It is amazing how quickly you forget the buzz and excitement waiting on the start line.

In the last year I managed to set several personal best times over 10k, 10 mile and marathon distances – so I will take those wins while I can get them. I averaged out to running 6.5 miles a day at an average pace somewhere around 8-minute miles. I am just enjoying being able to get out running!

Shout out to all the inspirational posts on the Facebook page, you are all keeping me going! Looking forward into year three: there's some more races, plus my potential comma day! Though trying not to think about things like that, and just taking my streak day-by-day.

Celebrating my 4-year-run anniversary!

I have been a runner most of my life, with run streaks throughout the years. Many streaks were years long; some were just months or even days. But four years ago today [21 March 2022], I participated in the challenge from the National Down Syndrome Society to run/walk/roll/hike/bike at least 3.21 miles, in honor of World Down Syndrome Day. Our son Caleb has Down syndrome, and I thought this would be a great way to encourage support.

The days went by and soon I had a one-year streak going. What a wonderful way to not only celebrate WDSD, but to also celebrate the sport I love by having my streak anniversary on such a special day.

Today, on my four-year anniversary, Caleb now runs with me. He is a strong young man of 15 now, an accomplished triathlete and an inspiration for many. He is one of the reasons I get my shoes on each morning and head out the door; hoping to encourage others to do the same. Running has been such a blessing for me throughout the years and has seen me through some dark times. So happy to celebrate this day, and hope to be celebrating it each year on this day for years to come.

KIRK WILBUR'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

Most of this past year was pretty unremarkable - yes, I was running every day, but I wasn't training for races for the most part, and I was doing a lot of easy 5Ks. In October I ran my favorite half marathon, but took it pretty easy.

Things got more interesting in December. On December 10, I had a minor surgical procedure on my left foot, and spent the better part of two months running every day (a minimum one mile for the first couple weeks) on a foot that had a pretty sizeable hole in its sole (well-wrapped and padded, of course!).

By early February, I could train again, and started preparing for a March 13 half-marathon where I hit a PR of 1:38:00.

One week later I celebrated my "8th Runniversary" the same way I celebrated the first five before COVID: at a bar with friends enjoying beers and a Carvel ice cream cake. It's nice to have the tradition back and I look forward to another year ahead of great streak running.

Really appreciate this community! This Sunday (March 27th) I'll celebrate two years so feeling way stoked.

Wanted to share a big personal update with The Streak Registry.

I am gearing up for a Run Across America — beginning April 25th, I'll run 50 miles per day from Long Island, NY to Ocean Shores, WA.

I'll start with a foot in the Atlantic then run 3,071 miles across New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, and Washington to the Pacific.

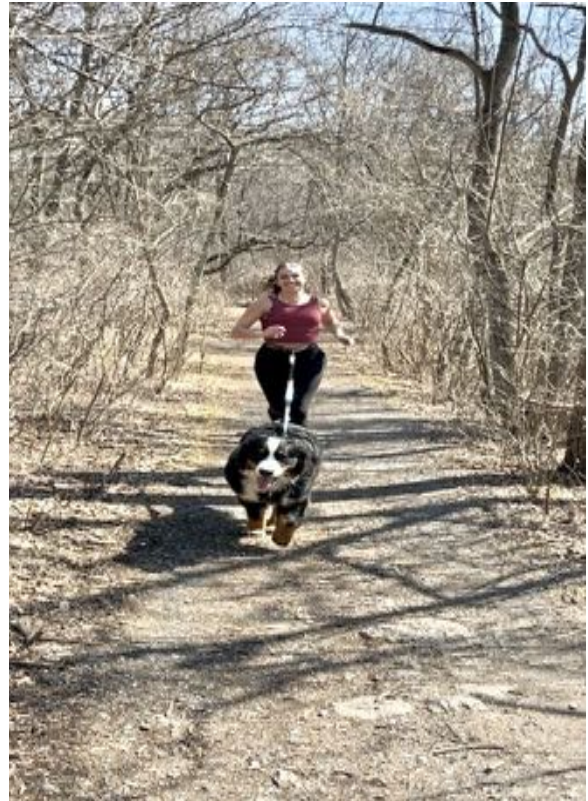

Our mission is youth mental health. I'm raising funds for Run Far Foundation, a newly established non-profit that funds youth-led volunteer projects across America. MORGAN DUGGAN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I am excited to say that I've completed 2 years of my run streak! I started running just as the world was shut down for COVID and haven't looked back since.

A few years ago, I decided to quit my job and go back to school full-time to pursue a new career. I had moved back home with my parents, was stressed with school, and busy with studying all the time. When COVID hit, my clinical rotation was cancelled and I was stuck in a house with no way to escape (physically, mentally, emotionally). I needed an outlet.

What started out as just a way to get outside and a goal of 7 days, turned into a month, turned into 100 days, and eventually did not stop.

As I continued to run, it became easier, more enjoyable, and one of my favorite parts of the day. It keeps me on a structured schedule and allows me to achieve things I never thought possible.

As the days went by, I couldn't find a real reason to stop running. I am now 2 years into my run streak and could not be happier--I graduated at the top of my class, landed my dream job, and have a whole new perspective on physical wellness.

I often run by myself, but some days are harder than others and it's best to take a friend along--sometimes this is my dad or sister but more often than not, it's my pup, Kona. He's a 2-year old Bernese Mountain Dog and he might just be the biggest fan of my runs! :)

SCOTT MAYHEW'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I had always been a runner, but very inconsistent. There was always some excuse to skip a day, few days or even a month. During the initial lockdown phase of the COVID pandemic, there was nothing to do. Everything was shutdown. Suddenly, I had countless hours of free time on my hands but nowhere to go!

So, March 20, 2020 I decided to try running every day, at least one mile, to see how long I could do it. The plan was to run first thing in the morning, before anyone was up, and get it out of the way first thing. My kids were equally as bored, with schools and playgrounds shutdown. There were no races, but lots of fun-themed virtual races popped up. One in particular caught my kids' interest: "May the 4th Be With You," a Star Wars themed race, where you earn a cool Baby Yoda medal. Me and my kids (then 11 and 14) signed up and they earned the medal for working up to a 5K run.

The effects of daily running, over inconsistent running, have been dramatic. Paradoxically, it's strengthened my body and has made me much more resistant to injury. I'm able to run further, faster and better. Now that races have resumed, I'm running them faster than ever before. And I still get rest when I need it. I'm running so consistently, that a day (or two) where I only run 1 or 2 miles, gives my body all the rest it needs.

