Young adult referrals are climbing at the nonprofit agency, which provides services to young adults and teens with delinquency, drug abuse and underage drinking problems. MAYSP receives referrals from courts, schools, family members and the state Department of

Point Marion church celebrates in new building after fire

BY JUDY BEAVAN The Dominion Post

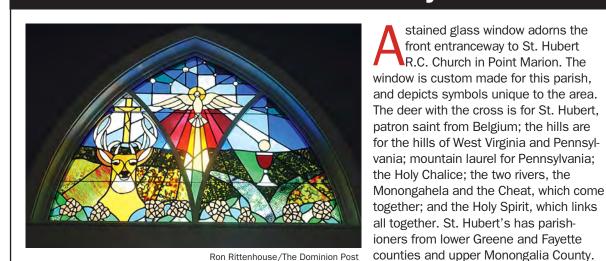

Thanksgiving Day Mass at St. Hubert Roman Catholic Church in Point Marion, Pa., will hold an extra special meaning for parishioners this year.

This will be the first celebration at St. Hubert's since the church was destroyed by two fires Nov. 25, 2003, just two days before Thanksgiving.

The Rev. Joseph Sredzinski said the church was without a parish for 22 months, but held weekend masses at the Point Marion Area Lions Club and baptisms and funerals in the Railroad Street Skating Park, thanks to those organizations.

"We are quite thrilled to have this new building," Sredzinski said.

Tropical Storm Gamma kills six in Central America

System could threaten South Florida this week

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — Tropical Storm Gamma deluged the coast of Central America on Saturday, killing at least six people — three in flooding in Honduras and three in the crash of a small plane belonging to a Belize lodge owned by the filmmaker Francis Ford Coppola.

Forecasters said Gamma, the 24th named storm of an already recordbreaking Atlantic hurricane season, was likely to stay out to sea as it moved past Belize and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula. The storm had top sustained winds near 45 mph and was expected to stay well below hurricane strength of 74 mph, the National Hurricane Center said in Miami.

Gamma was likely to speed up and turn northeast Sunday, sending it across the northeastern Caribbean and toward western Cuba, forecasters said. On that path, Gamma would cross Cuba but skirt the Florida Keys and the Florida mainland Monday.

Earlier forecasts showed Gamma following a course similar to the one taken by Hurricane Wilma, which barreled across south Florida on Oct. 24, causing 21 deaths, damaging homes and triggering power outages. "We're out of the cone of danger," said Jennifer Pralgo, a hurricane center meteorologist. She warned that the storm could again change paths and turn toward Florida, but forecasters did not expect a substantial change in strength in the next day. At 4 p.m. EST, the storm was about 215 miles east-southeast of Belize City and about 45 miles northeast of Limon, Honduras.

Gamma brought torrential rains to much of Central America, especially Honduras, where flash floods slowed the flow of emergency aid, said Luis Gomez, the country's emergency coordinator.

"People who are cut off or affected by the rains should ration water and food on their own because we won't get to them until weather conditions improve," Gomez said.

He said at least three Hondurans had died and 13 more were missing, but had no further details

The soldiers were assigned to the 101st Airborne Division and were on patrol near Beiji, 155 miles north of Baghdad, the statement said. A day earlier, a soldier from the 101st Airborne whose vehicle was rammed by an Iraqi car Thursday near Beiji died of his injuries at a German hospital, the military said. At least 2,090 members of the U.S. military have died since the war began in March 2003, according to an Associated Press count.

The funeral was attacked at sunset while dozens of people were offering condolences to Raad Majid, the head of the municipal council in Abu Saida, for the death of his uncle, police officials said. Abu Saida is near Baqouba, 35 miles northeast of Baghdad.

Dog starts fire that causes $2K damage to home

Associated Press

JAMESTOWN, N.D. — A pit bull left home alone jumped on top of a stove, turned on a burner and started a fire that caused about $2,000 in damage, officials said.

"It's kind of a freak accident," Fire Department Capt. Jim Reuther said.

The dog, named Satchel, climbed on the stove and stepped on a push-button control that turned on a burner, said the dog's owner, Josh Larson. The burner ignited something plastic on the stove top.

"I just can't believe it," Larson said. "It's just unreal."

Firefighters extinguished the blaze on the stove top. No other residents of the apartment building were affected.

ebrating our 96th anniversary of the faith community."

The church was established in 1909 by Belgian immigrants who came to Point Marion for the glassworks companies.

"Our Patron Saint is St. Hubert," Sredzinski said. "St. Hubert was a woodsman and a hunter in Belgium. One day he saw a deer with a cross in its antlers, and that's what brought about his conversion. The Belgian immigrants came to Point Marion and established this parish."

The 2003 fire started in the early morning hours of Nov. 25. Volunteer firefighters from Point Marion, Collier, Smithfield, Haydentown and Fairchance, Pa., worked for more than two hours to contain the blaze that started in a corner of the sanctuary and spread up the wall to the ceiling and roof. More than 40 firefighters were on scene for three hours.

By 4 a.m., the church has suffered water and smoke damage, but Sredzinski thought it could be repaired. Sometime between 6:30 and 7 a.m., however, the fire rekindled on the roof, and this time firefighters could not save the structure.

The fire was ruled an accident, perhaps caused by a votive candle or faulty wiring.

The new church was dedicated Sept. 17 by the Most Rev. Lawrence Brandt, Bishop-Ordinary of the fourcount Diocese of Greensburg. Pope Benedict XVI sent the small parish a congratulatory plaque, which hangs in the church's front entrance. The church at 9 Sadler St., was built on the same site as the one that

"But where the old church had 10 steps on either side, which made it difficult for older parishioners to enter the church, our new one is street level," Sredzinski said.

Sredzinski said the building was moved back from the street giving enough room in the front for a car to drop off passengers.

The sanctuary is lined with stained glass windows, the lower portions salvaged from the burned church.

"The windows up to the bend are ones we were able to save. A craftsman added pieces and then the top, which gives the window a Gothic effect," he said.

The church also has a Chapel of Adoration, a prayer room, accessible through side doors of the

"The doors are open," Sredzinski said, "and there are five gates around the chapel, which overlook the sanctuary, but are locked."

Parishioners Verna Cullen and Geraldine Heft were cleaning the church Friday, preparing it for Thanksgiving Mass.

Cullen, who has lived in Point Marion since 1947, and has been a parishioner at St. Hubert's since, said the church is special.

"We are so thankful for this, that we were able to rebuild. We have a lot of older folks here, and there are no stairs to climb. It's beautiful."

A Point Marion resident since 1968, Heft agreed. "It is so nice to be able to have Mass here. When the sunlight shines through the windows, all of the pews and sanctuary are one big rainbow," Heft said.

Parishioners will bring nonperishable food items to church on Thanksgiving Day to restock local pantries — just as they were doing in 2003 when fire raged through the old wooden structure.

"All of the food will be given to the local food bank for distribution to the needy," Sredzinski said. 'We are pleased to be celebrating Holy Mass and the 96th anniversary of our faith community, right here in St. Hubert's.

Pakistan says $5.4 billion in quake aid raised

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — International donors have pledged $5.4 billion in quake aid to Pakistan, surpassing the amount sought by the government for relief and reconstruction, the prime minister said Saturday.

Pakistan had hoped to get $5.2 billion for rebuilding from the Oct. 8 quake, which killed 86,000 people in Pakistani territory and another 1,350 in neighboring India. Before the conference, which was attended by about 50 nations, pledges totaled $2.4 billion.

JAKARTA, Indonesia — An earthquake with a magnitude of at least 6.2 struck off the coast of Sumatra on Saturday, triggering a tsunami alert, officials said. There were no immediate reports of a tsunami, damages or casualties.

The quake's epicenter was located off Simeulue island, about 160 miles southwest of Medan on Sumatra's northwest coast, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. It struck just after 9 p.m. local time.

Indonesia's Meteorology and Geophysics Agency put the quake's magnitude at 6.2, but the USGS said the magnitude was 6.5.

The quake strongly jolted nearby Nias island and was felt in Medan, said Subagio, an official at the Indonesian agency's Jakarta office who goes by a single name.

Simeulue island is near the epicenter of the Dec. 26 quake that caused a massive tsunami, killing or leaving missing more than 220,000 people in 11 Indian Ocean countries. Sumatra was the hardest hit, losing some 128,000 people.

The Pacific Tsunami Warning Center in Hawaii said there was no threat of a tsunami to Pacific coastlines, but quakes of this size can sometimes generate local tsunamis along coasts within a few hundred miles of the epicenter.

A team of German and Indonesian scientists are installing a tsunami early-warning system along the coast of Sumatra, and it is expected to be operational by year's end.

The system of sensors on the ocean floor and giant buoys on its surface will be able to notify coastal observation stations within 10 minutes of a tsunami-strength earthquake.

Sumatra has been wracked by scores of powerful aftershocks since last year's tsunami. Experts say the fault line that triggered that temblor is unstable and may produce another massive quake soon.

CARACAS, Venezuela -Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez accuses Washington of plotting to overthrow him, calls President Bush a "murderer" and is expelling some American missionaries who he insists have links to the CIA.

Venezuelans are sharply divided between those who believe him and those who call it a ploy to distract attention from Venezuela's real problems such as gun violence, inflation, corruption and the homeless who wander Caracas.

Egypt's election success alarms some CAIRO, Egypt — A surprise showing in the first round of Egypt's parliamentary elections has given the Muslim Brotherhood its strongest political foothold ever heading into Sunday's vote, hinting at what democracy might look like in the Arab world's largest country.

Secularists and Christians were unsettled by the Brotherhood's initial showing, with the country's oldest Islamic fundamentalist group taking 34 seats, doubling its presence in parliament.

The victories have established the Brotherhood as the leader of the opposition and have proven what the government feared: that the banned group is popular among Egyptians despite, or because of, frequent crackdowns and the government's media campaign against it.

The unanswered question remains: Does Brotherhood success stem from its platform summed up in its slogan, "Islam is the solution," vague but appealing to some in conservative Egypt — or to widespread discontent with President Hosni Mubarak's government.

Stunned by its own showing, the Brotherhood expects to win more Sunday and in the Dec. 1 third round, polls being held in provinces that include its traditional strongholds.

Bush says 'sober judgment' dictates troops must stay in Iraq

President

Associated Press

OSAN AIR BASE, South Korea — His war policies under siege at home, President Bush said Saturday there would be no early troop withdrawal because "sober judgment" must prevail over emotional calls to end the military mission before Iraq is stabilized.

"We will fight the terrorists in Iraq. We will stay in the fight until we have achieved the victory that our brave troops have fought for," Bush told thousands of American troops spilling out of a cold hangar at this U.S. military installation 40 miles south of Seoul. "The defense of freedom is worth our sacrifice." The speech added the president's voice, from thousands of miles ing of any U.S. withdrawal. It also away, to a nasty debate in Congress over his Iraq policies and the tim-

George W. Bush waves as he arrives at Beijing airport Saturday. Bush called in a speech this week for communist leaders to give China's public greater religious and other liberties.

dent's newly aggressive war critics. Bush spoke at the end of a threeday stay in South Korea, laying over here for little more than an hour after meetings with 20 other Pacific Rim leaders in Busan, South Korea. Immediately after speaking, he left for China — the most anticipated segment of his weeklong Asian swing. Taking center stage in Sunday's meetings with Chinese President Hu Jintao are bird flu fears — China reported its first human cases this week — and sticky trade issues.

Bush also planned to continue his push to maintain a unified front among all the U.S. partners in talks aimed at stripping North Korea of nuclear weapons. After sitting down with Hu, Bush will have met on this trip with all four other participants in the negotiations, which also include South Korea, Japan and Russia.

The president also was hoping to gently press for democratic advances in China. Through a pre-trip meeting in Washington with the Dalai Lama, advance interviews with foreign reporters and a speech earlier in the week in Kyoto, Japan, Bush has emphasized the need for greater religious freedom. He intends to underline that point by worshipping at a government-approved church in Beijing.

"The number of adult referrals we're seeing has increased this year and at the rate we're going, we could hit close to double what we normally see," said MAYSP Project Coordinator Danny Trejo.

"I think it's because the police department is cracking down more this year on underage drinkers, and that there's more students at WVU,' Trejo said.

WVU spokeswoman Becky Lofstead agreed that beefed-up enforcement is driving MAYSP referral numbers up.

"Having a few more students on campus may also play a role, but the enforcement seems to be the primary factor," Lofstead said.

Since the project began its young adult program in 2001, MAYSP has seen an average of 206 young adults each year.

But less than halfway though its 2005-2006 fiscal year it's already seen 185 young adults.

During the 2004-2005 fiscal year, MAYSP saw 225 young adults. Dur-

Stepped-up enforcement

Morgantown Municipal Court Clerk Joyce Marshall said that through Oct. 31, 425 people were cited in city court for underage consumption. In 2004, 204 people were cited, compared to 310 people in 2003.

Countywide, the numbers aren't climbing in the same way.

Monongalia County Magistrate Court Clerk Caroline Stoker said that so far this year, through Oct. 31, 212 people were cited countywide for underage consumption. In 2004, 268 people were cited, compared to 274 in 2003.

That indicates underage consumption is higher within city limits, said MPD Lt. Mike Lantz.

"I would attribute that to the high concentration of the bars downtown" and house partying in Sunnyside, Lantz said.

Morgantown Police Chief Phil Scott said that his department, WVU Department of Public Safety and the state Alcohol Beverage Control Commission decided they would increase enforcement during the school year to try to curb underage drinking in the city.

Scott said problems associated DUIs, sexual assaults, fights and destruction of property.

Officers are spending more time walking the beat in the downtown area and monitoring large house parties off campus, he said.

"When we see them setting up parties, we make a visit to the host and tell them the criminal and civil liabilities they face," Scott said.

"Then we monitor the party," he said. "If it's getting out of hand, we rein it in. If we see a fight, beer being pitched in the the street or a minor comes out of the party, then we go in, find the host of the party and take action.'

The maximum penalties for underage drinking are a $500 fine and up to 72 hours in jail. For furnishing alcohol to minors, the maximum penalties are $200 and up to 10 days in jail. The maximum fine for having an open container of alcohol in Morgantown is up to $500.

How MAYSP works

People 18-20 who are cited for underage liquor-law violations can participate in MAYSP's young adult program, which requires six hours of alcohol education and six hours

Those — like Brittany — cited for underage consumption in the city face charges in Morgantown Municipal Court.

"Many who participate in MAYSP often can have their fines reduced in city court if they complete the program," Trejo said.

Jail time is not a penalty for underage consumption or possession of alcohol in city court.

Brittany said she learned about MAYSP last month when she went to city court to plead guilty to underage possession of alcohol.

"The clerk told me about it and gave me a pamphlet and told me to call," she said. "I just have to complete community service and take some classes now."

involved in the program for a short time, said she's learned a lot and plans to complete the program. "So far I've taken a test on what alcohol does to the body," she said.

Brittany, who has only been

"And I plan to do my community service at MAYSP, tutoring other alcohol abusers or cleaning.' Offenders cited in the county face charges in Mon County Magistrate Court.

Roberts said underage drinkers cited in the county aren't required to attend classes at MAYSP. It's only recommended, he said.

"When they are cited and come into Magistrate Court, I let them know the program is available, and that typically if they take those classes and finish them their charge can be dropped," Roberts said.

Mon County Prosecutor Marcia Ashdown said her office always recommends underage drinkers attend MAYSP and earn the chance to have their charge dismissed.

"Many cases are resolved in that way," Ashdown said.

Those who decide not to participate in MAYSP, can plead guilty, pay a fine and do jail time, Roberts said. That, or they can have a hearing, and if they're found guilty they pay their fines and do their time.

"But I'd say a great majority of individuals prefer participating in the program," Ashdown said. MAYSP "is a good resource to have and it's certainly an appropriate way to handle those type of cases if young people are willing to go through the process.'

MAYSP funding comes from fed-Commission, Morgantown City Council, The United Way, The North Rotary of Morgantown and private donations.

The agency, with a staff of five, runs on a budget of about $180,000 a year, Trejo said.

He said that despite the increase in referrals, so far the program hasn't needed additional staffers.

"We've just been really busy," he said. "Fortunately, we have two WVU master's in social work interns working 16 hours a week here, so they help out too."

Increased enrollment

This fall, 26,051 students enrolled at WVU, Lofstead said. Fall enrollment in 2004 was 25,255 and fall enrollment in 2003 was 24,260.

Lofstead said liquor-law citations for WVU students on campus have remained about the same — in the 350 range — over the past few years.

So far this calender year through Nov. 7, university police cited 235 people for underage consumption. Last year they cited 350. In 2003 they cited 356.

WVU Department of Public Safety Director Bob Roberts said arrests and citations generally occur in residence halls.

"That's because students are coming back at night and in the early morning from being out at clubs, and we have a majority of our officers patrolling those areas for safety," Roberts said.

Putting a foot down

Monongalia County Sheriff Joe Bartolo said that lately the public has been alerting officers that underage drinking is occurring.

"More and more people are calling us saying, 'There's a group of kids down this holler drinking,' and because they are calling, we're responding and citing more," Bartolo said.

"We encourage the public to call us on things like this," he said. "It's a violation of the law that will not be tolerated.'

Scott agreed.

"We're never going to eradicate underage drinking, but we're going to continue our efforts," he said. "The bottom line is we need to change the attitudes, the culture and the behavior."

University discipline

Lofstead said that students cited for underage consumption or any other alcohol-related violation are also referred to the Student Assistance Program for individual assessments or educational sessions.

"More often than not, the individual assessment is what is appropriate for DUI, public intoxication, serving alcohol to minors, ect." Lofstead said.

Those cited for underage consumption who have not had any previous alcohol-related violations usually participate in an educational session.

'The important point is every situation and student is treated individually and is situational in nature. The staff in the SAP are most skillful at determining whether or not there is a serious problem with substance abuse and will follow each student depending upon their assessment.'

In addition, Roberts said, all firsttime alcohol offenders at the school must participate in a six-week alcohol education course offered by the Roberts said the program has been "very successful." When students complete the program, the charge is dismissed.

MAYSP participants

Young adults who participate in MAYSP pay a $228 fine instead of $500 for underage consumption or underage possession of alcohol.

Although the program is designed for Mon County residents, anyone can sign up for MAYSP.

"We accept people from other counties," Trejo said. "You could be from another state and get caught drinking here and still participate."

Trejo said that around 10-20 each year enter the program who are from outside Mon County.

underage drinking on and off campus. This fall, 16,317 students enrolled at Marshall, said Michael McGuffey, the university's director of institutional research and planning. WVU's fall enrollment was Marshall University police say they continue to battle with underage possession and consumption of alcohol.

It doesn't matter how big or small a university is, there will always be underage liquor-law violations, said Marshall University Police Chief Jim Terry.

Although the 2005 underage alcohol arrest numbers at Marshall aren't available yet, Terry said those numbers usually remain consistent — an average of 245 each school year. WVU campus liquor-law violations have also remained consistent — in the 350 range — during the past few years, WVU Department of Public Safety Director

Bobby Roberts said. Marshall Police Officer J.A. Jones said that this year's underage alcohol violations could be lower than the 273 citations issued in 2004. In 2003, police cited 217 people for underage consumption or possession.

"Some years it's worse than others, but the number of arrests for that have been pretty low lately," Jones said.

WVU, Morgantown Police and the state Alcohol Beverage Control Commission recently began conducting alcohol-awareness stings on campus and throughout the city to try and curb underage drinking. So far this year through Nov. 7, WVU police cited 235 people for underage consumption. Last year they cited 350. In 2003 they cited 356. Like WVU, Marshall's police also conduct alcohol-awareness stings.

"We figure if students know we're out there being proactive, it will help," Terry

Terry said that Marshall University Police Department, Huntington Police and the Cabell County Sheriff's Department conduct high-risk drinking enforcement checks throughout the semester.

The checks are conducted on campus and throughout the city.

Marshall University makes efforts to stop underage drinking

"In 2003-2004, we did 19 enforcements and made 564 arrests," Terry said.

He said 427 were alcohol related, including underage consumption, DUI, public intoxication and providing alcohol to minors. During the 2004-2005 school year, officers conducted 10 checks and made 244 arrests.

Of those arrests, 195 were alcohol relat-

"And those numbers don't count the arrests made by local police departments; those are just those event numbers," he

A Huntington Municipal Court clerk said that through Oct. 31 of this year, 31 people were cited for underage consumption in the city. In 2004, 52 were cited. In 2003, 53 were cited.

Countywide, a Cabell County Magistrate Court clerk said that through Nov. 7 of this year, 54 people were ticketed for underage consumption. In 2004, 28 were cited. In 2003, 25 were cited.

Huntington and Cabell County court clerks did not have figures on other alcohol-related charges immediately available.

Alcohol education

Terry said Cabell County does not have an alcohol-education program like Monongalia County's Morgantown Area Youth Service Project, which provides services to area young adults and teens with delinquency, drug abuse and underage drinking problems.

But he did say Marshall, like WVU, requires students arrested for underage consumption or possession to attend an alcohol-education program at the Arysta McGill, Marshall University student health education assistant, said those caught drinking underage must participate in a one-hour alcohol education class and community service.

"They are also are required to meet with a counselor to discuss what they've learned in the class in hopes of preventing a reoccurrence," McGill said.

As a prevention tool, the university also offers University 101 to freshman students. The class, open to all students, focuses on the medical and the criminal aspects of alcohol.

Budget plan may not survive in Senate

House barely passed the spending cuts

WASHINGTON - It was no easy feat to get fractious House Republicans to vote for a budget bill that lays out nearly $50 billion in savings. Yet it may prove to be a cakewalk compared with upcoming talks with the Senate.

For starters, the budget plan passed only after GOP leaders jettisoned a contentious plan to allow oil exploration in an Alaskan wilderness area. By doing so, they sidestepped a threat by about two dozen moderates to defeat the budget measure over that issue alone.

Pro-drilling advocates in both the House and Senate are sure to insist on restoring the provision during negotiations next month; it's already in the Senate's plan. Otherwise, they will kill the overall budget proposal.

That threat was made clear by the chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee. The tally on the budget plan was 216-215 when Rep. Joe Barton, R-Texas, walked to the House well to cast the last vote.

A vote against the plan would have killed it, and Barton ardently supported drilling for oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

In the end, however, Barton reluctantly voted for the budget. But his message was unmistakable: not again. House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-

Pelectronic edition

Ill., said that resolving the drilling issue will be like threading a needle. "I wish (the needle) had a little bigger eye," Hastert said. The budget plan is central to the GOP agenda that lawmakers hope to wrap up next month. Republicans originally planned $35 billion in savings by trimming the growth of Medicaid, food stamps, student loan subsidies and other benefit programs.

House conservatives upset with the deficit and a surge in spending for hurricane disaster relief forced GOP leaders to raise the ante to almost $50 billion in savings. In doing so, they forced a more politically difficult vote because the budget plan in the House took far greater aim at programs for the poor than did the Senate's version.

Moderates in both the House and Senate expect the final bill to smooth out many of the House bill's rough

Oil drilling is only one of the difficult issues facing House-Senate

■ Medicare. While the House plan does not propose changes to the health-care program for older people, the Senate's does. The White House has threatened a veto over a proposal to kill subsidies for some regional health insurers that offered Medicare prescription drug coverage. Those savings help finance $11 billion to give doctors a reprieve next year from a scheduled 4.3 percent cut in their Medicare payments.

■ Milk income subsidies. The Senate bill awards dairy farmers a $1 billion extension of milk income payments. Hastert promised lawmakers from dairy-producing states such as New York and Minnesota that the program would be extended. But opposition from Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and senators from states where large dairy farms do not benefit from the program could block the extension.

■ Medicaid. The House bill saves almost $12 billion from Medicaid, the health care program for the poor and disabled. Beneficiaries would face new cost-sharing burdens and states could scale back coverage under the House plan. The Senate plan would save far less money and rely on drug companies, pharmacies and insurance subsidies for much of the savings.

■ Student loans. The House plan saves more than $14 billion through changes to the student loan program, including curbs to lender subsidies and new fees on college graduates and parents who consolidate loans. Interest rates on most loans would vary according to the market. The Senate plan maintains current law, which fixes interest rates at 6.8 percent and provides $8 billion in increased grants for low- and middleincome students.

Hastert was simply happy to get the measure through the House.

"You've got to get through the first round before you get to the championship, and we're getting there," he said.

Conditions that led to riots not unique to France

PARIS — As quickly as the riots that erupted in the immigrant ghettos of Paris spread throughout the country, there were copycat incidents in Brussels and Berlin.

Last weekend, dozens of immigrant youths in Rotterdam, the second city of the Netherlands, scuffled with police and set fire to cars while chanting "The Holy War has begun."

Now that the rioting seems to have burned itself out in France, could it engulf other cities in Europe?

The conditions that led to the three weeks of violence in Paris, Lyon, Toulouse and other French urban areas are hardly unique to France. Poverty, unemployment, discrimination and social exclusion can be found in any Western European city with a large immigrant community.

Four years ago, Britain's decaying industrial heartland was convulsed by weeks of rioting as gangs of far-right white youths battled with South Asians in Bradford, Burnley and Oldham. More than 300 police officers were injured in the effort to restore order.

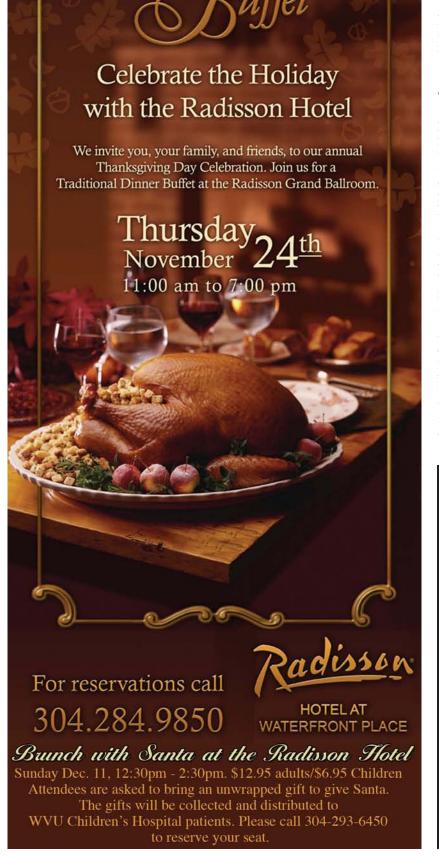

Exhibition museum shows the life and work of Darwin

NEW YORK — He was a lackluster student, bored by the rote memorization of Latin words. He tried medical school, but hated it. Charles Darwin figured he would end up in the clergy, his love of nature and the sciences just a hobby.

Then came the invitation one of his mentors had been asked to go on a voyage but was too busy. Perhaps Darwin would be interested in the post of naturalist on the HMS Beagle, setting sail for South America in 1831?

That five-year voyage would change the course of Darwin's life — and ours. It was on that trip that Darwin collected the specimens and took the notes that were the underpinnings of his theory of evolution by natural selection, the foundation of modern biology.

WWII veteran's son finds wartime poem

SHADY SPRING — The type and size of the print are dead giveaways of the poem's era.

Harry Albaugh Jr. discovered "Soldier to a Star" among his father's personal effects, a poem he kept tucked inside his wallet throughout his illustrious career as a soldier in World

As an Army private heading up a mortar unit within the 88th Division, under the command of Lt. Gen. Mark Clark, the senior Albaugh saw action from one battlefield to another in Italy.

"He crawled from the bottom to the top," says his son, a resident of Shady Spring.

Clark headed Fifth Army and presided over the German surrender of Italy in 1944, just days before the pivotal Normandy Invasion in France.

Albaugh earned a Purple Heart and Bronze Star, along with three battle stars, for his lengthy service on the varied battlefields of Italy.

In fact, he was in Italy to see fascist dictator Benito Mussolini and his mistress hanging upside down, a day after Italian partisans executed them as the Axis forces collapsed.

"When he went to Rome, that was the only safe spot," the son recalled. "The Germans wouldn't barrage the city because the Vatican was there. So that was the only safe spot. When they left Rome, they began bombing and shelling them again."

Albaugh worked as a sales representative in Huntington for National Biscuit Co., founded in 1898, and his son followed suit in the same capacity. Like his father. Albaugh also served in the military, putting in a stint with the Air Force in the Vietnam

The senior Albaugh retired at age 62 and of late has been admitted to a rehabilitation center in Charleston.

'We're hoping that something will open up with the Veterans Administration," said the son, who, with his own family, is tending to his mother, Vivian.

Albaugh found the poem, apparently printed by an Army publication, while sorting his fathers war mementos. "He just saved little bits of everything," he said. "This was folded in his billfold. I assumed that he sent it back home to Mom. I was just a baby at the time. The poem is just as relevant today, with the boys over there in Iraq, as it was back in the

The following is the poem carried by Albaugh Jr.'s father: Soldier To A Star

Hey, you sleepy star! Blinkin in the sky, How's about a favor, For an Army guy?

My wife and baby are, Lots of miles from me, Miles of time and space, And battleground and sea. You get around this world,

In almost nothin flat. You're shining on the U.S.A.,

And me now where I'm at. So shine down in that window, please, On the pillow where they lay.

Dry up all those teardrops, With this message that I say: Look up to the skies, my dears, On this starry night.

And know God guides our destinies, As sure as stars are

Pittsburgh map sells for $55,000

PHILADELPHIA — A map believed to be the last of the original plans for the city of Pittsburgh sold at auction Saturday for $55,000.

The map sold at the Samuel T. Freeman & Co. auction house was one of three made in 1784 by Col. George Woods under the direction of Tench Francis, an agent for the William Penn family. The other two copies were destroyed in the Pittsburgh blaze known as the Great Fire of 1845.

The woman who entered the winning bid Saturday was present at the auction house, but declined to give her name. She was awarded the map after several exchanges with other bidders, primarily ones submitting offers over the telephone.

The map is signed by U.S. Sen. James Ross, who turned it over to Allegheny County in 1841, according to David Bloom, vice president of books, prints and manuscripts for the auction house. The map, which is in good condition despite heavy creasing, had been expected to draw bids in the $60,000 to $90,000 range.

Bloom has said the document belonged to a private owner who did not want to be identified.

Slain Pa. teen father honored by People

PHILADELPHIA — An 18year-old who was gunned down Thursday night on his way home from work had been honored by People magazine last summer as an outstanding father.

Terrell Pough, who worked long hours to finish school and support his 2-year-old daughter, Diamond, was shot once in the back of the head in front of his home and died a short while later at Temple University Hospital, police said.

Pough, the night manager at a fast-food restaurant, wasn't robbed and has no record of violence, police said.

WILSON, N.C. — Jim Farmer was on a skiing trip in West Virginia when he jumped on a sled and slid down a snow-covered hill.

At 52. Farmer was still having fun. What the sports enthusiast didn't realize was the pain he felt after jumping on the sled would change the course of his life.

"I knew I ripped something," he Farmer remained in pain until he arrived home from the skiing trip he took with his church's youth group.

What he found appeared to be an injured shoulder, a torn rotator cuff. But that was just the begin-

"The rotator cuff was damaged beyond repair," he said. "I didn't have any functionality after that." The rotator cuff, a group of muscles that cover the shoulder joint and connect the bones, is important for movement since it controls the rotation of the shoulder.

Farmer was treated by an orthopedic doctor at UNC Hospitals in Chapel Hill. At the time, in March 2003, his doctor said there was little he could do to repair the injury and restore Farmer's shoulder.

The doctor performed surgery, repaired tendons and other areas of the shoulder, and sent Farmer to physical therapy. The therapy was designed to help strengthen the shoulder muscles and make up for

And it wasn't long before he started hearing a popping sound in his shoulder. After returning to his doctor, he was examined but told he couldn't receive treatment until the doctor returned from a six-week vacation.

What he didn't know at the time was that he had a massive infection in his shoulder that had eaten away his bones.

'He let me walk out of there knowing my shoulder was gone," Farmer said. "I just didn't have any clue about what was going on."

Farmer also decided to take a vacation. He went horseback riding and started experiencing a lot of pain and a swollen shoulder.

He returned to Chapel Hill and demanded to see a doctor.

As he waited, he recognized his X-ray technician as an old friend from Wilson he had known 20 years earlier. His test results were shocking, causing the technician and other doctors to move quickly to save his life.

"My life just changed from that day forward," he said. "By that time, an array of doctors came in. It was obvious they were as shocked as I Farmer went into surgery for treatment of the infection. Test samples showed that he had a massive infection in his shoulder that could become fatal.

"I was absolutely scared to death,"

"I never could get the range of he said. "I asked him if I was going to die. He said, 'Not today but we need to get control of the infection." Farmer started taking antibiotics and remained on the medicine for eight weeks. He also asked what his options were. Doctors mentioned a new procedure reverse shoulder replacement which was being performed as part of a clinic study across the nation. After evaluating his case, the doctors decided not to perform the surgery since his condition was so advanced. One concern was whether there was enough bone left to attach a prosthesis within his shoulder. Farmer started calling some of the nation's most well-known and respected medical facilities — the Mayo Clinic, the Cleveland Bone and Joint Clinic and Johns Hopkins University. He also talked with a Wilson doctor and friend, Dr. Ken Carter, who started calling the doctor leading the national clinic study on reverse shoulder replacement. Eventually, the physician, Dr.

Mark Frankle, from Tampa, Fla., agreed to see him.

Within three days of the meeting, Farmer was in surgery. Frankle was able to successfully secure the reverse shoulder prosthesis in

The prosthesis is unusual because it's made of titanium, which is used because it's lightweight and strong. Farmer is one of about 200 people in the United States with a titanium shoulder.

Pa. double-slaying information surfaces

LITITZ, Pa. — The relationship between 18-year-old David Ludwig and 14-year-old Kara Borden was a closely guarded secret.

There was good reason for the two teens to keep things quiet: Their four-year age difference displeased their parents.

"They weren't officially boyfriend and girlfriend because their parents didn't approve of them being together," said 16-year-old Stephanie Mannon, one of Kara's neighbors. "Sometimes they would secretly get together."

Tensions in the Borden household spilled over early last Sunday, when police say Ludwig fatally shot Kara's parents, Michael and Cathryn Borden, following an argument over their relationship and then abducted the girl. He is being held without bail on murder and kidnapping charges after being flown back to Lancaster County on Tuesday from Indiana, where police captured him following a chase.

As additional information was released throughout the week about Ludwig and Kara Borden, the number of unanswered questions in the case only seemed to grow.

Police say they consider Kara a victim, but that their investigation is continuing. In court filings, Ludwig's attorney said that any surveillance tapes that can be obtained from stops the pair made along the way to Indiana will show she was not kidnapped.

Kara's sister, Katelyn, told police she met Ludwig in May and saw him regularly at a support group for home-schooled students — neighbors say Kara and Ludwig met through such a group — as well as at church and at the Borden house.

'She (Katelyn) knows him well, and considered him to be a friend," according to court papers describing Katelyn's interview with police.

Overseer rejects Pittsburgh budget

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — For the second time in less than a month, a state oversight board rejected the mayor's proposed 2006 budget, raising the possibility of state sanctions.

There is no provision for resolving a budget impasse after a second rejection by the Intergovernmental Cooperation Authority.

The jettisoning Friday of Mayor Tom Murphy's proposal raises the possibility of state sanctions and suggests city council may begin budget deliberations Nov. 30 with a torpedoed spending plan. Authority chairman John

Murray said the authority is eager to work with the city to resolve the issue. But the agency still has to notify the state that Pittsburgh isn't complying with its fiscal recovery plan, he said. When state officials receive that news, they are required to begin withholding some money to the city, said state budget secretary Michael Masch. But the state isn't in any hurry to impose such sanctions, he said. "I think we're really very close to an approved budget," he said. In 2003, Pittsburgh was declared financially distressed by the state and two quasi-governmental boards were established to oversee the city's finances. Murphy's plan does not address how the city would deal with a nearly $950,000 increase in health insurance costs next year, Murray said.

After overseers rejected Murphy's first proposed budget last month, he adopted most of the board's suggestions in a $418 million second draft. But he refused to pass on increased health insurance premiums to nonunion work-

The city's recovery plan calls for it to absorb a 9-percent premium increase and pass on any increase above that to employees.

Boeing laptop stolen, info lost

Associated Press

CHICAGO — A laptop computer that contained Social Security numbers and other personal information for 161,000 Boeing Co. employees and retirees has been stolen.

Boeing, which made the announcement Friday, said it had no evidence that any of the information — which included birthdays and banking information in some cases — was accessed or misused.

No sensitive company information was stored on the computer, which was owned by the company but stolen from a non-Boeing site several days ago, officials said. Boeing spokesman Tim Neale said Saturday that personal information from the 4,500 Boeing employees at the company's Ridley Township, Pa., plant may have been included, but he could not say for sure.

Dave Holland, film festival director, dies at 70

Associated Press

SANTA CLARITA, Calif. — Dave Holland, the longtime director of the Lone Pine Film Festival who showcased scores of movies shot in and around the town in the scenic foothills of the eastern Sierra Nevada, has died. He was 70. Holland died Monday of esophageal cancer at his home in Santa Clarita in Los Angeles County, his family told the Los Angeles Times. A writer and film historian, Holland helped organize the annual October festival in 1990 and served as its director for eight years.

Hundreds of movies and TV shows have been filmed in and around Lone Pine, about 180 miles north of Los Angeles. The red rock and sand stone of the nearby Alabama Hills provided the backdrop for the first ambush in "The Lone Ranger" series and endless scenery for Roy Rogers and his wonder horse Trigger.

Because of Holland's research,

markers set where cameras once shot scenes, including John

1935's "Westward Ho."

"The Alabama Hills (are) a living movie museum," Holland told The Associated Press in 1995. "When you get out here and start making discoveries, deja vu takes over. You travel out Whitney Portal Road, you're riding the road that the cops chased Humphrey Bogart with Ida Lupino.' Born in Raleigh, N.C., in 1935, Holland was a former newspaper reporter and Hollywood press agent. He also wrote a pictorial guide, "On Location in Lone Pine."

