City father, son make a house arrest

Pin suspected burglar to floor in their home

BY BRANDY BRUBAKER

A Morgantown man made off with nothing but a few stitches after his burglary attempt was bro-

Clarence Ernest Russell IV. 23, is charged with burglary in the Sunday morning break-in.

Just before 5 a.m., Larry and Mary Lew Boyce were sleeping soundly when their cocker spaniel, Baxter, started barking.

Suddenly, they heard a crash. "I was expecting it to be a deer," Mary Lew Boyce said.

Instead, the Boyces and their son Steve, visiting from South Carolina, spotted a man in their dining

He had broken through the glass. The Boyce men didn't stop to think.

"I just jumped on top of him, me and my son." Larry Boyce, 67, said. "He couldn't move then."

Mary Lew Boyce dialed 911 as her son and husband held down the man, later identified by police as Mary Lew Boyce said it all happened so fast they didn't have time to get scared.

'My first reaction was, 'What are you doing in my dining room?"" she said.

The Boyces were not harmed, but Russell needed a few stitches to his thumb, police said.

Larry Boyce said he's not sure he'd react the same way again.

"I didn't think about it," he said.

House OKs license-for-grades bill

Adds skipping, disrupting class to ways teens can lose privileges

'CAPTIVE-AUDIENCE,' business franchise tax repeal bills advance. State briefs, Page 9-B.

CHARLESTON — West Virginia teens could lose their driver's licenses for skipping school or misbehaving in class under an amended proposal that the House has passed to the state Senate.

The bill that advanced 80-15 on Monday also would threaten licenses of students who fail to make "satisfactory progress" in school.

As originally proposed by Gov. Joe Manchin, the bill linked licenses solely to students maintaining at least a 2.0 grade-point average. Administration officials say the governor supports the amended version.

Besides bullies and disruptive students, it targets those convicted of bringing drugs or guns to school, or attacking teachers or staff.

West Virginia already suspends as many as 1,000 licenses each year of teens who drop out of school.

Lawmakers seek more nonsalary pay

CHARLESTON — It may be an election year, but West Virginia lawmakers are broaching a touchy topic with voters: increasing the daily payments certain delegates and senators receive for session and nonsession work, as well as travelrelated expenses.

Legislators are also seeking a major break on their stateprovided health-care coverage as they approach Wednesday's deadline for bills to pass from their house of origin.

Measures ready for a House vote include one that would triple payments to $150 for the House speaker and Senate president, and double to $50 for the party leaders in each chamber, for each day of a regular, extended or special session, including weekends. The bill also lifts the 80-day cap on days for which the speaker and president can be paid for legislative work while not in session. It further removes language from state law requiring such work to be performed in their Capitol offices.

The speaker and president also would get to appoint two additional lawmakers, for a total of six in each chamber, eligible for $150-per-day payments for helping major committee chairs during session.

Bills could cut county jail costs

State would bear a greater burden

Staff, wire reports

Monongalia County spends about $1 million a year in regional jail fees, but a pair of bills up for a vote this week in the House of Delegates could provide some relief.

The House Judiciary Committee has endorsed a measure that would shift more of the cost to the state Division of Corrections for inmates who are convicted and sentenced. The bill would make the West Virginia Regional Jail Authority responsible for inmate housing costs from the date an inmate is sentenced, rather than the date the regional jail receives notice of the sentence.

A second bill asks the state Supreme Court to commission a study of West Virginia's incarceration rates

Counties now pay daily fees for each person they send to state regional jail awaiting trial. Monongalia County Commissioner Asel Kennedy said the money covers food, health insurance, transportation and other costs associated with incarceration.

From July 1 to Dec. 31, 2007, Monongalia County spent $512,693 on regional jail fees, according to a mid-year report from the West Virginia Regional Jail Authority. Some counties have complained the fees are ruining their budgets. Berkeley and Kanawha counties paid more than $1.9 million each during the same period in 2007, according to the report.

Kennedy said Monongalia County typically spends about $1 million on jail fees each year — far less than Chia seeds and related items like chips and energy bars are starting to become more widely available in the Bay Area, and a major health food chain recently started carrying them nationwide. Online retailers report rising sales. Plugs on CBS News and Oprah Winfrey's show haven't hurt, either.

Derived from a mint-related plant known as salvia hispanica and once eaten by the Aztecs, chia seeds are high in protein, fiber and calcium. Most importantly, the seeds are high in one of the omega-3 fatty acids known to help prevent heart disease. The seeds are higher in omega-3 than any other plant source, including flaxseed, which many people sprinkle on food for its health benefits.

That's why chia seeds, for decades a tiny niche product in health food stores, are drawing attention nationwide. The omega-3 supplement market, dominated by products such as fish oil and flaxseed, has grown into a $500-million-a-year business, attracting marketers not only of chia seeds but other omega-3 rich foods such as cranberries and soy.

Bill could mean air travel woes

Proposal blocks W. Virginia from federal ID act

Associated Press

CHARLESTON — West Virginians planning on air travel this year could find things more complicated than they remember if a Senate bill becomes law.

The state would be barred from participating in the federal REAL ID Act, which would set national standards for driver's licenses, by a bill approved Monday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The federal Department of Homeland Security has warned that states which don't file paperwork saying they need extra time to comply with the law will face consequences starting in May. The most significant would be that driver's licenses from noncomplying states would not be valid identification for boarding an airplane anywhere in the U.S.

Instead, other forms of identification, like birth certificates or passports, would have to be used.

The bill, which now comes before the full Senate, calls the act "inimical to the security and well-being of the people of West Virginia," with supporters saying Monday the federal guidelines amount to an invasion of privacy.

'That's how a lot of people here see it," Senate Finance Committee Chairman Walt Helmick said.

"It's a matter of trust, and we have some mistrust in federal programs when it comes to gathering all this information about us." the Pocahontas County Democrat said.

Under the federal legislation, driver's licenses will have three layers of security measures but will not contain microchips as some had expected. States will be able to choose from a menu which security measures they will put in their cards.

Additionally, state motor vehicles agencies would be required to verify birth certificates; check with other states to ensure an applicant doesn't have more than one license; and check with the State Department to verify applicants who use passports to get a driver's license.

The proposal has drawn criticism from civil liberties groups worried about securing personal data,

It's a matter of trust, and we have some mistrust in federal programs when it comes to gathering all this information about

and from state governments worried about the expense of implementing the new measures.

The original federal proposal would have cost West Virginia between $40 million and $60 million, according to Steve Dale, deputy commissioner of the Division of Motor Vehicles.

To help sell the plan, Homeland Security scaled back its initial plans, so that implementing the program will now cost much less. Dale said West Virginia would likely spend about $5 million putting it in place.

"The problem in the original proposal for REAL ID is that it was absolutely cost-prohibitive," said Lara Ramsburg, spokeswoman for Gov. Joe Manchin.

Manchin supports the scaledback proposal, though, and Ramsburg said the governor hopes the state measure doesn't pass out of the Legislature.

"We don't agree with taking West Virginia out of this equation," she said.

So far, 17 states have passed legislation or resolutions objecting to the REAL ID Act's provisions, many due to concerns it will cost them too much to comply, according to the American Civil Liberties Union, which has been vocal in its opposition to the federal law. The 17 are Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Washington.

States agreeing to the program would have until Jan. 1, 2010 to begin issuing driver's licenses made under the new rules, with a final date of May 2017 to issue the new

For lawmakers who live too far from Charleston to commute from home during the session, the bill would increase their daily payment for travel and lodging-related expenses from $115 to $131.

House Speaker Rick Thompson said those provisions and the other parts of the pending bill were recommended by the Citizens Legislative Compensation Commission in 2007. He also said at least one delegate chose not to run for re-election this year because of the costs.

"I think the increases are justified at this point in time," said Thompson, D-Wayne.

A separate measure up for a Senate vote this week would slash legislators' state-provided health insurance premiums by billing them as full-time employees. Under the bill, nonsmoking lawmakers with single coverage would save $5,880 by paying $444 a year, while lawmakers with family coverage would pay $1,632 for an annual savings of $9,072, according to the latest figures from the Public Employees Insurance Agency.

Supporters of that provision argue that their annual PEIA premiums now consume between 42 percent and 71 percent of legislative pay. The Senate Finance Committee amended the measure into a PEIA-related bill last week.

Lawmakers have not adopted any increases for themselves since spurring an outcry in 1994, when they voted to raise their annual salaries from $6,500 to $15,000.

West Virginia has a part-time Legislature. The 100-seat House and 34-member Senate hold annual, 60-day sessions as well as three-day monthly interim meetings the rest of the year. Gov. Joe Manchin has called them into special session nine times since taking office in 2005, including twice last year.

The House bill no longer proposes hiking legislative salaries, though the commission had recommended raising them as well. When introduced, it included a pay raise for senators. The House Finance Committee removed that provision Sunday.

"I agree that we should do either all or none," Thompson said.

As amended Sunday, the bill does offer most full-time state employees a $10 boost to the $50 they now receive annually for each year of service starting after three years.

28% switch religious affiliations

Survey examines who keeps the faith

McClatchy-Tribune

CHICAGO — Many U.S. Roman Catholics and Protestants are leaving the churches of their childhood and either choosing other faiths or no religion at all, according to an extensive survey released Monday.

More than a quarter, or 28 percent, of American adults said they have left the faith in which they were raised, according to the Pew Forum on Religion & Public Life.

About 16 percent of Americans say they are not members of any religious group, making the "unaffiliated" group the fourth largest religious tradition in the United States, rivaling the number of members in mainline Protestant churches.

The three largest religious traditions are Protestant evangelicals at 26 percent, Catholics at 24 percent and mainline Protestants at 18 percent.

The Catholic Church has lost more members than any other religious group, the survey found, with about 10 percent of all Americans reporting they have left.

Those losses, however, largely have been replaced by Catholic immigrants entering the country, Pew researchers said. As a result, the total percentage of the U.S. population that identifies as Catholic has remained fairly stable.

In a shift that could significantly alter the nation's religious fabric, the study also found a sharp decline in American Protestantism — that "the United States is on the verge of becoming a minority Protestant country."

The number of Americans who report they are members of Protestant denominations now stands at barely 51 percent.

Full circle classes available in Fairmont

A program through the WORKFORCE West Virginia office in Fairmont offers classes to help you brush up on math, learn Microsoft computer programs including Excel and Power, and guide you through the Civil Service and TABE test.

These are the full circle classes, taught by Amy Cunningham. They meet from 9 a.m.-noon Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

Each month, these classes are offered to the public at no charge.

Computer classes include learning to surf the 'Net, keyboarding, using Microsoft Word and Microsoft Office, and building a database.

The full circle program is funded by the Marion County Adult & Community Education Center and the Region VI Workforce Investment Board.

Classes are held at WORK-FORCE West Virginia, 109 Adams St., Fairmont, on the third floor. If Marion County schools are closed for any reason, full circle workshops are not held. Workshops are not held when school is on a two-hour delay, but tutoring will be available. Info or to register: 363-0654.

Girls on the Run focuses on health, self-esteem

Girls on the Run of Monongalia County will begin its spring program the week of March 10 at Brookhaven Elementary School.

Those planning to be in the Monday/Wednesday session will meet from 4:45-6 p.m. The Tuesday/Thursday session will meet from 3:30-4:45 p.m.

GOTR is a national program that encourages pre-teen girls to develop self-respect and healthy lifestyles through running. GOTR of Monongalia County is presented locally by Monongalia General Hospital.

The 10-week after-school program is designed for third through fifth-grade girls. It focuses on building self-esteem and improving emotional, social, mental and physical health through interactive games and activities.

Each session is led by trained female coaches. At the end of the program, the girls will take part in the Albert Gallatin Regatta 5K on May 25.

Registration fees range from $15 to $80 and are charged on a sliding scale based on family income. Thirty spaces are available. Priority goes to Brookhaven students. To register: Laurie Abildso, 685-4140, www.moncountygotr.org

MAJOR BREAKTHROUGH CONFIRMED More powerful AbGONE™ pill clinically proven to promote pot belly loss Starts working in 20 minutes

By John Whitehead, Media Services

BioTech Research has announced that a new scientific double blind clinical study has shown that their famous Ab-GONE™ Extra Strength supplement produces significant weight and pot belly loss without added diet and exercise.

The test subjects in the study lost significant weight and reduced their pot belly without changing their diet or physical activity. People who were not exercising or dieting lost weight and pot belly as well as those who were exercising and dieting.

In addition, the study showed that AbGONE™ Extra Strength significantly increased calorie burning so that you lose weight faster or you can eat more food without gaining weight.

And, the study found that the all natural AbGONE™ Extra Strength pill produced weight loss safely.

And, the study found that the all natural AbGONE™ Extra Strength pill produced dominal fats.³,4,5 One of these AbGONE™ is the famous pill that was introduced to the market five years ago that provided weight loss and the loss of stubborn potbelly fat. It had enormous sales in drug stores across the nation. But, recently, the already remarkable Ab-GONE™ pill was improved and is now much better. This new pill is AbGONE™ Extra Strength, It works much faster than the old AbGONE™ pill. It starts working in 20 minutes. It also produces much more weight loss than the original AbGONE™ pill.

How does AbGONE™ Extra Strength work?