One thing I love as much as running, is music. Those daily runs early in the morning allow me to combine the two. It brings me peace. It's my moving meditation. Two years later, I haven't missed a day. As I write this, I'm planning to go out for my daily run, today [20 March 2022]. How long this "streak" will go, I don't know. But every day I'm healthy and feeling well enough to get out for a mile, two miles or ten, is a great day!

CINDY UNEKEN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

After playing volleyball for 16 years, which I had to stop doing due to a back injury, I was asked to join a team of colleagues for an Endurance race of 5 days in the French Alps. This was the time that I started running from scratch and I had 3 months to get ready for this RAID-event. Before the start, I could run 10km for 3 times/week. The Endurance race asked for 30-60kms/ day, both running and mountain biking and covering 3 mountains each day. With the great fitness level of the men, we did a great job and ended 3rd of 25 teams – without proper preparation. This event fueled the running vibe and I continued running since.

In the same year as the RAID-event and with a group of running friends, we ran the Stockholm Marathon. Since it was my first marathon, they let me pick the location as they already had multiple marathons under their belly. I chose Stockholm, because I worked and lived there for 1.5yrs and really loved the people and the city. One of the RAID-men was my Pacer and we successfully finished and partied with the group over the weekend. Since then I have finished 5 marathons

Between 2009-2013 and also with our Consultancy company, we joined the Roparun, where 8 runners in 2 teams each run approx. 60km in 48hrs. They are supported by teams of bikers (navigation & safety) and care-takers, who arrange food and resting places during the weekend – all with military precision as sleeping time is very valuable

The Roparun is a relay race of over 500 kilometers from Paris and Hamburg to Rotterdam, where people in teams, take part in an athletic event to raise money for people with cancer. It's also called an adventure for life. This is also clear from the motto, which for years has been: 'Adding life to days, when days often can't be added to life.'

I have been running regularly since 2017 and usually with a goal to complete a 10km, 10EM and (half) marathon. When Corona came, my work got extremely busy and I needed to think of a way to stay healthy – both physically and mentally. On the 3rd day of the first Lockdown, I started my streak and on 17-March-22 I completed 2 years. And I will continue, as I have noticed that sustainable behavior change actually sticks after 3 months and it is really a good way to clear my head after a full working day - practice what you preach definitely applies, as a behavioral change consultant!

Hello! My name is Ingrid and I just celebrated my two year "steakvisory." I run at least a mile every day.

When I started this streak two years ago, I was very overweight. Since then, I have lost 150 pounds, ran 4 marathons (#5 is on the horizon, Big Sur 4/24), 12 half marathons, several 5ks and 10ks and have run thousands of miles.

This year, I will be running in my first world major in Chicago in October. [The picture] is a Facebook post from the first day of my streak. My 5k time then was 45 min. My best finish now is 25 minutes. Some days suck and some days are awesome. I just show up every day.

I'm excited to be included in Streak Runners International! I began streaking on March 14, 2020 when all the world shut down because of Covid. I ran through all 5 of my pregnancies, but didn't become super serious until my 1st marathon at age 42 when my daughter (pictured here) turned 3.

Then I became addicted to running ultras...and when I say addicted, I mean in a much healthier addiction way than my former addiction to food. I suffered from anorexia, binge eating, and bulimia for 37 years and streaking actually helped my recovery. Running at least a mile every day kept my mind off homeschooling 5 kids, chaos in the world, and not working at my job I had just started 2 days prior. Jesus and running kept my focus on sanity and stability for my family and I.

I have run numerous trail and road marathons, 50 milers and a hundred miler. I'm hoping to complete a 200 miler in September, 2022...God willing. My husband and kids are great supporters...most of the time! I just love to run. I'm not fast, I'm not slow, I simply enjoy where I am in life!

Hi everybody! All run streakers are such an inspiration for me since I started my Run Streak 3 years ago. Spécial thanks to Lisa Figuccio. I promised her to never give up. A special thanks to Raven for his support when I had some doubts. He is a legend like all of you! I'm grateful to be a part of USRSA.

I created a group the UNCOMMON-RUNNERS on Facebook to motivate people to improve their life with running and sports. Thank you for your support and never give up

Bill MIDDLEBROOK'S STREAK HITS 12 YEARS

As of today [30 March 2022], I have run at least 1 mile every day for 12 years without missing a day. During the year just completed today, I ran a total of 761 miles. I am so grateful for the encouragement that USRSA gives me to continue my daily runs. I am especially thankful that I am still able to do this even though I will be 80 years old on August 23 of this year. Thank You, Thank You, Thank You for our wonderful association!!!

ADRIAN KUNDIG'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

2 years already! I would never have thought that! I run only for health reasons and no competitions. I never had the goal to streak as long as possible. Just stay healthy and run a half hour (5K) every day.

I don't have a treadmill and run outside every day, which I really enjoy. Thanks also to my family who is understanding about my running.

The exciting thing about streak running is that you run at times and places where you normally don't go. Let's hope it continues to go well for a long time.

ANDREW LAVIN JOINS USRSA

I started running in my 30s to get a better grasp on my physical and mental health and just stuck with it. My streak would have been quite a bit longer (~2 years) if not for a 20-mile hiking day at high altitude in summer in The Sierra Nevadas, I tried to make my mile but basically collapsed at 1/2 a mile from campsite. I'll always remember that day.

I love my wife, my dog and the outdoors. I live outside of Lake Placid in the Adirondack mountains in upstate New York. I work for United Rentals as a salesperson for Construction equipment. I spend a lot of time mountain biking and skiing.

LANE DESBOROUGH'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Five years and counting...

March 5 marked the 1826th day in a row that I have double-knotted my shoes and gone for a run. The thing about milestones is that you can't see them in advance. This streak started with 2 days, then a week, then a month. Soon, it became clear I would need a good reason to stop. Haven't found one yet.

The Stats (every run is on <https://www.strava.com/athletes/3676920>):

- 12,000 miles (the equivalent of halfway around the Earth, or running from NY to LA and back, twice)
- 2000 hours (the amount a person works in a year)
- 1,200,000 feet of climbing (about 40 times higher than Mount Everest)
- An average of 6.5 miles every day (or 92 marathons per year)
- 17 million footsteps (and I've only fallen a couple times!)
- Five countries (US, Canada, France, Germany, Switzerland)
- 3 Ultramarathons, 1 Marathon, 5 half marathons (not counting the 200+ runs longer than a half marathon which were "just for fun")
- No illness or major injury (except for the time I got chicken pox)
- The physical and mental benefits have been so profound that my only lament is that I didn't start earlier in life. Running went from a daily self-argument about why I didn't / couldn't run that day to a simpler mental calculation: where, how far, and how fast should I run today?

