Restore. Rebuild. Replenish.

The Proven Leader in Native Plant Propagation

With over 135 species of mitigation-quality plant materials, we are Florida's largest grower of native grasses, shrubs, trees and coastal plant species. Our experience extends from projects for private corporations to local, state and federal government initiatives encompassing large habitat and restoration service sites.

APF is unmatched in contract-growing capacity, volume and scalability.

Contact us today to see how we can work together in a cost-effective, high-quality, compliant manner or to schedule a no-obligation site evaluation.

About Our Cover

Lake Istokpoga 4 This dramatic image of a Bald Cypress tree is the work of Clyde Butcher, a renowned art photographer often referred to as "Florida's Ansel Adams." Butcher specializes in stunning, large-scale black and white photo prints that capture the richness and majesty of Real Florida landscapes. His talent is a gift to our state and he expands on it with a gracious generosity to Florida's conservation movement. FANN is deeply honored that Mr. Butcher permitted us to use his image on the cover of our directory. More info: www.ClydeButcher.com

Mission

To lead Florida's horticulture and landscape industry with native plant production, education and marketing.

Vision

The majority of Floridians will appreciate and understand the aesthetic, economic, ecological and cultural benefits of native plants and landscapes. Native plants will be preferred and dominant, with ecosystem functions restored to most landscapes. FANN will remain the leading professional source for native plants and native landscape services, expertise and information.

Membership

FANN welcomes nurseries, garden centers, landscape professionals and environmental consultants committed to the preservation, restoration, and sustainable use of Florida's native plants and natural environment. Benefits, dues and application form online.

Showcasing Florida's Native Plant Industry

BUSY LANDSCAPE PROFESSIONALS love the idea of finding all the native plants and expertise they need in one place. FANN loves showcasing the incredible diversity of native plants and growers that our niche industry now offers. And as the demand for native plants increases, who better to educate industry professionals than the native plant professionals from FANN?

To meet this need, FANN is hosting Florida's first-ever, all-native trade show, The Native Plant Show, Thursday and Friday, April 4-5, 2013, at the Osceola Heritage Park Exhibition Building in Kissimmee. This centrally located facility offers easy access, affordability, no cost parking, and comfortable professional space for specialized shows like ours. Drive in, step out and do business.

LOOKING FOR BEAUTIFUL NATIVE PLANTS? You'll see hundreds of native plants ready for garden center shelves and the finest landscapes. Meet the growers and learn how to best cultivate, use and maintain native plants for profit and sustainability.

LOOKING FOR CEUs? Registered landscape architects and certified designers, installers, maintenance crews and arborists have several classes to choose from over the course of a two-day seminar series and plenty of time to see the plants you're learning about on the show floor.

LOOKING FOR INSPIRATION? You'll see wonderful plants new to you and perfect for beautiful, authentic, and distinctive sustainable landscapes. And we'll demonstrate how to use these plants by "installing" award-winning landscape designs on the show floor.

Looking for suppliers and consultants you can rely on? Florida's finest native plant growers will be available along with a select group of consultants, landscape professionals and allied product and service vendors. Network with specialized professionals who can add to your native plant knowledge and add value to your business.

Interest in native plants is booming because of all the benefits these plants offer. Whether your interest is Florida-friendly landscaping™ or sustainable landscaping in another southeastern state, water or soil conservation, butterfly or bird gardening, ecological restoration, or an authentic sense of place, we've got your solution.

We know you'll love our plants and what they can do for your bottom line, your customers, and the natural environment. Join us in Kissimmee next April and return to work with everything you need to be successful with Florida native plants.

If you're growing native plants, you should exhibit at the show and join FANN. Become part of the sustainable landscape revolution sweeping the nation and the fastest growing segment of the nursery and landscape industry.

 Indicates that the plant species listed is an exceptionally effective attractor for pollinators (bees, flies, wasps etc.).

 No butterfly garden is complete without providing the native larval food sources on which our butterflies lay eggs that hatch into caterpillars. This symbol indicates that the plant is a larval food source for a butterfly or moth's caterpillar offspring. Most butterflies/moths lay eggs on only a few native species.

