The island Hankø

Hankø is a tranquil island that was once the hunting territory of the Master of the manor Elingaard. About a century ago fallow deer were imported from Denmark and released on Hankø. You may still meet fallow deer when walking around the island. The island also has a long history as a resort. The hotel was built in 1877 as a bath, and Seilerkroa (The Sailor's Inn) was erected in 1883.

Hankø is a pedestrian island. The only car on the island is the one used by the hotel to transport newly arrived guests from the ferry to the hotel.

Hankø's history as a sailing and regatta venue goes back to the 1880s. The monument on the way out to the racecourse is a memorial of King Olav V, who spent many summers sailing at Hankø.

The Royal Norwegian Yacht Club

The Royal Norwegian Yacht Club (KNS) was founded in 1884 and is the largest Yacht Club in Norway. KNS is the organising club for the 5.5 metre events. KNS cooperates with Hankø Yacht Club. Most keelboat regattas organised by KNS are at Hankø.

Hankø Yacht Club

Hankø Yacht Club (HYC) was founded and initiated by passionate sailors on the 21st of August 1954. Its purpose is to promote national and international yachting and Hankø as a centre for international yachting. The Club is located at Hankø, and will be the land base for the regattas.

The Fortified Town:

Northern Europe's best preserved Fortified town is thriving with history, shops, galleries and cafés.

Elingaard:

Elingaard Manor is one of the country's most fully cast facilities from the Renaissance - a noble manor house with roots dating back to the Middle Ages.

Isegran:

The peninsula's history is thought to have started with small fortifications which were built during the 13th century. Until 1680 Isegran was Norway's only sea based military harbour. At Isegran you will find the Fredrikstad museum where many exhibitions are held. From Cafè Galeien you can take in the beautiful view of Gamlebyen (The Old Town) and Vaterland in the south. Here you will find a maritime centre which builds and restores wooden boats.

Fredrikstad Cathedral:

On the edge of Kirkeparken in the city center stands this majestic Cathedral. It was built about 1880 in the Gothic Revival style of brick, with a longitudinal plan in the form of a Latin cross. The single tower is 236 feet tall at the western end, which is part of the main facade.

Hvaler:

Hvaler contains of a group of small islands and is truly a scenic place to visit. Here you will find lots of rustic small places, historic environments, Hvaler national marine park and among Europe's most beautiful archipelagos.
