Alumni Spotlight

What is your current occupation, and where do you live?

I am the Chief of the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority Police Department (better known as MARTA) I live in Covington, Georgia.

When did you graduate from JSU, and what is your favorite memory from your school years?

I graduated in May, 1985 with a degree in criminal justice. I have so many great memories of JSU: the lifelong friendships that I developed are priceless but if I had to choose a few they would be pledging Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Spring '84 and homecoming week long events.

What have been your most important accomplishments since leaving JSU?

Some of the highlights have been getting married, having a child, being a police officer for over 20 years, obtaining my master's degree from Columbus State University, and becoming the first female and first African American Chief of the MARTA Police Department.

What skill did you acquire at JSU that helped you the most?

The communication skills from speech class help me today. I still use those tips when preparing and making presentations (stand up straight, make eye contact, be convincing etc.)

What "life advice" would you give to JSU students today?

Follow your dreams, not anyone else's. It's all right if you're not sure what you want to do when you graduate, but always have that degree to fall back on when you need it.

Dear Alumni,

In this issue, JSU alumni in healthcare professions and the College of Nursing and Health Sciences are highlighted as one of the outstanding sectors of Jacksonville State University. This group represents a strong force in the university's service mission to communities throughout Northeast Alabama.

Our alumni and students work at Sarrell Regional Dental Centers in Anniston, Heflin and Talladega. Jeffrey A. Parker, a marketing professor at JSU says the center only hires "the best and the brightest, which normally means they are from JSU." Our alumni work in positions ranging from dental assistant to insurance administrator to human resources manager, all providing free services to deserving children with Medicaid or ALL-KIDS insurance. Additional details about the dreams the center has and the ones they fulfill are located on page 12.

Many patients at Erlanger Hospital in Chattanooga, Tenn. are also benefiting from a JSU alumnus thanks to the skills of Dr. Stephen Brackett. The feature story on page 15 tracks Brackett's life from his decision to attend JSU to his current life as a hospital resident.

With a "STEP" in the right direction, JSU's College of Nursing and Health Sciences Strategic Teaching for Enhanced Professional Preparation Program (page 18) is succeeding in helping licensed RNs obtain higher education goals while still fulfilling personal and occupational duties. Sybil Roark tells Gem how she returned to JSU for her master's in nursing while working and raising children. In this article she explains how she searched for "a quality education" and why JSU had "the best program for [her] needs and desires."

These inspiring stories, as well as many more, can be found throughout this issue of Gem of the Hills and every day throughout the world. Thank you for the positive impact you, as JSU alumni, have on countless people and organizations.

Sincerely,

William A. Meehan, President

CCBA Named Top 10% of all Business Schools

Jacksonville State University's College of Commerce and Business Administration was named in the top ten percent of all business schools in the United States for the second consecutive year by the Princeton Review's Best 237 Business Schools (Random House/Princeton Review), now available for business school applicants nationwide for 2007.

The Princeton Review, known for its annual college rankings based on surveys of students attending the schools it profiles, praises JSU's business program for its convenience, affordability and personalized attention. JSU's two-page profile includes information about academic, student life, admissions, and career and placement programs.

The online version of JSU's profile can be viewed at <http://www.princetonreview.com/mba/research/rankings/rankings.asp>; simply search the site using the name Jacksonville State University.

The book features eleven ranking lists of the top ten schools in categories ranging from best academics to best career prospects. The rankings are based on The Princeton Review's surveys of students attending the schools profiled in the book and on institutional data obtained from the schools. The Princeton Review surveyed 16,000 business school students, asking them to rate their schools on several topics and to report on their experiences at the institutions.

According to editors, "The College of Commerce and Business Administration at Jacksonville State University offers a small, predominantly part-time AACSB-accredited MBA program that students praise for its convenience, affordability, and "personalized attention."

According to Dr. William T. Fielding, dean of JSU's College of Commerce and Business Administration, the ranking adds further weight to the college's accreditation through the prestigious AACSB (the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business). Fielding said, "Among 7,000 business schools worldwide, AACSB has accredited only 500, and we are in the top half of that 500."

According to the surveys, students expressed satisfaction with JSU's program and praised the school's administration. One student wrote, "It has a good vision and is focused." Another said JSU's professors are "well-read, detail oriented, and dedicated." And another said the faculty has "good experience in the fields in which they teach."

Says Fielding: "I am very happy about the recognition of our program as a high quality business program. This makes our students' degrees more valuable, and as a result, they have a better chance of getting the job they want."

The Princeton Review is a New York City-based company known for its test-prep courses, education services, college and grad school admission services, and books published by Random House. Among them are Best 162 Medical Schools and Complete Book of Graduate Programs in the Arts and Sciences, also just published in updated 2006 editions. The Princeton Review is not affiliated with Princeton University or ETS.

JSU Mourns Loss of Dr. Effie W. Sawyer

Dr. Effie W. Sawyer, author of The First Hundred Years: The History of Jacksonville State University, 1883-1983, died December 18, 2006 in Meridian, Mississippi.

A native of Kemp County, Mississippi, Dr. Sawyer was employed by Jacksonville State University as the executive secretary to Presidents Dr. Houston Cole and Dr. Ernest Stone. Dr. Sawyer attended evening classes and completed a Bachelor of Science degree in general business with two minors, English and economics. In 1984, she received the honorary doctorate presented by JSU President Dr. Theron E. Montgomery.

Dr. Sawyer spent over two years researching university records, exploring through photo archives, and interviewing faculty members to chronicle the history of the university in The First Hundred Years: The History of Jacksonville State University, 1883-1983. Her experience as a faculty member and student provided a personal glimpse into the growth and changes of the university from its beginning as the State Normal School to a teaching college to the current university. She included biographical portraits of each of the university's presidents, countless photos, personal letters, and financial records of the institution.

The First Hundred Years: The History of Jacksonville State University, 1883-1983 is available online at http://www.jsu.edu/depart/library/chanticleer/First_Hundred_Years/.

Services for Dr. Sawyer were held December 20, 2006, at DeKalb United Methodist Church. Dr. Sawyer was 86 years old.

Dr. David L. Walters, Director Emeritus, Jacksonville State University, was awarded the National Band Association's "Mentor Award" January 18, 2007, at the Alabama Music Educators Association's In-service Conference at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa for his accomplishments and contributions throughout his professional life.

The event marked Dr. Walters as the first recipient of the prestigious NBA Mentor Award. Presenting the honors, Dr. David Gregory, past president of the National Band Association, spoke on Walters' career highlights and noted the gentle unassuming nature he carries through life.

During the conference, the Saks High School Band, under the direction of Gene Inglis, performed in concert with Dr. Walters and Dr. Gregory. As a former student of Dr. Walters, Inglis said he was particularly honored to have played a part in the nomination process for the award, as did other former students in the NBA impacted by Walters' direction.

Present at the concert were two of Dr. Walters' children, Marda and Joe, his wife Jeannie and many others to support and enjoy the event.

The plaque given to Dr. Walters reads as follows:

Trustees Approve University's New Strategic Plan

“Unless commitment is made, there are only promises and hopes; but no plans.”

—Peter F. Drucker, educator

According to a survey by Cohen and March, many universities fall into a planning trap. While they may have a strategic plan, they let it go stale and outdated, or never really commit to it in the first place.

Jacksonville State University is determined to never fall into any of those categories.

For more than a year, the university's Strategic Planning Committee, appointed by President Bill Meehan, has worked very hard to formulate a dynamic strategic plan supporting JSU's vision, mission statements, and seven institutional goals. The plan was approved by the JSU Board of Trustees on January 22, 2007.

Although a nod from the trustees might suggest to some 'mission accomplished,' the approval of the plan actually indicates work is just beginning.

