Company Profile

Church & Dwight Co., Inc., founded in 1846, is the leading U.S. producer of sodium bicarbonate, popularly known as baking soda, a natural product that cleans, deodorizes, leavens and buffers. The Company's ARM & HAMMER brand is one of the nation's most trusted trademarks for a broad range of consumer and specialty products developed from the base of bicarbonate and related technologies.

Church & Dwight's consumer products business is organized into two segments: Consumer Domestic, which encompasses both household and personal care products, and Consumer International, which primarily consists of personal care products. About half of the Company's U.S. consumer products are sold under the ARM & HAMMER brand name and derivative trademarks, such as ARM & HAMMER DENTAL CARE Toothpaste and ARM & HAMMER SUPER SCOOP Clumping Cat Litter.

In 2001, Church & Dwight expanded its household products business with the acquisition of the laundry brands XTRA and NICE'n FLUFFY, as part of the acquisition of USA Detergents, Inc.

Later that year, Church & Dwight acquired the consumer products business of Carter-Wallace, Inc., purchasing the ARRID Antiperspirant and LAMBERT KAY Pet Care brands outright, and the remainder of the business, including such brands as TROJAN Condoms, NAIR Depilatories and FIRST RESPONSE Home Pregnancy and Ovulation Test Kits, through Armkel LLC, a 50/50 joint venture with a private equity company. In May 2004, Church & Dwight acquired the 50% interest in Armkel that it did not already own, and merged Armkel into Church & Dwight.

In 2003, the Company acquired the former Unilever oral care business in the United States and Canada, comprising the MENTADENT, PEPSODENT and AIM Toothpaste brands, and exclusive licensing rights to CLOSE-UP Toothpaste. Late in 2005, the Company expanded its oral care business with the acquisition of the SPINBRUSH battery-powered toothbrush business from Procter & Gamble.

These acquisitions more than doubled the Company's sales. The combination of the core ARM & HAMMER brands and the acquired businesses makes Church & Dwight one of the leading consumer packaged goods companies in the United States.

Church & Dwight's third major business segment is Specialty Products. This business is a leader in specialty inorganic chemicals, animal nutrition, and specialty cleaners.

A chart of major Church & Dwight products appears on pages 10 and 11 of this Report.

ZVI EIREF Vice President Finance and Chief Financial Officer

JAMES R. CRAIGIE President and Chief Executive Officer

SUSAN E. GOLDY Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary

Dear Fellow Shareholder:

When I joined Church & Dwight in June of 2004, I felt extremely fortunate to become part of a Company with a long and distinguished history in the consumer packaged goods industry. I also inherited an experienced and successful management team to help me continue to build upon the Company's impressive long-term record, delivering a return to stockholders of around 13% a year over the last 30 years, almost twice that of the S&P 500 index.

Little did I know that my first full year as the Company's Chief Executive Officer would be impacted by the unforeseeable challenge of an unprecedented increase in material and transportation costs. The dramatic increase in oil prices, exacerbated by the Gulf Coast hurricanes last fall, led to significant commodity price increases that raised the cost of producing and shipping all of our products, particularly in the laundry category, which is our largest business.

Fortunately, the Company already had in place an aggressive cost savings program that was able to offset part of the margin impact of the commodity price increases. We also implemented price increases on some of our products and improved the efficiency of our marketing spending to reduce some of the impact of the higher cost of goods. In a year with normal cost inflation, these actions would have delivered the kind of significant margin improvement for the Company that we achieved in 2003 and 2004. However, the magnitude of the commodity cost increases in 2005 was so high that we were unable to fully offset their gross margin impact within the year.

While the Company's gross margin was unfavorably impacted by the commodity price increases, we were able to more than offset the lower margins with higher revenues, lower financing costs and lower taxes.

As a result, I am pleased to report that your Company achieved another solid year of earnings growth in 2005:

- Church & Dwight sales were $1,737 million on a GAAP basis, a 19% increase over the previous year. Contributing to this increase was a full year of sales of the Armkel business, which were included in our consolidated results after we acquired the 50% interest we did not own previously in May 2004. Combined sales for the Company and its unconsolidated affiliates were $1,787 million, a 5% increase over the previous year's $1,702 million.

- Net income was $122.9 million, or $1.83 per share, an increase of $0.47 per share or 35% over the previous year's $88.8 million or $1.36 per share. Last year's results include accounting charges of $0.30 per share related to the Armkel acquisition and the early redemption of debt. Excluding these charges, the year's net income of $1.83 per share would have been $0.17 per share or 10% higher than the previous year's adjusted $1.66 per share.
- At year-end, the Company's total debt minus cash was $630 million, a decrease of $83 million from the Company's net debt position at December 31, 2004. This result includes the Company's investment of about $80 million in acquisitions and $15 million in proceeds received from the sale of two manufacturing facilities.