A concerned daughter wants mom to lose weight

DEAR ABBY: I am a teenage girl with an obese mother. She doesn't exercise much.

She started going to the gym about a month ago, but since has stopped. She's what you'd call a habitual snacker.

At night she'll finish eating one unhealthy food and then begin eating another. (She often eats more than 1,500 calories in one of her nightly "snacks.")

To make matters worse, she eats in front of the TV and makes me fetch her food rather than walking to the kitchen herself.

When I try to talk to her about her bad habits, she gets defensive and angry. I want her to lose weight and am willing to help her. How can I confront my mom about her oroblem? — HUNGRY FOR HELF IN NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR HUNGRY FOR HELP: You are a caring and concerned daughter, and for that you deserve to be praised.

However, no one can "help" your mother until she's willing to admit she has a problem.

The behavior you described isn't "evening snacking"; it's bingeing. Until she's ready to confront what is eating HER, she will not stop trying to fill the emptiness inside with food.

Rather than confronting your mother yourself, enlist the help of a close friend or family member.

If your mother agrees, her next step should be to check the phone book for the listing of the nearest chapter of Overeaters Anonymous. They charge no dues or fees, and no membership lists are kept. There is no shaming, no weighing in and no embarrassment.

The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop eating compulsively.

When your mother attends a eeting, she'll be welcomed with open arms into a fellowship of compassionate women and men who all share her problem.

There are more than 8,000 Overeaters Anonymous groups worldwide and chapters in almost every city.

However, if your mother has difficulty locating one, help her by visiting www.overeatersanonymous.org or sending a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to OA World Service Office, P.O. Box 44020, Rio Rancho, NM 87174-4020.

Three remain in stable condition after accident

Three people remained in stable condition Saturday at Ruby Memorial Hospital with injuries received in a late Friday night accident on Kingwood Pike.

Monongalia County Sheriff's Deputy Steve McRobie said they were injured in a two-vehicle headon collision near the Cool Springs Fire Hall at about 9:45 p.m.

Richard McDonald, 23, of 62 Delbert Lane, Nicholson Loop, was taken to the hospital via HealthNet medical helicopter, he said. His passenger, Candice Hart, 18, of 3118 Kingwood Pike, was also taken to the hospital.

The 1995 Dodge Avenger they were in was destroyed, he said. The front of the second vehicle, a 2000 Chevrolet Tahoe, received major damage.

The driver of the Tahoe, Roger Dale Wilkins Jr., 35, of 207 Maryland Ave.. Westover, had to be freed by Mon EMS members using the jaws of life.

"All airbags were deployed on both vehicles," he said. "Everyone was wearing seatbelts."

The Kingwood Pike was closed to traffic for more than a half hour while emergency crews were on the scene. The Cool Springs Volunteer Fire Department, just over the hill from the wreck, had crews on hand to help.

Marshall honors wife's memory

Father, daughter sign copies of book at library

The Dominion Post

Four little words he never realized his infant daughter knew brought Morgantownnative Donn Marshall unexpected happiness when he was mourning the death of his wife Shelley in the Sept. 11 attack on the Pentagon.

Marshall's last mental picture of his wife is meeting her at the Pentagon, and the two of them taking their son, Drake, then 3 1/2, and daughter Chandler, about 20 months old, to the day care center.

As the family struggled to regain a normal life after her death, Marshall said he would find himself breaking into tears as he thought of Shelley. As he explained why one day to Chandler, he was surprised by her response. "I love you, daddy," she said.

Since Chandler had never said that to him before, Marshall began to wonder where she learned that phrase. One day, he asked who taught her to say that. Her reply: "Mommy."

Marshall's description of that moment in his life is one of the stories in the newest volume of the "Chicken Soup" inspirational stories.

The Dominion Post

Instructions for amateur crafters:

- When writing with glitter paint, make sure you don't accidentally lean on what you have just written.
- Keep a paper towel handy to make that quick correction.
- Don't use up all the "R's" from the stick-on letters; others might need some.

Those were just a few of the lessons that emerged during Saturday's National Family Volunteer Day event sponsored by the United Way of Monongalia and Preston Counties at Mountaineer Folks of all ages stopped by one of the mall's community rooms to decorate Christmas stockings and tree ornaments, create wreaths and design Christmas cards.

The resulting holiday items are to be given to new residents who relocated from New Orleans as a result of Hurricane Katrina and sent to solulers stationed in Iraq, said United Way representative Diane Kisinger.

Kisinger, who reported a small, but steady flow of volunteer designers, admitted to trying her hand at decorating one of the red stockings.

"Our main stocking-maker is Boyce (McCoy)," she said. With a little encouragement, Boyce consented to identify his original stocking designs. That's when he realized he had completed about half the stockings on display.

His designs used spray-on snow ("That's messy," noted fellow volunteer crafter Laura Gallagher) as well as stick-on letters, paint and paper cut-out snowflakes.

Both said they had been having fun creating the holiday decora-

Work was done on three tables arranged in a "U" in the middle of the floor. The results were displayed on another, set along the wall. By 2 p.m. it was crowded with a variety of stockings flanked by wreaths and cards. Decorated globes for trees hung from a nearby grocery buggy.

Those participating were "paid" with lunch, Kisinger said. Italian pasta, salads and breadsticks were provided by Oliverio's restaurant,

The event was organized for the United Way by a team from Dr. Ivan Pinnell's public relations class at the WVU Perley Isaac Reed School of Journalism. Posted on the door frame were suggestions for creating the holiday aecorations.

Several volunteers who were in an out said they wished they had known about it earlier. They also suggested that the next time, the United Way put a sign at center court as well as another one more clearly indicating where the event was located in the mall.

Enthusiasts gear up for bucks-only hunting season

BY MARY HELEN HINCHLIFFE The Dominion Post

The West Virgina bucks-only gun season opens Monday and hunters are gearing up and getting out to look for white-tailed deer.

According to the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources Web site, about 320,000 hunters will be in West Virginia's woods during bucks-only season. The season runs from Monday until Dec. 3. and is open in all counties except Logan, Mingo, McDowell and Wyoming, which are closed to all firearms deer hunting.

Stewart Smith, of Morgantown, will be one of those hunters. He is hoping to bag a buck and spend quality time with Mother Nature in Fort Martin.

"I look forward to getting out there and hanging out in nature,' he said Saturday. "I usually find a spot, sit down and just wait. You get to hear and see all kinds of things.' The DNR reported deer hunters in West Virginia harvested 63,873 bucks during the 2004 bucks-only season. The 2005 harvest is expected to be similar.

The limit during the two-week season is two bucks, one on a base license and one on a resident or nonresident license.

According to the DNR Web site. hunters who have done pre-season scouting and found food sources have the best chance of success.

Jeff Baron, of Morgantown, is looking forward to hunting in Peddler Run, near Core, with his brother, John and their friends. Baron said he prefers to scout "his spot" before bucks-only season to be familiar with the terrain, deer movements and habits

PITTSBURGH — City and county officials are endorsing an offer of land and development rights to any prospective slot machine parlor operator or other private investor willing to build a new Officials want to replace Mellon Arena, home of the Pittsburgh Penguins, who have been asking for a new facility for years. Mellon, opened in 1961 as the home of the Pittsburgh Civic Light Opera, is the oldest and smallest venue in the National Hockey League.

Mayor Tom Murphy, Mayorelect Bob O'Connor and county Executive Dan Onorato issued a statement supporting the offer by the city-county Sports and Exhibition Authority, saying it could help get private money for a new multipurpose arena.

When scouting, Baron looks for deer trails, a water source, such as a creek, and acorns.

"Deer love apples, but supposedly white oak acorns are their favorite," he said. "If you find that, you'll find deer." Smith, however, does not scout his annual hunting spot. After scouting in previous years, he prefers to walk the area while hunting to find a good place. "I am not a very scientific hunter," he said laughing. "I go out and hope for the best.' Baron suggests when choosing an area to hunt deer, to also check if the location is safe for hunting.

"You want to make sure you're not near houses or where you can accidently shoot something or someone," he said.

In addition to choosing a safe area to hunt, he said hunters should practice patience and safety while in the woods.

"You always assume your gun is loaded," he said. "Always identify 100 percent what you are shooting at. You are better off to lose an animal than to shoot someone accidentally."

According to the DNR Web site, in 2004 there were 10 huntingrelated injuries and no huntingrelated fatalities reported in West Virginia during bucks-only gun

"Don't take your gun out of the closet from last year and shoot it," he said. "Go out and shoot it a few times and make sure it is working properly before you hunt."

Baron recommends hunting with another person in the event of injury, illness and to prevent getting lost in the woods.

"Hunting by yourself can be tricky because if you have a problem, there's nobody there to help you." Baron said. "It's good to have a buddy in the same area and you can field radios or walkie talkies to keep in contact."

Lawmakers try to revive Grafton hydroelectric power plant project

Efforts are being made to revive a project that would build a hydroelectric power plant at the Tygart Lake Dam near Grafton.

Sens. Robert C. Byrd and Jay Rockefeller and Rep. Alan B. Mollohan, all D-W.Va., $\bar{\text{h}}$ ave crafted legislation to kick-start the project by clearing the licensing with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Grafton has been considering the hydroelectric facility for years, and first received a license for the project in 1989.

It lapsed in 1999 when the city was unable to make progress on the

The Byrd-Rockefeller-Mollohan effort would reinstate the license and allow Grafton to move ahead with a 20-megawatt hydroelectric Grafton is working with private contractor NRR Conemaugh on the plant.

With a new FERC license, the contractor believes the facility could be in operation as early as 2008.

It is expected that the new hydroelectric plan will generate about $300,000 in annual revenues for Grafton, while creating 200 construction jobs in the process.

'With the high price of energy, the city of Grafton is looking for lowcost alternatives. Installing hydroelectric power on the Tygart River Dam is a smart step forward," Byrd

Rockefeller added, "This facility will help meet the energy needs of consumers in Grafton and the surrounding area, and it will provide a major significant economic boost to the city. It means a more prosperous future for Grafton."

Mollohan described the project as one with considerable potential for Grafton, providing both near- and long-term benefits to the local economy.

Family preparation kit is a must if a disaster should occur

In the wake of the natural disasters that occurred in the United States in late summer and early fall, from Hurricane Katrina to the pre-season north-central West Virginia snowfall, we all learned how important it is to be prepared. Today, with our hectic, mobile lifestyle the trust we put in the availability of adequate amounts of food, electricity, clean water, gasoline and health care supplies is mind boggling.

Just a generation ago, many homes had no electricity, let alone a telephone, radio, refrigerator or even indoor plumbing. Then, we knew how important it was to insure that the smoke house was full, oil was available for lamps, and adequate wood was chopped to operate the cook stove. When the power goes off, the grocery store closes, and the water stops flowing we need to be able to temporarily change our lifestyles if we want to survive with minimal discomfort. Temporary change is much easier to accomplish if we take a few moments to prepare.

The WVU Extension Service Disaster and Emergency Management Resources Manual contains an excellent section on how to prepare a family disaster supply kit. Such a kit will prepare you for the possibility that you may be confined to your home following a disaster. As we learned so well, a disaster can easily cut access not only to your home but to water, electricity and telephones service too. You should plan on a minimum of a three-day supply of essential supplies. Up to two weeks worth of essential supplies may be indicated if you live in an isolated area.

Following is a list of essential

■ Water: Buy bottled water or store water in plastic containers such as soft drink bottles; plan on one gallon of water per person per day for drinking and food preparation; and, if a disaster catches you without an adequate supply of clean water, you can use water in your hot-water tank.

■ Food: Select compact and lightweight foods that require no refrigeration, preparation or cooking such as ready-to-eat canned meats, fruits and vegetables; canned juices, milk, soup (if powdered, store extra water); staples such as sugar, salt, pepper; high-energy foods that includes peanut butter, jelly, crackers, granola bars, trail mix; vitamins; foods for infants, elderly persons, or persons on special diets; and comfort/stress foods like cookies, hard candy, sweetened cereals, lollipops, instant coffee and tea bags. Make sure you have a can opener and disposable utensils and don't forget nonperishable foods for your pets. Keep canned foods in a dry place with a cool temperature range between 40 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit. Rotate your food supply. Use foods before they go bad, and replace them with fresh supplies, dated with ink or marker. Place new items at the back of the storage area and older ones in front.

■ First-aid supplies: Assorted sizes of safety pins; cleansing agent or soap; latex gloves (two pairs); sterile, adhesive bandages and gauze pads in assorted sizes; 2- and 3-inch sterile roller bandages (three rolls each); scissors tweezers and needle; antiseptic; thermometer and tube of petroleum jelly or other lubricant.

- Nonprescription drugs: Pain reliever; antacid and antidiarrhea medication; and activated charcoal (use if advised by the Poison Control Center).
- Tools and supplies: Batteryoperated radio and flashlight and extra batteries; paper cups, plates and plastic utensils; non-electric can opener and utility knife; fire extinguisherm (small canister ABC type); pliers; tape; matches in a waterproof container; aluminum foil; plastic storage containers; paper and pencil; needles and thread; shut-off wrench to turn off household gas and water: whistle and plastic sheeting.
- Sanitation: Toilet paper and towelettes; soap and liquid detergent: feminine supplies: personal hygiene items; plastic garbage bags and ties (for personal sanitation uses); plastic bucket with tight lid; disinfectant or household chlorine bleach; clothing and bedding; at least one complete change of clothing and footwear per person; sturdy shoes or work boots and rain gear; blankets or sleeping bags; hat and gloves; thermal underwear; and sunglasses.

■ For babies: Formula and bottles, diapers and medications.

■ Suggestions and reminders: Store your kit in a convenient place known to all family members; keep items in air-tight plastic bags; change your stored water supply every six months so it stays fresh; rotate your stored food every six months; consider your kit and family needs at least once a year; replace batteries, update clothes, etc.; ask your physician or pharmacist about storing prescription medications.

As we just learned along the Gulf Coast and right here in north-central West Virginia, having the ability to survive for at least three days without worrying about food, water and clothing can make all the difference in keeping calm during an emergency situation and maximizing your chances for survival.

Garden tips

- Bring garden furniture under cover, if you have not already done so.
- Destroy breeding places for pests and disease.
- Have more zucchini than you can use? Cut it into little pieces and toss it on the compost pile. Don't feel one ounce of guilt. It is a fine soil amendment and will teach you the wisdom of returning nutrients to the garden — and of planting fewer hills next year.
- With fruit trees heading toward dormancy some of us may wonder if their trees need to be pruned, and, if so, how and when. Normally, pruning is best conducted in late winter (February) when trees are completely dormant. Still plenty of time to stop by the extension office and pick up literature on how to prune and what tools will be needed.

with courses from various academic areas balancing those taught by university leaders. Students will have significant exposure to leadership experiences, both academic and practical.

The leadership studies program has four major components: academic courses; experiential learning (serving in a campus leadership position such as a resident assistant or student government officer); co-curricular activities (attending leadership workshops, seminars and a speakers' series); and career ships and summer jobs and learning

Students must complete 18 credit hours to earn the minor. The curriculum includes three leadership core courses — among them a capstone service learning class - and three upper-division courses in two fields outside their major. A leadership version of University 101 and a "Readings in Leadership" course are optional.

For their electives, students can choose from courses in business, engineering, communications, philosophy, political science and sociology.

Initially, instructors for the core courses will be Provost Gerald Lang; Cheryl Torsney, associate provost for academic programs; and Larry Cote, associate provost for extension and public service.

Ashley Riley, a sophomore business and economics major from Morgantown, has taken three courses in leadership studies and plans to pursue a minor. Riley's favorite part of her leadership class last spring was a class exercise in civic engagement that challenged students to plan a meal at the Bartlett House, a homeless shelter serving Morgantown and surrounding areas.

Students to spend holiday helping others

Gulf Coast trip

Instead of spending the Thanksgiving holiday in the comforts of home, 37 WVU students opted to volunteer their time and services on the Gulf Coast during the week-long break.

The group of 30 undergraduates and seven graduate students, along with co-advisor Chatman Neely, Wheeling coordinator of WVU's master's of social work program, left Morgantown on Friday and will return Nov. 27.

While on the Gulf Coast, the students will assist the community by participating in numerous service assignments, such as shelter work, child care and food ser-

Coordinated by the office of service learning programs and the division of social work in the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences, the trip has an academic component, as participating students will receive three credit hours for Social Work 493/693, a service-learning course with a concentration on disaster relief.

More than 85 students applied to go on the trip, which is being partially funded by the Red Cross, who has donated money for the volunteers' housing, transportation and meals.

For more information on this and other WVU Katrina relief efforts, go to www.wvu.edu/

Electronics recycling conference

From Nov. 28-30 at the Radisson Hotel, WVU will host the international conference "REC-CON '05: Global Electronics Rec cling Solutions," which will focus on the topic of "e-waste."

The leftover remains of broken electronics, such as laptops, cell phones, printers and TVs, e-waste is a problem that will be addressed at the conference by representatives from industry, government and academia. It is estimated that between 20-50 million tons of e-waste is discarded worldwide each year.

William McDonough, the conference's keynote speaker and founding partner of William McDonough and Partners, Architecture and Community Design, a globally renowned firm, will give a lecture at 7 p.m. Nov. 28 entitled "Cradle to Cradle: Remaking the Way We Make Things.'

Other speakers include Representative Allan Mollohan and executives from Hewlett Packard, Panasonic, Fortune Plastics and Metal, Holland & Knight and Matchushita.

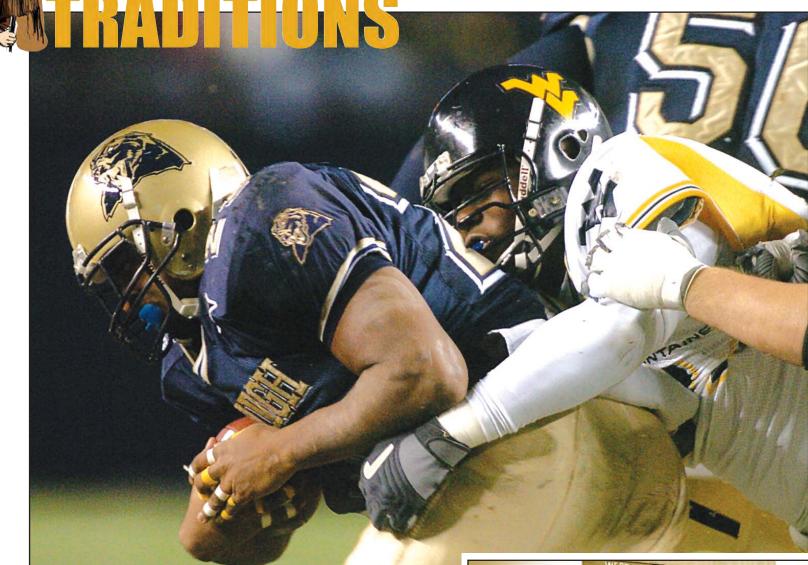

A complete list of speakers and the RECCON '05 agenda can be found at www.wvu.edu/~REC CON05/

Holiday match-up becomes tradition s the 14th oldest football rivalry in the nation, the annual Backyard Brawl game between the Mountaineers and the University of Pittsburgh Panthers has been a longstanding and intense tradition for fans and players of the two teams during the Thanksgiving holiday since 1904.

On Thanksgiving Day, the two Big East squads will square off for the 98th time in front of a sold-out crowd at Milan Puskar Stadium.

Referring to the proximity of the two campuses, the Backyard Brawl is not only one of the nation's oldest rivalries, but also a major Big East rivalry, catching the attention of college football fans across the country. Currently, Pitt leads the series at 59-39-3.

This year, Mountaineers fans are especially enthused about the showdown, as a win against Pitt will further help WVU's chances of being selected for a major bowl game. "It's one of the largest rivalries in the nation," said freshman Andrew Yahn, an athletic coaching major.

"It's like our biggest rivalry. It's always a big game, and we should win because we're more physical than they are.'

Although the game falls on a holiday, most students don't mind leaving Thanksgiving dinner a little early to head back to Morgantown to tailgate.

"I'm going to eat Thanksgiving dinner and then come down to Morgantown from Wheeling to the game," Yahn said. While some may regret missing a home-cooked turkey dinner, many plan on bringing Thanksgiving to Milan Puskar Stadium. "I wish they didn't have it on Thanksgiving, but we're bringing an entire Thanksgiving," said Jodi Smith, a junior agribusiness management major.

"We'll be deep-frying a turkey at our tailgate," said sophomore Shea Cerasi, an environmental and natural resources major. "We have a direct TV, too. I'd rather miss Thanksgiving than miss the Mountaineers. Since I'm from Pittsburgh and go to school here, it's a really big game."

The two teams' coaches, WVU's Rich Rodriguez and Pitt's Dave Wannstedt, have both competed in the rivalry before. Rodriguez played defensive back at WVU from 1982 to 1984, while Wannstedt was Pitt's offensive tackle from 1970 to 1973.

West Virginia fans watch the last game at the old stadium on the Downtown Campus between WVU and Pitt on Nov. 11, 1979.

Screen a saver for struggling MHS offense

As the Morgantown High School defending state championship football team sat in its locker room during halftime at Pony Lewis Field, there was a touch of skepticism in the air.

To say that the situation was unusual would be to understate it, for there was nothing bully about the way the team that had become the bully on the block was

The scoreboard showed a deficit of 7-0, the zero points at halftime being a situation the Mohigans had not faced since the 2001 semifinals, against Martins-

As they spoke, one thing was certain. They knew they needed to do something positive offensive on the first series out of the locker room to change the flow of the game and attitude both in the stands and on the bench.

The only problem was that the Black Eagles of South Charleston were in no mood to cooperate, and when Justin Blankenship got the first carry and was stuffed for a 1-vard loss and Max Anderson suffered the same fate with the second carry, things looked bleaker than ever.

In the locker room, however, Morgantown had discussed one

"It was a play I thought would work," Russell said.

So, too, did coach John Bowers, and if ever there was a time to call it, this was it.

Now it would be nice to report that Bowers has some fancy name for the play — you know, like X-999 or Hummingbird sweep or something to that effect — but when asked what he had named the middle screen that was sent in he answered:

"Middle screen." Why the middle screen?

"Because it was the safest play we could run," an obviously disgruntled Bowers said. "We hadn't been able to move the football the length of my foot the whole first Russell had something of a more technical explanation for why the call was made.

"They were getting upfield pretty good," Russell said of the defensive surge from South Charleston. "We felt we could take advantage of that."

Pretty good? There were times during that first half when the Black Eagles were arriving in the backfield before the ball could be handed off. This was a fast, quick opponent with an interesting scheme.

But it wasn't ready for what was to transpire on this thirddown play.

Russell took the snap and dropped ack in the midst of the so-called Golden Era, a time when stars like Hundley, West and Thorn shone bright enough for the entire basketball nation to take notice of a small campus that became a big player in college basketball, WVU had a regular date with a regular contender for the national championship.

It was the Kentucky Wildcats. It was Adolph Rupp. It was the University of Ken-

"It certainly was," said Jay Jacobs, then a guard for the Mountaineers and now the color commentator on their radio broadcasts. "Where did you go? You didn't have it on TV. You were glued to the radio. It was the holidays and everybody stopped what they were doing. It was a very, very big event and a huge game. The excitement in the arena, the motivation of the players, the intensity of the game was absolutely fantastic.'

At the peak of the all-time series, which the Wildcats lead, 11-4, WVU and Kentucky played four times in six years at the UKIT and the Mountaineers won twice, including a landmark victory in 1957.

The relationship can be rekindled Tuesday night, the second night of the second stage of the Guardians Classic. Of course, since WVU and Kentucky are in different brackets, both will have to win or lose to meet for the first time since 1991.

Perhaps it was meant to be that way. After all, these schools thought enough of one another not only to play in the UKIT, but also for WVU to invite the Wildcats to play in the Coliseum dedication game, in 1970.

Then again, maybe television and the Guardians Classic organizers are gearing up for a matchup of No. 2-ranked Texas and No. 9 Kentucky. If that is the case, than the Mountaineers have been invited to participate in a notable event, but have been overlooked again.

On a day when the MHS offense was as ineffective as it's been all season, the Mohigans' defense locked up and unloaded on No. 8 South Charleston, lifting Morgantown to the state semifinals for the sixth consecutive season with a 14-7 victory Saturday, at Pony Lewis Field. "It was just a situation where we knew we had to step up," said Lewis, who had 1.5 sacks on the day. "It was either that or go home. This could have been the last game for the seniors. Nobody wanted that to happen."

The top-ranked Mohigans (12-0) will play No. 13 Cabell Midland (8-4), which defeated Hurricane, 24-21, on Friday night. The date of the semifinal matchup at Pony Lewis Field will be decided today.

The Mohigans might not have made it, though, without a dominant defense that sacked SCHS quarterback Shaad Coleman five times and came up with two interceptions. The MHS defense limited the Black Eagles (9-3) to 188 total yards, 39 in the second half with the game on the line.

"The defense came up big today," said MHS defensive back John Hatfield, who had a crucial interception in the end zone to stop a Black Eagles drive with 11:38 left in the fourth quarter. At Texas, WVU, hoops, football thrive together

Two of the better basketball teams going have the, um, unfortunate notoriety of thriving in a football campus, town or state. Or all three.

Unfortunate because the attention placed upon them might be greater at the present if football were not king. King of money, exposure, following, you name it. If there's a crown to be worn, it fits football best.

"I don't think you ever try to move in on football's territory." Texas men's basketball coach Rick Barnes said.

When No. 2 Texas and No. 14 WVU tip in Monday night's Guardians Classic semifinal, so, too, will the only schools with their football and basketball teams ranked in the top 15.

"Football only serves as a way to help us," Barnes said. "I've been fortunate to be a coach at football schools that have won national championships. It's a major, major plus when football and all the other sports are doing well on campus. It keeps the university's name out there where everyone can see.

At Texas, of course, everything is bigger. The No. 2-ranked football team is a frontrunner for the national championship with a leading Heisman candidate in quarterback Vince Young. The baseball program has won national championships and is the alltime winningest in NCAA history. Women's basketball is a strong national presence, as are track and field, golf and a number of so-called minor sports that are anything but in Austin.

"It's great to be in an atmosphere where people expect great things," Barnes said. "The athletes that come here expect great things to happen.'

So, too, do the fans, who are conditioned to success. Once again, it starts with football.

Drills start in the spring and whet the appetite, which holds people until practice opens in the summer. A team gets rolling and holds its fans' attention until the

If a football team is on top, nothing is bigger or better. It attracts the most attention and generates the most excitement, yet when the season ends, the offseason for the fans is a brief one and they turn that attention toward the next diversion.

Typically, that's basketball. That's what Barnes has learned to deal with in his first seven seasons at Texas because Mack Brown has built the football program into an annual power once again.

It's what John Beilein is learning at WVU, as well. Not only has he spun the men's basketball program around and aimed it at the top, but at the same time Rich Rodriguez's football program, ranked No. 13 today, is a contender for the Big East title and a BCS berth every year. In time, the goal is to play for a national title.

"When one sport is doing well, you feel pressure to live up to the expectations of the university," Beilein said. "This university has the expectations I want. They are high for all sports.'

He adds kind words about the men's and women's soccer programs that both made the NCAA tournament this year. He shares space with the women's basketball team that is a postseason presence.

In truth, this is what drew Beilein to Morgantown. It's high Division I athletics, something particularly attractive to the only active coach to win 20 games at the junior college, NAIA, Division II and Division I levels. After spending the entirety of his career as a have-not in one key area, Beilein was suddenly happy among the haves.

"When I selected this job, one of criteria I had if I ever was to coach at the big-time level was, I preferred it had a good football program," Beilein said. "Some places, people don't want that. I love that. I love the idea that you can use it on a recruiting visit, but also for the little things. Thanksgiving night, after we come back from Kansas City, I'll be looking forward to the football game all day long.'

Bluefield simply better than Bearcats

Grafton stymied from the start in playoff loss

BLUEFIELD 35, GRAFTON 0

BY RYAN McNEIL

BLUEFIELD — It was just one of those games when nothing went right for Grafton.

The Bearcats fumbled on their first play from scrimmage and Bluefield capitalized with a 29-yard touchdown run from Jonathan Payne less than 60 seconds into the game. Grafton's offense struggled the rest of the game as the Beavers rolled to a 35-0 victory Saturday afternoon, at Mitchell Stadium, to advance to the Class AA semifinals.

Bluefield's defense limited Grafton (6-6) to minus 13 yards rushing and just 91 yards of total offense.

"Their defensive line and linebackers were too much for us," Grafton head coach Mike Skinner said. "Their front seven, front eight were better than us today."

The Beavers' (7-4) aggressive defensive front put constant pressure on quarterback Andy Leach. The senior was sacked five times for 33

"We knew if we didn't get after the quarterback and put some pressure on him we would be in trouble,' Bluefield head coach Fred Simon said. "He's a real good player."

The lack of a running game, combined with poor field position and numerous penalties, forced Grafton to throw the ball more often than

Skinner preferred. Leach attempted 29 passes, completing 13 for 104 yards. In contrast, Bluefield threw only nine times all game. "We couldn't rely on lining up in shotgun and throwing the ball every down," Skinner said.

Simon was surprised that the Bearcats were forced to call so many pass plays. "We didn't foresee that. We saw a hard, physical game. We didn't think it would be easy to stop their running game."

Bluefield extended its lead to 21-0 on touchdown runs from Jerome Powell and Shawn Brooks in the second quarter.

On the first play from scrimmage in the second half, Payne took the handoff from quarterback Eric McClanahan and sprinted 71 yards to the Grafton 1-yard line. The 262pound fullback Allen Carter pounded it into the end zone on the next play.

Devin Clements added a 13-yard run late in the third quarter. Clements was the fifth Beavers running back to score a touchdown in the game.

Saturday's game was the third meeting between the schools, with all of the matchups in the playoffs. Bluefield defeated Grafton in the 1997 AA state championship game and in the 1999 state semifinals.

"I give them all the credit," Skinner said. "That's why they're the best program in the state."

Grafton still had a memorable season. Sitting at 2-5 in late October, the Bearcats won their last three regular-season games to clinch a berth in the playoffs.

Skinner's team knocked off No. 3 seed Herbert Hoover, at Laidley Field, to advance to the state quarterfinals for the first time since "Somewhere along the line, these kids caught fire," Skinner said. "Our kids will be back. It's good they got a taste of the playoffs.

Flyers pull away late to beat Penguins, 6-3

Philadelphia gains revenge for earlier defeat

PITTSBURGH — Jeff Carter and Michael Handzus scored in the first 21/2 minutes of the third period and the Philadelphia Flyers made a late lead hold up this time, beating Pittsburgh, 6-3, on Saturday night, in a feisty rematch of the Penguins' overtime victory four nights before.

Simon Gagne got his NHL-leading 19th and 20th goals of the season as Philadelphia improved to a league-best 10-1-1 on the road after dropping its previous three games, including successive home overtime losses to the Penguins, on Wednesday, and Atlanta, on Friday.

Gagne also assisted on Mike Knuble's empty-net goal with 18 seconds remaining.

After the Penguins rallied three times from one-goal deficits, Carter put in his own rebound early in the third period. Goalie Jocelyn Thibault stopped his initial shot, only to lose sight of a puck that Carter swatted it in for his seventh goal.

Handzus followed 41 seconds later with his fifth goal, picking up a loose puck and skating in to beat Thibault with a wrist shot. The Flyers and goalie Antero Niittymaki made the lead hold up, a night after Philadelphia squandered the same 5-3 lead late in the third by allowing Atlanta to score twice in the final 1:50 of what became a 6-5 overtime loss with Robert Esche in net.

The Flyers, playing their third game in four nights, led 1-0, 2-1 and 3-2 only to have the Penguins answer each time.

Gagne's second goal deflected off former teammate Mark Recchi's stick on a 3-on-1 short-handed breakaway at 16:24 of the second. The Penguins got a tying power play goal nine seconds later on rookie Erik Christensen's shot from the top of the right circle off

USF whips Cincy, keeps BCS hopes alive

BIG EAST

Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Surprising South Florida remained in contention for a BCS bowl berth Saturday, pulling away in the second half to beat Cincinnati, 31-16, for the Bulls' third straight Big East win.

Conference rushing leader Andre Hall surpassed 1,000 yards for the season and scored his 15th touchdown, and USF (6-3, 4-1) forced two thirdquarter turnovers to transform a close game into a rout.

In addition to becoming bowl eligible with its sixth victory, USF stayed on course for a possible showdown with No. 13 WVU for the Big East's automatic spot in the lucrative Bowl Championship Series.

If the Bulls win at Connecticut, next Saturday, and defeat WVU at home, on Dec. 3, USF would be assured of at least a tie for the conference title and represent the league

D'Juan Brown returned an interception 26 yards for a TD that made it 17-7 midway through the third quarter. Four minutes later, Cincinnati quarterback Dustin Grutza fumbled at his 22 to leave the Bulls in position to take a commanding lead.

Receiver Amarri Jackson, the star of the 45-14 upset of Louisville that opened BCS possibilities for the Bulls in September, scored on the next play after mishandling a handoff on a reverse.

Jackson picked up the ball on the bounce and headed around right end before cutting back to the left and

The 6-foot-5 sophomore ran for two touchdowns and threw for a third in USF's defeat of then-No. 9 Louisville.

A week after rushing for 222 yards and three TDs in a 27-0 shutout at Syracuse, Hall ran for 101 on 29 carries against Cincinnati (4-6, 2-4).

Pat Julmiste put USF up, 31-7, with a 1-yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter, but the Bulls couldn't get into the end zone again.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Brady Quinn threw two touchdown passes and Leo Ferrine returned an interception for a touchdown, giving sixth-ranked Notre Dame (8-2) a victory against Syracuse (1-9).

Darius Walker, who rushed for 123 yards on 26 carries, added a 3-yard TD run in the fourth quarter.

Notre Dame needs to beat Stanford next week to remain eligible for its first Bowl Championship Series berth since 2000. Students threw tortillas back and forth throughout the game in anticipation of a possible Fiesta Bowl bid.

Penn State Big Ten champ

TOP 25/NATION

Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Welcome to the BCS, JoePa.

Joe Paterno and No. 5 Penn State locked up their first Bowl Championship Series bid when the Nittany Lions defeated Michigan State, 31-22, on Saturday, to win their first Big Ten title in 11 years.

Michael Robinson ran for 90 yards and a touchdown and passed for another, and Alan Zemaitis had three interceptions for Penn State (10-

Coming off a 4-7 season, Penn State tied Ohio State for the Big Ten lead but will get the league's automatic BCS bid because the Lions beat the Buckeyes, in October.

Michigan State (5-6, 2-6), which began the season 4-0, finished it with six losses in seven games to post consecutive losing seasons for the first time since 1991-'92.

Zemaitis' second pick came in the third quarter, and he returned it 17 yards to the Michigan State 4. Robinson threw a 3-yard TD pass to Deon Butler moments later for a 24-7 third-quarter lead.

Paterno, pant cuffs rolled and kept warm on a cold, windy night by a long, dark winter coat, barely reacted to the score, turning away to resume pacing the sideline as his players celebrated.

Win No. 353 gave Paterno his first Big Ten title since 1994, when Kerry Collins and Ki-Jana Carter were piling up big numbers during Penn State's second year in the

Who would have believed then that Paterno's program would eventually drop to the Big Ten's second division, with four losing seasons in the past five years?

That Penn State completed its return to the top of the conference against Michigan State provided a bit of symmetry to the Nittany Lions' revival. Penn State completed the 2004 season with a 37-13 victory against the Spartans, in Happy Valley, that injected some optimism into the program heading into 2005.

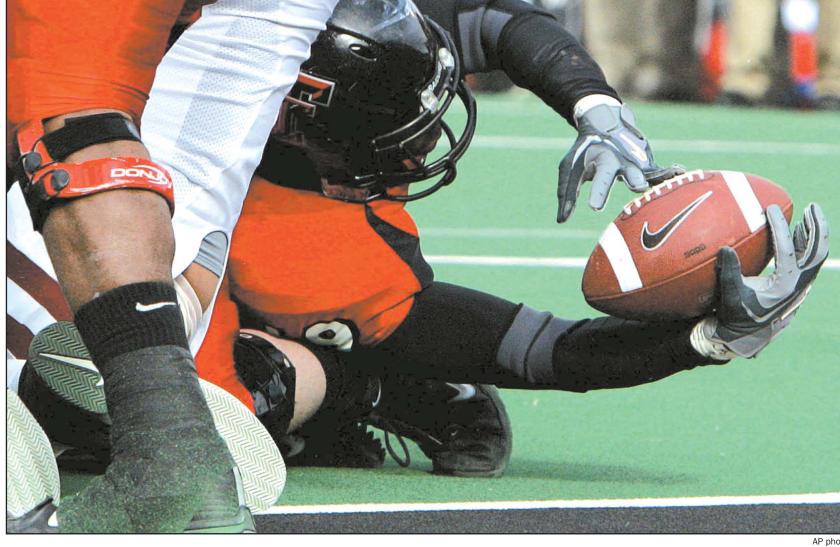

With a new, dynamic offense directed by the versatile senior Robinson — and the best defense Penn State has had since LaVar Arrington was a Nittany Lion, Paterno has been vindicated.

He said throughout the 2004 season that he felt the team was close to being a winner again — and he was CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Virginia Tech (9-1, 6-1 ACC) dominated archrival Virginia (6-4, 3-4) to keep alive its hopes of gaining a spot in the Bowl Championship Series.

Two long weeks after getting beaten convincingly by No. 3 Miami, Cedric Humes ran for 113 yards and three touchdowns and Marcus Vick threw for two more scores as the Hokies beat Virginia for the sixth time in the past seven meetings.