Jacksonville State University operates in a rapidly changing environment mandating a proactive approach to creating a desired future. This approach requires continuous thoughtful review of past challenges and successes, evidence-based decision-making, prioritization of resource allocations, and broad-based participation by students, administration, faculty, and staff. The implementation of the new strategic plan is a renewal of the university's commitment to these values.

The plan incorporates:

- ongoing attention to how JSU teaches citizenship and leadership to students;
- guaranteeing the highest quality

educational programs;

- promotion of the university's role in research and service;
- development and maintenance of a robust learning community;
- maintenance of cutting-edge technology that will meet the demands of an ever-changing learning environment, preparing our students for future success;
- increased efficiency and effectiveness of the university's administrative processes and services;
- sound financial planning assuring adequate fiscal resources for the university.

Surveys sent to the university community of faculty, staff, administrators, and students have played an active role in the formation of the plan. Early in the process, more than 2,100 members of the JSU community responded to a survey helping identify the university's core values. The JSU community also responded to a survey about the new university vision statement.

Before JSU's Strategic Plan was approved by the trustees, the university surveyed faculty, staff, administrators and students. Of the seventeen items included, at least 80 percent of those surveyed agreed or strongly agreed with every item except "the strategic plan is attainable within the next five years," for which 76.6 percent of the respondents agreed or strongly agreed. More than 90 percent of those surveyed agreed "the strategic plan is relevant to the university's mission."

From the beginning, Jacksonville State University President William A. Meehan sought broad-based participation in the development of the strategic plan. Increased participation from students, faculty, and administration will continue to be a cornerstone of the strategic plan's implementation.

The Strategic Plan Committee met promptly after the plan's approval to prioritize strategies and plan a kick-off meeting that will take place in February. Quarterly committee update meetings, the presentation of reports to the community and trustees, and regular updates to the strategic planning website will ensure smooth sailing as the plan continues to help the university chart its future course.

PIONEER SPIRIT

-REALTYBID.COM CEO TONY ISBELL '87 HELPS
REVOLUTIONIZE REAL ESTATE AUCTION INDUSTRY

Through a chance meeting with an industry executive while in college, Tony Isbell, a 1987 Jacksonville State University management/marketing graduate, was introduced to the real estate auction industry. Since that time, he has spent nearly twenty years learning its inner workings, and through RealtyBid.com, the online real estate auction firm he co-founded, he has become a major player in revolutionizing the industry.

Isbell is the CEO/president and co-founder of RealtyBid International, LLC, the parent company of RealtyBid.com, the nation's leader in, and a pioneer of, online real estate sales. RealtyBid.com, a web site that some in the media have dubbed "the eBay of real estate," was the brainchild of Isbell and Executive Vice President/Co-founder Mike Keracher, who, after working together for several years in the traditional real estate auction world, formed their own real estate auction company in 1999.

After a couple of successful years in the live auction business with their own company, Isbell and his partner became intrigued by the prospect of using the Internet to conduct a portion of their business and began exploring online auction applications and implementing them into their sales process. The use of the Internet as a means of assisting real estate auction sales was so advantageous for the company that in January 2001, RealtyBid.com was formed for the purpose of selling real estate exclusively through online auctions. Almost six years later, RealtyBid.com has sold more than 4,000 properties online and is currently selling 100-200 properties online per month. To date, the company has auctioned more than $300 million worth of real estate online.

According to Isbell, RealtyBid.com specializes in the expedited sale of real estate through its innovative online auction platform, and with access to databases of more than 2.5 million real estate buyers, it has become one of the most vocal advocates for the use of Internet technology as a means of bringing real estate buyers and sellers together. RealtyBid.com hosts bidding events for several classes of real estate, including homes, condominiums, ranches and land, commercial properties, builder and developer events, international properties, and bank-owned assets.

Isbell said, "The Internet provides a more efficient process for taking bids, managing and selling properties, and tracking sales. It also provides a more cost effective process for conducting auctions. The Internet has allowed us to break down geographic boundaries so that bidders can bid on properties anywhere in the country from anywhere in the world."

RealtyBid is headquartered in Rainbow City, Ala., but its reach is truly global. Properties from forty-eight different states, Mexico, and Costa Rica have been auctioned via RealtyBid.com to buyers all over the country and the world. "In the past year, we've seen some very exciting things happen at this company. For example, we've sold Texas properties to California buyers, and Florida properties to New York buyers. We've sold U.S. properties to buyers in Australia and the United Kingdom. One really amazing story centers around the sale of a small home in Alabama to a female soldier in Iraq who placed bids from a satellite laptop computer. These opportunities were not possible before the Internet."

According to Isbell, the appeal of RealtyBid.com is a practical matter. "RealtyBid.com and online auctions, in general, provide a value opportunity. RealtyBid.com sells discounted homes, and that is a great enticement for homebuyers. We offer potential buyers the opportunity to purchase discounted real estate from motivated sellers. Additionally, we offer agents and developers an accelerated sales timeframe and quick access to a phenomenal database of proven potential buyers and investors. And, we can offer exposure that agents and developers can't generally generate for themselves."

RealtyBid.com's web site has been highlighted in coverage by Business 2.0 magazine, MSNBC.com, the San Jose Mercury News, The Wall Street Journal, Newsday (NY), the Los Angeles Times, the Philadelphia Inquirer, and the Associated Press, as well as by real estate industry leaders RISMedia.com and Inman News.

In November, Isbell and RealtyBid.com were named one of America's top real estate teams and were listed as part of "The Real Estate Top 200," a national awards ranking sponsored by The Wall Street Journal, the REAL Trends real estate news web site, and Lore Magazine.

SARRELL REGIONAL DENTAL CENTER

By Anne Muriithi

The Sarrell Regional Dental Center for Public Health, with locations in Anniston, Heflin, and Talladega, is a non-profit organization believing “everyone deserves world class treatment, no matter where you are from, your income or your beliefs. [They] are deeply committed to these values and in providing high quality dental health.” Providing comprehensive dental treatment services at no charge to patients ages three to twenty with Medicaid or ALL-KIDS insurance, SRDC is filling the need. Cardiologist Dr. Warren Sarrell recognized in the area.

A health assessment performed by the University of Alabama at Birmingham School of Public Health was undertaken at the request of the Calhoun County Community Foundation to examine issues of access to health care and the health status of the population.

“The study found that the third most deficient healthcare delivery problem was dental care to economically disadvantaged children,” says Brandi Mangum, director of marketing for Sarrell Dental Centers and JSU alumna.

In 2001, Dr. Sarrell, along with local dentists Dr. Bruce Cunningham, Dr. Donald King, Dr. Wayne Townsend, and Dr. Timothy Kerper created a committee to review the best possible response to the community’s dental crisis. Their solution: to create a dental center providing assistance to those children shown in the study requiring the most dental service. Out of the plan, the Calhoun County Dental Center was created.

Ready and with a dentist, the dental center opened its doors to the public January 6, 2004. Mangum said the opening of the dental center was very difficult because recruiting a dentist to work with underprivileged children and Alabama state Medicaid re-imburement was thought to be undesirable. After much conversation with the Associate Dean of UAB Dental School Dr. Thornton, the dental center was able to commit two pediatric residents per week. All three centers are now partnered with UAB.

After a year, it was evident the center needed to hire a full-time person to oversee operations. In January 2005, Jeffrey A. Parker, a marketing professor at JSU (recently retired with a successful background as CEO for several large corporations), was hired as the center’s CEO and produced positive operational results within his first month on board.

This non-profit organization employs more than forty people, JSU alumni and students filling many of these spots. Mangum said her experience at JSU gave her a great understanding in business and marketing.

“Mr. Parker’s business policy course and sales course at JSU most definitely helped me the most,” said Mangum. “Those two classes really taught me about how to handle situations that would occur in an executive meeting or objections in a sales presentation. Without these two classes, I do not think I could have made it in the real world work environment.”