 Indicates that the plant is an exceptionally good nectar source for butterflies.

 Indicates that the plant is an exceptionally good nectar source for hummingbirds.

 Indicates that the plant provides fruit, seeds, or a good nesting habitat for birds.

What is a Florida native plant?

Plants listed are Florida natives as identified in the Guide to the Vascular Plants of Florida, Third Edition, by Dr. Richard P. Wunderlin and Bruce F. Hansen, University Press of Florida, 2011, with a few carefully defined exceptions where growers recognize regional varieties or FANN has chosen to accept another authority regarding origin. Where regional or local species variation occurs, FANN growers are encouraged to name varieties until such time as the difference is recognized by taxonomists in an official flora of the state. Examples include Chrysobalanus icaco 'Horizontal,' Ulmus americana 'Florida population,' and Roystonea regia 'Florida population.' General categories such as aquatic, wetland and wildflower plants are listed. We also list some cultivars, in accordance with our Florida Native Cultivar policy, available online at www.FloridaNativeNurseries.org. Please contact us with any questions.

How to use these plant listings

Plant listings in this annual directory are best used as a general reference to identify plants that may be commercially available and which nurseries can grow them. More current inventories may be available online. Always phone to confirm availability.

Sizes and specifications

For each plant, available sizes (see abbreviations at right) are listed, with quantity, specifications and nursery contact provided for each size. In the size column, the + sign indicates that larger sizes are available – please inquire at the nursery. Additional sizes may be listed on separate lines or may be indicated in the specs column.

Planning a large landscape project?

Please call your local native nursery before writing specifications or listing quantities for use in landscape work. Find out what is available in container sizes and avoid the trouble of revising detailed plant lists. FANN members will be happy to help with information on reasonable specifications for your design projects. To guarantee the size and quantity available for a particular species, you may want to consider contract growing.

Important

Some native species occur throughout a wide geographic area. For best results, use plants originating as close as possible to the final planting site – this practice helps to preserve biodiversity and genetic diversity, and, at the same time, provides the best assurance for successful establishment of the plants at your site. Many growers will provide local seed collection and propagation services.

Wildlife Symbols

Native plants are the primary source of food, shelter and nesting area for native insects, birds, and other creatures. All native plants provide habitat value, but some are extra outstanding. Throughout this directory, symbols are used to highlight these exceptional plants, based on grower observations as well as widely recognized and respected scientific references. This information is provided as a general guide only and does not take into account regional variations. To identify those species of butterflies and birds which frequent your area and can be attracted to your landscape with native plants, please consult with your native nursery, as well as local chapters of the Florida Native Plant Society (www.fnps.org), Florida Audubon Society, and North American Butterfly Association.

A10. eMERGE Design

FL Landscape Architecture Lic: LC26000450. High-end residential, high-rise condominiums, assisted living and senior care facilities, large-scale community site planning and entitlements, and commercial and educational/religious campus design. Design of systems for plant material, irrigation/reclamation, hardscapes and lighting allow for extensive use of a site's natural form and enhance features, in turn, raising property values. Renovation of community entrances and single family homes allow owners to realize increased value, lower operating costs, and enjoy a new "sense of place." Member, ASLA & Florida Chapter.

PLANT REAL FLORIDA

This December photo shows how attractive both plants remain weeks past their peak bloom time – and their seeds are now feeding birds.

More on Silkgrass, see page 45.

Gulf Fritillary butterfly nectaring on Florida Pennyroyal.

Florida Pennyroyal, Piloblephis rigida, is a sprawling, fragrant, evergreen mint with the appearance of a small soft juniper bush. The showy lavender blooms are very attractive to butterflies. Use as a groundcover and in wildflower beds. Plan to replace this short-lived perennial every few years.

- Blooms late winter and early spring
- 6-18" high and about the same spread
- Dry, well-drained, slightly to moderately acidic soils
- Full sun
- Zones 8-10
- Naturally occurs only in peninsular Florida (south to Miami-Dade and Collier), a few counties in Georgia, and perhaps a few islands in the Bahamas.