Virginia Tech also turned three Virginia turnovers into touchdowns and shut down Marques Hagans and the Cavaliers' offense. The Hokies would need Miami to lose in order to reach the ACC title game. The conference champion gets an automatic spot in the BCS, though Virginia Tech would be strongly considered for an at-large spot if it finished with just one loss.

(17) Michigan 21

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Ohio State (9-2, 7-1) overcame a slew of mistakes just in time to clinch a share of the Big Ten title. Antonio Pittman's 3-yard run with 24 seconds left capped an 88-yard drive and gave the Buckeyes a victory against Michigan (7-4, 5-3).

Ohio State closed the regular season with six straight wins and gave coach Jim Tressel his fourth win in five games against Michigan.

While the Buckeyes traveled home by bus, they found out they had to share the championship with Penn State, which won at Michigan

The Nittany Lions will earn the automatic Bowl Championship Series bid because they beat Ohio State, which still could get an atlarge bid in the BCS.

The Buckeyes rallied for the victory despite two turnovers and a shanked punt that led to scores, a missed extra-point attempt and fieldgoal attempt, mishandled punt returns and two pass interference penalties in the end zone.

(11) Auburn 28 (8) Alabama 18

AUBURN, Ala. — Brandon Cox passed for two first-half touchdowns and Auburn (9-2, 7-1 SEC) sacked Brodie Croyle 11 times in beating Alabama (9-2, 6-2) for the fourth straight time.

Auburn clinched at least a share of the Western Division title for the fifth time in six seasons with its second straight win against a top-10 team. LSU would play for the SEC title with wins against Mississippi and Arkansas.

(14) Georgia 45, Kentucky 13

ATHENS, Ga. — D.J. Shockley threw four touchdown passes, Danny Ware scored on a 52-yard run and Georgia (8-2, 6-2) finally wrapped up the SEC East title with a rout of Kentucky (3-7, 2-5).

Georgia had squandered a pair of chances to wrap up the division title, losing to Florida and Auburn for only the second two-game losing streak since Mark Richt took over as coach in 2001.

But the Bulldogs rarely lose to Kentucky, winning their ninth straight in the lopsided series.

Shockley, one of the seniors honored before Georgia's final home game of the season, completed 17 of 31 passes for 159 yards in less than three quarters. Bryan McClendon caught two of the TD passes.

(21) Texas Tech 23 Oklahoma 21

LUBBOCK, Texas — Taurean Henderson scored on a 2-yard run as time expired to lift Texas Tech (9-2, 6-2 Big 12) past Oklahoma (6-4, 5-2).

Henderson took the handoff with two seconds remaining and went up the middle. As he was going down, he stretched his arms and got the ball across the goal line. The play was reviewed but the touchdown call was upheld, giving Tech coach Mike Leach his first victory in six tries against former boss Bob Stoops. Leach was Oklahoma's offensive coordinator in 1999.

(23) Boston College 31 Maryland 16

 ${\tt COLLEGE\ PARK, Md.-Jolonn}$ Dunbar scored on a 94-yard fumble return and Ray Henderson took an interception 35 yards for a touchdown, leading Boston College (8-3, 5-3 ACC) past Maryland (5-5, 3-4).

Andre Callender had 121 yards rushing and a score for the Eagles, who never trailed in their regularseason finale. Both teams had four turnovers.

Playing in its first year in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Boston College finished tied with Florida State atop the Atlantic Division. But the Seminoles will advance to the title game by virtue of their 28-17 win against the Eagles, in September.

Lance Ball ran for 135 yards and a touchdown for Maryland, which still needs one win to become eligible to receive a bowl bid. The Terrapins conclude the regular season next week, at North Carolina State.

■ KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Earl Bennett caught a 5-yard touchdown pass from Jay Cutler with 1:11 to go and Vanderbilt (5-6, 3-5 SEC) beat Tennessee, 28-24. Vanderbilt won in Neyland Stadium for the first time since 1975, and the overall losing streak dating to 1982 was the second-longest between major teams in Division I-A. The Volunteers (4-6, 2-5) will not be eligible for a bowl for the first time since 1988

 \blacksquare NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Clifton Dawson scored from 2 yards out in the third overtime as Harvard (7-3, 5-2) beat Yale (4-6, 4-3), 30-24, winning "The Game" for an unprecedented fifth straight time.

HUNTINGTON - Chris Johnson rushed for three touchdowns to lead East Carolina to a 34-29 win against Marshall, on Saturday East Carolina (4-6, 3-4 Conference USA) broke a three-game losing streak under first-year coach Skip Holtz.

Marshall (4-6, 3-4) is guaranteed its first losing season since 1983 and won't go to a bowl game for only the second time since rejoining Division I-A in 1997.

James Pinckney directed a pair of fourth-quarter touchdown drives to secure East Carolina's second road win of the season. He found Kevin Roach on a 27-yard pass to set up Dominique Lindsay's 19-yard TD run to put East Carolina ahead, 24-23. The Pirates went 85 yards on their next drive, with Pinckney throwing passes of 19 yards to Roach and 20 yards to Johnson, who scored from 2 yards out with 7:55 left.

Marshall's Chubb Small fumbled the ensuing kickoff out of bounds at the 2-yard line. East Carolina's Kasey Ross then intercepted Jimmy Skinner near midfield with 5:35 left, leading to a Pirates field goal for a 34-23 lead.

Skinner threw an 8-yard TD pass to Hiram Moore with 49 seconds left.

Marshall squandered a careerhigh effort from Ahmad Bradshaw for the second straight game. Bradshaw finished with 187 yards on 29 carries and scored twice.

Skinner, starting in place of the injured Bernie Morris, moved Marshall effectively in the first half but let two scoring chances slip away after halftime.

Chris Royal returned a punt 42 yards to the East Carolina 18 early in the third quarter, but Marshall settled for a field goal.

Skinner later didn't see Lauzon open in the end zone from the East Carolina 19 and scrambled for 3 yards. Marshall eventually turned the ball over on downs.

C.W. Post 28, Shepherd 21 SHEPERDSTOWN — Rob

Blount connected with Ryan Heller on two touchdown passes and C.W. Post (10-2) beat Shepherd (11-1), in the second round of the NCAA Division II playoffs.

The second of the Blount-to-Heller touchdowns, a 58-yard pass with 4:55 left in the third quarter were the only points scored in the second half for either team, and ended up being the margin of victory for C.W. Post.

The loss brought to an end to Shepherd's 18-game win streak.

"I'll definitely be walking around with my chest out," said McTavish, the lone senior on WVU's roster.

Reed Cooper scored the game's only goal on a 5-yard header off an assist from McTavish at the 17:55 mark of the second half. The goal gave the Mountaineers their first NCAA win since a 1-0 victory against Virginia, in 1981.

"Devon hit a great cross, and I was fortunate enough to be in the right place at the right time." Cooper said. "It's something we've been working on all week, crossing and finishing. We knew that was going to be important for the game."

The Mountaineers' 13th victory ties a school record for wins in a season and propels WVU (13-7-2) on to a Tuesday night road meeting against ninth-seeded Akron (17-1-2).

WVU outshot Robert Morris, 28-4, in blanking the Colonials for the second time this season. WVU had 10 shots on goal to Robert Morris's two. The Mountaineers posted their 12th shutout.

"We probably played better this game than we did the first time against them this season, even though the score doesn't show it," said WVU coach Mike Seabolt, whose team beat the Colonials, 3-0, on Sept. 28.

"I thought it was one of our better performances. We controlled the game and gave up very few chances. We created a lot of chances ourselves and generally played with a good level of desire and competitiveness and team work ethic."

The Mountaineers limited Robert Morris (11-8-1) to one shot in the second half. Robert Morris coach Bill Denniston could tell his players didn't have much energy left after upsetting top-seeded Monmouth, 3-2 in overtime, this past weekend in the Northeast Conference championship game to advance to the NCAAs.

"We maybe spent ourselves emotionally last weekend, and WVU had a little more spring in their step today than we did," Denniston said. "We knew they were a big, strong team, as most teams in the Big East are.

"We knew our style of play is to keep the ball on the ground and move it quickly. It didn't happen as planned. I just think they played their great game better than we played ours. They get the ball forward quickly, get a lot of good chances off set pieces. We didn't create much in what we were trying to do."

WVU junior goalkeeper Nick Noble was called on to make just two saves as he posted the 26th shutout of his career, two shy of the school record.

"Nick is a great shot stopper, but Nick will be first to tell you it comes with defense," Seabolt said. "The team works hard to defend. (The 26 shutouts are) a credit to Nick, but also a credit to our whole defense."

Now, it's on to Akron for the Mountaineers, who will face the Zips for the first time since 1995, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Akron leads the series, 5-2-1.

"We played them in the spring, and they are a very tough side, McTavish said. "Obviously their record shows it. We're going to have to bring our best effort. If we do, we can walk away, 1-0. If we keep it 0-0 for as long as we can, we're going to get that goal, I believe. We'll take it to them, leave it on the field and see what happens.'

One year later — and six games into his junior season the Fairmont resident became the Mountaineers' starter at "sam" linebacker for a nationally televised Big East Conference game against Connecticut.

Noechel finished with seven tackles, one forced fumble and one interception in WVU's 31-19 victory, in Hartford. He was in the starting lineup to stay.

Noechel, who plays his final home game in Thursday night's Backyard Brawl, against Pitt, has started 16 consecutive games at "sam" linebacker. His difficult early days in WVU's program are a distant memory. He doesn't second-guess his decision to reject a full-scholarship offer from Fairmont State.

"It was hard the first couple of years," said Noechel, who was awarded a scholarship after the Gator Bowl loss against Florida State. "I may have regretted it a little bit.

"Now, when I look back on it, I don't regret it at all. This is what I wanted to do. I knew I could do it. I wanted to prove to myself and everybody else that I could do it. I think I've shown everybody that — and myself,

Noechel's father remains in awe of what his son has accomplished in the past two years, transforming himself from a disappointed, uncertain sophomore to a confident, poised senior. "When I sit back and kind of look at it, it's like it's all a dream," said the elder Noechel, a production manager for Fairmont Specialty Services.

"It's something he's always wanted to do. We always knew he could do it if he put his mind to it. He's always been a good athlete. It's really been a big thrill for us as parents. We couldn't be prouder, of course, especially this last year since he's gotten to start. It's been such a thrill to see him out there.'

WVU coach Rich Rodriguez will bring up Noechel's name with prospective walk-ons long after Noechel has departed the Mountaineers' football scene.

Noechel, Rodriguez said, is an example of what the WVU program is built on.

"We're big on the walk-on program," Rodriguez said. "We've put 20-some guys on scholarship as walk-ons the last four years. Jeff is one of those guys who came and proved himself.

"He worked his way into being a starter from special teams. He's been very consistent and had a good year. He plays hard and is a good example to the young guys, especially the young walkons, on how to persevere and make it."

Like most of WVU's seniors, Noechel isn't ready to contemplate the end of his football-playing days. He's been involved in the sport since he joined a Pop Warner League, in Fairmont, at the age of 8, and his parents, Jeff and Karen, have been right there with him.

"I hate to see it come to an end," the elder Noechel said. "It's been the chance of a lifetime. I'm sure he doesn't realize the magnitude of it now. Next year, when he gets to go to the games — and he's never really attended a WVU game where he wasn't a player or part of the team — he'll be able to sit back and watch and see what it all has meant."

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Annika Sorenstam survived gusty conditions Saturday to barely stay in the lead at the season-ending ADT Championship.

Sorenstam played cautiously on the final hole and settled for a bogey, giving her a 2-over 74 to end her streak of nine rounds at par or better at Trump International. The only good news was her one-shot lead on Marisa Baena and Liselotte Neumann as she tries to win for the 10th time this year.

Sorenstam was at 3-under 213, one of only five players who remained under par as 20 mph gusts turned Trump into a severe test for just about everyone.

The exception was Baena, who started the third round in a tie for 20th and wound up in the final group Sunday with Sorenstam. Having secured some 70 tickets for friends and family, Baena treated them to 6-under 66 — the only round in the 60s — with birdies on seven of the final 11 holes.

Russell did a double drop, moving farther back as the defenders sped by Anderson. Only then did Russell float the football in Anderson's direction, the first pass of the afternoon he completed.

"It's a play we're run only three or four times this year," Anderson said, "but we must have 200 yards on it."

Bowers wasn't quite so certain about that, saying it had been run "less than a handful of times" but that he'd have to look it up to see if it had been that successful.

For Anderson, an inside-the-tackles runner, this screen is one of his favorite plays.

"I love that play," he admitted. "Normally, I don't have much room. It's nice to find open space."

And that is just what Anderson had as he began rumbling down the field, picking up blocks, shaking off tackles.

It wasn't until he had rambled

The Mohigans turned that field position into a touchdown, added another the next time they possessed the football and then let their defense rescue them for the rest of the day.

"It was," said Anderson, "our wake-up call."

Stewart, the 2002 champion, qualified 20th and simply needs to finish ninth or better to close out his pursuers, no matter what they do. "If we can just go out there and have a good run, we'll let the rest of it take care of itself," he said. "We don't have to create magic this weekend. We just have to go out and have a solid performance." The day didn't start well for Edwards, who woke to find part of the floor in his motor home, parked in the infield at the track, flooded. "I left the darned sink running all night and the people here at Homestead-Miami Speedway are so gracious, they leave you a water out of water," Edwards explained. "Luckily, and this is great, my motor-home driver can't ever get line hooked up, so you never run it level. And I don't know how lucky I can be, but he had it listing to the left front, away from the bedroom, so it all ran down the front of the motor home."

Now, Edwards hopes the good fortune will carry on to the rest of the weekend.

"I know what the numbers are, at least I think I do," the 26-year-old Missourian said. "I looked on the Internet last night. ... But I don't have any option other than to just go out and try to lead the most laps (for a five-point bonus) and win the race. I can't control how well those other guys are going to run."

Johnson, the runner-up each of the past two years, qualified 32nd on Saturday. A year ago, he was worse off, starting from the rear of the 43-car field after qualifying so slowly he had to use a provisional. But Johnson was able to move through the field and finish second, losing the title to Kurt Busch by just eight points.

Busch-Ford 300

HOMESTEAD, Fla. — Martin Truex overcame a series of setbacks Saturday to win his second straight NASCAR Busch Series season title, finishing seventh as Ryan Newman won at Homestead-Miami Speedway.

Nextel Cup stars Newman and Greg Biffle battled at the front of the pack through most of the seasonending, 200-lap race.

Biffle, who has one victory and eight runner-up finishes this year in the Busch Series, passed Newman for the lead on lap 172 and began to pull away. Biffle was leading by nearly two seconds and seemingly on the way to an easy win when Brent Sherman brought out a caution flag on lap 193 when he hit the wall and then lost a wheel.

On the ensuing restart on lap 198, Newman got a great jump, drove to the high side of the banking and raced past Biffle into the lead. Newman held off the challenger the rest of the way, winning by 0.138 seconds.

and the Mohigans turned over the "The way our offense played today, it surprised us but it didn't rattle us," Lewis said. "South Charleston is so fast. We're not used to that kind of speed, because we didn't play any team that could run like that. I knew we would have a tough time against their speed and we did." It all changed in the second half, as Russell connected on a 44yard screen pass to Maxwell Anderson that set up Russell's 1yard scoring run.

Anderson and Justin Blankenship began to find some seams and the Mohigans were able to do just enough to get their 26th consecutive victory. Anderson broke through the line for a 10-yard TD run with 3:18 left in the third quarter to win the game. MHS finished with 231 total yards.

What didn't change, though, was the play of the defense, which gets the credit for Saturday's victory. On its final drive, South Charleston reached the MHS 5yard line, but after a delay-ofgame penalty and a sack, Blankenship intercepted Coleman and the Mohigans ran out the clock.

"Our kids didn't show enough toughness and we were very inept on offense today," Bowers said. "The defense won this game for us. We obviously made some mistakes on offense and we have to figure out what happened. I'm just glad we get a chance to figure it out with another game to play.'

Leuchanka leads WVU past UCF

Senior's double-double sets career-best marks

WVU ROUNDUP

Web reports

ORLANDO, Fla. — Yelena Leuchanka scored 20 points and grabbed 17 rebounds to help West Virginia to a 77-63 win against Central Florida, on Saturday, in the UCF Golden Knights Classic.

Leuchanka's totals were career highs for the senior, who had 18 points and 13 rebounds in Friday's 57-54 loss, to Texas San Antonio.

The Mountaineers (1-1) shot 52 percent for the game to avoid starting the season 0-2 for the first time since the 1992-'93 season. Sophomore Olayinka Sanni contributed 19 points and eight rebounds to help WVU to a 45-27 advantage on the WVU's all-Big East guard, Meg Bulger, was saddled with foul trouble and had her second consecutive sub-par performance, managing just 13 points - six below her average a year ago. She scored just 11 points Friday.

But she sank a pair of 3s to begin the second half and snap a 38-all tie. WVU built a 59-46 advantage on a pair of Sanni free throws.

Sophomore LaQuita Owens contributed 10 points for WVU.

Junior guard Francine Houston led UCF with 17 points.

The Mountaineers play Fordham in their home opener at 7 p.m.

■ WVU women's basketball coach Mike Carey has signed three players for next season: Janay Armstrong (Shelbyville, Tenn./Shelbyville Central High), Kelly Smith (Staley, N.C./Eastern Randolph High) and Ranisha White (Charlotte, N.C./Gulf Coast Community College).

"We got our needs," Carey said. "We got a shooter and athletic posts. With these three recruits plus our two transfers that will be eligible next year (Sparkle Davis and Melanie Small), this is an excellent class. This is one of the best classes we've had since I've been here."

Armstrong, a 6-1 post player, averaged 12.6 points and 9.5 rebounds a contest while shooting 59 percent from the field as a junior.

Smith, a 5-11 guard, averaged 17 oints and six rebounds while helping the Wildcats to a 24-4 record and a second-round appearance in the 3A state playoffs.

White, a 6-2 forward and rising sophomore at Gulf Coast Community College, averaged 13 points and 11 rebounds per game for a 27-4 team.

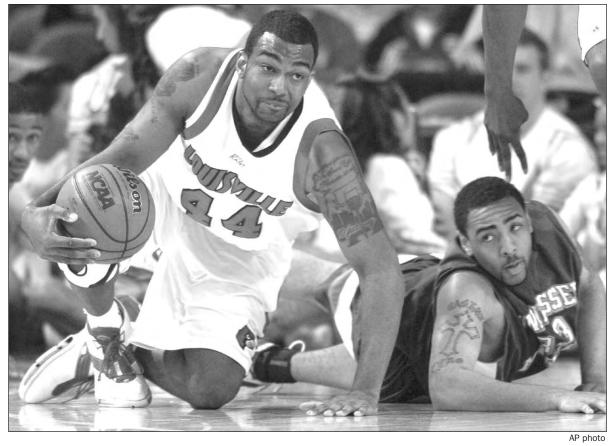

White was named WBCA/Kodak Junior College Honorable Mention All-American. She is rated the No. 4 junior-college power forward and 15th best overall player in the nation by All Star Girl's Report.

In its first nonconference match and first road match of the season, WVU suffered a 4643-4562 loss at Navy, late Friday.

WVU's best discipline was in smallbore. The Mountaineers compiled a team score of 2284 compared to their 2278 air rifle total.

Senior Brian Launer was WVU's best shooter, with a 578 smallbore score and a 574 air rifle sum. Lafe Kunkel (574 smallbore) was the only other WVU shooter in the 570s.

450th victory for Cards coach Pitino

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Juan Palacios had 16 points and 11 rebounds to lead No. 7 Louisville past Tennessee-Martin, 78-61, on Saturday, in the season opener for both teams.

Taquan Dean had a poor shooting day but still finished with 18 points, nine rebounds and five assists for Louisville, which except for an exhibition game today — will be off until Dec. 3.

The win was the 450th at the college level for Louisville coach Rick Pitino, who's also coached at Boston University, Providence and Kentucky.

Jeremy Kelly scored a careerhigh 31 points for Tennessee-Martin, which finished 6-21 a year ago and did not qualify for the Ohio Valley Conference tournament.

Louisville, by contrast, went 33-5 and ended its season in the Final Four, beating West Virginia in the Elite Eight. But of that team's starters, only Dean and Palacios returned, and Louisville's projected starting center, transfer David Padgett, sat out Saturday with a sprained left knee.

As a result, Pitino started one freshman, Terrence Williams, and one seldom-used sophomore, Terrance Farley, on the frontline. Williams had 11 points.

Palacios proved to be the stabilizing force. After suffering major ligament damage in his right foot during a July pickup game, Palacios didn't return to practice until early in the week, but he played 30 minutes against the Skyhawks and far eclipsed his freshman pergame averages of 9.7 points and 6.5 rebounds.

During a first half when his teammates struggled from the field, the 6-foot-8 sophomore scored 11 points to keep the Cardinals

Louisville went 9-of-33 shooting in the first half, including 3-of-19 from 3-point range. But the long-range shots began falling after halftime and the Cardinals finished with 10 3-pointers in 33 attempts.

Louisville opened the second half on a 13-2 run, stretching a five-point halftime lead to 44-28 with 16:12 left. Tennessee-Martin came no closer than eight points the rest of the way.

DURHAM, N.C. — J.J. Redick started a rally late in the first half and finished with 29 points, leading Duke (3-0) past Davidson.

HONOLULU — Matt Lojeski and Julian Sensley each scored 20 points for Hawaii in a victory that ended Michigan State's streak of season-opening wins at 28.

Michigan State, the first member of the preseason Top Ten to lose this season, was hampered by poor shooting and leg cramps. The Spartans stopped off on Oahu on the way to Maui Invitational that starts Monday and will see them play three games in as many days.

(6) Oklahoma 68, Samford 41

NORMAN, Okla. — Kevin Bookout scored 13 points and grabbed 10 rebounds and Michael Neal added 15 points on five 3-pointers to help Oklahoma beat Samford (1-2).

UC Irvine 79, (13) Stanford 63

STANFORD, Calif. — Ross Schraeder scored 19 points and UC Irvine (2-1) used an impressive shooting performance and hustle to shock Stanford, in the Cardinal's season-opener.

Shamar Armstrong scored six straight points in the final 3:19, and the Anteaters took advantage of a significant height advantage to pound the ball inside at every opportunity against a Stanford squad missing starting forward Matt Haryasz (sprained ankle).

Bradley 75, DePaul 60

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Tony Bennett scored 18 points and Marcellus Sommerville added 17 to lead Bradley past DePaul, spoiling Jerry Wainwright's first game as coach of the Blue Demons.

1958-'59 team played for and nearly won the NCAA tournament, most everyone agrees the 1957-'58 $\,$ team was better.

"The 1958 team, in my opinion, was the greatest team West Virginia ever had," longtime sports reporter Mickey Furfari said. "It was better than the '59 team mainly because of Lloyd Sharrar, who was a great center. He was thirdteam All-American as a senior that year, which obviously meant the coaches thought he was the third-best center in the country. Then you had a superstar like Jerry West and great guards like Joedy Gardner and Don Vincent.'

Sharrar and West were All-Americans by year's end, Gardner and Vincent made the team go, and the rest of the roster was filled with the likes of Willie Akers, Bob Smith, Ronnie Retton and Bucky Bolyard. West, Sharrar, Vincent, Akers and Bolyard are all WVU Hall of Famers.

By the second week of the season, WVU was ranked No. 8 nationally and headed to the UKIT, for the first time, with a 6-0 record.

"It was invitation only, so it was a really big thing to us," Akers said. "They usually invited some pretty good teams, but Kentucky always wanted the upper hand."

That was the case in 1957, when defending national champion North Carolina sat in the other bracket. No. 5 Kentucky-vs.-No. 1 UNC was the dream matchup in the final.

"We knew that was what they wanted," Vincent said, "and that probably gave us a little motivation."

WVU was indeed battling the odds. The Mountaineers had fans at the game, but almost all of the capacity crowd was against them. This was something new, for WVU was used to crowds of 5,000 or 6,000 inside the old Fieldhouse, which was a nice audience back

"It was nothing for Kentucky to have 15,000 people inside their arena," Jacobs said.

WVU was also weighted down by the respect, if not awe, it possessed when confronted by Kentucky and its tradition. Players grew up listening to the Wildcats on the radio. They knew about the success and the tradition. They knew about Rupp, a figure who may not have been bigger than the game but could certainly look it in the eve.

"In those days, [the teams] sat under the basket at each end of the floor," Akers said. "Everyone knew who he was, so it was kind of awesome to see him sitting down there. And he raised a lot of Cain, too. He was up hollering at the officials and his players a lot."

'We whipped them'

Fred Schaus was coming into his own as a coach then, mastering not only the mechanics of the game but also of the players. He understood the situation in the UKIT and found a way to get through to the Mountaineers.

"Us country boys didn't know what to think about everything, but I remember Coach Schaus telling us that the winner of the first game gets in the finals and gets a watch," Akers said. "That was a big deal to us."

WVU stomped Kentucky from the start and won, 77-70. The Mountaineers led by 15 points at halftime and were never really threatened.

"That was one of the toughest environments any West Virginia team has ever played in," Furfari said. "They were so dominant, though. They never trailed in that game. That was unheard-of."

Sharrar had 21 points and 18 rebounds and West, who had his nose broken in the game, added 15 and 10. Smith, Vincent and Gardner scored 17, 14 and 10 points, respectively.

"We weren't supposed to even be close to winning the ball game," Vincent said. "I don't think anyone in the state thought we could come out on top.

But the joke, so to speak, was on the Mountaineers.

"After the game," Akers said, "Coach Schaus told us he made a mistake and we had to win the championship game to get the watches."

A day later, WVU took on the Tar Heels.

Jay Jacobs

One of the great things about those games was the idea that Jerry was Mr. Basketball on the floor and Adolph Rupp was Mr. Basketball in the coaching ranks. Those were The Guys.

"We whipped them, too," Akers

UNC's 37-game winning streak was finished. When the next poll came out, WVU was No. 1 and Schaus was a little lighter on top. "Schaus offered to let me give him a crew cut if we won at Kentucky," Vincent said. "I got to give him that first crew cut when we got home, with the whole team sitting in the dressing room watch-

The Mountaineers lost one game in the rest of the regular season and won the Southern Conference championship. Vincent broke his leg in the tournament, though, and a reshuffled lineup didn't mesh fast enough. WVU lost to Manhattan in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

"That victory was a sign of things to come," Jacobs said, "for that team and the program.'

A year later, WVU would advance to the NCAA's championship game in what is one of the most magical seasons to date. Included within was another bout with the Wildcats.

Respect due

Despite ruining Kentucky's holiday on several levels a year earlier, WVU was invited back to the UKIT in 1958. This time, the brackets were set up so the seventh-ranked Mountaineers and second-ranked Wildcats would play in the championship game.

Granted, both had to get there first, and WVU foiled a similar plan the year before. In fact, just getting to the tournament was an issue for some. Furfari planned to cover the event and called Kentucky's sports information director to get a credential.

"You're going to have to talk to Coach Rupp before you get the credential," the SID said.

"What are you talking about?" "Coach Rupp is upset you wrote how one of his players intentionally broke West's nose last year."

Furfari remembered it was another reporter who made that statement in a column. Furfari mentioned that opinion in something he wrote later on while stat ing he thought the injury was an accident.

The SID wasn't budging. "To hell with you!" Furfari said. "I'll go ahead and buy a tick-

"You can't buy a ticket," the SID said. "It's sold out." Furfari eventually called Rupp, who repeated his charges. Furfari then repeated his side of the story. Eventually, Furfari got a nice quote from Rupp stating it was an accident. "I admired the guy and everything he did," Furfari said. "He was a legend — he's still a leg-

In truth, Rupp had a lot of respect for West and WVU. He once stated West was the best player he'd coached against.

"One of the great things about those games was the idea that Jerry was Mr. Basketball on the floor and Adolph Rupp was Mr. Basketball in the coaching ranks," Jacobs said. "Those were The Guys.'

Kentucky won the 1958 game, 97-90, but West was at his best, hitting for 36 points and grabbing 16 rebounds. Akers had 10 points and 11 rebounds off the bench.

The teams exchanged victories in the 1959 and 1962 UKITs and each year they met in the championship game. The Wildcats won the final UKIT matchup in 1964 by 24 points, 102-78. The previous four games were decided by a total of 26 points.

A year later, they opened the season together in Lexington.

"Kentucky just killed them," Furfari said of the 106-87 outcome. "They were getting too good."

Kentucky made the trip to Morgantown to christen the Coliseum the next year, but won that one, too, 106-100. Thus ended the great run, but not the memories or the notion that WVU shared its finest hours with one of the sport's finest representatives.

"That part was very special and I think that's one reason people remember it so well," Vincent said. "I just wish that things would get better at the university now so everyone can sort of forget about what happened in the '50s and make some new memories. They had a good year last year, so it looks like that could happen."

The Steelers only lack QBs; Ravens lack entire offense

Baltimore's ppg (11.1) last in league

BY DAVID GINSBURG

BALTIMORE -- The Pittsburgh Steelers are so banged up at quarterback, wide receiver Antwaan Randle El took snaps as the backup this week and was seeking clearance to wear a helmet with a head-

The Baltimore Ravens also have issues at quarterback, though their problems on offense extend well beyond the uneven play of Kyle low 11.1 points and hasn't scored a touchdown in 11 consecutive quarters, the Steelers (7-2) could probably put 255-pound running back Jerome Bettis behind center today and make a game of it when the AFC North rivals meet for the second time in four weeks.

Given the fact Baltimore (2-7) has lost four straight, averages a league-

Pittsburgh starting quarterback Ben Roethlisberger damaged cartilage in his knee Oct. 31, during the Steelers' 20-19 victory against Baltimore. His replacement, Charlie Batch, helped beat Green Bay the following week, but broke a bone in his hand this past Sunday, against Cleveland.

So Steelers coach Bill Cowher will likely turn to Tommy Maddox, who threw three interceptions and lost a fumble in his most recent start, a 23-17 loss to Jacksonville, on Oct. 16. If Maddox starts, the backups will be Roethlisberger and Randle El, who played quarterback in college at Indiana.

"Regardless of who's in there, the other 10 guys have to rally around him and make plays," Steelers receiver Hines Ward said. "We have confidence in Tommy, I have confidence in Tommy. He's done it before. We're not going to base the whole thing off one game."

The most recent time Maddox started against the Ravens was September 2004. He was forced out with an elbow injury and replaced by Roethlisberger, who performed so well he kept the job even after Maddox was healthy. And Roethlisberger won NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year honors.

Even if he plays exceptionally well today, Maddox knows he won't retain the starting job. He is, however, delighted to get a second

"I'm excited to get back out there," he said. "But I don't think you can ever go into a game thinking you've got to prove something.'

Like it or not, that's the position Boller is in. Now in his third season, Boller has yet to show he can make an impact as Baltimore's starting quarterback. The former first-round draft pick hoped to make that kind of impression this season, but a toe injury in the opener against Indianapolis forced him to miss seven games.

Boller returned this past week and threw three interceptions in a 30-3 loss, at Jacksonville, a performance that did little to enhance the possibility he will retain the job beyond this season.

"If you throw three picks, there must be something wrong. I'm looking to improve on everything I do," he said.

Off to the worst start in franchise history, the Ravens have been reduced to playing the spoiler's role. Beating Pittsburgh won't salvage a terribly disappointing season, but it would do wonders for a team that hasn't won in a month.

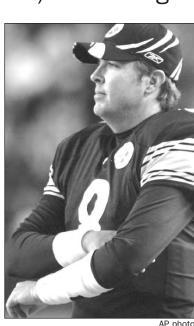

"Everybody looks at us and, at this point, they think we're not a team they have to worry about," cornerback Chris McAlister said. "It will be our joy and happiness to beat teams that think they can come in here and dominate us. We want to win badly.

So do the Steelers, who are tied atop the division with the Cincinnati Bengals. Pittsburgh isn't taking Baltimore lightly, consider-

"It's a very good defense," Maddox said. "They run around and play well at home, with the noise and the turf there, so we're going to have to be ready on Sunday."

Whether it's Maddox or Roethlisberger, or even Randle El at quarterback, the Ravens know they first must stop the run if they're to pull off an upset.

"We're looking forward to stepping up to the challenge no matter who plays quarterback," linebacker Bart Scott said. "There's no secret to their success — they're going to run the ball, pound it down our throats, and try to throw it when we present opportunities. We just have to bring a physical, nasty attitude to the field.'

Steelers re-sign Williams

PITTSBURGH - Former starting cornerback Willie Williams re-signed with the Pittsburgh Steelers on Saturday. He had been released earlier in the week.

The Steelers cut Williams so they could activate tight end Matt Kranchick to play Nov. 13, against Cleveland, but Kranchick was waived Saturday.

Williams, a 13-season veteran, spent most of the 2004 season as a Steelers starter, but lost his job to Ike Taylor late in training camp and was activated for only three of the team's first eight games.

Also, rookie Trai Essex, a thirdround draft pick, could make his first career start at left tackle today, in Baltimore, replacing Marvel Smith. Smith is listed as doubtful with an ankle injury, though coach Bill Cowher said it would be a game-time decision whether he would play.

Smith did not practice this past week, and the Steelers (7-2) normally require a player to practice at least once to play.

Essex has not played in an NFL game. He was inactive for each of the team's first nine games.

For conservative coaches, gambles sometimes pay off

BY DAVE GOLDBERG

Associated Press

ootball coaches are by nature conservative. Playing it safe means less heat from owners, fans and media if you fail. Which is why it was a big deal when Kansas City's Dick Vermeil went for a winning touchdown instead of a tying field goal two weeks ago, against Oakland. And when Tampa Bay's Jon Gruden went for a two-point conversion to beat Washington Nov. 13 instead of kicking an extra point to send the game into overtime. Funny thing, but the man who made one of the best remembered (and respected) gambles in football history said this week he wouldn't have done it if the rules had been different.

The decision in 1984 — the days before overtime — was made by Nebraska coach Tom Osborne, who went for a two-point conversion in the Orange Bowl against Miami rather than kicking for a tie. The conversion failed and Miami won the national championship, a title that most people agreed Nebraska would have won had it tied the Hurricanes.

"I always felt that if you were going to win a national championship you needed to win the game," Osborne, now a congressman from Nebraska, said this week. "I didn't think about playing for a tie. After the fact, everyone just told me, no problem, if you'd tied you'd have won the

But Osborne also said if there was overtime then, he would have kicked the ball and taken his chances in extra time.

That brings up another idea. Imagine if the extra point kick, perhaps the most boring play in sports, were thrown out and teams had to go for two, as they do in college if a game is still tied after two overtimes. It would never happen in the staid NFL. but if it did, you can imagine how much time coaches would spend trying to figure out what works best from the 2-yard line.

For now, it remains simply an option, one Osborne exercised at a huge time in a huge game.

There was less on the line for Vermeil and Gruden in the middle of a 16-game NFL season, although their teams are in playoff contention.

But remember that both were on the 1-yard line rather than the

Instead of opting to kick an extra point and send his team's game against Washington into overtime, Tampa Bay coach John Gruden went for two.

2 or 3, a point noted by Osborne. And remember that Gruden first tried to kick the extra point and decided to go for two only after the Redskins were offside on the kick, which they blocked. The ball then was moved to the 1. Vermeil and Gruden probably had the odds in their favor. In both games, both sides were mov ing the ball so well that the winner of the overtime coin toss was a likely winner, and the coin toss is a 50-50 proposition.

Players are a little less conservative than coaches.

Brett Favre, for example, said he would have pushed for a twopoint try if the Packers had scored on a final drive in Cincinnati. where they lost, 21-14, on Oct. 30.

"Hell yeah. It was obvious I was pooped out. I think everyone was pooped out. ... I had just had enough," Favre said. "I was ready to go for two if we had gotten it. I think everyone was.'

And Washington quarterback Mark Brunell, whose team lost in Tampa, thinks Gruden made the right decision.

"They only needed a yard," Brunell said. "We would probably do the same thing. We were mov ing the ball. If we had won that toss, there was a good chance we were going to go down and at least get a field goal. I think it was a smart decision. I wish he'd kicked

One of the more amusing aspects of the gambles was the reaction of the conservative coaching fraternity.

"This league is very by-thebook: 'This is how everything should be," Buffalo coach Mike Mularkey said.

"I don't know why it's got to be that way. Sometimes you have to take some chances and do some things that are off what everybody is expecting. I've been involved with teams that came from behind to score to tie it, never saw the ball and lost the game. I know what they were thinking: 'Our defense has not held up in the last couple drives, and right there our offense had some serious momentum going.""

But others stuck to conventional wisdom.

Tennessee's Jeff Fisher recalled the biggest play in his franchise's history, the last one of the 2000 Super Bowl, when the Titans' Kevin Dyson was tackled at the St. Louis 1-yard line as time ran out. That gave St. Louis a 23-16 victory.

If Dyson had gotten in? "In that particular case I would have not gone for two," Fisher said. "I felt like the momentum had changed; had we gotten the chance to win the toss, we would have been attacking a tired defense.'

Since the two-point conversion was put into the NFL, in 1994, the success rate is 44 percent, so going for it is a risk. And more NFL coaches misuse the two-point conversion than use it correctly.

In 2002, for example, Jim Fassel, then the Giants' coach, went for two and failed in the third quarter of a game with Tennessee. That eventually left his team ahead 29-21 instead of 30-21 late in the game, allowing the Titans to score, tie it on a two-pointer and win in overtime.

That same season, the acclaimed Bill Belichick went for two and failed with the Patriots trailing 21-16, in Denver. Then the Broncos kicked a field goal to make it 24-16, meaning that if the Patriots had scored (they didn't), he would have been forced to go for two again.

In fact, in that Kansas City-Oakland game, Vermeil's decision could have been unnecessary.

