What's new?

- CDS has signed an agreement with Bank of India (BOI), which has received registration from SEBI as a Depository Participant of CDS. Shri O.N.Singh, Executive Director, BOI and Shri M.G.Damani, Chairman & Managing Director, CDS signed the agreement in a warm ceremony held on December 16, 2000.

- BOI has been closely associated with the BSE for over 75 years, both as a clearing bank and clearing house through a company called BOI Shareholding Ltd in which BOI holds 51% stake and BSE 49%. BOI, which was the first sponsor Bank of CDS, holds at present a 10% stake in CDS.
- BOI will commence operations at its Stock Exchange branch and Capital Markets branch at Mumbai. BOI will shortly launch CDS-DP services from its branches at Calcutta, Bangalore, Ahmedabad, Chennai and New Delhi.
- The workload on the clearing houses/clearing corporations has reduced substantially due to progress in dematerialisation. SEBI had thus earlier reduced the no delivery period to 7 days.
- SEBI has vide its press release no. PR/226/2000 dated November 28, 2000 decided to do away with the concept of no delivery period for corporate actions such as issue of dividend and bonus shares for the companies whose securities are traded in the compulsory dematerialised form.
- Securities are traded in the compulsory dematerialised form.
- SEBI also proposes to make this applicable to Rights Issues subject to ascertaining certain legal and procedural requirements. This will ensure continuous trading of shares on ex-basis and will reduce the possibilities of price manipulation during the no delivery period.
- In order to further simplify the process of share transfer and processing of demat requests, SEBI would be preparing a model code for Registrars after holding discussions with the Registrars Association of India (RAIN).

THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE

"Not once nor twice in our rough island story, The path of Duty was the way to glory".

Man is, by nature, a social being. A man without a society to live in is either an angel or a beast. The angels or the beasts are either above or indifferent to human sufferings, sorrows or happiness. They have got little concern with humanity. The beasts live and die for themselves and not for others. An unsocial being's fate falls under the same category. His existence and non-existence both are alike in society. For a man who does not love others, live for others, nay, die for others is neither a human nor a divine being, but a being whose creator might be other than God. "Man is made after the image of God" says the Bible, and God is always helpful to his created beings. Then why should we-the created beings, not have the spirit of service in us? To imbibe this spirit, we should live together in society, for, as Cowper says, "Society, Friendship and Love are divinely bestowed upon man." Living together in society should give a free play to love and sympathy. It is love and sympathy that binds us all into one whole. Nay, it is the key-stone of the whole human organisation. To have this virtue in oneself, one must have a clear understanding of one's own duty to others.

A true sense of duty infuses in man the 'spirit' of service to humanity and thereby to his divine Creator.

Hence, 'the Spirit of Service' means the 'spirit' that leads people to help and serve others, their fellowmen, at the sacrifice of money, comforts and even life.

We must convince men that they are all sons of one Heavenly Father and are bound to fulfil and execute one sole law here on earth; that each of them is bound to live not for himself but for others; that the aim of existence is not to be more or less happy, but to make themselves and others more virtuous, that to struggle against injustice and error (wherever they exist in the name and for the benefit of those brethren) is not only a right but a duty- a duty which may not be neglected without sin-a duty which continues throughout one's whole life.

"Everyone has his duties", says Smiles, "to perform, the richest as well as the poorest. To some life is pleasure, to others suffering. But the best do not live for self-enjoyment or even for fame. Their strongest motive power is hopeful, useful work in every good cause".

"The sphere of duty", he adds, "is infinite. It exists in every station of life. We have it not in our choice to be rich or poor, to be happy or unhappy. But it becomes us to do the duty that everywhere surrounds us." We have various duties, of which, duty to our neighbours and duty to our fellow-beings are the duties of the highest excellence that bind all-both man and God.

There are two classes of obligations on the part of a good worker-one class makes him do good to others out of his own conscience, and the other makes him do the same when compelled under certain condition; of these two, the former yields greater benefit out of work done in the truest sense of the word, whereas the latter yields much less benefit.

It does good to the soul to work for love and mercy and not with selfish or evil motives. Work done for love is a thousand times better than work done for money. The first inspires in us the sense of true heroism and self-devotion, whereas the second is a sort of bargain between the benefactor and the one who receives benefit.

Look at the self-denying spirit of Grace Darling. When the steamer Forfarshire was on its voyage from Hull to Dundee, a storm arose in the sea. The steamer "struck with tremendous force the Hawkers rocks and snapped in two". Some of its crew took possession of a boat and saved their lives. Nine, climbed on the rock and began to cry for help. Grace Darling, a mere girl, who was on the lighthouse half a mile off, heard their cries and went out to them in a boat for their rescue. Although the fog lay thick and the sea was boisterous, she did not care for her own life and was successful in bringing them safe to the shore. That was a moment when she felt the true joy of her life.