TIRED OF PLANTING THE SAME OLD THING? Want a landscape that turns heads and saves money? / Got customers asking about water use, plant hardiness and butterflies?

YOU HAVE A CHOICE and FANN has your plants. Attractive, distinctive and Florida-friendly for thousands of years, native plants enable you to create landscapes that last and are timeless in their beauty and filled with life.

You're probably already familiar with and using great bulletproof natives like Sabal Palms, Palmettos, Beach Sunflowers, Blanketflower and Muhlygrass. Good for you. These plants work so well that we see them all over the place. But the fact is, we have a lot more to offer. Few other states can match the native diversity of Florida, with our mix of temperate, subtropical and tropical climates, dozens of ecosystems and 3000 plus species of native plants.

FANN was founded in 1986 by a handful of small growers focused primarily on producing plants for mining and restoration projects. Many of our growers have science degrees and a deep knowledge of nature and the role our plants play in the web of life. We understand how important our plants are to Florida's ecology and how well our plants can perform in tough and unique conditions. Successful experience with natives has led to increasing demand for and availability of our plants for use in urban landscapes.

FANN members have bootstrapped our native plant industry, learning how to cultivate our plants for ornamental use and sell them in a market where plants are generally considered little more than decoration. In this issue of our annual directory, we are pleased to introduce you to some natives that you probably don't know – yet. You'll like the way they look and perform in the landscape. And you'll feel really great when you see the butterflies and birds arrive to affirm your taste in plants.

Garberia blooming in its natural scrub environment.

Very attractive to butterflies, Garberia, Garberia heterophylla, is an evergreen shrub with distinctive gray-green foliage. Use as a specimen, in mixed shrub beds and in wildflower gardens.

Blooms in fall

Generally 2-8' high and 2-5' wide

Likes well-drained sandy soils

Full sun to light shade

Zones 8-9

Naturally occurs only in Central and North Florida scrub areas.

White form of Beautyberry.

American Beautyberry, Callicarpa americana, a medium-sized shrub, normally has magenta-colored berries – but both color forms combine for a real visual pop. Small pink flowers attract pollinators and the berries are attractive to birds. Beautyberry is useful as a specimen or massed in shrub beds, and can be pruned for fullness.

Blooms spring-summer

Fruits summer-winter

4-8' high and 3-6' wide

Variety of well-drained soils but likes some organic matter

Full sun

Zones 6-11

Naturally occurs throughout Florida, even into the Keys.

Beautiful brightly colored summer fruits of Florida's Wild Black Cherry.

Black Cherry, Prunus serotina, a large deciduous tree with a straight trunk, is useful in woodland gardens. Florida has several other native cherries/plums (Prunus species) – all useful shrubs or small-medium sized trees attractive to butterflies, moths and birds.

Blooms (showy small white flowers) in spring

Fruits in summer

Fall foliage color

Generally 40-60' high and 20-35' wide, but can get much larger

Likes moist, fertile soils but tolerant of wide range of conditions

Full sun

Zones 4-9

Naturally occurs in forests of North Central Florida (and farther north), and along fencerows and powerlines, where birds drop the seeds.

Fall colors coming in on Bald Cypress trees planted in a mostly native landscape surrounding The New American Home 2012 in Winter Park, Florida. Landscape design by Redmon Design Company with consulting from the Florida Native Plant Society Tarflower Chapter and plants from FANN growers. The New American Home, a showcase project constructed every year in conjunction with the National Association of Home Builders' International Builders Show, highlights innovative design, construction technologies and the latest in green building.

Trees provide value that spans owners and generations: beauty, shade, clean air, wind protection and habitat. Thanks to our long geography through temperate, subtropical and tropical climate zones, Florida is home to more trees, including about 300 native species, than any other state outside of Hawaii. No matter where you are in the state, including the Keys, you can choose from a variety of beautiful, long lived, valuable trees to plant.