I'm often asked about injuries. "Doesn't running every day make you weaker or more injury-prone?" I think it's the opposite: a little hormesis goes a long way. Not every day is fast, in fact most days are slow. I listen to my body. Sure, I could do better in competitions if I took days off or actually "trained." But I've still done pretty well in some of the many races I've done over the past five years.

I'm thankful to be a part of this great running community and I am so excited to make it to my 2-year streak anniversary.

This journey has provided so much for me. Running in multiple states, through illnesses, managing injuries, in every weather condition imaginable, on various terrains, and competing in distances from 5K - ultra marathons; I'm averaging 4.5 miles per day. Physically, I have grown and mentally, running every day has been a blessing. The best part is that I'm sharing this streak with my daughter which fuels my soul!

2 years is a proud feat. That said, my respect to those who are many years and thousands of miles ahead of me with your respected streaks. I'm inspired by you, all. Let's keep running!!!

MICHAEL MANNINGS' STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

My 5th year of running every day has been one of my favourites. From April onwards, racing began to return after the Covid lockdowns. After having a break from racing, I really appreciated it when races and Parkrun came back.

I've trained consistently over the last year, which has resulted in personal bests at 5k, 10k and HM, plus earning a county vest for cross country. The 10k PB was particularly sweet as it had been over 11 years since I'd set my best time.

As a newly qualified "proficient stalker," I'm looking forward to continuing my streak, chasing more PBs and having another go at a marathon in April 2023.

It is possible to keep the streak alive even with injuries to both hamstrings! I injured the right one training for and running last October's Chicago Marathon, and the left one in January. Still, the streak continues even if some days have been rather uncomfortable and a little painful. Happily, as I write, both legs are much better, and I'm hoping for better days ahead.

I'm still running and did 5 miles to celebrate the 5 years. I'm still going strong and fortunately remain healthy. I've found success with the Brooks Adrenaline GTS and my best run of this past year was while we were on vacation in Turks and Caicos. I did 10 miles and enjoyed the beauty of a tropical paradise. I'd highly recommend going there. My days always start with my run and it's become a part of my life in a very good way.

The third year of my streak has probably been the hardest so far. A knee injury on the first kilometer of the Königsforst Marathon 2021 (which I still finished... not the best idea maybe) and a COVID-19-infection reduced the amount of kilometers I was able to run in the last months, but in the end I was always able to run at least 2 km every day. So well... Happy Birthday to my 3 year old streak now.

PAUL QUINN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I just passed my 2yr streak mark, doing a minimum of 5km every day, and still going "strong." Currently, consistently averaging 50km per week.

As I teenager I was a cross country runner, but through my later years I only ran occasionally. But then COVID landed and daily running was my "lockdown thing."

It started out with a week, then a month, then before I knew it I hit the 1yr marker. 28th March is my year marker. I managed to continue running through sun, rain and even skiing with a week on the slopes.

For my 1yr anniversary I raised just over £2k for Parkinson's (my father is a long-time sufferer). And I even managed a period of indoor treadmill running due to quarantine.

I won't lie, some days are tough. Those days are usually 5.01km days. But most are an absolute joy and allow me time to reflect on work and personal life. Looking at the league table, I'm in complete awe of the streak durations I see. My 2yr effort is tiny.

Things I've learned: invest in good running socks, and 1,200km is the life of a pair of running trainers. I've lost just over 3st (~20kg) in weight and feel both physically and mentally healthier. I could keep going without the support of my family, in particular my wife, Sophie, whose always there to support me with banners and posts! To all you streakers out there - massive congrats, I hope I can keep this going... Cheers.

"Satiro De Oliveira, on completing three years of running and 50 years of life."

I was so distracted on celebrating my incoming birthday that I missed my third-year anniversary of my running streak! Running every day gives me strength, energy and sanity to continue striving for a better and more beautiful future.

On the journey, I consolidated a healthier lifestyle, embracing a vegan lifestyle, starting a daily yoga practice, and redirecting my professional career, becoming a healthier and happier father to my 5-year-old son.

The urge to run led to a drive to live and a need to enjoy. I celebrate my life through running, and will do so as long as my body continues. Streak on my friends!

CRISTIAN ROMEN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I decided to run forever - or die trying.

Even before lockdown I was running a lot to de-stress.

By 15th of March 2020 I'd already lost my love & relationship (her addiction/abuse) my job (redundant due to lockdown) and a multitude of health issues in my family (a near death due to cancer).

If that wasn't enough, lockdown came (I wasn't even allowed to volunteer any more due to new rules). I was also trapped in a Queensland - my nearest family member/ closest friends were 1800kms away.

That's when I decided, having lost just about everything, that I would do the one thing I can in isolation - run every day.

The rest is now obvious - started off with one month; the difficulties of life in isolation, the recurring pressures from a toxic ex sent me further out the running track so my life wouldn't spiral any further than my mind and spirits were already beginning to.

I didn't ONLY set out to run every day - I also decided to make ONE person smile each day. Be it a stranger, a friend in trouble (there were many of those in lockdown) or my own distant family - on the street or on a call, drawing a laugh or at least a smile out of them daily kept me level.

I write this on day #757 (April 10th '22), surpassing my own expectations & ignoring injuries. I continue each day, like breathing air & drinking water - it's a necessity.

Boring stats? 60km/week avg. so approx 8.8km/day. I try to take out anyone for a run who needs it.

I am inspired by the ones in this streak run group, so if by accident I inspire just one person to get off the couch for 1/2 hour a day, I am happy. Keep on keeping on.

I can't quite believe I've hit the 2-year anniversary of my running streak. It started as something to get out and do every day at the beginning of the pandemic when I was home with my three boys. Sometimes two of my boys would ride bikes along and I would push one in the stroller to get fresh air and exercise.

One major motivation to keep going has been the fact that running is one aspect in my life I've been able to control during the last 2 years of uncertainty. The mental and physical benefits have been incredible. I may adjust my minimum to a mile, but I have not run any less than 3 miles on any given day over the last 2 years. I even squeaked in a 3 miler late the next evening after driving 10 hours home from completing a 50-mile endurance trail run.

Running is a gift and I am truly thankful for all the experiences it has given me to this point in my life. I look forward to keeping my streak alive as long as my body allows. Happy running to all!

ANDERS LINDGREN'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Two years of running!

For most of my life, I've been a non-runner, and used to consider people who claim to love running to be a bit strange. In 2015, after starting to do bit more exercise of other types and losing around 20lbs/10kg of weight, I more or less by accident started running and realized that I enjoy it and began to run every now and then and did some races from 10k to marathon distance.