After the Raiders, trailing, 20-9. scored to make it 20-15, Turner went for two and failed. When the Raiders scored again, he had to try a two-pointer and made it, making it 23-20, the same score it would have been had he kicked

Thus the first two-point try forced him to attempt the second. If he had failed again, the score would have been 21-20 when the Chiefs got the ball to the Oakland 1 with five seconds left.

Vermeil certainly would have kicked a field goal to win the Without Vermeil's example, would Gruden have done the same?

No ruling yet on Owens' grievance

PHILADELPHIA — Terrell Owens hopes to celebrate a legal victory instead of a touchdown catch. The dismissed All-Pro wideout might be closer to returning to the field this season, even though the Philadelphia Eagles still don't want him back.

Arbitrator Richard Bloch did not issue a ruling late Friday, after Owens' grievance hearing lasted more than 13 hours.

Richard Berthelsen, general counsel of the NFL Players' Association, said a decision is expected by Tuesday and expressed optimism that Owens wouldn't have to sit out the remainder of the season.

Owens — who did not speak with reporters after leaving the hearing - is seeking reinstatement and is willing to return to the Eagles, despite contentious testimony against hours of team testimony and another two hours from Owens' side.

Owens was suspended on Nov. 5, following a series of incidents in which he criticized quarterback Donovan McNabb, called the organization "classless" and fought with former teammate Hugh Douglas, who serves as team "ambassador.'

Two days later, the Eagles extended the suspension to four games and told Owens not to return to the team. Owens is losing more than $200,000 per game from his $3.5 million salary. He would be paid for the games he doesn't play if the Eagles deactivate him as planned once the suspension is up.

The players' association wants Philadelphia to release Owens if he's not going to be reinstated after the four-game suspension is over. Lawyers for the players' union argued Owens' punishment for conduct detrimental to the team was excessive and the suspension should be reduced.

"We believe the evidence showed that if you looked at the conduct here, there was no basis for this discipline," Kessler said, adding the punishment was the "most severe team discipline in the history of the The Eagles insist the suspension

Kessler said the Eagles haven't made an attempt to reclaim that money — and if they did, that would require another hearing.

Hunters aren't responsible for auto collisions

I DIDN'T INTEND to write this column. Discussing auto-deer collisions wasn't on my schedule for this week.

But when an Associated Press article out of Charleston appeared on our Outdoors page this past week, I got so irritated I had to set the record straight.

The article concerned the number of auto collisions caused by deer in West Virginia. It was based on information in the West Virginia Insurance Commissioner's annual report for 2004 and stated that insurance companies settled 19,000 claims for auto-deer collisions totaling $33 million in West Virginia.

Although the report noted that this figure is lower than 2003, it still shows a tremendous economic loss from deer.

My quibble isn't about this loss. Auto-deer collisions are serious and people suffer a great deal from such occurrences.

My irritation stemmed from this sentence:

'Vehicle collisions with deer and other wildlife increase in October, November, and December because of hunting [emphasis added] and mating seasons, the commission said.

Here we have hunters, the only real method to control deer numbers, being blamed by the insurance commission for causing deer to run unto highways.

I have no way of knowing why the commission, or the person who wrote this portion of the report, would say such a thing. The statement is ludicrous and lacks common sense, yet this story probably went to papers all over the state.

Maybe 1 million West Virginians, many nonhunters, read this article and condemned hunters for causing these poor deer to run in front of cars and trucks.

If we stop and think for a moment, we can quickly understand that although deer are struck on highways a lot in October and November, it isn't because of hunting season.

Consider what time most deer are struck by cars. At night. After dark.

Last time I checked, it was illegal to deer hunt at night. Difficult, too. Doesn't happen except for a few criminals who poach a few deer every year.

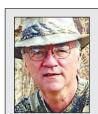

If hunters caused deer to run onto highways, then the deer would be struck during the day, and only during the two-week gun season.

If hunters did run deer to the roads to be killed by cars and trucks, we'd meet them. Did you ever meet a hunter who chased a deer to a highway where it was struck? My guess is that one could offer a reward of $1,000 and still not be able to find more than one such person in the past few years anywhere in West Virginia.

Studies have been done on highways that bisect hunted areas and nonhunted areas. The numbers of deer killed during the rut (October and November) are the same in both areas.

With just a little thought, one can quickly determine that deer die on highways at this time of the year because of the mating season. The insurance commission got it half right.

Deer move a lot more during the rut and they surely aren't as alert as they are at other times of the year. Deer have other things on their minds during the rut.

SAMUEL

Hunters aren't perfect and they do things wrong on occasion. Most are good folks. Some should try bowling.

But to blame them for auto collisions is just wrong. They are not the culprits here and it bothers me when they get so blamed.

While we are on the topic of deer being killed by autos, State Farm has released some interesting data on that subject.

They note that there are an estimated 1.5 million vehicledeer collisions in the United States each year. More than 150 people are killed in such accidents each year and damages total more than $1.1 billion.

The top 10 states for deer-auto accidents are Pennsylvania, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Georgia, Minnesota, Virginia, Indiana, Texas and Wisconsin.

In West Virginia, the number of deer-auto collisions decreased in 2003 and again in 2004. Maybe the state's efforts to harvest more deer are helping.

Regardless, State Farm lists ways for drivers to help avoid such collisions.

First, pay attention to deer crossing signs (even though deer don't seem to pay much attention to such signs). A little humor, but the few signs that are out there do seem to be in areas where deer cross. Of course, deer cross in other places as well.

Second, be aware that deer are more active in the early evening (we already knew that).

Third, use your high beams to illuminate the sides of the roads where deer are found.

Fourth, "be aware that deer often move in packs ...' (methinks they meant "herds"). The point here is that if one deer crosses in front of you, there often may be another right behind. Good point, even though dogs travel in "packs."

Fifth, do not rely on those bumper-mounted car whistles that folks try to sell you. They don't work.

Finally, do not swerve to avoid a deer, as this increases the severity of the accident. You don't swerve and you hit the deer. You swerve and you leave the highway or hit oncoming traffic, and personal injuries are higher than if you hadn't swerved.

Makes sense.

There you have it. Perhaps more information on auto-deer collisions than you wanted, but now you know what hunters already knew: Hunters don't force deer to the roads.

If the Associated Press article is correct and the West Virginia Insurance Commission 2004 report states that hunters cause deer to be killed on roads, I'm at a loss to determine why they would make such a claim.

Next Sunday, we'll move to the lighter side and do my annual Great Christmas Gift ideas for the hunter(s) in your family.

While hunting on private property in Preston County, Bobby Peddicord, 16, of Kingwood, bagged this nine-pointer. The buck had at one time broken off from fighting another buck. Bobby shot this buck at 26 yards with a Matthews switchback bow. The deer continued walking as if nothing had happened for about 25 yards, then just went down. Be on the safe side with CWI

THE FIREARMS SEASON for deer kicks off Monday. This is always an event, but this year the situation is complicated by the confirmed cases of Chronic Wasting Disease in Hampshire County.

The guidance from the DNR and from places such as CWD Alliance (http://www.cwdinfo.org) is that there has never been a confirmed case of CWD being passed to humans. The main recommendations are to take care when field dressing and butchering your deer.

Here are some recommendations from the CWD Alliance and the West Virginia DNR:

■ Avoid eating the meat from any deer that is obviously sick that appears to be very emaciated with poor body condition, presents evidence of excessive salivation, staggering or other displays of abnormal behavior.

■ Wear latex or rubber gloves when field dressing your deer, and wash your hands and tools thoroughly after completing this process.

■ Bone out the meat from your deer. Do not saw through bone, avoid cutting through the brain or spinal cord and minimize the handling of brain and spinal tissues.

If you remove the skull cap to save the antlers, use a saw dedicated for only that purpose and dispose of saw blades in a landfill with your other household garbage.

■ Thoroughly clean and sanitize knives, equipment and work areas with household bleach solution after processing your deer.

■ Place unwanted carcass materials (bones, trimmings, etc.) in a strong garbage bag, and dispose of this material in a landfill with your other household garbage.

■ Do not eat tissue from the brain, spinal cord, eyes, lymph nodes, spleen and tonsils of harvested deer. Typical field dressing combined with de-boning the carcass removes most, if not all, these body parts. Cutting away all fatty tissue removes the remaining lymph nodes.

Tree stand safety

Deer hunting is a pretty safe sport, but as more and more hunters choose to hunt from elevated stands, the number of related accidents is also rising. This has become the single biggest safety issue for deer hunters.

Here are some basic safety tips compiled from industry and state agency sources:

■ Always wear a safety harness or belt. The very best safety harness is a full body harness.

■ Choose a tree that is straight and healthy, even if it may not be in the best possible place to see

■ Most experts say that multisection, portable ladders are preferred to screw-in steps. Be sure to scrape away any loose bark from the tree before inserting screw-in steps, and place screwin steps only in the solid, live wood of a tree. If a step is very easy to screw in, it may also easily strip out when you step on it! It should require moderate physical exertion to insert a screw-in step properly.

■ Read and follow the instructions provided with commercial stands. Failure to do so could cause injury or death and could also negate any legal claims you may have against the manufacturer.

■ Never climb with your bow or rifle — always use a pull rope. Place the bow or gun on the ground on the backside of the tree before climbing and when descending.

■ If using a "climbing stand," tie both the climber and platform together to assure that the lower platform cannot slip out of your reach.

■ Use a TMA certified tree stand. The Treestand Manufacturers Association conducts independent testing and certification of stands manufactured by companies that belong to that industry

One of the most important things to keep in mind is that the injuries from tree stand accidents result in very serious back and spinal injuries, and far too many hunters are killed from the falls from stands. This is a not a matter to take lightly.

Wishing everyone a safe and productive firearms deer season.

WEST VIRGINIA BUCKS-ONLY GUN SEASON FACTS AND FIGURES

- The season runs Monday through Dec. 3 in all counties except Logan, Mingo, McDowell and Wyoming.
- About 320,000 licensed hunters will be in the woods during this season. ■ A list of deer checking stations is
- online at www.wvdnr.gov/hunting/check_stations.asp
- The bag limit is two (one on the base license and one on RG [resident] or RRG [nonresident] license). The total yearly bag limit for bucks has been changed to three, which may be taken by bow, firearm or muzzleloader as provided in the respective seasons. Hunters have requested this reduction to improve opportunities for more mature bucks with larger antlers.
- The last day to purchase an additional deer gun tag (class RG/RRG license) is today.
- A concurrent antlerless deer season will be available in 41 counties on private land only during the two-week bucks-only gun season. This is not a "hunters choice" season, because hunters must have purchased the proper antlerless deer license (Class N) for the county in which they are hunting.

■ All deer must be field tagged and checked in within 72 hours of the time of kill or within 24 hours of the close of the season, whichever comes first. Additional deer may not be taken until all previously taken deer have been checked. Only one deer may be taken per day during the bucks-only season.

■ Deer hunting generates a total annual economic impact of $233 million, much of it in the rural areas of the state that depend upon the deer seasons for a large portion of their annual income.

■ In 2004, state deer hunters harvested 63,873 bucks during the season. ■ DNR wildlife biologists and game managers predict that the total 2005 white-tailed deer harvest (i.e., bucks-only, antlerless deer, archery and muzzleloader seasons) should be similar or slightly lower than the 2004 harvest levels. The bucks-only season is expected to produce harvest results similar to 2004.

■ Mast (i.e., fruits and nuts produced by trees and shrubs) conditions are slightly improved for most species this fall when compared to 2004 production. Apple and crabapple production is exceptional this fall in most regions of the state. Hunters who have done their preseason scouting and have located food sources for deer will have the best chance of success.

■ Sunday hunting is legal in 14 counties on private land only: Boone, Brooke, Clay, Hancock, Jefferson, Lincoln, Logan, McDowell, Marshall, Mingo, Ohio, Wavne, Wetzel and Wyoming. The only Sunday that falls during the bucks-only gun season is Nov. 27.

■ Hunters are required to wear at least 400 square inches of blaze orange as an outer garment.

■ In 2004, there were 10 huntingrelated injuries and no fatalities reported during the season.

■ Hunters should be familiar with the 2005 Hunting and Trapping Regulations brochure available at all license agents or online at www.wvdnr.gov

■ Hunting licenses may be purchased online at any time and printed out on a home computer printer. Go to www.wvhunt.com, fill out the application, and purchase over a secure server with a credit card.

Medicare users must be on lookout for scam artists amid the confusion

Leave it to the government to market mass confusion. After months of hype, handbooks and a hail of sessions and questions, seniors began signing up for the Medicare prescription drug benefit Tuesday.

Problem is many of them don't understand the benefit at all, or not well enough to make an informed decision.

Undoubtedly, many of the rest of us are not exactly clear on it either. As a result many seniors may take a pass, at least at first, on this program or out of desperation do something they'll regret doing.

Our advice to anyone eligible for this benefit is take your time, ask questions, understand the fine print and do the math. Be careful of what you sign.

In most states, beneficiaries can select from at least 40 plans. Some plans offer prescription drug coverage only. Others offer managed care that covers the full range of Medicare services, such as visits to a doctor's office.

In West Virginia 52 plans are signing up seniors for the benefit.

But as complicated and confusing as this program is, the even bigger risk for seniors is that they may fall prey to scam artists who are feeding off this frenzy to sign up.

Each plan has a list of drugs, a formulary, the company will cover. Most plans cover drugs taken by seniors.

But after that, the differences, including premiums, co-payments and deductibles, get complicat-

There's no rush to sign up. The initial enrollment period lasts through May 15, 2006. After that you will

But as complicated and confusing as this program is, the even bigger risk for seniors is that they may fall prey to scam artists who are feeding off this frenzy to sign up.

Though most solicitations are honest, from firms who want to give customers a fair shake and make a profit, there have already been scams.

With tens of millions of people sweating the details of this complicated program, that was to be expected.

Simple common sense precautions should be observed with anyone who makes a pitch to sign you up for this benefit or help enroll you for it.

■ No personal financial information should be given out over the phone or Internet. That includes Social Security numbers, birth dates, credit card numbers, bank account information, drugs used in the household or anything else.

■ Make certain you are dealing with reputable company by requesting written material. A reputable company should have your address.

■ If you suspect you are being scammed contact the authorities.

Health plans participating in the prescription drug plan are also following these federal rules for marketing:

■ They will not be going door-to-door, nor calling eligible people about signing up for the prescription plan. ■ Legitimate companies have official logos on all marketing materials. Those that don't should be suspect.

■ All questions can be directed to (800) MEDICARE (633-4227), 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services has developed techniques to help prevent fraud, which includes working with with law enforcement, prescription drug plans, and consumer groups to protect seniors and enforce Medicare's rules; and to provide tips for consumers to protect themselves.

This coverage is important. It could change your life or the life of someone you love.

Don't rush into this. There's lots of time to make a decision you can be confident about — without confusion.

Rethink primary schedule?

THE DEMOCRATS MAY be about to open Pandora's box with their latest effort to revamp the presidential primary schedule.

A party commission is studying how to expand the number of states with meaningful contests beyond the two that start the process, Iowa and New Hampshire.

But the whole thing could blow up if it leads to too many early contests. That could increase the advantage to the best-known, bestfinanced candidates, reduce further the chance for an unknown to emerge and prevent the scrutiny the system should provide.

This is at least the sixth party panel to tackle the nominating system. It is reportedly considering letting two to four states with diverse populations hold contests between the Iowa caucuses and the New Hampshire primary.

But there's no guarantee the proposed solution will have the desired effect without producing other, unintended results. That's happened each time either party has tried to "fix" the process.

I can say that with some authority since I've covered this subject ever since the first Democratic ad hoc reform panel in 1968.

That's when Sens. Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy led a revolt against the Democratic establishment and discovered the rules were rigged against them; that is, where there were rules.

The reformers convinced the 1968 Democratic convention to create a commission to fix things. Headed by future presidential candidate George McGovern, it wrote detailed rules of what could and could not be done.

As a result, many states adopted primaries as the easiest way to meet the new rules, which said the results should reflect voter preferences and expanded the roles of women, minorities and youth.

For several elections, this created exciting, competitive contests that lasted from March until June and provided an obstacle course that tested the candidates.

It also reduced the role in presidential politics of top Democratic politicians, leading to the election of Jimmy Carter, whose effectiveness suffered because he had minimal ties to party leaders.

Later changes restored their role. By then, various states decided to increase their influence with ever earlier caucuses or primaries.

In 2000, the Republicans voted to add more February contests in hopes of reducing the role of New Hampshire, where a state law requires the primary to be held at least one week ahead of any other. That produced an exciting GOP race for several weeks until George W. Bush dispatched the challenge of Sen. John McCain.

But in 2004, it led to seven Democratic primaries a week after New Hampshire. The result: a battle of TV ads that merely ratified Iowa and New Hampshire.

Opening up the calendar poses two main dangers. A big state like Michigan might try to move to the top of the calendar, making it hard for all but the best-known, bestfunded candidates to compete. And so many states may hold early contests that the only way to campaign will be on television and tarmacs. That would be unfortunate. Though Iowa and New Hampshire are unrepresentative states with mainly white populations, they have serious voters who test the candidates by scrutinizing their backgrounds and views. That scrutiny led to the collapse of Howard Dean's candidacy in 2004.

Early tests in other small states could play a similar role. But replacing their role with either a single large state or a multiplicity of contests will only help candidates hide behind their commercials and avoid voters' questions.

It will also make it virtually impossible to stop the front-runners.

Any changes the Democratic panel votes next month could trigger months of wrangling. New Hampshire Democrats will resist putting more states before their primary.

Regardless of the rules, history says McCain, or former New York Mayor Rudy Giuliani, and Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton — the frontrunners — will be favored in 2008 if they run. Still, the country will be better off if they and their foes have to negotiate the rigors an extended schedule of contests would provide.

RICH LOWRY

The GOP hanging in there

REPUBLICANS ARE LOSING the air game. They are associated with an unpopular war. They are beset by scandal. A Republican president is scraping along at new lows of public approval seemingly every week. And they appear to have run out of ideas, at least ones that they can govern on. But the ground game is another matter.

After 10 years in the majority, House Republicans have become master electoral mechanics; they know the advantages of incumbency the way your plumber knows your sink. The chairman of the House Republican Campaign Committee, Rep. Tom Reynolds, R-N.Y., calls it fundamental "block and tackle" politics. It is an unglamorous, uninspiring formula, but one that makes it very likely that even after suffering a year that could hardly be more dreadful, the House Republican majority will live to fight another day.

The vision that Democrats have dancing through their heads is the debacle that swept them from power in 1994, only in reverse. Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee Chairman Rahm Emanuel compared the Republican inability to muster a majority on a key budget bill on Nov. 10 to the Democratic loss on a routine procedural vote on a crime bill in the summer of 1994. That crimebill defeat symbolized a Democratic breakdown that brought the end of their majority months later.

But such a shift next year -Democrats need a net gain of 15 seats — would require something that has been increasingly wrung from our congressional elections: competition. Sophisticated redistricting makes it possible to craft district lines to suit the interests of their current occupants. It used to be that redistricting would be done on gasoline-station road maps. Now anyone can buy software for $200 or so that makes protecting incumbents an exact science.

pointed out in The New Republic, an ideological mismatch that had existed for decades in the South a conservative region, but represented by Democrats in Congress — passed forever from the scene in 1994. Now, congressmen tend to be good fits for their districts, so the playing field for Democrats will be uncomfortably tight.

Moreover, as writer Ken Baer

Congressional expert Charles Cook sees only 30 competitive races so far, 18 of them for seats held by Republicans. In 1994, there were 106 competitive races, 95 of them in seats held by Democrats. In 1992, 56 Democrats won their seats with less than 55 percent of the vote, a sign of a shaky hold on their districts for the 1994 elections. Last year only 19 Republicans won by similarly slim margins.

This means Democrats have a tough standard to reach to take back the House if the current landscape holds — namely, perfection. They would have to win every one of their competitive districts, then win nearly every one — 15 out of 18 — of the Republican ones.

The GOP also has a practical appreciation for the uses of money. Its campaign committee has an advantage over its Democratic counterpart in cash on hand, $18 million to $9 million. All of the top nine most vulnerable Republicans are sitting on at least a $500,000 campaign kitty each to see them through their races, thanks partly to an effective GOP program to funnel dollars from safe incumbents to harder-pressed members.

Incumbency, favorable district lines, cash: They are not rallying cries. But this is what the current Republican congressional majority is made of. It is probably going to take a presidential candidate emerging sometime after the '06 election to infuse the party with new energy and purpose. Until then, the Republican majority will stumble on. Hold your noses and hide your eyes.

Traffic Commission cannot wait until problems are brought to them

BY TOM GALLAGHER

I would first like to address the comments of Paul Steel, a Traffic Commission member, as they were stated in a letter to the editor (DP-Oct. 14).

I would like to apologize to you and your fellow members if I offended you in any way. In my opinion, any citizen who donates their time to the common good should be commended. However, I felt, and still do, that it was a safe assumption that a "Traffic Commission" handled all matters of traffic. I stand corrected.

I also want to point out that I am only another citizen, like yourself, making a comment. I am not a trained reporter, therefore it isn't my job to go out and research facts and records. As the article said, it was just a commentary, my opinion.

However, as it is my habit, before I eat too much crow I like to see what else is on the menu. So I went to City Hall and took a look at the minutes of the traffic commission meetings beginning in January 2004.

GUEST COMMENTARY

As I am a complete novice at this, I would like to acknowledge the help of a very nice, very knowledgeable young lady, working in the engineering office, that helped me stumble through my search. What I saw, in the limited time I had to look, was very enlightening.

I get the impression that the Traffic Commission only discusses things that are submitted to them. Complaints, suggestions or requests for changes by police officers, city officials or citizens. As a matter of fact, the commission doesn't even meet if there isn't anything on their agenda. Several times in the record, it stated that the commission didn't meet that month.

As I read through the minutes, another thing became apparent to me. It seems that the commission doesn't have anything of their own on their agenda. For instance, the poor overall traffic plan of the city.

I want to point out here and now, I didn't have a lot of time. I did not read verbatim every word of a year and a half of minutes. Although, I did read enough, I feel, to get an overview of the things being discussed.

Three times I saw that traffic lights were discussed. All three times with a state DOH engineer present, namely a Mr. Miller.

Once concerning the lights already installed at Collins Ferry and Aspen.

Once concerning the proposed lights at Collins Ferry and University.

And once concerning the lights already installed at Hurley Street and Don Knotts Boulevard. The discussion about Collins Ferry and Aspen was just on realignment and upgrades.

The discussion about Collins Ferry and University was about the concern of the commission for the school buses exiting Baldwin Street. No mention of disagreement about the installation. As a matter of fact, the tone was agreeable, just concerned about addressing the school bus issue.

Concerning the Hurley Street light, again the tone was agreeable. There was only concern for the problem of Prairie Street. Steel brought up the fact that Morgantown High will be expanding beginning in January 2006, and school buses will be loading on Prairie Street instead of Wilson Avenue. His concern was that they will need to be able to turn left on Don Knotts. As a matter of fact, he says, and I quote from the minutes, "I am not saying that a light is not needed at Hurley Street, but Prairie Avenue has to be included.'

Well, that sounds like an endorsement to me. Just because you weren't asked beforehand is irrelevant. It appears, by your comment, that you would have agreed.

As far as your statement about advising "strongly" against new installations, I saw no evidence of this back to January 2004.

I have not talked to anyone from the state DOH, but in my talking with people and reading, I have formed the opinion that the DOH does not put a light up but for only three reasons. One, a clear, let me emphasize, a very clear safety problem exists. Two, a person or body of persons of some authority requests it. And in this instance, you must revert to example one.

Three, the easiest way of all, pay for it.

For example, I have it on good authority that the light on U.S. 19 leading into Morgantown Mall was paid for by Glimcher. The state didn't think they needed one.

I think we have control over the installation of traffic lights. Just don't ask for one. Secondly, pass an ordinance that anyone who wants to pay for one, in the city, has to have a permit from the city. You have to have a permit for everything else, why not something that impacts the citizens as much as another roadblock.

I plan on looking into this further as my time permits, as well as some other things that surfaced during my foray into research, small as it was.

I would like to make a humble request of the Traffic Commission. Put the city, as a whole, on your agenda. If you have nothing else to talk about, use your brain trust to discuss the problems you know exist in the overall scheme of things. Don't wait for someone to complain.

We have a world class university here with thousands of students. Instructors who, I'll bet, would welcome the chance to give their students some hands on experience in real world problem solving, at little or no expense to the city. Let's see if we can take advantage of this talented and valuable resource.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

One man's idea of torture another's idea of abuse

If only we could believe Leonard Pitts.

Pitts' column (DP-Nov. 14) is typical of the problem President Bush has to deal with now regarding allegations our military is torturing prisoners. Pitts is skeptical about the president's plain statement that: "We do not torture."

"Never mind all those torture pictures from Abu Ghraib," Pitts writes. Exactly what torture photos does he have in mind? Are they the photos of a few unprincipled soldiers humiliating the prisoners in their charge — treatment that our own military had unearthed, and was already investigating and prosecuting before the news media discovered it? That abuse was beneath what our society considers as minimally acceptable for prisoners, but was it an example of "torture"? I think nearly all of those prisoners were eventually released to return to their homes, and none had scars or were missing fingers, hands. limbs, or any other body parts. "Torture" usually leaves some physical evidence. That sort of humiliation, while repugnant to us, was not torture.

"Never mind all those torture stories from Guantanamo Bay." Does Pitts refer to the stories by prisoners who were coached about what to say to get media attention; prisoners who eat better and sleep better and get better health care in a military prison than they ever enjoyed while free and planning their attacks in Afghanistan or Iraq?

Their stories were shown to be just that — stories. Those "tortured" prisoners actually gained weight and improved their health in prison! Perhaps their torturous stress was from the thought that somebody's Koran had been treated carelessly, and without e-mail or Internet access (not allowed to detainees, unfortunately) they could not learn that the story was groundless.

Yes, it is a shame that President Bush had to respond to the issue. It does say something about us that the subject should even have to be mentioned. But it doesn't say that we use torture! More likely it says that irresponsible people are throwing out any and all allegations they can in order to weaken Bush and his administration politically, in total disregard of the effect of their actions upon our military and our country as a whole. It's shameful, and Pitts bears as much blame for it as anyone else when he keeps recycling these baseless accusations.

Words have meanings. The repeated use of "torture" to describe aggressive but non-injurious interrogation just makes the job of defending us harder for our soldiers. The way trends are going, it won't be long before our military (and by extension President Bush, of course) will be criticized for using such fearsome and cruel tactics as sarcasm, innuendo, and insults.

One West Virginian who's glad for Wal-Mart's role

I am surprised that there is so much Wal-Mart bashing going on in the country today.

I live in a small town where Wal-Mart has brought many desperately needed jobs to the community. In addition, many lowincome people have been able to enjoy a much better standard of living because of Wal-Mart's competitive prices.

On top of that, Wal-Mart has been very generous in the community in supporting many good WVU can do a lot better with recycling program?

Where is WVU's recycling program? There are small paper recycling bins in the library, there are bins in E.Moore Hall, yet these bins fill with trash.

Why must students carry recyclables back to their dorms or back to their apartments and then drive them to Wal-Mart or Kroger or the Solid Waste Authority in Westover if they wish to recycle them?

More than 26,000 students are attending WVU this fall - 26,000plus students produce an enormous amount of waste. Nearly none of this is recycled. Does not each student have a right to recycle a portion of this waste without an undue burden if they wish? Does not WVU have a responsibility to facilitate their student's daily needs? Other universities believe they do.

Community should get behind MHS Choral Group

I just read in today's (DP-Nov. 17) newspaper about the MHS Choral Group being invited to perform at Carnegie Hall in New York City. How wonderful!

I had the most pleasant experience of seeing my grandson's high school band and choral group perform there in June of this year. They came all the way from Dobson High School in Phoenix, Ariz.

What a fantastic performance it was and what an experience for those kids. They had to raise more than $300,000 to get there and they worked very hard at it. I think it would be great if all Morgantown High graduates would contribute to this cause and even better if all Morgantown area families would give at least $5. This is a tremendous honor for our town and that school.

Let's show some community spirit and help these kids. It is such a positive way for Morgantown to be in the news.

Good Luck, kids, parents and Mining heritage group needs help for museum

The Northern Appalachian Coal Mining Heritage Association (NACMHA) is seeking to estimate the level of community interest in establishing a regional coal mining museum or similar facility.

A project of any magnitude requires the collaboration of community, county, state, federal agencies and industry.

Other states have moved forward. Virginia erected a monument symbolizing a mine entrance with name of 1,184 fallen miners on it. In Kentucky, a college, the state and federal agencies have funded a multi-million dollar development of a coal-mine-centered attraction complete with ani matronics. In Pennsylvania, plans are in place to develop the Quecreek Rescue site. A respectable monument and coal mining display were built some years ago at the first rest stop in Pennsylvania along Interstate 79 north.

Many are of the opinion that local history is every bit as rich as that of these places, and more so.

NACMHA, with help from SCORE (Counselors to America's Small Business) and the Fairmont community, has opened a "free mini-museum" and, with Middletown Mall management, brought the 3,600 square-foot-exhibit, "The Mining Life" to Marion County for a year. The exhibit will soon leave the area unless it gets a permanent home.

For more information of how you can help find the NACMHA a home e-mail nacmha@aol.com; phone 366-9300 or write to NACMHA, 3 Hollen Circle, Fairmont, WV 26554

Any discussion about abortion cannot take place in a vacuum

BY RICHARD M. IAMMARINO

Will all who are in favor of abortion, please stand. I hope no one stands, but I do have a different view from the others writing letters concerning abortion, Planned Parenthood and related issues.

I am Catholic, Pro-life AND Pro-choice. That I'm sure needs explaining. A young woman close to the family became pregnant. She was unmarried. The father of the child was using drugs and alcohol, as was she. She came to us explaining her circumstances. We went over various options: marry the father, have the child as a single mother, continue the pregnancy and place the child up for adoption, have the child raised by another family member. We seemed to exhaust the options except for one—abortion. Interestingly, that option did not come up, except in my mind. I asked myself, what if she chose that option. Would I try to argue her out of that choice, assuming I could? Of course I was completely anti-abortion. I believe that life begins at conception, but that one experience changed my view concerning abortion. I may not have helped her directly, but I knew I would have supported her decision to have an abortion. Desperation is a powerful motivating factor.

Here is what bothers me about the issues of Planned Parenthood, repeal of Roe v. Wade and other abortion discussions — they occur in a vacuum. No well meaning Christian should be in favor of abortion, but I could understand completely the act of desperation which might make a woman decide to have an abortion. In this case financial help would have been available. What if it had not been? Assume the father refuses to marry— what then? What if this were the fourth or fifth pregnancy and the father out of work? The possibilities are endless. We have many options to offer an unwed mother here. I would hope they would be made known and made available to this woman, who sadly still may decide abortion is in her mind the best option.

There are other models which have reduced abortions to almost zero. In Ireland, I learned that for any child born, the family would receive the equivalent of $170 per month, irrespective of the family's income. Children are revered there.

On the opposite side, I have a couple of stories from personal experiences which stick in my memory. In 1953, my senior year of medical school in Chicago, my obstetric rotation was at a Catholic home for unwed mothers. I didn't know what to expect with this experience at first, but these women were so brave and filled with goodness. My first delivery assist was with a woman with a pregnancy presenting with a fetus in breech (legs first) fetal position. Trying to convert this presentation to rotate the baby to a head first position was not working. Her labor was almost 17 hours, most of which I spent with her. The delivering doctor was a resident who had limited experience with this difficult type of birth. The child was stillborn at birth. For years I have asked questions. Was there an attending physician readily available? These questions haunt me to this day. Were we giving second-hand medical care to these unwed mothers? My wife, a nurse in training at a Catholic hospital in Chicago at that same time, recalls a patient who came in with an infection, suffered from an "illegal" abortion. All abortions except medically necessary then, were "illegal." The nursing staff were instructed to give minimal care. Will repeal of Roe v. Wade bring back this kind of story?

As a Catholic, how could I possibly justify my views? In short, I can't, but I do notice a disingenuous attitude from the White House and conservative Christians on deaths other than abortion. I receive from time to time, e-mails from friends about the display of the Ten Commandments in courthouses for example. My response to them is that it does not matter what is on the walls, will they be followed? How can we justify a pre-emptive war and all the killing it has wrought? How can we allow prisoners to be executed knowing that perhaps as many as 5 percent are innocent. There have been 996 executions since 1976 when the death penalty was restored by the Supreme Court. For the record, more than 43 percent of these in Texas alone, with 152 during the six-year tenure of then Gov. Bush. What does the Fifth Commandment say? "Thou shalt not kill." Then there is another, one – "Love they neighbor as thyself." Then justify to me the torture we are committing which well beyond the Geneva Convention rules, to which we subscribe. Abortion is an act of desperation in most instances. We have 45 plus million people without health insurance many without the ability to pay only a small fraction of the cost of delivery.

I suggest we start an initiative for a program of promoting a culture of life. Abortion will then take care of itself. Some of this is going on here. In Morgantown we have the Gabriel Project, supporting unwed mothers. Counseling services to unwed mothers are available through Birthright of Morgantown and Crisis Pregnancy Counseling Services. We also have a home for unwed mothers. The Mon County Health Department provides WIC resources. While this is only a partial list, at least make these known and support them in any way you can.

President Clinton put it succinctly, "Abortions should be legal, safe and rare." I would add very rare.

Companies bid for experienced miners, offer pay hikes

CHARLESTON — Caught between strong demand and an ongoing labor shortage, some coal producers are offering pay hikes, improved benefits and bonuses in an effort to attract new miners and to keep existing employees from being raided by competitors.

'Companies are almost bidding for the experienced miner right now," said Bill Raney, president of the West Virginia Coal Association. "There's a lot of innovations that are being developed in the industry.'

At Richmond, Va.-based Massey Energy Co., Central Appalachia's largest coal operator, electricians who sign a noncompete clause earn $25,000 in bonuses over three Massey, which has increased its work force by 1,100 to about 5,600 since the beginning of 2003, has also developed several other measures to attract and keep its workers, such as zero-premium health insurance; a purpose-built heath center closer to where most of its miners work; and discounted auto and home insurance policies.

Still, more than half of Massey's new employees are leaving before their first year on the job. And ing Co., exit a mine Friday, near Erbacon.

The prolonged surge in coal demand — spot prices for some types of Appalachian coal have doubled since 2002 — has led companies to reopen shuttered mines and add new ones. Sixty-nine mines opened in the region last year, according to the U.S. Energy

Information Administration. "The new mines are looking for experienced foremen, experienced roof-bolters and just for miners in general," said Raney. "We haven't had to deal with this issue to this magnitude before."

Speaking at a recent investors' conference, Massey's Chief Operating Officer Chris Adkins likened the movement of miners between producers to a "round robin play." When a competitor hires away an experienced worker, like an operator of mining machinery, "we immediately and go and hire a miner operator back from another guy," he said.

Coal fuels more than half of all electricity generated in the United States, and Appalachia's 390 million tons of coal represented about 35 percent of total U.S. production last year, according to the EIA.

A higher burn rate makes Appalachian coal more expensive that other coal, though: It accounted for nearly 60 percent, or $11.9 billion, of total coal revenues in 2004, according to a Massey study.

Eastern coal executives openly acknowledge that the labor shortage is affecting their ability to hit production targets, said Luke Popovich, a spokesman for the National Mining Association. The most recent trough in coal demand left the cupboard bare when demand for labor started ramping up again.

"We sort of had a generation of mining people who simply weren't being recruited and that same phenomenon was being observed in mining schools," said Popovich. "Now that you need them, you've got fewer eligible miners and engi-

Discipline a tricky issue with baby sitter

Q: I recently left my 3-year-old daughter with a 16-year-old babysitter for the first time. She was fine for an hour or so and then began refusing to follow the sitter's instructions, running away from her, and screaming when things didn't go her way. When this sort of thing happens with me, I send her to her room until she is ready to obey and/or calms down. I wanted to discipline my daughter when I got home, but it was time for her to go to bed. I don't want to make being with a baby sitter a dreaded experience for my daughter since she is somewhat anxious about me leaving her. On the other hand, I expect her to mind baby sitters. What kind of discipline should I tell a sitter to use when my daughter misbehaves?

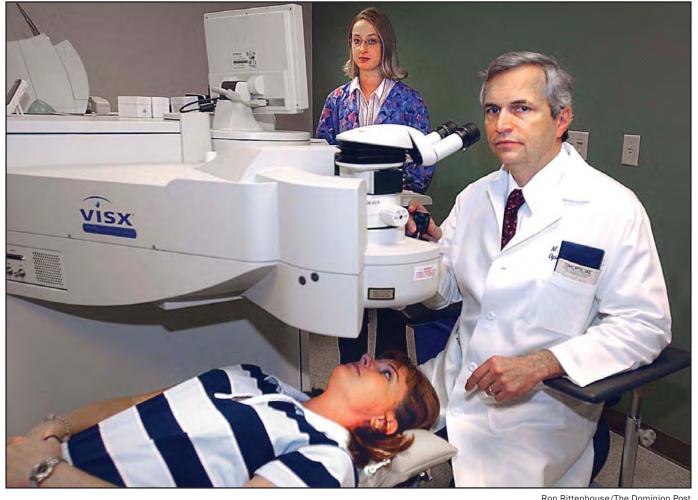

A: Unless the sitter in question came with lots and lots of experience handling younger siblings and/or other children, and the confidence of his or her parents, I wouldn't give a teenage baby sitter permission to discipline a toddler. First, this is expecting the sitter to go above and beyond the call of duty. Second, most teens don't know the first thing about the discipline of young children. Some high schools and community agencies operate babysitter training programs, and graduates of those programs may be more confident when it comes to disciplinary matters, but with that possible exception, I'd relieve sitters of disciplinary responsibili-

I have two tested ideas for you, the first being what I term "making a dry run." Hire a sitter when you actually have an obligationfree evening, but act like you're going out. Make all the necessary preparations, greet the sitter, give her your cell number (or some other number where you can reliably be reached), and tell her to call you at the very first sign of misbehavior. It's important that you stress the need to call before the proverbial snowball begins rolling downhill. Go someplace close to your house and wait for the call, which will almost surely come. When it does, go home, discharge the sitter, and send your daughter immediately to bed. Depending on the nature of the offense the night before, I might carry over some punishment (e.g., no television) to the next day. The next time you hire a sitter, remind your daughter what happened the last time and let her know that you are only a phone call away. You may need to implement more than one dry run to get the point across, but the inconvenience will pay off handsomely in the long run.

