Parents protest

Split-grades debated at BOE meeting

BY ERIC SLAGLE

Scores of parents turned out Tuesday at a Monongalia County Board of Education meeting to protest the board's decision last month to reduce personnel costs by introducing split-grade classrooms at Suncrest and Waitman Barbe elementary schools.

The board of education said it would try to work with parents on the matter but made no promises to reverse its decision.

Though the board said the move would be a temporary one when it passed the measure to create splitgrade classrooms, or classrooms serving students at different grade levels, but some parents and community members at the meeting didn't see it that way.

A few protestors carried picket signs that said "It's more than just a year to them," alluding to the fact that students should only attend those grades once in their lifetimes.

Waitman Barbe parent Tabby Lucky was one of the parents who came to the meeting to show her opposition to split-grade classes.

'It's sad. It's 2005. There shouldn't be a need for this," Lucky said, adding that the school system should cut field trips before reducing the teaching force at any of its schools, an oft-repeated refrain of protestors. "There is a lot more they can do than say 'sorry.' ' Lucky and other parents at the meeting said they would seek to have their children transferred to other schools if the split-grade classrooms become a reality next year. The heavy turnout at the meeting was not unexpected.

Last week, parents upset with the board's decision aired their dissatisfaction on a talk show broadcast on local radio station WAJR.

On Monday, the Suncrest Primary Parent Teacher Group ran a full-page advertisement in The Dominion Post, asking the board to reverse its decision. Among other things, the ad said moving to splitgrades would force teachers to divide their attention between two groups of students with different learning needs. The school system would have to commit more time, planning and money to such a system if it were to succeed, the ad said.

Protestors pack the Board of Education meeting room Tuesday night. Many were there to argue against splitgrade classes being implemented at Suncrest and Waitman Barbe elementary schools beginning next year.

UHS educators take three teaching awards

Sappington named Mon Teacher of the Year

University High science teacher Terri Sappington was recognized as Teacher of the Year by Mon County Schools on Tuesday.

Sappington was honored by school officials during a reception at the law offices of Kay, Casto & Chaney before the school board's regular meeting Tuesday and recognized again during the meeting.

Sappington, who received a Distinguished Educator award from the board two weeks ago, has, among other things, used an online virtual training program offered through Wheeling Jesuit University and NASA to teach her students about space exploration.

The Mon County Award includes a $500 grant that will benefit Sappington's school.

WVU partners with smaller schools on new programs

Pre-dentistry and pre-pharmacy are among new offerings

Associated Press

MORGANTOWN — WVU is partnering with two other schools, one private and one public, to expand academic programs in the state. Officials from WVU and West Virginia Wesleyan College signed an agreement Tuesday to establish a "3-plus-2" pre-engineering program at the private Buckhannon school. Students can attend Wesleyan for three years and then transfer to WVU for the remaining two years to obtain either a bachelor's degree in civil engineering or mechanical engineering.

Similar WVU pre-engineering programs already are available at Potomac State College at WVU, Marshall University and Shepherd University.

"We are very excited about this agreement and the opportunities it provides to students across the state," said Warren Myers, associate dean for academic affairs at WVU's College of Engineering and Mineral Resources.

The school also has joined with Shepherd to offer a pre-dentistry and pre-pharmacy program in the Eastern Panhandle.

Offering the pre-pharmacy and pre-dentistry programs at Shepherd should encourage more Eastern Panhandle students to enter those fields and return to the area to practice, said Shepherd President David Dunlop.

In West Virginia, there are about 16.8 doctors for every 10,000 people, compared to 20 doctors for every 10,000 people nationally. In the Eastern Panhandle, there have been as few as 9.3 doctors for every 10,000 people, state health officials have said.

WASHINGTON — The Secret Service was investigating a report Tuesday that a hand grenade was thrown at the stage during President Bush's speech in the former Soviet republic of

After Bush left Georgia on Tuesday, the Secret Service was informed by Georgian authorities of a report that a device, possibly a hand grenade, had been thrown within 100 feet of the stage during Bush's speech, hit someone in the crowd and fell to the ground, Secret Service spokesman Jonathan Cherry said.

According to the report, a Georgian security officer picked up the device and removed it from the area. The Secret Service had not seen the device as of Tuesday evening, Cherry said. It has agents in Tbilisi working with the FBI, State Department and Georgian authorities to investigate the report.

Guram Donadze, spokesman for the Georgian Interior Ministry, said no hand grenade was thrown close to Bush. "This is an absolute lie. This did not occur," Donadze told The Associated Press.

Officials from President

Maikhail Saakashvili's office were not immediately available for comment. Georgia's security service has been merged with the Interior Min-

Cherry said he couldn't characterize the source of the report that a device had been thrown.

Bush returned to the United States late Tuesday after a fourcountry trip that also included stops in Russia, Latvia and the Netherlands. He was the first American president to visit Georgia.

crossed in rafts and on a pontoon bridge, the U.S. command said. Many of the dead remained trapped under rubble after attack planes and helicopter gunships pounded their hideouts.

At least three Marines were reported killed and 20 wounded during the first three days of the offensive — the biggest U.S. operation since Fallujah was taken from extremists six months ago.

The operation was launched after U.S. intelligence showed followers of Iraq's most wanted terrorist, Abu Musab al-Zargawi, took refuge in the remote desert region — a haven for smugglers and insurgent suppliers. The fighters were believed to have fled to Anbar Province after losses in Iraqi cities. Gunmen kidnapped Anbar's governor Tuesday morning and told his family he would be released only when U.S. forces withdrew from Qaim, the town 200 miles west of Baghdad where the offensive began late Saturday. Gov. Raja Nawaf Farhan al-Mahalawi was seized as he drove from Qaim to the provincial capital of Ramadi, his brother, Hammad, told The Associated Press.

Lt. Col. Steven Boylan, a spokesman for U.S. forces in Iraq, said: "We don't respond to insurgent or terrorist demands.'

N.C. governor dodges second NASCAR mishap

Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — Two years after crashing a stock car at Lowe's Motor Speedway, Gov. Mike Easley nearly brought out the caution flag again Tuesday when he veered a NASCAR racer out of control on a drive through downtown.

Easley, participating in a celebration of the state's stock car industry, fishtailed and ran up on a curb — narrowly avoiding a parked car and a utility pole — as he drove Jimmie Johnson's No. 48 Chevrolet from the executive mansion to the Legislative Building.

Helpers pushed the stock car back toward the street, and a slower, but unruffled Easley continued driving the few blocks to his destination.

In 2003, Easley demolished a Chevrolet — not a true racecar, but one Johnson lends for promotional events — during practice laps for a charity event at the speedway in Concord.

She also said the board should consider reducing the number of field trips it allows its professional staff to take during the year for training purposes or to allow an assistant superintendent position recently vacated by interim superintendent Janice Christopher to go unfilled.

Another cost saving option the board should consider would be forgoing the pay board members get for attending meetings, Wang said.

Ward Paine, who is chief of medicine at Mon General Hospital, agreed. He said he moved to the Suncrest area because he heard of its good

"They had nothing to use against me, so they exploited this so-called charge of shoplifting and made mention of it in conjunction with the final report, making it appear this demotion was about Abu Ghraib."

Karpinski noted that the last line of the report states "Actions General Karpinski took or failed to take in no way contributed to the abuses at Abu Ghraib."

The Army's inspector general investigated four allegations against Karpinski: dereliction of duty, making a "material misrepresentation" to investigators, failure to obey a lawful order and shoplifting. Only the shoplifting and dereliction of duty allegations were substantiated.

A U.S. government official, speaking last week on the condition of anonymity, said Karpinski was accused of shoplifting a cosmetic item from a shop at a domestic Air Force base while she held the rank of colonel. Karpinski didn't report her arrest for this misdemeanor on a later background check, the official said.

Karpinski called it the "so-called" charge in her e-mail to AP, but didn't address it further. In an interview with CBS News last year, she denied shoplifting.

There was no immediate comment from Defense Department officials on Karpinski's latest statements.

Court backs Cheney in task force lawsuit

Litigation against V.P. thrown out

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A federal appeals court Tuesday ordered dismissal of a lawsuit seeking to force Vice President Dick Cheney to reveal details about the energy policy task force he headed and the pro-industry recommendations it made.

The Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit unanimously found that two private groups that sued Cheney failed to establish that the federal government had a legal duty to produce documents detailing the White House's contacts with business executives and lobbyists.

The lawsuit, filed by the Sierra Club and Judicial Watch, alleged that energy industry officials effectively became members of the task force, while environmental groups and others were shut out of the meetings. They also argued the task force was a federal advisory committee with an obligation to publicly disclose its operations.

The appeals court disagreed. "There is nothing to indicate that nonfederal employees had a right to vote on committee matters or exercise a veto over committee proposals," the judge said.

Cheney's energy task force was not an advisory committee and "it follows that the government owed the plaintiffs no duty, let alone a clear and indisputable or compelling one," said the opinion by Judge A. Raymond Randolph.

Cheney's task force met for several months in 2001 and issued a report that favored opening more public lands to oil and gas drilling and proposed a range of other steps supported by industry. Most of the recommendations stalled in Congress.

In January arguments before the appeals court, Justice Department lawyer Paul Clement argued that forcing the White House to produce any documents about the task force would be an "unconstitutional and unwarranted intrusion on the executive branch and its internal functions.'

Neverland manager says he was not asked to hold family captive

SANTA MARIA, Calif. — The property manager at Michael Jackson's Neverland ranch testified Tuesday that he was never ordered to hold captive the family of the boy accusing the pop star of child molestation.

Joe Marcus, a defense witness, testified that an order instructing guards not to let the boy or his brother leave was placed in the ranch log because the boys often drove vehicles around the property, raising safety concerns. He said he was determined to prevent them from taking the vehicles out onto the open road.

"Did you ever receive any instructions from anyone to hold the (family) against their will?" Jackson attorney Robert Sanger asked.

"No," Marcus said.

Jackson, 46, is accused of molesting a 13-year-old cancer patient in February or March 2003, giving him wine and conspiring to hold the family captive to get them to rebut a documentary in which he appeared with the boy and said he let children sleep in his bed, though he said it was non-sexual.

Doyle said the ranch is owned by David McGowan, an investigator for the Riverside County district attorney's office. He said investigators had not confirmed that the bodies were those of McGowan and his family.

Doyle said no one had been arrested and "we're not necessarily looking for anybody." He also said there was no indication of a break-in.

Don Knotts will be seeing stars

Honoring city's famous native son at start of arts fest good decision

Don Knotts' star will never burn out.

On the contrary, this summer he'll be in Morgantown to see another star being born in his name.

Earlier this week city and Monongalia County officials announced a Don Knotts Festival will be added to Morgantown's annual Arts on the River Festival.

This is a good idea for lots of reasons, not the least of which is this sort of honor is long overdue for our city's most famous native son.

If anyone deserves a star from our town Knotts does.

Though he has an impeccable portfolio of work in TV, film, radio and live theater, he will always be best known for wearing a different kind of star as one of Mayberry's finest on "The Andy Griffith Show."

On the weekend of Aug. 12-14 Knotts' films and TV episodes will take center stage at the Metropolitan Theatre, and possibly other venues.

But Knotts' return to the Met Theatre's confines will be special. This is the same site where he decided there's no business like show business in the mid-1940s.

Though the theater has seen its ups and downs since then, Knotts' star has never stopped rising.

And that star will most likely be formally dedicated on the sidewalk outside the Met on Aug. 13, complementing his star already on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

All of that after a parade in his honor.

Merging this weekend into the Arts on the River Festival should also give it a boost. In past years, though the arts festival has been well endowed with quality performers, displays and exhibits, its attendance has been limited.

Much of that can be attributed to fickle weather, fragmented venues, an empty campus, competing fairs and festivals, vacation time and so on.

However, no one is implying the Arts on the River Festival has never lived up to its potential — because sometimes it has. But the addition of the Don Knotts Festival cannot fail to help

The expanded arts festival runs from Aug. 12-21 and will include fine art exhibits, readings, a state film festival, improv performances and educational art programs for children for another week after the events dedicated to Knotts end.

In years past, summertime in Morgantown could mean the doldrums for area businesses and entertainment.

However, with the additions of the likes of the Miss West Virginia Scholarship Pageant, the Hoop Group Summer Jam Fest (a basketball tourney), cycling events, Special Olympic games and the improved marketing of Cheat Lake, visitors have good reason to make Morgantown a destination and residents won't get bored.

These are positive developments that all cast our town in a good light — deserving of the star treatment.

West Virginians deserve

Many West Virginia families below the federal poverty line pay little or no federal income tax (thanks to President Bush's tax cuts), but are getting hammered on state income taxes.

tax cut from their state

The governor and Legislature passed bills to increase the salaries of the governor and state judges, but have offered no tax cuts for the majority of West Virginians.

If this state can give out fat pay raises and allow the retiring state superintendent of schools to leave with a $97,000 a year pension (I guess the $5.5 billion bond levy in June will be needed to support it), it can then give West Virginians below the poverty line a tax cut.

Some drivers appear to be color blind

Traffic congestion, frustrated commuters and polluted air are just three good reasons for changing how Morgantown operates traffic signals. It's not just about signals turning green, yellow and red. Just because the signals change color doesn't mean they are operating efficiently. The problem runs deeper. and could be fixed by an investment in signal timing which would result in:

- Shorter commute times; ■ Improved air quality;
- Better fuel efficiency;
- Decrease in accidents.

Sadly, no one has as yet figured out what to do about idiots that

I travel from Chestnut Ridge road to Rock Forge five days a week, between 3:30-4 p.m., and I have yet to see any police that even have a hint of all the traffic violations that are being committed. As the saying goes,"There's never a cop around when you need one.'

President's apology misses historical mark

BY NICOLE BOWMAN

President Bush's recent comment that the 1945 Yalta agreement helped cause "one of the greatest wrongs of history" that allowed the Soviet Union to annex Eastern Europe missed the mark.

He said, "We will not repeat the mistakes of other generations, appeasing or excusing tyranny and sacrificing freedom in the vain pursuit of stability." That's dandy, but if we're determined not to repeat our mistakes, we must realize them. And the mistake occurred long before Yalta.

The Soviet Union, unlike Western Europe, demanded in the League of Nations that forces unite to stop the growing fascist threat. Yet Britain, France and the United

GUEST COMMENTARY

States did nothing. Italy proceeded to conquer Ethiopia, and the Japanese war machine revved its engines in Asia. In Spain, only the Soviet Union came to the aid of Republicans in their battle against Franco's fascists. France, Britain and the United States embraced a policy of non-intervention. Spain fell.

In 1935, the Soviet Union signed a treaty with Czechoslovakia, obliging Soviet aid with the condition that France would also come to their assistance. It was France (imagine that) that betrayed Czechoslovakia and opened the door for Hitler's hungry army, despite Soviet pleas and pressure for joint intervention.

Again, we did nothing. In 1938, Hitler annexed Austria.

Once again, Western powers agreed to turn their heads and capitulate to Hitler. Stalin, after being repeatedly betrayed by Western Europe, became convinced that Britain and France were conspiring to push Hitler's army into the Soviet Union so that the two would bleed each other to death. So, he signed an agreement of strict neutrality with his bitter enemy.

The Soviet Union's use of the nonaggression pact with Hitler to expand into Eastern Europe is as reproachable as Britain's imperial control over Nigeria, Egypt, Sudan, South Africa, India; and France's colonial control over Indochina, Algeria, West Africa, Tunisia, etc. But if the United States, Britain and France had heeded the Soviet Union's warnings and joined its efforts to thwart Hitler's army before it began rolling through Europe, the USSR wouldn't have felt the need to create a "buffer zone" against the West.

So, Mr. President, before you try to elicit an apology from Russia for the Soviet stranglehold on Eastern Europe, swallow that great American pride and apologize for abandoning Europe long before Yalta. And only then can we say, "We have learned our lesson."

Darwin debate returns with new spin, same motivation

At a time when America's children need to learn how to compete with India, Ireland and other countries to which we are rapidly losing jobs, some Americans would rather fuss and fret about whether man evolved from the apes.

That's what I imagine the master lawyer Clarence Darrow would be saying if he were around to re-defend Charles Darwin's theory of evolution against today's version of creationism.

I'm sure Darrow would be amazed and amused at last week's events in Topeka. Eighty years after his famous defendant John Scopes was arrested for teaching evolution in Tennessee public schools, the Kansas state school board opened hearings to hear new challenges to the teaching of Darwin.

School boards in at least a dozen states are grappling with this new movement, even though a 1987 U.S.

Supreme Court ruling ended the forced teaching of creationism in tandem with evolution. In keeping with the modern age of media spin, the creationists have reframed their arguments under a new-fangled banner: "intelligent design." The label sounds about as elegantly nonthreatening as a Volvo ad, but beware before you buy into it.

Instead of insisting that the Bible's version of Creation be taught in schools, the ID argument merely asks that schools be required to mention there are alternative theories to Darwin's. ID movement icons like biochemist Michael Behe of Lehigh University argue the Earth must have been created through guided events, since everything is too complicated to have been created through random chance.

Since their theory only questions and does not actually state who the intelligent designer is, proponents of ID theory insist their movement is not like the old-style creationists who cited the Bible to explain everything.

That's their story and they're sticking to it. As long as kids are taught that an "intelligent design" is behind Creation, you might think that the ID movement is completely, objectively and dispassionately neutral on whether schoolkids learn about the Creator-God of the Old

MALLARD FILLMORE

Testament or some unseen, unnamed "force" like the one that empowers the Jedi Knights in "Star Wars." But it usually does not take long for

ID proponents to reveal their inner urges to crack the wall of separation between church and state. "Part of our overall goal." William Harris of the Kansas-based Intelligent Design Network told the British Broadcasting Corp., "is to remove the bias against religion that is currently in schools." Of course, when people talk about removing the "bias against religion" anywhere, it almost always means that they want to impose their religious values on schools and everybody else.

But it is important to note that the scientific community does not reject religion. In fact, many scientists are quite religious. Unfortunately, the theories and evidence put forth by ID theorists have not held up under the rigor of peer review, publication in journals and other standards by which the scientific establishment operates.

What, then, is the best way to deal with the teaching of ID? Most national and state science organizations boycotted the Topeka hearings in the belief that they were rigged against the teaching of evolution. But many other voices in the scientific community say that scientists need to understand the appeal of ID theory and help students sort out the questions it raises.

"For religious scientists, this may involve taking the time to talk to students about how they personally reconcile their beliefs with their research," says an editorial in the respected British journal Nature. "Secular researchers should talk to others in order to understand how faiths have come to terms with science. ... When they walk into the lecture hall, they should be prepared to talk about what science can and cannot do, and how it fits in with different religious beliefs.'

When I was growing up, my teachers never seemed to have trouble reconciling science with our religious views. Both were ways for us to understand the universe, they said. The questions that science could not explain, we answered with our faith.

We also learned that governments caused trouble when they used science as an excuse to trespass on the faith — or lack of faith — on others. That was not "the American way," we learned. I hope it does not become the American way now.

Cheat River gets fresh stock of trout in Preston

KINGWOOD — Only in Preston County, perhaps, do fish get a police

Preston Sheriff's Correctional Officer Norris Estep and other volunteers directed traffic along W.Va. 72 earlier this week for what's becoming a popular spring time ritual: Stocking the Cheat River with trout.

Retired educator Buzz Halderman was only too glad to lend a hand with the traffic control. After all, it was volunteering for something he loves.

"Fishing is my job now. Cutting grass and chopping wood are my hobbies," Halderman said, as he motioned on a truck whose rubbernecking driver was trying to catch a glimpse of the fish spilling from the stocking truck into buckets. Flying in the face of Division of tions that the river is too big, the banks too steep for access and water not clean enough, Trout for Cheat is in its fourth year of stocking fish. Last week the nonprofit group put 2,200 pounds of West Virginia grown rainbow trout into the Cheat, Trout for Cheat has stocked in March, April and May so far this year, and will stock again in September and October.

When the first committee was formed at a public meeting held by anglers disgusted because the DNR refused to stock the river, the hope was to pay for it with donations. Some money does come in, but the bulk of this year's stocking is being paid by $22,500 in grants obtained through the efforts of Preston Del. Larry Williams (D-45th) and Sen. Jon Hunter (D-14th).

'One of the criticisms we had was they wouldn't be able to survive here, and they're not only surviving, they're thriving," said Hunter, an avid fisherman who attended the latest stocking.

The project is also garnering interest in the Legislature. This past session, $500,000 was put in the budget "to create tourism through fishing and encourage aquaculture," Hunter said. Details are still being worked out on who will spend the money and for what purpose.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a federal law enforcement officer and proud of my job. I have worked hard to get to this position, and I would like to live to retirement.

Beckley

There are people in my community who know what I do for a living and feel compelled to tell everyone else. I don't wear a uniform, and I don't need everyone to know who I am. Many people would never guess what I do for a living, and that is fine with me.

If I'm in a social situation offduty, such as a restaurant, school function, church or beauty salon, invariably someone will see me and announce for all to hear, "Do you have your gun in your purse?' or they'll call me by my job title.

I deal with violent offenders who have family members and friends in the area. Those individuals may attend the same school as my child or the same church that I do. Please, Abby, ask your readers not to make our jobs more difficult than they already are. — OFFICER ANYWHERE, U.S.A.

DEAR OFFICER ANYWHERE: Your letter is an important one, because I'm sure you're not the only officer of the law who has encountered this problem.

However, because the individuals you mentioned continue to do it despite having been asked not to, my advice is to remind them that there are legal penalties for endan-

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you advised the mother of a girl who had confided that she is gay and wants to come out, that homosexuality has "nothing to do with parenting and everything to do with genetics." You need to retract that statement. If you do not publicly admit your error, I will know you are a mouth piece for the gay and lesbian crowd. — LEONARD IN LYNCHBURG

DEAR LEONARD: If I did not believe with all my heart that what I wrote is true, I wouldn't have put my thoughts on paper. Homosexuality is simply a variant of sexual orientation. Those who claim it is "unnatural" should direct their attention to Dr. Joan Roughgarden, a biologist at Stanford University with a Ph.D. from Harvard, who states that more than 300 vertebrate species have been found to practice homosexuality.

City paves way for new airport armory

Awaits state OK for road

BY ERIC BOWEN

The Dominion Post

Getting state approval for a new access road is the last stumbling block to building a W.Va. Army National Guard armory at Morgantown Airport, city officials said this week.

City Manager Dan Boroff said that the road would cost $2.5 million to build, and would connect the eastern edge of the airport to Monongalia County 857. He said the project would open a new area of the airport to development.

The state Department of Transportation must OK the access road.

The city plans to work with the Monongalia County Development Authority to submit applications for funding, most likely in June, Boroff said. He hopes to get money from state grants for industrial access or economic development.

'All of the major issues have been resolved except the proposed access road to the east side of the airthere are no binding commitments, it's just coming together in a productive way.'

Col. Mel Burch, construction and facilities management officer for the Guard, said the Guard is still discussing the project, and has not committed to building the armory. Before construction would begin, he said, approval for the armory and designing it would likely take until Burch said the Guard plans to build a new armory as part of a nationwide upgrade of its facilities. He said a new armory would be port," Boroff said. "At this point, roughly double the size of the current building on the Mileground.

A new armory would give the Guard the space it needs for expansion of its program, and larger training areas for the two current Guard units, the 249th Band and 201st Artillery, Burch said. The Guard is also talking with other units to see if they would join forces in constructing a new building.

Burch said Morgantown is a good spot for a Guard unit because it is a growing community. And the airport is an ideal spot because it's close to the current site and has easy access to flights.

"We think that's a prime loca-units where the people are and the population centers are. It's mutually beneficial for both the airport and the National Guard.'

Boroff said that a new armory would also benefit the city.

He said building the armory at Morgantown Airport would open up the east side of the property to development, and give better access to the airport from Interstate 68. Construction of the armory also would require the Guard to build the necessary water and sewer lines to the

Hoop dreams come true

Morgantown boy gets basketball court from Make-A-Wish group hen the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Northern West Virginia asked Michael Dehlin for a wish, the 7-year-old leukemia patient said he didn't want to go to Disney World.

BY NATALIE NEYSA ALUND

Michael, of Morgantown, said he wanted something that lasted — something he could

And that's exactly what he got.

Seven cement trucks rolled onto his parents' property on the Kingwood Pike on Tuesday, dumping 4,200 square feet of cement into a large hole in his backyard. A hole that would soon be filled with his own, personal full-size basketball court.

The $20,000 court was provided through the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Northern West Virginia.

Since 1980, Make-A-Wish has granted 127,000 wishes for children with life-threatening illnesses.

Bobbie Spear, area foundation events specialist, said Hoy Concrete in Morgantown donated the cement and Target Constructions in Rivesville poured and finished the cement Tuesday. March-Westin of Morgantown provided excavating and electrical Duane Yost, of Gene D. Yost & Son Drilling in Morgantown donated 3-foot-by-8-foot bleachers and WVU's Chi-Omega sorority raised funds to put in the court's flooring. Both are slated to be installed sometime next week.

Make-A-Wish paid for the court's backboards.

Michael, who aspires to be a basketball star, spent most of Tuesday's sunny morning riding around in the cement trucks — ignoring the large, wooden swingset and above-ground pool in his family's backyard.

His mother, Crystal Dehlin, said her son was fixated on the new court, imagining himself on it, dunking like his favorite basketball star, Michael Jordan.

Dehlin said her son was diagnosed with cancer two years ago.

She said she was thrilled to see her son get his wish granted after his suffering through almost two years of grueling cancer treat-

"Then he's done and hopefully it will be gone," his mother said.

Dressed in a white basketball jersey and matching shorts, Michael, a member of Morgantown's Covenant Christian School Basketball team, frequently glanced out his home's back window at his new, prize pos-

"I'm excited," he said, while sitting on a basketball autographed by the WVU men's basketball team — his favorite team.

Michael raised his eyebrows when his mother said he might be able to bounce a ball on it around 5:30 that night. The men said the cement should be dry by then," she said.

For the past year, Michael has practiced with makeshift basketball hoops including a decrepit, plastic hoop located off the back porch of his home and a decorative crock beside his dining room table.

"He and his father (Mark Dehlin) shoot the ball into that crock every night," his mother said, rolling her eyes.

But no more.

Michael now has a 50-by-84-foot basketball court that could easily accommodate a college basketball team. And in a week or so, that's exactly what it will do.

WVU's basketball team will hit the court to shoot hoops with Michael.

But not before the team and basketball players from Trinity Christian High School in Sabraton install the flooring. Michael's 17-yearold brother Steven Dehlin is on that team.

Michael told local Make-A-Wish representatives that he wanted a basketball court but was worried he'd fall and scuff his knees on cement or asphalt.

So Make-A-Wish arranged to cover the property, which could then be used for other customers.

To further the project, Morgantown City Council agreed last year to donate 30 acres of unused land on the eastern edge of the airport property to construct the armory. Boroff said the city is now putting together applications to fund the access road, and hopes approval for the road will come through soon.

"When you step back and think of it, a light industrial park located adjacent to the airport and the interstate — what a real attractive facility that would be," Boroff said.

Don Gallion, chair of the Hart Field Coalition, a group promoting development of the airport, said building a new armory is important for the future health of the airport. Aside from the industrial park, he said the armory could bring in new hangars or aviationrelated businesses.

Gallion said that members of the coalition have disputed the location of the armory in the past because it might make the airport's cross-wind runway unusable. But he said the economic benefit of bringing in the armory to the airport outweighs those concerns. 'There's a lot of debate about exactly where the armory will sit over there," Gallion said. "Those are still all issues that are up in the air. I think getting the armory is the most important at this point."

"So if Michael falls, he won't fall on a hard surface and it will be eas-

"Now that he's almost done with the chemo, he'll be feeling better and able to utilize it more," Nicholas

"These types of wishers are the heart of what we do because the child is really seeking out what they want," she said.

Typically, she said, a majority of the wishes granted are for Disney trips. But the agency has provided two backyard play sets and a hot tub to other area children.

At Michael's house, as the cement set and dried Tuesday, Michael shot baskets into the dining room crock, glanced out the window at his new toy and dreamed of his future in the NBA.

"I can't wait to get out and shoot." he said grinning ear to ear.

WVU rifle team's funding secure? Not by long shot

ED PASTILONG MUST WAKE UP every morning feeling like Joe DiMaggio in the summer of '41. That was the year DiMaggio hit safely in 56 consecutive games.

Like the great Yankee Clipper that summer, WVU's Pastilong must roll out of bed thinking, "What wonderful thing will happen today?

Pastilong and the athletic department he runs are on almost as hot a streak as DiMaggio, the latest good news a $1.175 million gift to spin the school's wrestling facility from straw to gold.

If it isn't Mike Puskar offering a helping hand filled with money, it's the Hazel Ruby McQuain Charitable Trust. If it isn't a bid to the Gator Bowl, it's a basketball run to the finals of the Big East championships and then to the Elite Eight of the NCAA Tour-

If it isn't a new gymnastics facility, it's a new soccer stadium.

Why, even in what seemed to be a worrisome defeat — Gov. Joe Manchin's veto of the line item in the yearly budget that directed $100,000 to be used on the school's cherished rifle team — there was victory, as WVU President David C. Hardesty Jr. vowed the $100,000 would still be made avail-

So, all is well on the rifle front. Or is it?

The public seems to be assuming that since the $100,000 is there, the rifle team is secure. It is not.

In truth, the team needs a minimum of $160,000 to meet its commitments, and that only covers expenses, doing nothing to increase the endowment that must reach $3.5 million to guarantee the team's future. The rifle team needs money

To get it, the rifle team through the school's rifle club, which is the fund-raising arm of the organization and is working in conjunction with the Star City VFD — is in the midst of setting up its July 30 Gun Bash, at Mylan Park, as part of Mountainfest. A year ago, the team held its first Gun Bash at the White Horse Educational Center and Mud Pit. In theory, it was a success. In practice, it was something of a disaster as the weather and then conflicts about expenses cut the expected $200,000 take to about $140,000.

So this year the site has been changed, from Barbour County to our area, and while there is no Orange County Chopper as grand prize, a Chevy 4-Door Silverado LS ain't exactly what you'd call a booby prize.

There will also be a Fleetwood GearBox camper and Harley-Davidson motorcycle among the 211 prizes, one given away every two minutes.

While $250,000 in prizes is quite a carrot, to date people aren't biting with the same enthusiasm as a year ago. Perhaps it's because they don't have the sense of urgency, and that would be a fatal mistake.

The team must sustain itself, and this is its major fund-raising

The $100,000 from the school is only the bread without the peanut butter and jelly.

That comes from the Gun

Right now the group is in need of understanding, which it believes will translate into ticket

It needs people to purchase tickets and sites to sell them, even though tickets are currently available at more than 50 area locations

The list, obviously, is too long to run here and Mark Sellaro, chairman of the Gun Bash, would certainly like to let you know where you can get or sell the tickets if you contact him at 288-0316 or call 293-4397 at the university. So let's not let Pastilong's hot streak end here.

Grid stars go different directions

North-South show time for MHS trio, may be last time for UHS pair

BY BOB HERTZEL

The Dominion Post

For three of the heroes of Morgantown High's run to a state football championship, this year's Wendy's North-South All-Star Classic will serve as a showcase for their talents, but for two University High players it will serve as maybe one final chance to play the game of football.

Selected to the powerful North team from MHS's 14-0 team are tailback Spencer Farley, wide receiver Migel Lockett and kicker Patrick Shadle. From UHS are tackle Chris Swecker and running back Gaspar Golden.

While Farley, Lockett and Shadle carried MHS to the top, Swecker and Golden had to be carried off the field with injuries, missing much of the season and leaving UHS with virtually no chance to reach its potential.

"It's pretty exciting that they will get one more chance to play football," Hawks coach John Kelley said. "They are both very, very special. They worked very hard and basically lost their senior seasons, missing seven and six games.

"It was devastating to them and devastating to us when we lost them," he said. "Had they had their senior years, both should have been all-state."

The injuries cut into their chances to play college football. While Farley is headed for Ohio U., Shadle for Syracuse and Lockett

"It's pretty exciting that they will get one more chance to play football. They are both very, very special."

> UHS coach John Kelley on Chris Swecker and Gaspar Golden for Southwest Missouri State, neither Swecker nor Golden landed a football scholarship.

Golden is going to attend Fairmont State and may walk on there.

"For him to go to college is a good thing," Kelley said. "He wants to be an elementary teacher and maybe become a coach."

Swecker turned down a couple of small-school scholarships, at Charleston and at Washington & Jefferson, and will attend WVU and concentrate on his academics.

As for the Morgantown players, the annual North-South all-star affair -at 7:30 p.m. June 18, at Charleston's Laidley Field — will give them a chance to show what they can do in-state for one last time.

"It's going to be nice for Spencer to get a chance to play in a spread offense," MHS coach John Bowers said. "With the coaches they have and the athletes they have, they're going to be able to do some things to show the fans statewide how good Farley was good enough to score 54 touchdowns this past year while averaging 10.2 yards a carry. He rushed for 2,361 yards.

Lockett's talents should be on display, too, considering that he'll have Martinsburg quarterback Nate Sowers to throw him the ball. Lockett caught 42 passes for 678 yards and 11 touchdowns and returned four punts for TDs.

Shadle broke the state record for kick scoring, with 105 points on 84 extra points and seven field goals.

"It will be his chance to culminate as storied a prep career as you can have," Bowers said. "I don't know how many three-time first-team allstate kickers have come through

Preston High runner Jason McNair lunges back to the first base bag on a pickoff throw to East Fairmont's Matt Pizatella, iin Tuesday's sectional playoff game.