True happiness really comes from the service done to others in an unselfish and philanthropic spirit. We feel the greatest amount of satisfaction, when we find an opportunity to help and serve our fellowmen in a spirit that has no touch of selfishness in it. We are sent into the world by God to work and not to pass our days in mere idleness. If there be no work in life, life will ultimately become useless and dull, just like a sword which rusts and does not shine without use. A man loses all activities in life, if he does no work in any sphere of his earthly duties. We are sent into the world, not to indulge merely in self-gratification, but to do at least some amount of good to others which may be possible for us. No doubt we live primarily for ourselves, but unless and until we can lend some help to others, we cannot enjoy the real beauty of this life; for true heroism consists in giving away the thing which we prize most and love most, and the more we give the nobler we become; and this is why Shakespeare so loudly exclaims, "Love thyself last; and cherish those hearts that hate thee".

We all know how Howard giving up all his own comforts, served the sick and the wounded. He tried his best to ameliorate the condition of the prisoners and succeeded in getting the laws against the criminals made less severe.

We are always in the habit of furthering our own interests taking no care for the good of others. We are highly pleased if we can satisfy our carnal appetite with sumptuous and delicate dishes, taking no notice at all of those who are destined to pass their days in starvation. Some have the greatest amount of riches and thousands of slaves under them to carry out their orders, whereas there are others who are so unfortunate that they do not get proper food and even proper houses to live in. Is it possible for a man of conscience to stand with his eyes shut without lending a helping hand? Of course, not. We hear pitiable stories of strange accidents which bring tears to our eyes; but it is strange and very strange that we only heave sigh after sigh but take no pains actually to succor the unfortunate sufferers by those events, by giving substantial help or by any other means. Whenever we pass along a street, we come across many street beggars, poor men and various other unfortunate people, who attract our attention by their wretchedness and poverty. Shall we simply remain satisfied with seeing their wretchedness and feeling pity for them and saying that all this was the result of the sins of their former lives, sins which compel them to suffer so long as they remain here on this earth, and take no pains at all to help them in any way? Is it not far better for a man to go up to them and succour them as far as possible than to pass a remark which makes the sufferers more sorrowful? Certainly so. We sometimes require little money or intelligence to serve others in their need. And in such cases are we not in a position to help our fellow-brethren which only requires some amount of physical exertion?

Think of our Indian hero, Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar. He rose from indigence to pre-eminence. From a post of fifty rupees he rose to one of five hundred and that too he resigned for the sake of his conscience. Though poor, he gave almost all he had to others. Is it not the true spirit of service? Certainly it is.

We are fully aware of the fact that men who receive help are really benefited but the giver too is thereby blessed, because in satisfying his fellow-brethren he satisfies God himself. Here we see, that a man wishing to serve others performs a double function which makes him dear both to his fellow-brethren and to the Almighty Father. Hence we see, that such spirit of service, like mercy, is twice blessed: "It blesses him that gives and him that receives".

We must always be on our guard that in exercising the spirit of service we are not led astray and feel pride for the good done. The best kind of service that a human being can perform is done in secret. There it does its work devotedly and nobly. It does not advertise itself. He who helps and serves others for the sake of fame, honour and power, does not reap the real fruits of the service done by him. All good acts should always be done in such a way that the left hand should not know what the right hand does. 'Duty must be done for Duty's sake and not for name or fame'.

Men may possess immense wealth and the most fertile brains which on proper use and exercise may do much for the community of which they are members. Men of this sort may see their brethren struggling hard for existence and passing through various difficulties and disadvantages, but these selfish men will not take any trouble to do the least possible thing to alleviate their sufferings. Such men are really the objects of shame and the sooner they die the better it is for the community. They forget the maxim, "It is not good to live for self alone". Sometimes, again, we find others who make the following proverb the motto of their life: "Eat drink and be merry, for to-morrow you may die". Such men will never do any good to their fellow-brethren and will ever remain satisfied with serving their own interests. Such men are in no way better than those mentioned above.

Lastly there might be some lacking in wealth, physical strength, sufficient intelligence and other equipments which are the instruments of helping and serving others. But though they may not possess the above requirements, yet they may still possess one thing which goes ahead of all, and that is a 'good will' and a 'good heart'. We are aware of the well known saying, "Good will and sympathy are the touch-stone of life" and men possessing them will do wonders in their life. They may be poor in money, but they are morally and spiritually rich. It is quite natural on their part that where money is indispensable, they will never be disappointed in their attempt to secure it. They having the spirit of service in them, will beg money of those who are rich enough to spare it for a noble purpose. God forbid that they should be unsuccessful in it, but if they fail they will not give way to dejection or despair. The service, which such men will be doing to the people in general, is the service that surpasses all other work done for the suffering humanity. The good will and the good heart of such men really achieve marvelous results in the field of charity and kindness. They evoke heavenly joy from above down to the selfish world beneath. Men cannot but praise and speak highly of these true sons of the Heavenly Father.