In addition, we took several key steps during the year which position the Company for continued strong business growth in 2006. These include the closure of two small foreign manufacturing facilities in 2005 and other steps which will improve our margin structure, the refinancing of our bank debt to lower our interest costs, and the acquisition of the Crest® SpinBrush business which will contribute revenues and profits in 2006.

Setting the Stage for Future Growth

Church & Dwight has undergone a substantial transformation in the past decade largely as a result of three major acquisitions which doubled the size of the total Company, created a well balanced portfolio of household and personal care businesses, and established a much larger international business. Looking forward, my top priority as the CEO is to define a vision and strategy that will enable the Company to build upon this successful foundation to continue to deliver superior returns to our shareholders.

The Company's new vision captures what Church & Dwight has stood for in consumers' minds for the past 160 years. We want to provide consumers with products for healthier living. The Company's heritage came from the pure, safe and natural benefits of baking soda which can be used in many different ways by consumers to improve their lives. Today, the Company's businesses extend across many categories including products that provide odor free homes, oral hygiene, clean clothes, safe and longer lasting hair removal, body odor control, prevention of unwanted pregnancies and sexual diseases, pregnancy monitoring, animal nutrition, kidney dialysis, nasal hygiene, feminine hygiene and non-volatile cleaning solutions. In every case, our products provide consumers with opportunities for healthier living and we are committed to continue to do just that as we expand our existing businesses or acquire new businesses.

We are equally committed to continue delivering superior returns to our shareholders. To do this in an environment that is highly competitive and facing continued inflationary pressures, we must have or build a strong portfolio of brands with sustainable competitive advantages.

BUILDING A PORTFOLIO OF STRONG BRANDS WITH SUSTAINABLE COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGES REQUIRES A RELENTLESS FOCUS ON SIX KEY AREAS:

First, we must improve brand positioning in each of our businesses to ensure that our brands stay relevant to consumers. We must understand what the consumer wants, design our products to fulfill those needs, and clearly communicate with the consumer through the media used by consumers. We must also do this in the most efficient and effective manner. Improved brand positioning has played a key role in the recent significant growth of several of our core businesses including cat litter, liquid laundry detergents, condoms and pregnancy kits. In 2006, there will be many initiatives that continue to improve the positioning of our brands in every category, including a major initiative to unify the marketing of the Arm & Hammer brand, our largest brand, across all of its different forms. This initiative will position the Arm & Hammer brand as a more natural way to care for your family and home via new advertising, public relations, packaging and promotions.

Second, we must accelerate new product development to continue to provide consumers with new and improved products that meet the ever changing needs of consumers. We will utilize both internal and external resources to identify, design and commercialize products that delight consumers. To that end, we have already announced a series of innovative new products, which will be supported by strong marketing programs, in every one of our major product categories.

Our laundry product line will be enhanced by the relaunch of Arm & Hammer Perfume and Dye Free laundry detergent. This reformulated product will have the same powerful cleaning power as regular Arm & Hammer detergent but will have more rinse agents than any competitive product to appeal to the growing population of consumers with sensitive skin. In addition, new and innovative products for the pet and deodorizing categories are planned for the second and third quarters.

In the personal care area, the Company will launch several new products:

- The Nair line of depilatory products will see a major relaunch of its core lotion line with a significant improvement of aesthetics and fragrances.
- In the condom category, we will continue to be the innovation leader with the introduction of Trojan “Ultra Thin,” the thinnest condom available in the market for those users who desire increased sensitivity without any compromise in protection.
- The First Response brand, which is the fastest growing pregnancy kit brand over the past several years, will launch a new product called “Rapid Results” which will tell consumers whether they are pregnant faster than competitive products.
- Our oral care business will also benefit from new product launches including Mentadent Advanced Whitening System which promises whiter teeth in 7 days.

In addition to launching our own new products, the Company is stepping up its licensing efforts to support the launch of new products by other companies. This will leverage the benefits of our brands and technologies into other categories where we lack the competitive strength to successfully compete, while reinforcing consumer awareness of our brands.

These are just a few examples of the innovative new products being launched in 2006 to accelerate the Company’s organic revenue growth. While we are pleased with this new line-up of products, our goal is to develop and launch more new products at a faster rate in the future to keep up with the demands of our consumers and to stay a step ahead of our competitors.

Third, we will strive to deliver significant improvement in gross margins through cost improvement programs, more efficient trade spending and a tight control of overhead spending. The Company has a proven track record in this area and we are using outside consultants to ensure that we have in place the best practices in every link of the supply chain. In 2006, we have also announced price increases across businesses representing about 35% of our total revenue base to recapture part of the significant increase in commodity costs. The combined impact of these actions is expected to reverse the gross margin decline incurred in 2005. These activities will also lay the groundwork for future gross margin improvement in 2007 and 2008.