My first contact with streak running was during a vacation in Miami Beach in 2019 when I ran with the legendary Robert "Raven" Kraft who has been running 8 miles every day since Jan 1, 1975.

Once the pandemic hit, most other activities were cancelled (even though we were never in hard lockdown in Sweden), but running was still possible. One day, a colleague sent me a message suggesting "let's do a challenge and run every day." I reluctantly accepted and we started doing this. He later claimed that we were only supposed to do this for ten days, but in the original challenge, there was no end date, so I kept going.

The first month or so was at times a bit challenging, but after that it had become an obvious part of every day. It is quite nice to not have to think about whether or not you are going to run today, you just need to decide at what time you are going to run.

Now, two years and 5920 km (3677 miles) later, I have had a healthier life than in a long time, done PBs on 10k/half-marathon/marathon, and enjoy the daily runs.

A daily run streak might not be for everyone, but if handled right, it can be a nice way to keep motivation and consistency going.

MICHAEL SCHLATER SR. REACHES 7500 DAYS AND 98,000 MILES

Some significant events occurred for Michael Schlater Sr. during the first 4 months in 2022:

1. On March 16, the 98,000-career mile mark was reached during an afternoon run with his team.
2. Nine days later on March 25, the 7,500 consecutive day milestone was achieved, again in the presence of his high school team.
3. Lastly, he was interviewed during a live sports program on April 7 in Matamoros, Mexico about the running streak and other significant events during his 40+ year career.

The next big event will be the achievement of the 100,000 milestone, which should occur in late-October of this year.

More news to come.

I am happy to be still running, but I'm planning to keep running at least until November 3rd of this year, which will be my 60th birthday. Fingers crossed!

I've only been running since the fall of 2012, and, along with one 5k, one half marathon, and two Bay to Breakers, I ran seven marathons between 2013 and the summer of 2019 (the SF Marathon four times, along with the Oakland, Stockholm, and Copenhagen Marathons).

I had begun training for an ultra, but then covid hit. Isolating at home alone, and with two others of my favorite activities cancelled for the foreseeable future (singing classes and Argentine tango).

I decided to begin running every day both to relieve stress and to make sure that I kept running even though I didn't have a race to train for. I'm very fortunate to live in an easy city to run in - San Francisco has perfect running weather all year long, has gorgeous views of the city, the bay, and the ocean, is runner-friendly, and has the best mix of hills one could ever wish for.

A lot of people ask me why I haven't quit the run streak yet. My answer is usually: "to keep on running is getting easier, but to quit is getting harder." It's so much simple every day to decide when to run, rather than if to run.

My second year of run streak I completed my first Marathon (Stockholm, October 2021) and now I'm heading for my second one in June 2022. In February I participated in a typical Nordic event: a winter-trail half-marathon which meant running partly around a lake and partly on the ice of the lake (picture).

This year I've also joined the Team Stockholm Marathon 🏃 and have dedicated my Sundays to long-distance running in the beautiful Stockholm area. On Tuesdays I still run with Team MoTo ❤️. I think I have found a good combination of long-distance running and short-distance rehab-running (even though I, like many others, haven't been completely free from injuries), but is still struggling with the interval-training 😊. My goal this year is simply to keep on running!

I feel like I am usually more excited to write this and talk about my streak, but this year has been tough, and I am having a hard time mustering enthusiasm for my own streak.

Eight-years ago in 2014, I wasn't doing that great if I recall. I was mad about my marathon time of 3:29:47. I had done slightly better than that in both 2010 and 2011.

I was looking for something different to mix things up, so I decided to try running for 100 days straight.

I immediately found success in the next two years of my streak with a 3:18:58 time in 2015 and 3:15:22 in 2016. However, I hit another low patch in 2018 with a marathon time of 3:40:34. I was also the heaviest I had ever been. Then, I started eating vegan and had three incredibly strong years 2019, 2020, and 2021 (in 2020 I averaged over 10 miles a day).

So, I am trying to break my pattern and have a good year this year, but I don't know; it is tough.

ASA KARLBERG'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today [25 April 2022] I'm starting day one on my fourth runstreak-year. Three years have passed quickly with many ups and downs. At day 1000 I was determined to quit, but I couldn't. This has become such a good addiction and I love that it's as natural for me as brushing my teeth is.

I started to define myself as a runner in 2011. After hell at work I took to running as my therapy. It led to me running a lot of different races and my training and ambition finally led to some smaller injuries (they are still with me). This took away my motivation and the excuses for not running came more and more often. I needed something new. A colleague mentioned that a runstreak doesn't allow any excuses and that stuck with me for almost six months before I decided to try. A week past. A month. Six months. And here I am.

My runstreak has taught me that running doesn't have to be high speed or long runs. It can be fifteen minutes and I can allow myself to enjoy. Running is for me. My competing days are on hold. I just want to keep enjoying. I want to do my first ultra distance this summer - probably in the mountains, but we'll see.

I want to send my regards to all of you. All of you inspire me, both you who are in your first year and you who have continued for more than 50 years. Thank you!

NATE QUEST'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I just celebrated two years of my running streak, and it feels great! I commemorated the occasion with a lovely 14-mile run, mostly on a familiar route, but also exploring a new area for a bit.

I never thought I'd be able to have a running streak. In fact, a friend of mine previously had running streaks of several hundred days, and one over a thousand days. I was jealous, because I thought that my work demands and busy family life with three active kids meant that I would never be able to do it. My work situation was only getting busier too.

Once the pandemic started, however, I used the extra time that I would have spent driving to and from work to run every day. While I was working from home, I ran more than I had run since I was in college 15 years prior, on the track and cross-country team. Although I'm not running quite as many miles now that I'm back to work in the office, and I've taken on more responsibility at work, I still get out for at least a mile a day. Usually more! I've certainly had more of the one-mile minimum runs this year than last year, but thankfully I've gotten to a point where I only do that about once or twice a month now.

I had some health concerns come up in years prior, and those have been held at bay for the most part with all of the extra exercise. I hope my streak doesn't end anytime soon!

To run every day is for me an active decision to take responsibility for my life. Running every day is not really training for me, it is a way of life. It is a feeling of freedom. I feel good when I am outside and move.

I am not very interested in running statistics, I do not care if it takes 2 hours to run 10 kilometers or if it takes 40 minutes. And I never save any data from my runs. Very often I run with our dog (an English Cocker Spaniel) and he has really taught me to look at running in a very relaxed way. He loves to run but has no conception of time and is very curious, just like a child. If there is an interesting bush along the way, it must be examined, of course.

