DEAN'S MESSAGE

2020 HAS BEEN A YEAR OF UNPRECEDENTED CHALLENGES, across the country as well as at UVA Law. One would not know it by looking at the extraordinary results of the 2019–2020 annual giving campaign. Last year, donors contributed $19.87 million, the third-highest total in the Law School's history. Friends, firms, corporations, foundations, and a whopping 8,263 alumni made gifts.

These numbers would be inspiring and impressive in a typical year. This year I view them as a testament to the strength of our community and the importance of the work we do. You have helped us manage through great uncertainty by making us a priority amid competing needs. Your support reflects the significance the Law School has had, and still has, in your own lives. Each gift enables us to play a transformative role in the lives of the next generation of UVA lawyers.

This past year, that meant focusing our resources on responding quickly to the COVID pandemic: overhauling our classrooms to allow for online teaching and learning; providing financial support to students in crisis; expanding and supporting student summer employment opportunities; and launching a volunteer effort that helped community members navigate CARES Act unemployment claims. Your generosity has been equally critical to our mission of training exceptional lawyers for professional and public leadership, and of fostering new knowledge that advances the law and enhances our society.

This annual report highlights some of the incredible people, programs, and opportunities you have made possible. It also demonstrates what remains constant in this time of change—our commitment to serve one another, and the world around us, by educating talented students and preparing them to excel personally, professionally, and in service of our highest ideals.

LEADERSHIP REPORT

AS WE SHARE THE RESULTS OF THE 55TH ANNUAL GIVING CAMPAIGN, we hope you and your families are well. The final four months of the school year were quite challenging. An abrupt shutdown of in-person learning taxed students, faculty, staff, and resources. The ban on in-person regional alumni events, the postponement of Law Alumni Weekend and graduation, and the halting of University fundraising for a full six weeks meant the UVA Law community was affected far and wide.

You, our alumni and friends, helped the Law School meet the challenges head on by supporting the school in ways large and small—through volunteering, teaching, and making an annual gift.

When the COVID pandemic upended the usual bar exam calendar and procedure for most states, some of our newest graduates were concerned their exam spaces and internet access would not be sufficient for test-taking purposes. Alumni stepped in and offered conference rooms, private offices, and even corporate apartment space in 23 cities across the country.

Despite the disruptions caused by the pandemic, the 2019-2020 Annual Giving Campaign finished with 8,263 alumni donors (and a 47% participation rate) and the third-highest gift total in the school's history, behind 2003 and 2019, with $19.87 million. The school is now $262.4 million, or 65%, toward a $400 million capital campaign goal, part of the University's $5 billion Honor the Future campaign. Since the campaign began, the school has also unlocked $24.7 million in matching funds from the University. Though the final participation number broke a 14-year streak of alumni participation of at least 50%, the results are a testament to the dedication of all—alumni, volunteers, and staff.

Although alumni events were upended, several receptions took place earlier in the year. The Law School launched the capital campaign with an Honor the Future kickoff event on Grounds in October. Dean Risa Goluboff attended events in Naples and Palm Beach, Fla., and Washington, D.C. Additionally, the Law School Foundation and Alumni Association hosted receptions in Atlanta; Boston; Charleston, W.V.; Charlotte; Chicago; Dallas; Greenville, S.C.; Houston; Jackson, Miss.; Louisville; New Orleans; New York City; Norfolk; Philadelphia; Phoenix; Portland, Ore.; Salt Lake City; San Diego; and Wilmington, Del.

The Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association, normally held during Law Alumni Weekend, took place via Zoom, giving alumni everywhere the opportunity to take part. While no in-person events are being hosted this fall, some gatherings are taking place via Zoom. (Check law.virginia.edu/alumni for online events and updates.) We are hopeful that alumni in the 2020 and 2021 reunion cycles will be able to return to Charlottesville May 14–16 for a weekend of connection, celebration, and fun.

This year's Annual Report highlights alumni who have supported the UVA Law students of yesterday, today, and tomorrow by funding scholarships:

- Hal Hicks '85 created a family scholarship in honor of his father and mentor, Harry Hicks '51.
- Rick '72 and Candace Beinecke created a scholarship for out-of-state students 24 years ago and have helped dozens of students.
- Louise Sams '85 answered the Dean's call for scholarships because she believes the Law School and the legal profession will benefit from greater diversity.

