

Economic and Community Benefit Profile

Cristo Rey Jesuit High School
Where learning gets to work.

With the exception of construction spending, which covers the five-year period from 2007 to 2011, spending and financial information covers the 2011 fiscal year (July 1, 2010 to June 30, 2011).

Economic and Community Benefit Profile

As part of Baltimore's independent education sector, Cristo Rey Jesuit High School is playing a growing economic role while providing a Catholic, college preparatory education to young men and women from Baltimore City. Cristo Rey Jesuit has brought significant revenue and revitalization to a corner of Fells Point. And those benefits have been felt throughout East Baltimore and, indeed, throughout our entire city. Through our unique Corporate Internship Program, 85 businesses and nonprofit organizations across the Baltimore region provide 40 hours per month of meaningful employment for each Cristo Rey Jesuit student. These corporate sponsors instill the values of productivity and professionalism in Cristo Rey Jesuit student workers, thereby make a long-term commitment to increase the quality of the Baltimore region's labor force.

With nearly all of our graduates pursuing a college education, Cristo Rey Jesuit alumni, who become educated and skilled college graduates, will be positioned to make a significant contribution to the overall economic competitiveness of the Baltimore region. Cristo Rey Jesuit looks forward to the day when we will be able to report to the greater Baltimore community on how our alumni are contributing to the regional economy, especially in the areas of health care, business, professional services and education.

Cristo Rey Jesuit High School is pleased to present this summary of the economic and community benefit we provide to the Greater Baltimore community.

Ancillary Spending

Ancillary spending is spending associated with Cristo Rey Jesuit students, staff, and visitors at venues that are not affiliated with Cristo Rey Jesuit High School. These include local restaurants, caterers, and retail and grocery stores. In 2011, ancillary spending by students, staff, and visitors promoted economic growth as additional money circulates throughout Baltimore City and beyond. Spending by Cristo Rey Jesuit students is the largest component of ancillary spending. Students provide a significant source of revenue to neighborhood retailers, making regular purchases in Fells Point. In addition to student ancillary expenditures, spending by visitors also boosts the local economy. Local and out-of-town visitors coming to Cristo Rey Jesuit purchase items from local shops, eat at nearby restaurants, and stay at local hotel facilities.

Recent Construction, 2007–2011

Since 2007, Cristo Rey Jesuit High School has worked to transform the Holy Rosary Parish school and convent into a modern high school campus that supports an outstanding college preparatory program. The former parish school building, now known as Healy Hall, boasts new science facilities, computer technology, and updated office and student spaces. The renovated gymnasium welcomes children from across Baltimore City in a Saturday basketball league. The former convent, renamed the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Academic Center to honor the investment of the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation in this effort, houses the library, state-of-the-art computer learning center, a college counseling suite, and the offices of Cristo Rey Jesuit's Corporate Internship Program. Attractive windows and a graciously landscaped war memorial to Holy Rosary parishioners who gave their lives in service to our country bring a sense of serenity and beauty to the streetscape. Freshly paved sidewalks and security cameras around the entire campus help to keep our school—and Chester Street—safe and secure.

Cristo Rey Jesuit was proud to partner with the architectural firm of Rubeling & Associates in creating our campus. The Mullan Contracting Company and their contractors, together with HDC, Inc. (acting as the owner's representative), worked carefully to bring Rubeling's plans to fruition—for the benefit of our students and for the greater good of Baltimore.

Future Cristo Rey Jesuit Construction

While the Cristo Rey Jesuit community looks with pride at the recently renovated campus facilities, much remains to be accomplished. At the top of the list: the relocation of a number of offices—the business, development, and president’s offices—that are currently located in temporary quarters at 2202 Boston Street. These administrative areas are slated to move to a permanent site in closer proximity to the campus. Future infrastructure improvements to Healy Hall, including upgraded heating, ventilating, and air conditioning systems, and a significant investment in information technology throughout the Cristo Rey Jesuit campus, are all part of the school’s careful strategic planning for the future.

Professionals for Baltimore's Future

Cristo Rey Jesuit High School prepares students for success in college. Our college counselors guide our students throughout their four years, preparing them and their families to handle applying for college, financial aid, and scholarships. This approach has yielded real results. All 78 of our first graduates, the class of 2011, were accepted to college. Ninety percent enrolled in college in the following academic year. This stands in sharp contrast to the typical college-going rates nationally for high school graduates from low-income families: 55%. Our efforts are strengthened by many colleges and universities, including Loyola University Maryland, Stevenson University, Goucher College, and Mount St. Mary's University, that have stepped forward to partner with Cristo Rey Jesuit.