Whitakre stated, "We found in a number of research studies on laboratory animals, later confirmed in human studies, a substance called Conjugated Linoleic Acid (CLA). Studies of CLA suggest that CLA decreases body fat in three ways: 1.) CLA decreases body fat mass by decreasing the amount of fat that is stored after eating; 2.) CLA increases the rate of fat breakdown in fat cells; and 3.) CLA increases the rate of fat metabolism which decreases the total number of fat cells. You can think of CLA as a match that lights the fuse in fat. This fuse increases the metabolic rate of fat that can result in subsequent fat loss.

Studies have shown that you can reduce abdominal fat using CLA.¹ AbGONE™ contains a good dose of CLA.

There are also a number of other beneficial effects to CLA that help decrease the future storage of fat.

Whitakre also stated, "CLA interferes with an enzyme called lipoprotein lipase (LPL). LPL is an enzyme that helps store fat in the body, 2 So, by inhibiting this fat-storing enzyme LPL, CLA can help reduce the re-accumulation of fat.

CLA also helps the body use its existing fat for energy, thereby increasing fat oxidation and energy expenditure."

AbGONE™ Extra Strength also contains highly advanced all-natural ingredients. These are new ingredients which were not in the original formula.

Studies have shown that the new AbGONETM Extra Strength ingredients increase the rate of fat metabolism, which reduces both surface and intestinal abdominal fat and helps inhibit future formation of these abdominal fats. 3, 4, 5 One of these new ingredients is a very high quality and potent extract of green tea. This extract is EGCG, which has been shown in clinical studies to dramatically and quickly increase calorie burning which helps to quickly reduce body fat. 4 These ingredients start working in 20 minutes to increase calorie burning, which is the first step to reducing the pot belly and reduce fat all over the body.

AbGONE™ lead developer Rehan Jalali is a nationally recognized nutritionist and author who has appeared in NEWSWEEK, Muscle & Fitness, Oxygen, Men's Fitness, Muscle Media and many other magazines and scientific journals. He has developed over 100 cutting edge products for the nutritional supplement industry.

Whitakre stated, "The ingredients in AbGONE™ Extra Strength are more expensive and therefore AbGONE™ Extra Strength is more expensive than the original formula. AbGONE™ original formula sells for $39 and AbGONE™ Extra Strength sells for $49. But for your readers who wish to order AbGONE™ Extra Strength direct, we are offering them a discount if they order within 10 days."

Whitakre added, "The new AbGONE™ Extra Strength formula may not be right for everyone. The new thermogenic formula uses Green Tea Extract and Caffeine to boost your metabolism quickly. If you are easily affected by caffeinated drinks you will notice a difference from our original AbGONE™. However, the new formula will help you reduce your body fat. And remember it starts working in 20 minutes."

New AbGONE™ Extra Strength

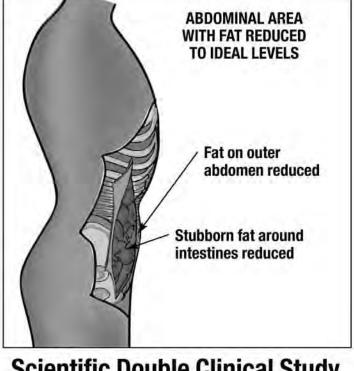

My name is Christie Kuykendall. Thanks to AbGONE™ Extra Strength I was able to lose 10 pounds. AbGONE™ curbed my appetite and gave me more energy to work out.

BEFORE

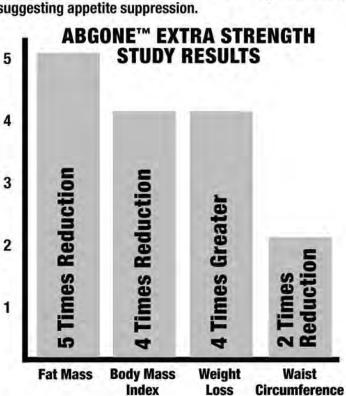

I'm Johnnie Smith. I was on AbGONE™ Extra Strength for 30 days. I lost 21 pounds and lost 4 inches off my waist. Thank you.

Scientific Double Clinical Study AbGONE™ Extra Strength

Test subjects did not exercise or diet. Were given daily dosage of AbGONE™ Extra Strength or Placebo. AbGONE™ Extra Strength group experienced 5 times reduction in fat mass, 4 times reduction in BMI, 4 times greater weight loss and 2 times reduction in waist circumference. Also nearly a 50% decrease in calorie and carbohydrate intake suggesting appetite suppression.

Largest in U.S. history

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Visa Inc. said Monday its initial public offering could raise up to $19 billion - making it the largest in U.S. history even though the credit card processor is entering the market at a difficult time.

The San Francisco-based credit card processor expects to see high demand for its stock, despite the housing-led credit squeeze that is threatening consumers' spending and their ability to keep up with debt payments.

But Visa, like its public rival MasterCard Inc., is a card processor, not a lender, and has a strong presence in other countries where many people are just starting to use plastic instead of cash. And Visa is the largest U.S. card company by market share — its transactions, in number and dollar amount, in 2006 outpaced those at MasterCard and American Express Co.

Visa said in a Securities and Exchange Commission filing it will offer 406 million shares at $37 to $42 per share. There will be an option for underwriters to buy an extra 40.6 million shares to cover any excess demand.

The Visa IPO, even if it prices at the low end of the estimated range. would surpass the $10.6 billion AT&T Wireless raised in 2000 when it went public. And if demand is strong enough, it could be almost as big as the two largest past deals combined — AT&T's offering and Kraft Foods' $8.7 billion offer in 2001.

Visa would follow MasterCard from being a privately held interest to a publicly traded company. MasterCard raised $2.39 billion in its IPO nearly two years ago.

At a midpoint price, Visa could raise about $15.6 billion, or more than $17 billion if underwriters exercise their option to buy the entire lot of 40.6 million shares. Even at the low-end price of $37 a share, Visa would raise about $15 billion.

Shares of MasterCard have risen fivefold since going public and are now trading at more than $203 each. But Visa's offer comes at a time of ebbing appetite for new shares. MasterCard shares have fallen more than 5.5 percent since the beginning of the month.

Visa made its initial IPO filing in June with the SEC. The shares will be listed with the New York Stock Exchange under the ticker V.

Visa will be the last of the major U.S. card companies to go public. Discover Financial Services LLC became publicly traded last July, and since then has seen its shares tumble. But Discover, like American Express, is a true card lender. The responsibility for Visa and Master-Card cardholders' debt, in contrast, is held by the banks that issue them.

For their most recent quarters, MasterCard posted a huge increase in profit while AmEx reported a 10 percent drop in earnings and Discover posted a loss.

Governors target possible 2nd stimulus package

WASHINGTON — Governors are debating priorities if Congress takes up a second stimulus package, with some state leaders pushing for federal money to repair roads, water systems and bridges.

Governors raised the issue of infrastructure on Monday with President Bush at the White House.

"There are a lot of projects in every state where the architectural design has been done, where literally they're ready to tap into the ground and begin construction," said Democratic Gov. Ed Rendell of Pennsylvania.

Rendell and a bipartisan group of governors are pushing public works as part of a potential second stimulus package. Democrat Eliot Spitzer of New York and Republican Arnold Schwarzenegger of California are among the governors demanding federal action.

"We owe it to the people of America to join together and rebuild our country," Schwarzenegger said.

Bush this month signed an economic stimulus package to send $300 to $1,200 rebate checks to millions of Americans and to offer tax incentives to businesses. He opposed including infrastructure projects because "it's not really a stimulative way to get the economy going," White House press secretary Dana Perino said Monday.

Asked how Bush views the governors' push for infrastructure projects, Perino said: "Outside of the stimulus package, if they have other ideas, I'm sure he'll be willing to listen to them.'

Governors got little support from Bush for the concept Monday, said Democratic Gov. Chris Gregoire of Washington.

"He didn't think he'd be interested," Gregoire said. "If I was to characterize what he said, he wants to see what the results are of the stimulus package that was just passed.'

Not all governors emerging from the White House meeting favor a second stimulus package or one focused on public works. Democrats generally seemed supportive, Republicans skeptical.

"To be talking about another stimulus package that is focused on spending, rather than tax breaks to help spur the economy, I think is very premature," said Republican Gov. Haley Barbour of Mississippi.

Getty Images agrees to be bought by private firm for about $2.1B

SEATTLE — Getty Images Inc., the leading seller of stock photography and video footage, said Monday it has agreed to a $2.1 billion buyout from the private equity group Hellman & Friedman LLC.

Ten-year-old Getty, whose nearest competitor is privately held Corbis Corp., put itself up for sale in January after taking a beating on Wall Street for two years.

After reaching a high above $94 per share in November 2005, Getty's shares tumbled 77 percent to $21.80 in Jan. 18 of this year, as higher costs ate away at profits. Four days later, the Seattle-based company said it would consider strategic alternatives to boost shareholder value.

Troy Mastin, an analyst at William Blair & Co., said Getty's core business of selling more-expensive photographs to newspapers and magazines had declined as those media struggled with the rise of Internet content. Sales to direct mail and brochure customers also cooled.

At the same time, though, Getty's newer businesses grew faster. The company bought iStockPhoto.com, which sold images for as little as $1 for unlimited use, in 2006. Mastin said customers who once bought the low end of Getty's core stock photos moved over to buy the even cheaper royalty-free photos.

And Getty's editorial offerings news, sports and celebrity photos for the media — grew, as did its video footage business.

While Getty didn't give a specific reason for its January decision to seek a buyer, Mastin said it was likely because Getty felt Wall Street was paying more attention to the stagnating core business than to its emerging segments.

"Public markets didn't seem willing to consider [Getty's businesses] separately," Mastin said.

Jonathan Klein, Getty's chief executive officer, said in a statement that "Hellman & Friedman brings specific industry expertise and support for the vision of the company's management team."

Wall Street surges as Standard & Poor's reaffirms Ambac, MBIA ratings

NEW YORK — Wall Street bolted higher Monday after Standard & Poor's affirmed its ratings for Ambac Financial Group Inc. and MBIA Inc., raising hopes that troubled bond insurers will emerge from the credit market crisis on solid footing. The Dow Jones industrials rallied nearly 190 points.

The news came as a relief to a market that has fallen sharply in recent months on any negative news about the insurers; investors feared that a downgrade of the insurers would lead to billions of dollars in write-downs of securities held by already troubled banks and investment firms. Rating agencies including S&P have been under pressure to downgrade the insurers after they had weakened their financial positions by insuring subprime mortgage securities that later collapsed.

There has been speculation that Ambac might find sufficient capital early this week to hold onto the stellar "AAA" rating it needs to remain in the municipal bond business. Municipalities and companies use these insurers to back bonds, allowing them to get higher ratings and cheaper financing.

UHS dancers perform at Disney

The University High School dancers became stars of their own Disney show Jan. 7 when they took the stage at Galaxy Palace Theater in Walt Disney World Resort as part of a Disney performing arts program. Dance groups from throughout the country apply to perform each year as part of Disney performing arts programs. Once selected, ensembles are given the opportunity to perform at the resort for an international audience of theme park guests.

David Bohnert recognized for his service to Music at Penn Alps

Submitted to The Dominion Post

FROSTBURG — In January, the board of directors of Music at Penn Alps presented board member David E. Bohnert, of Frostburg, a certificate of recognition for his 15 years of service to the organization.

A board member since the inception of the annual concert series at the Great Hall at Penn Alps, Grantsville, Bohnert served as president for two terms. He also received a mobile satellite radio receiver to enable him to enjoy his favorite classical music wherever his travels take him.

Bohnert continues to be an active member of the board and will act as house manager during the upcoming season, which begins May 31.

Current President and CEO Fred C. Bolton praised Bohnert's dedication and expertise in helping the organization find its feet in the early years and for providing continuity and experience up to the present.

Music at Penn Alps is a nonprofit organization dedicated to presenting classical music and American traditions.

Dr. Seuss' birthday to be celebrated in Rivesville Rivesville Elementary/Middle School will be sponsoring a birthday bash for Dr. Seuss.

The event will be held from 6-8 p.m. March 8. The evening will consist of guest readers, refreshments, individual activities for grade levels and door prizes. There will also be guest appearances from "The Cat in the Hat" and WVU mascot Brady Campbell. For further information, call 278-5331.

Mon County parents can attend dyslexia workshop

Monongalia County parents have been invited to a program on dyslexia, at 6 p.m. March 4, at Cheat Lake Elementary School.

Types of dyslexia, what to do if your child is not responding to instructional intervention and how parents can help at home will be part of the workshop.

The session is presented by Monongalia County Schools elementary instructional special education coaches.

Starbucks closing early for training

The Starbucks Coffee shop at 1109 Van Voorhis Road will close at 5:30 p.m. today, for training. The shop will reopen at 6 a.m. Wednesday. Regular hours are 6 a.m.-10 p.m. daily.

Senior Monongalians to host diabetes program

A program on Operation Diabetes will be at 12:15 p.m. March 6, at Senior Monongalians, Mountaineer Mall.

Diabetes is a disease affecting millions of Americans. Basic information on living with and treating diabetes is extremely important. Operation Diabetes is a program of the WVU School of Pharmacy. The goal is to educate people about diabetes issues.