“We hire the best and the brightest, which normally means they are from JSU. Our interns are given responsibility with accountability,” said Parker. “We pride ourselves on giving students doing their internships here a taste of ‘the real deal.’ If they excel here and it is what they would like to do, we love to keep them here even after graduation.” Burt Arthur completed his internship for JSU with Sarrell Dental Center, and was hired as the financial manager in May of 2005, and went on to become the director of operations.

Because of the deeply rooted values and success of the staff, Sarrell Regional Dental Center was cited as an Outstanding Organization for 2006-2007 by the National Football League Alumni Atlanta Chapter. The NFL Alumni is a non-profit service organization of former professional football players working voluntarily on behalf of youth and charity. The center is the first in the state to receive this honor.

The Sarrell Regional Dental Center began in Anniston, expanded to Heflin and Talladega, and continues to grow. Sarrell Regional recently opened Sarrell Regional Optical Center in Heflin, providing optical services to children on Medicaid and ALL-KIDS.

Chairman of the Medical Center Memorial Foundation Don King said part of the foundation’s strategic plan for Wellness Connection is to provide needed dental services to more children. To complete this, the foundation donated a 40-foot Blue Bird bus to the SRDC. Outfitted with state-of-the-art equipment, the mobile dental unit hit the road in February. SRDC Graphic Designer Cristina Almanza, a JSU grad, designed a wrap to go on the bus. It is a dental office on wheels, providing care to children all over the state of Alabama who might otherwise not receive any dental services.

“Words cannot express how grateful we are to the Medical Center Memorial Foundation for this most generous gift. It will allow us to further extend our reach to help underserved children in Calhoun, Cleburne, and Talladega counties as well as outlying counties in Alabama,” stated Parker. The mobile unit is staffed full time with a dentist, hygienist, and assistant.

The clinic’s vision for the future is to continue to expand and help as many children as possible. Recently, an optical center in Heflin opened, also for children on Medicaid or ALL-KIDS. The optical center shares a similar culture to the dental ones.

Sarrell Dental treated more than 8,600 children in 2006. The centers use state-of-the-art technology, each working completely paperless. Treatment rooms have flat screen TVs above the dental chairs so the children can watch cartoons while getting their teeth cleaned.

The waiting room welcomes and entertains with bright blue and green paint across the wall. Each picture on the wall is labeled in English and Spanish; there is a bright yellow “sun” / “sol” and more. And the paintings aren’t the only bilingual bonuses to the centers—all offices are staffed with English and Spanish speakers as well.

“We try to make it a fun experience for the kids so that they want to come back and get into a routine of good oral hygiene,” says Mangum. Additionally, the clinics have a no cavities club so children who do not have cavities can pose for pictures with a large stuffed tiger and have their picture posted on the club wall.

The center offers comprehensive dental services including cleanings, fillings, crowns, and other services as a gift to families in need. They use high standards of practice for public companies in a non-profit environment, with no debt and no acceptance of donations. In two years, Sarrell went from being the smallest dental center in the county to the largest in the state.

For more information, contact Anniston office, 256-741-7340; Heflin office, 256-463-2700; Talladega office, 256-315-494; or email office@sarrelldental.org. Patients are seen by appointment only, and office hours and days vary by location.

Thriving in the Midst of Trauma

The life of a JSU grad working to save the lives of others

In today's doctored television world of Grey's Anatomy, ER, House and Dr. 90210, it can sometimes be hard to tell fact from fiction. For first-year surgical resident Dr. Stephen Brackett, it is just part of his everyday job. Brackett graduated from Jacksonville State University in the spring of 2002 with a bachelor's degree in biology and a minor in chemistry. He immediately entered medical school at the University of Alabama at Birmingham, completing four years of training and, at the age of 26 is half-way through his first year in the surgical residency program at Erlanger Hospital in Chattanooga, Tenn., as Stephen Ronald Brackett, M.D.

GEM recently sat down with Dr. Brackett to find out what a day in his life is like and what path led him to his profession as a surgeon.

A typical day in the residency program

Dr. Brackett's alarm clock begins buzzing at 4:45 every morning. Because of his location, this is a luxury. His apartment is a mere three minutes away from the hospital, where he must arrive between 5:00 and 5:30 am. He hits the floor running with pre-rounds, which involves going over his patient list prior to visiting them with the attending on duty. He evaluates how each individual patient has progressed through the night and reviews the case before beginning rounds. After rounds, there is usually a conference the residents must attend to learn particulars on a case.

Then, after a break for lunch, if there are not any immediate cases, Dr. Brackett is back on the floor completing paperwork for charts, scheduling rehab if needed, and releasing patients to go home. If there is an operation scheduled he can scrub in on, he begins preparing for that case. On a normal day, he leaves the hospital between 6:00-7:00 PM.

Residents work eighty hours a week during their program but are not allowed to work more than thirty hours at one time. If a resident is on call, he or she arrives at the hospital by six o'clock in the morning and does not leave until noon the next day, pending a scheduled operation. "Long hours are just something you get used to," says Dr. Brackett. "With some surgeries, you can be in the operating room for eight hours or more; you learn to deal with it."

A surgical residency lasts five to six years. Each year, the resident rotates between multiple "services" such as trauma, pediatric, general surgery, and vascular among others. Dr. Brackett is in his "A service" rotation, which involves critical care patients. Out of the different services, the orange service is the one where residents actually perform more of the surgeries and procedures. Residents can expect to spend one to two months on each service through the year.

Brackett says, "You would think that the orange service might be my favorite because we get to do more, but actually the trauma service is what I like best so far." He likes it because "it is a fast-paced rotation and you are constantly busy doing something." Even though he did not do much trauma work in medical school because he was "scared of it," once he actually started in the service, he says the fear went away.

According to Brackett, doctors in their first year of residency are not allowed to handle surgeries by themselves. By the end of the first year, a resident, depending on his skill level, will be allowed to perform amputations and insert portacaths for chemo patients among a few other things. As the years progress and more skills are acquired, the resident is allowed to do more procedures by him/herself. By the third year, every resident travels to other hospitals in the area for different service training.

Learning by performing

Brackett says a misconception some of today's medical television shows portray is that there is a group of interns sitting up in an "operative theater" above the operating room. "That is simply not the case," says Brackett. "I am actually in the operating room helping the chief do whatever needs to be done, which may include tying knots or holding skin or organs away from the actual procedure area to give the doctor more room." When asked his opinion on Grey's Anatomy, he replied that he believes it is unrealistic and, like most of us, he does not want to go home on his time off and watch what he has been doing all day.

The path to procedures

There was not a single event that led Brackett to his decision to become a doctor. He did not have a revolution or experience an Oprah "ah ha moment." According to Brackett, growing up his parents always told him he would be a doctor, so that is the path he started down. He credits his dad with his decision to become a surgeon.

As a little boy, he remembers his dad being mechanically inclined and the two of them building race cars. Like his dad, he likes to work with his hands and "fix things." Brackett relates this to his current career. "With an operation, you have the potential to cure the patient. You can't always fix the problem, but you have the opportunity to, whereas in internal medicine you can only treat an illness."

Since he grew up in Gadsden, Ala., Jacksonville State University was close to home and just the right size for Brackett. "The scholarship money that I received was hard to compete with," says Brackett, so he enrolled at JSU on a full four-year tuition scholarship. He says his classes at JSU provided him a level playing field with medical students having an undergraduate degree from Harvard or Yale. He believes one of the advantages of JSU's biology department is its great faculty. "They are willing to work with you one-on-one to help you with research projects, and that is something that medical schools look for in their applicant pool," says Brackett. While at JSU, he was a member of the Southerners for one year, held an office in the student government association, was a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, was a peer counselor, and orientation coordinator, as well as Mr. Jax State 2001.

