PREFACE

The purpose of this little pocket manual is to provide an unerring and infallible guide to that vast army of workers which is engaged in catering to the public from behind bars of the countless "hotels," "buffets," and "Clubs" of every description throughout the English-speaking world and on the Continent.

In this new edition there is much of added interest, due to the collaboration of the well known caricaturist Wynn, and the "Around the Town" columnist of the New York Herald, Paris, Arthur Moss.

There have been a number of handbooks published containing instructions for the mixing of drinks, etc., but such works are not adaptable by reason of their cumbersome proportions. They are left lying around on shelves and in odd places, rarely are they readily accessible, and often they cannot be found at all when wanted. This pocket Cocktail guide, which the author most unqualifiedly recommends as the best and only one which has ever been written to fill every requirement, contains about 300 recipes for all kinds of modern cocktails and mixed drinks, together with appropriate toasts and valuable hints and instructions relating to the bar business in all its details, and which, if faithfully studied, will enable the veriest novice in the business to become an expert mixer and a thoroughly competent bar-tender in a remarkably short time.

The work is also an excellent guide for private individuals — ladies and gentlemen who entertain in their homes — as ample and explicit directions for making and serving these delicious beverages are given. Stewards of clubs, dining-car managers, and butlers in private families, and all those who cater to the exclusive classes, will find this work an almost indispensable aid to them in the performance of their duties. The merit and honour involved in any occupation — with all that this assertion implies — lies wholly in the conscientious and intelligent manner in which the duties of that occupation are discharged. In recent years the bar business, keeping pace with other departments of commercial enterprise to which our growing and complex civilization has given impetus, has developed into a profession requiring the highest order of scientific skill to ensure success. To all those engaged in the dispensing of liquors, who are ambitious to elevate their business to the very highest plane of excellence, this pocket guide will appeal with greater force after they shall have examined its contents and realized the full extent of its usefulness and value. Prompted more by a desire to confer a lasting benefit upon fellow-workers in the great art of mixing drinks than from any business consideration, this little work is most confidently entrusted to the kindly consideration and the fair and impartial judgment of the profession by the author, late of Plaza, New York ; Casino Municipal, Enghien, and Nice ; and of Ciro's London and Deauville, now proprietor of Harry's New York Bar, 5, Rue Daunou, Paris.

HARRY McELHONE.

While there are really few rules by which a bar-tender may be governed, yet the new man in the business ought to have some sort of a guide, so that he can conduct himself in a manner that will do credit to the establishment and give satisfaction to the customer. He should be polite, prompt, and attentive at all times, and never lose his temper under any circumstances. It is important that he should always be cheerful and answer all questions put to him in as intelligent a manner as possible. He should be cheerful and amicable at all times, and try and memorize his clients' names, as it always pleases the clients when he remembers them and their particular kind of beverage.

Above all things, it is necessary that he should be well and neatly dressed, without show, and while on the subject of dressing, it might as well be mentioned that nothing is better or more appropriate than a white bar-jacket and white apron, spotlessly clean. Assume, now, that a customer has stepped up to the bar. Inquire as to his wants. If it is a mixed drink prepare it above the counter as expeditiously as possible. Do all the work in plain view, for there is nothing to conceal, and do it as it ought to be done, without any attempt at unusual elaboration. Above all things be neat. See that the glasses are brightly polished and that everything that is used to prepare the drink is perfectly clean. If there is no rush, attend to the customer until he has finished drinking and left the bar. Then the bar should be immediately and thoroughly cleaned and it will not have the untidy and sloppy appearance for which too many places are noted. Also clean the glasses and put them back where they belong, so as to have them ready for the next time used. During your daily work don't overlook the bar bench, but keep it neat and in good working order. Too much attention cannot be paid to this part of the bar, and a good bar-tender can always be told by the way his bench looks.

Bar-tending may, to the man who knows nothing about it, seem a very simple matter; but like everything, study is required to become an expert. Of course this is leaving the mixing of drinks entirely out of consideration; what is referred to now is the act of waiting upon a customer so that there will be no hitch of any kind, nor any misunderstanding. The successful barman of to-day is alert, bright, cheerful, courteous, speaks when spoken to, or only so far as a query concerning the drink, is clean and neat in dress and makes no unnecessary display of jewellery.

To be abrupt, insolent, to talk too much, or to be slovenly in appearance is a positive detriment, and is inexcusable.

When mixed drinks are called for, they should be mixed above the counter and in full view of the customer. There should be no mistakes and no accidents, as at that particular time they are inexcusable, everything should be done neatly and with despatch. Nine men out of ten should be served quickly and without any unnecessary fuss. Remember that perfect service is half the game; after the drinks have been served and paid for and change delivered, the debris should be immediately cleared away and the bar wiped dry. Bear in mind that a place for everything will save a lot of time, trouble and confusion, especially behind the bar, and no rush should interfere with this system. This especially applies to the working bench.