Preston powers way into baseball regional again, 13-4

PREP ROUNDUP

BY MICHAEL CASAZZA The Dominion Post

KINGWOOD — It must have been two-for Tuesday at Preston good theme," baseball coach Dave Blaney said. It started with Andrew Carey's

"I think that would be a pretty three-run home run in the third inning, his second sectional home run in as many years against East

Jeremy Davis and Tyler McNair followed with back-to-back homers in the fourth inning before Davis hit his second two-run home run an inning later.

Add it all up and Preston won its second straight game for the first time in a long time to clinch a second straight Region I, Section 4 title. The Knights swept the series with a 13-4 victory and another strong offensive outburst.

"Our lineup 1-to-9 is solid," Davis said. "Everybody's got a chance to get the big hit at any time. We make every at-bat count. Everybody had an at-bat to help us win this thing. It wasn't one guy doing everything. You don't score 13 runs with one guy."

Davis was 2-for-4 with two runs and four RBIs, and his two-run shot in the fourth inning scored what proved to be the game-winning runs once again. On Monday, he singled in the seventh inning and a error in the field allowed the decisive run to score.

McNair was 4-for-4 with three runs and two RBIs and Carey was 2-for-3 with three RBIs.

In the series, Preston scored 22 runs and batted .414 (29-for-70) with two doubles, two triples and four home runs. A day after eight players each had at least a hit, the Knights had nine of 10 players get a hit, nine reach base and seven score a run.

"If you come up to bat with a runner on third and no one out, you know if you get out the next guy coming up is going to get him in.'

The Knights (11-10) started the season 4-0 before hitting a bump with the schedule and the weather that didn't allow them to hit their stride like they have all of a sudden. After not advancing past the sectional once from 1996-2003, Preston moves on again and will play the winner of the North Marion-Fairmont Senior sectional in singleelimination format in the regional.

"I like our senior experience," "That takes a lot of the pressure said Blaney, who has eight seniors off of everyone else," McNair said. on his roster. "We're hitting the ball all the way through the lineup now and we've overcome some deficits. And when it comes down to a one-game situation, I don't care how deep you are, everyone's rested so you have a chance.' On Monday, Preston came back from 6-0 and 8-3 deficits and won, 9-8. The Bees (6-20) took a 1-0 lead in the second inning Tuesday, but it didn't last long. McNair tied the score in the third with an RBI, and after a walk and a strikeout, Carey ripped a ball down the right field line and over the fence.

Cee-Bees' Hall ready for 'next year' now

Sprint standout vows victories in the 100, 200

BY JOSH STROPE

The Dominion Post

There's always next year. It's an old saying used by everyone who doesn't win a championship or comes in second place.

For some, "next year" is a comfort. But it's been eating at Clay-Battelle sophomore sprinter Shalanda Hall since the 2004 track season. "I've thought about it all year,"

Hall said. "Since that day, I've practiced hard and I'm in the best shape of my life because I don't want to lose

So far, she hasn't.

At the 2004 state tournament, Hall lost to Camai Roberson, of Gilmer County, and Jasmine Cotton, of Fayetteville, in the 100-meter dash. In the 200, she came in third again, behind Roberson and Erica Williams, also of Gilmer County.

They were her only losses since seventh grade. "I didn't like the feeling of losing last year and I'm not going to make it two," Hall said.

Hall is the No. 1 ranked runner in the 100 and 200 in Class A. In preparation for regionals, C-B coach Ted Cline loaded the schedule to give Hall tougher competition.

This season, Hall has won the Ritchie County Invitational, the Doddridge County Invitational, and the Hancock Tri-State Invitational. At these meets, she has faced top runners from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Ohio, and has defeated them all.

"The tougher the competition, the tougher she gets," Cline said.

During the Hancock Tri-State Invitational, Hall set a school record in the 100 with a time of 12.46. This year, no one has come close to the time. Cotton's current best is 12.64 — a difference of 5 to 10 meters.

"She's working harder this year, twice as hard," Cline said of Hall. She has perfected every phase of her game.

While Hall claims she is calm, she admits that as the state meet nears, the nerves will kick in.

"Last year, I wasn't worried about beating anyone," Hall said. "This year, it's totally different because I'm thinking about my future." Pretty hefty thinking for someone with two more years of high school, but Hall is confident her talent will carry her to a Division I

Unlike distance runners, sprinters don't have time to think about their next move or those around

That suits Hall just fine. "My basic focus is to get across the finish line in first. Once I pass people up, my mind goes blank.'

While Hall gives the Cee-Bees their best chance to win, Cline is "tickled to death" about the rest of the team, ranked No. 8 in Class A.

Jeannette Herrington is ranked eighth in the state in the long jump, and Thomasine Campbell is No. 1 in the discuss and No. 2 in the shot put.

"We sent five girls to states last year, and this year we will be taking 11," Cline said.

The regionals are held today, at Wheeling Park.

Bellamy Road hurt, out of the running

Bellamy Road, the beaten Kentucky Derby favorite owned by Yankees boss George Steinbrenner, is off the Triple Crown trail with a minor injury to his left front leg. The injury was discovered Tuesday at Churchill Downs, and will keep Bellamy Road out of training for the next month, trainer Nick Zito told the Web sites of The Daily Racing Form and The Blood-Horse. Zito, who was in Kentucky on Tuesday, did not immediately return telephone calls for comment. His assistant, Tim Poole, confirmed the injury. Bellamy Road, who finished seventh behind long-shot winner Giacomo in Saturday's Derby, was under consideration for the Preakness on May 21 before the injury. The Belmont Stakes, the final leg of the Triple Crown races, is June 11. The injury is in the area behind the knee, and is caused by too much stress on a bone that results in its outer covering becoming inflamed. In racing parlance, it's called "popping a splint."

College football

Murray (Ky.) State coach Joe Pannunzio was reinstated. He had been on paid administrative leave since April 29 following the campus arrests of a player and former player on drug trafficking charges.

College basketball

■ Auburn scoring leader Toney Douglas will enter the NBA draft but has not hired an agent, leaving open the possibility of a return for his sophomore season. The 6-foot-1 guard averaged 16.9 points, fourth in the Southeastern Conference.

■ Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim agreed to a four-year contract extension this week. Boeheim, who has been head coach since 1976, had two years remaining on his current contract.

Baseball

Houston put first baseman Jeff Bagwell on the 15-day disabled list because of a sprained right shoulder. The move was made retroactive to May 4. Bagwell, 36, is hitting .250 with three home runs and 15 RBIs.

Tennis

Andre Agassi struggled in cold, wet weather, losing, 6-2, 7-6 (5), to Feliciano Lopez, in the first round of the Hamburg (Germany) Masters, a clay-court tuneup for the French Open, which begins May 23.

Track and field

The Court of Arbitration for Sport, in Lausanne, Switzerland, heard an appeal in a case that could result in a U.S. relay team losing its gold medals from the Sydney Games. Jerome Young, who already has been stripped of his medal because of doping, was on the winning 1,600-meter relay squad at the 2000 Olympics.

Hockey

NHL commissioner Gary Bettman and players' association executive director Bob Goodenow will hold labor negotiations today and Thursday instead of going to the world championships.

Administration

The NCAA put Nicholls State, in Thibodaux, La., on probation for four years because an academic adviser and assistant football coach did course work for more than two dozen athletes. The university's proposed penalties, including forfeiting football and basketball victories and cutting scholarships in those sports, were accepted.

Legal

A judge in Bloomington ruled Indiana University trustees did not break the law when they met to hear plans to fire coach Bob Knight. No more than four of the nine trustees — not a quorum met at any one time with then-university president Myles Brand, the judge said in a ruling.

NCAA adjustments improve grades for scores of teams

Connecticut men's basketball moves above cutoff mark

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Revisions to the NCAA's new report card on academic standards moved dozens of teams off the failing list, but dropped others into danger of punishment.

The adjustments released Monday by the NCAA resulted in nine football programs and six men's basketball teams moving above the cutoff line for possible penalties, which could include the loss of scholar-

The most prominent programs revised to now have passing scores are the men's basketball teams at Connecticut, Temple and Houston, along with the football teams at Oklahoma State and Wyoming.

The revisions also moved 20 teams that initially had passing scores to the failing list, including the football teams at Tennessee and Mississippi State, the men's basketball teams at Iowa, Utah and Washington, and UCLA women's basketball.

The NCAA said the revisions to the preliminary report, released in February, leave 61 football teams, or 26 percent, below the cutoff score, the worst of any sport.

The next worst sports were baseball, with a 21.5 percent failure rate, and men's basketball at 18.4 per-

Overall, 10 percent of men's teams did not meet the academic standards; 2.6 percent of women's teams were subpar.

The schools had through March to correct any reporting errors. Some schools criticized the initial results, pointing out errors and saying low scores could hurt recruiting. Teams that consistently fall below the cutoff could face sanctions includtom of the inning, but after Chad Chambers walked to lead off the fourth, Davis drove a ball over the fence in right-center and McNair followed with a shot in a similar spot. Both got a boost from a strong wind that normally blows in, but was blowing out on this day.

"I can't remember it going out like that, but it helps a great deal," Davis said. "It seems like the elements have been going against us all season, but we finally got something going for us and it couldn't have come at a better time.

His second home run, an inning later, didn't need the help and had no trouble getting out of the deepest part of the park in left-center.

The offense, unfortunately, overshadowed the pitching of Chambers. He allowed five hits and two earned runs and struck out six. He faced just one batter over the minimum and struck out three in the final three innings.

"He was outstanding," Blaney said. "We'd been using him in relief, but he gave us some quality innings. We thought we might have to worry about him in the sixth or seventh, but it looked like he got stronger as it went on."

To collectors, Pope John Paul II baseball card hardly holy grail

Owner having trouble finding someone to buy it at price he wants

The sports trading card generating the most buzz among collectors right now doesn't feature a baseball, basketball or football player. This captivating athlete was a soccer goalie who also liked skiing, swimming, hiking and kayaking.

His name: Pope John Paul II. A one-of-a-kind card featuring the pontiff's autograph was released earlier this year by Topps, the best known maker of baseball cards. When the pope died this past month, collectors wondered whether anyone had found the card and what it might fetch in a marketplace suddenly sizzling for all things John Paul.

The location has been determined. A collector in Stockton, Calif., beat 1-in-135,475 odds and plucked the pope rarity out of a $1.50 pack of otherwise ordinary baseball cards about two weeks before the pontiff died. The day before the pope's funeral, he sold the card to Jeff Hoekstra, the manager of a collectibles store in nearby Modesto.

How much is it worth? That's what Hoekstra is trying to find out.

He paid into four figures for the card, then immediately took it to eBay seeking a hefty profit. His first auction closed at $8,100 but the sale fell through, so he offered it up again for $6,999 but got no takers. His third try began Sunday and expires next Sunday. Like the first time, he started bidding at a penny and will take whatever he can get.

Hoekstra said his first posting drew so much interest within the first hour that "if someone had offered $15,000, I would not have taken it. ... I thought I could get about $25,000 or $30,000.

Now, however, "my thinking is, day by day, this card is getting less and less valuable," said Hoekstra, who is 32 and not Catholic.

While the card's value may be dropping, interest in it remains

It's on the cover of the upcoming issue of Beckett Baseball, a leading trade publication, and many media outlets reported the $8,100 'sale" this past week. Hoekstra's initial eBay posting has drawn 13,400 hits, with more than 600 coming since the auction closed.

"The lure of this card is very much his recent death and the fact the pope was an extremely popular world leader," Beckett Baseball editor Mike Payne said. "Even if he was still living, I think the card would bring a significant figure."

Why Topps even made a pope card is a story itself.

SPORTS TECH NEWS - 2005

New lure's catch rate may be

About a decade ago, card makers rejuvenated their industry by putting "inserts" into a limited number of packages. The prizes had natural tie-ins, like autographs and pieces of jerseys and bats. Topps stretched the boundaries in 2004 with cards featuring autographs of every U.S. president.

Since George Washington isn't around to give his John Hancock, Topps used "cut signatures" - autographs cut out and embedded into a card. While historians might be horrified, it's an accepted, authenticated practice. And collectors love it.

So Topps responded with two sets this year: the 48-card World Treasures collection featuring a lineup of historical heavy hitters such as the pope, Napoleon Bonaparte and Winston Churchill; and a 51-card Power Brokers series that ranges from John Paul Getty and P.T. Barnum to Thomas Edison, Martin Luther King Jr. and Helen Keller.

'By taking autographs of some of the most famous people who have ever lived, it really attracts new collectors," Topps spokesman Clay Luraschi said. "That's our biggest thing. We want to bring people into the hobby.'

The cards actually are pretty bland. There's no picture, just the autograph on the front and a short bio on the back.

Why would anyone pay so much for it, especially when a pope-signed, official Vatican photo of John Paul and Mother Teresa recently went for $1,750 on eBay?

"Really, it's about bragging rights," Payne said. "You can buy a pope autograph cheaper, but Mr. Deep Pockets wants this one.

WVU tops Akron on Fritz's hit

AKRON, Ohio - Lee Fritz's oneout single to left with the bases loaded in the top of the 11th inning helped WVU to a 6-5 victory against Akron, on Tuesday.

Fritz went 3-for-5 for the game and knocked in three of the Mountaineers' runs.

Ryan Hill pitched an inning in relief of starter Kenny Durst to record his third victory. Todd Dunham entered the game in the bottom of the 11th, after Hill surrendered a leadoff home run to Marcus Geiselman, and worked out of a jam.

After Geiselman's home run, Dunham put the tying run on base when he plunked Charlie Lenhard. Jim Bonnette sacrificed Lenhard to second, but Dunham got Shaun Hinseen to pop out to second and Vince Chiera to fly out to left to notch his sixth save.

Durst was cruising along with a 4-0 lead until giving up a four-run sixth. Durst almost got out of the inning leading by a run, but WVU third baseman Justin Jenkins couldn't handle Hinseen's grounder to keep the inning alive. Durst then balked in the tying run.

The Mountaineers (23-26) got a run in the first, when Fritz doubled in Jenkins, who reached on a fielder's choice. WVU scored two more in the third. Tyler Kuhn led off with a double to left center and Jenkins followed with a double to right. Fritz moved Jenkins to third when he reached on an error by Chiera, and Jenkins scored on Stan Polsuszny's double-play ground out.

WVU added a run in the fifth. Kyle Matuszek's ground out to short scored Fritz, who reached on a walk.

Kuhn had three hits and Jenkins added a pair of hits for WVU, which managed 11 hits for the evening. Akron reliever Steve Williams took the loss, giving up a pair of earned runs in $2^2/3$ innings. Akron (20-24) had won seven of nine games entering the contest. The Mountaineers play Friday, at Villanova, to start a three-game Big East Conference series.

Curiously, the company may have designed it too well. Tournament fishermen who have used it said it's possible officials will not allow it in contests where live bait is prohibited. They claim it swims more realistically than anything they have ever seen. If so, that would hurt the company's promotional efforts. Winning tournaments is an important part of marketing a new lure. Fish would probably prefer to see it restricted. I watched eight veteran fishermen test the new lure (called The KickTail*) on a lake outside Orlando FL for about four hours. Four used the KickTail and four used a combination of their favorite lures and shiners (live bait). The four using the KickTail caught 41 fish versus 14 for the other advantage can mean thousands of dollars to a fisherman, and hundreds of thousands in sales to the company.

The KickTail's magic comes from a patented technology that breaks the tail into five segments. As water rushes by on retrieval, a little-known principle called aeronautical flutter causes the tail to wag left and right, as if the lure were propelling itself with its tail. Unlike other hard baits, the head remains stationaryonly the tail wags. A company spokesman told me this.

New lure swims like a real fish--nearly triples catch in Florida contest.

"Fish attack live things, and they determine if something is alive by watching its movements. Marine biologists will tell you that the more a lure swims like a real fish, the more fish it will catch. Well, the only live thing the KickTail doesn't do is breathe. It's better than live bait! It lasts longer and it never hangs half-dead from a hook. It's always swimming wild and free. Fish can't stand it. We've seen fish that have just eaten go for the KickTail. It's like having another potato chip.

Increases catch almost 3 to 1.

"To make the KickTail even more lifelike, we gave it a natural shad color and shaped it like the most prevalent bait fish of all, the threadfin. Game fish gobble up more threadfin shad than any other baitfish.

"We knew the KickTail would outfish other lures. It had to. Other lures wobble their heads and swim on an angle. But 41 fish to 14? That's huge! I tell you, in ten seconds anyone who has fished a day in his life knows this little swimmer's a home run. Fishermen reserved thousands of KickTails before we produced it! Here, reel it in and watch it swim toward you. Can you tell the difference between it and a live fish? (I said no.) Neither can the fish.

"The flutter technology also allows the KickTail to swim at the water's surface. Other top water lures must be worked to have any live action, or have a bill that makes them dive on retrieval. Our diver version is the only deep crank bait that let's you do tricks like 'walk the dog.' Twitch it at deep levels and it gives an irresistible, lifelike action. Other lures 'dig.' And there's no need for rattles. The five tail segments click together as you pull it through the water, calling fish from a distance." Whether you fish for fun or profit, if you want a near 3 to 1 advantage, I would order now before the KickTail becomes known. The company even guarantees a refund, if you don't catch more fish and return the lures within 30 days. There are three versions: a floater for top water, a diver and a "dying shad" with a weed guard for fishing lily pads and other feeding spots. The company says it's the only hard bait of its kind in existence. Each lure costs $9.95 and you must order at least two. There is also a "Super 10-Pack" with additional colors for only $79.95, a savings of almost $20.00. S/h is only $6.00 no matter how many you order.

Bucs' Perez will miss a start

Pirates' ace has a case of stiffness in his pitching shoulder

ROUNDUP

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Pittsburgh Pirates ace Oliver Perez will miss his scheduled start today because of stiffness in his left shoulder.

Right-hander Josh Fogg will pitch on three days' rest in place of Perez in the finale of a three-game series with the San Francisco Giants.

Pirates manager Lloyd McClendon hopes Perez, 1-4 with an 8.03 ERA in seven starts, will miss only one outing, then pitch again next Tuesday or Wednesday, at home, against the Chicago Cubs. The Pirates have three off days in the span of a week, which should give the left-hander plenty of time to recover and regain some confidence.

His throwing shoulder began bothering him after his start Fri-

"I started feeling sore and tight," said Perez, who threw Tuesday. "The next day, I was feeling the same. I couldn't sleep good. ... Right now, I don't feel any problems."

He will throw on the side under the direction of pitching coach Spin Williams once the team returns to Pittsburgh. Perez dealt with similar stiffness in the back of his shoulder during spring training.

"I'm targeting the Chicago series, but we'll see how it goes," McClendon said. "It makes all the sense in the world that we give him extra time and let him recuperate."

McClendon has sensed for some time there might be something bothering Perez, who has lacked the control he has shown in the past.

■ Baltimore placed Sammy Sosa on the 15-day disabled list. He failed to respond to treatment for a nagging foot injury. Sosa is batting .269 with four homers and 13 RBIs in 27 games.

■ San Francisco placed ace righthander Jason Schmidt on the 15day disabled list with a strained right shoulder. Schmidt, an 18-game winner in 2004, is 2-1 with a 4.71 ERA and hasn't won since April 10.

■ With Jason Giambi's batting average down to .195, Yankees manager Joe Torre and general manager Brian Cashman met with Giambi and asked him whether he would consider accepting a minor-league assignment.

MIAMI — The D-Train is back

'Almost perfect' Willis

True, attendance no longer doubles when Dontrelle Willis takes the mound. Florida Marlins fans no longer wear engineer's caps or wave cardboard choochoos, and Willis no longer draws comparisons to another charismatic pitcher with a neat nickname, Mark "The Bird" Fidrych. But Willis is dominating N.L. hitters again, just as he did as a rookie, in 2003, when he inspired D-Train mania and helped revive the Florida franchise. Unlike oneseason sensation Fidrych, Willis shows signs of staying power, making comparisons to Luis Tiant or Juan Marichal more apt. The gangly, fidgety left-hander with the high leg kick and herkyjerky delivery has won his first six starts and leads the major leagues with an ERA of 1.07. He'll try to become the first seven-game winner tonight, against Houston and Roy Oswalt.

"He has been almost perfect," teammate Mike Lowell says.

"When you come to your job for two years," Willis says, "you start to know exactly what you need to do."

Not that he struggled when first called up to the major leagues. Willis won nine of his first 10 decisions, sparking the Marlins' improbable surge to the World Series title. He made the All-Star team and won the N.L. rookie of the vear award.

But by the postseason, Willis had been relegated to the bullpen. In 2004, he faded after an impressive April and finished 10-11 with a 4.02 ERA, prompting speculation hitters had adjusted to his deceptive delivery.

This season he leads the majors with three complete games, including shutouts in his first two starts.

Willis is 22-6 lifetime before the All-Star break and 8-11 afterward. But the Marlins believe he can sustain his fast start because he's in peak condition thanks to a rigorous offseason regimen with teammate Juan Pierre, a close friend and fitness fanatic. Also in the lefty's favor: Though still just 23, he can draw on 399²/₃ innings of experience, making him a more wily Willis.

"He has developed into a pitcher." manager Jack McKeon says. "In 2003 he ran through a pretty good streak where he was exciting the crowd, and the crowd was exciting him, and he was working the crowd. Now he's able to focus on the game. He has come a long way."

Cut fat in favorite recipes

FLAVOR

It's that dreaded time of the year again. No, not when we have to start cutting the lawn, but the time some of us contemplate wearing bathing suits and shorts. Despite what they say, wearing black and vertical stripes does not make you look slimmer. An Orca whale still looks like a killer whale, even though it is wearing skin-fitting black. The only thing left to do is seriously go back to eating healthy and light.

Almost everyone agrees that to have a healthy diet a person should have portion control and reduce their intake of fats and sugars (which are commonly referred to today as "carbs"). Because I like to cook and eat, this is not as easy as it sounds. I have a lot of recipes I've collected over the years that I like to make and they taste really good. So I have had to figure out how to modify them to make them filling, healthy and still good-tasting.

One good way to reduce fat is to use reduced-fat or fat-free products. These have really improved over the last few years. However, if you are making something more bland, like macaroni and cheese, "zing" it up by adding a half teaspoon of jalapeno sauce or a teaspoon of horseradish.

In most casserole-type dishes, turkey can be substituted for the meat. Be sure to use the turkey breast meat. Most regular ground turkey also contains the dark meat, which is about as healthy as regular ground beef.

Because portion control is so important, I have worked to have high-volume and low-calorie/-fat meals. Sometimes this can be easily accomplished by adding vegetables. Try adding sliced or diced carrots to chili. It really "bulks" it up and doesn't add a lot of additional calories.

This is one of my favorite recipes, "Ravioli Lasagna." In the original recipe, which is for four servings, there are about 900 calories per serving. This serving is half a loaf pan, which is a very large serving. By reducing the serving size and cutting it into six servings, which is 1/3 a loaf pan and still a good size serving, the calorie count is already reduced to 600 calories per serving. Unless you are trying to sneak some spinach into your family's diet, you can make the cheese and spinach layers separately.

To get the recipe down to something even healthier and lower in calories, substitute low- and reduced-fat products. When baked in a casserole dish, nobody will even know it is healthy. I substituted low-fat products for almost every ingredient, such as Egg Beaters for the eggs and fat-free cottage cheese for the ricotta cheese. It also was healthier to use light cheese ravioli instead of the regular ravioli. The end result was six servings of delicious lasagna with only 300 calories/serving. Because I am single, I found I could make half the recipe using the 9-ounce package of ravioli and have three servings. I really like spinach, so I used the whole 10 ounces as a single layer in my lasagna. If you don't like spinach, you can substitute any vegetable you prefer or even skip the layer completely.

South Florida Sun-Sentinel (KRT) True Mexican food is not the kind most Americans know. Instead, it is very regional and varies dramatically from area to area. Authentic regional Mexican cuisine is varied and healthful because many dishes are made up of chilies, beans, corn, nopalitos or cactus pads, fresh herbs and tart limes.

Although it is essentially peasant food, many Mexican recipes are created with celebrations and family in mind. Most ingredients can be found in supermarkets and Latin American gro-

Peanut Chews to soon be sold nationwide

SUPERMARKET

CHEW-ETS Peanut Chews. Original Dark and Milk Chocolaty. 65 cents per 2-ounce bar. Also available in 3.3-ounce bars, and 8- and 14-ounce bags of miniatures.

Bonnie: Like many Northeasterners, I grew up eating Peanut Chews. With the recent sale of the brand to Marshmallow Peeps-makers Just Born, these chewy chocolate-covered peanuty candy bars will now be available nationwide.

The first and primary ingredient in each Peanut Chew is protein-rich peanuts, although if all the corn syrup, sugar, molasses and dextrose were combined and listed as "sugars," they'd probably be first. Nutritionally, Peanut Chews are similar to Snickers, containing the same amount of protein (5 grams), similar amounts of sugars (about 28 grams), but also 2 to 3 grams MORE total fat.

The original regional Peanut Chews were all-natural. No longer. To keep these "fresh" on their trips across the country, the new owners added non-natural ingredients, including the preservative TBHQ. If that's progress, I'll vote for stasis and keeping foods regional.

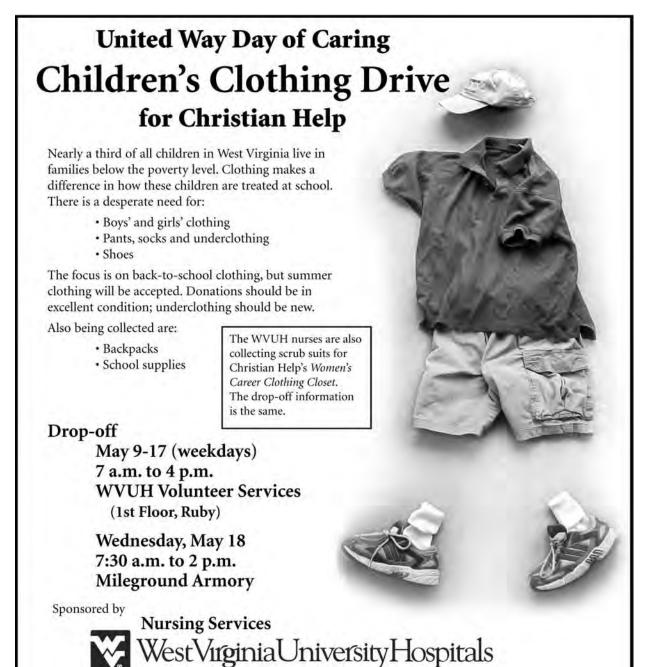

Carolyn: All you Southerners. Midwesterners and Westerners: Get ready for a treat. The Just Born candy company is in the midst of launching Goldenberg Peanut Chews nationally. They're a delicious pair of chocolate-coated candies featuring peanuts and molasses that were previously available only in the East.

In ingredients and taste, the milk chocolate variety is actually quite similar to a Snickers, except it's much chewier and comes in pieces (like Almond Joy and Mounds).

But East Coasters need to be prepared for a few changes. Only dentists should mind the way new owner Just Born has made Peanut Chews centers slightly softer. I don't even mind how the molasses taste in the milk chocolate has been toned down to something more like caramel (and more like the best-selling Snickers). The reason? I prefer the bracing molasses flavor in the original dark chocolate variety, and its recipe hasn't significantly changed.

But I am sorry to see that Just Born is now calling this candy only Peanut Chews, instead of Goldenberg Peanut Chews, as they've been known regionally since David Goldenberg invented the candy back in the early 1890s. Just Born was apparently afraid an ethnic name wouldn't fly outside its urban East Coast strongholds.

Twin fins fun for the young; book counts alcohol's carbs

A couple of Aussies have landed at a winery in the town of Gonzalez, on California's central coast, to make a line of wines that are so relentlessly laid-back and breezy they figure they can sell them to the 25- to 35-year-old crowd instead of the 45-to-death crowd that drinks most wine.

They're called twin fin wines, (that's right: no capital letters). and the retro-style label has a 1950s Caddy convertible with a surfboard sticking out the back. (Winemakers Hugh Reimers and

The British expats who make a lot of the port in Portugal are bemused by the American habit of buying vintage port and drinking it within a couple of years. Purists and traditionalists will often wait decades.

Alistair Robertson, chairman of the Taylor, Fladgate port house, has come up with "late bottled vintage" port. Regular vintage port is aged a couple of years in wood barrels, then bottled and aged for many more years under glass. The late-bottled stuff is aged four to six years in barrels and is ready to drink as soon as it's bottled. Some good the real saffron given that it is about $100-plus an ounce and safflower is $1.19 an ounce.'

She said the safflower and turmeric are good substitutes, if you don't use too much.

The red safflower petals have the similar color-enhancing property as that of saffron and were used in place of it in medieval Europe. Turmeric also has intense colorinfusing ability and is what puts the bright yellow in ballpark-style mustard. The annato seeds, a must for Caribbean, Mexican and Spanish cooking, didn't fare well with the panel as a good saffron substitute.

Saffron and its substitutes are usually added by infusing them in the butter, oils or water used in preparing the dishes. One standout feature of the real saffron over the substitutes is its smooth combining ease.

"Safflower does not dissolve as readily as the saffron," panel member Trudy Kennedy Grimm said.

In spite of that perk, Hooie said it still wasn't worth it to buy pricey saffron unless a person has especially picky taste buds.

"I don't think my palate is that discerning," Hooie said. "I will probably use safflower or turmeric, which I really liked."

Hooie conceded that the luxury of cooking with real saffron is nice.

"Saffron is wonderful," Hooie said. "The real saffron was the best, but it's so expensive that I just can't justify it. "I'm just cheap," she added with

"Antisemitism and Its Opponents in Modern Poland" is a collection of 14 essays by Polish and American scholars. The writings address various aspects and effects of anti-Semitism in modern Poland, from the role of the Catholic Church to the breakdown of Polish-Jewish relations.

Blobaum came up with the idea for the book and compiled the research team. He also wrote the introduction and one of the essays and translated several of the Polish authors' contributions.

Zellweger and Chesney married

BY MAT PROBASCO

CRUZ BAY, U.S. Virgin Islands — Bridget Jones has finally tied the Actress Renee Zellweger, who played the lovelorn Brit in "Bridget Jones's Diary," was married Monday to country music star Kenny Chesney in a small ceremony on the Caribbean island of St. John in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

The ceremony took place in front of close friends and family, Los Angeles-based publicist Nanci Ryder said in a statement. It is the first marriage for both.

The bride wore a dress designed by Carolina Herrera, she added.

Chesney, 37, grew up in east Tennessee and now lives on the island of St. John, while Zellweger, who turned 36 two weeks ago, is from

The wedding reception was held Monday night at Chesney's house in the gated community of Peter Bay, on the north side of the island. Guests could be seen milling around a garden where there was an outdoor buffet and light music playing.

The couple and about 45 guests gathered Sunday night at Rhumb Lines restaurant in downtown Cruz Bay, the main town on the island. according to restaurant employees.

Zellweger won a best supporting actress Oscar for "Cold Mountain." She was nominated for Oscars for her work in "Chicago" and "Bridget Jones's Diary."

Chesney currently has two albums on Billboard's top 10 country albums chart, and his single "Anything But Mine" is No. 6 on the magazine's hot country songs list. Chesney was named Country

Music Association entertainer of the year in November, while his 'When The Sun Goes Down'' was named album of the year. Other of his hits include "Me and You" and "She Thinks My Tractor's Sexy."

According to Country Weekly magazine, Chesney long ago named Zellweger as his favorite actress and was inspired to write his 1999 hit "You Had Me From Hello" after seeing her in "Jerry Maguire."

Zellweger appeared at a recent Chesney concert in Jacksonsville, Fla., presenting him with a margarita and a kiss on stage, Country Weekly magazine reported.

Zellweger has dated White Stripes singer Jack White and "Me, Myself & Irene" co-star Jim Carrey.

Yoakam dons cap, gown for honorary doctorate

Country music singer and actor Dwight Yoakam wore cowboy boots with his cap and gown when he got an honorary doctorate from Ohio Valley College.

Yoakam was invited to give the commencement address Saturday by the Rev. Keith Stotts, chancellor and former president of Ohio Valley College. Stotts baptized Yoakam when he was a boy attending the Cleveland Avenue (now Northland) Church of Christ in Columbus, Ohio.

Yoakam joked his way through most of his speech. "The future will be the past catching up to you," he said. "Avoid it. If you can't avoid it, deny, deny, deny." Afterward he spoke with each graduate and gave them autographed pictures. Vienna Mayor David Nohe gave Yoakam the key to the city. "I'll use it wisely," Yoakam told the mayor who declared Saturday "Dwight Yoakam Day." Yoakam has received 21 Grammy Award nominations and won the award twice. He has sold more then 23 million albums and acted in several films.

McCready in legal spotlight again

A former boyfriend of country singer Mindy McCready has been charged with attempted murder after allegedly breaking into her home and beating her up.

William McKnight was also charged with aggravated burglary in the incident early Sunday. He was being held Monday in lieu of $130,000 bond.

McCready, who had a No. 1 hit in 1996 with "Guys Do It All the Time," was treated and released at a hospital following the attack, according to broadcast reports.

Last week, McCready, 28, was charged with drunken driving after police stopped her in the upscale suburb of Belle Meade for speeding. She was also charged with driving on a suspended license and failure to consent to the breath test, according to police. She was freed on $3,500 bond. McCready later denied the charges, although she did acknowledge speeding.

McCready is on three years supervised probation after pleading guilty to fraudulently obtaining the painkiller OxyContin at a suburban pharmacy in February 2004, using the name of a friend on the prescription.

Danza has go-kart scare

Tony Danza got quite a scare when he and NASCAR star Rusty Wallace were racing go-karts during the taping of a segment for the nationally syndicated "The Tony Danza Show."

Danza was leading as they entered the final lap on West 66th Street Monday morning, the show said. After Wallace gave Danza's vehicle a little "bump and run," the 54-year-old talk-show host lost control of his go-kart and flipped over.

"Although slightly worse for wear, Danza escaped with no injuries," the show said in a statement.

The Morgantown Arthritis Walk is one of hundreds taking place around the country in May — National Arthritis Month — to benefit the Arthritis Foundation.

Locally, the walk is scheduled for 10 a.m. May 21 at Hazel Ruby McQuain Park.

Funds raised will support Arthritis Foundation research, community-based programs and services and advocacy initiatives to help people prevent, control and cure arthritis, the nation's No. 1 cause of disability.

"Arthritis affects 70 million Americans, or one in three adults and approximately 300,000 children. Contrary to popular belief, it is not an inevitable part of aging — nor is it something that should affect the quality and enjoyment of daily activities," said Deb MacDonald, chair of this year's Arthritis Walk. "There are many things we can do to prevent arthritis from imposing limits on our lives — from beginning a walking program to funding research for others — and the Arthritis Walk provides us with a motivating and fun way to do both."

"The Arthritis Walk is a perfect starting point for people to help themselves and others," said Michelle Grimm, executive director of Arthritis Foundation. "We encourage all of our employees and business associates to join us and the Arthritis Foundation in the fight against arthritis by joining a team and participating in the Arthritis Walk."

For more information about participating in the Walk, contact MacDonald at 293-2081 or at dmacdonald@hsc.wvu.edu. For more information about arthritis and the Arthritis Foundation, visit www.arthritis.org or call (800) 283-7800.

Keep it casual and healthy when dining out

According to the National Restaurant Association, we eat out about 290 times per year, and that can add up to more calories than we ever dreamed, especially when we choose casual dining restaurants such as Outback, Applebee's and T.G.I. Fridays.

To make matters worse, it's not easy to get nutrition information for many of these restaurants. However, I've come up with a few healthier choices and tips keep in mind when you decide to go casu-

Applebee's

Applebee's has teamed up with Weight Watchers to create some excellent low-calorie dishes. Most portions are the same size as on the regular menu, which means Applebee's is using better cooking techniques and healthier ingredients, not just giving you half the

- Onion Soup au Gratin: 150 calories, 8g fat.
- Grilled Shrimp Skewer Salad: 210 calories, 2g fat.
- Teriyaki Shrimp Skewers with rice pilaf and vegetables: 290 calories, 2g fat.
- Grilled Tilapia with mango salsa and steamed vegetables: 320 calories, 6g fat.
- Mesquite Chicken Salad: 250 calories, 4g fat.

Fit Tip: Steer clear of the Bleu Cheese Sirloin, which is likely to be well over 1,200 calories. Don't be fooled by the sandwiches and roll-ups; they're high in calories, too, especially with fries, cheese and sauces. Avoid all the "Neighborhood Favorites," which look dangerous. If you really want dessert, you can probably fit in the Chocolate Raspberry Layer Cake (230 calories, 3 grams fat).

Red Lobster

Don't think that seafood is always healthy. There's plenty of unhealthy, fried, buttery seafood out there. However, the Light-House menu makes it easy.

- Live Maine Lobster (1 1/4 pound) with a baked potato topped with pico de gallo and a garden salad with red wine vinaigrette: 431 calories, 8g fat, 53g carbs.
- Jumbo Shrimp Cocktail Dinner with seasoned broccoli and wild rice pilaf: 511 calories, 8g fat, 50g carbs.
- King Crab Legs: 490 calories, 9g fat, 0g carbs.
- Fit Tip: At Red Lobster, you can get the tilapia, rainbow trout or salmon in full or half orders, so you can save calories on portion size. Substitute cocktail sauce whenever a dish comes with a side of butter — it saves 115 calories per serving. And pico de gallo on your potato adds only 6 calories, which definitely beats butter! Avoid the Shrimp Lover's Combo, which basically fries up healthy food and makes it unhealthy.

Olive Garden

- Minestrone Soup: 164 calories, 1g fat.
- Linguine alla Marinara: 551 calories, 8g fat.
- Capellini Pomodoro: 644 calories, 14g fat.
- Chicken Giardino (ask for whole-wheat pasta): 560 calories, 15g fat.
- Pork Filettino with grilled vegetables: 340 calories, 9g fat (estimate, does not include demiglaze or marinade).

■ Salmon Piccata with vegetables: 440 calories, 21g fat (estimate). Fit Tip: Stick with Garden Fare choices, designated with an olive branch. Also, shave calories by ordering lunch portions. And order Low Fat Italian Dressing (37 calories per serving) or Low Fat Parmesan Peppercorn Dressing (45 calories per serving) for any salad. Assume that the non-Garden Fare items have more than 1,000 calories, especially the creamy, fried and cheesy dishes.

Ruby Tuesday

They've removed trans fat and switched from hydrogenated soybean oil to trans-fat-free canola for cooking. They also provide a Smart Eating menu.

■ Salad Bar Extravaganza: Avoid the high-calorie dressings. nuts and croutons. Go for the light ranch at 55 calories per ounce. ■ Petite Sirloin: 222 calories, 8g

- fat. ■ Smart Eating Onion Soup — NOT French Onion: 198 calories,
- 13g fat. ■ Asian Steamed Dumplings (appetizer): 486 calories, 21g fat. Split this with someone or have it as a meal; there are six
- dumplings. ■ Turkey Burger Wrap with a side of creamy mashed cauliflower: 574 calories, 28g fat.
- Fit Tip: Avoid the Buffalo wings at 912 calories. The salads are also high in calories — the Carolina Chicken Salad has 847 calories. Many of the "low-carb" items are high in calories.

More on fits and misfits

Henry Miller wrote, "America is no place for an artist: to be an artist is to be a moral leper, an economic misfit, a social liability. A corn-fed hog enjoys a better life than a creative writer, painter, or musician. To be a rabbit is

This deal occurred during a women's international match many years ago. At the first table, North tried two no-trump. I suppose if one must bid, it is as good as anything, giving partner a little room to maneuver. South went back to three diamonds - what do you think of that?

Three diamonds ended the bidding and had to fail by one trick.

Between you, me and the paperboy, South's three-diamond rebid stinks! North's two no-trump ought to promise some diamond fit. With a seven-card suit, and a side ace and king as potential entries, I think it is automatic to raise to three no-trump, ex-pecting partner to cruise home without difficulty. At the other table, Fritzi Gordon, North for Great Britain, sanely passed. Then, when East was still there with two hearts (what a hideous action!), Fritzi delightedly doubled. This went four down, declarer drop ping a trick in the play. Passing smoothly with a good hand when you and your partner have a misfit may reap an unexpected wind fall if an opponent cannot resist bid-

95 townhouses in the works near Westover

Kris Warner heads development of Flagship Ridge

BY ERIC BOWEN

The Dominion Post

Standing on a tiered plateau overlooking the Monongahela River and Morgantown on Tuesday, developer Kris Warner pointed out the sights from his property above

The western end of Monongalia County spread out on one side, while Preston County was visible on the other. Over a mild downslope, the red brick of WVU rose over the roof of the Radisson Hotel. Dorsey's Knob Park stood on the other side of the river.

"You're at eye level with Sky Rock," he said.

Warner's property off Dupont Road will be filled with townhouses during the next several months as his company begins construction in June on a new development called Flagship Ridge. Warner, who announced this week he would step down from his post as state Republican Party chairman, has been planning a townhouse development there since

The 23-acre site will house 95 units, broken up into separate buildings with up to three units in each.

Kris Warner describes a new townhouse development that will be going up in Westover.

Starting at $179,900 for a twobedroom unit, each townhouse will have two stories of living space sitting on top of a garage, Warner said. Units will vary from two to three bedrooms, with covered patios and decks.

Warner said the development will also have a mile-long walking trail that will go through the woods on the property. It will connect with a playground and recreation area on the northern part of the development.

Because of the separate buildings, Flagship Ridge will not look like a typical townhouse project, Warner said. The buildings, which will be visible from around the area, will look like large houses.

"It's not until you get right up to it when you realize (they are) townhomes," Warner said. "We've taken a lot in thinking about how the units are going to look.'

Townhouses have been selling rapidly in the Morgantown market, according to Dave Yoder, a Realtor and developer who built to move here, not because there's the White Birch Towers condominiums along the Mon River in Morgantown.

He said the units appeal to the parents of WVU students and to young couples who are buying their first home. Most of the development is going in north of town, close to the WVU Health Sciences center and new development in Suncrest.

Townhouses are the hottest thing on the market today," Yoder said. "We're running out of land right north of the medical cen-

Warner said he wants to tap into the rapid pace of sales for townhouses, while still providing a neighborhood feel. He said the company has protected buyers against speculators who want to buy into the neighborhood just to turn around and sell it again.

Units at Flagship Ridge will likely go to new families and investors who want to rent to families, Warner said. The development will appeal to family buyers because it is close to schools and because of amenities like a walking trail and playground.

"As you go into other places where a number of homes are being built, you don't get the sense of community or neighborhood," Warner said. "We think people who are going to move here are going to purchase a home because they want nothing else out there.'

Though the project is not in the city of Westover, Mayor Cliff Ellis said he welcomed new development on the city's doorstep. Ellis said he wasn't sure if Warner would want to be part of Westover, but he plans to talk with the city's annexation committee about bringing the property into the city limits.

Ellis said having Flagship Ridge join the city could be mutually beneficial. Westover would gain tax revenues, while the development would gain police protection garbage service and easy access to the city's fire department.

"How much we're going to gain from it, I don't know," he said. "Hopefully the city can get all of these people in one of these days.'

Warner said that it would be up to the city of Westover whether to $% \left\{ 1\right\} =\left\{ 1\right\}$ annex the property, according to his assistant, Belinda Knight, who coordinates sales and designs for Flagship Ridge.

Regardless of whether it's in the city or the county, Warner said he expects Flagship Ridge to be a successful development. He said the company has received a lot of interest from Realtors and buyers looking for what the townhouse project has to offer.

'Morgantown is just phenomenal right now," he said. "It's just exciting to be part of that."

Four Preston students take top honors at horse competition

The team is coached by Preston High agriculture teacher Laah Wolford and practices at Deerview Training Center of Kingwood.

It's the third time Wolford has taken a team to the judging. In the past, it placed eighth and ninth. Wolford said the improvement was because of "practice, and I had two people who came back from last year's team, Staci and Sara.

Morgantown students compete in national MATHCOUNTS contest

Four students from Morgantown represented the state in the national MATHCOUNTS competition in Detroit last weekend.

The West Virginia team placed 23rd among 57 teams competing. A team from Texas won the competition.

Three of the local team's members – Matt Zitney, Alex Jones and Colin Kemp — were from Suncrest Middle School. The fourth student, Nicholas Horvath, was from St. Francis DeSales Central Catholic School. Kemp is a seventh-grader, the other three are in eighth grade.

The team's coach, Suncrest math teacher Lois Swineford, said the event's sponsor, General Motors, paid all travel and lodging expenses for the team. While in Detroit, the students toured one of the carmaker's facilities and visited a virtual reality lab. The local contestants were awarded scientific graphing calculators. In order to advance to the national contest, the students had to first advance through regional and state competitions. Nationwide, about 500,000 students compete in MATHCOUNTS.

China won't shut off oil to pressure N. Korea

U.S. fears nation preparing to test nuclear weapon

Knight Ridder Newspapers

BEIJING — China declared flatly Tuesday that it won't reduce fuel supplies to North Korea to discourage that country from testing a nuclear weapon.

"We are not in favor of exerting pressure or imposing sanctions. We believe that such measures will not necessarily have an effect," Foreign Ministry spokesman Liu Jianchao said.

North Korea receives most of its energy through a pipeline from China. Trade between the nations also is rising quickly, providing economic support to the isolated regime of Kim Jong Il.

Trade relations between China and North Korea — or the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, as it's known — shouldn't be linked to the nuclear issue, Liu said, and won't be affected by the "worrying developments" on the Korean Peninsula.

"The normal trade links between China and the DPRK will continue,"

A senior U.S. diplomat, Christopher R. Hill, visited Beijing late in cut off oil deliveries to North Korea as a way to prod the regime back to six-nation disarmament talks.

In the past week, U.S. officials in Washington have cited satellite images indicating that North Korea may be preparing a nuclear test in Kilju, in the northeast of the country. The images, while not conclusive, show workers closing a tunnel with rock and concrete, consistent with plugging a site for an underground nuclear test, and possibly even preparing a viewing stand.

U.S. intelligence officials, however, say they don't know whether the North Koreans are planning a test or staging a show in an attempt

April and reportedly asked China to to force the United States to make concessions.

> North Korea formally declared itself a nuclear power on Feb. 10, saying it had "manufactured nuclear weapons" to defend itself from attack by the United States.

Some U.S. officials think that a North Korean nuclear test probably would prompt Japan, South Korea and Russia — all parties to the sixnation talks along with the United States, China and North Korea — to urge the Bush administration to show more flexibility.

A Chinese scholar on North Korea, Jin Linbo, said China's refusal to cut oil deliveries had raised skepticism abroad about its determination to rein in Pyongyang's nuclear ambitions, but that the stance was consistent with China's foreign pol-

"The Chinese government is reluctant to put any kind of pressure on another country, including North Korea. It's China's diplomatic philosophy," said Jin, the director of the department of Asia-Pacific studies at the China Institute of International Studies.

China is believed to have cut off oil to North Korea in March 2003 for three days, citing "technical reasons." The suspension was seen widely as a way to punish North Korea for resisting regional talks on disarmament.

'A victory of all decent people over evil'

Germany dedicates national Holocaust memorial

Associated Press

BERLIN — Germany dedicated its long-delayed national Holocaust memorial Tuesday, a field of closely set concrete slabs in the heart of Berlin that tries to summon the helplessness of 6 million Jews killed by the Nazis.

However, Germany's most prominent Jewish leader expressed concern at the ceremony that the memorial is too abstract to convey as powerful a message as authentic places of suffering, such as former death camps.

Parliament President Wolfgang Thierse joined Jewish delegates, Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder and other dignitaries at the opening of the sprawling memorial near the landmark Brandenburg Gate.

Today we open a memorial that recalls Nazi Germany's worst, most terrible crime — the attempt to exterminate an entire people," Thierse said. He called it a sign that the big, reunited Germany that emerged at the end of the Cold War "faces up to its history."

An undulating field of more than 2,700 slabs designed by American architect Peter Eisenman, the Memorial to the Murdered Jews of Europe is on a site resonant with both the terror of German history and the vibrancy of today's reunited Berlin.

Adolf Hitler's bunker once lay nearby. For 28 years, the site was in the no man's land of the Berlin Wall built by communist East Germany to keep people from leaving during the Cold War. Germany reunified after the wall fell in 1989.

Holocaust survivor Sabina van der Linden riveted the audience with a deeply personal story of loss, terror and survival in Nazi-occupied

An 11-year-old girl when the Wehrmacht occupied her town in July 1941, she was sheltered at great risk by a Christian family and later

In a message of reconciliation that won the longest applause of the afternoon, she said there could be no collective guilt for Germans and that her survival represented "a victory of all decent people over

"What have I learned?" said van der Linden, of Sydney, Australia. "I have learned that hatred begets hatred. I have learned that we must not remain silent and that each of us must fight discrimination, racism and inhumanity.'

Schroeder, visibly moved, clasped van der Linden's hands as she left the podium.

Because of the abstract design, the memorial's backers decided to add an information center with exhibits on Hitler's campaign to wipe out European Jews.

But Paul Spiegel, the head of Germany's Central Council of Jews, said the memorial remains "incomplete," in part because some visitors might not go to the exhibit.

"Partly for this reason, it would have been desirable to point out the motives of the perpetrators and thereby allow a direct confrontation with the crime and the perpetrators," he told the ceremony.

He said the memorial and the wrenching debate about it showed that it is less a place for Jews to recall the Holocaust than for Ger-

Jewish places of remembrance are former concentration camps, mass graves and "the many places in Germany where synagogues and community centers went up in flames," he said.

Six million Jews perished in the Holocaust — in the Nazi gas chambers or in medical experiments, worked to death, starved or killed in other ways.

The completed field already draws sightseers, kept out by a metal construction fence that will come down Thursday, when the memorial opens to the public.

Eisenman said Monday he wouldn't mind skateboarders, children playing hide and seek, or even graffiti among the slabs. Asked if it would demean the project's meaning if someone scratched Nazi symbols on it, he was noncommittal. "Maybe it would. Maybe it wouldn't," Eisenman said. "Maybe it would add to it.

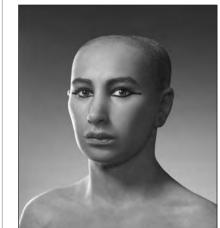

The opening will end a long and winding journey for the project, first proposed by writer Lea Rosh in 1988. After years of debate and hesitation about how Germany should remember Holocaust victims, politicians rallied behind the idea in the late 1990s Wrangling over details persisted even after Eisenman's final design was approved in 1999. People argued over whether it should commemorate non-Jewish victims as well or, given the lack of symbols, whether it should be more overtly

More controversy came from the use of an anti-graffiti coating made by Germany's Degussa, which was co-owner of the company that made the Zyklon B poison gas used by the death camps. The panel overseeing the project decided to go ahead and use the coating, but the controversy slowed the project.

Thierse said he expects controversy over the memorial to continue — "not necessarily the worst thing that could happen," he said.

Israeli defense minister: Gaza pullout will occur

JERUSALEM — Israel's withdrawal from the Gaza Strip will not be called off under any circumstances, the defense minister said Tuesday, rebuffing suggestions by the foreign minister that the pullout should be canceled if the Hamas militant group wins Palestinian parliamentary elections this summer.

The comments by Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom on Monday raised new questions about the government's readiness and commitment to the pullout plan. Adding to the uncertainty, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon confirmed Monday that the withdrawal would be delayed by three weeks until mid-August out of respect for an annual Jewish mourning period that ends Aug. 14.

Defense Minister Shaul Mofaz on Tuesday brushed off suggestions of further delays. Speaking on Army Radio, he said "the disengagement will not be canceled" even if Hamas, building on gains in recent local elections, wins parliamentary balloting scheduled in July.

"The disengagement is a complex, historic and heartbreaking move that puts the Israeli government to a very difficult test, but is vital to its future," Mofaz said. "I think we must carry out the disengagement under any circumstances."

Egypt moves toward multicandidate election

CAIRO, Egypt — In a major step toward multicandidate presidential elections, parliament Tuesday overwhelmingly passed a constitutional amendment proposed by President Hosni Mubarak amid calls for reform during his 23-year authoritarian rule.

Parliament, a 454-seat house dominated by Mubarak's National Democratic Party, had been expected to adopt the amendment. A referendum will follow, possibly later this month, to ratify the amendment. The election is scheduled for September, but the 77-year-old Mubarak has yet to announce whether he would seek a fifth, six-year term.

Mubarak has so far been elected in simple "yes" or "no" votes in which he was the sole candidate. He proposed opening the door to other candidates for president in a surprise announcement in February. Parliament approved the amendment first by a show of hands and later by an official roll call, with 405 deputies voting in favor and two abstaining. Speaker Fathi Sorour did not say how many voted against the measure, but at least 20 opposition and independent deputies were seen leaving the chamber during the

Bush celebrates democracy in Georgia

Thousands greet president in former Soviet republic

Knight Ridder Newspapers

TBILISI, Georgia — President Bush issued a call to freedom Tuesday from the rubble of the former Soviet empire, telling tens of thousands of cheering Georgians that their struggle for liberty set an example for the entire world.

Speaking in a town square that once symbolized communist oppression, Bush pledged America's help to nations that are trying to shake off tyranny and dictatorships. The president, who's made the promotion of democracy the centerpiece of his second-term foreign policy, expressed confidence that time would prove him right.

"Freedom will be the future of every nation and every people on Earth," he said. "By extending liberty to millions who have not known it, we will advance the cause of freedom, and we will advance the cause of peace."

In celebrating Georgia's drive for democracy, Bush drew parallels between recent democratic movements in nations once captive to the former Soviet Union and the far more complicated and bloody effort to bring democracy to Iraq.

While democracy is on the march in Eastern Europe, Bush's quest to spread it across the volatile Middle East faces great obstacles, from the insurgents of Iraq to the ingrained autocracies of Egypt and Saudi Arabia to the Syrian shadow over Lebanon. Bush praised Georgia for sending 800 troops to Iraq.

Rapid pulse needs to be diagnosed

DEAR DR. GOTT: Last summer, my 10-year-old son began experiencing episodes of rapid pulse that were related to swimming. The cardiologist concluded that everything was "fine." But I don't believe that this symptom is fine at all.

DEAR READER: I agree with you. In my opinion, your son should have a Holter monitor (to measure his heartbeats from second to second for 24 hours), blood tests to check for anemia or a thyroid disorder, an echocardiogram and an electrocardiogram. The tests should indicate if your son is developing a heart condition (such as a valve disorder). On the other hand, if the testing is normal, you can relax and encourage him to exercise more regularly.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 80 and in good health. However, I began having nightly chills. My doctor examined and tested me; everything was normal. Finally, he suggested that I have a TB test. How is this related to my chills and night sweats?

DEAR READER: In the presence of a hidden infection in the body, a person may often experience symptoms such as yours. Tuberculosis is always a possibility, which your physician wisely urged you to have checked.

PEANUTS

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had suffered for years because my nerves were on edge. I cried for no reason, got frightened if the telephone rang and became scared if someone slammed a door.

Three years ago, my doctor prescribed Ativan. Since then I have had no panic attacks. I take one 0.5-milligram pill at night, and another one during the day if I feel overly anxious.

Is this medicine doing me harm?

DEAR READER: Your use of Ativan is not excessive. I believe that this situation is an excellent example of what I have previously referred to as the "risk/benefit ratio," the identification of the benefits, when compared to the hazards, of any medical treat-

Judging from your brief note, I conclude that your life was, in the past, fraught with terrors that threatened you on a number of levels. You — and your doctor have successfully brought your fears under control, with very little risk. (Ativan is not addicting in the modest dosage you have been taking.)

So, my advice is to keep following your physician's advice. In my view, the risks of Ativan are far outweighed by the benefits.