I have done different kinds of training in different periods basically my entire life. But running every day is outstanding, I must say. It was my wife who started to run every day. She still has the run streak family record. After a while I also started and we often run together. We live very close to nature and have fantastic surroundings to run in. You just choose the direction and start running. It is as simple as that.

Completing 8 years has come in the same year that I turned 60 - where does the time go? I must admit that this has been the hardest year so far and I am delighted that it is behind me.

This time last year I was 'reorganised' at work and left without a job so a change of employment was needed. Fortunately, via LinkedIn, I was quickly in receipt of a number of offers and I started working part-time in August.

I have a very short commute of 10 minutes instead of 2 hours working for my local water company. New sector for me but same old issues that I have seen many times before. What remains constant, however, is the discipline of running every day.

Working through Covid restrictions, starting to travel again with all the complexity that brings and the ever-present possibility of a positive test, have all brought different challenges. Through it all runs are the constant of organizing that 1 hour a day to hit the road.

I have continued to be involved in the parkrun world as an Ambassador in my local area helping set up new free, weekly, timed events and also helping people start their running journeys through the Couch to 5K programs.

Thanks again to everyone for the inspirational posts on Facebook and good luck to everyone where ever in the world you run and however many days you have run in your streak.

I'm so happy to have gotten to the three-year running streak mark!

Memorable streak-keeping moments/habits so far include running in a typhoon; running in regular clothing (with a bag) near midnight through New York City after a very long conference day; running in place in an ER; running on the Bonneville Salt Flats; running barefoot several times on different beaches during impromptu might-as-well-run-now runs; deciding to run first before committing to taking myself to the ER; running at the lowest point below sea level in the US; running in a smoke-inhalation-prevention mask during terrible wild fires; running through insane crowds on the Brooklyn Bridge; running very, very slowly with a pug-chihuahua; running with my child; running to see city damage after protests; running in 16F degree weather and remembering how to get used to that very quickly; running to return library books; running through redwoods; running while picking fruit from urban trees; and running through the desert at dusk.

Here's to as many days from this point onward that I can keep this going.

Before the pandemic began, I could barely run a mile. I always said that I hated running, that I had bad knees and couldn't run. I exercised daily but avoided running, opting for the elliptical machine, rower, or bike at the gym.

When suddenly we were all sent home from work and everything closed down, I no longer had the escape of my gym and I badly needed to find a way to exercise at home, for my own physical and mental health and as a way to deal with the stress and anxiety of living in a global pandemic. I started with the Couch-to-5K app to get myself used to running. I completed that program pretty quickly by mid-April and then was just running when I felt like it but was struggling with staying motivated.

A friend of mine challenged me to run-every-day (a minimum of a mile a day) through the Fourth of July as a way to set a running goal. I started that challenge on April 30, 2020. I've run every day since. Some days are longer runs; some are shorter runs. I've run through illnesses, injuries, travel, and a major move. I've changed jobs and cities but have continued to maintain my streak.

Hitting my two-year mark is just one more goal in a series of goals now. I still struggle with defining myself as a runner but I have definitely gone from someone who hated running to someone who excitedly looks forward to her run every day. Now that I've achieved my two-year goal, it is time to start working towards the next milestone!

CRAIG WHITFIELD'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

On May 1st, I completed 6 years of my runstreak. Typically, I run 2 to 3 miles per day, interspersed with a few long runs from time to time. This last year, I started employing a plant-based diet which has helped my running immensely. Running is a gift, and I am grateful to remain upright.

JULIA MUEHLENBEIN'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

The streak started as a 10-day challenge for me. I ran through wind, rain, snow and sun, in high and very low temperatures. Sometimes slow, sometimes faster. Some days it took long to get the shoes on, some days I couldn't wait to get out and run.

Keep on running.

JACQUELINE WRIGHT'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I'm so excited to have reach year 2 of running every day! I started over Covid (classic) and have since run 1 organized 1/2 marathon and 1 organized full marathon and many other miles in between.

My family also started run streaks after me. Looking forward to a half marathon this weekend.

I am a 40-year old mother of 3 from Spring, TX. I began running only a couple years ago after a big lifestyle change, then I got hooked! What started out as an attempt to run around the block, has turned into a running streak! After about one year of running I decided to start a run streak to help myself become more consistent, now over a year in, it has become a part of life. I hope to be able to continue running into old age, as long as I can!

CLAIRE DOAK'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I started my streak by doing the 5k a day in May challenge in 2020 (although I had run a couple of days before already so that's when my streak date starts) and then someone suggested running every day in June, then the same again in July, then I was close to 100 days.... Then something else, then something else.... And there will always be another target to chase! I'm so proud to be at my 2-year mark and hope to continue for as long as I can!

LIZ FERGUSON'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

My name is Liz and I just am celebrating my run streak run-niversary! 8 years strong!

My minimum run to be counted for streak purposes is 2 miles but I love distance so I usually end up running 7-10 on most days with a long run of 13-22 on weekends.

This year I did Rim 2 Rim in the Grand Canyon, completed the 24-hour Yeti Challenge (Running 5.25 miles every 4 hours for 24 hours), ran 3 marathons, and few team relays, and enjoyed all the miles on the roads, trails, treadmills.

Other things I enjoy are watching my 2 kids in all their sports, baking, swimming, (Texas is hot) and teaching classes at an indoor running fitness studio. Thanks for the support!

Looking forward to all the miles ahead!

TOBIAS RINGSTROM'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

My wife got me into runstreak 2 years ago. She was watching a tv program called "Sverige springer" (Sweden runs) and they challenged all the viewers to do a 30-day run streak during May 2020. We tried and got hooked, 30 day turned to 60, 90, and so on!

Of course, there were some hard days in the beginning and up to 2-3 months, but that was during our summer here in the middle part of Sweden which made it a bit easier to overcome the hard days.

But something happened after 2-3 months and it became a habit. Of course, there are hard days now and then, especially during our winter with -20 degrees Celsius and a lot of snow but somehow, we managed that as well.

My wife stopped her run streak on day 500 and changed to "train every day" but I kept on and my next goal is 1000 days.

My running and training background:

I have been cross country skiing all my life and during summertime I was waterskiing and ended up as Swedish champion in waterskiing, trained a lot in Florida during Swedish winter.

Of course, there was a lot of running training during that time but just for condition training for my skiing career.

Then came work, wife, kids, house, etc. and I was not training so much, just running now and then but something happened 10-11 years ago. I started running more frequently and did the Stockholm Marathon in 2012.