Our rich tree heritage is, unfortunately, too rarely reflected in the urban landscape, where the same species tend to be used over and over. Our Southern Live Oak, Quercus virginiana, is a beautiful symbol of the south and a reliable performer in the landscape. But did you know we have two dozen more native oak species? Seven different cherries and pines? Six different hickories and magnolias? And the list goes on. FANN growers have lots of tree species that can make your landscape successful and sustainable – just ask.

Cypress. The largest trees in Florida and east of the Rockies, our “redwoods,” are the cypress, Taxodium species. For too long, these trees were considered suitable only for moist landscapes such as lake and pond margins or wetland restorations. However, cypress trees adapt well to drier upland sites if irrigated until well established. Bald cypress, Taxodium distichum, has proven to be a great street and landscape tree. Fast growing, hardy, virtually care free once established and with colorful seasonal interest, these trees are a beautiful choice for traditional or modern landscape settings. The Florida Nurserymen, Growers & Landscape Association has designated Pond Cypress, T. ascendens, as a 2012 Garden Select plant for increased promotion. Consult with your grower on the best choice for your sites.

Shiny Blueberry leaves turn reddish in the fall. Here, surrounding a Palmetto in the woods.

Shiny Blueberry, Vaccinium Myrsinites, is a compact, dense little evergreen shrub that can be used in low borders, mixed woodland gardens or containers. Multiple native blueberries are available, including a tree form, Sparkleberry (V. arboreum), and cultivars for commercial fruit production. Keep these acid-loving plants away from concrete.

Blooms spring

Fruits summer

12-24" high

Moist to dry, well drained, acidic sandy soils

Full sun to partial shade

Zones 7-10

Naturally occur in pineywoods from North to South Florida (Miami-Dade and Collier Counties).

Shiny Blueberry's small white flowers are used by Hummingbirds, Bumble Bees and Southeastern Blueberry Bees.

Shiny Blueberry fruits are small but tasty (to birds and people).

Photos by Peg Urban, except closeup of Twinflower, by Steve Cannon.

Twinflower, Dyschoriste oblongifolia, is becoming a popular groundcover. Fast growing, it will spread readily if given space, but it is not aggressive and will not compete with larger, denser species. It attracts a variety of bees and other pollinators, and is a host plant for the Common Buckeye Butterfly.

Pale lavender blue flowers

6-12" high

Tolerates variety of soils

Full Sun

Zones 8-10

Naturally occurs in pinelands of North and Central Florida.

Twinflower, Dyschoriste oblongifolia, presents its blooms in pairs.

Twinflower is a low-growing groundcover found throughout Florida (three different Dyschoriste species occur, but D. oblongifolia has the greatest availability in the trade).

Silkgrass, Pityopsis graminifolia, is an easily grown wildflower that can have an upright or more sprawling habit.

In Central and North Florida, Silkgrass can add color and butterflies when other wildflowers may have stopped blooming. Plant in open areas or wildflower beds where it will spread by suckering. Mixes beautifully with Lovegrasses (Eragrostis species). Deciduous, it goes dormant in the winter and re-emerges in the spring. This plant exhibits a lot of regional variation, so look for the most local sources.

Bright yellow blooms spring (South Florida) to late fall (Central Florida)

Silvery gray green foliage

12-24" high

Tolerates variety of well-drained soils

Full Sun

Zones 8-11

Naturally occurs in dry-moist pine forests and prairies throughout Florida and into the Keys.

PLANT REAL FLORIDA

Buttonbush, Cephalanthus occidentalis, is a large shrub useful along the edges of freshwater pond, lakes and drainage swales. The abundant fragrant flowers are approximately 1-2" wide and very attractive to bees and butterflies. Seeds are important for ducks and a Buttonbush thicket provides nesting and cover for wetland birds.

Blooms summer

Generally 6-10' high, can get much taller and can be kept trimmed

Likes moist to wet soils

Full sun to part shade

Zones 5-11

Naturally occurs in swamps, marshes and the edges of freshwater bodies.

Gulf Fritillary Butterflies nectar on Buttonbush.