The really good bar-tender is the man who has the ability of suiting and pleasing his customer; who recognises that there are several grades of cocktails: mild, medium and strong, and observes any suggestions which may be made concerning them. There are a certain number of men behind the bar, who think they know it all, and who turn out drinks irrespective of the individual taste of the men most to be considered — those who pay for them and drink them. It will not take a good bar-tender long to work up a big personal following which may be of great value to him later on if he has a place of his own.

When mixing, the wisest plan for the novice is to pour ingredients in the shaker first and afterwards add the ice, as then a mistake can easily be rectified. Great care should be taken to avoid using snowy ice, which dissolves too quickly and gives the beverage a watery flavour. How to hold your shaker, and strain, is better explained by the sketch on frontispiece and Page 6. As to stirring a cocktail this is done in a large bar glass (pint size) by stirring briskly with a long bar spoon. This practice was not in much use in New York just before America went dry, in fact the only time it is necessary to stir a cocktail is when you are mixing drinks containing an effervescent liquid.

The most practical article for measuring purposes is a "gigger," which used to be in general use in America. The "gigger" is of silver plated metal, cone-shaped at both ends to contain $1/3$ and $2/3$ of liquor, in fact the Gordon Dry Gin Co., Ltd., used to supply a very useful "gigger" a few years ago.

Absinthe Cocktail.

$\frac{2}{3}$ Absinthe, $\frac{1}{6}$ Gin, $\frac{1}{6}$ Syrup of Anisette or Syrup of Gomme, add one dash Orange, one dash Angostura. Shake until frozen, and strain into cocktail glass.

Absinthe Frappé.

$\frac{2}{3}$ Absinthe, $\frac{1}{6}$ Syrup of Anisette, double quantity of water.

Shake up long enough until the outside of the shaker is thoroughly covered with ice. Strain into small tumbler.

Tipperary Cocktail.

1/6 Orange Juice, 1/6 Grenadine, 1/3 Noilly Prat French Vermouth, 1/3 Gordon's Gin, 2 sprigs of Fresh Mint.

Shake well and strain.

Tom and Jerry (Hot).

Use Eggs according to quantity. Take bowls and break up your Eggs very carefully without mixing the yolks with the whites, but have the whites in a separate bowl. Take an egg-beater and beat the whites of the eggs in such a manner that they become a stiff froth, then beat up the yolks until they are as thin as water. Now mix all together, adding one teaspoonful of sugar for each Egg, until the mixture gets the consistency of a light batter. It is necessary to stir up the mixture every little while to prevent the Eggs separating. Use tumbler and take two tablespoonfuls of the above mixture, 1 glass of Brandy, 1 glass of Jamaica Rum. Fill tumbler with hot water, or milk for preference, and stir up well with a spoon, then pour the mixture from one glass to another until all the ingredients are thoroughly mixed together. Grate a little nutmeg on top and serve.

Note : A very popular beverage for Christmas or Birthday Parties.

Tom and Jerry (Cold).

This drink is prepared on the same principle as the Hot Tom and Jerry with the exception of using cold water or cold milk.

Note : Very refreshing and cooling for summer.

Tom Collins.

In a large tumbler put 2 or 3 lumps of Ice, 1 teaspoonful of Sugar, the Juice of 1 Lemon, 1 glass of Old Tom Gin. Fill balance with syphon, stir well, and serve.

Trilby Cocktail.

2 dashes of Absinthe, 2 dashes of Orange Bitters, 1/3 Parfait d'Amour Liqueur, 1/3 Scotch Whisky, 1/3 Italian Vermouth.

Shake well and strain into cocktail glass, with cherry.

Trinity Cocktail.

1/3 French Vermouth, 1/3 Italian Vermouth, 1/3 Gin.

Tropical Cocktail.

1 dash of Angostura, 1 dash of Orange Bitters, 1/3 Crème de Cacao, 1/3 Maraschino, 1/3 French Vermouth.
Stir well, strain into cocktail glass, with cherry.

Turf Cocktail.

2 dashes of Orange Bitters, 2 dashes of Maraschino, 2 dashes of Absinthe, 1/2 French Vermouth, 1/2 Plymouth Gin.

Shake well and strain into cocktail glass with an olive.

Tuxedo Cocktail.

1 dash Maraschino, 1 dash Absinthe, 2 dashes Orange Bitters, 1/2 Sir R. Burnett's Old Tom Gin, 1/2 French Vermouth.

Stir up well with a spoon, strain into cocktail glass, putting in a cherry. Squeeze lemon peel on top.

Twelve-Mile Cocktail.

1/6 Lemon Juice, 1/6 Grenadine, 1/6 Rye Whisky, 1/6 Brandy, 1/3 Bacardi Rum.

Shake well and strain into Cocktail glass.

(Recipe by F. Newman, Paris.)

There is a popular belief that Men-About-Town are all cast from the same mould, that they stem directly from the proverbial peas in the pod. Recently, one of New York's flippant weeklies offered its readers an authoritative portrait of the Man-About-Town; an excellent bit of characterization, only it made the common sociological error of supposing every member of the breed to resemble every other one as closely as did those fabulous pre-war Prussian Guards.

Well, birds of a feather may be judged by their company, or some such thing, but I have never contemplated such human variety as may be found any day at cocktail hour lined up at any well known bar. I don't mean merely differences in tailoring, or even complexion. No, the differences that mark these typical Men-About-Town are more than surface or skin deep. Taste marks the individual. And the variety of tastes exhibited by any group of Men-About-Town has driven many a good bartender to drink. Not only do they clamor for every possible liquid combination; they even invent their own. And when it comes to these individualistic flights of fancy, you'll see that Men-About-Town are by no means as regimented in their likes as are the Gentlemen that prefer Blondes. And if you would like to further test my theory, try downing some of the appended liquid recipes which have been invented by these typical Men-About-Town.

A, coming before age, let's start with the concoction invented by that youthful iron-merchant, Phil Ambler, and which he has given the tidy name of the "Butter-and-

Egg-Man Cocktail." The yolk of an egg, one teaspoonful of sugar, a glass of vodka, and a glass of milk, and Phil says you'll feel like Mr. Eisman did when he first took a slant at Lorelei.

As a jazzband impresario, its only natural for Billy Arnold to take to the "Black Bottom Cooler" which he makes with $\frac{1}{3}$ champagne, $\frac{1}{3}$ coca-cola, and $\frac{1}{3}$ stout, all well-iced.

Now is the time for all good Barflies to come to the aid of the party, since Erskinne Gwynne crashed in with his Boulevardier Cocktail; $\frac{1}{3}$ Campari, $\frac{1}{3}$ Italian vermouth, $\frac{1}{3}$ Bourbon whisky.

Between steps and struts, Harry Cabill tosses off "Syncopation Cocktail;" $\frac{2}{5}$ Brandy, $\frac{1}{5}$ Triple Sec, $\frac{1}{5}$ Calvados, $\frac{1}{5}$ lemon juice, with a dash of bitters.

Tommy Carr, middleweight boxer, presents an innovation in the shape of a temperance tippie. In a large tumbler, drop a lot of ice, and then fill in the empty spaces with coca-cola; and there you have the athletic Tommy's "Santa Monica." He says that's the punch that gives him his.

Wallace Clements offers a "Beach Cocktail;" guaranteed to take that sandy taste out of your mouth: 2 parts grapefruit juice, 2 parts Gordon gin, a teaspoon of maple syrup, and a dash of grenadine, all well frappéed. And so'll you be.

The great author of the thrilling detective-novel, "The Eater of Darkness" Bob Coates, takes his typewriter off his lap, and pounds out the following plot-inspirer; "Murderer's Cocktail;" (asbestos shaker advised), $\frac{1}{3}$ Calvados, $\frac{1}{3}$ Swedish punch, $\frac{1}{3}$ rum, one dash of bitters and two dashes of absinthe. Notice: "Exits should be plainly marked and fire-extinguishers provided at all times when this cocktail is served."

And how does that clever cartoonist, Billy De Beck get his kick? Obviously, from his "Spark Plug Cocktail." As outlined to Barney Google, it consists of $\frac{1}{3}$ Italian vermouth, $\frac{1}{3}$ brandy, and $\frac{1}{3}$ pineapple juice. Giddap!

John W. H. Evans believes in including the Scandina. So he offers a combination of $\frac{1}{3}$ Cointreau, $\frac{1}{3}$ Swedish punch, and $\frac{1}{3}$ Crème de cacao. Skol!

You have to know the intimate history of Hotsy-Totsy Hill, according to Paul Farrell of Montmartre, to appreciate the reason for his "Jo-Jo Cocktail;" $\frac{1}{3}$ Negrita Rum, $\frac{1}{3}$ fresh milk, one teaspoonful of ground chocolate, all well shaken.

Fred and Clif, the Heavenly Twins of the Hilltop, tender visitors to their Artists' Grill the simplest of all recipes: "anything or everything in the house, shaken well, and no more than two glasses at a time."

Strayed far from lower Manhattan, Harry Friend eulogizes the "Park Row Cocktail:" $\frac{1}{3}$ absinthe, $\frac{1}{3}$ rye, $\frac{1}{3}$ marc; then he advises that you go, or be carried to the hay.

The anagrammatic Bill Henly just would think up a "Vowel Cocktail:" Angostura bitters, a dash, Eckau kummel, $\frac{1}{6}$; Italian vermouth, $\frac{1}{3}$; Orange juice, $\frac{1}{6}$; Usher's whiskey, $\frac{1}{3}$.

It looks as though Sid Horner is rattling the bones of his past when he suggests the "Minstrel Cocktail:" $\frac{1}{2}$ bale of hay, small bag of oats, one box of burnt cork; put in a large piece of ice from the Black Sea (or a lump of coal will do), shake well, then throw the contents in the sink, and serve the glass with a smile.

J. W. Janicki, remembering certain things about Sovietland, is all for the "Bolo:" $\frac{1}{2}$ sloe gin, $\frac{1}{2}$ Gordon gin.

Silent Frank Keaney softly whispers his recipe for a gloomy night in the bogs and calls it a "Banshee Cocktail:" $\frac{1}{3}$ Irish whiskey, $\frac{1}{3}$ green mint, $\frac{1}{3}$ Italian vermouth; ochone!

Chuck Kerwood takes to the air so frequently that he likes a stiff steadier when he comes down to earth. The famous flying man calls his concoction the "Burnt Fuselage." And believe me, $\frac{1}{3}$ Grand Marnier, $\frac{1}{3}$ Cognac, and $\frac{1}{3}$ French vermouth, and your own fuselage will be warm, to say the least.

That distinguished scientist, Richard Klegin, has evolved from his giant brain a real killer. "Kleginite," this kamera-fiend kalls it, and it's potent enough to korrekt even a Kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan. Simple, too; $\frac{1}{2}$ Italian vermouth and $\frac{1}{2}$ Japanese sake. Ain't science wonderful?

Pierre Loving pauses a minute in his labor of chronicling the Latin Quarter to explain the mysteries of his own pet punch. For each person; $\frac{1}{3}$ Cinzano, $\frac{1}{6}$ Italian vermouth, $\frac{1}{6}$ port, $\frac{1}{12}$ grenadine, $\frac{1}{12}$ rum. That's the punch that's the life, and death, of the studio party.

Mac plus Alister is the name of the boulevardier who waxes motorish over what he calls a "Gasoline Cocktail." Mac says: "Prime with a liberal dash of Kirsch. Mix with Cassis. Drive off with French vermouth. And brake with gin."

Casting a side glance at the meal-ticket, O. O. McIntyre concocts the "Cosmopolitan:" 1/6 Italian vermouth, 1/6 French vermouth, 1/6 Swedish punch, 1/6 Scotch whiskey, 1/6 Irish whiskey, 1/6 Russian vodka. And then the case containing the corpse is submitted to the League of Nations.

Watchman, what of the morn? Take a tip from J. P. Mitchell. His "Morning After Cocktail" is guaranteed to bring the bloom back to your nose: 1/2 Fernet-Branca, 1/3 Crème de menthe, and 1/6 Cassis.

Mexican Johnny O'Brien brings a breath, as it were, of the Rio Grande. May be all the revolting down there can be traced to Johnny's "Gringo Killer." One part pulque, two parts tequilla, one part brandy, and a dash of liquid marijuana; this, according to Johnny, is guaranteed to put a tarantula to sleep for a year.

George Rehm, being a simple soul, goes in for simplified drinking. Just a little, or a lot, of old brandy and old port in equal parts, and you have a "Rehm Rickey."

Here's one that I'll bet you haven't heard—lately. Its Dick Reynolds' "Camel Cocktail," and it consists of; heaping teaspoonful of G. Washington Coffee, (with or without cream), 1/2 gill of gin, a dash of sugar syrup, well iced. Well, Dick, go on and tell me that you'd walk a mile for a Camel Cocktail.

I remember way back in 1878, on the 30th of February to be exact, when the Writer was discussing this subject with my old pal "Sparrow" Robertson and he said to yours truly, "get away with that stuff, my old pal, here's the drink I invented when I fired the pistol the first time at the old Powderball foot races and you can't go wrong if you put a bet down on 1/3 Canadian Club, 1/3 Eytalian Vermouth, and 1/3 Campari," and then he told the Writer that he would dedicate this cocktail to me and call it, My Old Pal.

Ferdy Tuohy, author of "The Cockpit of Peace," a lively collection of post-war chronicles with a boulevard background, believes in 1/6 Irish whiskey, 1/6 rye whiskey, 1/3 Italian Vermouth, and 1/3 French vermouth. Try a "Cockpit" and you'll get cockeyed.

Uncle Walter Varney guarantees a three ring jag with his "Circus Punch:" 1/4 gin, 1/4 Chianti, 1/4 mineral water, 1/2 glass bitters, 2 grapefruit, 2 lemons, 6 tablespoons sugar, ice.

And you probably would need something to tote you away after H. Verstappen's "Ambulance Cocktail:" 1/5 Swedish punch, 2/5 gin, 2/5 lemon juice, 2 dashes Angostura.

"Say whaddya mean y'never heard of Irish Confetti! Its the Brick, Kid, Don't be a silly boy!" Whereupon Gil Wales gave his lid an extra push, shifted his butt from port to starboard, and wised us up to what he throws down the old windpipe: 1/2 brandy, 1/4 white Crème de menthe, and 1/4 apple jack.

W. C. Weaver has a cocktail he dedicates to Doc Voronoff and which he calls the "Stifferino." The wintergreen Weaver says its good for all young boys over forty-five like "Sparrow" or George Bowles. 1/3 Fernet-Branca, 1/3 Cinzano, 1/3 Noilly Prat Vermouth, and a dash of brandy, and Methusaleh would think he was Ponce de Leon.

There's some mystery connected with the recipe handed out by Gilbert White: 1/3 mandarin orange juice, 1/3 cognac, 1/3 French vermouth. He calls it the "Duck and Dodge." Well, who wouldn't?

Louis Wilson of the Dingo Bar, is all for bigger and better cocktails. Hence, he recommends the "Dinosaur:" 1/2 champagne, 1/4 gin, 1/8 brandy, 1/8 Cherry Rocher, flavored with dash of Anis Del Oso.

And from the Royal Box, the Chief Mogul of Montmartre, Joe Zelli, says there is nothing more regal than a big shot of King James Whiskey with a few queenly olives on the side.

Having run from A to Z, its time to bring Billy Ziegfeld on the stage. The "Ziegfeld Zowie" consists of 1/2 vodka, 1/4 lemon juice, and 1/4 pineapple juice. Zowie is right.

P. S.-Dear Milt Gross, for vy you shouldn't make it a Nize Baby cocktail, for vy? Vell, for vy not? Mix it in a gless a regular flip from Porto and den drop gradually in exectly de same gless vun piece from yeastcake. Believe me, Mr. Feitlebaum, right dere is vere y'got it an emelgemation from everyting, vot wid drink, vot wid food, vot wid poifect norrishment. From all dese odder inventions, its a difference ting haltogadder. Is so!

You've heard so much about the Birth of a Nation, the Birth of the Blues, and the birth of quintuplets to a prominent Slovak society woman of Pottsville P. A., that it's about time to recall the Birth of the Barflies.

Up to date, this last and greatest birth has not been fittingly commemorated. No Tinpan Alley-ite was around to set it to music; no David Rex Stroheim to say it with celluloid; nor was there present even such a humble benefactor of society as a journalistic obstetrician. So it is up to me, in my capacity of amanuensis to Harry, O. O. McIntyre, and Wynn, to belatedly chronicle the big event. And not having arrived before the Committee until seventeen other candidates had been passed for membership, I can only speak as an ear witness.

Back in the autumn of 1924, the sympathetic O. O. McIntyre wrote a mournful article for the Cosmopolitan anent the "Beachcombers of the Boulevards", wherein he sorrowfully referred to the "barflies" of this, our fair city. Thereupon the irrepressible Jed Kiley, then Kleagle of a Kabaret, advertised in the public prints that the proceeds of Christmas Eve at his Montmartre joint would be donated to the needy barflies of Harry's, Frank's, Ritz Bar, and other charitable institutions. Harry McElhone's prompt response was a follow-up advt. in which he called for an organization meeting of barflies at his own urban retreat. (You understand, of course, that both Messrs. Kiley and McElhone, being genuine philanthropists, it must not be construed that the advts were intended as business-getters. That thought was farthest from those altruistic minds.) Anyway, about Christmas 1924, the International Bar Flies, Trap 1, was organized at the New York Bar, and the Presidency foisted upon the mellifluous McIntyre as unconscious inspirer of the lodge. Besides Big Blue Bottlefly McIntyre, the Committee comprises Vice-President Little Blue Bottlefly Harry McElhone, Secretary Housefly Phil. Ambler, Spanishflies Galen Bogue and Earl Leslie, Blowfly H. L. Morris, and Gadflies Billy Arnold, Billy Henly, and Billy Trittle. About a score of prominent newspapermen were taken in, so to speak, as charter-members.

Think of those humble beginnings ! The lodge emblems now known and flaunted throughout the universe, were at that time cast off pieces of sugar decorated with the corpses of flies caught and slain, so I have been assured, by the fast-moving Johnny of the Rue Port-Mahon. But the noble and lofty ideals soon attracted hordes of intelligent boulevardiers eager for membership. From all over the world applications flooded the parent Trap, till it was necessary to inaugurate associate traps. Meantime, three Irishmen, Keaney, Levi, and Sweeny, after the manner of dissenting Celts, steadfastly refused to join. Despite the superior advice of their friends and the promptings of their own better natures, these diehards held out. But in its wake, Time was to leave them sorrowful. And today, when there are over fifty traps and more than five thousand members, and when fraternal buzzes are exchanged in Shanghai or Liverpool, Madrid or Pittsburg, Giverny or Warsaw, you may see honest tears spring to the eyes of the Independent, but Inconsolable Irish, Keaney, Levi, and Sweeny. Bzzzzzzzzzz !

RULES OF THE I.B.F.

BUZZ-BUZZ-BUZZ BUZZ-BUZZZZ

CASIN

1. The I. B. F. is a secret and sacred fraternal organization devoted to the uplift and downfall of serious drinkers.

2. Members must buy — if not at the moment — sometime. What is a decade among friends?

3. Any members of the I. B. F. caught cutting out paper dolls after a bad night must hand in their resignations.

4. Those who come to the Trap at 5 A. M. and are able to play a ukelele without a rehearsal are eligible for life membership.

5. Members bumping their chins on the bar rail in the act of falling are suspended for ten days.

6. Members who have the idea they can wallop Dempsey are notified that there is a plastic surgeon on duty day and night close to all traps.

7. It is respectfully suggested to Bar Flies that they do their weeping in the toilet, and also bring their own mops.

8. Back Slapping after six drinks should be tempered with mercy. Remember, many B. F's have false teeth.

9. Those seeing cerise cats with purple ears should keep it to themselves. Traps are not zoological gardens.

10. Those sniffing about "the best little woman in the world" and staying for another round must pay for it.

11. Remember, nothing is on the house but the roof.

12. Those who decide drinking is a menace are welcome at all times. But just keep quiet.

13. And remember that there are a lot of boys in the rear who might want something.

14. Any Member breaking any of the above rules, will be penalised drinks to all I. B. F.'s present.

“THE CODE OF THE BAR FLIES,”

by Jack DEAN.

As we buzz around this old world of ours.

Let's live as we fly on our way.

Goodfellowship is the rarest of flow'rs,

Its fragrance will sorrow allay.

So, “Here's to The Bar Flies,” “Good fellows all,”

Give the toast with a loud ringing cheer ;

May we always be “Bar Flies” until the last “Call,”

Good hearted ! Broad minded ! Sincere.

Let's Live and Let Live sans malice or spite.

From Neighbors' affairs keep afar.

The man who to-day's proclaimed in the right,

To-morrow wears feathers and tar.

The “I. B. F's.” all know Flies should be Free,

Untrammled by Bigotry's Blight,

Pursuing our Happiness, pledging Liberty,

Its our own God-given Birthright.

You've all seen a Bird fly. You've all seen a Horse-fly,

You've all seen a House fly as well,

You've all seen your coin fly. You've all seen your kin fly,

When you've had hard luck tales to tell.

But when you see a “Bar Fly” a true “I. B. F.” guy.

Give him “The Grip” with a welcome yell ;

Then both drink the bar dry,

“Fill them up once more,” cry,

For a “Bar Fly” to be Bar Dry, Is Hell !

SELECTED TOASTS

Then to this Flowing Bowl did I adjourn,
My lips the secret well of life to learn ;
And lip to lip it murmur'd "While you live,
Drink ! for once dead, you never shall return."
Omar Khayyam.

Happy days.
Set them up again.
Here's looking at you.
Drink hearty.

Never mind the knockers ;
Go ahead and make your play ;
They're in every worker's way.
Never mind the knockers
Every one who seeks to shine,
If successful, they malign ;
'Tis of fame a certain sign.
Never mind the knockers.
They strike only those who climb ;
Never mind the knockers.
'Tis success they deem a crime,
Never mind the knockers.
If they hammer at your name
Then be sure you're in the game,
'Tis a species of acclaim.
Never mind the knockers.

Here's to your health.

Let's have a nip.

May we never want a friend or a bottle to share it with him.

Here's to those I love,
Here's to those who love me,
Here's to those who love those I love,
And here's to those who love those who love me.

Here's a toast to all who are here,
No matter where you are from ;
May the best day you have ever seen
Be worse than your worst to come.

Happy are we met, happy have we been, happy may we part, and happy meet again.

If I should die to-night, and you come to my cold corpse and say, weeping and heartsick o'er my lifeless clay, and you should come in deepest grief and woe, and say, "Here's that fiver I owe," I might arise in my coffin, and say, "What's that?" If I should die to-night, and you should come to my cold corpse and kneel, clasping my bier, to show the grief you feel, I say if I should die to-night, and you should come to me, and there and then just even hint about paying me that fiver, I might arise the while, but I'd drop dead again.

To-morrow can wait ;
Let us have wine and women, mirth and laughter,
Sermons and soda water the day after.

Drink While You Can.

Drink to-day and drown all sorrow,
You shall perhaps not do it to-morrow.
Best while you have it use your breath,
There is no drinking after death.

Toast to Publishers.

Here's to the man who disseminates brains ;
When the quality's bad it's the devil who gains.

Toast to the Prohibitionist.

Here's to our countryman,
Exceedingly pious ;
He can't swallow straight goods ;
His mouth's cut on the bias.

Drink to a fair woman who I think is most entitled to it, for if anything ever can drive me to drink, she certainly can do it.

Here's to a long life, and may you live a thousand years and I a thousand years less one day, for I would not care to live after you had passed away.

Friend of my soul, this goblet sip,
'Twill chase the pensive tear.
'Tis not so sweet as woman's lip,
But oh, 'Tis more sincere.

Drink, for you know not whence you came nor why.
Drink, for you know not why you go nor where.

Fill the bumper fair,
Every drop we sprinkle
O'er the brow of care
Smooths away a wrinkle.

There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a long and lordly train,
But one by one we must all file on
Through the narrow aisles of pain.

Kindest regards.
Best respects.

The physician, although professedly a good man, the worse people are the more he is with them.

Here's to you, my dear, and to the dear who's not here,
my dear ; but if the dear who's not here, my dear, were here,
my dear, I'd not be drinking to you, dear, that's clear.

Here's to a long life and a merry one,
A quick death and a happy one,
A good girl and a pretty one,
A cold bottle and another one.

Here's to the lawyer, a learned gentleman, who rescues your estate from your enemies and keeps it himself.

Wine is good.
Love is better,
False morals spin a spider's fetter.
So fill up the bowl,
Be a jolly old soul,
And you'll be loved by your girl when you get her.

Oh, fill the wine-cup high,
The sparkling liquor pour,
For we will care and grief defy,
They ne'er shall plague us more.

Say, why did Time his glass sublime
Fill up with sand unsightly
When wine, he knew, runs brisker through,
And sparkles far more brightly ?
Laugh at all things,
Great and small things,
Sick or well, on sea or shore,
While we are quaffing
Let's have some laughing.
Who the devil cares for more ?

While we live let's live in clover,
For when we're dead we're dead all over.

Let her roll.

Be glad and your friends are many,
Be sad you and lose them all ;
They do not decline your nectared wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Let's have a smile.

To my enemies here's my toast ;
I hope each shall be a ghost,
And that the devil
Will ne'er be a day well
Till all have been given a roast.

Sing, and the hills will answer
Sigh, it is lost on the air ;
The echoes bound to a joyous sound,
And good wine banishes care.

Woman.

She needs no eulogy. She speaks for herself.

Champagne for our real friends and real pains for our sham friends.

In Poker, like a glass of beer, you draw to fill.

To Tommy and Jack.

Who have arms for their girls and arms for their country's foes.

Our Country.

May she always be in the right, but our country, right or wrong.

May the devil cut the toes off all our foes, that we may know them by their limping.

Here's to a chaperone.
May she learn from Cupid
Just enough blindness to be sweetly stupid.

May Dame Fortune ever smile on you, but never her daughter, Miss Fortune.

To the Hardware Trade.

Although they profess to honesty, they sell iron and steel for a living.

Toast to Writers.

Here's to the angel who shoves the quill ;
When he's not sick of himself he makes others ill.

Toast to the Politician.

If a nation hath not greatness then it never can be great,
For there's nothing like to virtue in the building of a state.

Bar-keeper's Toast.

Trust bust,

Here's to the moneyless man crushed with sorrow and pain.
May he think of the barman when his star rises again.

For a' that and a' that,
It's coming yet for a' that,
That man to man, the world o'er,
Shall brithers be for a' that.

For me, I'm woman's slave confessed ;
Without her, hopeless and unblessed.

Here's to a bottle and an honest friend ! what wad ye wish for mair, man ?

Wha kens, before his life may end, what his share may be of care, man !

Then catch the moments as they fly, and use them as ye ought, man ;

Believe me, happiness is shy, and comes not aye when sought,
man.

Here's to you, as good as you are ;
And here's to me, as bad as I am.
But as good as you are, and as bad as I am ;
I'm as good as you are, as bad as I am.

May the hinges of friendship never rust or the wings of love lose a feather.

Here's to the place where a drap of guid drink's to be gotten.

The juice of the grape is given to him who will use it wisely, as that which cheers the heart of man after toil, refreshes him in sickness, refreshes him in sorrow ; he who enjoyeth it may thank God for his wine cup as for his daily bread ; and he who abuses the gift of heaven is not a greater fool than he that shines in abstinence.

To sum up all, be merry I advise ;
As we're merry may we still be wise.

Here's to your fouk, an' a' our fouk, an' a' the fouk that's been kind to your fouk an' our fouk ; and if a' fouk had been as kind to fouk as you fouk's been to our fouk, they would aye ha' been guid fouk i' the warld sin fouk's bin fouks.

Now fill your glasses ane an' a',
And drink the toast I gie ye, O,
To merry chieks, and lasses braw,
And every joy be wi' ye, O.

Fair fa' the whisky, O,
Fair fa' the whisky, O,
What would a drouthy body do,
If 'twere nae for the whisky, O ?

A man when he's sober is deil's ill to ken,
Gude sooks than there's kenning o' him ;
But prime him wi' nappie, then ye may gae ben,
And learn what he is, for 'twill show him.

This is a good world to live in,
To lend, to spend, to give in,
But to get, or to borrow, or to keep what's one's own,
'Tis the very worst world that ever was known.

INTERESTING ITEMS ABOUT WINES.

How Wines get their Colour.

Red Wine is made from black grapes, and white wine from white grapes. However, the colouring matter only exists in the skins, consequently a curious fact is that while black grapes produce the fine red wines of Bordeaux, Burgundy, or the Côtes-du-Rhône, black grapes also produce the no less famous golden beverage of Champagne. This result is obtained by using special pressing tables, which separate the juice from the skins of the grapes before fermentation sets in, the colouring matter being in the skins. White wine is thus obtained.

The principal wine-producing regions are : Anjou, Bordeaux, Burgundy, Champagne, Côtes-du-Rhône.

Famous vintage years : Champagne, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1904, 1906, 1911, 1914, 1915, 1919 ; Bordeaux, 1899, 1900, 1904, 1907, 1914, 1916, 1919 ; Burgundy and Côtes-du-Rhône, 1899, 1904, 1906, 1908, 1911, 1914, 1919.

Noteworthy years in French wine production are always characterized by moderately cold winters, followed by hot, dry summers. According to the official statistics controlled by the department of the Gironde, 1893, the record year of the nineteenth century, showed the following characteristics : winter, normal ; spring, warm and dry ; first leaves on the vines three weeks early ; blossoms by April 25th, finished one month later ; and a summer extremely hot and dry. The resulting vintage was nearly double the harvest.

Medical Opinion Regarding Wine.

Wine is food. This fact has been recognized by doctors the world over, who prescribe it for convalescents. It is contained in a great number of approved pharmaceutical products. Man would cease to live if he were deprived of all liquid foods.

Pasteur said, "The moderate use of wine is as necessary to man as the air he breathes." The peasant wine-growers of France have been accustomed for generations to the moderate usage of wine — a healthful habit that has never produced nor will ever produce, alcoholism.

The Wines of Burgundy.

The numerous grape-growing regions and the various types of vines found in the ancient province of Burgundy have resulted in an astonishing variety of wines produced. These wines may be divided into two general groups — those of Upper Burgundy, comprising the departments of the Côte-d'Or and Saône-et-Loire, and Lower Burgundy, including the department of Yonne. The vineyards of Upper Burgundy are located on a succession of rolling hills, extending for about one hundred kilometres from Dijon to and beyond Mâcon. They are divided into four categories — Côte Mâconnaise, Côte Châlonnaise, Côte de Beaune, and Côte de Nuits. The last two are the most famous of the group. The wines of the Côte-de-Beaune, including a veritable galaxy of famous brands — Montrachet, Meursault, Volnay, Pommard, Beaune, Corton — are noted for their exceptional finesse. They are more delicate, and are ready for consumption earlier than the wines of the Côte-de-Nuits. These latter include such famous brands as Nuits, Richebourg, Romance, Clos-de-Vougeot, Musigny, Chambertin — all thoroughbreds, universally esteemed. In Lower Burgundy, a favoured corner of the department of Yonne shelters the vineyards of Chablis, one of the most brilliant jewels in the precious diadem of the fine white wines of France.