I also did the Swedish classics, that is cross country skiing (Vasaloppet) 90 km, Cycling (Vätternrundan) 300km, swimming (vansbrosimmet) 3 km and finishing with running (Lidingöloppet) 30 km. All of these classic races should be done during the same year to count as "Swedish classic."

During this time, I started as an instructor in our gym and had cycling/spinning classes, but when Corona/covid hit and the gym closed it was not so hard for my wife to get me into run streak.

Right now, it just feels so good to run every day. Of course, there are some bad days, but the feeling afterwards is so great. My health has improved and my body is feeling better than ever. Of course, I do some gym training as well now and then.

SANJAY THAKOR'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Chasing the Gump Holy Grail of 1172 consecutive runs to 17th July. I initially commenced on the May 2020 with a 7-day 5K streak to see how many days I could make.

Each 5K run is still as painstaking as the first. From grit jumping into your ankle socks, cuts from falls, a swarm of flying ants, dodging melting snow men, pedestrians, dog walkers, the knee twinges, shooting heel pain to gasping for air and silencing the voice of reason I push forward, chest out, heals up, lean forward and calibrating rhythm of each breath.

Carving run time out of my busy teaching schedules and home life commitments, lockdowns and uncertainty of reverting back to normal life - throwing myself out there in any weather, any season, any time morning noon or night. Just another run stealing back my time and control over my life. Sometimes 6, 7, 8, 10K reaching a spontaneous 22K and reverting back to 5K the next day.

Each day I step out, step up, and GO. Leaving the stress behind, clearing my mind, shedding pounds and chiseling my legs with each step. Running alone with my thoughts strengthening my focus on the important things in life. Dry chapped lips, nose dripping, sweat poring, clothes clinging, laces loosening - every reason to give up. Compounded with the sun beating down, heavy rain, morning frost, icy path or battling head winds - easy to give in and just stop. Extending my run streak and pushing my personal best time drives me forward one step at a time.

Every run and all my stats (PBs) are on Runkeeper.

I am on Day 522 of my running streak [message dated 12 May 2022]! Out of curiosity, I googled the longest streak for women and that is how I found out about USRSA. I began my running streak in December of 2020 when a local running store was offering prizes for a month-long streak. After completing the month, I figured I might as well try for a one-year streak. Now I'm hooked and plan to streak until I die!

My running really improved when I started streaking and I am getting PR's in every distance in my 40's, which is very encouraging. My 5k PR is 21:43 and my half-marathon PR is 1:48.26. I have been thinking about doing a marathon, but I am not quite there yet. Right now, I'm running 35-40 miles a week.

RODMAN GILARDI'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 3,457 DAYS

As we all know, streaking is hard. It is hard on the mind and it can be hard on the body.

I started running when my first child was about six months old. I was way overweight and rolling around on the floor with her would make me out of breath. After a few months of running, I found that I was running less each week and figured I would start a streak to force me to run more often. This became an obsession. I LOVED it. I LOVED running. Distances increased, weight decreased, speed increased and I was having a blast.

Then tragedy struck my family. A horrific thing took place that I struggled to get out of my head. When running it was all that I obsessed about. I found that I couldn't run more than one mile and that I would usually start crying at some point in that mile. But I pushed on and continued to run. The mental pain hasn't gone away but it definitely dulled. This caused my streak to suffer for many years.

I have struggled mentally to get out and get the bare minimum done. Over the last 7 years I have mostly done one mile runs complaining to myself the whole time. After the run I would feel great and then regret that I hadn't gone further. Next the weight started to pile back on, I grew larger than I have ever been and running started to become a struggle. Then over the last few months my feet started to hurt. Pain to walk, pain to run. I tried new shoes (both running and every day wear). Nothing seemed to help.

I took a good long hard look at my mental and physical state and decided that something had to change, so I started to increase my run distance. Mentally I never felt better but physically my feet were feeling worse. It was at this time I decided to take a day off of running.

Over the last week I have taken three days off and run between each day. My mental health has stayed good and my physical health is improving. I am going to continue to focus on both the mental and physical healing that needs to be done. Increasing my run distance and giving my feet time to heal. Once I feel better both mentally and physically I plan on starting a new streak.

I have inserted a photo of me and my wife Christina finishing a race a few years back. This race was the only race run after the tragedy all those years ago. And we both struggled to get through it. I want to get back the feelings I had when I started streaking and the running was awesome, so a little R&R and some healing will be done. Afterwards....

I will be back.

KERI DAVIS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

What started out as a Runner's World magazine challenge in May 2020 has turned into a two-year achievement! I log my miles and did a little over 26 more miles in year two than year one. It's funny how running every day has turned into a habit. I love the support and the social media posts of others in this community.

My favorite runs are those I do with my teen son, and those on new trails. This year I was lucky to run on the south rim of the Grand Canyon in the snow! I hope year three brings me some running in Hawaii and Chicago.

On to my comma day now.

Two years complete! When I began this streak I never imagined that it would last long term. Now, here I am 2 years later having run at least one mile outside every day for a total of 1889.04 miles accumulated.

The hardest miles for me are undoubtedly those the day after an ultra. The feeling of accomplishment is pretty amazing though.

The streak has become a truly meaningful part of my daily routine and I love that it has helped me become a better runner. I look forward to seeing just how far I go. Happy streaking!

Celebrating 2 years today [14 May 2022]. The runstreak concept has suited me extremely well. It has turned an occasional runner into a runner.

Slowjogger is my middle name, because I don't care about speed anymore. I have realized that consistency, endurance and overall health is much more important to me. I do find an extra challenge in outdoor jogging all year, regardless of weather conditions which sometimes have been below -30 C.

Have no intention of stopping now, and no defined end goal. Will keep on jogging for a third year, inspired by all amazing runstreakers out there. Keep up the good work!

MELODY DIEHL'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Year 5 of streaking brought a lot of podiums and recovery to a healthier life. (4) different 50km's brought (2) 3rd place females, (1) 2nd place female, and (1) overall female! Death at DuPuis - Last One Standing Backyard Event, held back in February, brought about another sub-24-hour 100 miler and the "Assist" to the winner.

Struggling with an eating disorder for many years, I finally was able to have a breakthrough of taking back my health and my life a few months ago and it has been both incredible and hard. To let go of people and things that were causing me to not take care of myself, to gaining even more incredible people who fight for me and not against me, has been empowering and supportive beyond belief.

The upcoming year holds a lot of promise! I am competing in another Backyard Event May 28, Capital Backyard, which is the silver ticket event into Big's Backyard, the USA championship Backyard event held in October. 3 weeks after, I am finally getting to run the Tahoe 200-mile race that was cancelled back in September 2021 due to the Caldor fires. An extra 10 months of training has been vital and I feel ready to go and conquer!