Peg Urban

Blue-stem Palmetto, Sabal minor, is a small trunkless fan palm notable for its cold hardiness and shade tolerance. Use in mixed shrub beds, under large trees like live oaks, and around pond edges, canal banks and drainage swales. Highly durable and abuse tolerant; can be used in parking lots and poorly drained areas. Flowers attract pollinators and the fruits are eaten by many birds.

Tiny white blooms on long stalks in spring and summer

Fruits in fall

4-9' high and about the same spread

Adapts to variety of soils

Part sun to shade

Zones 7-10

Naturally occurs in moist woods from Central Florida northward.

Creeping Charlie, Phyla nodiflora, is a flowering groundcover with many fun names: Frogfruit, Turkey Tangle Frogfruit, Match Head and more. Use as a turf replacement in moist or wet areas, on green roofs, or in situations where trailing stems can hang or spill over. Tolerant of light foot traffic, drought and flooding. Can be fairly aggressive, coexisting with turfgrass and outcompeting other groundcovers. Provides nectar for many pollinators and is a larval host plant for the Common Buckeye, Phaon Crescent and White Peacock Butterflies.

Blooms spring through fall

1-3" high, to 6" when flowering

Nutrient poor, poorly or well drained moist to wet soils

Full sun

Zones 8-11

Naturally occurs in moist places and disturbed sites.

For overall industry leadership and the production of ornamental quality native plants, the 2011 Mike Kenton Award of Recognition was presented by David Chiappini to Brightman Logan, All Native Flora, at the FANN Annual Membership Meeting, May 20, 2011, in Orlando.

A founding member, past president and long-time FANN board member, Brightman developed one of the largest native landscape nurseries in the state. He is a sought after speaker on native plants and native landscape design for events sponsored by ASLA (landscape architects), Florida Dept. of Environmental Protection, Florida Wildflower Foundation, FNGLA, FANN, Florida Native Plant Society, garden clubs and water management districts. Founded in 1981 as Central Florida Native Flora, Brightman's firm installed several early showcase landscape projects throughout the Greater Tampa Bay area.

Over the past 30 years, Brightman has pursued just about every angle that exists in the marketing and promotion of Florida native plants, including mitigation plants, restoration projects, wholesale ornamental landscape plants from big trees to wildflowers, commercial and residential landscape design and installation, and trademarked selections of Florida native plants. All Native may be best known for the beautiful 'Withlacoochee' Walters viburnum selection, but has also produced several other selections, many now available as tissue cultured liners from AgriStarts. Through boom and bust cycles in the industry, Brightman has stressed the importance of sustainable business practices and the production of a quality product: beautiful, healthy native plants that meet traditional and naturalistic aesthetic preferences, and are sold for a profit enabling further business growth.

Nancy Bissett of The Natives describes Brightman as a "man of great stature" and a "key thinker behind much of FANN's new focused energy today." Brightman never fails to step up when needed. He is widely admired and respected not only in the native plant niche, but throughout Florida's horticulture and landscape industry. More than one nursery person has told FANN that "I want to be like Brightman." FANN members often cite his kindheartedness and concern for others — always offering an encouraging word and helping hand to anyone in need.

Brightman is himself a Florida native, fourth generation in a family that settled in South Jacksonville in 1896, working in the turpentine industry. Brightman is named for his grandfather, who raised six other brothers when orphaned at an early age. Brightman grew up in Tampa, graduated from the all male Jesuit High School, and obtained a biology degree from Mercer University in Georgia, where he met his wife, Nan, a beautiful blonde from South Florida. Nan became a teacher and Brightman started his own business after a brief stint at Biological Research Associates.

An avid outdoorsman who enjoys fishing, hiking and hunting with family and a diverse group of environmentalists, so-called country "good ole boys," and fellow business colleagues, Nan says Brightman has more friends than anyone she has ever met. She attributes this to his likability as a "man's man," his maintenance of lifelong connections with schoolmates, and his Jesuit "golden rule" training (do unto others).