Maintaining a balance between studies, work, and a social life took more effort once Brackett began medical school at UAB in the fall of 2002. Although he has a full schedule, he prescribes himself some “down time” during the week to hang out with friends or catch up on shows he TiVos like Saturday Night Live and American Idol.

Brackett’s first memory of medical school is his anatomy class. It is the first big class for a med student, the time when he/she receives a cadaver for dissection over the course. He remembers looking forward to the class until the day came to get his cadaver. “I knew at noontime we were going to be going downstairs to the anatomy lab, pulling the wrapper off someone’s dad, mom, or child that had donated their body to science, and it terrified me,” says Brackett. But once they got “Harold” (the name they gave their cadaver) and made the first incision, everyone’s nerves calmed a bit.

Brackett spoke about the donor program and how invaluable it is to med students to be able to learn the anatomy in such a way and how the students believe it makes them much better doctors. Each year, the residents host a donor service for the families whose loved ones donated their bodies. They talk to the families about how much they appreciate their gift. “It is a very emotional service,” says Brackett, “but it is nice to be able to say thank you to the families who are helping me become a better doctor.” The donor service at UAB is named after Brackett’s anatomy teacher, Dr. Casey, who grew up in Jacksonville, Ala.

New resident on the floor

When asked about the transition from being a fourth-year medical student to a first-year resident, he says the shift was “very scary.” Just like many college graduates, he was forced to leave his friends behind and start “the first real job [he] had ever had.” Brackett says the paperwork alone, with insurance, benefits and taxes, was overwhelming. But the biggest changes are that he is now the responsible party and has to make life-changing decisions regarding patient healthcare.

In medical school, the students basically do what the doctors tell them to do. As a resident, Dr. Brackett is making decisions on treatment, and even though he is still under the supervision of an attendant and chief, he has to do more on his own. The long hours are another change. As a medical student, Brackett says the doctors were a little more lenient with the number of hours required because they knew he had studying to do as well. But as a resident, eighty hours a week is something to get used to. He also finds it interesting that he is now one of the residents teaching the med students. He always tries to remember what it was like to be the student when he is helping them work through a procedure. “I remember the residents who were nice to me and those who were not, and how much of a difference it made to me, and I try to be helpful,” says Brackett.

Dr. Brackett’s plan is to work in plastic surgery. He is interested in trauma and transplants as well, but likes the idea of plastics and the immediate reward of seeing the work upon completion. He will be studying for the next four years to “sit for his boards” and take a written and oral examinations to be certified as a plastic surgeon. Once he receives that certification, he says he can start paying back his debt from medical school and get some sleep.

A STEP Ahead.

What is STEP?

JSU's College of Nursing and Health Sciences (CNHS) is known for its innovative, student-focused approach to baccalaureate nursing education. Years before other universities were developing distance learning strategies, JSU offered flexible, alternative scheduling for registered nurses seeking a Bachelor of nursing degree. Almost twenty years ago, the CNHS began classes one day per week for licensed RNs; by 1994, lectures were delivered via videotapes with on-campus class meetings limited to three times per semester. By 2003, CNHS launched a completely online program for RNs.

The STEP Program (Strategic Teaching for Enhanced Professional Preparation) is designed to help licensed RNs obtain their educational and professional goals while fulfilling their personal and occupational responsibilities. Once general studies requirements are met, upper division nursing courses can be completed in as little as one calendar year. STEP recognizes the past academic and experiential knowledge of the registered nurse; therefore, RNs are awarded thirty-five hours of Advanced Placement credit upon completion of the first semester coursework.

Currently, there are almost 140 students in the STEP Program at JSU. STEP admits students three times a year with about 60 students in each class. Approximately 85% of STEP students are balancing work, families and academics.

Sybil Roark is a “true child of Alabama.” She grew up in Bessemer, Alabama, and is a 1978 graduate of Jefferson State Community College with an Associate in Applied Science in nursing. Through the JSU College of Nursing and Health Sciences STEP program, she earned her Bachelor of Science in nursing from JSU in 1998. She then earned her Master of Science in Nursing from JSU in 2000 as one of first students to enter the MSN program at JSU. Currently, Roark is a nursing faculty member at Calhoun Community College.

Why and how did you become a nurse?

The nursing profession has been the best career choice for me. As a high school student, I was already interested in helping professions, and explored several career options. Deciding on the nursing profession, I applied to two schools, and was accepted by both—one was a four-year degree program and one was a two-year degree program. As my parents' income was limited, I chose the two-year degree program to save them the expense of a four-year school.

The associate's degree in nursing program (at Jefferson State Community College in Birmingham) was excellent, however, I graduated feeling much like most new grads... I was scared to death!

Was returning to school part of your original plan?

I always intended to further my education, but I married and began to have a family, so my needs and wants took second place at that time. Working as a nurse with an associate's degree, I believed that I was a good nurse, but I also felt that there was a piece of the profession that I was missing. I had always enjoyed the learning process, a quality which would eventually serve me well.

Tell us about returning to school to earn your bachelor's...

I worked as a nurse and reared my children for about ten years, then began to gradually work on my academic courses in the evenings, and whenever I could fit classes into my lifestyle and responsibilities. After a few years, I had the academic base to begin my BSN program. I considered several options for the BSN, but I had to continue to provide income for my family, and traditional programs were not an option. There were not many programs to choose from at that time (early 1990's). I wanted not only the availability of a non-traditional program, but I insisted on a quality education concurrently. Jacksonville State University seemed to have the best program for my needs and desires. Class meetings that were scheduled two to three times per semester were quite manageable. There were video lectures to watch, and tests were scheduled for class meeting times. Clinical experiences were arranged by the student with approved preceptors and clinical sites. This type of program was unique and progressive and allowed for individual freedom and choices.

What was it like going back to school?

One experience that I always remember fondly was the day that I had to perform skills "check-off" for my advanced health assessment class. I was so nervous, I felt nauseated, my heart was pounding, my knees felt weak. But, one particular faculty member was so patient and reassuring that I made it through the skills performance without any problems. That faculty member is still a part of the JSU College of Nursing and still corresponds with me from time to time. One of the major assets of the Jacksonville State University College of Nursing and Health Sciences is the faculty and staff. There is a genuine sense of caring and professionalism conveyed by the faculty and staff.

So you earned your Bachelor of Science in nursing. Where do you go from there?

While feeling elated and tired simultaneously upon earning my BSN, I always knew that I would probably work toward the master's degree at some point in my life. About six months after earning the BSN, I began to look at some of the MSN programs. I began to research admission to the JSU MSN program. I completed necessary paper work, had my interview and found that I was accepted.

What was your experience with Distance Education like?

The program at that time was not a completely online program. There were classes to attend, a full day once per week. However, I could continue my nursing management position by scheduling myself around that Thursday class day, so the program was still one of the most workable programs in the state. Research papers and other activities could be accomplished outside of work and class time with creative scheduling and self-motivation. The program allowed for input from the student, as students chose their own "population of interest," and this input tended to keep me motivated to continue the hours of research and writing involved.

Now you are a part of the nursing faculty at Calhoun Community College. How did JSU prepare you for this new role?

Working as nursing faculty now, I still remember those exemplary faculty members from JSU and try to personify their traits of kindness, understanding and patience. I work with nursing faculty who are products of several different MSN programs. Apparently, the JSU MSN is ahead of the curve with the inclusion of technology in the program. I found myself to be much more proficient with Microsoft PowerPoint, Excel and teaching technology in general, than many of my cohorts. I cannot remember how many PowerPoint presentations I produced during my MSN student career, but I know that the technology aspect of the program is much more progressive than most.

What's next?

I have recently applied to two wonderful doctoral programs. Acceptance decisions for both schools will be made in the spring of 2007. I plan to earn a doctoral degree and continue to teach nursing for the remainder of my career. A faculty member at JSU once told me that a position as a nursing faculty member would be the "hardest job you would ever love". Sound advice.

FACT:

JSU Nursing program enrollment has increased by 92% during the past five years.

Master of Science in nursing, College of Nursing and Health Sciences

JSU's Master of Science in nursing (MSN) program was approved by the Alabama Commission on Higher Education in June 1998 and welcomed its first 19 students in the fall of 1999. Since December 2000, 66 students have graduated from the program, offering preparation as a clinical nurse specialist with a major in community health.

JSU Student Athletes Aid Children in Iraq

Jacksonville State's Student Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) took on a special project to aid children in Iraq. Their project, MISSION POSSIBLE: GAMEcock Strength-Gamecocks Aiding Middle East- took place during October and November 2006. JSU Strength and Conditioning Coach Scott Austin is currently stationed in Iraq working with the Marine Corps Civil Affairs Group. Coach Austin is helping to rebuild the infrastructure of the country and helping build a stable environment for the children of Iraq. The SAAC collected school supplies, athletic balls, personal hygiene items, clothes, and toys to send to school-aged children in the town where Coach Austin is located. These items were collected from student athletes as well as from other JSU faculty, staff and students.

This project is one of numerous community service projects the SAAC participates in throughout the year. Other projects include reading at local elementary schools, sponsoring a can food drive for Christmas, and sponsoring a Home Run Derby and basketball game to celebrate National Student Athlete Day in the spring. The mission of SAAC is to provide a link of communication between JSU student athletes and the athletic department administration. It also provides a support system for student athletes to discuss various issues specific to the rigors of student athlete life. The organization represents the best interests of student athletes and their experience in higher education while encouraging campus unity and spirit among teams, students and supporters.

JSU Volleyball Claimed Second Ohio Valley Conference Title in 2006

The Jacksonville State volleyball team made history claiming its second Ohio Valley Conference Tournament title this past November. In a hard-fought 3-0 win over the sixth-seeded Southeast Missouri Redhawks, the Gamecocks used their school-record 19th straight win to take the OVC Tourney during the finals at Pete Mathews Coliseum. This victory also earned the Gamecocks a second visit to the NCAA tournament.

"This one is special in a different way because it is at home and in front of our home crowd," JSU head coach and 2006 OVC Coach of the Year Rick Nold said. "It is totally different than last year in that we came in here as the favorite. It says a lot about our team, coming in on the winning streak and being able to stay focused and take care of business."

Senior setter and team captain, Emily Withers was named the tournament MVP. This Cincinnati native capped an outstanding senior season by breaking the school's all-time assists record. Senior Joi Watts and junior Abbey Breit joined Withers on the all-tournament team.

"Everybody knows that we are extremely close off the court, and that definitely helps us on the floor," Withers said. "It really hasn't sunk in yet. It's hard to believe it's my last year, and I couldn't think of a better way to go out."

Rachel Countryman: Teacher, Coach, and Player

By Lori Tippetts
The Jacksonville News

Every great now and then, you come in contact with an extraordinary athlete, an athlete who is the real deal. Rachel Countryman is such a person.

Countryman, 24, will be starting her second year as a geometry teacher and softball coach at White Plains High School. Countryman was selected Class 1-3A Coach of the Year by The Anniston Star for her team's performance, and improvement, in softball.

The Steele, Ala., native was grateful for her first teaching and coaching experience at White Plains. "I'm from a small town," says Countryman, "I interviewed at a lot of different places and prayed about going to White Plains, I know that is where I'm supposed to be. It's a great place that reminds me of home. Ms. Miller, the principal is a great woman, and there is a great faculty. I'm just at peace that White Plains is where I should be."

It only takes being around Countryman a very short while to see her sincerity; she glows when she talks about the sport she loves, and her love for not only the game of softball but for those that she coaches. While Countryman admits that she hopes for her team to get better and have a good experience, she is also very quick to talk about an aspect that she feels is most important, teaching her athletes how to act off the field as well as on the field.

"The main reason I'm coaching girls this age is I know that they are impressionable and I want them to know that they need to have character. I want them to get better as softball players. I have a heart for them, and I want them to know that someone cares about them and wants them to succeed." While teaching and coaching are important aspects of Countryman's life, there's another important aspect as well.

Many who followed Countryman thought of her as the best shortstop in the entire Ohio Valley Conference. Others even pitted her against shortstops across the nation, claiming Countryman to be the best.

JSU softball coach Jana McGinnis realizes what she had in the outstanding player. "In a coach's career there are only a handful of players that have a complete package as a person and player; Rachel is one of them," comments McGinnis. "She has high standards both on and off the field."

Countryman's stats during her collegiate career were great enough to have people across the nation sit up and take notice, particularly one of the best to ever play the sport, Dr. Dot Richardson, two time Olympic Gold Medal winner, now an orthopedic surgeon.

Richardson was among the main movers and shakers to develop a professional fast pitch softball league for those elite players in the sport. With the announcement that softball would be dropped from the Olympics in 2012, the formation of the league became even more critical. Richardson became commissioner of the new league.

The PFX (professional fast pitch extreme) Tour began its initial season this year. The tour was designed for not only the greats in the sports of softball, to include many Olympic players like Lisa Fernandez, Laura Berg, Stacey Nuveman, Jessica Mendoza, Lovianne Jung and Tairia Flowers but for fans and amateurs alike.

Countryman was shocked when Richardson phoned. "When Dot Richardson called me I thought it was a prank," laughs Countryman. "She said, 'I was wondering if you wanted to play professional softball for me.' I've been playing since the end of May."

Countryman admits that there are moments when she can't believe that she's playing. "I'm playing softball with players I've watched for a long time. Everyone is a legend. Some are Olympic players. As a child, you think about playing with them or against them. It is a dream. God definitely had a hand in this. Who would ever think a girl from Jacksonville would get an opportunity like this. I'm soaking it up. There are moments when I step onto the field that I just can't believe it."

It wasn't only her athletic talents that convinced Richardson to draft Countryman into the pro ranks, but her presence off the field as well. Richardson knows that Countryman is an excellent role model, just what the new profession is looking for, and will help inspire the young people following the sport.

The Gift of a Lifetime

THE POWER OF 125...
JOIN THE CELEBRATION!
A Campaign for Jacksonville State University

by Earl Warren
Director of Institutional Development

It is no secret that Jacksonville State University depends upon its alumni for support. Many of our alumni are not familiar with the appropriations process at our state capital in Montgomery, Alabama, regarding funding at state colleges and universities. Less than half of our university budget comes from state funding. As one former trustee stated, "Jacksonville State and many universities in Alabama have gone from state supported to state assisted". Therefore, it is imperative that we have strong support from alumni, and friends both public and private for Jacksonville State University to maintain cutting edge programs with the quality you have come to expect. For JSU to remain a first-rate institution, we must have support from our constituents.

The Department of Institutional Development plans and implements support for the Annual Fund and other special solicitations based on the identified and projected needs which support the objectives of the University.

As many of you know, the University is involved in a historic The Power of 125...Join The Celebration! Capital Campaign that began in 2004 and will conclude in 2008. This campaign offers unprecedented opportunities that will extend far into the future. The goal is $25,000,000, and we are currently at 70 percent of reaching that goal with just under two years remaining.

The 13 projects of the Capital Campaign are vital to our campus and will continue to transform Jacksonville State University as a public teaching institution that provides educational, cultural, and social experiences for a diverse undergraduate and graduate student population.

Next year, 2008, will mark for Jacksonville State University 125 years of greatness. While we have many activities taking place between now and then to lead up to this great celebration, its only fitting that we start preparing for another 125 years of excellence. How will we do this? First and foremost, we must join together and commit ourselves to progress, to greatness, and to investing in our students and our future. Second, we must continue to involve our alumni both with inkind support and financial support. This will provide leverage when we solicit corporations and foundations who will sometimes ask what the alumni participation rate is when it comes to giving back to the university.