Later in the year, I will be competing in the Barkley Fall Classic, the Pinhoti 100, and the Sandspur 50k.

I haven't decided what 2023 will bring, but there are ideas swirling in the back of my head for a bright racing schedule ahead!

MARIA SMITH'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Today [18 May 2022] is my two-year anniversary of my run streak, which is something that I am proud of.

Two years ago, I was going through acute disenfranchised grief (which is grief that is not always understood or accepted by society). I was losing one of the most significant relationships I've had in my life, and I was about to see this person for possibly the last time. I knew due to the circumstances and role that this relationship had in my life, that my grief would get worse before it got better. I made a promise to myself that I would get up and try running every day, no matter how hard things felt.

For over a year that was often grieving every day in my car before my run, on harder days, pausing my run for a moment of grief, and then keep going.

Running has helped me overcome some really big obstacles in my life, this being one of them. The streak is more than just running every day for the last two years, it's the why, and all that I've overcome.

Here is some background for your newsletter. I enjoyed writing it. I'm not the world's most prolific racer or the fastest guy out there. I just like the time on the road.

- I ran cross country in junior high and high school. I took 4 years off in college to enjoy fraternity life. It was a good trade-off.
- My streak started with training for a Boston Marathon. I ran every day for 90 days. The day after the race I went for a 1 mile run to recuperate and thought, "I wonder if I can run for 100 days..." After that, I asked myself if I could run until the end of the year. That's how it started.
- I have run 13 marathons including 6 Bostons.
- My best Marathon was Baystate in 2005. I ran 3:20:54 and qualified for Boston by 6 seconds.

- My favorite marathon was the one I ran with my adult daughter in 2017.
- My favorite PR is my half at Manchester City (NH) where I ran 1:31:00

AIMEE PAROW’S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I started my first streak in 2017 trying to beat fellow stalker and now my husband, Ramon “Mario” Medina, in a steps challenge. That streak ended at 356 days. I’ll never regret stopping as the reason was a complicated pregnancy that resulted in our now 3-year-old daughter, Layla.

As a pediatrician, it’s basically a given that I contract just about every virus that goes around. As an asthmatic, I’ve learned to run through these illnesses which often affect my breathing. When both Layla and I contracted COVID in March of 2020, breathing was a major issue for both of us. The next month was the most stressful of my career with New York City entirely gripped by COVID. I knew that I needed a consistent stress release. A month to the day after we had COVID, with my breathing still not back to normal, I started my streak again. I lost my grandfather the following month and dedicated “5K Every Day in May” to him and ran 100 miles that month with 1 mile for every year he was smiling on this earth.

The last 2 years have brought lots of challenges with many losses balanced by unimaginable gains. My streak has shown me that I am stronger than I think, but, more importantly, it has shown Layla how strong her Mommy is. She is growing up with both parents running every day and goes on many of our runs in her jogging stroller. Layla often requests to run on the track with Mommy when I go out for a run and has even run several of her own races. I’m not sure how long I’ll continue running every day, but I know I will continue to set the best example for Layla that I can.

These past seven years of running have flown by. This past year wasn’t my highest mileage year, but it was my fastest as I worked my way towards new PRs.

After qualifying for Boston with my time in January 2020, I finally got to run the race this April. The expo and race more than met my expectations and I can’t wait to get back and run it again in the future.

I have run 18,787.6 miles during my streak for a total of 2,413 hours 12 min and 40 seconds which comes out to an average pace of 7:42.

I’m looking forward to tomorrow when year 8 begins!

DOUG DIXON'S STREAK HITS 18 YEARS

Today I am celebrating 18 years of continuous running. I was fortunate to have run with my daughter Laura and her husband Doug, and my two grandsons Henry and Charlie. And after we spent some time feeding the horses.

My streak started on May 23, 2004, the day my best friend was diagnosed with a brain tumour. I told him I would continue to run each day until he recovered. Unfortunately, he died 45 days later. My pledge to him is a lifelong pledge. He lives on with me in every stride.

In the past year I was fortunate enough to run two Boston Marathons. In October of 2021 and most recently in April of 2022. Running that last Gauntlet of Love down Boylston Street is an emotional nirvana. I look forward to being back in Boston. She is my Spring time commitment.

Life teaches us purpose and dedication and a will to accomplish anything in life if we so choose. So when you think you cannot do....just do....for you can."

I'm thrilled to have completed two years in my run streak! It started with a sorority sister/Facebook friend recommending the Memorial Day to 4th of July streak in 2020. Stuck at home in the first months of the pandemic, I thought I'd give it a go as a motivator to get up and out every day. And it's addictive! It's my me time, my nature time, my moving meditation...

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

As a college history professor, I spend a significant amount of my professional life researching and discussing wars of the past. As the manager of our running streak association, I was curious to learn whether the recent war in Ukraine had impacted any of our streak runners. Given my dual roles in history and running, I reached out to the eight (now nine) streak runners from Ukraine on our list to see how they and their families were doing after war broke out in their country in late February.

My original email was sent to the Ukrainian streak runners on February 27th. At the time, all the streaks from that country were still on our active list. Not surprising given the crisis in their country, I did not hear back from all eight but I did hear back from half of them. The first Ukrainian athlete to contact me was Makasym Susiak to tell me that his streak had ended due to the war. "My streak was interrupted after 517 days," wrote Mr. Susiak in an email dated 27 February 2022. "Unfortunately, 518 days I could not go for a run because it was very dangerous and we had a curfew. I wanted to continue my streak to 1000 days, but very disappointed that it broke up!" I also heard from Artur Snigir, from Ukraine's capital of Kyiv, whose streak also ended due to the war: "I ran 23.02 [February 23] last time. I can't run yet. It's not safe."

Despite the difficulties that all Ukrainian's faced in recent months, not all the athletes from that country ended their streak. One amazing runner who maintained her streak so far during the war is Viktoriia Nikolainko, who we feature on our cover. Ms. Nikolaienko not only has a running streak of over 1,500 days but is also an elite ultra-runner and the national record holder of Ukraine for 24-hour running and Backyard Ultra. We wish her and all Ukrainians safety and we hope that peace is restored to their country soon.