Nan says that Brightman has always had a passion for his work and has encouraged their children to do what they love. Their daughter Martha Jean (known as M.J.) worked with her parents to establish Magnolia Organics, offering high quality certified organic produce to the local community. Magnolia Organics may have been just a bit ahead of its time for the Tampa Bay area, and the family business suffered a tragic loss when M.J.'s fiancé and business partner was killed in an automobile accident in late 2011. The company has since closed. Brightman Jr. is doing well in the timber industry in North Florida. FANN looks forward to the next chapter in the Logan legacy.

About Mike Kenton Award of Recognition

The award was established by FANN in 2011 and is named after, inspired by, and honors Mike Kenton, a much beloved native nurseryman who died of cancer in 2010. Mike was founder of Environmental Equities, a tiny nursery with big ambitions — and over 500 different native species.

Mike Kenton

The Mike Kenton Award of Recognition is presented annually to one individual who has contributed significant value and service to the Florida native plant industry.

Awardees are:

2011: Brightman Logan
2012: Nancy Bissett

2012 Mike Kenton
Award of Recognition

Nancy Bissett

For her steadfast support of our industry and for mentoring many a start-up native nursery, Nancy Bissett, President of The Natives, in Davenport, Florida, is FANN's 2012 winner of the Mike Kenton Award of Recognition.

Brightman Logan of All Native Flora cites Nancy's pioneering work in developing growing techniques and innovative restoration techniques. The Natives' nursery has introduced to the horticultural trade several native wildflowers and grasses, many rare and endangered, and maintains one of the most diverse inventories of native plants. They have coined popular common names for relatively unknown native plants, including the now widely used Sunshine Mimosa (Mimosa strigillosa).

A respected botanist, Nancy frequently leads educational field trips in natural areas and is a leader in uplands restoration and the development of large-scale direct seeding operations. Some of her more unusual projects have focused on creating habitat for gopher tortoises and sand skinks. Nancy discovered a new species of Scrub Mint (Dicerandra species) and found a naturally occurring pink Itea virginica, the 'Sarah Eve' cultivar named for her daughter.

Sharon Dolan of Maple Street Natives first ran across Nancy and FANN (then AFNN) at a mid-80s FNATS (FENGLA Landscape) show in Orlando, and was so inspired that she and husband Brent converted their business to all natives. The Dolans learned a great deal from Nancy, who always shared propagation information and plants. Sharon notes "Whatever happens in the industry, she [Nancy] takes it with grace. She's always calm and positive." Nancy's low-key leadership style and vision for restoring urban spaces have been essential in moving our industry forward.

Nancy's affectionate informal title of "Founding Mother" fits her well, as she is a FANN founder and offers great support and encouragement to new native nurseries. A naturally modest and quiet person, Nancy shies away from promoting herself, but has won a variety of conservation and industry awards and has served on the boards of FANN, the Florida Native Plant Society (FNPS) and the Florida Wildflower Foundation. Always willing to advise others and to promote native plants and our industry, Nancy is like most "mothers," committed to helping the new generation step forward into the spotlight.

Perhaps this combination of humility and generous service is to be expected from a Lutheran Minister's daughter born and raised in the Midwest. Nancy's father grew up in a sod house on the Dakota plains and remained active into his nineties. Her mother passed a gift for math onto four successful children and remained mentally sharp until her death at 100 years of age. Nancy's family moved frequently, but her father planted big gardens everywhere they lived and her mother loved flowers.

Nancy's first job in Florida was not growing plants, but teaching at a local Lutheran church and school in Winter Haven, where she moved with her husband and three children after living in several U.S. states and Holland. Plants and nature soon lured Nancy to enroll at Florida Southern College, where she earned a degree in botany and an award for achievement in horticultural studies.

Here the plot thickens, for along came a start-up landscape architect, Bill Bissett, asking professors for a draftsman and hiring a student, Nancy, sight unseen. Nancy and Bill were both interested in using natives in the landscape and frustrated that almost no one was growing the plants. They began a small nursery on Nancy's back porch. Gradually, two things came into being: The Natives, Inc. and a marriage, both celebrating 30 years of happy success. Two of Nancy's children now work at The Natives: Sarah Kiefer, Nursery/Office Manager, and Paul Abel, Restoration Manager, along with 15-20 employees and crew leaders. Grandchildren are regularly found at the nursery – we look forward to a future influenced by Grandma Bissett.