My second idea is a variation on my general-purpose "ticket" method. The next time you hire a sitter, take your daughter and the sitter into the kitchen. Tape two "tickets" — rectangles of colored construction paper — to the refrigerator. Tell your daughter that if she misbehaves, and be specific in that regard, the sitter will pull a ticket off the refrigerator. If she has to pull the second ticket, when you come home, your daughter will be in trouble. If she's asleep when you arrive home, then carry some punishment over to the next day. At her age, she can readily remember what happened the night before, as long as you are precise in your description.

'essica Chickerell will never forget June 2, 2005, "because that was the day I could see." Chickerell, 45, had lasik surgery that day to correct the terrible vision that plagued her since she was 12.

"I couldn't walk outside the house and do anything without my contacts. It's very limiting," she said. "I've been extremely near-sighted since I was 12. Everything was just one big blur of color.

It took Chickerell five years of hope, indecision, debate and research to finally agree to let a doctor cut into her eyes.

"It's your eyes, so it's scary," she said. "I waited, kept reading more and more about it, research-

She went to lasik centers in Pittsburgh and Niagara Falls, N.Y., before settling on Dr. Lee Wiley, director of cornea and external disease at the WVU Eye Institute, for her surgery.

Wiley said lasik surgery has been helping people for years, but the WVU Eye Institute has a complex new machine that makes the operation even better.

"It's so great how it's working now," Wiley said.

He said a big problem for lasik patients in the past was night-vision problems such as halos and glare.

The new machine, called a Customvue Wavescan, customizes each surgery specifically for each patient's eyes. It measures all of a person's unique optical imperfections, then tailors a distinct correction surgery for that person.

Wiley said the machine looks for and attempts to correct every imperfection in a cornea.

This new form of lasik also works better on the edges of the cornea, making those edges smoothly curved instead of sharply folded like the old way, and that's why it is better for night vision.

"It's so successful that this is the same treatment they're using with naval aviators who have to land at night," Wiley said. "This has the potential to actually improve night vision."

Still, Wiley said lasik is not for everyone. The surgery can correct the three main vision problems that most people suffer — near-sightedness, far-sightedness and astigmatism.

And this new Wavescan technology is so efficient in guiding the laser, it almost does the surgery itself. But Wiley said doctors have a very important role — screening patients to pick out who is right for lasik and who is wrong.

"The machine has no judgment," he said. "The surgeon, through his experience, decides who is a good candidate and who is not."

Wiley will turn a patient away if his vision is seriously poor, if there is any sign of cataracts, if the cornea is too thin, if the patient has severe dry eyes, rheumatoid arthritis, other medical problems, any serious eve problems, or is taking certain medicines.

"I won't operate on an eye with any abnormality or any disease," he said. Wiley turns away one-third to one-half of people who come to him for lasik surgery because their eyes don't meet the proper conditions.

He said that helps prevent any misunderstanding or disappointment because he can only fix corneal problems, and many people's vision trouble stems from other problems that he can't fix.

"Folks want to see real well," he said. "I'm basically asked to meet or beat the contacts or glasses they have. That's a pretty stiff goal.'

He said lasik is designed to fix people's eyes so they no longer need glasses to see in the distance. Many will still need glasses to read.

Wiley has done hundreds of lasik operations in his 10 years as an eye surgeon, and his partner at the WVU Eye Institute, Dr. Mark Joseph, does hundreds more.

During the surgery, a flap is cut in the cornea and the laser reshapes the cornea. It takes less than a minute, and the patient goes home a short

Wiley said patients must be at least 20 years old so their eyes are finished growing, but there is no upper age limit as long as the eye is healthy.

Wiley said an interesting thing about lasik is that it can be easily redone, and about 10 percent of his patients return in about three months to get their vision tweaked — either making the correction stronger or weaker to perfect their sight.

Following the surgery, some people can suffer side effects such as moderate pain or discomfort for a few days, temporary blurred vision and tearing, sensitivity to bright lights, according to the Visx Web site, the company that makes the Wavescan. Some people's may experience dryness or fluctuating vision for six months.

Many other doctors in Morgantown and West Virginia do lasik surgery, but Wiley said he is not sure who else has the Wavescan technology. Wiley's patient, Jessica Chickerell, said he operated on both her eyes, and the surgery was perfect.

LASIK stands for Laser-Assisted In Situ Keratomileusis, and is a procedure that permanently changes the shape of the cornea, the clear covering of the front of the eye, using an excimer laser. A knife, called a microkeratome, is used to cut a flap in the cornea. A hinge is left at one end of this flap. The flap is folded back, revealing the stroma, the middlesection of the cornea. Pulses from a computer-controlled laser vaporize a portion of the stroma and the flap is replaced.

could see the figures and action on TV and was ecstatic. Chickerell now has 20/20 vision, where before she couldn't even see the big "E" at the top vision chart.

"It sounds silly, but I kind of feel free," she said. "You open your eyes in the morning, and you can see. People take it for granted, people who can see.

"Lasik is the best thing I ever did," Chickerell said.

Thinking about lasik eye surgery?

Here's a checklist of some issues you may want to consider

Know what makes you a poor candidate

- Career impact does your job prohibit refractive surgery?
- Cost can you really afford this procedure?
- Medical conditions e.g., do you have an autoimmune disease or other major illness? Do you have a chronic illness that might slow or alter healing?
- Eye conditions do you have or have you ever had any problems with your eyes other than needing glasses or contacts?
- Medications do you take steroids or other drugs that might prevent healing?
- Stable refraction has your prescription changed in the last year?
- \blacksquare High or low refractive error — do you use glasses/contacts only some of the time? Do you need an unusually strong prescription?
- Pupil size are your pupils extra large in dim condi-
- Corneal thickness do
- you have thin corneas? ■ Tear production — do you have dry eyes?
- Know all the risks and procedure limitations ■ May still need reading glasses - do you have presbyopia?

- Results may not be lasting — do you think this is the last correction you will ever need? Do you realize that long-term results are not known?
- May permanently lose vision — do you know some patients may lose some vision or experience blindness?
- Dry eyes do you know that if you have dry eyes they could become worse, or if you don't have dry eyes before, you could develop chronic dry eyes as a result of surgery?

Internet addict needs swift kick, change of scene

Tribune Media Services

Q: I love my husband. We've been married almost 20 years and we have one daughter, age 15. However, sometimes I feel like a widow. My husband never helps out around the house. I cook, clean, cut the grass, shovel snow, etc. He has often said he wishes he had a son. He's great with other people's kids but hardly bothers with our daughter.

Now, that's just part of the problem. He also stays up all night on the computer every weekend. Yes, I sleep alone on weekends. He goes on the computer about 7 p.m. and stays on all night. Then he sleeps until 2 or 3 p.m. the next day. As a result, we rarely do anything together or as a family. I spend more and more time alone or with my daughter. My husband is a difficult person to talk to. He is self-centered and must be right. When I complain, he gets mad and says he works hard and deserves some fun, and at least he doesn't go out to bars. Am I being unreasonable? Lately, our daughter has told me it's not right that her dad treats me like this. I agree, but we can't seem to talk. The sparks seem to be gone. I don't receive hugs or kisses and my husband only says, "I love you" if I say it, and I wonder if he means it. He was never Mr. Romantic, but lately, he's Mr.

Everyone I have talked to about this seems to think my husband has met someone on the Internet. What can I do to save my marriage, or do you think it's not worth saving? I'm not that old and I want a few happy years after my daughter gets out of school. — Computer Widow, via Internet

A: Your friends are probably right. Nobody stays up for hours and hours on the Internet researching the mating practices of the Australian platypus. Our guess is Internet porn or chat rooms. If your husband is never gone, however, it's unlikely he's connected with anyone, but that could soon follow. There are computer programs to track his net surfing, and of course, you can check up on credit card charges to porn sites. However, the bigger problem is that he's losing you, and you're losing him. You need an intervention by a trained counselor, and you need it fast. Your husband must agree to let you oversee his computer use, and you must try to get the machine turned off so he can have time with you and your daughter. Spending 14 to 17 hours a day on a computer is sick, and your time is running out.

If this was your daughter, you would intervene immediately. Sometimes, adults can succumb to addictive behaviors just as easily.

Another important move, in addition to a direct confrontation, is to create a firm calendar of shared activities, including eating dinner together, going out for romantic evenings with your husband, and family outings followed by Chinese food (we are big proponents of the therapeutic value of Chinese food on Sunday). You must help your husband remember that the best place to have fun is with your family and the love of your life. The Bible reminds us that we can't just let other people, particularly our families, throw their lives away: "You shall surely reproach your neighbor if you see him sin or his sin will be yours as well." (Leviticus 19:17) Hey, if it's good enough for your neighbor, it's good enough for your husband! And if nothing happens to improve the situation, smash the computer!

Q: I'm consumed by the idea that God wants me to do something for Him. Our kids are grown and my wife and I have retired to Florida, though I still spend time in New York. I'm getting bored playing golf and cards and going to early bird specials. I want to do something spiritually significant with my life, but I have no idea what God wants from me. I've tried meditation and I've tried going to hear different preachers, but nothing has come to me. I think I'm getting depressed, but I'm definitely confused. — G., Jupiter, Fla.

A: We lost God's phone number, but our advice on how to hear God's commands for your life when you are spiritually clueless is pretty similar to our advice to people who are clueless on how to pick a career: DO SOMETHING! Then, after you're doing something for a while, in your case doing something to help children, think about whether it's working for you spiritually. If it isn't working, then we encourage you to follow our next step to spiritual fulfillment: DO SOMETHING ELSE!

If the something else also does not float your spiritual boat and you don't feel that your life is in synch with God, our final can'tmiss advice is: DO SOMETHING ELSE THAT ISN'T LIKE THE TWO THINGS YOU JUST DID. The point is, we find our destinies and we find our way to serve humanity and God not by sitting and thinking, but by doing and doing and doing. It is the trying that matters in the path to spiritual fulfillment; everything else is best left to God.

Some small business owners have divine plan

BY MARK I. PINSKY The Orlando Sentinel

ORLANDO, Fla. — Strapped to a dying oak tree 40 feet above a backyard in Orlando, Fla., Todd Hall works closer to heaven than most people.

That's just fine with him — and with his customers. Even the name of his business, Trinity Tree Service, is divinely inspired, he says. "God put the name on my lips and on my mind," he says, although "to some nonbelievers it may sound hokey."

In the face of increasingly fierce competition for consumers, smallbusiness owners and service providers are capitalizing on the growth of evangelical Christians throughout the Sun Belt.

Scores of business owners believe in this kind of "affinity marketing," in which people of faith patronize each other. Some use symbols such as crosses, fish or doves in their ads in the commercial Yellow Pages.

Others advertise in Christian publications and directories, such as Florida Christian News and The Shepherd's Guide, a directory with more than a hundred listings that is distributed free. Advertisers must sign a declaration of faith to include the Shepherd's Guide logo, a silhouette of a shepherd and sheep, on ads in the directory.

Hall, 30, added the slogan "We Do the Work, God Gets the Glory" to his truck, his ads and his business cards. Work orders feature a Bible verse from Colossians 3:23: "Whatever you do, do your work heartily as for the Lord."

The verse summarizes his philosophy.

"This is not my tree service, my truck — they're on loan to me from God while I'm on Earth," he says. "He gave me the skill, he gave me the customers." Because he advertises in the Shepherd's Guide and is not listed in the regular phone book, Hall estimates that at least 80 percent of his customers come to him because he is Christian. However, some new customers contact him when they see his truck in their neighborhood and watch his crew work.

Don Nix saw Hall working in his neighborhood several years ago and noticed the religious motto on Trinity's truck. Nix took down the phone number, and when he and wife Sean needed tree work, they contacted Hall.

"We are Christians, and I like to give fellow Christians our business whenever possible," says Sean Nix, 41. "You would hope that he would have a strong work ethic and be honest."

Todd Hall (above and right), owner of Trinity Tree Service in Orlando, Fla., has, in the face of increasingly fierce competition for consumers, capitalized on the growth of evangelical Christians throughout the Sun Belt.

Yvonne Larocca, a sales associate with The Shepherd's Guide, says the number of listings in the book is "definitely growing." She cited a recent Internet poll indicating 80 percent of Christians would prefer to do business with other Christians. This preference, she says, is "due to the fact that we live in a dishonest world, and Christians have to answer to God. So therefore you have a better chance of them being honest."

But Judy Pepper, president of the Better Business Bureau of Central Florida, says she hasn't seen any correlation between Christian-identified businesses and honesty.

"They wouldn't be any less likely or any more likely" to have complaints lodged against them at her organization, she says. "Business is business. Businesspeople are going to have disagreements with their consumers. There are always going to be issues of miscommunication.

The editor of Florida Christian News agrees.

"I don't see any difference between Christian and secular businesses,' says Johnny Duncan, whose 50,000circulation weekly paper is distributed free to churches, restaurants and other businesses throughout Central Florida.

"I've been served well by both, and I've been burned by both," he said. "In our view, as Christians we're called to be more excellent, so there should be a difference. Some people think they're going to do better if there's a fish on the door, and it's not always true. In addition to advertising in targeted publications, businesses aiming at a religious market also can join associations such as the Central Florida Christian Chamber of Com-

The group, which holds networking workshops and luncheons, has about 120 members, according to executive director Lori Slough. She finds interest among secular companies, as well as those run by Christians.

"A lot of businesses are trying to find ways into niche markets and, of course, religious markets are considered a niche market," Slough said.

Some companies are overtly evangelical. For instance, Glory Bound Roofing advertises its service in Shepherd's Guide as "Superior Quality Backed by Strong Spiritual Beliefs.'

One way secular companies approach the market, Slough says, is to have employees who are active Christians ioin her organization. Another is to use "Christian" in their names or to use code words that Christians will recognize — "New Hope," "Trinity," "Corinthians," "Cornerstone" — but that won't put off non-Christians. That strategy has worked for Dr. Roslyn Thompson. She advertises her New Hope Chiropractic Wellness Center in the bulletin of a nearby church, where she also gives health seminars.

When patients arrive at her Altamonte Springs office as the doors are opening, they may get more than relief for their aching bones and joints. They may get a few moments of handholding and prayer.

Thompson, who leads each morning's devotional, says her religion is central to the care she gives.

"Psychologically, you feel as if you have the protection from God," says Thompson, 52. "You have that peace, knowing that whatever comes your way during the day, you can handle it."

Ellis Henry, 62, is one of Thompson's patients who sometimes joins morning prayers. A medical technologist at Florida Hospital, Henry heard Thompson at a seminar at the Church of God by Faith in Winter Park, where he worships. So when he needed a chiropractor six months ago, he called her.

"It was important to me that she was a Christian person," he says. While she realigns his spine, they talk about their faith and how it has affected their lives. "She really cares, in a Christ-like way," Henry says. Thompson says she doesn't know how many of her patients are Christian. "I feel most people who are drawn to us assume we are Christian because of the name," she says. At her modest clinic, the Christian dimension to chiropractic care does not end with the 9 a.m. devotional. Thompson's faith manifests itself in different ways, although she claims no special healing power because of it. "I'll say a silent prayer" while working on patients, she says.

Or she may offer the gift of time when patients' afflictions go beyond the physical. "Sometimes you'll find yourself counseling more than anything," she says. "Someone doesn't just get an adjustment and go. They want to sit and talk to you.' When that happens, she may ask a patient to wait in her office until she can free up some time Thompson says she doesn't hesitate to tell patients, "This is just too much for you, just ask God to help

Have a healthy Thanksgiving

BY LAURA DOHNER

Monongalia Health System

WITH THANKSGIVING just days away, many of us will soon be traveling to be with family and friends and to share in the festivities of the holiday. There are many ways to approach the special day, without completely throwing caution to the wind and having the usual holiday weight gain begin. The average person gains between 5-10 pounds between Thanksgiving and New Years. There are some helpful guidelines you can follow to make this Thanksgiving a healthy one for you and your family.

- \blacksquare Create a plan ahead of time by incorporating exercise and good nutrition into your daily routine. Don't wait until the New Year to start your fitness and nutrition goals.
- Play some backyard football or another activity before the big holiday dinner.
- Be physically active to avoid or relieve the holiday stress.
- It is very easy to overindulge during the holidays. Make sure to watch your portion sizes and select one or two of your favorite tempting foods.
- If you drink alcohol, do so in moderation.
- Standing by the buffet table is temptation to overeat. Remember holiday dinners and parties are times to celebrate with family and friends, not just food.
- Bowls of fresh fruits are a festive and sweet substitute for candy and chocolates.
- Have a good breakfast on Thanksgiving Day. If you skip breakfast, you are more likely to overeat when the big meal finally
- Drink lots of water throughout the day. It will help you cut back on your alcohol consumption, curb your appetite and help you digest your meal.
- Snack on fresh fruits and veggies (maybe with a low calorie dip) instead of eating crackers, cheese and chips.
- Enjoy the meal. Eat slowly
- and savor the wonderful foods. ■ Remember that moderation is the key.

■ Most importantly, talk about all of the things we have to be thankful for. Do not lose sight of the meaning of the day. It is a time to be with loved ones and reflect on how grateful and thankful we are.

Let Thanksgiving be a time to commit yourself to a new activity that helps others who are less fortunate. It is a time to reflect on all the things and people that are important in our lives and how blessed we are

No-mercury flu shot option for this year

BY RICHARD HARKNESS

Knight Ridder Newspapers

Q: What is the mercury content of the flu shot vaccine this

A: There's better news this flu season for those concerned about mercury. Before 2001, childhood vaccines contained a mercury-containing preservative used to inhibit germ growth in vaccines.

Mercury is neurotoxic at certain levels, and much concern has been expressed over a possible link between these mercury-containing childhood vaccines and autism and other childhood neurodevelopmental disorders. Some kids may have an inborn vulnerability to mercury toxicity.

For now, we confine our mercury discussion to the flu shot

Last year, Chiron, one of two suppliers of the flu vaccine, was unexpectedly shut down due to manufacturing problems, leading to last season's shortage.

Depression can hit teens as it hits adults

Condition can be difficult to detect

BY LINDA H. LAMB

Knight Ridder Newspapers

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Looking back now, she realizes that being in a ticky-tacky Tennessee vacation spot probably had nothing to do with her urge to self-destruct.

Yet for Ansley Gasque-Carter, memories of Dollywood will always remind her of that day during a family outing when she turned to her mother and said, "I want to kill myself."

She was 9, and starting a journey no parents would ever wish for their child: to the dark realm of depression and back.

The "and back" part is important. Ansley, now a self-possessed, 16year-old junior at Dutch Fork High School, found help through medication and counseling.

But depression among children and teenagers can be depressingly hard to detect, confirm, understand, relate to and cure.

In the past year, treating depressed kids got even trickier with a federal warning that antidepressants may have effects opposite from those desired — might make some children feel more suicidal, not

Thus Ouidette Gasque-Carter, Ansley's mom, seems to be talking about herself as well as her daughter when she describes depression's scars.

There is a pain associated with depression that other people don't know about," she said.

Even a discussion of depression has its bright side, however. Certain techniques can help you "depression-proof" your children to some extent. And depressed children and teens have a much better chance of recovery if their illness is detected and dealt with at an early stage, said David Almeida, executive director of the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill of South Carolina. "When it comes to childhood depression, the greatest danger may be to do nothing at all," he

About 20 percent of young people will have one or more episodes of major depression by the time they become adults, according to Almeida's group.

The suicide rate among teenagers is about 10 per 100,000, said Dr. Richard Harding, a child and adolescent psychiatrist who is medical director of psychiatry for Palmetto Health and chairman for neuropsychiatry at the University of South Carolina medical school.

Suicides in children younger than 12 are rare, he said. Suicide among teens has declined in recent years often attributed to the use of antidepressant medications — but it is the third leading cause of death in those 15-24. About 9 percent of youths in that age group attempt to kill themselves annually, Harding said.

"That means that if you're sitting in a high-school classroom of 30 kids, two girls and one boy have attempted suicide during the last year," he said.

Girls are more likely to attempt suicide, but boys are more likely to "complete" suicide, to use the mental health professionals' term.

Even the most loving parents can overlook or underestimate signs of depression and suicidal behavior. It's almost unimaginable that one's child might ever be found hanging by his karate belt in his closet, his feet dangling just inches from the floor.

But that's what happened to Cathy and Ed Neeley of Lexington in 1989. Now, they wonder if their son Michael, 13, had bipolar disorder (manic-depression). Often happy and the class clown, he also had periods of intense anger.

Michael's grades had slipped and the Neeleys had just discussed the possibility of military school. Cathy Neeley said they really didn't plan to send him away, and reassured him of that.

"But he was very upset," she said. He didn't eat supper with the family, and when they went to see if he would come and eat something, his father found his body.

"It couldn't have been more than 20 minutes," his mother said. "He was a very impulsive child. I don't think he really knew what he was doing.'

That's one of the dangers of depression in children, experts say: In a period of anger, sadness or humiliation, they may make a gesture of despair, not realizing how permanent it could be.

Sometimes signs of depression in children seem to appear out of nowhere. Experts say this is more common, however, when there is a family history of depression.

As she sat in her living room recently, petting her cat, Ansley Gasque-Carter said there wasn't a clear trigger for the sadness and suicidal thoughts that came over her at age 9.

But her mother, a social worker by training, said she was alert for signs of depression because it runs in the family. She recognized those signs when Ansley voiced thoughts about death and began to withdraw from her friends.

Some good news and some bad news about traveling. The good: It extracts you from your routine. The bad: It extracts you from vour fitness routine.

But relax. Isn't that what vacations are for? And take heart in that you're not going to lose all your hard-fought fitness over a week or two. Just do some maintenance as you go. A little thought and planning will serve

Suzanne Schlosberg, who wrote "The Ultimate Workout Guide for the Road," is full of tips, including on how to adjust your expectations. If you generally work out 45 minutes a day three times a week, there is nothing wrong with halving that and going twice a week. Here are some other tips she suggests you pack:

■ Be early. Even at home, the day can get away from you. That's especially the case while on the road. She wisely asks, "You want to spend time in Paris on the treadmill?"

■ Be intense. Since you're likely to be working out less frequently or for shorter periods, make sure your time is well spent.

■ Be creative. You can walk up stairs, lunge walk down the hallway, use resistance tubing or a jump rope for in-room work-

■ Be true to thyself. Don't make excuses. You'll just feel guilty. Know that no matter how little time you have, or how crummy the hotel equipment may be, you can get a workout.

Also know that hotels are paying attention like never before. A survey of 300 business travelers (150 men and women each), conducted by Lieberman Research Worldwide for Westin Hotels & Resorts in late 2003, found that hotel fitness rooms often disappoint. Almost twothirds of business travelers staying at least two nights thought the fitness rooms seemed "like an afterthought," and 5 percent decided not to use a hotel workout room because it was in such bad condition.

South Florida Sun-Sentine For years, Derrell Edwards lived with constant back pain from a large benign tumor in her uterus. But when her doctor suggested having a hysterectomy — the surgical removal of the uterus — she worried about the pain, recovery time and possible complications.

Instead, Edwards, 41, got a second opinion from Dr. Stephen Zimberg at the Cleveland Clinic in Weston. Fla. Zimberg recommended a minimally invasive, laparoscopic hysterectomy — requiring just three small incisions in her abdomen. Recovery time would be one week, compared to the six weeks required after a typical hysterectomy.

On July 21, doctors removed most of Edwards' uterus, which was about the size of a volleyball due to the tumor. The next day she went home, walked around the house in a loose-fitting shirt and shorts, and even put away the dishes.

"It was a breeze," she said. "I would recommend it to anyone."

A small number of doctors are increasingly promoting minimally invasive hysterectomy for its quicker recovery time. Many women are praising the option. But most gynecologists aren't qualified to do it. Although the procedure is about 15 years old, it makes up only about 13 percent of the 700,000 hysterectomies done each year, according to Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc., a major

Books, dogs go very well together

There is nothing I relish more particularly in cold weather than curling up with a good book and reading all day.

Nothing, that is, except curling up with a good book and my dogs and reading all day.

Being rather pretentious and of superior intellect, Tobey the T tends toward works by Proust and philosophical exercises by Ayn Rand (I think he fancies himself a bit of a canine Howard Roark). His sister Geert, on the other hand, prefers picture books. (Though sometimes, on the best days, they just lay there and let me read, warming the backs of my knees and my feet, respectively.)

As for me, I'm not that picky - I'll read just about anything, so long as A) there is not a picture of Fabio on the cover, and B) the words "private detective" or "deep space" (or any variation thereof) do not appear anywhere in the synopsis.

I even love just browsing in bookstores (ideally with latte in hand). I dig the look of all the neatly lined and stacked books, the hushed atmosphere, the feeling that comes with all those stories just waiting to be savored. The only problem is that every time I cross the threshold of a bookstore I go $instantly\ braindead-rendered$ incapable of making a decision by the bounty surrounding me. (The fact that I was so spoiled by two books I recently read, "Jonathan Strange & Mr. Norrell" and "The Dogs of Babel," just makes it worse).

But because reading is my life I persist — visiting bookstores at least once a week, always spending more than I'd planned, fast forgetting the cash outlay the instant I'm back on my couch, surrounded by my canine children, cracking the cover open and devouring that first page. It is indeed a thing to be thankful for.

And I'm so excited, because these two loves on mine — the literary and the hairy — are coming together this Saturday, and not just at my house (where they pretty much meet every day). For one day only, if you provide the proper voucher, a portion of all the money you spend at Barnes & Noble will be donated to Animal Friends of North Central WV. Vouchers are available at various locations.

It's the perfect chance to get some of your post-Thanksgiving holiday shopping done and help out a good cause — namely Animal Friends' no-kill sanctuary. Should you be more like me, just stock up for yourself (maybe sneaking a few presents in).

On behalf of my dogs, and hundreds of others not yet lucky enough to have a person to snuggle up and read with on a cold day, I really hope to see you there — buying something far better to read than this silly column.

I know I'll be there — the one trying to balance an armful of books in one hand, a hot latte (shot of vanilla decaf skim) in the other, and a somewhat confused, sort of overwhelmed, but somehow dreamy look on her face, scanning for copies of "Snow Flower and the Secret Fan" (for herself), "The Virtue of Selfishness" (for The T) and "The Very Hungry Caterpillar" for our dear Geert, to last us through the winter.

Or at least through next week, when I'll do it all again.

A few simple rules for an elegant meal ou want this year's family Thanksgiving dinner to be extra special. No paper plates and plastic cups on trays in front of the football game.

So, you pull out the fine china, polish the silver, wash the stemware and iron your prettiest cloth for the dining room table. You arrange flowers or fruit for a centerpiece and put tapers in the candelabra.

What you serve and how many courses you offer depends on your family's food preferences, but four courses likely would be sufficient for the bounteous Thanksgiving dinner.

The courses might be a shrimp or oyster cocktail, followed by soup, followed by the main course — turkey and all the trimmings. For a very formal dinner, the salad course comes next, and then dessert and coffee. However, hostesses today most often serve the salad before, or along with, the main course.

Here, with assistance from the 14th edition of "Emily Post's Etiquette, a Guide to Modern formal dining. There are degrees of formality, of course, and most modern households do not come equipped with servers. Carving of the bird may be done by Dad at the table, with plates passed to Mom for serving the dressing and vegetables. Responsible children may be charged with helping place and remove the plates.

Certain rules do, however, hold fast: Diners are served from their left and plates are removed from their right. No one begins to eat until the hostess has raised her fork to begin. And no one leaves the table no rushing to the den to watch a football kickoff — until the hostess rises and signals the end of the meal.

But, no matter how formal or informal the setting, the most important amenities of all at a Thanksgiving table are warm hearts and gratitude for family and friends.

ADDING ON

DESSERT AND COFFEE

Dessert is served, accompanied by coffee or demitasse (from the French: demi/half, tasse/cup) and appropriate individual teaspoons or demitasse spoons.

SUGAR AND CREAMER

Sugar, creamer and sugar shell are passed when coffee is served.

SALT AND PEPPER

An open saltcellar and a pepper pot may be found at each place on a formal table, or at least between every two places. Diners sprinkle salt from the open cellar by using the tiny salt spoon.

TURKEY STUFFING

Either a silver or china serving bowl is appropriate for turkey stuffing.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — You've seen her around. She goes to happy hour with your buddies, she stops by your desk to say hello.

She's cute. You think maybe it's time to ask her out, but something is looming over your head. You work together. Not in the same department but close enough for the office gossip machine to start rolling if you're seen kissing in the break room.

Go for it. Ask her out.

Ideas on dating within the workplace are shifting as offices get more casual and a more relaxed generation enters the work force. Co-workers have always socialized, of course, but romance is no longer against many policies

"We went through a period in employment regulations when everyone was advised to include in their employee (handbooks that) dating in the workplace was prohibited," said Suzanne Layton, president-elect of Human Resources Management Association of Greater Kansas City. "I'm seeing less of that today; perhaps there were less bad situations than they expected."

Derek Smith, 24, works at a large health-care software company that employs many recent college grad uates. He said seeing co-workers pair off is common.

'What's the most common way you meet someone? A friend of a friend," Smith said. "If all your friends work at Cerner, doesn't that feed into the cycle?"

Lindsey Henry Moss, a spokeswoman for Cerner, said the company has no specific dating policies. However, supervisors are not allowed to manage significant others or people they are dating, she said, and employees are expected to remain professional.

If in doubt about your workplace policies, check your employee handbook — or ask.

Dating in the workplace has changed. Nationally, more people are dating within the workplace, according to a survey by Vault Inc., a career information Web site (www.vault.com). In a 2005 survey, 58 percent of employees said they have had an office romance, up from 46 percent in 2003. In the survey, 59 percent also said that if they were a manager, they would do nothing about office romances unless work quality were compromised.

Megan Lewis, 26, said that when she worked at a financial service provider many young people dated their co-workers. She thinks it was a result of how career-driven young singles can be.

"They're working long hours and not meeting anybody else," she said. Research from Careerbuilder.com supports her theory. In a survey of more than 1,300 workers, Careerbuilder found that 22 percent of people who have dated at work began dating after working on a project together and 15 percent began dating after working late. Socialization was a factor as well: Thirteen percent of workers said they began dating after happy hour with co-workers. Adam Laskey, 26, didn't realize that helping his friend with a new crop of Cerner trainees would lead to marriage. But it was there he met his future wife, Leslie, 26. They became fast friends and were soon a couple. When he began a project in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., she followed. They've been married a little more than a year. Leslie said nothing was awkward while the Laskeys, who both still work at Cerner in Kansas City, were getting to know each other. It doesn't bother Leslie that they work together because they work in different departments. In fact, she said

Dear AdviceDiva: For over a year now, my friend "Lisa" has had the hots for "Mike," one of our co-workers. I can see definite signs that Mike likes her too, but he's so shy that neither of us feel he'll ever make a move. I told Lisa from the start to go for it but she thinks it's tacky for the girl to pursue the guy.

Do I approach Mike directly in an attempt to help a friend, or do I just let these two go on admiring each other from afar?

 Just Trying to Help We commend you for having the patience of Job with these two. Your final love intervention for Lisa and Mike? Arrange a doubledate for dinner and the movies, then arrange for you and your husband to disappear after the credits If no romance gets sparked after sitting together in a darkened theater, they are indeed hopeless.

she likes talking about work at home. "It allows me to know a different side of the company," she said.

Is this sort of bliss possible for everyone? Who knows? But the rise of dating in the workplace is a big part of the 20-something generation. Abby Wilner is the author of "Quarterlife Crisis: The Unique Challenges of Life in Your Twenties," published in 2001. The book was instrumental in focusing attention on the "quarterlife crisis," the period of self-doubt and insecurity many face in their 20s. She also co-wrote a new book published this year, "The Quarterlifer's Companion," which gives tips about how to survive the quarterlife crisis.

Young singles are working more, but they're also changing jobs more often. The awkwardness that previously came with dating your co-worker isn't there anymore, she said. "There's so much job-hopping now that if it does become a sticky situation, someone can move on," she said. Not everyone is so casual about dating in the workplace. Small offices are different, said Steve Vockrodt, 23. He's a reporter for the Dispatch Tribune in Gladstone, Mo., and his office is small, making inter-office dating impossible. But trying to meet someone is equally impossible because so many girls are into dating men from their workplace, he said. 'I think the dating scene is very cliquish, and I think one of the cliques that form is people at their jobs," he said.

"You leave school where you are surrounded by people like you," Wilner said. "The social life comes to you. It's like a social fantasy land, and all of a sudden you're on your own in the real world."

Wilner said it's important to build social ties outside work, even though it's hard. She sees dating in the workplace as a last resort — the consequences of a failed romance can be a hazard to your career.

Ultimately, Wilner said, the best advice is to proceed with caution when considering romance with a coworker. "Get to know someone really well, and make sure you're compatible before going into something," Wilner said. "No flings."

Q: If a stepbrother and a stepsister are romantically involved and the following are true: One, they're not bloodrelated; two, they lived under the same roof only for a total of six months, four years ago, therefore, they really didn't grow up together; three, they are both adults by legal definition (he is 28 and she is 18): and four, they make each other happy — then logically there's nothing wrong with this relationship, right? So what's the best way to deal with the poor reactions and wrongful judgments from family and friends? They realize that their happiness together is what's important and the relationship is worth fighting for, but at the same time they would rather have their friends' and relatives' acceptance. A: To get to the crux of your question, we think you may be concerned that your relationship might be perceived as somewhat incestuous, and you would like to know how to explain things to your family and friends so that they don't see it that way. According to the Merriam-Webster Dictionary, "a relationship is regarded as incestuous when there is sexual intercourse between persons so closely related that they are forbidden by law to marry." We all know there are behaviors that society regards as incestuous that this definition does not take into consideration but we believe relationships such as the one you describe are most are raised as siblings. Since you weren't, really, you might feel as often frowned upon when the kids

if you are in a funny gray area and that obviously is what prompted you to write us.

It's difficult to give you a definitive answer to your question because aside from the obvious, there are other aspects of this relationship that you may not have taken into consideration. First, the age difference. You are 28 and she is 18. Although you're both adults, this woman is very young and may simply find your age impressive, which could cloud her judgment and place her in a very vulnerable position. We think she needs to experience life a little more before she settles down with someone 10 years her Second, should you decide to part, the breakup will carry a much larger penalty than the typical "Let's go our separate ways." If it is nasty, family get-togethers will be awkward — not to mention how your parting might affect your parents' relationship should one of you be hurt by the other. It will be easy to take sides and if your parents have had children together, your breakup could affect their parents' relationship. That, in itself carries a heavy responsibility.

Our advice is to go slow and think this through long and hard. Ironically, we don't hear as much commotion about such pairings if two people marry and then their divorced parents fall in love and marry — which would ultimately create the same relationship you face right now.

Tips to avoid wasting cash buying toys

NEW YORK (AP) — Hearing jingle bells already? It could be the cha-ching of cash registers as people start in on their holiday shopping.

Marianne Szymanski, author of 'Toy Tips: A Parent's Essential Guide to Smart Toy Choices," says the best toys are those that are loved and cherished by children yet don't break the bank of the adults buying all the holiday cheer.

The worst toys are those that take up valuable space just to collect dust. Szymanski's top 10 ways to waste your holiday toy budget:

■ Buy a multilingual toy for a toddler, hoping it will teach language skills. Small children need human interaction to develop a love for new language not a gizmo.

■ Buy an educational toy that is far above the child's current skill level. You may think it will be challenging and encouraging for the child, but it's more likely the child will find the too-complex toy boring.

■ Buy a very loud toy. You'll never want the children to play with it.

■ Buy an oversized toy. Those king-sized plush toys make a big impact on gift-giving day, but they're not suitable for toddlers or babies, and they never fit in the toy box.

■ Buy a role-playing toy for a role you don't like. If you don't want your child to leap around the room like a ninja warrior, don't buy the costume.

■ Buy a collectible toy for a child under 10. There's nothing more frustrating to children than being told they have a new toy they are not allowed to remove from the packaging.

■ Buy a toy that is impossible to wrap. Its a good way to blow through the gift wrap supply.

■ Buy a toy that needs a lot of batteries. Often, battery costs end up outpacing the cost of the original toy.

■ Buy a toy as an "investment." Most toys do not end up being valuable collectors items.

■ Buy a toy because it was No. 1 on a "hot toy" list. Just because everyone is buying it, doesn't mean its a good toy. That just means its a well-marketed toy.

Late country legend is hot again with film, CDs, DVDs

BY JONATHAN TAKIFF

Knight Ridder Newspapers

The last and often the best career move an artist can make is to die. That horrible truth held for Jim Morrison, for Elvis Presley and recently for Ray Charles, whose posthumously released biopic, "Ray," and star-studded "Genius Loves Company" album scored resounding artistic and commercial successes, with the disc becoming the biggest seller in Brother Ray's long and illustrious career.

Now the heat is getting turned up for another music icon, country legend Johnny Cash. Two years and two months after his death on Sept. 12, 2003, a veritable deluge of albums, DVDs and a hotly buzzed-about biopic are (you should pardon the expression) cashing in on the music and the legend of the Man in Black.

It's quite possible that a whole new generation or two who've barelv heard of Cash will suddenly be inspired to take up his cause, intrigued not only by the gritty realism of his mold-breaking, trendsetting "outlaw" country tunes, but also by his aptly matched, largerthan-life personality.

Leading the charge is the film biography "Walk The Line," which stars Joaquin Phoenix as Cash and Reese Witherspoon as his song- and soulmate, June Carter. In the trailer for the film, it's the duo's furtive, dark-side-oftown romance that's being pitched to as the allure for lure date-night couples.

But it's Cash's sullen, rebellious, underdog nature that youths will connect with instinctively, as Cash fights an oppressive father figure, gets in trouble with the law, develops an amphetamine habit and defies a Christian upbringing by cheating on his wife.

And look at the surprisingly good musical performances (no lip-synching here!) by the two stars and supporting cast, which includes Waylon Malloy Payne as Jerry Lee Lewis (though looking more like James Dean), Tyler Hilton as Elvis Presley, Johnathan Rice as Roy Orbison, Shooter Jennings playing Cash's dad Waylon, and Shelby Lynne as his mother, Carie Cash.

In the film and on the companion soundtrack album, Phoenix is wise to avoid overtly imitating Cash's hard-traveled gravel road of a voice. Yet he still achieves a gravity all his own in the dark, yet slightly more contemporary versions of "Ring of Fire" and "Folsom Prison Blues" produced for the soundtrack by alt-country notable T-Bone Burnett.

Even with her legally blonde hair dyed brown, Witherspoon is a glamorized version of her character, June Carter, who before her death signed off on the casting. Even more of a Hollywood blessing, Witherspoon's vocals are free of that chalk-against-the-blackboard squeal we sometimes heard in Carter's singing voice — more often in her senior years than in the heydays of the film's focus.

But true to her Southern roots, Witherspoon applies just enough hillbilly accent to become the "Wildwood Flower" of family patriarch A.P. Carter's famous tune.

If you don't have any Cash music in your library, opt first for "The Legend of Johnny Cash," which debuted on the Billboard album chart at No. 11 — not too shabby.

This survey starts with his late-1950s days in Sun Records' "Million Dollar Quartet" stable, competing alongside Presley, Lewis and Carl Perkins.

That's when Cash broke out with "Folsom Prison Blues" and his trademark, chug-a-chugga-guitar-scored "I Walk the Line."

Then the disc segues to his Columbia glory days of the '60s, doing up "Jackson" with Carter and that song she wrote about the pain of loving a married man -"Ring of Fire" — which ironically saved his life and cemented their

The package also feeds us a couple of his Highwaymen and U2 collaborations and caps with some of those intimate, American Records sessions with producer Rick Rubin that sparked a twilight-years comeback and are now considered to be among Cash's best work.

What music inspired Cash the most? The recently re-issued compilation "Artist's Choice - Johnny Cash" on the Starbucks-backed Hear Music label offers some ripe insights.

No surprise are twangy tracks Cash picked out for inclusion by Hank Williams (the elder), Marty Robbins, Kristofferson, Red Foley, Bob Dylan (yeah, he and Cash really connected), Bruce Springsteen and gospel queen Mahalia Jackson (Cash was a very spiritu-

But you'll also find smoother stuff like Roberta Flack's "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," Linda Ronstadt's version of "Desperado" and Glen Campbell's hit "Wichita Lineman."

Johnny Cash's dirt-poor dad rode the rails as a hobo induring the Great Depression days, passing on a love of train lore to his son.

Cash produced and starred in 'Riding the Rails — The Great American Train Story," a film that aired only once on TV in 1974, then vanished until a couple of weeks ago, when Rhino issued a home-video version.

A labor of love, "Rails" has Cash wandering through costumed recreations of landmark events in American railroad history, including an amusing race between steam engine and horsepulled trains. Between anecdotes, Cash sings classic train songs like "Casey Jones," "City of New Orleans" and "The Legend of John Henry's Hammer." Though roughhewn, the production has some charm and educational value.

Also just out on video is "Johnny Cash — The Man, His World, His Music" (Sanctuary Records). This late '60s documentary captures one of the happiest periods in his life, after the singer finally got straight and scored his first comeback with "Ring of Fire."

The collage of live performances, backstage footage and onthe-road travelogue has a handheld, documentary look typical of the times, and it's poorly lighted during the first reel (suggesting the filmmakers were learning as they went). But there are treasures to behold, including Cash visits to a prison and an Indian reservation, the two forgotten classes of citizens he embraced.

Also notable is the amusing studio session with Bob Dylan, trading vocal licks on the latter's "One Too Many Mornings."

One video that fans should definitely hold their collective breaths for is "Live From Austin TX — Johnny Cash," a DVD due out Dec. 6.

Recorded in 1987 and first seen (in shorter form) as a chunk of "Austin City Limits," it shows Cash at the top of his game, working with a hot seven-piece band that is captured in crisp surround sound, plus cameos from Carter (natch) and her sister Anita.

Along with the classics, he shares unexpected gems like "Sam Stone," John Prine's tragically parched ballad of a junkedup Vietnam vet, and the equally haunting cowboy lament "(Ghost) Riders in the Sky."

How about a biopic about ...

BY SCOTT FALLON

The Record (Hackensack N.J.) Let's see. We've seen the lives of Loretta Lynn, Buddy Holly, Jerry Lee Lewis, Ritchie Valens, Tina Turner, Selena and Ray Charles on the big screen.

Regardless of talent, musicians have been fodder for Hollywood, thanks mostly to their life offstage.

On the heels of the 50 Cent autobiopic, "Get Rich or Die Tryin'," comes "Walk the Line," the Johnny Cash story starring Joaquin Phoenix. And there's more in the works. Films on Janis Joplin, Brian Jones and Bob Dylan are in various stages of development or produc-

Here are some other musicians Hollywood might take a chance on:

John Lennon

Where to begin? Working-class kid from Liverpool forms a garage band, becomes more popular than the pope, experiments with psychedelic drugs, writes some of the 20th century's most popular songs, breaks up the band and dies tragically in his wife's arms.

Casting: Adrien Brody as John, Margaret Cho as Yoko. Brody's already won an Oscar for a biopic — "The Pianist."

Bruce Springsteen

Even the most scandalseeking biographer will say St. Bruce leads a perpetually boring life. Still there is enough drama: troubled relationship with father. nearly getting cut from his record label, forced into musical exile for three years thanks to ex-manager's lawsuit, brief marriage to Hollywood actress ends after fling with current wife.

Casting: Jon Heder. We're not talking the "Napoleon Dynamite" version although the hair isn't all that different from the "Born to Run" era scruff the Boss had. Think more the earnest look from "Just Like Heaven."

Phil Spector

Yes, music producers aren't the subjects of screenplays. But this former boy wonder took 1960s bubble gum pop and turned it into Wagnerian epics. He then went into virtual seclusion, pulled a gun on the Ramones and now stands accused of murder in his sixth decade. Need more?

Casting: Ed Norton as a young Phil and Tim Burton as Phil today.

Brian Wilson

Like Elvis, the Beach Boys have been relegated to bad TV movies. But Wilson's story begs for the big screen. A troubled genius who creates the best American pop album, "Pet Sounds," and then spends the 1970s in bed. Casting: John Krasinski as a young Brian and Nick Nolte as a current Brian. Krasinski, who plays Jim on "The Office," has perfected the wide-eyed, innocent look.

Koppel will soon say final 'good night'

BY FRAZIER MOORE

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK—Don't expect much ceremony when Ted Koppel signs off. The closing thought with which he ends each "Nightline" will take the form of a farewell Tuesday. Then, one last time, he will likely say, "For all of us here at ABC News, good night." And it will be over: almost 26 years as "Nightline" anchor and a 42-year hitch with ABC. Nigntiine airs at 11:35 p.m. EST.)

"There is nothing precipitous about this," notes Koppel, who announced his plans in March. "It's time to give a new bunch a crack at this.

Now 65, he's not retiring. ("I'm not telling you goodbye; it's au revoir," he offers gamely.) After a few months, he aims to be back at work in a venture with longtime executive producer Tom Bettag, who's leaving "Nightline" too.

While Koppel declines to discuss what might lie ahead, Bettag is a bit more forthcoming, confirming they have talked with HBO about a series of documentaries (no deal is yet in place).

But wherever Koppel settles next, Tuesday marks the end of an era. And not just for "Nightline," but across network news as he joins three other giants who, in the past 12 months, have left the evening newscasts they anchored for decades: NBC's Tom Brokaw, CBS' Dan Rather and the late Peter Jennings on ABC. Even so, with Koppel and "Nightline," there's a difference: He was there at the creation.

And though Koppel's on-air presence has diminished — in recent years he was anchoring just three nights per week — he has always set the tone for "Nightline," which since March 1980 has stood its ground against the twaddle of so much TV news.

Natalee Holloway? When mentioned to Koppel as a poster child for News Lite, her name didn't register until he was prompted with: "the teen who went missing in Aruba."

That's reassuring. But when Koppel leaves "Nightline," will its fluff filter be leaving with him?

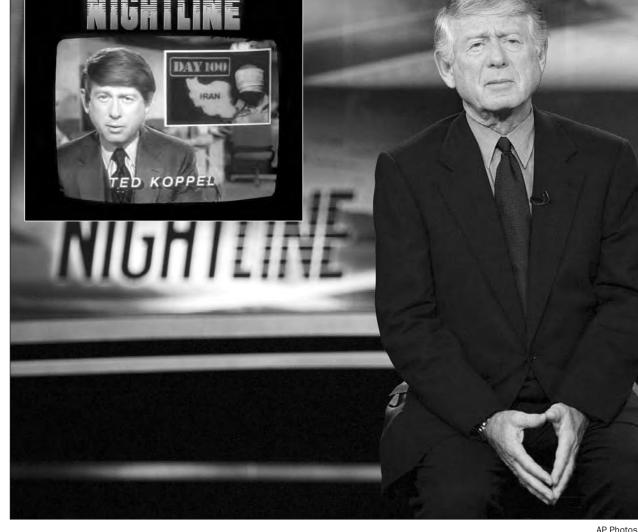

On Nov. 28, a triumvirate of Martin Bashir, Cynthia McFadden and Terry Moran will take over. And most nights, the program will cover several stories, not just one in-depth, as before.

Multiple anchors! Multiple reports! It seems like a whole-hog reimagining of "Nightline."

"The challenge over the years, and the challenge now, is to keep changing the program without altering it," says Koppel.

He points to its evolution since its birth, when then ABC News President Roone Arledge transformed coverage of U.S. diplomats taken hostage in Iran into a broad-based late-night fixture.

Predating CNN by several weeks (with MSNBC and Fox News Channel still unimagined) "Nightline"

ABC anchor Ted Koppel (above) prepares for "Nightline" in Washington. Tuesday, Koppel's almost 26 years as "Nightline" anchor and a 42-year hitch with ABC ends. "Nightline" evolved from the ABC News special broadcasts "The Iran Crisis: America Held Hostage," which began Nov. 8, 1979, four days after American hostages were seized at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. On day 142 of the hostage crisis, March 24, 1980, ABC News "Nightline" premiered, with Ted Koppel as its permanent anchor (inset).

was a fresh alternative to late-night talk and old movies.

As anchor, Koppel, who had been at ABC News since 1963 and its chief diplomatic correspondent for a decade, proved right away to be the ideal choice. A star was born at 40.

And completing the "Nightline" equation was the recent breakthrough in satellite transmission that made possible "intercontinental salons" — an interviewing form Koppel largely invented.

'What was thrilling during that first year to us and to the audience was the technology," he recalls. "Being able to orchestrate a conversation among three people — in Moscow, Tehran and in Washington was unprecedented. Just being able to do that was enough to excite people in 1980 and '81.'

But the chosen subject matter brought substance to the form. AIDS, the prison system, racism were among the thorny topics repeatedly

'Why? Because those are desperately important issues, and you need to keep reminding the public," Koppel says.

The mission of "Nightline" was lofty, even defiant. And the public responded. As recently as the mid-1990s, "Nightline" was edging out CBS' "Late Show with David Letterman" for first place in its time slot, averaging more than 6.9 million viewers.

"Our legacy," says Koppel, "is that a serious news broadcast can be successful on all counts, without catering to anyone's baser instincts. 'Nightline' has made a lot of money. It has been successful in terms of viewership, awards and accolades. But most important to me, it's been successful in not ever having to lower its standards.' As they outlined their eventual departure, Koppel and Bettag put forth a five-year transition plan in

But this succession strategy, which would have phased "Nightline" correspondent Chris Bury into the anchor seat, was derailed in early 2002 when ABC was caught wooing Letterman. Although "Nightline" still outdrew Letterman's "Late Show," ABC executives worried that their program wasn't a favorite of the younger viewers many advertisers prefer. But then Letterman stayed at CBS.

The whole episode riled Koppel, who said ABC's scheme to evict "Nightline" had caused "collateral damage" to the program.

Now he insists he is "delighted that at least the network is willing to give the news division a chance to keep 'Nightline' going.'

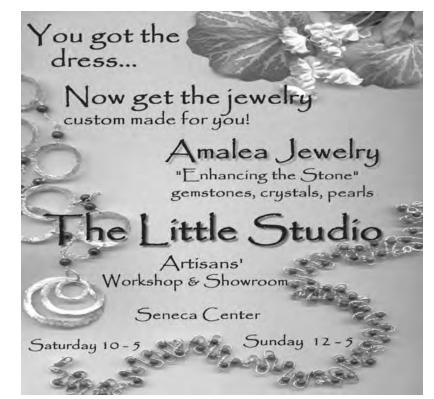

But to save "Nightline," will the network be destroying it?

Even in the face of what seems like drastic changes, Bettag voices cautious optimism. In particular, he says, the three-anchor format may now be the best option: Koppel would be a hard act for one person to follow.

"As long as the quality is there," Bettag says, "a different kind of broadcast is not necessarily a bad

And as the days count down to his no-frills exit, Koppel agrees.

"I think at its best, 'Nightline' has been able to inform and entertain simultaneously," he says. "I see no reason why it can't go on doing

Some things to consider before buying

WE HAVE PREVIOUSLY TALKED about getting pre-qualified for your house loan. The following questions and answers may help you follow that process:

Q. How much of our budget will it take to buy our new home?

A. Your down payment for your house will determine the initial house payment, then your payment will typically include your insurance and tax payment. These are called escrow payments. Escrows may change from year to year depending on insurance and tax increases.

Additional expenses incurred from home ownership include utility bills and maintenance (such as a new roof, hot water tank, furnace repair, etc), therefore you should include a "rainy day" savings in your budget.

Remember, the main benefit from purchasing your home is appreciation-equity building up, not only as your "place to live," but also, usually a rising investment. Therefore, keep in mind the purchase of your home requires budgeting, but it will also provide you a great investment.

Q. How do we get our mortgage? A. After you have found your perfect home and your offer has been accepted, now you need to get your loan.

As you are all aware, there are several mortgage banks and credit unions in the area to assist you with your mortgage loan. There are also many different loan programs.

Don't jump into this process haphazardly. Shop around and make sure you are comfortable before you make your final decision.

Just a few tips as you start your process:

1) They all want your business, so negotiate the cost of the loan. Find out the rate, and in doing so, figure the annual percentage rate, which includes principal, interest, extra fees and costs spread out over the life of the loan.

2) Determine the loan you will use. There are numerous types, as well as different lengths of time.

The typical 30-year fixed rate, if you plan on living there for a while, or the adjustable rate mortgage if you are going to be in the property only a short time, are very popular.

3) Is there a penalty for paying the loan off early?

Consider the amount of time the bank will take to approve you and consider the time they can turn the loan around for closing.

Finally, give your business to the loan officer that you feel comfortable working with and that offers you the loan program that fits your needs.

The next few columns will be additional questions and answers, hopefully assisting you in purchasing your new home.

Golden Corral almost complete

Restaurant opening set for Dec. 5

The Dominion Post

Within a month, River Landing in Star City will be up and running as Golden Corral Buffet and Grill opens its doors.

Lori Langdon, development administrator for Golden Corral, and Brian Lucas, general manager of the Star City location, said the buffet-style restaurant should be open Dec. 5.

The building is about 10,330 square feet, Langdon said. The dining room has approximately 400 seats, and Lucas said he will hire 140-150 full- and part-time workers for the restaurant.

The building cost $2.5 million, Lucas said, and sits at the site of the former Foodland building, which was demolished in April. The restaurant will feature lunch and dinner every day, and breakfast on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Star City restaurant will make a total of four Golden Corrals in West Virginia. Crosslanes, Huntington and Parkersburg all have one, Langdon said. In Pennsylvania, there are Golden Corrals in Uniontown, Monroeville, Waynesboro and Pittsburgh, among others.

Langdon said before a new restaurant location is decided, the company does market research to determine where the restaurant should be placed.

Petroplus and Associates of Morgantown is providing leasing and developing consultants for River Landing. A 12,000-square-foot CVS building is also under way. There is space for four more businesses in the plaza.

Having emergency electricity for home offers security

DEAR JIM: I would feel more comfortable with some emergency electricity for my home, but I cannot afford a big generator. What type of simple portable battery power supplies are available to power some essential items?

Dear James: With today's homes and families totally dependent upon electricity for even the basic necessities, it is wise to plan for power outages. Whole-house generators are the best option, but they cost many thousands of dollars to install and require gas or diesel for power.

Portable power supplies, or even your automobile battery, can provide electric power for a television, radio, lights, and some other essential items. The problem is most batteries produce 12-volt direct current electricity, but most items require ers which convert 12-volt battery power to 110-volt house power. There are small 100-watt ones which plug into the cigar-lighter socket in your car. The wattage rating tells you how powerful a device can be plugged into the inverter. This could be used to operate a small television, recharge a cell phone, run a small pump, etc.

More powerful 750-watt inverters are also available. These have jumper-type cables which are attached to a battery. They are small, about 9x5x3 inches and have two 110-volt outlets. As long as the battery is charged, these will produce usable electric power.

Another source of power is an uninterrupted power supply (UPS) for a computer. These have a battery and a built-in inverter. It is wise to always use one to protect your computer and it will double as emergency power.

There are also special portable power supplies available. These are generally designed for use during emergencies, but they also function well as portable power when you are camping or outdoors. Most of them include a set of jumper cables to start your car if the car battery goes dead. Many also have built-in tire pumps, emergency lights and efficient (LED or fluorescent) work lights.

The amount of 110-volt electric power they produce depends upon the size of the internal battery and the inverter. A 10- to 20-amp-hour battery is typical and it indicates how much electricity is stored in the unit.

Its wattage rating indicates the maximum electricity output of the inverter. If you plug in items which draw too much current, the inverter will overheat and shut off.

You can always store extra batteries for more power and keep them charged with solar cell trickle chargers. Also, consider getting an additional lower-powered unit, such as a Storm Station, with one 110-volt outlet and a built-in light, radio and television sound. These are lightweight and easy to handle.

The following companies offer portable power supplies: Black & Decker, (800) 544-6986, www.blackanddecker.com; Clore Automotive, (800) 328-2921, www.jumpstarter.com; National Solar Tech., (800) 310-7413, www.nationalsolaronline.com; Vector Manufacturing, (866) 584-5504, www.vectormfg.com; and Xantrex, (800) 670-0707, www.xantrex.com.

Platters have been important aspect of dinner feasts since the Middle Ages

THE ROASTED TURKEY served at Thanksgiving requires a very large platter. The turkev is usually brought to the table. carved, then served to guests. If Thanksgiving had been a European feast started during the late Middle Ages, the table setting and manner of service would have been very different.

In the 15th century, dinner feasts were held in the main hall of a castle and included as many as 80 courses, each served on a silver platter. The entire table was filled with platters and dishes of food.

By the 17th century, dinner parties were held in a dining room. The meat was still served on large platters, but it was already carved into manageable pieces. In the 19th century, servants passed the food to each guest. The 20th century saw the beginning of buffets — dinners where guests served themselves from a side table, then carried the meal to a table or chair.

Since the 18th century, silver and ceramic oval platters have been made, some more than 30 inches long. A dish larger than that, topped by a 25-pound turkey, would be almost too heavy to carry to the table. Today the Thanksgiving turkey platter is usually oval and can be made of china, silver, pewter, glass or plastic.

Q: How can you tell old milk glass from new? I have read that older pieces look opalescent around the edges, but I've seen newer pieces with opalescent edges.

A: Collectors often look for opalescence, or "fire," on the edges of milk glass to help prove that the glass was made between about 1870 and the 1890s. But it's not a perfect test. Nineteenth-century glassmakers used different types of white glass to create opaque white pieces. Not all of it shows opalescence on the edges. Collectors sometimes use the term "opal glass" or "fiery opal" for opaque white glass with shimmery, translucent edges. Here are a few ways to tell old from new: (1) Many old milk-glass pieces have a C-shaped rough spot, or "straw mark," on the foot of the glass. (2) The plain surfaces of old milk glass are often marked with thin, concenless blue in it, the texture is less oily and the glass is heavier. (4) Most 19th-century milk-glass items are serving pieces, like sugar bowls and creamers, or novelties, like toothpick holders and animalshaped covered dishes. You won't find an antique set of milk-glass din-

Q: We have a Della Robbia wall plaque titled "Madonna del Presepio." It was given to my father in the 1920s. The round plaque is 23 inches in diameter and 3 inches thick. It is white clay with a relief design showing the Madonna with the Christ Child and three angels. The figures are glazed white, but the sky and ground are painted in vibrant shades of blue, green and yellow. The border is a relief design of fruit. The title of the plaque and the name A. Della Robbia are written in black on the back. Is the plaque valuable?

A: Andrea della Robbia (1435-1525) was the nephew and pupil of an Italian Renaissance artist named Luca tric circles, caused by uneven cooling in the mold. (3) Old milk glass has nerware.

> The Thanksgiving turkey can arrive at the table on this transferware platter made in England about 1880. The asymmetrical pattern is typical of the Japanese-inspired decorations of the time. The platter sold at Brenda's Treasures at Ruby-pieces looked like marble, but they were less expensive. Andrea, and later his sons, carried on Luca's business, and copies of originals have been made ever since. You probably have a 20th-century copy of a della Robbia original. Some 20th-century copies sell for about $200. An expert who can handle the piece will be able to give you a better idea of the quality and value of your plaque.

Tip: Rub the base of a candlestick with a little olive oil before lighting a candle. Any wax that drips can easily be peeled off the oiled base.

Inviting home gyms welcome more workouts

BY DEBRA D. BASS

St. Louis Post-Dispatch (KRT) There's probably no such thing as a French country home

Any decorating scheme that includes free weights and machinery that plugs into the wall is going to thwart traditional interior design classifications, but that's no excuse for people to ignore the benefits of a welldesigned workout area.

You can't expect results by just tossing a treadmill and weight bench haphazardly into a room. If you're not exercising regularly already, proximity to equipment is not your biggest obstacle. Motivation is the problem. And that means you need to create a space that's convenient, inspiring and inviting.

The biggest reason that home gyms fail is arguably design. Don't laugh — a home gym is not a build-it-and-you-will-work-out proposition. People have to be careful to choose the right equipment, the right location and the right decorating

"It's not just a matter of equipment," says Rick Viehland of The Fitness Store, in the St. Louis region. "You have to create a comfortable space where you actually want to go and hang Viehland says that lighting is one of the biggest issues people forget about when it comes to making workout spaces appealing. Track lighting and recessed ceiling lights are a workout room's best friend. This inexpensive fix helps to create a warm atmosphere that will inspire visitors to keep coming back. Drab environments dampen enthusi-

An ideal spot for a workout room would involve a window with natural light, but a finished basement with an adequate lighting system is a great alternative.

In her basement, Lynne Talan of Creve Coeur, Mo., has a home gym that is so attractive friends want her to make it a

"The big joke with my friends is that they come over and ask how can they get a membership,"

Her husband, Manne (pronounced man-e), coaches three youth sports teams and uses the gym daily. There's even an adjacent room lined with Astroturf that's used for batting practice and a children's play area.

The gym has a commercial rubber floor and is fully stocked with a barre for ballet, a full contingent of free weights and a nicely appointed minigym of cardio and weight machines. There's also a television and Motivational posters dot the walls, encouraging perseverance, strength and enthusiasm.

"Some days you need all the help you can get," says Talan, who works out with a friend and enlists a personal trainer who makes house calls.

The Talans had the help of a professional to stock the gym, and Lynne Talan advises that anyone looking to make the investment do the same.

"You don't need everything," she says. "You need what you can

Gym checklist

LOCATION: People tend to put a gym in the most unattractive area of the home. Equipment is piled into a damp basement or drafty garage or crammed into an already overpopulated bedroom or home office. Wherever you place it, make the space comfortable.

EQUIPMENT: Ask for advice from a professional, and test equipment before you invest in big pieces. If you don't have any idea what to buy, a trial membership at a local gym should help you figure out which equipment is most appealing. Think about what you want to accomplish, and develop a workout routine with your equipment in mind before you buy. Depending on your goals and preferences, a treadmill might make more sense than free weights or vice versa. Or maybe you just need a set of videos, a step and a heavy exercise mat.

TEMPERATURE: Adding an electric fan is probably a good idea. If the room gets too hot or cold or is tucked into a humid region of the basement, what are the odds that you're going to trek down there three to four times a week for exercise.

LIGHTING: More is better. Create zones or install dimmers so that you can adjust the lighting easily.

ENTERTAINMENT: Running in place and hoisting weighted bars can get monotonous, so find ways to make the experience interesting. Most people respond to the rhythm of their favorite music, so set up something to play tapes or CDs.

Local Realtors attend convention

Barbara Alexander of Howard Hanna Premier Properties; Bill Burton of Bell Cross Properties; Jeff Stewart of Pat Stewart Realtors; and Kathy Martin, Darby Lane and Moriah Weaver of KLM Properties, were among the more than 26,000 Realtors who attended the National Association of Realtors annual Realtors Convention and Expo in San Francisco in late October.

Attendees came from all parts of the United States and more than 36 countries to learn about the latest professional news and information and tools to help their businesses. The attendees came to get answers to the questions of the day: Will the real estate boom continue? How can the Gulf Coast be rebuilt? Is competition in real estate fair? And is the mortgage interest deduction in big

David Lereah, NAR's chief economist, said strong demand should keep home sales at historically high levels in 2006. "We are in the process of setting fifth consecutive annual records for both existing and new home sales, but the market will experience a soft landing next year," Lereah said. "The figures for 2006 predict the second highest year on record for each sector of the market."

In addition to participating in briefings and educational sessions, conference attendees heard presentations and political forums about major issues facing the real estate industry. Sessions included the economic outlook for residential real estate, commercial real estate business trends and forums about international real estate and technology issues.

Employers see spike in sexual bias lawsuits

WHAT ARE THE HOT BUTTONS of discrimination that make employees so angry and upset that they file charges against the companies they work for?

The answers come from the Jackson Lewis annual workplace issues survey. The national law firm, headquartered in White Plains, N.Y., specializes in workplace law, representing management. According to the study of 234 businesses, "gender discrimination charges spiked in 2004." It was the most frequent complaint, cited by 58 percent of those surveyed.

Sexual discrimination "increased significantly over the past year," the law firm reports. The previous year, only 48 percent of the companies who were studied said sexual discrimination was "the leading charge."

At the same time, complaints of sexual harassment increased "slightly" — by 6 percent — over last year, when 57 percent named it.

A decade ago, however, 95 percent of the companies reported dealing with a sexual harassment issue — not necessarily leading to a lawsuit, however. And here's some really good news: Racial discrimination no longer is the most common charge. In 2004, 49 percent of the employers cited it as the most frequent legal complaint, a decrease from 2003, when 54 percent of employers named it as No. 1.

Overall, the "number of workplace lawsuits remains relatively stable," the report notes. The percentage of employers who said they were sued by employees in 2004 and 2003 remained the same, at 57 percent.

Manufacturing hope

All the reports I get suggest that jobs in manufacturing are on the decline — and they've been that way for a long time. But a recent statement by John Engler, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, headquartered in Washington, gives hope in an indirect way.

Although employment in this sector of the economy will most likely remain the same in the short term, Engler tells it like it is when it comes to who will be hired when jobs are available. "U.S. manufacturing will no longer employ millions in low-skill jobs," said Engler. "Tomorrow's jobs will go to those with education in science, engineering and math and to those with high-skill technical training.'

One of the reasons the job picture might change for skilled workers in manufacturing is that "current science and engineering workers are aging and preparing to retire in coming decades.' That means the evolving exodus of baby boomers will open up opportunities in manufacturing — as well as every other segment of the U.S. labor market.

By any other name: "The economy may be looking up, the company may be raking in cash and still the layoffs continue, like a perverse form of natural selection, weeding out the talented and successful as well as the mediocre," according to Barbara Ehrenreich, author of "Bait and Switch: The (Futile) Pursuit of the American Dream" (Metropolitan Books, $24). "Since the mid-'90s, this perpetual winnowing process has been institutionalized under various euphemisms such as 'downsizing,' 'right-sizing,' 'smart-sizing,' 'restructuring' and 'de-layering' to which we can now add the outsourcing of white-collar functions to cheaper labor markets overseas."

Whatever it's called, it's devastating for U.S. workers. CAROL KLEIMAN writes for the Chicago Tribune. She can be reached at ckleiman@tribune.com.

Kathryn and Hal Cook, owners of Learning Express, a toy store located in Snyder Plaza stand in their store in Dallas.

When a co-worker really is family

Copreneurs are a growing trend in U.S.

BY MARY JACOBS The Dallas Morning News (KRT)

fter raising three children together, Hal and Kathryn Cook now devote their time to another joint endeavor: a Learning Express toy store in University Park, Texas, which the couple owns and operates.

"It's like our fourth kid,"

Kathryn Cook said. The Cooks are part of what may be one of the fastest-growing small-business trends in the United States: married couples, or "copreneurs," that own and operate franchise businesses Learning Express, a franchiser with 108 locations nationwide, has seen a big spike in the number of couples starting franchises. According to Learning Express chief executive Sharon DiMinico, "Couples often make the most successful store owners because they are deeply invested — personally and financially in making it work."

The Senior's Choice, a network of independent businesses providing nonmedical companion care services, reports that half of its memberships are purchased by married couples. Statistics on couple-owned businesses are hard to find, but the number of family-owned businesses is growing, and couples often anchor those businesses.

"My sense is that more women are in the workplace now, so more couples might be working together," said Ann Kinkade, director of the Family Business Center at the University of Wisconsin-Madison (www.uwexeced.com/fbc).

Mr. Cook left the oil business to start the toy store in 1996.

As their children — then middle-school and high-school students — became more independent, Ms. Cook gradually took on more responsibilities.

"When Hal started traveling and opening new stores, I started doing some of the buying," Ms. Cook said. Now she's in charge of buying for the store, with help from staffers. That involves ordering 5,000 products from 400

Mr. Cook pitches in on the floor and supports the 30 stores in the regional franchise that the couple also owns.

Mr. Cook's brother, Randy Cook, handles the financial side of the business.

"An owner-operator usually has a better handle on the business than someone who's an employee," Mr. Cook said. "If there's two of you, it's that much better."

Kinkade says the advantage of couple-owned business can also be the biggest disadvantage lots of togetherness, which can lead to all business, all the time.

"The problem I hear about most often in couple-owned businesses is that it's just about impossible to create private time that's unrelated to the business,' she said. "There's very little natural separation. You have to create your own boundaries for that private time."

For couples thinking of going into business together, Mr. Cook puts it this way: "Make sure you can handle 24 hours a day with your spouse."

The Cooks say they've struck a balance by staying involved with their children, now grown, and pursuing other hobbies. Now that they have a strong team of employees in place — which includes a family of four sisters, not related to the Cooks — they feel confident leaving the business under employees' supervision to work nonstop until Christmas Day. Ms. Cook remembers one Thanksgiving eve when 750 boxes of merchandise arrived at the store's back door. Before going into business together, couples need to think through how they'll handle these stresses, Kinkade advises. Kinkade said it's especially key for couples to anticipate con-

"Conflict is not always bad," she said. "When effectively managed, it can be a really helpful thing to go through.'

Also important for success: self-awareness.

"You have to know your own limitations and know the lens through which you view the world," Kinkade said. Couples often share the same assumptions, which can create blind spots.

Also, emotional issues in the marriage can carry over into the business and cloud business judg-

"If you think your spouse is overreacting to an issue, you might say, 'It's just like you to overreact," she said.

Some family businesses counter those problems by creating an advisory board to give feedback and offer fresh ideas and perspective

The Family Business Center hosted a program (www.theboardschool.com) on how family-owned businesses can create boards to help identify priorities and sort out questions such as whether to expand or take profits.

Like the Cooks, Kinkade compares co-owning a business to having a baby — a big investment of time and effort that can pay off in the long run.

"There's overwhelming stress, sleepless nights and, like a child, sometimes a business can have a mind of its own," she said.

"It's not an easy thing to do. But, just like kids, if there's a common vision, it can also become a real source of bonding."

What to look for if you're on the fence about taking a new job

BY PATRICK S. PEMBERTON

Getting a job offer can boost your sense of self-worth, give you an opportunity to beef up your resume, and make you tingle with excitement. But if you already have a good job, that enticing offer can also make you sick.

Why sick? Because if you decide to jump ship, there's always a chance that the change could be a disaster. Your new boss could turn out to be a jerk.

Or — worst of all — the boss could tell you it's just not working out. On the other hand, life is all about taking chances. If you shy away from every risk, your career — and, therefore, a big portion of your life — could become stagnant. Taking the leap is probably easier for younger workers, said longtime employment counselor Arlene T. Dyer. Younger workers don't have as much invested, like a retirement plan or seniority. But even older workers shouldn't become complacent.

"Decent and better are two different things," said Dyer, author of "You Got the Job! Now What?" "You can have a decent job, but if you feel that you won't succeed, be promoted or it's a dead-end job, then you need to look for something else."

There is something to be said about stability, though, which is why Dyer recommends people thoroughly research a would-be employer before giving up a good job.

Even if a prospective job looks great, you might have a gut feeling that something isn't quite right. In that case, Dyer recommends, listen to your instincts.

"You've got to go with your gut," she said. "But you have to know your gut. You might just have a stomachache.'

Eight tips for those on the fence: Be a sleuth. Talk to non-management employees and ask them questions about work environment, peers and expectations. Read anything you can find on the prospective workplace and company employees. Dyer suggests you even go to the courthouse and seek out lawsuits that have named the company. If the company has been named in several harassment suits, that's an important clue about the atmosphere.

Consider the little things. What's the commute, dress code and office environment like? Will you get a company laptop? Parking? Discounts at the local gym? Combined, these little things make a big difference.

Don't rush. If the prospective employer tries to rush you into a hasty decision, it could be a sign that the job is not right for you.

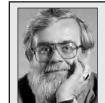

Ask for a counteroffer. Tell your current boss about the offer. A better counteroffer might motivate you to stay put. If none is offered, that might be a sign that the current employer doesn't value you as much as you thought.

When in doubt, aim high. If vou're pretty sure the new job offer is not for you, what's to lose? Swing for the fences and ask for a substantial increase in pay. The response might change your opinion about the offer.

Factor in moving expenses. If the new job is out of the area, make sure you can afford moving expenses. If the new employer isn't willing to help, this suggests the company is cheap, which means future raises will likely be less than satisfying.

Consider vacation time. If you leave a job where you have accrued three or four weeks vacation time per year, you could wind up back at one or two weeks off unless you can negotiate more time.

Remember quality of life. A better job may make you happier from 8 to 5, but if you have to move to a dirty, depressing city, your off-time could worsen.

More details on printing active screen

Q. Over the years, you have bailed me out several times on PC-related issues. A recent article, however, has caused me frustration (perhaps my ignorance).

You mentioned the Alt+Prt Scr (Windows) option that allows you to copy what's on the screen even if it is copyprotected. Maybe my mechanics are ill informed, but I cannot get this to work on my 2month-old powerful new Windows XP PC.

Can you help with the specific procedure?

Jerry Olexa

A. My, oh my, Mr. O, your note is among a bunch I got asking for more details of the screen capture routines in Windows and Mac after I mentioned it in that column.

To recap: I pointed out that all the efforts of Google and Amazon.com to defeat pirates by posting pictures of book pages instead of the real text can be thwarted. This can be done simply by calling up a page with copyrighted stuff on it and using the Windows and Mac operating systems' screen-capture features to make a snapshot of the text.

I'll focus on Windows more than Mac, but the situation is similar in both operating systems. In Windows, you can capture only the active display by pressing Alt and the Prt Scr key.

That key is stuff can be acquired. In either case, these moves create a file in the highly detailed BMP format, holding a pixel-bypixel version of the page at the precise time the keys were pressed. The BMP file is held in the computer's memory, so one needs to paste it into some kind of a program that accepts photos, like the Paint program in Windows or flavors of Photoshop.

So open a screen, and press Prt Scr plus Control or Alt and then get the Paint program by clicking on Start and Accessories. Open it and click on the Edit command next to File and then pick paste. A photo of the screen will appear in the form of a relatively large BMP.

To save the file on your own computer, just click on File and Save As. This will give a number of choices for formats including JPG, which most folks like because they are the default files for Web sites and they are compressed and made much smaller than BMPs without appreciable loss of quality. Macs prove more versatile because the screen captures are automatically saved as files in the PICT format — Apple's version of Microsoft's BMP. This file is created when one presses Command plus Shift plus 3. To save just the window you want, hold down Command plus Shift plus 4 plus caps lock. Now you can open any window and make a copy by holding down the Control key and clicking inside

A lot of folks like this feature because it can make screen captures of movies.

So let me anticipate a final bit of confusion and explain that Windows requires one to change the hardware video acceleration in the Media Player or else captures will be blank screens. With Media Player running, click on Tools and then Options and then Performance to make the Owner of company finds it difficult to lay off employees

BY MARGARITA BAUZA

Detroit Free Press (KRT)

In her 30 years as owner of the Royal Oak, Mich.-based Interior Systems Contract Group, Billie Jo Wanink says few things have robbed her of sleep. Having to let someone go was one of them.

"I don't think it ever gets any easier for anyone to let someone go," said Wanink, 60, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., who has shown people the door at least a dozen times throughout her career.

"It doesn't matter who it is. You know how it impacts them and their livelihood and their family situation. It's very, very difficult," she

From small firms to government offices, retailers, supervisors and business owners are telling employees that they must go.

From 2000 to March 2004, more than 2 million jobs have been lost nationwide. The manufacturing sector has been particularly hard

For the worker who's laid off, the trauma is understood — harsh and unpleasant, not unlike a death or divorce. A layoff can be financially crippling.

For those delivering the bad news, feelings are complex. Supervisors might feel relieved they're not losing their own job, but the feeling comes with a large dollop of survivor's guilt.

"It is a highly stressful thing for a manager," says Robin Bond, an outplacement attorney in Wayne, Pa., who has represented both employees and businesses in layoff situations.

"A lot of people in human resources often find they do not want to do their jobs anymore. They internalize this. They have to watch the unhappiness of others.

"You feel guilt and it's not that you've done anything wrong but you can feel like you have," she says. "You're wishing you could say or do something to make it better but you're woefully inadequate at making the person feel better about

"Because of his dedication to the company and his loyalty to me, it was a very difficult thing to do," she said. "It was very sad for me. He'd always been on time and went the extra mile, but as a small business you can't afford to hire someone new without letting anoth-

She tried to help him find another job, referring him to other companies they knew.

"He took it hard," she said. As the years went by, she began accept lay-offs and firings as an inevitable part of business. As she gained experience, she said she honed her skills.

"I learned early on that you can't go on explaining and explaining and explaining," she said. "You have to give the reason but that you can't be overly wordy about it."

She found that asking the person to leave right away worked best. His or her last paycheck should be in hand, along with any severance and any program to help transition into another job. Sticking around puts "a damper on the morale," she said. "People will talk amongst themselves about list of things to absolutely not say. "If it's done wrong, it can get really ugly," said Jim Mitchell, senior vice president at the outplacement firm Lee Hecht Harrison in Bingham Farms, Mich. The firm handles outplacement for automakers, suppliers, financial firms and food companies.

"They need to follow a script and follow it tightly," Mitchell says. "There shouldn't be any beat-

BE DISCREET. Try to schedule a conference room away from the regular place of business. When an employee is called and someone from Human Resources is there, everyone pays attention and the rumor mill starts. Get a private conference room so that if someone needs to cry, they can do it without other people overhearing.

MAKE IT QUICK. You don't want to leave doubt that a decision has been made. You're not there to negotiate. You're not there to talk about cause or blame. People want to have some sort of explanation as to why you picked them instead of someone else. If it's a layoff and not a firing based on performance, make sure you let them know that this is not about them. It's a business decision that they shouldn't interpret in any other way. Tell them that the decision's been made. If it's a firing based on performance, provide documenta-

KEEP YOUR COOL. Sometimes an employee will get angry. Don't react to that. USE THE GOLDEN RULE.

Ask yourself, "If I were sitting across the table, how would I want someone to communicate this?"

OUTLINE SUPPORT. If you're offering a severance package, tell them that you have put together a package that will lead them to the next opportunity. That will help the person feel supported immediately.

People usually react to the news in a variety of ways, including becoming angry, hostile, denying that it's happening, or trying to bargain their way out of it.

''This is not a time to be defensive or have a debate," Mitchell says. "Stay calm and factual about what the decision was based on. This is not a negotiation or a bargaining session. You need to communicate that the decision is final." There should be a balance of compassion and professionalism, Mitchell says.

Compassion makes the experience less painful for those learning

"At the time, you feel really devastated and hurt," says Treiber, who found a job a month later at Trinity Design in Farmington Hills, Mich.

The company sent an office manager and someone else she didn't know to deliver the news, she recalls.

"I didn't really know or work with them at all," she said.

And she still remembers the words that stung the most.

"Don't ever say 'This is hard for me, too," "she says. "I mean, I believed him but they are in a very different position. I'm a single person out of work wondering what I'm going to do. You own the company, you still go home with the same security. It's just an insensitive thing to say.'

Happy Holidays?!?

Midway through the fourth quarter, we're deep into a perilous time for U.S. workers: job-cutting sea-

For seven of the past nine years, American companies have announced more layoffs in the last three months of the year than during other periods, according to the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics. Almost a third of the workers cut are also released during this period.

How come? It's the season of charity, office parties and general goodwill, right? How quaint.

"That has changed since it's no longer a stigma for employees to be laid off, or for companies to make cutbacks," said Annie Stevens, a managing partner for ClearRock, a Boston-based executive and careerdevelopment enterprise. "For those organizations that need to, trimming their payrolls before the beginning of a new year to enable them to get a fresh start has become more commonplace.'

If you're nervous such might befall you, the company offers a

■ Examine the organization. What are the recent financial results and prospects? Is your department stumbling or facing weak business?

■ Look for subtle clues. Do people in other departments seem to know more about what's happening? Have you stopped being invited to certain meetings, or consulted on some projects? Have you been advised not to join new industry groups or delay travel?

■ Don't ignore the obvious. If you feel you might be "downsized" soon, brace for it. Warn your family; keep your holiday spending sane.

■ Request all you're entitled to. Study the severance policy, and various formulas in it many companies have. Also, take job counseling if it's offered and request some if it's not.

Salary talks

The interview went well, and you got the offer. Nice, but now comes the tricky part, that fun little skirmish known as the salary negotiation.

If you feel the money you're offered is too low, it probably is, according to a salary survey of hiring managers. Most companies leave themselves some room to maneuver i.e., come up closer to your liking — when they make an initial offer. That's the word from a query of 875 hiring managers surveyed by CareerBuilder.com, a Chicago-based iob-search site owned by three major newspaper publishers.

Nearly 60 percent of the man agers said they're willing to extend a new offer if a candidate requests more money. But only about 10 percent said they'll do so twice. About an equal percentage — low, but still telling — admitted that they think less of a candidate who accepts the first offer.

Homeland security

Since a natural disaster can strike anywhere, this month's issue of Consumer Reports' On Health newsletter suggests a few actions you'd be wise to take at home. ■ Maintain smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors. These low-cost devices also can lower insurance costs in many cases. ■ Teach all family members how to switch off water, gas and electricity at your home. This can be a vital measure after an earthquake or tornado strikes.

■ Choose a place outside your neighborhood or general area where your family would convene if separated and you can't go home. Also, arrange for a friend in another state to be your emergency contact, since it's often easier to call long distance than locally in a disaster.

■ Take a CPR course.

■ Consider neighbors, especially those who are disabled or seniors, who might have difficulty evacuating.

Verizon puts entrepreneur on display — literally

BY AKWELI PARKER Knight Ridder Newspapers

You might not peg Addye Joy Durant as the shy type, given that she's been living for the past three weeks inside a South Street storefront.

But the introverted graphic artist said she was willing to do what it took to position her small business — Joyfantastic Design — for growth.

ing call from dozens of entrepreneurs vying to participate in "Dream254: The Verizon Incubator." Her stint in the incubator ended Durant, 35, was selected in a cast-last week, with a party and exhibit of some of her works. The incubator is part marketing stunt, part reality show and part business school boot camp, dreamed up by Chicago ad agency Burrell Communications Group LLC on behalf of Verizon Communications Inc. The company sees it as a novel way to reach consumers who might become customers, especially African Americans. For her participation, Durant will receive $10,000, technology equipment and consulting services for her business.

The project's name is a play on the address of the incubator, 254 South St. The storefront consists of a huge. decorated show window in which Durant was often seen — either from the street or on the Web - going about business-related tasks. Out of view was a cramped control room full of monitors and computer equipment to operate the three cameras that captured Durant and the reactions of onlookers outside.

"I am very shy, but I'm separated from people," Durant said of her stay in the show window. She waved back, though, when she made eye contact with spectators, she said. Visible in the display window were several T-shirts she had designed with funky motifs. During the 21 days, from 1,500 to 2,000 people a day stopped by to check her out, according to Elena Robinson, Burrell's executive producer for the project.

Durant did have private sleeping quarters and a private bathroom. The incubator's motive stems from the fact that African Americans own home-based businesses at a higher rate than the general population. Some are official, registered businesses but many are side endeavors in lieu of, or in addition to, work at a corporation. But all are potential users of Verizon's telephone and Internet services.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, there were 1.2 million blackowned businesses in 2002, up 45 percent from 1997. The overall number of U.S. businesses in the same span grew just 10 percent, to 23 million.

Addye Joy Durant looks out a glass storefront in Philadelphia, where she has lived for the past three weeks. Durant, 35, was selected in a casting call from dozens of entrepreneurs to participate in "Dream254: The Verizon Incubator." Part marketing stunt, part reality show and part business school boot camp, the high-visibility digs are part of a Verizon campaign to sell Internet service to black entrepreneurs.

GPS researchers try to zero in on pinpoint accuracy

Center hopes to reach goal within next twenty years

BY DEAN TAKAHASHI

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Ancient navigators once looked to the stars to find out where they were. Today, people are still looking to the skies for the same purpose, but they're getting the information from satellites, not

A group of Stanford University academics wants to make such navigation so accurate that it could tell whether you are in your car or standing next to it.

Since the government first launched a satellite navigation system known as the global positioning system in 1978, the system's ability to pinpoint the location of an object has steadily improved.

GPS receivers used to be bigger than a brick a decade ago and were accurate to within about 100 meters. Today a handheld $100 GPS receiver can fix a point on the ground within five or 10 meters, while more expensive military systems can zero in on the receiver within 5 meters or less.

But the GPS system doesn't get much better than that, and it doesn't work indoors or in deep urban canyons where a target object isn't within the line of sight of two or more satellite. And it isn't that hard to jam GPS signals.

Such a system isn't good enough for James Spilker and Per Enge, who are among the founders of the Stanford Center for Position, Navigation and Time. Spilker, a founder of navigation chip start-up Rosum and one of the creators of GPS, believes satellite navigation is just in its infancy.

Technologies are coming to the forefront that will impact billions of people and millions of businesses,' Spilker said. "Our humble goal is to create the top-ranked university center in the world for this realm of technology.'

The interdisciplinary research center wants to create a navigation system capable of locating objects within one centimeter, or less than half an inch. The center hopes to achieve that goal within the next

It already has a lot of ideas on how to make navigation systems much more accurate, said Enge, the center's research director and professor of aeronautics and astronautics.

"There are a lot of exciting pieces that we're putting together," Enge said. "We want to make the system bulletproof."

Already, GPS navigation is being built into cars and cell phones to enable people to figure out where they can find the nearest restaurants or locate someone in need of 911 assistance. Tens of millions of people track their locations today. The business-consulting firm Frost & Sullivan estimates that the market for GPS equipment sales could hit $10 billion by 2010, with consumers accounting for much of those sales.

The Stanford center has federal funding and is raising more money from commercial industry partners who could participate in the research effort. Matt Rabinowitz, chief technology officer at GPS-TV chip maker Rosum in Redwood City, Calif., said the goal of centimeter accuracy is extremely hard to nail down in environments that aren't traditionally friendly to GPS or sensors. "If anyone can do it, it's the guys chip-design company, will probably join the effort.

'It's important to look ahead to the future while you're solving the problems of today," said Kanwar Chadha, founder of Sirf. "If they can get to centimeter accuracy in the open, then it means that in a difficult environment, they could maybe have a meter or so accuracy. And for a lot of consumer applications, that's going to be enough. If they can work to make it instantaneously, then that is also going to be very important."

Better satellite-based navigation technology is just one element of a system that could deliver pinpoint accuracy. Other elements come from a variety of disciplines and include inertial navigation, which is based on work by Stanford physicist Mark Kasevich. These sensors could be embedded in GPS receivers and detect tiny movements, broadcasting information about the object's location even when out of satellite detection.

Tom Kenny, a professor of mechanical engineering, also is working on silicon oscillators that could improve the reliability of a GPS device. And electrical engineering professors Umran Inan and Arogyaswami Paulraj are trying to create much smarter antennas to improve GPS reception in a variety of hard-to-locate places. even in the presence of jamming Spilker hopes that the system could be extended so it works both underwater and underground.

If they can pull it off, the technology could bring about some astounding advances with commercial and military applications. With centimeter accuracy, bombs and missiles will almost never miss. Aircraft could land on carriers without the need for a pilot's steady hand.

The task of finding land mines could become much easier as a metal detector could not only find a metal object accurately, but determine its shape underneath the ground so it can be safely tracked and removed. Enge believes the military could create a small robot helicopter with a one-yard rotor span that could fly over unexploded mines and map them for soldiers to see.

On the commercial front, Enge believes that something called "geoencryption" could become a reality. That's where someone logging into a computer would have to prove their location in order to access a computer. If someone logs in from the wrong location, a security alert could be sent.

Indoors, a better navigational system could sense and locate Alzheimer's patients inside their homes and track their movements. If the patients do something out of character, like failing to answer the telephone or move from one spot for hours at a time, the system could send an alert to caregivers.

Katherine Albrecht, a privacy activist and founder of the antitracking group Caspian, says the center should also study the social implications of tracking technology.

'I would hate the idea of this being built into every Timex watch, and then they consider the implications for privacy," Albrecht said. "These applications have benign uses, but the same technologies can be used for sinister purposes. It would be fabulous if you could turn altogether vanishes.

Trailblazer puts the 'sport' in SUV

BY MALCOLM GUNN Wheelbase Communications

A sport-utility vehicle that actually lives up to the "sport" portion of its billing seems like a novel concept. But the 2006 Trailblazer SS gets top marks for its ability to run and play hard while staying out of harm's way when the road turns sloppy or

In reality, not many buyers of this particular version of the Trailblazer will be out soiling their fancy alloy wheels by dipping them into some nether-region bog or basin. Nope, the SS is more about driving this hairy-chested wagon around the town and out on the open road.

The Trailblazer is part of a growing list of Chevrolet products to receive the SS (Super Sport) handle that was first used to denote a high-performance option package on the 1961 Impala. For 2006, SS badges adorn no fewer than seven different Chevy models from the compact Cobalt coupe to the road-ripping SSR pickup.

The Trailblazer SS, the first modern high-performance sport-utility vehicle from General Motors, has

The Trailblazer SS has all the style and potency it needs to turn heads as well as turn in impressive performance stats, but it can also work hard when called upon. Aside from its substantial cargo-toting capacity, the tow rating for the two-wheel-drive SS is 6,700 pounds, while the all-wheel-drive version can handle 6,500 pounds.

model-specific front and rear fascias, a black mesh grille, blacked-out pillars, body-colored mirrors and

door handles, 20-inch wheels, tinted Trailblazer tidbits: bright moldings; roof rack; body trim; and a third-row seat. Stripped of all superfluous extras, the Trailblazer SS exudes a lean and mean attitude.

The theme also carries over to its stance. The coil springs fitted to the SS are 25-percent stiffer than those found on regular Trailblazers and lower the ride height by one inch. Thicker anti-sway bars add more cornering control.

Rather than a mere list of hot parts, the SS suspension package was track tested and fine-tuned on Germany's 12.5-mile Nurburgring racing circuit, which is also used by a number of other high-performance automakers.

The SS style carries over on the inside with a unique instrument cluster and special "SS" seats with suede inserts.

Under the hood is where the real fun begins, however. There you'll find a 6.0-liter LS2 V8 similar to the one used in the Corvette, SSR pickup and the Pontiac GTO. Output is rated at 395 horsepower and 400 lb.-ft. of torque, enough grunt, according to Chevrolet, to launch this 4,550-pound super-rig to 60 m.p.h. in a mere 5.7 seconds, about

Chrysler deal accents free fuel and maintenance

BY SARAH A. WEBSTER AND MARK PHELAN

Detroit Free Press (KRT)

LAS VEGAS — After General Motors Corp. launched its yearend red tag sale and Ford Motor Co. announced its Keep it Simple program this week, Chrysler Group came to the showroom Thursday with a cleverly wrapped deal of its own:

Two years of free gasoline and scheduled maintenance.

Chrysler's new Miles of Freedom deal, which runs from Monday through Jan. 2, also will include a five-year warranty on most of its vehicles.

Buyers will get a $2,400 debit card under the program, which they can use for gasoline or any other purchase at qualifying retail-

Chrysler set the card's value by multiplying a gasoline price of $2.15 a gallon by 24,000 miles of

The deal applies to all Chrysler, Dodge and Jeep vehicles except the Dodge Viper, Magnum, Charger, Sprinter, Chrysler 300 and the group's high-performance SRT8

The deal is available as an alternative to Chrysler's existing cash offers, which run as high as $7,000 on a Dodge Durango

According to Chrysler's research, 71 percent of customers said the offer makes them want to buy a Chrysler, Dodge or Jeep vehicle, said Julie Roehm, director of marketing communications for Chrysler, Dodge and Jeep.

"It reduces the unknowns, the cost of gas and maintenance," Roehm said.

Chrysler's latest program seems to piggyback on efforts by Mitsubishi, which started a Gas Comes Standard promotion in September, and General $500 gas card in October.

ager of River Oaks Chrysler Jeep in Houston, said the new deal is far more appealing than the ones being offered by GM and Ford: 'This blows 'em away."

GM, Ford and Chrysler are all boasting about how simple their new programs are for consumers. But none of the programs are meant to be haggle-free, where everyone pays the same price.

Jim Sanfilippo, an industry analyst with Automotive Marketing Consultants Inc., said that is what consumers really want.

They want "a transparent price," he said. Incentives on cars and trucks, it seems, were actually simpler a short time ago: They were all about the cash, the no-interest financing and who was offering the most of it.

But the expensive game of oneupmanship, which GM started after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks Alan Helfman, general man- end of 2004. That's when the some vehicles and down on othrebates crossed the $7,000 mark on new trucks and SUVS.

> While that ballooning amount was eating into profits, it was also about enough to cover the cost of a compact car.

Some clever dealers started giving away the Chevy Aveo and Ford Focus with the purchase of a new truck. Unprepared to start giving away their cars for free, automakers rushed back to the drawing board.

Since then, auto incentives have become all about the packaging. But consumers will have to closely inspect the details of these new deals to see whether they are getting a better deal on their new vehicle or a smaller deal cleverly wrapped in a more appealing package.

That's because the marketplace has become increasingly confusing, despite the seemingly ers. And, overall, the amount automakers actually discount their vehicles has been shrinking.

The average incentive, which includes cash-back rebates, special interest rates and other discounts, fell 4.1 percent for the first 10 months of the year, to an average of $2,870, according to Autodata Corp. of Woodcliff Lake, N.J. Last year, automakers gave consumers about $2,992 off their new cars and trucks.

Automakers do not publicly release how much they spend on incentives. So a few automotive intelligence firms, such as Autodata, release their best estimates.

Domestic automakers are cutting their deals the fastest, according to Autodata.

GM and Ford have both said their latest sale prices are not as good as the deals on older-model vehicles over the summer, when the automakers were offering employee pricing programs.

Mitsubishi starts to see the daylight

BY JIM MATEJA Chicago Tribune (KRT)

It will take time to heal, warns Rich Gilligan, president and chief executive of Mitsubishi, which only a year ago was considered on life support as sales tanked, losses skyrocketed and its then equity partner DaimlerChrysler

Pierre Gagnon, who became president and chief executive officer of Mitsubishi in July 2002, was dismissed in September 2003. Finbarr O'Neill held the helm until he resigned in January of this year, leaving Gilligan to try to revive Mitsubishi, which has its U.S. plant in Normal, Ill.

"We're rebuilding model by model, and that's not a short-term exercise," Gilligan said in an interview during the Specialty Equipment Market Association show here. "It will take two years from the time we have all our new models in place.'

The Eclipse coupe and Raider truck are out for 2006; an Outlander and Lancer for '07 and a Lancer Evolution for '08. Eclipse is off to a fast start. Through October, its sales have risen to 17,160 units from 10,047 a year earlier.

"I expect Mitsubishi to be profitable by the end of fiscal 2006, which ends in March of 2007," Gilligan said. "And the recovery will be dictated by vehicle sales."

Jim Hossack, vice president of industry analyst AutoPacific Inc., is more cautious: They're making progress, just not much, because Mitsubishi is financially extended worldwide and only has one plant in the U.S."

He pointed out that the Normal plant is represented by the United Auto Workers so the cost to run it is more than plants at Toyota, Honda or Nissan, which are nonunion shops. "If GM and Ford get concessions from the UAW maybe Mitsubishi will, too, and it would help cut costs and maybe that's what Gilligan is counting on," he added. "These are difficult times to be profitable," agreed Dave Cole, president of the Center for Automotive Research. "The uncertainty is that the market is soft now. We don't know how long that will continue or whether it's a short-term aberration because inventories are low.' Cole calls the Eclipse and Raider nice new products, but that may not be enough in a time when all automakers have nice new prod-

It helps that Mitsubishi's reputation for quality has improved.

"It's not at the level of a Toyota, Honda or Nissan, but it's not a problem — good, but not sterling," said Hossack.

"All of our consumer surveys say that Mitsubishi quality has improved and that (buyers) are happier with the quality now than they were three years ago," said Art Spinella, of CNW Marketing Research.

So the problem that still haunts Mitsubishi is being a low-volume producer.

"It's tough for a low-volume company to be profitable," Cole said. "Volume is still important because you can spread your costs over a greater number of vehicles."

The Pontiac Grand Am was, for years, one of the best-selling cars in America, but for reasons known only to General Motors executives, they decided to change the name to G6 when it was time to replace the Grand Am last year. Likely there's a good reason for throwing away the millions they spent on Grand Am's brand-name recognition during the past couple of decades, but I haven't heard it. So we get the G6, known primarily as the "Oprah car," as that's how it debuted, as a giveaway to audience members for Oprah Winfrey's TV show.

The G6 launch went reasonably well, but Pontiac had only the four-door sedan model to sell: Now comes a two-door coupe, to eventually be followed by a neat convertible with a retractable hardtop, if Pontiac can work out the bugs in its complex roof design.

If the G6 sedan is reasonably attractive, the G6 coupe is downright handsome, with a mild resemblance to the Honda Accord coupe. Although the G6 sedan is offered in base, midlevel GT and upscale GTP trim, the coupe comes only as a GT or GTP, the main difference being the engine — the GT has a 3.5-liter, 201horsepower V-6 and the GTP has a 3.9-liter, 240horsepower V-6.

The test car was the GTP, with a six-speed manual transmission instead of a four-speed

Typically, I like manual transmissions on sporty cars, but not this one: The clutch and shifter felt disappointingly trucklike, not much

I think this engine would work well with an automatic, even a four-speed, as GM continues to lag behind in the march toward five-, six- and even seven-speed automatics.

Chevy adds more va-va voom to its 2006 Impala line

Cars get upscale interiors and bigger engines

Chevrolet dressed up and powered up its most popular car this year, giving the Impala line more upscale interiors, improved convenience features and mightier engines.

Best of all, pricing for some models is decreased, and there are more Impala versions offered, including the V8-powered, top-of-the-line SS.

The base 2006 Impala sedan with 3.5-liter V6 has a starting manufacturer's suggested retail price, including destination charge, of $21,990, a full $1,020 less than the $23,010 cost of a 2005 base with V6.

Ranked as a large car by the Environmental Protection Agency but often cross-shopped with mid-size sedans by consumers, the Impala competes in the family sedan category. Among its competitors are cars classified as large: the 2006 Chrysler 300, which starts at $24,200 with V6, and the 2006 Hyundai Sonata, which starts at $18,495 for a four-cylinder model and $21,495 for a V6 model.

Compared with just three trim levels last year and only V6 engines, this year's Impala comes in four grades — LS, LT, LTZ and SS — and has the new, 303-horsepower V8.

Too bad, though, that despite new headlamps and taillamps and some mild restyling, the Impala is rather bland on the outside and is certainly nothing like the expressive Chrysler 300. This dullness extends even to the 2006 Impala SS which, among other things, wears a rear spoiler and 18inch wheels and tires.

Indeed, some consumers who were able to immediately recognize earlier Impalas because of their four prominent, round taillights now will find its rear appearance less distinctive and more like that of a mainstream sedan from a Japanbased carmaker.

The interior, however, impress-arrangement from a new generation of components now going into many vehicles from Chevrolet parent company General Motors Corp. A low cowl means even a 5-foot-4 driver like me can see easily over the Impala dashboard and onto the hood.

Dashboard materials in the test car had an upscale look compared with earlier Impalas. Yes, the dashboard is covered by plastic, but the plastic has a pleasing feel, and the grain of the plastic and the lack of a cheap-looking sheen make for an attractive appearance.

The thick front seats — with optional leather in the tester — were mostly comfortable, though I wished for some contouring on the flat driver seat cushion to help me stay in place behind the wheel of the SS. I also wished that the carpeted coverup of the support or brace bar behind the driver seat in the tester was more professionally finished. As it was, the fabric was puckered and pulled awkwardly and was the first thing I noticed as I settled into the back

The three back-seat head restraints are fixed in place, so they don't get in the way when someone puts the seatbacks down to extend long cargo from the trunk. In addition, these fixed rear head restraints appeared to be large enough to catch and hold my head if there's a crash.

The SS is a five-seat car, though other Impalas offer five or six seats. Even the middle person in back gets a shoulder belt.

This year for the first time, all Impalas come standard with curtain airbags.

But stability control — which is standard on every Sonata — isn't offered on the Impala. Even antilock brakes, which also are standard on the Sonata, are an option on the base Impala.

The 5.3-liter V8 in the tester provided ample power for passing or just cruising with ease. I enjoyed the strong, deep engine sounds that came each time I pressed the accelerator, and on occasion, I squealed the SS tires at startup. Peak torque is 323 foot-pounds at 4,400 rpm.

This power brought on a bit of torque steer in this front-drive car a couple times. Torque steer is the jerking of the steering wheel to one side or the other as strong power is delivered to the front wheels at start-

The V8 in the SS includes Displacement on Demand technology that automatically shuts down four of the engine's eight cylinders in certain situations when full power isn't needed. This can occur when the

Nor is the driver likely to notice when the engine automatically returns to full V8 operation.

Chevy officials said this on-andoff system can help give the Impala SS an 8 percent fuel economy improvement over what it would have had without DOD. For the record, the Environmental

The Impala's new six-cylinder powerplants also are competitive in fuel economy.

The base, 211-horsepower, 3.5liter V6 earns a rating of 21/31 mpg, which is third best in the EPA's category of large cars with sixcylinder engines.

This engine produces up to 214 foot-pounds of torque at 4,000 rpm.

Interest in hybrid cars grows in the U.S.

BY ANJALI ATHAVALEY Knight Ridder Newspapers

tephen Uhlhorn and his wife, Carolyn Quinn, snagged their new ride rather spontaneously. A few months ago, the Coconut Grove, Fla., couple saw a Toyota Prius speed past a Publix supermarket where they were shopping. Intrigued, they decided to check out the hybrid at a Kendall, Fla., dealership and bought one in blue that same day.

The motive for their $23,000 impulse buy, Uhlhorn said, was high gas prices. Quinn commutes 80 miles one way to work in West Palm Beach, Fla. The Prius, which runs both on a gas engine and an electric motor, generally gets better gas mileage than a traditional car.

Drivers who would otherwise stick to basic sedans or gas-guzzling SUVs are slowly turning their heads to hybrids, lured by the idea of fewer and cheaper trips to the pump.

The summer's gas price spike has made people more willing to pay hefty premiums for the cars - especially after Hurricane Katrina disrupted the fuel supply and briefly drove the price for regular gasoline to more than $3 a gallon in early September.

With automakers unveiling new models of hybrids and more customers intrigued by them, U.S. sales have more than doubled this year: 157,813 hybrids were sold through October compared with 64,014 hybrids during the same period last year.

"Fuel economy is the biggest issue that drives people to hybrids," said Mike Chung, an analyst with consumer automotive Web site Edmunds.com. "Three dollars has been the magic price point.'

Florida ranks as the nation's second-largest market for hybrids, next to California. The state has registered 14,587 new hybrid vehicles from January to August, compared with just 2,057 for the same period last year, according to R.L. Polk & Co., a Michigan-based operation that tracks industry data.

Interest in hybrids is growing amid a general auto slump, with the industry recording its worst October for U.S. sales in 13 years.

Hybrids, which debuted in the United States in 1999, still compose a tiny portion of auto sales and will remain a niche for the foreseeable future. Hybrids amounted to 1.7 percent of the market share in October and will likely double to 3 or 4 percent in the next five years, according to Chung. By contrast, SUVs – which include a few hybrid models — claim 22 percent of the mar-

Hybrid technology has won kudos from buyers like Uhlhorn, who says he finds the on-screen miles per gallon gauge on his dashboard hypnotic.

'It's kind of a game, how many miles per gallon you can get," he said, eyeing the gauge as he drove.

"When it's always in your face, it's always on your mind," he said. He usually gets about 45 miles to the gallon.

The appetite for hybrids tends to fluctuate with prices at the pump, according to studies by CNW Marketing Research, a Bandon, Ore.-based firm that tracks the industry.

With South Florida still grappling with the effects of Wilma, prices in Miami-Dade and Broward are above national averages. And the long gas lines after the hurricane could make some people think harder about a fuelefficient car.

"South Florida, like the nation, is going to be reactive to the price of fuel," said Rick Baker, executive vice president of the South Florida Auto-Trucks Dealers Association. "This society likes big vehicles, but they don't want to put $60 of gas in them.'

In reality, however, the savings at the pump don't cover the hybrid's higher price — at least not in the first five years. Hybrids cost about $3,000 to $5,000 more than gas-only cars, Chung said. And an average driver, who racks up 12,000 to 15,000 miles a year, saves only $500 to $600 per year on fuel.

But beyond fuel prices, buyers are drawn to hybrids by "the green factor," Chung said. A fuelefficient hybrid like the Prius or the Honda Civic produces fewer emissions than a similar gas-only "A lot of people think that's worth the premium they are paying," Chung said.

Many dealerships have waiting lists stretching one to two months for hybrid models. At Maroone Toyota in Weston, Fla., customers Robby Greenberg, of Pembroke Pines, Fla., plans on doing exactly that. She started leasing a Prius five years ago and bought one three years later.

"I didn't just do it for the gas mileage," she said. "I also did it for the environment."

In December, when she attends a folk music concert at a friend's place, Greenberg, the concert performers, and three other hybrid enthusiasts will park their five Priuses in front of the house.

The hybrid, she says, has people talking. "I have been stopped by so many people wanting to know about the car," Greenberg

Jan. 1 will bring a perk: Buyers of new hybrids can claim federal tax credits. The credits are worth up to $3,400 per vehicle, according to a study by the American Council for an Energy Efficient Economy, a nonprofit group in Washington, D.C.

Manufacturers have caught on to the hybrid's popularity. Toyota, an early adopter of the part-gas, part-electric model, has set a goal of selling over a million hybrids per year by early next decade. Ford said in September that it plans to up its production tenfold to 250,000 per year by 2010.

General Motors and Daimler-Chrysler, both considered latecomers to the game, joined forces last year to develop hybrid technology.

Uhlhorn still isn't sure what he'll be looking for on his next trip to the dealership. He may shop for a roomier vehicle, if he and his wife have kids, he said.

"It depends when we are in the market for another car," Uhlhorn

Greenberg, one of the niche buyers who first got hooked in 2000, is more of a loyalist. "I love it," she said. "I will never have anything but a hybrid."

AUTOMOTIVE Q&A

BY BRAD BERGHOLDT Knight Ridder Newspapers

Q. My 1997 Volvo 850 is due for registration renewal and a smog check is required. So I took my car in to have it smogged, and when they hooked up the OBD-II computer, everything came up as "Not Ready," so the smog check could not be done.

I took my car back to my dealer where it was last serviced a little more than a month ago and asked them why the OBD-II came up as "Not Ready." They said that during routine maintenance, they reset the system, and it could take up to three months before the system becomes "Ready" again.

Well, I yelled at the service adviser about why he didn't warn me when I took the car in for service that it might not pass smog for up to three months after the service. I was told, "We don't warn our customers. It is not our problem that you need a smog check. It is the DMV's fault for requiring smog checks.'

I don't think I will ever buy a Volvo again from this dealer in the future because they certainly don't care about their customers.

Well, now what can I do? My registration renewal is coming up, and I don't have three months to get the OBD-II to a "Ready" state to pass smog check. I called DMV and they said there is nothing they can do, either. Please help.

— Dan Lau, Cupertino, Calif.

A. Let me start with strong criticism of the service adviser's callous attitude. He and his boss need to read Carl Sewell's "Customers for Life," and realize how many hundreds of thousands of dollars in potential revenue he cost his dealership by needlessly alienating a valued customer. Sewell's customer satisfaction philosophy transformed a money-losing dealership into the most successful luxury automobile business in the country.

Many state smog check programs now include a scan of a 1996 and newer vehicle's powertrain control computer for system readiness (of a dozen or so self-tests known as monitors), in addition to a visual and tailpipe inspection. A comprehensive series of component and system tests is attempted each time the vehicle is driven, following a cold start. Monitor status is held in memory, and is swept clean if the battery is disconnected or when diagnostic trouble codes are cleared, such as a part of a check-engine light related repair.

Some monitors can be devilishly difficult to complete, as the required driving sequence can differ from the vehicle owner's daily routine, and your Volvo model is known for monitor stubbornness. In addition, some vehicles might forget monitor information, such as the previous-year Volvo 850 Turbo.

I'm at a loss as to why the dealer tech would clear your car's monitor status during routine service, unless a system fault was corrected in conjunction with the maintenance work. Also, as a courtesy to customers, an information sheet about system readiness monitors and the sequence of needed driving to reset them could be given to the vehicle owner to avoid needless diffi-Here's your solution: Con-

Delphi strike could exhaust GM reserves, analysts say

BY JASON ROBERSON Detroit Free Press (KRT)

DETROIT — If Delphi Corp.'s unionized workers go on strike, not only would General Motors Corp.'s plants start slowing down in just 48 hours, but the giant automaker could see one of its biggest assets, its stockpile of cash, rapidly dwindle, industry experts say.

Industry observer David Cole. chairman of the Center for Automotive Research in Ann Arbor, Mich., says GM, which uses Delphi components on all its vehicles, would see plant disruption within two days of a strike by unions representing the nation's largest auto-parts supplier.

And if a strike drags out three months or more, GM could burn through most of its $19 billion in cash, increasing the risk the automaker would go bankrupt, says Rod Lache, who studies GM for investors at Deutsche Bank Securities Inc.

GM Chief Executive Officer Rick Wagoner, fed up with such dire predictions, sent an e-mail to employees Wednesday vehemently denying that a bankruptcy filing is on the table. 'We're going through a rough patch of road these days, and it's attracting a lot of opinions about our company and its future. ... I'd like to just set the record straight here and now: There is absolutely no plan, strategy or intention for GM to file for bankruptcy," Wagoner wrote.

Such a scenario, however unlikely, would be a major blow for the U.S. auto industry and for Michigan. GM employs 142,000 people in the United States and spends $85 billion annually on parts and services from more than 3,000 suppliers.

GM needs Delphi to successfully launch its new line of trucks that are due at the beginning of the year, says Erich Merkle, auto analyst for IRN Inc. in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Merkle said Thursday he was surprised by GM's newest incentive program, its red tag sale. "Why not just let the inventory build if you need them?"

Delphi, which filed for bankruptcy Oct. 8, submitted a final proposal on wage and benefit cuts to workers Tuesday. It proposed paying hourly unskilled wages between $10 and $12.50 for its 34,000 U.S.

hourly workers. That's a 63 percent reduction from current average wages of $25 to $27 an hour.

The possibility of a Delphi strike grew Wednesday after UAW President Ron Gettelfinger said in a news conference that the union would "keep our options open" in deciding whether to strike.

UAW Vice President Richard Shoemaker said Wednesday that Delphi's proposal "was not designed for an agreement. It is a road map for confrontation."

A three-month strike would use up about $13 billion of GM's cash, Deutsche Bank's Lache wrote in a report this week. GM reported $19.2 billion in cash, marketable securities and money available from a retiree health care fund at the end of September. Three months earlier, GM had $20.2 billion. Other analysts had similar pre-

A three-month UAW strike at Delphi could bankrupt GM, Sanford C. Bernstein analyst Brian Johnson wrote in a report Wednesday.

"The fight between Delphi and the union is scaring people about a strike shutting down GM," Burnham Securities Inc. analyst David Healy said in an interview with Bloomberg News.

"It's become a high-stakes game of poker," said Merkle of IRN. "There's a lot riding on it. If the UAW decides to strike, it could shut down GM if the strike goes on long enough."

DaimlerChrysler to decide on Smart cars for the U.S. within six months

BY MARK PHELAN Detroit Free Press (KRT)

LAS VEGAS — DaimlerChrysler AG will decide within six months whether to sell its quirky line of Smart minicars in the United States, incoming chief executive officer Dieter Zetsche said in an interview Thursday.

At the same time, he said, DCX is talking to other automakers about teaming up to develop and build a new B-class car — smaller than the Dodge Neon but bigger than the Smart — for sale in the United States. The next generation of Smart's tiny Fortwo model has been engineered to meet all U.S. safety and environmental standards, he said. Now the company must figure out if it could make money on the little cars in the United States. The Fortwo was developed for chic buyers living in the congested centers of European cities like Munich, Germany; Rome and Paris. The new Fortwo should go on sale in Europe in 2007. Zetsche, speaking the morning after Chrysler Group's North American dealers gave him an adoring send-off at their annual meeting, credited his promotion to head of the Mercedes-Benz car group to the team effort by those dealers and Chrysler's employees in the five years since he took over the Auburn Hills, Mich., headquarters of Chrysler Group before Thanksgiving 2000.