Faculty Senate talks protocol

Committee reviews ways to change its electronic handbook

BY LINDSEY FLEMING

The Dominion Post

WVU's Faculty Senate Executive Committee reviewed ways to make changes to its electronic faculty handbook Monday.

Associate Provost C.B. Wilson introduced a draft of protocol for making changes to the handbook. He said he is trying to "expedite the process" and make sure his plans are in line with what the Faculty Senate wants. The Provost's Office is in charge of the handbook, which provides general information about WVU, along with school policies and procedures that affect faculty.

The draft stated that routine changes such as changes to titles or sections of code — to the handbook will be made by the provost's office every year. The office will also check to be sure that Web site links in the handbook are accurate. Wilson said that he had someone check the links once, and found that some of them were outdated.

"We think we can deal with routine updates," he said of the provost's office. Once those changes are made, the entire handbook will be labeled as "modified in [the current year].'

The protocol draft also stated that twice a year — usually in December or January and June or July — the provost's office will make additions to the handbook, if they are needed. A draft of these additions will be reviewed with the executive committee. If anything needs to be changed at that point, it will be. Then the sections modified will be identified as "added" or "modified" in the current

Committee member and Faculty Senate Chairwoman-Elect Virginia Kleist suggested that the Faculty Senate should review the handbook to make sure it is cohesive

Bresch panel has met at least once

BY LINDSEY FLEMING

The Dominion Post

The panel in charge of deciding whether Heather Bresch earned her executive MBA from WVU has met at least once, and will meet again, according to a university official.

Virginia Kleist, chairwoman-elect of WVU's Faculty Senate, said at a Faculty Senate Executive Committee meeting Monday that "the full group has met together on campus" and is scheduled to meet again. The announcement was part of a report from Faculty Senate Chairman Steve Kite. Kite could not attend Monday's meeting for personal reasons. Kleist took his place.

She also said that it is not clear when the panel will finish its report.

"We want to give them time to do their job," she said.

Roy Nutter, a member of the panel and an executive committee member, has said he will not speak about what the panel is doing until the investigation is complete.

Three members of the five-member panel are not associated with the university. They are:

■ Dr. Arthur Centonze, a dean emeritus at Pace University in New York; ■ Dr. Lori Franz, a former provost at the University of Missouri-Columbia; and ■ John M. Burkoff, a law professor at the University of Pittsburgh.

They were elected to replace former panelist Bruce Flack. Flack works for the West Virginia Higher Education Policy

Resident wants bus stop yards from existing one

Schools superintendent says it would violate law

BY J. MILES LAYTON

The Dominion Post

On any given school day, Tom Mayle walks his 8-year-old daughter, Emily, to and from his house to a bus stop about 25 yards away, in front of Cottrell's Country Store and Pizzeria on Point Marion Road. Mayle said he wants Monongalia County Schools to show him "some common courtesy" by adding another bus stop in front of his

"I don't see what the big deal is that they can't put in another bus stop so that my daughter doesn't have to choose between walking through the mud or along the gravel up Point Marion Road to get to her stop," he said. "It's what, a 2-second delay, if you add another stop. Last Friday, we had to walk in the midale of the road to get to her stop because there was so much snow and slush. We almost got hit by a car."

Irv Schuetzner, Mon County Schools director of transportation, said 99 percent of the present stops have been in place for more than 20 years. Bus stops are chosen based upon a variety of factors including safety, driver visibility and need, he said. Adding another bus stop so close to the present stop at Cottrell's store would violate state law, Schuetzner said.

Though there are exceptions to the rule, Schuetzner said, school bus stops should be two-tenths of a mile apart. Allowances are made where it is unsafe, such as places along Summers School Road and Kingwood Pike.

"In places like this, bus drivers make appropriate decisions about where to stop based on visibility, safety and other factors," he said.

In Mayle's case, Scheutzner said, having two stops so close together on that route could compromise safety for students riding the bus and motorists traveling on Point Marion Road.

"If you start up, people behind you are expecting to go, and then you put your lights back on again — someone might run into you," he said. "By being so close together, you can't start and stop because you have traffic around you. This makes it unsafe, particularly in the mornings."

Mayle said motorists following a school bus expect frequent stops. "I grew up in this town dealing

Tom Mayle (below) walks with his 8-year-old daughter from the bus stop at Cottrell's Country Store to his house, 25 yards away. Mayle wants the bus to stop at his house to pick up his daughter and stop again at Cottrell's for other kids that come to that designated bus stop.

Though there are exceptions to the rule, Schuetzner said, school bus stops should be two-tenths of a mile apart.

with college students walking across the street," he said. "We let them have the right of way. None of them even look to see if you are coming. They just walk across the street. If you are behind a school bus, you are going to be making frequent stops. As a parent, I understand frequent stops is a given. There's always going to be delays here and there.

Schuetzner cited reasons why the bus stop has been located at Cottrell's Country Store for decades.

"There's plenty of room for parents to pull away safely, there is a gravel lot, and there's usually no one there in the mornings when parents are there waiting for the bus to arrive," he said. "Plus, there are several kids who use that stop.' Except for a little bit of gravel beside Point Marion Road, there is no sidewalk between the store and Mayle's home, where the family has lived for about two years. Mayle said that when it rains, water drains from Point Marion Road into his front yard and makes the ground "swampy." Between Mayle's home and Cottrell's store, there is a muddy driveway where the dirt hasn't settled.

"I just try to take the best path and we tiptoe around the puddles and the mud," he said. When Frankie Cottrell, store owner, heard what was happening to his neighbor, he stepped up to the plate. "We are planning to put some gravel down once the weather cooperates, probably within the next week," he said. Mayle said bus drivers should treat the small mobile home park where he lives differently than a housing development. "This is not like a suburban area stop at each block and the kids have a sidewalk to use," he said. "This is where a bus driver can make one a totally different situation because there is no berm or sidewalks. You have to walk along the road or in the mud. I don't think that's fair."

Schuetzner said buses don't make multiple stops within developments. Drivers pick students up at the entrances of housing developments in the area. For example, there is one stop at the entrance of Greystone at Cheat Lake and another at the exit from the development.

Mayle said he just wants what's best for his daughter.

"I think it's unfair that the school buses can't see what's going on there and take two seconds out for an extra stop," he said.

Schneutzner said, "Cottrell's is the best and safest place for this

Preston considers deputy for town police patrols

Small towns could pool funds to pay

BY KATHY PLUM The Dominion Post

KINGWOOD - Preston County commissioners discussed police patrols in the county's small towns and schools Monday.

Commissioner Craig Jennings raised both issues, after presentations by Sheriff Ron Crites and Preston Schools Assistant Superintendent Mike Teets.

"There are some places in the county they can't really afford a department of their own," Jennings said.

Preston has 10 incorporated communities, ranging in size from Bruceton Mills, population 75, to Kingwood, with a population of 2,954, according to the U.S. Census Web site's 2006 numbers. The census estimates the county population for 2006 at 30,384.

Only Kingwood, Masontown, Reedsville and Rowlesburg have full- or part-time police officers. Crites said Kingwood approached him about providing some coverage but only offered $10 per hour, which he considers an unrealistic number. He suggested towns pool their resources, and perhaps it would justify hiring another deputy, who could be dedicated to town patrols.

The sheriff's department has 12 road deputies, one investigator, the chief deputy and the sheriff. Six state police troopers are assigned to the Kingwood barracks.

Crites said state legislation was passed in the mid-1990s to allow something like that being discussed. Pennsylvania towns do something similar, he said. "Could we try to find an area that does do that and talk with them? There's no sense reinventing the wheel," Commissioner Vicki Cole said.

Commissioner Dave Price said 'taxpayers would benefit" from such an arrangement.

"We need to get with all the mayors," Jennings said. "We haven't had any formal conversations with them." After Teets made his presentation on the schools' work on a sys-

WVU to use fed funds for MS center

Will also build medical simulation training facilities

BY LINDSEY FLEMING

The Dominion Post Federal funds to the tune of $6 million will allow WVU's Health Sciences Center to better care for West Virginia residents, said a university medical official.

A research center to study treatment for multiple sclerosis and other neurodegenerative diseases will be built with more than $3.4 million of the funds, said Fred Butcher, WVU Health Sciences Center interim vice president.

He said the rest, about $2.6 million, will go toward constructing and equipping medical simulation research and training centers across the state.

"The center will house the people who are doing the type of research to contribute to the next generation of therapies for MS," Butcher said. "We already have outstanding folks here who deliver care for multiple sclerosis, we're just adding onto that."

He estimates that more than 3,000 people suffer from MS in the state. He said the average age of onset of the disease is about 30.

"It strikes people down in the prime of their life," he said. "It has an enormous impact on society."

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., helped allocate the funding for these projects, according to a statement from his office, as well as $20 million in 2005 to build WVU's biomedical center — which WVU officials say should be completed by 2009.

Butcher said the university also borrowed $20 million from state agencies to help construct the 120,000square-foot facility. The MS center will be located within it.

WVU President Michael Garrison said the new MS center will have a significant impact of its own on society.

"The multiple sclerosis and neurodegenerative diseases research center is a wonderful example of how WVU's medical and scientific expertise can improve lives," he said. "What is learned here will not only help West Virginians with MS, but will reach far beyond the borders of the state to help people throughout the world.'

The goal of the research center is to improve care for patients, and their families and caregivers who are dealing with neurodegenerative diseases, such as MS, epilepsy, Parkinson's and Alzheimer's diseases, Butcher said.

"By bringing in people dedicated to researching these diseases, we will lift the quality of care for those afflicted with them," he said.

The other $2.6 million will help give those training to be doctors, nurses, dentists and pharmacists hands-on experience without involving actual patients.

Solutions that meet inspection

City should look to sharing staff, data of fire department, code enforcement

Housing inspectors' and fire marshals' roles are to find fault ... and to find remedies.

In recent years, Morgantown's housing Code Enforcement Office has often found itself somewhere between constantly playing catch up and improving its results.

Meanwhile, the city's fire department has got its fire marshal inspections down to a science, where an online tracking

Obviously, all these inspectors could be trained to enforce both codes system even sounds the alarm when reinspections are needed.

Although the city is making headway in shoring up staff and software needs of the Code Enforcement Office, it appears other solutions should be explored in the interim.

One idea that we think might have merit is to allow for crosstraining of fire marshal inspectors to conduct housing code inspections, when time allows.

And despite the city manager's prior rejections of efforts to consolidate parts of the housing inspection office into the fire department, this idea also appears to have merit.

Apparently the biggest obstacle to allowing for such creative solutions are the two agencies enforce two different codes and require two different kinds of certification.

Furthermore, housing code inspectors are required to be under the supervision of a practicing engineer while the fire department's employees are under civil service rules.

Obviously, all these inspectors could be trained to enforce both codes; however, changing civil service rules probably would require legislative action.

That action should provide for fire department employees to temporarily be placed under the supervision of another department, or city employees should serve as fire marshals without becoming civil service employees.

Another idea that makes sense to us is to explore either merging or sharing the inspection databases of both housing code enforcement and the fire department.

Even if the departments cannot be cross-trained or work under the same supervisors, the information that has been compiled by both should be available to both.

In other words, efforts by code enforcement officers and fire marshals should serve the needs of the community, not the bureaucracy that created them. In the matter of housing code and fire code inspections, we should have complete flexibility so we can meet the needs of this community. We urge City Council and the city manager to explore with our legislators creative solutions to regularly inspect the increasing number of rental and commercial properties.

If we only tweaked some archaic rules, we could lay out a system in our community that plays to our strengths and addresses our weaknesses.

Stimulus checks only add to our nation's woes

After reading an article in The Dominion Post on Feb. 18, I felt compelled to write.

The article to which I am referring regards the upcoming tax rebate, which we are to receive around the middle of May. It is hoped that those who receive the money will go on a spending spree, thereby helping to boost our flagging economy.

People! Wake up and smell the coffee (or, in this instance, tea?). Before you get too excited about having a little extra money in your pockets, do you not know where the money is coming from? We're borrowing it from China — of all places!

You will use this money to purchase items which, in most instances, have been made in China; thereby furthering their economy, not ours. Do you not see the irony in that? When was the last time you were able to purchase clothing (for example) actually made in the United States?

I'll just offer one more bit of food for thought for you to try to digest before you head off to a job which you hope you will still have tomorrow. When it comes time for this loan to be repayed, ask yourself where that money will be coming from. Inasmuch as Sen. Jay Rockefeller seems so eager for us to do business with Japan, perhaps we can borrow it from them. Then they can "officially" own us.

Have a great day — while you can!

Women's team deserves support of WVU students

Eric Herter's column, "Win and they might come," in the Feb. 17 sports section seems a bit slanted. I guess that is the way he wanted it to be.

I, on the other hand, would like to look at the largest crowd [at a WVU women's basketball team game] data a bit differently. I went to the women's basketball media guide and took the top game attendances then added in the top attendance

I chose the top 20 games and this is what I show. In those 20 games WVU is 12-8, using some ancient games just like Herter. I think what is more telling is the

On another note, I was personally disappointed that the students did not show up like they do for the men's games. That would have really been special and could have pushed attendance beyond 10,000. Maybe next year.

My wife and I are WVU women's basketball season ticket holders and have been since we moved to Morgantown in 1997. We are going to be there to support the ladies always. on either we are already placing ourselves in a minority, general ly speaking. These two subjects when discussed can make the calmest person you know blow up into an infuriated animal. Also, in the right crowd, these two subjects can bridge the divide that has separated our nation for years. It has broken family relationships as well as divided friends of all races. In the midst of all the polls being taken, we see few true polls about how America feels about issues that are dear to them. The reason being is that reporters do not ask the hard questions or are not allowed to ask them and accurately print their results.

Religion and politics have divided far too many families over the years. Both subjects when discussed have a bias from the person leading the discussion.

When speaking of religion, many folks have dropped out of the name-line denominations due to corruption within the churches. Studies have revealed that many of the leaders have been involved in such things as molestation of children to an abandoning the teachings found in God's Word.

The inner problems of political parties and denominations have caused the rise of many independent parties and churches. I have found that when I speak on either subject there's always someone who wants to defend the wrongs of the parties and churches. With that in mind, are we trying to lead Americans back to God when we fight among ourselves? We need to look everyone up on his own needs; and then if we can help them to see the light, be willing to do just that. The election season is in full swing, but few if any candidates are standing on the promises of God. We, the people, will never succeed as along as we have this constant division and betrayal of the promises of God through Jesus Christ in America.

Misplaced hope can be a dangerous thing in our nation

'Hope is a dangerous thing," says "Red" to "Andy" in the 1994 film "The Shawshank Redemption." Red, played by Morgan Freeman, means that Andy, played by Tim Robbins, risks despair if he hopes to get out of prison.

The sentiment is worth considering when it comes to politics. Can too much trust in a politician also be dangerous and lead to despair, even cynicism? Those old enough to recall the political scene in the '60s when first John F. Kennedy and then his brother, Robert, were assassinated, know the dangers of hope and what can happen when such hope is crushed. In the '60s, crushed hope produced rebellion, even anarchy, along with despair.

Now we're told (by members of the Kennedy family, no less) that Sen. Barack Obama is the reincarnation of the hope that was lost when

THOMAS

Jack was murdered in 1963 and Bobby was killed in 1968. And we watch as another generation of the young, informed by their history books and black-and-white film of those days, become disciples of another young and handsome politician with a pretty wife and cute children. Will history repeat? God forbid. But will another generation be disappointed when the one in whom they are placing so much hope cannot possibly deliver?

This is where mature and experienced adults can steady the enthusiasm of the young and inexperienced. The Washington Post Magazine recently carried a cover story by Jeffrey Birnbaum titled "How Lobbyists Always Win: Dispatches from Washington's Relentless Growth Industry." It is a reminder of how, no matter who is president and which party controls government, lobbyists are part of the permanent class and very little can change without their participation and approval. Numerous "reformers" have come to Washington in the past, promising change. As often happens, they don't change Washington; Washington changes them.

One of the Kennedy campaign songs in 1960 was "High Hopes." The original lyrics of the song include the line "He had high apple pie, in the sky hopes." That could describe

Hope must be grounded in objective truth, otherwise it quickly becomes wishful thinking. I might hope my team wins the championship, but if they lack the talent it isn't going to happen. I might hope to win the lottery, but I don't play, and if I did, I'd have better odds of being struck by lightening than taking home the jackpot.

Placing hope in politicians absolves too many of us of our responsibilities. In 1994, when Republicans were on the verge of returning to power in the House for the first time in four decades, one of the books making the rounds was "The Tragedy of American Compassion" by Marvin Olasky. The book traced the history of compassionate behavior and found that most of it came from individuals and religious institutions. The religious institutions offered hope by dedicating themselves to changing the lives of people whose bad choices had put them in need of help. Changed lives produced changed behavior and, thus, changed circumstances, leading to a more hopeful future. Olasky wrote that tragedy occurred when government began to occupy the space once dominated by religious and personal charity, displacing hope and leading to despair.

The "hope" being sold by Obama and his true believers is misplaced. Obama cannot deliver; he cannot save; he cannot improve individual circumstances by redistributing wealth and talking to America's dictatorial enemies. He is selling snake oil.

The writer of the New Testament Book of Hebrews says that, "faith is being sure of what we hope for" (Hebrews 11:1). What we see in Barack Obama is a man with great rhetorical skills, who is untested in battle. Many are projecting their hopes on him because he makes them feel good. What commander would put a lowranking officer in charge of all troops during wartime? We are close to making Obama our commander in chief with no hint of how he might perform, other than to withdraw troops from Iraq.

A President Obama might be worth the risk in peacetime, but with crafty enemies seeking to destroy us, can we afford to make what might be a fatal mistake by electing someone upon whom too many of us gave projected, ungrounded hope?

He was born Thursday, Sept. 23, 1926, at Diamond Street, Elkins, the youngest son of the late Russell Albert Maxson Sr. and Gertrude Etta Weese Maxson.

On July 4, 1961, he was married to the former Kathleen May Swecker, who survives. Spark loved her more than life, and prior to his passing he let her know how much her care had meant to him. Also surviving is their only child, whom he loved dearly, Lois Jean Marsh and husband, Gary, and their son, Preston Scott Marsh, who live in the first home that Spark built. This home is the same one that Lois called home when she was Preston's age.

Spark loved carpentry, and he and Kathleen lived in the second house that he built. Preston thrilled at seeing his grandparents daily, and practiced piano there as his mother had before him. Spark sang along with the hymns Preston played, as he had with Lois at that Preceding him in death are two brothers. James Edgar Maxson and Russell Albert Maxson Jr., who was also his best friend.

Spark attended Elkins High School, was a newspaper carrier, and proudly served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. After returning from service, he worked as a machinist for Western Maryland Railroad for approximately 10 years. He then worked for the Tygart Valley Cable Co. for 34 years, and helped bring cable service to Marietta, OH. Early in his line of work, a cable pole broke with him, breaking almost every bone in his face. He recovered and returned to the cable systemwide security plan, Jennings asked if it includes returning an officer to Preston High. It has been about four years since an officer was maintained there, using grant money received by the county.

"I've gotten more handwritten letters from parents about having an officer in the school than any other issue," Jennings said.

Teets agreed an officer in schools "is just a natural deterrent."

But Prosecuting Attorney $Melvin\ C.\ Snyder\ III,\ who\ serves\ on$ the Safe Schools Council, said the security grant being sought by the Board of Education won't pay personnel. Jennings noted that Preston High, with 1,342 students, plus staff, is equal in size to some of the county's largest towns.

"There is a need not only at the high school, but there is a need at the other facilities for spot checking them," Crites said, referring to other county schools.

Jennings said he is ready to do something about the need. Cole said they need to discuss it as the budget is developed in the coming month. In other actions, commissioners:

■ Approved the sheriff's hiring Sheila Marston to replace a retiring worker in the sheriff's tax office. Marston will start at $17,290 per year and begin in mid-March.

■ Agreed to apply for a $99,430 courthouse security grant. The application is due March 4 and, if approved, money will be available in July. The county is applying for money to upgrade security systems at the courthouse. ■ Agreed to write a letter of support for the McGrew Society, which is applying for an $8,000 grant to repair the McGrew House roof. The county owns McGrew House and has committed $4,500 for the project. The rest will be paid for with a $1,000 Wal-Mart Foundation grant and $2,500 raised by the society.

"That's our roof too," Cole said. ■ Heard Preston County Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Sheila Haney's annual request for $5,000. Haney updated commissioners on the organization's accomplishments for the past year.

Commission. His ties with the state government and Gov. Joe Manchin made some uneasy. Bresch is Manchin's daughter.

WVU professors Nutter and Michael Lastinger are the other two members. The investigation into Bresch's degree began when a press release from her employer, Mylan Inc., announced she was being promoted to chief operating officer. The release stated that Bresch received the degree from WVU's College of Business and Economics in 1998. Reports then questioned if Bresch had finished her MBA at all.

Initial information indicated that she had only 22 of the 48 hours required to earn the degree. But the university then reported that Bresch's credit hours were recorded incorrectly in 1998 by WVU Admissions and Records. These events led to the ongoing investigation.

and because faculty are directly impacted by changes to it.

"It's important that it is accurate because it is turned to by the faculty to find information on policies and procedures," she said.

Several committee members agreed with Kleist. It was then decided by the committee that the draft should also include that every other year volunteers from the faculty senate will review the entire handbook, starting this summer. Kleist said it has been three years since the senate has done that. In other business:

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 26, the 57th day of 2008. There are 309 days left in the year.

HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY: IN 1919, Congress established Grand Canyon National Park in Arizona. ON THIS DATE:

IN 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte escaped from exile on the Island of Elba. IN 1870, an experimental air-

driven subway, the Beach

Pneumatic Transit, opened in New York City. The tunnel was only a block long, and the line had only one car. IN 1952, Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced that Britain had developed its own atomic bomb. IN 1993, a bomb built by Islamic extremists exploded in the parking garage of New York's World Trade Center, killing six people and injuring more than 1,000 others. TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS:

Being one of the guys insulting to many gals

DEAR ABBY: I had to write regarding the letter from "Disgruntled in Lompoc, Calif." (Dec. 28), whose pet peeve is waitstaff (in particular) referring to her and her lady friends as "guys."

sick to death of being called a guy. When it happens to me, I tell my server that "the last time I looked, I was NOT a guy!" Sometimes they get it — sometimes not.

I notice that on some of the $\ensuremath{\mathrm{TV}}$ shows I watch, even women refer to a group of people as "guys." I hate it — and would ask you, with your worldwide influence, to bring the issue forward. We are NOT "guys," we are "people" or "folks" or "ladies and gentlemen"! Or else, Merriam-Webster will have to change its definition of "guys. Thanks for letting me vent. — JACKI IN WILBRAHAM, MASS.

DEAR JACKI: I had no idea when I printed that letter that it would hit such a nerve with my readers, but oh, sister, have I heard from them! While I, too, would prefer to have my femininity acknowledged rather than to be called a guy, I would, however, not let it ruin my meal if it happened.

And, as to Merriam-Webster's definition of a "guy," — my 11th Edition says in black and white that "guy" can refer to "any person" when used colloquially. Frankly, I found it so surprising

Well, 3,000 miles away, I, too, am that I looked in the American Heritage College Dictionary to see if there was agreement, and it also

> DEAR ABBY: As I have told my ESL students, "guys" is acceptable colloquial English. In the singular, it refers to a male, of course. However, in the plural it may refer to males, males and females, or even iust females. — NICK LONGO. RACINE, WIS.

either sex." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Almost 40 years ago, my wife's college roommates would tease her for using the phrase "you guys." (My wife was born in central California.) Our college chums were all from down South.

If familiar (perhaps overly familiar) slang bothers "Disgruntled," all she has to do is reply, "I'm not a guy. Are YOU?" Nothing will change behavior quicker than public humiliation. — FAITHFUL READER IN FORT WORTH (OR AS WE SAY IT HERE, 'FOAT WUTH')

Huggins has no fear about his contract

WHILE THE ONGOING BATTLE between West Virginia University and former football coach Rich Rodriguez rages on, there is some good news and bad news to report on the contract negotiations for men's basketball coach Bob Huggins.

The bad news, obviously, is that nearly 11 months have gone by since Huggins was hired as coach and no contract has been

On the surface, that seems like

Bob Huggins really bad news, considering the rumblings from Rodriguez on broken promises by WVU. It makes one wonder if there is something similar going on with Huggins' contract talks.

Also, Huggins, who is under a term sheet right now with WVU, had his contract signed with Kansas State in less than three months.

"I'm still getting paid, if that's your concern," Huggins joked prior to the Providence game last

The good news is there seems to be nothing of major concern on why the talks between WVU and Huggins have taken so long. 'There's really nothing there,"

Huggins said. "Both sides have been talking. It's just been a matter of wording."

Huggins' agent, Richard Katz, also confirmed there is nothing to worry about.

"It's just a matter of language right now," Katz said. "Both sides have been going back and forth on it. There isn't anything out there that will keep it from getting

Neither would specify what the wording detailed, but Huggins has said time and again this season he isn't going anywhere else to

"I'm not worried about [the contract negotiations]," Huggins said. "It's the least of my concerns. You know, I left a great job to come here. When I leave here, it's going to be me going to my farm to go fishing.'

Katz said he wanted to make a point that Huggins' contract negotiations had nothing to do with any kind of funny business on the part of West Virginia University.

In its lawsuit over Rodriguez's $4 million dollar buyout, Rodriguez stated the school reneged on certain promises, like one to eliminate his buyout

WVU has said there was no such promise made — such is the life of a lawsuit.

"There is absolutely nothing like that going on here and I want to say that emphatically," Katz said. "There is nothing going on like there is with the Rodriguez situation and I can't say that enough. Really, it's all about wording in certain situations at this point."

As for Huggins, the only court Huggins is interested in is the basketball court.

"I don't want to be involved in any kind of lawsuit," Huggins said. "At least not on my account."

As to why it takes nearly 11 months to get the right wording in a contract, well it's fair to say WVU Director of Athletics Ed Pastilong has been a little preoccupied lately with the Rodriguez situation, as well as his own contract negotiations. Pastilong recently updated his own contract that will have him serve as Athletic Director Emeritus through June 30, 2010, when he'll retire from the university.