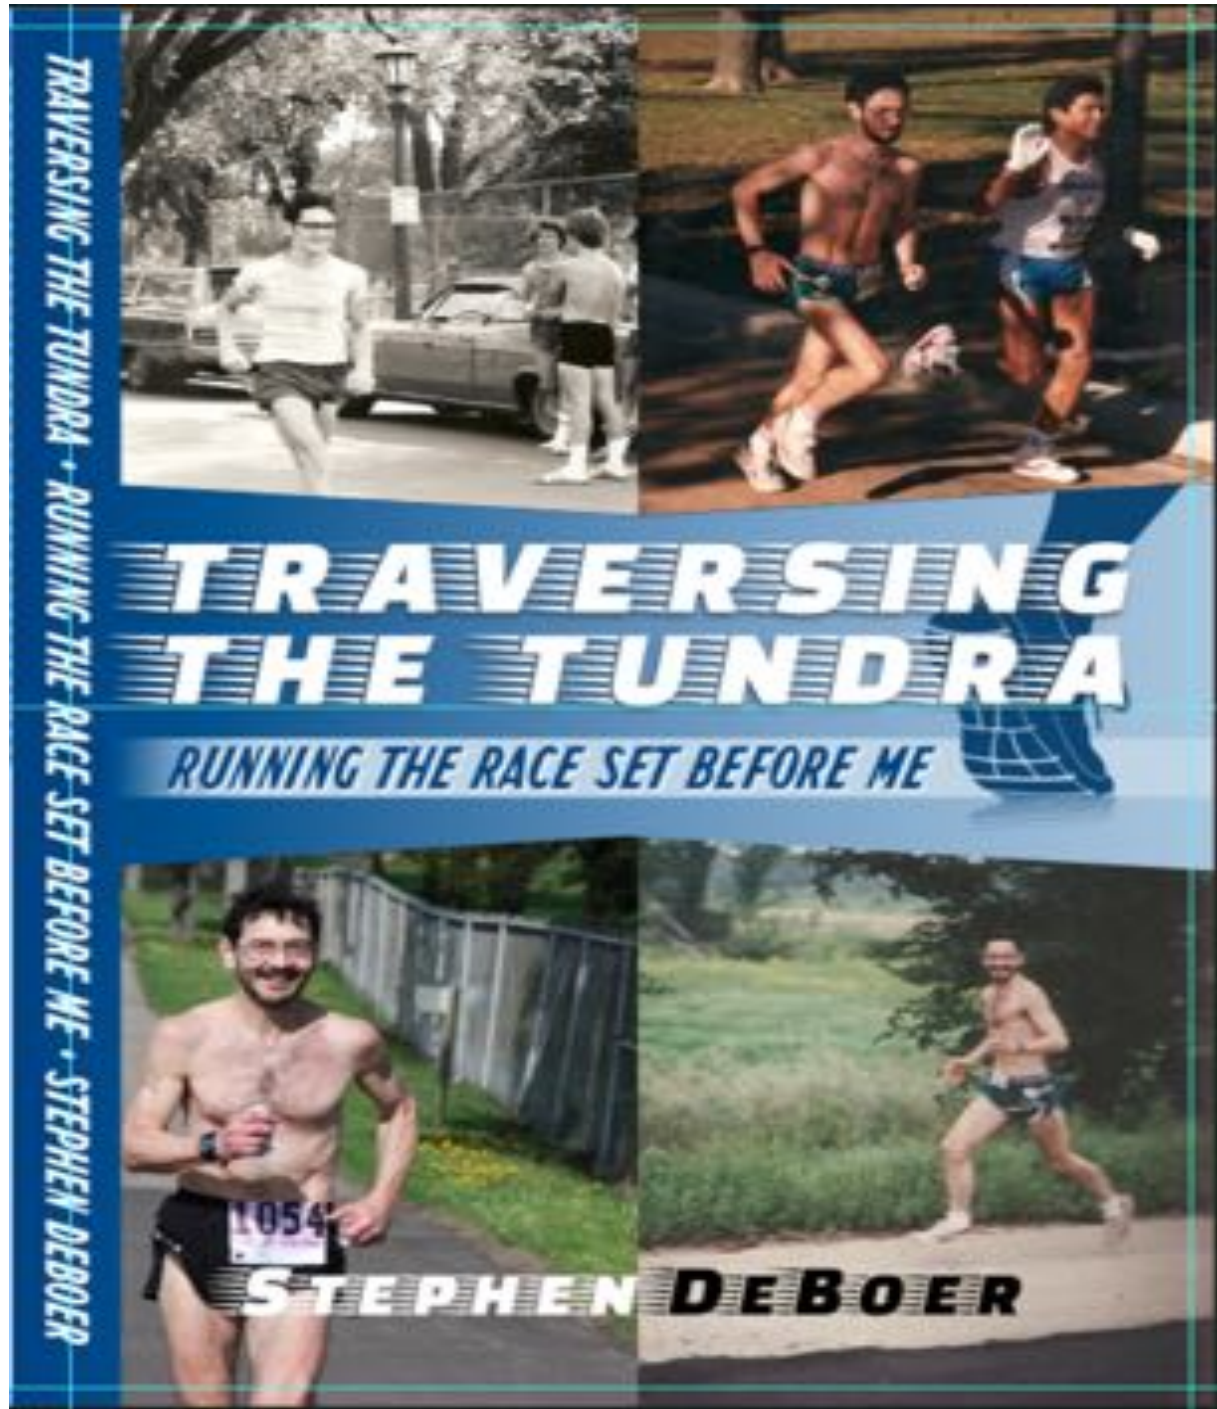

During this last quarter, we also learned that streak runner Diana Nelson, from Dixon, Illinois, passed away on 12 February 2022 at the age of 75. Started on 11 January 1982 and ended on 2 October 2007, Ms. Nelson's first streak lasted 9,396 days (25.72 years) and is now listed as the 6th longest retired female streak in the world. Shortly after her first streak ended, she began a second streak on 19 November 2007 but we do not know when it ended. If anyone knows the last day she ran during her second streak or knows of a family member or friend who might know, we would be most grateful if you tell us so that we can accurately record her second streak for our list.

Like many of you, I have returned to in-person racing after being confined to virtual races during much of the pandemic. So far in 2022, I have competed in 8 races with a half dozen more scheduled for the end of May and June. My 2022 highlight was finishing my 18th consecutive Boston Marathon on April 18th. Unfortunately, getting Covid in January put a dent in my training and the result was my slowest Boston Marathon by over 20 minutes. I have already qualified for the 2023 Boston Marathon so my fingers are crossed I have a better result next year.

Besides running, racing and teaching, I also flew to Illinois this quarter to be part of a big birthday celebration. On May 11th, my mother, LaVerne O'Toole Washburne, celebrated her 100th birthday. Happy Birthday Mom! As always, I wish all of you good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!