In most cases, if you have ever given to JSU then most likely, you have given to the Annual Fund Campaign. Our phonathon serves as a driving force, and many of the gifts made to JSU through our Annual Fund come through students speaking with alumni during our phonathon. Funds received through our Annual Fund are used where the need is greatest unless the donor earmarks it for a specific cause, i.e., College of Education, Athletics, College of Commerce and Business, just to name a few. The Power of 125...Capital Campaign is a comprehensive fund-raising effort designed to support all five colleges of Jacksonville State University as each continues to strive for excellence in its particular field.

Although both campaigns are important and critical to the success of Jacksonville State University, usually Annual Fund gifts are gifts of cash, but could be securities, pledges, etc. The Power of 125... Capital Campaign donations are most often major gifts or special gifts made over a period of time consisting of pledges, short term trusts, life insurance gifts, Charitable Remainder Trusts, and real estate, just to name a few.

Ten Good Reasons to Support the Annual Fund

The Jacksonville State University Annual Fund is more critical than ever to the continued success and excellence our alumni and constituents have come to expect. To remain competitive with other institutions of higher education, we need your support. Here are ten additional reasons why it is important:

1. Tuition covers less than 40 percent of the actual cost of educating a Jacksonville State University student. The resources the annual fund provides each year are one of the few sources of income bridging the gap between what tuition provides and the total operating budget. Generous alumni support strengthens the Jacksonville State experience for all students.
2. More than 80 percent of all students will receive some type of financial aid this year. Jacksonville State University is responding to the continued need of financial assistance for students and their families. JSU is competitively recruiting the most academically qualified students regardless of their financial circumstances.
3. Annual gifts fund enable Jacksonville State University to retain and attract outstanding faculty who are the best within chosen professions.
4. Alumni giving rates serve as the barometer by which corporations and foundations rate alumni involvement. The results are a major consideration for these groups when deciding to make large contributions to colleges and universities.
5. College guidebooks such as U.S. News & World Report, Barrons and Fiske use alumni donation participation rates as the sole criterion to rate alumni satisfaction when completing overall institutional quality ratings. To move up (or maintain status) in the rankings and increase our alumni participation rate will attract quality students.
6. The participation rankings noted above also serve to increase the value of a degree from Jacksonville State University, thus enhancing the degrees of all JSU graduates, past, present, and future.
7. There are some areas that depend on support from annual gifts. Such areas include innovative academic programs, faculty and research, campus technology, and many more.
8. Annual giving makes a substantial impact. It would take an additional 2 million dollars in the endowment, or an additional tuition charge per student, to support what annual fund gifts provide each year.
9. Giving reaffirms your commitment to Jacksonville State University and its mission.
10. One student educated at Jacksonville State University can positively impact the lives of thousands.

These are all good, but I can't imagine where I would be if I had not attended and graduated from Jacksonville State University, a large reason in and of itself. The degree I received transformed my life and provided secure financial ground on which to build my family. This is not only a reflection of my life, but thousands of our alumni, who can attest that JSU provided a sound educational foundation for their current successes. It is my hope you will consider a charitable contribution to JSU in 2007 so this tradition of excellence may continue. -Earl Warren

Gift to JSU's Sports Medicine Program

by Sissy Spence • Development Officer

Two JSU graduates, Mike and Shelley Suco, made a wonderful gift to the "Power of 125...Join the Celebration!" capital campaign in support of the sports medicine program. Shelley graduated in 1994 and received a BA in political science. She was a member of the Phi Mu Fraternity and served as treasurer for the student government association. Shelley was a Marching Ballerina in the Southerners, and upon graduation, worked as a buyer with Just for Feet Corporation and later went to American Wholesale Book Company. Today she enjoys being the CEO of the Suco household and spending time with their two children. Mike graduated from JSU in 1990 and received a BS in business. He was a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity and enjoyed his student work in athletic training. Upon graduation, Mike began his career with Ernest and Julio Gallo Wines where he held several sales and management positions in both Florida and South Carolina. Today, he is the director of marketing and key accounts for Coca-Cola Bottling Company United, Inc. in Birmingham, Ala. Mike's civic involvement has included the YMCA Corporate Board, Hispanic Business Council, Fiesta Hispanic Festival, Petroleum and Convenience Marketers Association and the Eagle Point Homeowners Board. Mike and Shelley have two children, Isabella, four, and Michael, Jr., one. They reside in Birmingham, Alabama, and are very active in Valleydale Church.

Mike's time at JSU began in athletics, and he feels supporting this area will continue excellence in athletic training. He remembers working with Jim Skidmore when there were only three or four athletic trainers in the department, which now has three full-time staff and more than twenty student workers. Mike and Shelley's commitment to this program will create new opportunities for students planning to incorporate athletic training into their activities while at JSU.

Mike was a local kid with city and university ties, and he came to me many years ago in a time when I only had three or four students helping with sports medicine coverage. He worked very hard mainly in the football, basketball, and baseball areas. On occasion, since Mike graduated, I have seen him a few times, and he never fails to have a smile on his face and a positive attitude. I am pleased to note that he has given back much more than I thought he attained when he was with us. My plans are to upgrade the athletic training area at Pete Mathews Coliseum, and this gift will certainly help jumpstart the project.

JSU Honors Sperry Snow

by Renee' Robertson
Development Officer

The Association of Fundraising Professionals, Greater Birmingham Chapter, celebrated National Philanthropy Day at a luncheon on November 14, 2006. National Philanthropy Day is internationally recognized by more than 28,000 professional fundraisers in 186 chapters in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Hong Kong, and Singapore. The luncheon honored the 25 years of philanthropy that has shaped Birmingham and the surrounding communities. As members of AFP, the JSU Office of Institutional Development and University President, Dr. Meehan, took the opportunity to recognize one of our very own alumni, Sperry Snow, who has made a tremendous impact, not only as an ambassador for JSU, but also for the Birmingham community, and currently serves as the president of the JSU Foundation, Inc. The luncheon focused on individuals, volunteers, and organizations who choose to serve by giving of time, talents, and resources for the betterment of others, our communities and society as a whole. In the Birmingham Business Journal, the chairperson of the Philanthropy Day Committee, Despina Vodantis, said about the luncheon, "It honors the few who have responded the many called, who have used their blessings to bless others in need. And it is a day of hope for those in need who have found a helping hand in their time of want and sorrow."

Philanthropy Day is a national event that is recognized by more than 28,000 fundraisers. President Dr. Meehan took time to recognize our own alumni, Sperry Snow, who currently serves as President of JSU Foundation, Inc.