Also, Katz recently spent some time in the hospital for what he called "routine things."

"I don't think you can put any timetable on something like this when negotiating with a school," Katz said. "It will get done."

WVU attorneys want answers

File motion to get Rodriguez to discuss three questions

BY DREW RUBENSTEIN

The Dominion Post

Rich Rodriguez objected and declined to answer three questions in West Virginia University's initial written discovery request to the former football coach in Decem-

On Monday, WVU attorneys filed a motion to compel in Monongalia County Circuit Court to move forward the lawsuit f for hearing before Circuit Judge Robert. B. Stone, seeking the answers to those questions.

The motion "moves the Court . for the entry of an order compelling the defendant and thirdparty plaintiff, Richard Rodriguez, to fully and completely answer written discovery served by the University," the document reads.

The university is also seeking an award for all expenses incurred in the prosecution of the matter, including attorneys' fees.

On Dec. 27, WVU initiated the civil action against Rodriguez, seeking the $4 million buyout in his contract when he resigned as the school's football coach to accept the same position at the University of Michigan. Rodriguez received the complaint on Dec. 29 and responded to the university on Feb.

The first discovery request asked Rodriguez to "state the date, location and participants of all meetings, including meetings conducted by telecommunication or other electronic communication, between the defendant, or representatives of the defendant, and representatives of the University of Michigan regarding employment of the defendant as the head coach of the University of Michigan football team."

The second asked for him to "produce all documents or other tangible items reflecting and/or relating to all meetings ...'

The third question asked Rodriguez to state any 2008 WVU football recruits he contacted or had someone else at WVU contact them from Dec. 16-18, 2007.

On Dec. 16, Rodriguez announced to his team that he was leaving to become the coach at Michigan. He was introduced as the Wolverines' coach on Dec. 17, and officially resigned from WVU on Dec. 19, at midnight.

Rodriguez objected to the three requests, claiming the information requested was not relevant to claims by either side in the lawsuit and that it would not lead to the discovery of any admissible evidence.

"They are irrelevant to the case. It's got nothing to do with the case.

Former West Virginia receiver Darius Reynaud is climbing up NFL teams' draft boards. Some scouts have projected the receiver to be selected as high as the third round. That's good news for Reynaud's girlfriend, Dominique Dixon, who has been hinting for the couple to get married.

Reynaud's plans

Young daughter changed receiver's outlook

The Dominion Post

INDIANAPOLIS — She captivated his heart, and changed him

In the locker room before games, Darius Reynaud holds a picture of her to the left side of his chest for a moment before he pulls on his shoulder pads and his jersey and runs onto the football field.

He plays for her, his 3-year-old daughter, Darion.

"She wasn't planned, but I'm glad she's here now," said Reynaud, who regards Darion as his inspiration on the field. "When guys have kids, that's their first thing, man. You feel like you have to take care of your child, and I feel that's what I'm doing.'

This need to take care of Darion and his girlfriend, Dominique Dixon, is one of the main reasons Reynaud came out for the NFL draft a year early.

After a junior season that ended with 733 receiving yards and 12 touchdowns, Reynaud decided that it was time to explore his

Darius Reynaud

"I felt that I'd done all I can do at West Virginia, and it's been my dream to play in the NFL, so I've got to take advantage of that right now while I got the opportunity,'

Revnaud said. Reynaud signed with Arizonabased sports agency Lock, Metz. and Malinovic, and spent the last two months at Athletes Performance in Scottsdale, Ariz., training for the NFL Scouting Combine alongside teammate Steve

So far, his hard work looks to have paid off.

He's worked his way onto the wide receivers' top 10 list in five of the seven physical drills at the Combine.

Reynaud is 10th in the vertical jump (34.5 inches), third in the broad jump (10 feet, 7 inches), 10th in the three-cone drill (6.88s), sixth in the 60-yard shuttle run, and tied for third in the bench press (20).

He even out-benched his workout buddy Slaton, who managed 19 repetitions.

And while Slaton is mired in the middle of one of the deepest running back draft classes in recent vears, it looks like Reynaud picked a good year to come out as a wide receiver.

"Reynaud's an interesting guy," said NFL analyst Vic Carucci. "To me, this is a receiver class where there can be a lot of movement. We don't have a Calvin Johnson or Roy Williams here, where everybody's talking about. We don't have the kind of draft here where I hear a lot of gushing about

"I think this may be the strongest class of offensive tackles and running backs in a long time. But wide receiver is wide open, so I think he's got a chance to really do some things. If he doesn't do it here, he can do it on his pro day."

Over the weekend, Reynaud interviewed with an assortment of Coming out of high school, Jenkins was recruited by several top-tier programs including Auburn and Nebraska.

He ultimately chose South Florida because he wanted to stav home to care for his younger brother and his mother.

Women want to plant seed in final Brawl

West Virginia University's women's basketball team is playing for more than a season sweep of Pitt when the longtime rivals meet tonight at the Petersen Events Center.

With three games remaining in the regular season, the 13th-ranked Mountaineers (22-4, 11-2 Big East) are jockeying for seeding in two postseason tournaments: Big East and NCAA.

A victory over the Panthers (18-8, 8-5) would likely lock up a No. 3 seed in next month's Big East Tournament, which means a first-round bye for the Mountaineers. "I've told the girls we're not only playing these last three games for seeding in the Big East Tournament, we're also playing these games for seeding in the NCAAs," WVU coach Mike Carey said. "These next three games are very important for us."

The

WVU shooting guard Meg Bulger isn't expecting the Panthers to play that poorly tonight in the rematch. "They're definitely going to come out fired up," Bulger said. "I know their coach pretty well. She's not going to take that game lightly.' Pitt has lost two more games since falling to WVU, extending its Big East losing streak to four. The Panthers need wins in their final three regular-season games to move into the fourth spot in the Big East standings tournament.

"There's no doubt in my mind they're going to come out and give everything they've got," Carey said.

The Mountaineers turned in a stellar defensive effort in the first Pitt game, effectively using a 2-3 zone against the cold-shooting Panthers. WVU held center Marcedes Walker without a field goal. She finished with just two points but grabbed 10 rebounds in only 22 minutes of action.

"Hopefully, we can continue that," WVU center Olayinka Sanni said of the Mountaineers' defense against Pitt. "We have to come out with great poise and intensity. We have to be more focused on our defense and do what we can do best and not worry about their offense and what they can do."

WVU may or may not have the services of senior guard LaQuita Owens tonight. She was suspended indefinitely this past Friday for an undisclosed violation of team rules and did not play in Saturday's 76-55 win over Villanova at the Coliseum. Carey said Monday Owens has returned to practice, but he has not decided whether Owens will play in tonight's game. "She might play; she might not,"

Carey said.

Bulger will start either way in her final collegiate game in her Pittsburgh hometown. She played well in WVU's 91-64 romp over Duquesne in Pittsburgh on Dec. 7 and wants a sweep of the Pittsburgh schools in her senior season.

Seven home games highlight football schedule

Four games already selected for television

Staff and wire reports

On Monday, West Virginia University Director of Athletics Ed Pastilong has announced the 2008 football schedule, highlighted by seven home games and an attractive non-conference slate.

"I am excited about this year's schedule," Pastilong said. "We have seven home games, which always is good for our fan base. Four games are already slated for national television. West Virginia's road games at Colorado and Pitt, along with homes games against Auburn and South Florida, are slated to be televised on the ESPN family of networks.

"Our schedule, once again, is not only attractive but tough, featuring conference rivals and outstanding non-conference opponents," WVU football coach Bill Stewart said. "The overall schedule will provide many challenges, and I think our fans and supporters will enjoy it."

WVU's Villers earns EWL wrestler of the week honors

Submitted to The Dominion Post

West Virginia University senior Jared Villers has earned Eastern Wrestling League wrestler of the week honors after recording two victories this past weekend over Edinboro and Cleveland State.

The 197-pounder also received the annual EWL award for Most Points in intraleague dual meets, garnering 29 total dual points against EWL competition. His accomplishment tops 14 other nationally ranked grapplers in the league.

"This is a very significant accomplishment for Jared," WVU coach

WVU ROUNDUP

Craig Turnbull said. "Of all the great EWL wrestlers, it shows his dominance throughout the season in his weight class and puts him in an elite category."

The Akron, Ohio, resident went 13-0 in dual matches this season and outscored his EWL opponents, 72-5. In his final seven matches, he registered four consecutive technical falls, a pin fall and two major decisions.

Villers finished with a team-leading 17-2 overall record and took fourth place against some of the top NCAA wrestlers at the Cliff Keen Invitational in Las Vegas. Villers' last loss occurred on Dec. 1, 2007, in the third-place match of the Invitational.

"It's a nice recognition for his outstanding work this year, and hopefully he can take it into the EWL tournament," Turnbull said.

Villers earns the second EWL weekly honor of his career and joins senior Zac Fryling and junior Kurt Brenner in winning the award this season.

Women's soccer workouts begin

The WVU women's soccer team opened its spring season Monday with a morning workout at the Caperton Indoor Facility. The Mountaineers will train until April 25, with a game at Maryland to conclude the spring season.

WVU travels to Penn State on March 1. It's the first of five competition dates allowed by the NCAA.

The Mountaineers visit James Madison on April 5. WVU will also play Purdue in the Betty Puskar Breast Care Center Soccer Invitational on April 13. Kickoff is noon at Dick Dlesk Soccer Stadium.

The spring booking concludes with weekend trips to Ohio State on April 21 and Maryland on April 25.

"I am very excited about the competition we will be playing this spring," WVU coach Nikki Izzo-Brown said. "We will be playing four NCAA teams and the Big Ten champs in Purdue. It's a tough schedule that will allow us to see some weaknesses to improve on for the fall."

To get a jump start on the 2008 season, WVU will take advantage of an NCAA rule that allows it to schedule an out-of-country tour every four years. The Mountaineers will take a 10-day trip to Italy and Czech Republic on March 20-30.

PHILADELPHIA - DominicJames scored 25 points, and Lazar Hayward added 15 points and nine rebounds to lead No. 21 Marquette to an 85-75 victory over Villanova on Monday night.

Jerel McNeal scored 14 points and Maurice Acker had 12 for Marquette (21-6, 11-5 Big East). The Golden Eagles won their fourth straight game and eighth of 10.

Scottie Reynolds led Villanova (17-10, 7-8) with 14 points, while Dante Cunningham and Corey Stokes each

The Golden Eagles went 10-for-23 from 3-point range; Villanova was only 2-for-15.

The Wildcats had won four of five overall, including a 67-65 victory over then-No. 13 Connecticut on Saturday, that again energized their hopes for a possible NCAA tournament at-large bid. A win over the Golden Eagles would have been a huge boost to their confidence and RPI, especially with a game Saturday at No. 13 Louisville.

Now, Villanova's bid for a fourth straight NCAA tournament appearance is a long shot.

They blew an early second-half lead mostly because of a season-high 23 turnovers. They flopped on some ill-timed bad passes that either sailed out of bounds or were converted into easy baskets by Marquette.

Two costly turnovers came midway through the second half that allowed Marquette to grab a doubledigit lead and take control of the David Cubillan stole a pass under turnover — and scored an easy layup. Cunningham was whistled for goaltending on the next possession to help Marquette take a 68-58 lead.

The Wildcats had opened a small lead on a string of tough inside baskets. Reynolds slowly dribbled the ball to halfcourt, saw an opening and streaked through two defenders for an underhand layup. He drew a foul and converted the three-point play for a 52-51 lead.

Dwayne Anderson had the dunk of the game when he was there to slam Corey Fisher's missed layup just as the ball was about to fall off the rim, Fowles finished with 26 points and 11 rebounds to lead LSU.

Kaili McLaren had 11 points and 12 rebounds and Renee Montgomery scored 10 points in a tense, physical game that sent players from both teams hard to the floor. At one point in the second half, Connecticut head coach Geno Auriemma launched into a tirade and was assessed a technical foul as he was held back by assistant coaches.

The game marked the second time less than two weeks that LSII had faced a No. 1 team. The Lady Tigers were impressive in their first such opportunity, beating Tennessee by 16 points on Feb. 14.

LSU coach Van Chancellor called his team's contest against the Huskies the game of the year in women's college basketball.

Although these giants of the women's game don't play in the same conference, they have a history. UConn pulled out a dramatic onepoint victory in Baton Rouge last season, only to suffer one of its worst NCAA tournament losses to the Lady Tigers last spring.

POWER POLL

The Dominion Post's Eric Hanlon picks the area's top 10 teams:

1. MHS girls' basketball — Right now the Mohigans are the most dangerous team in the state. They are the defending state champions, they have won nine straight games, they have the best player in the state (senior Cynthia Fullard), and they just recently ended University's championship hopes.

2. MHS boys' basketball — The NCAC champions won't play another team with a winning record until the second round of the playoffs. Senior Craig Carey seems to get better every week and the rest of his team is just as good.

3. Trinity boys' basketball — Every player at every position scores for the Warriors who now have won 15 games on the season. Not to mention, they have a legitimate shot of making the state tournament.

