

Woollysheath Threawn

Aristida lanosa

A member of the grass family, this perennial is often overlooked. This is a clump forming grass with tall graceful seed spikes formed in late summer. This is a good plant for the back of a perennial border providing autumn and winter interest. In its native habitat, this plant can be found in pine flatwoods and sandhills.

- Perennial
- Grows 3-6 ft
- Found in open, sandy soils, forest edges

Jan	Feb	Mar	Apr	May	June	July	Aug	Sept	Oct	Nov	Dec
-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	------	------	-----	------	-----	-----	-----

Flowering Time