Ways to GIVE

GIFT TYPE	DEFINITION	ADVANTAGES FOR DONOR	HOW COUNTED
OUTRIGHT GIFTS	Outright gifts may be in the form of cash, securities, real estate or personal property	Gifts of cash and of appreciated property will provide you with an income tax deduction for the fair market value of the gift.	The fair market value also will be applied toward the campaign goal.
MATCHING GIFTS	Many companies will match gifts that their employees make to charitable organizations. A list of matching companies is available from the Foundation, or you may wish to inquire at your company to see whether it matches your charitable contributions.	You can double or even triple the impact of your gift—at no extra cost to you.	The matching gift from your company will be added to your own gift in determining the amount to be applied toward the campaign goal when you submit a completed matching gift form. (Varying restrictions may apply from some matching companies)
FIVE YEAR PLEDGES	Payment of your pledge over the next five years.	You can consider a larger commitment because payments can be extended over five years.	The total value of that pledge, plus any anticipated matching gifts, may be counted toward the campaign goal.
CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITY	A contract between you and JSU Foundation for a gift in exchange for a life income. A special kind of gift annuity, called the deferred gift annuity, permits you to make a gift to JSU now in exchange for a guaranteed life income, beginning at a future date.	A charitable gift annuity provides a guaranteed fixed income for you and/or others. The amount of income you receive is based upon your age at the time you make the gift. By deferring the income, you increase both the amount of your charitable deduction and the amount of income you will eventually receive from your gift.	The gift portion of a charitable gift annuity counts at full face value toward the campaign goal.
CHARITABLE REMAINDER UNITRUST	A trust which returns income to a donor or others for life or for a period of time which does not exceed 20 years.	The annual or more frequent payment of income is based on a percentage of the trust assets, as valued annually.	At the termination of the trust, the remainder is paid to JSU.
LIFE INSURANCE	JSU Foundation is named as both owner and beneficiary of a new or existing life insurance policy.	Immediate income tax deduction for any current value of the policy. Amount of premiums is deductible as a charitable contribution.	The current value of the policy, plus the amount you pledge to pay in premiums over the next five years, may be counted toward the campaign goal.
BEQUESTS	You may include JSU in your will for a specific amount, a percentage of your estate, or a remainder gift after bequests to individuals have been paid.	Estate tax deduction for full value of your bequest to JSU.	Certain restrictions apply to counting bequests toward the campaign goal. Please consult your development officer.

Appreciation Day

Donor Appreciation Day Festivities

On November 11, 2006 the Institutional Development Office hosted a reception in honor of Donor Appreciation Day with more than 30 capital campaign donors back on campus. The Power of 125...Join the Celebration! campaign has reached over 70% of its $25 million goal, and the university wanted to show gratitude to those who have been such a big part of that success. Donors gathered at the alumni house for a reception with fellowship, food and refreshments before the football game against Samford. University President, Dr. William A. Meehan and Head Football Coach, Jack Crowe addressed the crowd of donors to talk about the campaign and the impressive impact it has had on the university in both academics and athletics. Following the reception, the donors enjoyed watching a great football game where the Gamecocks defeated the Samford Bulldogs 55-7 and a halftime show with over 1,000 alumni marching the field in celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the Marching Southerners. Jay Whorton, Class of 1952 was a donor at the reception and he reflected on the day's festivities,

"The day was superb. In fact, each time I visit the campus, I am amazed at the progress that has occurred. With all of these exciting improvements, we as graduates and supporters of JSU need to contribute our resources and financial means to continue to make the strides we all desire."

Scholarship Students Express Gratitude

Fulfilling A Student's Dream

Emily Shierling, a senior elementary education major from Talladega, Ala., came to JSU because of our reputation for a quality education program within the College of Education and Professional Studies. For her senior year, she is the recipient of the donor-funded Elliot Trust Scholarship. "I had a great teacher when I was in elementary school who helped me through some tough times when I was young, and I have always wanted to teach and provide that kind of support for another child," says Shierling. "My scholarship has motivated me to excel in school and achieve my dream of becoming a teacher."

Providing Opportunities for Success

Katherine Czaja, a senior accounting major from Addison, Ill., came to JSU on a softball scholarship. After two years of playing softball, she found her heart leans more toward a full-time student position than an athlete. She was the recipient of the McGhee Scholarship for non-Alabama residents for her freshman year and is currently the recipient of the King Toyota Scholarship valued around $1300 per semester. "I am so thankful for my scholarship because it has afforded me the opportunity to enjoy my work and school without the added stress of trying to pay for my education." Katherine says she has always enjoyed math and is anxious to graduate in May and get a job in accounting.

Gift to Continuing Education

Margaret and David Copeland at Donor Appreciation Day Reception

David and Margaret Copeland have helped to provide funds for JSU's Continuing Education program through a creative gift of a life insurance policy. David received his bachelor's degree in accounting from JSU in 1962 and earned a Master's in Business Administration in 1980. From there he worked at an accounting firm in Anniston, Ala. and went on to own a practice in Gadsden. In 1985 he began working for the JSU Center for Economic Development, and in 1990 he was put in charge of starting the Continuing Education program at JSU. When he left as director of Continuing Education in 2001, the program had grown to more than 12,000 students! David's ties to JSU run deep: both of his daughters and his first wife graduated from JSU. His new wife, Margaret Relfe Copeland, is a faculty member in the English department at JSU and earned her Master of Science in Education in 1992 and a Master of Arts in 1998.

"JSU is very special to my family," David says. "Whether it was as a student, an employee, or as a parent, it has always been a pleasure to be involved with the JSU community." David chose to designate his gift to the Office of Continuing Education because he still believes strongly in its mission of providing continuous learning opportunities to enhance health, social, intellectual, and leadership qualities by extending knowledge, skills, and educational resources to the region.

How to give a gift of life insurance:

The JSU Foundation is named as both owner and beneficiary of a new or existing life insurance policy. If there are premiums yet to be paid, you pledge to reimburse JSU for those premiums. You will receive an immediate income tax deduction for any current value of the policy, and the amount of premiums is deductible as a charitable contribution. The current value of the policy, plus the amount you pledge to pay in premiums over the next five years, may be counted toward the campaign goal. If you would like further information about making a gift to JSU through a life insurance policy, please contact the Office of Institutional Development at 256-782-5605.

Catherine and Bill Peacock on their farm in Rockmart, GA.

If you can read this, thank a teacher. If you grew up in the state of Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, Missouri, Wyoming, or Arizona that teacher could have been Bill or Catherine Peacock. For more than 30 years, Mr. and Mrs. Peacock lived in numerous states around the country and held many teaching roles. Students across the country were touched by their love of education.

Mrs. Peacock grew up on a farm in Riverside, Ala., and earned her teaching certificate from Judson College in Marion, Ala. She taught for six years in Pell City before deciding to enroll at JSU to earn her bachelor's degree in teaching. Her late husband, Bill Peacock, grew up in Rockmart, Ga., and played football for the University of Alabama before coming to JSU. Meeting in the College of Education at JSU in 1950, they both went on to earn a master's degree in education from Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1986, they retired from teaching and settled on Bill's family farm in Rockmart, Ga. Their oldest son lives in Wyoming with his family and Mrs. Peacock's two grandsons. Her other two children live in Rockmart, and she stays very close to them. Mrs. Peacock recently made a wonderful contribution of $300,000 to endow the Bill and Catherine Peacock Scholarship for students in the College of Education and Professional Studies who plan to enter the field of teaching.

Mrs. Peacock is thrilled to have the opportunity to create the scholarship in honor of her and Bill's time at JSU. "We had such a great life being able to teach and feel that we earned a great education at JSU," says Mrs. Peacock. "I wanted to be able to provide the same opportunities for students today to earn their degree in education from such a great institution."

Mrs. Peacock takes higher education opportunities very seriously. She is a former Jacksonville State University teacher education graduate with 37 years teaching experience in the public school systems in numerous states. Mrs. Peacock's generous $300,000 scholarship contribution is substantial, and will certainly go a long way to benefit the selected applicants as they matriculate through the program. Our college considers Mrs. Peacock to be a true Gem of the Hills!

Preston O. Wilson

Local Philanthropist by Sissy Spence • Development Officer

Preston O. Wilson, born December 12, 1911, in Seville, Georgia, and died on December 28, 2006. Many remember Mr. Wilson for his bright personality and his warm smile. His accomplishments were countless. Mr. Wilson attended Massey Business College and the University of Alabama in Birmingham. His professional career included service as an accountant and auditor and forty five years as an automobile dealer in Anniston, Ala. He was a longtime member of Parker Memorial Baptist Church, having served on numerous committees, and was a past president of the Baraca Sunday School Class. He held a record of perfect attendance during his thirty nine years of membership with the Anniston Rotary Club and was a member of the Anniston Country Club for fifty years. He was a 32nd Degree Scottish Rite of Freemasonry and a retired LTC in the U.S. Air Force, having served his country in World War II.