4. UHS wrestling — The Hawks may have overachieved at the state tournament, but what really matters are results and UHS had five wrestlers place while senior Jon Waldron won his first state

5. Grafton wrestling — The Bearcats may not have done as well as they originally hoped at states, but they did finish in the top 10 and had three wrestlers place. Plus, sophomore Cameron Gallaher finished an unbeated season while winning the state championship.

6. Grafton boys' basketball — With the Bearcats firing on all cylinders, nothing should be able to stop them from making the state tournament but themselves. If they don't stumble early, they will be a fun team to watch this postseason.

10. UHS girls' swimming — The Hawks took seventh at states and that isn't too bad. They probably were hoping to do a little better, but with the year they had they have nothing to be ashamed of.

State wrestling tourney has all the right pieces

WITH THE NCAA MEN'S basketball tournament quickly approaching, it got me thinking. By many, March Madness is considered the mother of all postseason tournaments, but is it really?

Well as far as college sports go it may be, but at the high school ranks, the NCAA men's basketball tournament doesn't hold a candle to the state wrestling tournament. In fact, no sport jams as much action into such a small time frame.

The state wrestling tournament lasts for only three days, which is far surpassed by the few weeks most postseasons take to complete.

At first glance, any unsuspecting sports fan would view the wrestling tournament as a simple event that's over before you know it. In reality that isn't the case at

In those three days, there are nearly 20 hours of non-stop action.

But, what would this tournament be without the wrestlers. Filling these mats for nearly 20 hours over the three-day time span is 448 different wrestlers.

That is quite an impressive number of competitors all vying for a championship. Putting it into perspective, the NCAA basketball tournament only includes 65 teams.

In fact, the West Virginia high school basketball tournament which includes every school in the state only reaches 120 teams (37 teams at the Class AAA level, 41 teams at Class AA and 42 at Class A).

What really separates the wrestling tournament from all of others is that taking place at this tournament there isn't just one bracket tree, there are 28.

With 14 different weight class es and one champion being awarded in both the Class AAA and Class AA/A, that makes for a whole lot of competition. Plus each weight class has 16 different wrestlers competing in its bracktournament blows all others out of the water as there are 812 individual matches and 30 different state champions crowned (28 individuals and two schools).

When it's all said and done, the

By comparison, the NCAA tournament only has 64 total games played and six rounds of competition.

And if there is any shadow of a doubt left on how enormous the state tournament is, picture this; it is a double elimination tournament.

As if putting about 450 wrestlers in the same room and having them slug it out one time wasn't enough, the state has determined that everyone should get a second chance in case of an early round upset.

Granted, those that have lost early on in the tournament can only get as high as third place but that's better than nothing. In the NCAA tournament that possibility isn't there and if a team like Duke loses early on, they're done, and their season is ruined.

Personally I think double elimination adds more enjoyment to the tournament as it awards consolation prizes in which a clear cut third place, fourth place, fifth place, and sixth place winner can be named and no other tournament does that.

Sampson must cooperate with NCAA

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Former Indiana coach Kelvin Sampson's separation agreement with the university will not be finalized until March Sampson signed the deal Friday, but university spokesman Larry MacIntyre said Monday the Hoosiers ex-coach has 21 days to revoke the deal that includes provisions which prevent Sampson from suing the university.

The agreement, which was obtained through a Freedom of Information request, also requires Sampson to continue cooperating with the NCAA investigation and bars him from interfering with any team activities.

"Sampson shall not interfere in any way with the activities of the men's basketball team and shall not discourage the current members from cooperating with the transition to a new head coach, from remaining active members of the team, and from playing to their full potential in all competition events," the agreement states.

Sampson took a $750,000 buyout last Friday in return for his immediate resignation after the NCAA accused him of five major rules violations. The university also included a clause saying that the deal does not, in any way, indicate Sampson believed he had any legitimate legal claims against the school.

Indiana has until May 8 to respond to the NCAA charges and is scheduled to appear before the infractions committee June 14 in Seattle. A decision is expected within 30 days of the hearing, where Sampson has said he looks forward to defending himself. The university could also ask the infractions committee to move the hearing up to April although there is no guarantee the request would be granted.

Sampson took the Indiana job in March 2006 and two months later was penalized by the NCAA for making 577 impermissible phone calls between 2000 and 2004 when he was coaching Oklahoma.

The second wave of charges emerged in October when a university investigation found Sampson and his staff made more than 100 impermissible calls while still under recruiting restrictions and that Sampson participated in at least 10 three-way calls, another violation of the NCAA's punishment.

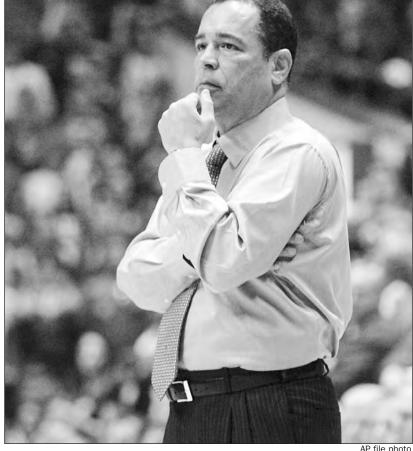

Athletic director Rick Greenspan called the violations secondary, imposing a one-year extension of the NCAA's recruiting restrictions and pulling a $500,000 raise. The Hoosiers also took away one scholarship for

However, an NCAA report released Feb. 13 by Indiana claimed Sampson provided false and misleading information to investigators from both the university and the NCAA, failed to meet the "generally recognized high standard of honesty" expected in college sports and failed to promote an atmosphere of compliance within the program.

Sampson has denied intentionally providing investigators with false information, and the university's deal says he is expected to cooperate with the adjudication process.

'Sampson shall fully cooperate with the NCAA process with regard to any NCAA investigation, proceeding or hearing, relating to or indirectly arising out of Sampson's activities as the head men's basketball coach of Indiana University's men's intercollegiate basketball team or the operations or activities of Indiana University's men's intercollegiate basketball team or any coaches or staff members during the period of April 20, 2006 and including the effective date.'

Following the NCAA report, university president Michael McRobbie announced IU would take a second look at the charges, setting a Friday deadline for Greenspan to make his recommendation.

As part of Kelvin Sampson's buyout with Indiana, the former coach has 21 days to revoke the deal and is also is barred from interfering with any team activities.

Vols grab their first top spot

MEN'S college basketball rankings. Page 2-B.

Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — It's Tennessee's turn to feel the pressure of playing as No. 1.

The Volunteers ascended to the top of The Associated Press college basketball poll for the first time in the program's 99-year history after their 66-62 win over previously unbeaten Memphis, which dropped from No. 1 to 2.

Coach Bruce Pearl said his team had "everything to gain and nothing to lose" playing the Tigers, who were feeling the pressure of preserving a perfect season and protecting the top ranking.

Now his Vols (25-2) are facing the same predicament as they prepare to face No. 18 Vanderbilt on Tuesday in Nashville, a game that could hold the key to winning the Southeastern Conference.

"There's always a big prize for Vanderbilt to beat Tennessee and Tennessee to beat Vanderbilt," Pearl said during a Monday luncheon. "What we've done is we've made it a bigger prize coming in with a No. 1 ranking.

It's a new perspective for a team that has long played in the shadows of Tennessee's women's basketball team and Volunteers football.

The men's program hasn't outranked the women's program in the AP poll since January 1982, the same year the NCAA started its women's tournament. The men were ranked 15th midway through a 21-10 season under coach Don DeVoe while the women were briefly unranked.

The football team has been ranked No. 1 during four seasons in which they won two national titles. Under Pat Summitt, the Lady Vols have been a fixture of the women's poll and have won seven national championships.

The Vols men's basketball team, which has never been ranked higher than No. 4 before this season, received 69 first-place votes from the 72-member national media panel to become the 53rd school to hold the No. 1 ranking since the poll began for the 1948-49 season. They're the sixth SEC team to reach the top.

Beyond the pressure of playing a No. 1, Tennessee is trying to grab its first outright SEC regular-season title since 1967. It won't be easy as the Vols are in the middle of the toughest stretch of their schedule.

After facing the Commodores, Tennessee hosts Kentucky and travels to Florida.

Pearl said his team has built confidence in pulling out the close wins that have propelled them to the top.

This team has been resilient and they've found ways to win or not lose," he said. "We're going to go to Vanderbilt and try to find a way not to lose.'

Pearl said the Vols might find beating the Commodores even tougher than beating Memphis with only two days to prepare.

The team didn't get a lot of sleep after arriving home around 2:30 a.m. Sunday and only watched film and shot free throws in their practice later that afternoon. They left for Nashville on Monday afternoon.

Friends have told Pearl the grueling schedule is starting to show.

"I've had people tell me, 'Coach, you don't look good.' We're 25-2, I don't care what I look like," he said.

neys, about a second letter WVU attorney Tom Flaherty sent seeking answers following Rodriguez's first response.

However, WVU believes the information could be crucial to the case.

"The requests seek information concerning circumstances surrounding Rodriguez's employment with the University of Michigan, which are indeed relevant given that Rodriguez claims that his termination of the contract by [WVU] was not voluntary but prompted by the anticipatory breach of the contract by [WVU]," Flaherty and fellow WVU attorney Jeff Wakefield wrote. "Information concerning why the University of Michigan football position was accepted by Rodriguez and the timing of the acceptance is relevant to determining whether Rodriguez's actions were in any way related to any alleged breaches of the contract by [WVU].

"Similarly, information as to the contact by Rodriguez of student athlete recruits of [WVU] for the 2008 football season is relevant to whether Rodriguez was honoring the terms of the contract with [WVU]."

WVU's attorneys also filed a motion for a scheduling conference and entry of scheduling to expedite the disposition of action before Judge Stone on Monday. Flaherty said WVU would like to get all depositions in before Michigan's spring football practices begin, to avoid Rodriguez's time constraints as he works with his new team. That point was noted in the motion filed on Monday, as Flaherty and Wakefield claimed Rodriguez would otherwise "impede the prompt disposition of this action." Flaherty also hopes the lawsuit will be resolved before the 2008 football season begins for the same reasons. The lawsuit was briefly sent to federal court before getting sent back to state court. At least for the time being, Robon said his side is fine with the venue.

"I have been told this judge is very fair," Robon said. "The only way we'd want to move is if it moves to a Robon said later this week his side will be filing a notice of deposition. Among those he plans to despose "around mid March" is WVU Director of Athletics Ed Pastilong.

"We are going to despose a whole lot of people at some point in time," Robon said. "We are marching forward and expect the truth to come out. All of a sudden we'll be pushing some buttons." Rodriguez would like to see the matter come to an end, Robon said. Flaherty has constantly claimed WVU will only settle when it receives $4 million from its former coach.

"He is sad it's come to this. He has fond memories of West Virginia," Robon said of Rodriguez. "He thinks, 'If I owed them money, I'd pay it.' But [WVU] made promises to the guy that they didn't keep."

Pastilong did not immediately return a call Monday night.

Edwards outduels reigning champ to win Auto Club 500

Carl Edwards does a back flip off his

FONTANA, Calif. — For Carl Edwards, it's a signal. At least one NASCAR Sprint Cup team is ready to take on Hendrick Motorsports.

Edwards won the rain-delayed Auto Club 500 on Monday, finishing ahead of Jimmie Johnson and Jeff Gordon. In a race that resumed with the 88th of 250 laps, Edwards assumed the lead for good with 13 laps left.

"I hope it's an indication we've caught up with them," Edwards said after the eighth victory of his career. "They still were second and third and they were the guys to beat today. I hope this is a sign we're up to their standards, to their level."

Johnson took the green flag for the final restart in the lead with 26 laps left, but Edwards surged from third. He then showed fine form on his traditional victory backflip after capturing the checkered flag in a race that ended under caution when Dale Jar-up at that point, driving his Roush Fenway No. 99 Ford to a lead of more than four seconds over Johnson. It was his first victory at Fontana but his seventh top-10 finish in eight starts at the track formerly known as California Speedway.

Gordon, who dominated Sunday's rain-interrupted racing, finished third. He was followed by Kyle Busch and Roush's Matt Kenseth, who had won the two previous February races at this track. Another Roush driver, Greg Biffle, won this event in 2005.

A year ago, Johnson and Gordon ended 1-2 in the season points. Johnson won his second straight Cup title and the team rolled up 18 victories in 36 races. The Hendrick contingent also won nine of the 16 races in which NASCAR's new Car of Tomorrow was raced.

The CoT is being used for the entire Sprint Cup schedule in 2008 and its debut on Auto Club Speedway's 2-

"I know that last year I would not have traded my car in for one of theirs at any of the CoT races towards the end of the year," Edwards said. "I thought we had the best car. Everyone knows, all the drivers know for sure, it's what you're sitting in a lot of the times that makes a tiny little difference and I'm proud to be driving this car."

Team co-owner Jack Roush dragged his feet testing the bigger, boxier CoT a year ago. But Roush said that changed last May when he realized other teams were getting too far ahead.

"We went to Bristol (for the first CoT race) and we were 2,000 miles behind what they did in testing on nonsanctioned NASCAR tracks," Roush said. "That was my fault."

He said his team made "a Herculean effort" from that point on to develop the CoT.

On Monday, Edwards went into the final round of pit stops under caution on lap 221 while leading. He came out behind Johnson, Gordon and McMurray.

He quickly passed McMurray after the green flag waved for the start of lap 225 and set out after the leaders, passing Gordon for second on lap 233 and moving alongside Johnson's No. 48 Chevrolet on lap 236.

They stayed side-by-side for almost two laps before Edwards nosed ahead and began to pull away.

"I told my guys, 'We got 'em right where we want 'em.' This is what we prepared for," Edwards said. "I enjoy that kind of stuff."

"Jimmie is always fun to race with," he added. "He's a true racer." Gordon's engine blew seconds before the last of 12 caution flags in the race froze the field.

"Carl Edwards was in another league," he said. "We've got some work to do to catch those guys."

Gordon, a four-time Cup champion, and Johnson got off to a tough start last week at Daytona, finishing 39th and 27th, respectively.

"It's a good rebound from Daytona and we'll roll on," said Johnson, who won 10 races last season. "I was too loose off the corners to do anything with Carl."

Johnson said the new car performed well.

"Maybe another practice session would have helped," Johnson added, referring to all the track time lost to rain Friday and Saturday. "I think it would have helped the whole field.'

About 25,000 fans, far short of the approximate 120,000 capacity, were on hand Monday, with the sun peeking out from high clouds and temperatures moving into the high 60s

The drivers spent most of Sunday waiting through rain, track drying and attempts to stop water seeping through seams of the track. The race finally began about 21/2 hours late, followed by a rain delay of just more than an hour and then a five-hour wait after a downpour. NASCAR and track officials finally gave up after 11 p.m. and postponed the conclusion until Mon-

Newman finishes 10th in California

FONTANA, Calif. — A week after winning the Daytona 500, Ryan Newman added a 10th-place finish in the rain-delayed Auto

That left Newman second to Kyle Busch, Monday's fourth-place finisher, in the season standings, trailing by six points as NASCAR's Sprint Cup series heads for Las Vegas next Sunday.

"The car was

Tenth was exactly where Newman's Penske Racing Dodge was late Sunday night when NASCAR decided to postpone the conclusion of the race following an unsuccessful five-hour attempt to dry the two-mile Auto Club Speedway.

They had run 87 of 250 schedule laps to that point.

'Our car just held it's own. We spent an extra day and an extra 168 laps and ended up in the same spot, so it's all right," Newman added.

Solid run

New series leader Kyle Busch couldn't pull off the three-peat he was hoping for.

After winning the Craftsman Truck Series race on Saturday, the new Joe Gibbs Racing driver said he hoped to be able to add victories in the Cup race and in the Nationwide Series event that followed Monday's Cup event. He couldn't pull it off.

"It's a good championship points day," the hard-driving 23-year-old said. "It was pretty cool out there to run the way we did in our Toyota. Unfortunately, we didn't have quite the car to get up there and contend with those boys at the Busch finished behind race winner Carl Edwards and his former teammates at Hendrick Motorsports, Jimmie Johnson and Jeff Gordon.

"It was cool to run with the 24 (Gordon) and 48 (Johnson) like that," Busch said. "We aren't teammates anymore, but still we respect each other. That was fun.

"When you don't have a winning car, all you can ask for is a top-five, so it's cool," he added. "The ultimate goal is to be in first place in the points all year."

Tough sledding

The race was a learning experience for the open-wheel contin-

Juan Pablo Montoya, last year's top Cup rookie, finished 20th, while fellow former open-wheel stars Dario Franchitti and Sam Hornish Jr. had considerably less success. Patrick Carpentier didn't even get a chance to make the race when qualifying was rained out Friday.

Franchitti never ran among the leaders and wound up two laps down in 32nd, while Hornish had even less luck, getting crashed out shortly after Sunday's raindelayed start. He finished last in the 43-car field. "It started pretty bad, but we got it better," Montoya said. "Today, we got pretty good and before the last stop I hit the wall coming in, in the middle of (turns) three and four. I guess I knocked the toeout and I went from running 11th

Chip Ganassi Racing teammate Franchitti viewed it as another stock car learning experience.

"I learned a lot," he said. "We went through a lot of different conditions between last night and today and I'm just getting used to driving the car and racing the cars as well.

"You know, we were looking good for a top 30 there and we think we dropped a valve with five (laps) to go. That was unfortunate.

Moving up

Robby Gordon's 18th-place finish got his team heading in the right direction in the points, despite facing a 100-point loss if his appeal is denied by the National Stock Car Commission.

Gordon was hit with the points penalty and his crew chief, Frank Kerr, was fined $100,000 and suspended for six races for having an unapproved bumper cover on their new Dodge when it was presented for the opening inspection

That knocked Gordon's No. 7 Charger from ninth to 40th in the points last week. But Monday's performance moved him back into the coveted top 35 in car owner points in 32nd.

"We're going to get our points back," Gordon said. "I think that's the most important thing. It brings us to 32nd right now, but that's still not representative of where our car is running.

"Our car is a top-15 car. With the 100 points, we would probably be sitting here around 12th, so I'm looking at that more than anything."

Justices side with W.Va. smokers vs. tobacco companies

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Monday rejected a tobacco industry request to intervene in a lawsuit by more than a thousand West Virginia smokers.

The justices declined to examine a trial procedure in which a jury first determines whether smokers as a group are entitled to punitive damages before establishing whether any single smoker is entitled to compensation. Later, a new jury addresses issues unique to each alleged smoking victim who sued. West Virginia courts are allowing the approach, which has been used in other types of lawsuits, including claims for asbestos exposure. The second phases of such trials rarely occur, because the two sides usually settle once they know the value of the case. Tobacco companies oppose use of the legal device, which lawyers call "reverse bifurcation."

The smokers say the companies secretly agreed not to market a truly safer cigarette while publicly proclaiming the safety of their own particular brands. The case is Philip Morris USA v. Accord, 07-806.

Computer error delays tax refunds for 4,788

CHARLESTON — Nearly 5,000 state taxpayers who filed early returns hoping to receive quick refunds can expect a two-week delay. State Tax Commissioner Chris Morris said the Tax Department's new computer system was mistakenly programmed to send refund checks to the previous addresses of 4,788 taxpayers. Because of the invalid addresses, the U.S. Post Office returned the checks to the Treasurer's office, as policy dictates.

Morris said all the affected refund checks should be back in the mail by Wednesday.

House passes ban on 'captive audience'

CHARLESTON — The House of Delegates has sent legislation to the Senate that has sparked debate between business and labor groups over where free speech ends and coercion begins in the workplace.

The "captive audience" bill, which passed, 64-33, Monday, would bar employers from forcing employees to attend meetings meant to sway them on political matters.

Supporters argue the measure specifically targets only attempts to threaten or intimidate workers. Opponents warn the bill could stymie efforts to improve the state's economy.

Senate OKs gradual franchise tax repeal

CHARLESTON — West Virginia's tax on a business' net equity could disappear in seven years under a Senate provision now passed to

With one dissenting vote, senators approved a bill Monday that would gradually lower the business franchise tax rate to zero by 2015.

U.C. professor locates the forgotten graves of black tunnel workers

Dozens died while digging through Gauley Mountain

SUMMERSVILLE ozens of black workers who died while digging a 3-mile tunnel through Gauley Mountain in the 1930s are buried in unmarked graves on land where teens now party and highway crews dump roadkill.

Richard Hartman, an adjunct history professor at the University of Charleston, recently found the Nicholas County graves after an eight-year search that began while he was working on a master's degree.

"These people have haunted me for years," Hartman said. "This isn't where I expected their story to end, but here they are.

"It's a party spot for kids, and the highway crews get rid of their roadkill here." he said.

Hartman's initial research centered on how much culpability contractor Rinehart & Dennis of Charlottesville, Va., had in the deaths of hundreds of workers who helped build the Hawks Nest Tunnel, beginning in March 1930. That led him to wonder where many of the bodies were buried.

With a two-year deadline to complete the project, Rinehart & Dennis imported workers, mostly blacks from the South who were eager to earn 30 cents an hour. But while boring through silica-bearing sandstone, many workers became inflicted with silicosis, a potentially deadly respiratory ailment caused by inhaling powdery rock particles.

By the time the tunnel was complete, at least 764 workers about 75 percent of them black had died.

Through his research, Hartman learned that 63 workers were originally buried on a farm in Nicholas County. The bodies of many others were sent back to their homes, primarily in North Carolina and Tennessee.

About 40 years later, the Nicholas County graves were disinterred to make way for a highway and moved to an abandoned housing development along U.S. 19 near Summersville Lake, he said.

"Progress and bigotry killed them," Hartman said of the unidentified workers. "Even after their deaths, these men received very little hospitality in West Virginia. The part that makes me ache is that they didn't receive any better treatment in 1972 than they did 40 years earlier.'

Hartman said he hopes to eventually learn the names of the workers.

New prescription pads required for Medicaid patients

Doctors, hospitals switch April 1 to a tamper-proof form

Associated Press

CHARLESTON — Starting in April, it will be harder for drug abusers on Medicaid to forge prescriptions.

The state Medicaid office mailed thousands of letters last week to West Virginia doctors' offices, clinics and hospitals to notify them that they must obtain tamper-proof prescription pads.

Pharmacists have been instructed to reject any prescriptions from Medicaid patients not on such paper after March 31.

The Medicaid program pays health-care costs for eligible lowincome recipients. The prescription pad change is mandated by a federal law meant to cut down on the number of fraudulent prescriptions, and the millions of dollars paid out for them.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that the tamper-resistant requirement will save taxpayers $355 million over the next decade by preventing fraudulent prescriptions.

"It's going to cut down on abuse and misuse, and it's going to save states money," said Richard It's going to cut down on abuse and misuse, and it's going to save states money. Richard Stevens director, West Virginia

Pharmacists Association

Stevens, director of the West Virginia Pharmacists Association.

The most commonly used prescription pads are easy for drug abusers to forge. For example, Stevens said, someone could add a zero to a prescription for 10 Lortabs and come away with 100. Others might change the number of times a prescription can be refilled, or steal a pad and make copies. "It's unfortunately more common than people recognize," Stevens said.

The different types of tamperproof prescription pads include features such as asterisks that surround a numeric quality, and the word 'void' appearing if a slip has been photocopied. Another type has a green background color that will look altered if someone tries to erase printed information. The new requirement doesn't apply to prescriptions that doctors call in, fax or send by computer to pharmacies.

Pentagon: Shoot-down big success

Believes missile destroyed spy satellite's fuel tank

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon said Monday it has a "high degree of confidence" that the missile fired at a dead U.S. spy satellite in space destroyed the satellite's fuel tank as planned.

In its most definitive statement yet on the outcome of Wednesday's shootdown over the Pacific, the Pentagon said that, based on debris analysis, it is clear the Navy missile destroyed the fuel tank, "reducing, if not eliminating, the risk to people on Earth from the hazardous chem-

The tank had 1,000 pounds of hydrazine, a toxic substance that U.S. government officials believed posed a potential health hazard to humans if the satellite had descended to Earth on its own.

The presence of the hydrazine was cited by U.S. officials as the main reason to shoot down the satellite — described as the size of a school bus - which would otherwise have fallen out of orbit on its own in early March. The satellite lost power shortly after reaching its initial orbit in December 2006.

Pentagon officials had said almost immediately after the shootdown by a missile fired from the USS Lake Erie that it appeared the tank had been hit squarely, but they conducted further analysis before reaching a final conclusion.

As of Monday there had been no reports of debris landing on Earth. and it is unlikely any will remain intact to impact the ground, the Pentagon statement said.

"By all accounts this was a successful mission," Gen. James Cartwright, vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in the Pentagon statement Monday. "From the debris analysis, we have a high degree of confidence the satellite's fuel tank was destroyed and the hydrazine has been dissipated."

The Pentagon statement said a space operations center at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., is tracking fewer than 3,000 pieces of satellite debris, all smaller than a football.

The school prepares people for jobs in California's thriving medical marijuana industry. For $200 and the cost of two required textbooks, students learn to cultivate and cook with cannabis, study which strains of pot are best for certain ailments, and are instructed in the legalities of a business that is against the law in the eyes of the federal government.

"My basic idea is to try to professionalize the industry and have it taken seriously as a real industry, just like beer and distilling hard alcohol," said

Richard Lee, 45, an activist and pot-dispensary owner who founded the school in a downtown storefront last fall.

So far, 60 students have completed the two-day weekend course, which is sold out through May. At the end of the class, students are given a takehome test, with the highest scorer — make that "top scorer" earning the title of class valedictorian.

Before getting to Horticulture 101, the hands-on highlight of Oaksterdam U, the 20 budding botanists, entrepreneurs and political activists at a recent weekend session sat politely through two law lectures and a visiting professor's history talk.

In the lab, Lee measured plant food into a plastic garbage can and explained how, with common sense, upgraded electrical outlets, a fan and an air filter, students can grow pot at home for fun, health, public service — or profit.

Lee explained to his students how to prune and harvest plants, handing the clipping shears to a woman who wasn't sure how close to the stalk to cut without damaging it. He offered his thoughts on which commercial nutrient preparations are best, as well as the advantages of hydroponics, or soil-free gardening.

During a discussion of neighbor relations, he warned against setting boobytraps to keep curious kids out of outdoor gardens.