"I will stay involved with Chrysler," he told the dealers at an elaborate show that included gymnastics by the Cirque du Soleil theater group and a skit in which tuxedo-clad Chrysler executives equipped him for the challenges of his new job with gadgets borrowed from James Bond movies.

Zetsche's appearance concluded with a surprise visit by Bond film star Sean Connery, who looked askance at the lanky, mustachioed German wearing the jetpack to escape hostile meetings.

"Who the hell are you?" the Scottish actor asked. "And why are you wearing all my stuff?

Zetsche's next mission includes ending Smart's history of billiondollar losses and fixing Mercedes-Benz's quality problems.

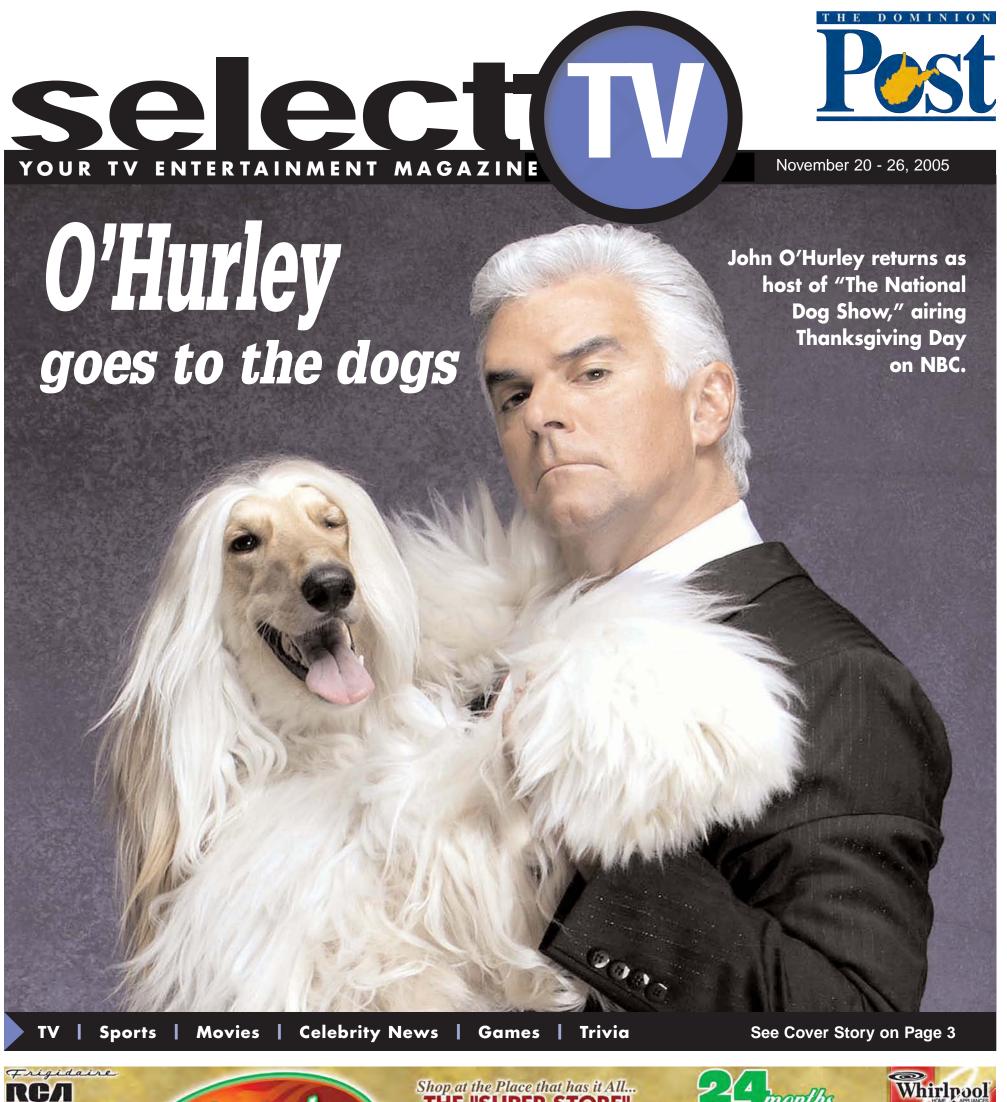

In addition to running the Mercedes car group, which includes Smart and the Maybach ultraluxury brand, Zetsche becomes CEO of DaimlerChrysler on Jan. 1.

'Mercedes-Benz is the strongest brand" in the auto industry, he said. "Its quality is coming back, though it's not quite where our customers need it to be.'

The brand's quality processes had not kept pace with the increased use of electronic systems, shorter development times for vehicles and the growth of its model line to include many new vehicles, he said.

Mercedes also needs to become more productive, he said. The automaker wants to shed 8,500 jobs in Germany, and if it does not, the company's contract with its German union will allow it to reduce hours and pay to its workers, he

"WAR OF THE WORLDS"

The H.G. Wells classic about an alien invasion of Earth gets an overhaul in this genuinely chilling update, directed by Steven Spielberg and starring Tom Cruise as a less-than-reliable dad. His parenting skills improve radically as he tries to save his children (Dakota Fanning, Justin Chatwin) and himself from lethal intruders that emerge from beneath the earth to wreak havoc. Tim Robbins does notable supporting work. $\star\star\star$ (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"THE POLAR EXPRESS"

An animated movie unlike any other, director Robert Zemeckis' interpretation of Chris Van Allsburg's holiday story features Tom Hanks in multiple roles through a technique dubbed "motion capture," which creates a pseudo-real look. Hanks is most recognizable as the conductor of a train that takes a youngster on a wild ride to the North Pole. Also in the voice cast is Peter Scolari.  (PG: V)

"SEINFELD: SEASONS FIVE AND SIX"

Expect much more ado about "nothing" as two more volumes of Jerry Seinfeld's sitcom make their way to video. Included is one of the show's most famous episodes, Jerry's appearance on "Today" in a "puffy" shirt (a replica of which is included in a gift set that contains both seasons). Also covered is George's (Jason Alexander) hiring by a neverseen George Steinbrenner, and Elaine's (Julia Louis-Dreyfus) whopper of a confession about private moments she used to have with Jerry. Michael Richards stars as Kramer. ***
(Not rated: AS, P)

"THE BEST AND WORST OF AMERICAN IDOL, SEASONS 1-4"

The popular Fox talent contest yields two video volumes, available separately or in a set, that capture the high and low points of the show's four years to date. Among the highest are the victories by the "Idol" winners to date: Kelly Clarkson, Ruben Studdard, Fantasia Barrino and Carrie Underwood. The lowest can be indicated by another name ... William Hung. Judges Paula Abdul, Simon Cowell and Randy Jackson appear. ★★★ (Not

"LEAVE IT TO BEAVER: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON"

'Gee, Wally! We're on DVD now!" One of television's most beloved sitcoms makes its debut on disc, with Jerry Mathers and Tony Dow as the Cleaver brothers, and Hugh Beaumont and Barbara Billingsley as their 1950s-ideal parents. Added fun comes from supporting characters such as Eddie Haskell (Ken Osmond) and Lumpy Rutherford (Frank Bank).  (Not rated) urkey Day is also TV Day for a lot of people, as they fit in tube time around making the stuffing and wrapping the leftovers. It's also a touchstone of sorts for actor John O'Hurley, who's had a busy year since he was host of "The National Dog Show" last Thanksgiving Day on NBC. But first, here's a look at what else is airing on Thursday:

Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade (NBC): Airing just before "The National Dog Show," the 78th anniversary of the festive fixture that traditionally rings in the holiday season features marching bands, floats, performances by music and Broadway stars and of course, those huge floating balloons. LeAnn Rimes joins Mickey Mouse and other Disney icons aboard the S.S. Celebration showboat float.

The Man Who Saved Christmas" (CBS): Getting the jump on holiday movies, this 2002 film stars Jason Alexander, Ed Asner and Kelly Rowan in the true story of inventor and toymaker A.C. Gilbert. "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving" (ABC): This 1973 animated special finds the luckless Charlie Brown and Peanuts gang trying to whip up a memorable Thanksgiving, but ultimately learning that the day is about more than turkey and pumpkin pie.

Finding Nemo" (ABC): Pixar Animation Studios brought an ocean to life in this 2003 computer-animated hit, which follows a determined clown fish named Marlin and his memoryimpaired pal, Dory, as they search for Marlin's son, Nemo, who's trapped in an aquarium.

As for O'Hurley, the silver-haired stage and TV veteran was well-known for playing J. Peterman on "Seinfeld" but waltzed to fame this past summer on ABC's surprise reality hit "Dancing With the Stars." In partnership with statuesque professional dancer Charlotte Jorgenson, O'Hurley battled his way to a runner-up finish in the competition, losing in a controversial decision to "General Hospital" star Kelly Monaco.

But the dog show is where true happiness is found. "It's one of the great days of my life, there at the dog show," O'Hurley says. "My wife and I just laugh. I felt like one of the dogs in the dog show (on 'Dancing With the Stars'), being paraded around in front of the judges. It's nice to be on the other end of it." Along with the competition, the special also focuses on the issue of pet rescue – a topic close to

Betty and Maltese Scoschi are accompanying O'Hurley and his wife to New York, when he starts Jan. 16 on Broadway in "Chicago."

he music industry calls them one-hit wonders - bands that flare brightly for just one song and then fade away. In television, we like to call them 13-episode DVD box sets. Or, in some cases, they're that freshman hit that sets the world ablaze for one memorable season and then sputters into mediocrity, unable to recover from the sophomore slump.

Let's take a look at a couple of these shows and see where things might have gone better.

"Desperate Housewives" (ABC):

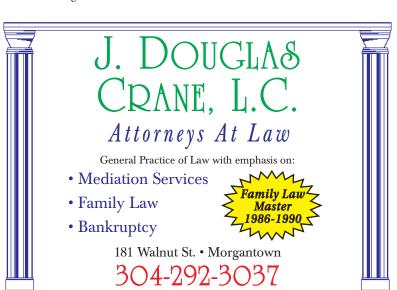

It's far too early to throw in the towel on this slumping sophomore, especially since the ratings remain strong and it still offers occasional instances of its freshman sizzle. The advice here might be to not kill the creator.

"The O.C." (Fox):

Oh, those fond days of yesteryear, when I awaited each episode of this sun-drenched teen soaper with the eagerness of a Prius buyer on a six-month waiting list. Unfortunately, those days were two seasons ago. As this show continues its sophomore slump into its junior year, the wisdom to be gleaned here is don't leave your show in the hands of a 20something creator.

"Joan of Arcadia" (CBS):

Although it's getting good ratings, this show's replacement, the maudlin "Ghost Whisperer," makes even the anemic second season of "Joan" look a bit better – but not much. Charming, insightful and entertaining in season one, it slid into darkness, angst and sentimentality in season two. The lesson? Know what's good in your show, and keep it.

Stewart shines on and

'You want to walk up to him in the garage and go, 'Who are you, and what have you done with Tony

or the past several years, we've heard how Tony Stewart has matured, that he's finally gotten his notoriously quick temper under control, and that he's at peace with himself and the rest of the world.

Then a post-race scuffle or a testy exchange with a member of the media ensues, and the illusion is blown.

Except this year, that assertion seems to be holding true. Through early November, the driver who has garnered six figures-worth of fines over his NASCAR career has kept the ugly incidents out of the headlines while harnessing his competitive fires to become Nextel Cup's points leader.

So as he, Jimmie Johnson, Greg Biffle and other drivers in contention for the 2005

Cup title head to Homestead-Miami Speedway in South Florida on Sunday, Nov. 20, for the season-ending Ford 400, 2002 series champ Stewart truly appears to be a changed man.

At least, that's the opinion of Bill Weber, who will do play-by-play on the NBC telecast.

"It's been amazing," Weber says. "You want to walk up to him in the garage and go, Who are you, and what have you done with Tony Stewart?' because he's just been such a pleasure to work with. And just because now you get more of Tony's true personality. that he has a good sense of humor, that he's an outgoing guy, it hasn't taken any of his determination or his desire away.

"But he just does not let the little things - and even most of the big things - bother him anymore. He just realizes if it's already happened, it's behind him. And when he adopted that attitude, which was basically early in this season, then they got their stuff together, then they started winning in June, and they've been the team to beat for five months now.

Weber attributes Stewart's change in attitude this year in part to maturity and in part to the realization of how his actions affect others. "In this situation," Weber explains, "it's not unlike being on any other team. If you lose your cool and you get thrown out of the game or you get put in the penalty box or, in this case, you get (sanctioned) by NASCAR, you're not just hurting yourself, you're hurting your guys.'

FULL NAME: William Wallace

BIRTHPLACE: St. Louis

BIRTH DATE:

Aug. 14, 1956

ROAD TO STARDOM:

Wallace raced for the first time in 1973, and from 1974 to 1978, he won more than 200 races around the Midwest. He won Rookie of the Year in the United States Auto Club (USAC) in 1979 and the American Speed Association title in 1983 just prior to joining NASCAR.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

Six wins and 20 top-10 finishes in 29 events gave Wallace his only NASCAR championship in 1989. He beat good friend Dale Earnhardt by just 12 points. In 1993, Wallace won 10 races but finished second to Earnhardt for the title.

PERSONAL: Rusty and his wife, Patti, have three kids, Greg, Katie and Stephen. Rusty's two brothers, Kenny and Mike, also are NASCAR drivers.

getting to know rusty Wallace ith the final goal in his illustrious career accomplished, Rusty Wallace can ride off into retirement very much secure with his place in NASCAR history.

Wallace wanted to be a contender for the championship in his 22nd and last season, and that's exactly what he was. His consistently competitive driving - a hallmark throughout his career - qualified Wallace for the Chase for the Nextel Cup, the season-ending 10-race battle featuring the series' 10 best drivers. Wallace stood in eighth place coming down the stretch of the Chase, and although the odds were stacked against him winning the title, his historic career will be among the featured story lines at the Ford 400, the season's final race on Sunday, Nov. 20. Wallace earned Rookie of the Year honors in NASCAR's top circuit in 1984 and almost immediately became a fan favorite thanks to his outspoken nature, effervescent personality and dogged determination. His 55 career wins entering this season ranked him in a tie for eighth on the all-time list, in the company of other greats such as Richard Petty, Darrell Waltrip and the late Dale Earnhardt.

Almost half of those wins have come on short tracks, where Wallace has stood out among his peers his entire career. His first, 25th, 50th and to date his last win have come on one-mile or shorter tracks.

FROM TV

LATELY

"CSI: NY"

It may be smart not to do the same thing twice. When original co-star Vanessa Ferlito decided she wanted to return to the East Coast, the producers faced the prospect of recasting. Rather than go for someone with the same street-smart toughness, they brought in Anna Belknap as a Crime Scene Investigation novice with a little grit but also a need to learn the ropes. (J.B.)

"THE WEST WING"

Silence is golden. The White House drama made a brilliant move by staying largely wordless in the recent scene that found Toby confessing to C.J. that he was responsible for the leaking of classified information. C.J. insisted he not say another word until the proper personnel arrived. (J.B.)

"ACCORDING TO JIM"

If you can't beat them, join them, especially if "them" is your small son who wants to dress up as Cinderella for Halloween. Set aside your rockstar leathers for another year and take him trickor-treating in a fetching bride costume. (B.F.S.)

"THE VIEW"

According to an online survey of 56,000 people, only 39 percent of men and women bother to ask first-time partners whether they have, or have had, a sexually transmitted disease. (J.C.)

The power of one performer can be greater than that of a group. (J.B.)

"AMERICAN JUSTICE: MOB LADIES"

Years after she had been assaulted in Times Square and none of her organized crime associates had done anything about it, "mob lady" Arlyne Weiss Brickman decided to get revenge by turning informant for federal authorities. (J.C.)

"DESPERATE HOUSEWIVES"

If your mentally challenged son kills somebody, move to a new town and lock him in the basement until someone else is arrested for the crime. (B.F.S.)

"TRUE HOLLYWOOD STORY: THE WOMEN OF DESPERATE HOUSEWIVES"

As a child, Eva Longoria was a tomboy whose family nicknamed her "Prieta Fea," Spanish for "ugly dark one." (J.C.)

"SOUTH PARK"

When a loved one dies, have DNA tests run on the body to ensure it's really him before you bury it. If he's hanging out with the likes of Eric Cartman, chances are his "death" was a hoax and those are pig parts you're burying. (B.F.S.)

"PRISON BREAK"

It can be worth it to give latecomers a chance to catch up. This Fox series was smart in presenting all of its existing hours back-to-back-to-back on cable outlet FX. It was just in time for viewers to plunge in fresh with the new episodes that began the following night on Fox. (J.B.)

t's a favorite game of science-fiction fans to imagine what would happen if, say, Sherlock Holmes were beamed onto the Starship Enterprise, or Dr. Who accidentally landed his TARDIS on the Millennium Falcon.

This kind of fictional cross-pollination is not limited to sci-fi, of course. One wonders what might happen if all sorts of colorful characters found themselves dropped into worlds not their own.

Let's imagine:

"Spy versus Spy": James Bond has faced a lot of tough women in his time, but Agent 007 might not be a match for the prepregnancy Sydney Bristow of "Alias." The tuxedoed Brit might find himself both shaken and stirred after trying to take on this espionage dynamo, who could kill him both with charm and a well-aimed stiletto heel.

"Fix This": The hapless castaways of "Lost" have had to make do with a luggage compartment full of supplies to survive on their mysterious island. But if MacGyver had been aboard the doomed Oceanic Airlines flight 815, they would have had a working transmitter, a three-story treehouse, a barbecue pit, and showers with running hot and cold water – all from bags of nonpeanut snack products, a few T-shirts, a packet of bubble gum, one intact airline seat and Hurley's compact disc player.

"Not a Good Thing": Martha Stewart might think twice about having an "Apprentice" of her own if Bree Van De Kamp decided to drop by. This "Desperate Housewives" diva can not only do everything Martha does, but she does it with more verve, a smile that could kill at 10 paces and way better hair.

"Dukes of Earl": On "My Name Is Earl," recovering reprobate Earl Hickey has decided to repent for his wicked ways and make right all the things he did wrong. Who better to help him in his quest than those latter-day, cornpone Robin Hoods, the Dukes of Hazzard County? Bo and Luke could fire up the General Lee, haul out the bows and arrows, and help Earl whip through that list in no time flat, leaving plenty of time for cold beer and hot biscuits with sausage gravy. Yee haw!

"Big Trouble in Smallville": Sure, the young Clark Kent has faced the Flash, Jor-El, Aquaman, Brainiac and his first sexual experience, but has he faced ... Godzilla? The perfect test of the future Man of Steel's powers would be to send the terror of Tokyo stomping across the cornfields of Kansas on his way to getting medieval all over Metropolis. It's Superman versus supermonster in a showdown for the ages (or at least for the season). And when Godzilla's done, he can go eat those creatures from "Surface."

"Office Politics": He's soon to be out of the West Wing, so what's President Bartlet to do in his twilight years? He could decide to buy a Scranton, Pa., paper supply company and make life miserable for its self-important regional manager.

Springfield and Clark return to daytime

r. Noah Drake last trod the hallways of "General Hospital" in 1983, but on Dec. 2, Rick Springfield will return for a brief stint in the role he created.

"I guess there was a reason why they didn't kill Noah off in the '80s," Springfield says. "This should be fun. I'm looking forward to it." The good doc returns to Port Charles as part of the story in which Dr. Robin Scorpio (Kimberly McCullough) fights to save Jason's (Steve Burton) life.

Watch out, "Days of our Lives" fans! Sami Brady's (Alison Sweeney) half-sister Carrie will be back in Salem in December. and the good news is that Christie Clark will be reprising the role. Carrie, as you may recall, left town with Dr. Mike Horton, but before that, she was engaged to Austin Reed (Austin Peck), who is also back. Sounds as if some good romantic stories lie ahead.

"We are very excited that longtime 'Days' family member Christie Clark is returning to Salem," says a spokesperson for the daytime drama. "We are confident the audience will quickly embrace her story – again, playing with half-sister Sami, Austin and Lucas (Bryan Dattilo). Christie's return, both on and off screen, further enhances the excitement around our 40th anniversary celebrations.

And over at "The Bold and the Beautiful," Lesli Kay (ex-Molly, "As the World Turns") has been placed under contract as the new Felicia Forrester. Her first airdate is Nov. 30.

"We are thrilled to have Lesli aboard as the rebellious Felicia," executive producer and head writer Bradley P. Bell announced. "Lesli is a pro who will be stepping into the middle of a gut-wrenching story. If anyone can deliver the goods, it's Lesli."

Also, Susan Seaforth Hayes will return to "Y&R" as Joanna Manning, Lauren Fenmore's (Tracey E. Bregman) overbearing mother. Look for her in December.

Dear Paulette: Is the priest Father Lonigan on "Passions" blind in real life? -Robert M., Land O' Lakes, Fla.

Dear Reader: Bruce French, who plays Father Lonigan, is not blind. According to a spokesperson for the show, he wears opaque contact lenses for the role.

OF "OUT OF PRACTICE" ON CBS

Barry Zuckerkorn was the strangest man I've ever played in my career. I get to spend time with this wonderful group of people (on "Out of Practice") now every week, but I'll miss my friends at "Arrested."

Do you think playing Barry helped get you cast in "Out of Practice"?

No, but I was very flattered. (Executive producers) Joe Keenan and Chris Lloyd called me up and said, "We would like you to participate in this. We thought of you when we wrote it."

You were an executive producer on "MacGyver." Will we ever see that show back in any shape or form?

I really hope so, because I truly believe that it is a great character. I am working with Paramount on that now.

As a feature film?

No, I would like to do another series.

You clearly had a very tight relationship with your old castmates on "Happy Days."

Do you think you can recapture that on your new CBS sitcom?

Actually, we became an ensemble (on "Out of Practice") almost instantaneously. It's a pleasure, so smooth when we rehearse together. While we were doing the pilot, I heard Ty and Chris and Stockard and Paula say the same jokes over and over and over again for 10 days, and they were just as funny on the last day as they were on the first day.

Q: We were so pleased to see Don Johnson in a new series. What happened? We can no longer find it listed. -Jeannie LaCamera, Seattle.

A: Based on the amount of mail we've received on that show, which was titled "Just Legal," one would think the audience for it was pretty big. The WB Network didn't see it that way and canceled the program after just a few weeks. The network has been pouring loads of promotion into one of its other new series, "Related," which now occupies the slot "Just Legal" had been in.

Q: Please settle a bet for me. My coworker says the gay relative on "Soap" was played by Tom Hanks. I say it was Billy Crystal. -Dan Baggish, Shalimar, Fla.

A: You win. Crystal played the part of Jodie Dallas on the ABC sitcom. Hanks was in another ABC show around the same time, "Bosom Buddies."

Q: Why was one of the regular actresses dropped from "CSI: NY"? -Brenda Watson, Tampa, Fla.

A: The way Vanessa Ferlito explains it,

A: The way Vanessa Ferlito explains it, she simply wanted to be back on the East Coast, closer to her family and friends. Although the CBS show uses the Big Apple as its setting, it's principally filmed in California. The producers accommodated Ferlito and had her character, Aiden, fired from the forensics unit. Anna Belknap ("Medical Investigation") has replaced her as a cast regular.

... FOR YOUR FAMILY'S TURKEYS

uch is made of how wonderful Thanksgiving is because of family. But what if you can't stand your family? Your parents fight, your uncles are alcoholics, the kid cousins are stone brats, and the teens are felons in training. The long weekend stretches before you, an endless threat of dried-out turkey and bickering. Solace only comes from a Hollywood-created fantasy world where parents cherish each other, uncles are loving, and adorable kids scamper about. For those who need to ignore their families but love the holiday, we suggest the following.

"Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade":

NBC's Thanksgiving-morning chestnut features Dora the Explorer; JoJo, the little circus clown from her own Disney show; and a sporty Mr. Potato Head (he needs a break from those black-tie events). They are among the new helium balloons that will make their way from Manhattan's Upper West Side to Macy's midtown store, where Santa Claus greets the crowd and ushers in the official start of the shopping season. This year's parade – the 79th – is the first to be broadcast in high-definition format. Katie Couric, Al Roker and Matt Lauer host.

"Home for the Holidays" (1995):

Jodie Foster directs this acerbic film starring Holly Hunter as Claudia, a woman who loses her job and a romantic prospect in her former boss. She heads home, knowing the visit is not going to be therapeutic. She says to her mom, Adele (Anne Bancroft), "Nobody means what they say on Thanksgiving, Mom. You know that. That's what the day's supposed to be all about, right? Torture." Oddly, this film could make viewers feel better about their families as Claudia's relatives savage one

"Pieces of April" (2003):

April (a punked-out Katie Holmes) wants to make Thanksgiving dinner for her family. Although her mother is dying, the clan drives from suburban Pennsylvania to April's Manhattan tenement. April has worked hard to pull everything together, and she prepares quite the feast before discovering she does not have a working oven.

"National Lampoon's Thanksgiving Reunion" (2003):

All Dr. Mitch Snider (Judge Reinhold) wants is a traditional Thanksgiving dinner with extended family, but he has none. When an invitation arrives from his long-lost cousin Woodrow (Bryan Cranston), the doc packs up his family, hoping they are in for a classic turkey day. Instead, the uptight suburbanites clash with the hippie Woodrow, who says such things as, "This chip off the old bong is our son Harlat."

Extreme Makeover: Home Edition 8 p.m. on 4

Boston Red Sox players Curt Schilling, Jason Varitek and Kevin Millar pitch in to help with the makeover in the new episode "Tripp Johnson Family." The recipients are a Massachusetts family whose 5-year-old son, a huge Sox fan, has spinal muscular atrophy. Soccer star Mia Hamm also stops by to help out and kick the ball around with Ty Pennington and his design team.

The Poseidon Adventure 8 p.m. on 9 11 12

Adam Baldwin and Steve Guttenberg lead the cast of this new remake of the 1972 disaster classic about a capsized cruise ship. In this version, it's a terrorist bomb, not a tidal wave, that turns the vessel upside down, and it's a Homeland Security agent, not a cop, who leads his fellow survivors on their quest for a way out. Rutger Hauer, Peter Butler, Bryan Brown and Alex Kingston also star.

Earth to America! 8 p.m. 10 p.m. on WTBS

If comedy can raise money for the homeless, why not for the environment? In this new special, stand-up comedians, musicians, movie stars and athletes take the stage in Las Vegas for two hours of stand-up, sketches and songs aimed at raising awareness of environmental issues and money for the cause. Among the stars slated to appear are Tom Hanks, Steve Martin, Martin Short, Larry David and Ben Stiller.

The War at Home 8:30 p.m. on 413 53

Dave and Vicky (Michael Rapaport, Anita Barone) ban booze from the house after catching Hillary (Kaylee DeFer) drunk in the kitchen with a friend. Two days later, however, they succumb to the temptation of free margaritas and come home feeling no pain — until they find the friend's su-perstrict parents waiting. Mike (Dean Collins) accidentally shoots a pigeon and swears off meat in the new episode "Cheers."

Snow Wonder 9 p.m. on 2 5 7

An unusual Christmas Eve snowstorm touches lives around the country in this new drama. They include a bridesmaid (Poppy Montgomery) who has a revelation about the groom, a widow (Camryn Manheim) seeking to escape painful memories, a young man (Eric Szmanda) trapped inside with his oddball aunt (Mary Tyler Moore), and a single mom (Jennifer Esposito) worried about her son spending Christmas with his dad. Jason Priestley and Caroline McKinley also star.

2005 American Music Awards 8 p.m. on 4

A special performance by the Rolling Stones from Salt Lake City is a highlight of this award show. Also slated to sing are Kenny Chesney, a nominee for favorite male country artist; Rob Thomas, nominated for favorite male pop/rock artist; and Mariah Carey, who's up for favorite female pop/rock artist and whose "The Emancipation of Mimi" is nominated for favorite album in both pop/rock and soul/R&B. Cedric the Entertainer hosts.

Gilmore Girls 8 p.m. on 22

As Lorelai and Rory (Lauren Graham, Alexis Bledel) prepare for Thanksgiving at the Dragonfly Inn, Christopher (David Sutcliffe) resurfaces. Luke Scott Patterson) frets about the future of his relationship with Lorelai. A song that Brian (John Cabrera) wrote for Lane (Keiko Agena) upsets Zach (Todd Lowe) and complicates the band's preparations for a gig. Singer-songwriter Carole King guest stars in the new episode "He's Slippin' 'Em Bread Dig?"

Bones 8 p.m. on 46 53

A man at the center of Booth's (David Boreanaz) first case as a primary FBI agent is about to be executed. There's a possibility, though, that he may not be guilty after all. It's been seven years, so Booth calls on Brennan (Emily Deschanel) to help him sort through the old evidence and get at the truth. Michaela Conlin and Eric Millegan also star in the new episode "A Man on Death Row."

I Am King Kong 8 p.m. on TCM

Producer Merian Cooper is a true unsung hero of Hollywood's golden age, a little-known man who did big things for the industry. He created a film icon in 1933's "King Kong," pioneered the use of Technicolor and Cinerama, and can claim credit for the on-screen pairing of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. This new documentary tells his story through his own words, film clips and interviews with those he worked with — including Fay Wray ("King Kong").

The Office 9:30 p.m. on 9 11 12

Michael (Steve Carell) makes a pain of himself once again — in and out of the office — in the new episode "E-Mail Surveillance," whose title will tell you why his subordinates are upset with him; he's monitoring their correspondence. Later, he crashes Jim's (John Krasinski) barbecue and adds injury to this insult by singing karaoke. Pam (Jenna Fischer) wonders if Dwight and Angela (Rainn Wilson, Angela Kinsey) are more than coworkers.

Kenny Chesney: Somewhere in the Sun 8 p.m. on 4

Secrets of the Dead 8 p.m. on 🚯 🕰

The new episode "Voyage of the Courtesans" profiles a group of women who knew how to turn lemons into lemonade. They were more than 200 thieves, prostitutes and con artists who were shipped off to an Australian penal colony in 1789. But rather than go quietly into exile, they set up shop on the ship and found many willing customers in the crew. They arrived in Australia healthy, confident and in control of their destinies, more pioneers than

Faith Hill: Fireflies 9 p.m. on 9 11 12

This new Thanksgiving Eve special gives fans of Faith Hill's country sound plenty for which to be thankful. She ventured into pop territory three years ago with "Cry" but won back many of the fans alienated by that effort with the more recent "Fireflies" and its hit single "Mississippi Girl." The special has both concert clips and footage of Hill interacting with some of the songwriters who contributed to "Fireflies."

Invasion 10 p.m. on 4

Larkin (Lisa Sheridan) questions Russell's (Eddie Cibrian) integrity af-ter he becomes a double-murder suspect and his criminal past is revealed. Dave (Tyler Labine) wants to know what happened to Mariel (Kari Matchett) the night of the storm, while Mariel wants to know whose body she saw and pleads with Tom (William Fichtner) to dredge the bay. Evan Peters also stars in the new episode "The Dredge."

Law & Order 10 p.m. on 9 11 12

In the new episode "Criminal Law," McCoy (Sam Waterston) discovers that a seemingly random series of murders is not random at all. The killer is going after the witnesses from a five-year-old multiple-murder case that's about to go to retrial. Fontana and Green (Dennis Farina, Jesse L. Martin) try to find the killer before any more witnesses — or Mc-Coy, who prosecuted the original case and is also on the hit list — are lost.

Daddy Day Care 8 p.m. on 43 53

Eddie Murphy returns to the edgy-family-comedy genre with this amus-ing 2003 tale. Newly jobless, his character teams up with a pal (Jeff Garlin, "Curb Your Enthusiasm") to open a day-care center that rivals the more exclusive one overseen by a no-nonsense director (Anjelica Huston). She becomes determined to run the newcomers out of business. Steve Zahn, Regina King and Lacey Chabert ("Party of Five") co-star.

College Football 8 p.m. on (ESPN)

Not that it was necessary, but West Virginia has added incentive to play well in tonight's annual Backyard Brawl versus Pittsburgh. You see, they'd hate to let down WVU alum Sam Huff, the Hall of Fame linebacker who will be honored when his No. 75 is retired. Huff always loved rivalry games like this one, and he'll surely get a kick out of watching diminutive but tough Mountaineer running back Steve Slaton, who scored six times against Louisville last month.

Finding Nemo 8:30 p.m. on 4

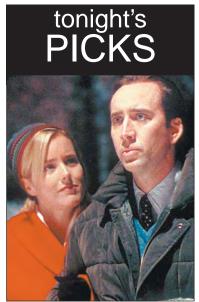

The top movie moneymaker of 2003, this engaging fantasy was another product of the collaboration between the Disney studio and the Pixar computer animation firm. Albert Brooks provides the voice of a fish seeking his son, Nemo (voice of Alexander Gould), who is abducted and put in a dentist's fish tank. Dad gets help from absent-minded peer Dory (voice of Ellen DeGeneres). Willem Dafoe, Geoffrey Rush, Vicki Lewis and Brad Garrett also are heard.

Will & Grace 8:30 p.m. on 🗐 🛍 😰

Debbie Reynolds reprises her role as Grace's (Debra Messing) mother, Bobbi, in the new episode "Swish Out of Water." As usual, she's driving Grace nuts with her criticism, but Jack (Sean Hayes) comes to the rescue by showing Grace how to read between the lines of her mom's words. Will's (Eric McCormack) first case at his new job has him opposing a slumlord who looks very familiar.

CSI: Crime Scene Investigation 9 p.m. on 2 5 7

Stephen King's It 7 p.m. on SCIFI

An evil force returns to the small town it terrorized 30 years earlier, and the seven friends who faced it down as youngsters are back to do battle with it again. This 1990 adaptation of a Stephen King novel received lukewarm reviews from the book's fans, but even they raved about Tim Curry's portrayal of Pennywise the clown, the evil entity's "human" form. Richard Thomas, Jonathan Brandis, John Ritter and Annette O'Toole also star.

The Family Man 8 p.m. on 9 11 12

Nicolas Cage goes the "It's a Wonderful Life" route in this 2000 fantasy-comedy, casting him as a work-driven bachelor who magically gets to live the life he passed up years earlier. He suddenly finds himself married to a former girlfriend (Tea Leoni) and enjoying domesticity more than he ever imagined, forcing him to make big decisions about his future. Don Cheadle and Jeremy Piven co-star.

Star Wars: Episode II — Attack of the Clones 8 p.m. on 🕾 🕾

The second prequel in producer-director George Lucas' fantasy saga significantly advances the relationship of Anakin Skywalker and Padme Amidala (Hayden Christensen, Natalie Portman). An assassination plot against Padme — now a senator — reveals a shortage of Jedi knights to protect her, so an army of clones is recruited. "Episode I" co-stars Ewan McGregor and Samuel L. Jackson also return in this 2002 installment.

A Christmas Carol 8 p.m. on TCM

Alastair Sim's 1952 version has its devotees, but many consider this 1938 version their favorite screen adaptation of the Charles Dickens classic. Count June Lockhart among them. Lockhart made her film debut at age 12 as one of the children of Bob and Emily Cratchit, played by her real-life parents, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart. Reginald Owen stars as Ebenezer Scrooge, the Christmashating curmudgeon who finally gets the spirit.

Mean Girls 8:15 p.m. on (SHOW)

A naive teen (Lindsay Lohan) starts public school and is befriended by the elite girls clique and two outsiders — gay Damian (Daniel Franzese) and nonconformist Janis (Lizzy Caplan). The latter two suggest she take advantage of the former's interest to get the dirt on the clique. All goes well until she falls for the queen bee's ex (Jonathan Bennett). Tina Fey ("Saturday Night Live") wrote this 2004 comedy, in which she plays a teacher.

Braveheart 7 p.m. on (BRAVO)

Director and star Mel Gibson preceded James Cameron ("Titanic") as king of the Oscars with his five-statuette sweep for this 1995 drama. In addition to the coveted best picture and best director trophies, it also won awards for makeup, sound-effects editing and cinematography. Gibson plays 13th-century Scottish warrior William Wallace, who rallies his countrymen against the British monarch Edward I (Patrick McGoohan). Sophie Marceau also stars.

Kindergarten Cop 7:30 p.m. on WE Arnold Schwarzenegger stays within his macho persona in this amusing 1990 comedy-thriller about a cop who goes under cover as a kindergarten teacher in order to find the only person who can testify against a drug dealer he's been tracking: the criminal's son. Penelope Ann Miller, Pamela Reed ("Grand") and Linda Hunt co-star.

Flight of the Phoenix 8 p.m. on (HBO)

The original version of this drama is one of the screen's greatest survival adventures. While the character development isn't quite as rich in this remake, the action sequences are potent. Dennis Quaid plays the pilot of a plane that crashes in Mongolia, where the survivors have to deal with all sorts of perils as they try to fashion a new plane from the remains of the downed one. This time, there's a woman (Miranda Otto) in the group.

Runaway Bride 8:30 p.m. on 😉 🛍 🔁

This 1999 reunion of Richard Gere and Julia Roberts doesn't have the magic of "Pretty Woman," but Roberts can't help but light up the screen. This time around, she plays a woman who's left several men at the altar. Gere's character, a sexist newspaperman, hears the story and writes a scathing column about her. She makes irate contact, they meet, and you know what happens next. Joan Cusack, Paul Dooley and Hector Elizondo also star.

The Reading Room 9 p.m. 10:45 p.m. on (HALL)

A man (James Earl Jones) who began life in the inner city goes back to honor his wife's dying wish: that he open a free reading room in the old neighborhood. The effort gets a chilly reception, to say the least, but he persists and ultimately gets as good as he gives, finding a new surrogate family. Georg Stanford Brown and Joanna Cassidy also star in this inspiring new drama.