Preston O. Wilson was widely known as a philanthropist who donated time and money to several social and non-profit organizations throughout the state. He volunteered for the Christian Life Center, Knox Concert Series and served as chairman of the United Way's fund raising campaign. Wilson and his wife, Margaret, believed in their community, and it was demonstrated throughout their time in Anniston, Alabama. Music was also an inspiration for the Wilsons, and because of this love, Margaret donated a Steinway piano to Judson College in P.O.'s honor. Today, many enjoy performances on the Preston O. Wilson Hamburg Steinway Concert Grand Piano. Their philanthropy did not end with Judson College, where P.O. served as Trustee for more than twenty-three years. Their commitment to music and academic excellence in their community was extremely important. In September 2006, the Wilsons made an extraordinary gift to the "Power of 125...Join the Celebration!" campaign at Jacksonville State University in support of the newly proposed center for musical arts. P.O. and Margaret understand that music is one of JSU's flagship programs and investing this gift will continue the excellence in music education and training for generations to come.

On behalf of Jacksonville State University, we pay a special tribute to the life of Mr. Preston O. Wilson and will be forever grateful for his remarkable generosity to our university and our community. We will forever miss his smiling face and humble service. P.O. has been an inspiration and loving supporter to me throughout our years together. I was encouraged by his dedication to his volunteer work, and he was always a delight to be around. I am excited about what is happening with JSU and the growth potential, not only for Jacksonville, but our entire community. My great-grandson is considering JSU for the fall.

ATHLETIC-SCHOLARSHIP ENDOWMENT

Jacksonville State University is proud to announce that we have surpassed our goal of $1 million in current and planned gifts for the Athletic Scholarship Endowment Program. When we started the campaign, we realized the move to Division I would require an increase in the number of athletic scholarships. The challenge was issued, and we have now surpassed our original goal. In fact, one of our contributors - Pete Mathews - established more than one athletic scholarship. The Gamecock Athletic Department now provides more than 300 scholarships for men's and women's athletics. Scholarships may be endowed through cash contributions, securities, appreciated stocks, real estate and planned giving. Assets from the Athletic Scholarship Endowment are used to reduce expenditures for the overall athletics department. Our contributors are playing a significant role in reducing the financial burden on the University for our athletic program. We appreciate very much the following people who have made current or planned gifts of at least $50,000 in support of JSU's Athletic Scholarship Endowment.

IS YOUR NAME MISSING?

Listed in this report to donors are all contributions made during 2006 to Jacksonville State University through the JSU Foundation, the fund raising arm of the University. Every effort has been made to verify names for accuracy and completeness. If your name is not included and you think it should be, the following may explain the omission.

1. You made your gift directly to a school, department, etc., not through the Jacksonville State University Foundation. Gifts that are not made through the Foundation are not included in our records; hence, we are not aware of your gift. The Jacksonville State University Foundation was established in 1978 to receive all gifts to Jacksonville State University.
2. You made your gift prior to January 1, 2006 or after December 31, 2006.
3. You made a pledge instead of a gift. This listing includes only gifts received. If you made a pledge during 2006 but elected not to begin payment on it until after December 31, 2006, you will be listed on next year's Honor Roll.
4. You became a member of the Alumni Association instead of making a gift to the Foundation. Although dues payments are a vital part of the Jacksonville State University Alumni Association and enable it to pursue other programs of support, dues are not gifts made through the JSU Foundation and cannot be listed.
5. You made your gift to the Power of 125 Capital Campaign instead of the Annual fund.
6. We goofed. Even though the listings were checked and rechecked, mistakes could have been made. We humbly apologize in advance. If you have questions, please contact the Foundation office at (256) 782-5306 or (800) 231-5291, extension 5306, so that we can recheck our records and make the necessary corrections. Our e-mail address is jsufnd@jsu.edu.

MATCHING GIFTS

More than 1,000 corporations in this country have aid-to-education programs which will match gifts an employee makes to the Jacksonville State University Foundation. This is an excellent way to double the size of your contribution. In some cases, corporations will match an employee's gift three-to-one. Last year, the Foundation received matching gift contributions from the corporations listed below. Check with your personnel office today or call the JSU Foundation office at (256) 782-5306 or (800) 231-5291 extension 5306 for more information or e-mail us at jsufnd@jsu.edu.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

This Honor Roll of Contributors lists the names of alumni, friends, and businesses who made a financial commitment to JSU during 2006. Many of the names in this Honor Roll appear for the first time. Others have been recognized in past Honor Rolls for their financial support.

Each donor plays an important role in helping make JSU an even better place to study, learn, and prepare for life's great challenges.

Donor support is greatly appreciated. Reviewing the names in this Honor Roll may even bring back warm memories of people with whom supporters have shared some very special times.

Those who did not make a contribution to the JSU Foundation during 2006 are encouraged to do so during 2007. Remember, "the building of a great university is a task which is never complete. Each generation shoulders the responsibility to continue the effort."

SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY

Last will and testament is the cornerstone of a person's estate plan. It is a lasting expression of support and affection for family and others the donor wishes to remember. If a person does not have a will or other estate plans, state government will decide how the property and other affairs are handled. Planning for one's own demise isn't easy, but decisions made now can later provide financial security for family, friends, and others.

When preparing a will, remember the Jacksonville State University Foundation. A donor can create a scholarship or other perpetual fund through a simple provision in his or her will. Such funds can provide a visible and enduring tribute. One's actions today can leave a powerful legacy for tomorrow.

For further information, please contact Mrs. Melanie Delap at JSU's Office of Development Services (256) 782-5306 or (800) 231-5291 extension 5306. Mrs. Delap can be reached via e-mail at jsufnd@jsu.edu.

EXPLORE THE BENEFITS OF GIVING REAL ESTATE

Gifts of cash and securities are not the only options available to those who want to support the Jacksonville State University Foundation. An outright gift of real estate is often especially beneficial to some donors. Such a gift may benefit both the donor and as the Jacksonville State University Foundation.

By making an outright gift of real property, donors avoid capital gains tax and receive an income tax charitable deduction of the property's full fair market value (if the property is held long term, is not subject to a mortgage, and has not been subject to accelerated depreciation).

Examples of real estate gifts include personal residence, farm, vacation home, condominium, commercial building or acreage, etc. Donors may reserve the right to either live in the donated residence or to continue to farm the property during their lifetime and, if desired, the lifetime of a surviving spouse. Through such an arrangement, called a charitable life estate contract, the donor will be entitled to a current income tax deduction for a portion of the fair market value of the property.

When thinking about making a gift to the Jacksonville State University Foundation, evaluate the possibility of real estate. Mrs. Melanie Delap, director of institutional development, can work with donors' attorneys or tax advisors in exploring the benefits of this unique giving opportunity. Please call (256) 782-5306 or (800) 231-5291 extension 5306. The e-mail address is jsufnd@jsu.edu.

SENIORS CAN MAKE DONATIONS DIRECTLY OUT OF IRA'S PENSION PROTECTION ACT OF 2006

If you are age 70 1/2 or older, you can now arrange to contribute otherwise taxable amounts pulled out of a traditional IRA or a Roth IRA directly to tax-exempt charities. These "qualified charitable distributions" are federal-income-tax free to you. Since tax-free treatment equates to a 100% write-off, you do not get to claim any itemized deduction for a qualified charitable distribution (that would be double counting.) A qualified charitable distribution means a payment by your IRA trustee directly to a qualified public charity (certain donor funds are excluded.) The money cannot pass through your hands. The new rule applies for 2006 and 2007, but you cannot donate more than $100,000 in either of those years. The Office of Institutional Development would be glad to help you with this transaction. Please contact our office at 256-782-5605 for assistance.