Students gave various reasons for enrolling. Some said they were simply curious. Others said they wanted tips for growing their own weed, although judging from the questions, a few were ready for the graduate seminar Lee recently added to the curriculum.

Jeff Sanders, 52, said he has been buying medical marijuana since 2003, but wants to open a dispensary in the San Joaquin Valley because he doesn't like having to drive up to San Francisco and paying the markup.

President pushes Congress to pass surveillance law

WASHINGTON — President Bush on Monday lobbied again for an intelligence law allowing government eavesdropping on phone calls and e-mails, as the tone of the dispute between the White House and Congress over terrorist surveillance grew increasingly sharp.

"To put it bluntly, if the enemy is calling into America, we really need to know what they're saying, and we need to know what they're thinking, and we need to know who they're talking to," Bush said at the start of his annual meeting with the nation's governors at the White House.

"This is a different kind of struggle than we've ever faced before. It's essential that we understand the mentality of these killers," Bush said.

The law in question targets foreign terrorist threats and allows eavesdropping on communications involving people in the U.S., so long as those people are not the intended focus or target of the surveillance. The latest version of the legislation expired on Feb. 16, and the rules reverted to those outlined in the 30-year-old Foreign Intelligence Surveillance

Bush and Congress are at odds over whether to give legal immunity to companies that in the past helped the government spy on customers without court warrants.

Trial opens for NYPD detectives in shooting

NEW YORK — Three undercover police detectives who fired 50 shots at an unarmed man on his wedding day, killing him, were reckless and trigger happy, prosecutors argued Monday at the opening of the officers' trial.

Sean Bell, 23, who had been at a bachelor party on the night before his wedding, was killed in a barrage of bullets outside a Queens strip club early Nov. 25. Two of his friends were wounded.

The shooting sparked protests and debate about excessive force and police conduct in New York Prosecutor Charles Testagrossa told the judge that once the evidence is heard, "It will be clear that what happened cannot be explained away as a mere accident or mistake. It can only be characterized as criminal.'

But lawyers for the detectives argued that the shooting was justified because their clients had reason to believe Bell and his friends were armed and danger-

Court to rule on vehicle searches without warrant

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide when police without a warrant can search the vehicle of a person who is under arrest.

Rodney Joseph Gant was handcuffed, seated in the back of a patrol car and under police supervision when Tucson, Ariz., police officers searched his car.

A sharply divided Arizona Supreme Court ruled that the search violated the Constitution's Fourth Amendment. The state asking the U.S. high court to overturn that ruling.

The justices said they will hear the case next fall to decide whether officers must demonstrate a threat to their safety or the need to preserve evidence to justify a warrantless search in cases like Gant's.

China agrees to limited opening of MIA records

WASHINGTON — China has agreed to a long-standing U.S. request for access to sensitive military records that Pentagon officials believe might resolve the fate of thousands of U.S. servicemen missing from the Korean War and other Cold War-era conflicts, a Pentagon official said Monday.

The arrangement is scheduled to be publicly announced Friday, in Shanghai, after a final set of talks to work out certain details, according to Larry Greer, spokesman for the Pentagon's POW-MIA office. The deal marks a modest step forward for U.S.-China military relations, which have been strained in recent years, in part by sharp U.S. criticism of China's military buildup. China has periodically cooperated with the Pentagon on matters related to the search for MIAs, but it has balked at repeated requests to open its military archives for documents of interest to the Pentagon.

4 more Shifte pilgrims slain in Iraq attack

Toll from Sunday bombing now 56

Associated Press

BAGHDAD — A roadside bomb killed four Shiite pilgrims and injured 15 south of Baghdad on Monday, in the third fatal attack on people traveling to one of their sect's most sacred gatherings, officials said.

In all, police reported at least 25 people were killed or found dead in violence nationwide Monday.

The death toll from a suicide bombing Sunday rose to 56, making it one of Iraq's deadliest attacks this year. It also wounded 68.

The suicide bomber went after travelers enjoying tea and refreshments Sunday in a tent near Iskandariyah, 30 miles south of Baghdad. The deaths drove the total number of pilgrims killed in two days to 63. U.S. officials blamed al-Qaida in Iraq for the attack. U.S. Embassy spokesman Philip Reeker reiterated warnings that, while al-Qaida in Iraq has been "severely damaged," it remains a "dangerous threat.'

Sunni leaders denounced the suicide bombing, with hard-line politician Adnan al-Dulaimi's bloc blaming it on foreigners "aiming to create sectarian strife and to destabilize the country.

Extremists had attacked another group of pilgrims with guns and grenades hours earlier in the predominantly Sunni Baghdad neighborhood of Dora, killing three and injuring 49, Iraqi military spokesman Maj. Gen. Qassim al-Moussawi said.

He said the extremists fired from a mosque at the pilgrims and that a counterattack killed five of them.

Wheelchair bomber kills Iraqi officer

Associated Press

BAGHDAD — A man in a wheelchair laden with explosives persuaded security guards Monday to push him into an Iraqi operations center, where he blew himself up in an attack that killed the center's deputy commander.

The infiltration, along with a U.S. report that insurgents used an adolescent to carry out a suicide attack against a mosque last week, was the latest indication that al-Qaida in Iraq is expanding its tactics to avoid detection before a bombing.

The Iraqi military indefinitely banned all motorcycles, bicycles and hand-pushed and horse-drawn carts from Baghdad's streets Sunday, two days after a bomb hidden under a horse-drawn cart exploded downtown, killing three civilians.

That attack came exactly one month after a suicide bomber pushing an electric heater atop a cart packed with hidden explosives attacked a high school in Baqouba. And in an attack at a tribal gathering near Fallujah on Jan. 20, the bomber was a 15-year-old boy carrying a box of candy.

Women also have been used more frequently as bombers in recent months.

Turkish military says it killed 41 Kurdish rebels

CUKURCA, Turkey — Turkey's military said Monday it had killed 41 more separatist Kurdish rebels in clashes in northern Iraq, raising the reported guerrilla death toll in a crossborder operation to 153.

A statement posted on the military's Web site also said two more soldiers were killed in fighting, but gave no details. The deaths would drive the total Turkish military fatalities since the start of the incursion Thursday to 17. It said the military had hit some 30 targets of the Kurdistan Workers' Party, or PKK, in the last 24 hours.

Rebels disputed the claim of the number of fighters killed and warned that Turkey had entered a conflict it could not win.

Turkey said its troops fired dozens of salvos of artillery shells at suspected rebel hideouts Monday and clashed with the rebels in four parts of northern Iraq. It did not specify the locations. It said troops were destroying rebel shelters, logistic centers and ammunition. Retreating rebels were setting booby traps under the corpses of dead comrades or planting mines on escape routes, the military said.

Suicide bomber kills Pakistani general

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — A suicide bomber killed the Pakistan army's surgeon general Monday, in the highest-level assassination since President Pervez Musharraf joined the U.S. war against terror.

Russia signs pipeline deal with Serbia

BELGRADE, Serbia — Russia solidified ties with Serbia on Monday, signing a deal that will direct a key gas pipeline through the Balkan nation while promising to stand by Belgrade in its showdown with the West over Kosovo.

President Vladimir Putin sent his likely successor, Dmitry Medvedev, to watch over the signing in Belgrade, a deal potentially worth $1.5 billion, and to reassert Moscow's opposition to independence for Kosovo.

"Serbia needs support now," Medvedev said.

With Serbia as a political and economic partner in the Balkans, Russia secures a loyal ally in the heart of Europe and reaffirms its position as a key global player.

It may also further Russia's crucial influence as energy supplier to the continent.

N.Y. Philharmonic visits North Korea

PYONGYANG, North Korea - Swirling dancers and musicians beating traditional drums welcomed the New York Philharmonic to North Korea on Monday for a historic cultural exchange between countries that have been technically at war for more than a half-century.

In a burst of musical diplomacy notably devoid of propaganda glorifying leader Kim Jong Il or attacks on U.S. policy, North Korean dancers balanced water jars on their heads or twirled pink and green fans to entertain the celebrated American orchestra — which gave them a stand-

The Philharmonic is the first major American cultural group to visit the isolated communist nation and the largest-ever delegation from the U.S. to visit its longtime foe.

As part of its 48-hour trip, the 106-member orchestra was scheduled to play a concert today that will be broadcast on state-run radio and TV, where the U.S. is the target of daily condemnation. The national anthems of both countries will be played, followed by a program featuring Antonin Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E Minor — popularly known as the "New World Symphony" and written while the 19th-century Czech composer lived in the United States — and George Gershwin's "An American in Paris."

South Africa ends ban on killing elephants

PRETORIA, South Africa — South Africa said Monday that it will start killing elephants to reduce their burgeoning numbers, ending a 13-year ban and possibly setting a precedent for other African nations.

Environment Minister Marthinus van Schalkwyk said the government was left with no choice but to reintroduce killing elephants "as a last option and under very strict conditions" to reduce environmental degradation and rising conflicts with humans.

There will be no "wholesale slaughter," he told reporters.

The announcement follows months of impassioned debate, with some conservationists arguing for elephant killings to protect the ecosystem, and animal welfare groups outraged at the prospect of slaughtering one of the planet's most intelligent and self-aware creatures.

South Africa has been hugely successful in protecting its elephant population, once on the verge of extinction in parts of the country. But it has become a victim of its own success. The number of elephants, which have no natural predators other than humans, is growing at a rate of more than 5 percent a year and is expected to double by 2020.

In partnership with Mary Jane Farell, she won three world titles: the 1970 Women's Pairs, the 1978 Venice Cup and the 1980 Team Olympiad. But perhaps their best victory was in the 1978 Life Master Pairs. They are the only women's pair to win this championship, which was first held in 1930. DARE

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am writing to you about a problem my husband has been experiencing for several months. He wakes up in the middle of the night covered in sweat. It is similar to night sweats experienced by many menopausal women.

He is 41, in great physical shape, has high triglycerides and takes several medications (Niaspan, half an 81-milligram aspirin and Pravachol). He also has borderline hypertension that he is trying to control with diet.

Is this a sign of some type of health problem? What can he do about it?

DEAR READER: I'm not certain that your husband's medications are to blame. Niaspan (prescription niacin) is known to cause flushing, sweating, chills and more. Side effects generally decrease after three to four weeks of therapy, however. Sweats can also, rarely, be a symptom of hidden infection.

I recommend that your husband be examined and tested by his primary care physician. While awaiting his appointment, he may wish to discontinue the Niaspan temporarily. He should continue the Pravachol, however. If this simple remedy stops the night sweats, his physician can forego the testing and take him off the Niaspan.

If the night sweats continue, your husband should follow through with an exam and testing by his primary care physician.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 71-year-old female. I have been taking Actonel for four years but am worried about it. My doctor and dentist say I should continue to take it because the only problem I could have was if I needed a tooth pulled, and even then it's probable that nothing bad would happen anyway.

DEAR READER: Actonel and similar medications are commonly prescribed for patients with osteoporosis. Unfortunately, these drugs may have unpleasant side effects, including, rarely, destruction of the jawbone.

You must assess the risks and benefits of Actonel therapy. If you have cancer, existing dental disease or poor dental hygiene, you may be at a higher (but still minimal) risk of developing osteonecrosis of the jaw.

You have been taking the medication for four years without any side effects. I recommend that you continue it under the guidance of your doctor.

You will make several important friendships or alliances in the vear ahead that will be quite beneficial for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Even though you don't want to hurt another's feelings, sometimes it is more charitable to level with the individual. ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Commercial dealings will be a trifle more complicated than they appear to be on the surface. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — When you start seeking easy outs, you will merely find a far testier situation than you are prepared to handle. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Usually you're the type of person who is always looking ahead, hoping for something different; thus, you're prepared for most anything. CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Your reasoning in a joint venture will be far sounder than that of your counterpart. Listen to all of his or her views, but don't hesitate to use whichever is best. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — For reasons over which others will have no control, they could let you down on a matter that is important to you. Be prepared to handle things on your own.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -Guard against a strong tendency to do things in half measures. By doing so, you would deprive yourself of far larger rewards that you should be enjoying.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — At times, you can be a trifle extravagant in your spending, and this could be one of the days. If you're wasting money another has earned, it is a no-no.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Have fun and enjoy yourself, but don't treat serious matters too lightheartedly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful about being too free of a talker. If you let your guard down, you could easily tell too much to the wrong person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Think positive and be expectant of good things to come, but don't build false hopes on unrealistic premises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — It's good to be expectant of having a rewarding day, provided you don't take it as being a foregone conclusion.

My favorite town

My favorite town is New York City. I went to a lot of places in New York. Most of my family went too. We saw my uncle and ate with him. My uncle works on Broadway, so we got to see "The Lion King." Before that, I got a coat, and went to the biggest Toys 'R' Us in the world. New York is awesome.

New York is the 27th biggest city in the world. The water forms include the Hudson River and Finger Lakes. One attraction in New York is the Statue of Liberty. Two interesting facts are the history of New York and that state was one of the 13 colonies. New York is 468.9 square miles and the climate is cool, not too hot, not too cold. The population is 18,214,426. The elevation is not quite high from the water. It is 33 feet above sea level. This one more thing, longitude and latitude. It is 40 north, 73 west. New York is my favorite state in the world.