Florida Native Plant Partnership

Four organizations working together to promote the preservation and use of Florida native plants.

Florida Association of Native Nurseries (FANN)

www.FloridaNativeNurseries.org
Trade association promoting the business of native plants. Members are growers, garden centers, landscape professionals and environmental consultants. We grow, plant and restore Real Florida.

Florida Native Plant Society (FNPS)

www.FNPS.org
Charitable nonprofit working to preserve, conserve and restore the native plants and native plant communities of Florida. With chapters all over Florida, FNPS provides the largest network of native plant enthusiasts.

Florida Wildflower Cooperative

www.FloridaWildflowers.com
Agricultural cooperative producing and supplying high quality wildflower seed and plants. Specialists in growing Florida native ecotype seed for use on large projects and for resale to the public.

Florida Wildflower Foundation

www.FlaWildflowers.org
Charitable nonprofit enriching our lives with Florida native wildflowers through education, planting and research projects. Foundation-sponsored media, festivals and (future) Florida Wildflower Center reach residents and tourists.

REMEMBERING

The Senator

~1500 B.C. - January 12, 2012

FLORIDA LOST ITS LARGEST AND OLDEST TREE, The Senator, to a tragic accidental fire in January 2012. Named for Florida Senator Moses Overstreet, who in 1927 owned and donated the land on which the tree lived. Estimated to be 3400-3600 years old, The Senator was a Bald Cypress, Taxodium distichum.

While The Senator's size and age were impressive, the tree was, most importantly, a symbol of change in public values. Bigger and older trees once covered Florida. Famed naturalist William Bartram wrote that he was "struck with a kind of awe" when approaching our magnificent, majestic cypress forests in the 1700s. But the predominant public value for trees in the 1800s was for timber. By the early 1900s, we cut down nearly every big cypress tree.

While we were losing these trees, we began developing a greater understanding and appreciation of their value to us – value that goes far beyond timber and mulch. We can honor The Senator by continuing to educate ourselves about the value of our natural heritage, by acting to preserve it, and by choosing to restore it in our landscapes.

Call growers for current or projected availability.

Remember, these plant listings are a general reference, indicating the variety of plants our growers can produce, not necessarily what they have in stock when you need plants. More up-to-date inventories may be found online at www.FloridaNativeNurseries.org, grower websites or other continuously updated digital plant locators.

FANN is online

www.FloridaNativeNurseries.org

FANN's website serving the horticulture/landscape industry and FANN members. You can find plants, professionals, and more information about sustainable landscapes and selecting the right native plant for any place in Florida. You can also find FANN news, join FANN and promote your business.

New Name: FANN

In 2011, we changed our name from AFNN to FANN – www.AFNN.org still works, but you should update your bookmarks to use our new website, above.

www.PlantRealFlorida.org

Reaching Retail: In 2011, FANN launched this site to promote our garden center, retail nursery and residential landscape professional members. This website helps gardeners find and select the best native plants, local garden centers and professional help. FANN members advertising retail products and services on this site benefit from a statewide marketing campaign that includes TV and print media promotion.

www.TheNativePlantShow.com

Keep up with plans for Florida's first all-native trade show. Sign up to take CEU classes or exhibit/sponsor.

 Join our LinkedIn open group under Florida Association of Native Nurseries and post your question or start a conversation with native plant experts.

 FANN follows the native plant movement and promotes our association, our partners and most importantly, our members and their products and services.

Be sure to "Like" our page so you don't miss the latest native plant industry news. See: www.Facebook.com/FANNisonline

 Follow us and be part of the conversation. Pros: FANN chats with colleagues, garden media professionals, environmental consultants, landscape architects, green leaders and more @FANNisOnline / Gardeners: FANN chats about Real Florida for enthusiasts and the "native curious" while promoting native plant sales and events around the state @PlantRealFla

Pineland Heliotrope is gaining popularity as a flowering groundcover.

