

CIEL NORTHERN IRELAND

The Northern Ireland Conflict & Peace Process

Up to 6 variable credit hours offered through the University of Wyoming

Dates: July 2 - July 14, 2023 (Summer 2023)

Participants from Chapman will join students from the University of Wyoming and other universities across the US and UK to receive direct exposure to the people, politics and realities of the Northern Ireland conflict and its evolving peace process as they transit between the difficult and contested geographies of Northern Ireland as well as the Republic of Ireland. As a unique part of their experiential learning program, students will actively engage with politicians, community leaders, non-governmental organizations, faith leaders, academic experts and victims/survivors from all sides impacted by the conflict to hear a comprehensive view of the divergent perspectives, narratives and human stories of people dealing with legacies of past violence in Northern Ireland.

Cost: $3750, Program fee is paid directly to CIEL and includes all in-country transportation, accommodations, meals, all program related excursions and entry fees. Does not include flights to/from region, UW tuition/fees, $325 study abroad fee or any required vaccinations. ($250 unit/credit hour, to be transferred via University of Wyoming)*

Application Deadlines:

September 15th 2022 – February 15th, 2023 (First-come, first-serve basis)

Global Learning to Empower Local Action

The Center for International Experiential Learning (CIEL) is a premier non-profit educational travel provider that draws on over a decade of proven programmatic and academic excellence in safely guiding students on experiential learning opportunities through immersive educational travel in conflict-affected regions led by internationally recognized scholars in partnership with local actors and a carefully designed and rigorous program of pre-travel education. As a result of their experience in the region, students will return to UW better educated and more nuanced in their thinking about the Northern Ireland conflict and empowered with the knowledge and transferable skills needed to emerge as leaders in addressing issues of division and polarization surrounding complex global problems and in their own local contexts.