The duty of helping others does not end in giving alms to the poor and money to the needy. It consists also in nursing the sick and giving shelter to the fatherless and motherless, who sometimes find no place even to lay their heads in.

Miss Nightingale though a woman, set a glorious example of love and service. She did not care for her own life even in nursing cholera patients. She went to the battle-fields to serve the wounded soldiers.

Who has not heard of Sir Philip Sidney? While lying mortally wounded in the field, he asked for water. When water was brought to him, he saw a wounded soldier looking wistfully at him. He at once handed the glass to him saying, "Your need is greater than mine". Sir Philip died a few days after, but the inspiring example of self-denial set by him still remains.

The spirit of service may bear other forms also, such as loyalty, patriotism and self sacrifice. We are generally concerned with good deeds that require less amount of self-sacrifice and at the same time are within the easy reach of all. But the above forms of service require true sacrifice of money, ease, comfort and sometimes even life. A true patriot is undoubtedly the pride of the country, but a loyal man deserves no less glory. While dealing with these different form in which the spirit of service manifests itself, I cannot help mentioning two brilliant examples of loyalty and patriotism:-

Birbar sacrificed his own son for the good of the king, his master. Not only was his son sacrificed but at his death, Birbar's wife, daughter and he himself gave up their lives. Is it not true loyalty? For whom did Birbar lose his whole family and his life? For the king, his master, and for duty's sake.

Many Indian heroes sacrificed themselves in the Great War for the good of the king and the country.

Nelson was a man of excellent genius. He was not only a brave and courageous seaman: but the true flame of patriotism ever burned in his heroic soul. It can be well-expressed in the words of Homer:

"One best omen is to fight for father-land". At the time of his death Nelson said, "Thank God, I have done my duty".

The noble deeds of these great heroes deserve special mention on account of the work done by them in the true sacrifice of life in an unselfish spirit. But it is a matter of great regret that we are not proud of such heroes in the present age. There no doubt exist heroes and greatmen in the present age, but in comparison with the past heroes, their work seems to be lacking in true unselfish devotion. But thank God that the true spirit of service is gradually being awakened in the minds of our fellow-brethren showing signs of a better world to come.

The importance of the spirit of service has been felt by the young men of Bengal for the last few decades. Had not this spirit been awakened in their minds, thousands of the suffering communities would have long ago left this world for good and the pains and agony of the sufferers would have been greatly intensified.

We fully know how the Ram Krishna Mission and the other philanthropic Missions are working in the best spirit in our country. These Missions serve the suffering classes irrespective of caste, creed and colour. They are achieving tremendous success day by day; words fail to describe the real benefit which these missions are conferring on the suffering people.

Among the students also, the spirit of service has laid a very deep foundation. In almost all the big cities and towns, there are colleges and schools. Some of these institutions, though not all, have started funds intended to help the poor students in the prosecution of their studies. These funds are generally called "Benevolent or Poor or Duty Funds".

We know also that in some colleges there are nursing Associations, the main purpose of which is to nurse the sick and the diseased persons. These Associations are under the guidance of the students themselves. These students work with heart and soul with an unselfish devotion to their duty.

These are no doubt hopeful signs for the students who should become honest workers and true patriots loving the country in which they are born. Happy is the age and fortunate is the country that abounds with such heroes living and dying for their Duty towards humanity.

In 'the Revelation of St. John the Divine', it is written "Christ washed us from our sins in his own blood". Such was Christ! when comes such another?

"Victoria and Edward have passed away,
But their kind actions will pass away never".

No good action, no example dies away. It lives for ever in our race, while the frame moulders and disappears. A noble deed moulds the very thought and will of future generations.

The spirit of service is co-eternal and co-existent with God. It begins and ends in Him. But God is infinite and so, duty is unlimited. It is too bold an act to try to put down the glories of duty in black and white. We may rest satisfied by exclaiming, "Life is Duty and Duty is Life", and always remembering the fact that to live for others is to love them and to love others is to love God. And it is there that the true spirit of service lies. Let us ever bear in mind-.

"Whatever thy race or speech, thou art the same,
Before the eyes Duty, a constant flame,
Shines always steadfast with unchanging light,
Through dark days and through bright".