We expect that our graduates, armed with college degrees, will become leaders for our city and our world.

Corporate Internship Program

To make a private, college-preparatory education affordable to bright and promising young people from Baltimore City, Cristo Rey Jesuit High School uses the Corporate Internship Program (CIP). Through CIP, students help to finance their education by working five full days each month in entry-level positions at businesses and nonprofit organizations throughout the Baltimore area.

This program combines two commonly used business concepts: employee leasing and job sharing. By assuming the role of an employee leasing agency, Cristo Rey Jesuit has streamlined the process for hiring our students. Students are not on the payroll of the employing organization, but are employees of the school's separately incorporated Corporate Internship Program. Businesses pay this program quarterly, annually or monthly for the services of our students. The work experience is transforming the lives of Cristo Rey Jesuit students, helping them to discover career aspirations and a desire to succeed in college, work, and life!

We are grateful to our corporate sponsors, listed at right, for their support of Cristo Rey Jesuit.

Community Benefit to Fells Point and East Baltimore

Cristo Rey Jesuit is building community—within the four walls of our school and throughout Fells Point and East Baltimore. Bustling with students in the school day, the campus is also a hub of activity at night and on the weekends as we welcome community groups, city officials and Baltimore City schoolchildren.

We stand shoulder to shoulder with the Fells Prospect Community Association on critical issues that impact quality of life for local residents and business owners. And for more than two years, Cristo Rey Jesuit has hosted this important civic organization's monthly meetings. We've also opened our doors to important city meetings on the Red Line project and public health initiatives.

On Saturdays, Cristo Rey Jesuit—the home of the Hornets—hosts a citywide basketball program for middle school boys. It's just another way we are building community.

Our community partnerships include:

- Holy Rosary Parish
- Fells Prospect Community Association
- Fells Point Main Street
- Office of Councilman Jim Kraft
- St. Vincent de Paul Head Start
- Esperanza Center
- Education Based Latino Outreach (EBLO)
- Hampstead Hill Academy
- Crossroads Academy
- Food for Thought

Economic Benefit to Fells Point and East Baltimore

Nearly one-quarter of CRJ's employees live within a mile of the school but every single employee—no matter where he or she lives—brings economic benefit to the community. Our faculty and staff work, worship, shop, and play right in the neighborhood! Catch a quick bite at Kisling's after work? Absolutely. Run down to the Canton Safeway at lunch? Yes, they do. Head off to Johnny Rad's to welcome the weekend? They are on it. And bring their own little ones for fun in Patterson Park? Of course.

Many Cristo Rey Jesuit employees live in Baltimore City, including in these neighborhoods closest to our school:

- Fells Prospect
- Fells Point
- Butcher's Hill
- Highlandtown
- Canton
- Patterson Park

Community Service

“Strong citizens make a strong city”

Cristo Rey Jesuit has established itself as a responsible and invested civic partner and works closely with community leaders and organizations in the surrounding neighborhood. Community service is an integral part of the Cristo Rey Jesuit experience as the school pursues its Jesuit mission of forming “Men and Women for Others.” For Cristo Rey Jesuits students, it’s not about accumulating service hours, it’s about building relationships. In 2011, Cristo Rey Jesuit students provided community service to non-profit service organizations that seek to offer the highest quality service to those in need. As part of the Corporate Internship Program, students also gain valuable professional work experience with placements in the nonprofit sector.

Some examples of the community service provided by the Cristo Rey Jesuit community are:

Moveable Feast

Throughout the school year, CRJ students, faculty and staff help prepare nutritious meals to people with HIV/AIDS and other life-threatening conditions.

Baltimore Sleep Out for the Homeless

This October 2011 citywide event brought together seniors from CRJ and other high schools in the Baltimore area to learn about the causes and effects of homelessness. Students slept outside for one night.

Ignatian Family Teach-In for Justice

In November 2011, CRJ students traveled to Washington, D.C. to examine local and global social justice issues with students from Jesuit high schools and universities from around the country.

Breast Cancer Fundraiser

Cristo Rey Jesuit’s Student Government Association sponsored a schoolwide penny drive to raise money for breast cancer research. In a spirited competition, classes went head to head to bring in the greatest number of pennies.