It should be noted that the pricing actions taken in 2006 are expected to have an unfavorable impact on organic revenue growth as consumers usually have some “sticker shock” when they first see higher prices. This is expected to result in lower organic revenue growth in 2006 than the strong 4% levels achieved in 2004 and 2005. The Company expects that organic revenue growth will return to a higher level again in 2007.

The fourth major element of our new vision is to increase the global leverage of our businesses through expanding our core categories into markets where we currently sell our products, and into large emerging markets; developing global marketing campaigns to efficiently increase organic growth; and globalizing our supply chain to lower costs. Our recent acquisitions have given us a stronger platform internationally and we now need to leverage our marketing and operational scale across that platform to achieve more profitable growth.

The fifth major leg of our new vision is to continue to create value through acquisitions. Church & Dwight has a proven record as a consolidator in the consumer packaged goods business. Our acquisitions have created great value for our shareholders in recent years. We will continue to pursue acquisitions, preferably in core categories and geographies, that bolster our portfolio with #1 or #2 brands or businesses in a defensible niche. In that regard, we were very pleased with the recent acquisition of the Crest® SpinBrush business which enhanced our oral care portfolio with a leading brand in the battery-powered toothbrush segment.

Finally, the most important element of our vision is to ensure that the Company has superior leadership and functional excellence. Without this, the other elements of the vision will not realize their maximum potential. I consider the creation of this type of work culture to be my most important responsibility after leading the development of the Company's vision. This involves upgrading the leadership skills and functional expertise across all functions and ensuring their commitment to the Company's vision. Since becoming the CEO of the Company, new leaders have been recruited to several key functions including Marketing, Sales, Strategy and Research & Development.

Outlook

Our long-term objective is to maintain the Company's track record, and continue to achieve sustained earnings growth, which we currently define as 10 – 12% earnings per share growth on an organic basis excluding acquisitions.

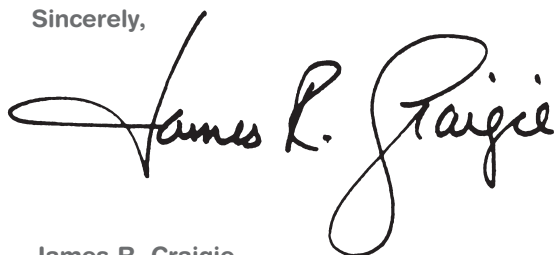

Our long-term business model for delivering this sustained earnings growth is based on prudent management, including solid organic revenue growth, improved gross margins, tight management of our overhead costs, and lower financing costs. In 2006, we expect to achieve a substantial increase in gross margin via cost reduction programs and pricing actions that we are implementing.

While we achieved strong organic revenue growth of over 4% in 2004 and 2005, we expect the 2006 pricing actions to result in lower organic growth despite innovative new products being launched across every key category. In addition, our 2006 plan contemplates reinvestment in marketing and R&D to fuel long-term organic growth.

I am particularly pleased with the Board's support for the Company's new vision. In this regard, I am grateful for the continued support of my predecessor, Robert A. Davies, III, who continues as our Chairman. Bob's unwavering support has greatly enhanced my ability to evolve the Company's strategy to support continued strong growth upon the solid foundation that he created.

I look forward to communicating with you on these efforts at the Annual Stockholders Meeting and throughout the year.

Sincerely,

Cautionary note on forward-looking statements:

This annual report contains forward-looking statements relating, among others, to short- and long-term financial objectives, growth prospects, product initiatives and development, new product introductions, gross margin improvements, organic revenue growth and acquisitions. These statements represent the intentions, plans, expectations and beliefs of the Company, and are subject to risks, uncertainties and other factors, many of which are outside the Company's control and could cause actual results to differ materially from such forward-looking statements. The uncertainties include assumptions as to market growth and consumer demand (including the effect of political and economic events on consumer demand), raw material, packaging and energy prices, the Company's ability to raise prices or reduce selling, general and administrative costs or improve operating margins, the Company's ability to implement cost reduction programs in response to commodity price increases, the financial condition of major customers, the risks of currency fluctuations, changes in foreign laws and other risks associated with our international operations and trade, and the Company's ability to identify and successfully integrate acquisition candidates. With regard to the new product introductions and product initiatives referred to in this report, there is particular uncertainty relating to trade, competitive and consumer reactions. Other factors, which could materially affect the results, include the outcome of contingencies, including litigation, pending regulatory proceedings, environmental remediation and the divestiture of assets. For a description of additional cautionary statements, see the Company's quarterly and annual reports filed with the SEC.

The Company undertakes no obligation to publicly update any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise. You are advised, however, to consult any further disclosures the Company makes on related subjects in its filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.