Pineland Heliotrope, Heliotropium polyphyllum, is very attractive to bees, butterflies and other pollinating insects. White and yellow-flowering forms are available; the yellow form may be more upright and reach greater height if not pruned. Seek local sources and ask questions. The plant readily spreads by rooting its stems in the ground – prune to keep it in desired area. Cold sensitive, Pineland Heliotrope will burn in a frost and remain brown until it rejuvenates in warmer weather.

Blooms spring through fall
 6-12" high
 Adapts from moist to dry soils
 Full sun
 Zones 8b-11, but cold sensitive
 Naturally occurs in moist pinelands, prairies and coastal thickets from the Keys north to the Panhandle.

Closeup of the tiny flowers on Pineland Heliotrope.

Willow Bastic foliage and flower buds silhouetted against a beautiful blue sky.

Tree canopy of Willow Bastic, an excellent small shade tree for South Florida landscapes.

Willow Bastic, Sideroxylon salicifolium, is an erect, long-lived evergreen tree suitable for use both on city streets and in smaller property areas where shade is desired. Tiny, fragrant cream colored flowers, clustered along the stems, attract a wide array of pollinators (as do all our native Sideroxylon species – and there's one for every region of the state). The small fruits that follow turn from green to red to black, and are enjoyed by many different birds.

- Blooms spring
- Generally 20-30' high with a 10-20' spread
- Tolerates moist to nearly dry, well drained sandy soils
- Full sun to part shade
- Zones 10-11
- Naturally occurs in pinelands and hammocks, mostly along the coast, from the Keys north to Martin County.

Horizontal Cocoplum spills over limestone rocks in a most charming and South Floridian fashion.

Cocoplum, Chrysobalanus icaco, is so attractive and trouble free that it has become a mainstream landscape commodity in South Florida. Horizontal Cocoplum is a naturally occurring salt-tolerant variety that is less well known but much more easily sustained as a low-growing hedge, with little or no pruning. The fruit (and seed inside, sans husk) is edible but like many of our native fruits, maybe best in jelly or as a dessert sauce.

Fruits year round, peaking in spring to summer
3-4' high
Tolerates a variety of soils
Full sun
Zones 10-11
Naturally occurs along Florida East Coast beaches and in thickets from about Martin County south.

Horizontal Cocoplum fruits range from white to pink in color.

PLANT REAL FLORIDA

Typical landscape habit of Horizontal Cocoplum, which rarely exceeds 3-4' in height.

Florida Tetrazygia or West Indian Lilac, Tetrazygia bicolor, is a beautiful, large, evergreen pest-free shrub or small tree with distinctive large drooping leaves, clusters of showy white (and sometimes pinkish) flowers, and edible fruits that are very attractive to birds. The plant has a fairly open but striking appearance, with leaves that are 4-8" long, dark green on top and silvery underneath. Use it as a specimen, a screen or for a tall hedge (planted 3-5' apart and maintained with hand pruning).

Blooms spring-summer
Generally 10-20' high with 4-10' spread, can reach 30' height
Moist, well-drained soils
Full sun to part shade
Zones 10b-11
Naturally occurs in rockland hammocks and pine rocklands of Miami-Dade County.

NATIVE TREE NURSERY, INC

"Where Quality and Service Come First"
Serving The Landscape Industry since 1979

Native Tree Nursery has been working on improving the quality and quantity of native plant material available to the professional landscaper for over 32 years with 100 acres field grown material and 15 acres container material. Even this last freeze event produced another promising cultivar of one of our most beautiful natives.

The Bahama Strongbark (Bourreria succulenta). Native Tree Nursery now has 3 cultivars. Dwarf, weeping and upright forms.

We welcome all landscapers and planners to visit and check out our wide variety of native plant material. Work with us on how to creatively finance your jobs with flexible credit and pricing.

For your convenience we are now accepting all major credit cards.

Please stop by to see our extensive inventory of rare and unusual species and remember:
