Details

The following information has been compiled from newspaper article, various websites and BTM's own sources.

JASDAQ, the OTC stock market for startup companies operated by the Japan Securities Dealers Association (JSDA), has received a license from Financial Services Agency on December 3rd to open a stock exchange. JASDAQ will start operating as a stock exchange from December 13th. The new company name will be "Jasdaq Securities Exchange, Inc."

After conversion to the stock exchange, JASDAQ will operate as both a "market provider" and a "market operator," and JSDA will detach its function as a "market provider" to enforce its function as a self-regulatory organization of securities industry.

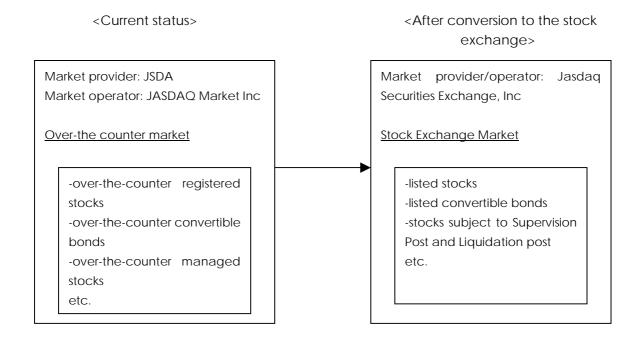

Upon conversion to the stock exchange status, JASDAQ will be able to handle the following transactions that were either unavailable or restricted as an OTC market.

- -"At the market order" (currently, "Limit order" only)
- "When-Issued Transactions" (currently unimplemented)
- -Off-hours-trading (Basket trade etc) will be expanded (currently, "negotiated transactions" by JASDAQ members only)
- -Derivatives trading (currently unavailable)
- -Dual listing