If 2020 has shown us anything, it is that our Law School community is resilient. This semester, many students and professors are back in reconfigured classrooms and event spaces; the library is open for research; and faculty workshops and student events are taking place via Zoom.

The Law School community is also enduring. Our deepest thanks to you all for your ongoing support.

With our best wishes for a safe and healthy year ahead,

100% PARTICIPATION PROGRAM

Initiated in 1993, the 100% Participation Program challenges and recognizes firms and companies (with at least five Virginia Law graduates) that achieve 100% participation in annual giving. Because many firms and companies are in multiple cities, offices with five or more graduates are recognized in the program. Those interested in achieving 100% participation should contact Helen Snyder '87, Chief Operating Officer, at (877) 307-0158, or at Snyder@law.virginia.edu.

WHY YOU GIVE: In His Name

ALTHOUGH SKADDEN TAX PARTNER HAL HICKS '85 has supported the Law School for more than 20 years, this year he wanted to do something extra special for his family and for the school. Hicks chose to endow a scholarship in his father's name. The inaugural Harry J. Hicks '51 Family Bicentennial Scholarship will be awarded this fall, thanks to full funding at the $500,000 level. Hicks' generous gift qualified for Bicentennial Scholars matching funds from the University.

As a second-generation UVA Law alumnus, Hicks wanted to pay tribute to his cherished father and mentor, Harry ('51). Despite spending the better part of a year in a body cast as a child due to polio, Harry Hicks fought bravely in World War II, having memorized an eye chart to conceal his restricted vision. Harry's ploy worked and he was among the first wave on Omaha Beach for D-Day. Though he survived D-Day, Harry was eventually wounded near Brest, France. He was awarded the Purple Heart for his bravery and service.

After the war, Harry Hicks attended William & Mary and then UVA Law under the GI Bill. He completed both degrees in four-and-a-half years, while working to help support his mother and eight siblings. Upon earning his law degree, Harry worked for the Army Corps of Engineers for a year before setting up a law practice in Virginia Beach and later Norfolk. He was a member of the Virginia Bar for 50 years.

Harry spoke fondly of his law studies and was pleased his son, Hal, made the same choice for his own legal education. "My father had a deep love and affection for UVA Law," Hal said. And the family legacy continues. Hal's son, Billy, is a 2L at the Law School, class of '22. "[Harry] really would have loved the fact that his youngest grandson followed in his footsteps."

Resident in Washington, D.C., Hal Hicks is the global head of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom's international tax practice and a member of the firm's Opinion Committee. He was named among the top 30 global tax professionals in Euromoney's 2019 "Best of the Best Global Expert Guide."

WHY YOU GIVE: Attracting Students to Choose UVA Law

TWENTY-FOUR YEARS AGO FREDERICK "RICK" W. BEINECKE AND HIS WIFE, CANDACE, created an endowed scholarship to help out-of-state students with their tuition costs. Originally committing to fund the Candace K. and Frederick W. Beinecke Endowed Scholarship at the $100,000 level during an earlier capital campaign, the Beineckes have directed their annual gifts to the scholarship. With contributions and endowment growth, the scholarship is now valued at over $400,000 and more than $223,000 has been awarded since its inception.

After serving as an officer with the Marine Corps during Vietnam, earning the Bronze Star in the process, Beinecke graduated from the Law School in 1972 and remembers being asked soon thereafter to make a gift. "When Mortimer Caplin ['40], my good friend and classmate Lee's father, asked me to make a contribution, I embraced the idea to help future students," he said.

"In retrospect, I felt my own experience at the Law School had been very supportive as I transitioned from active duty in the Marine Corps, having just served as a platoon leader and company commander in Vietnam.

“Although very much a Virginia institution, the school was welcoming to out-of-state students, as I was myself. I decided then to do what I could to attract and support others to come to study law in Charlottesville.”

In his 48-year career since graduation, Beinecke has served as president and director of the private investment company Antaeus Enterprises. He currently serves as vice president and director of The Prospect Hill Foundation and president and director of The Sperry Fund. Throughout his career, Beinecke has served on countless boards, most recently serving as president and a trustee of the National Gallery of Art and previously as president and a director of the New York City Ballet.

The scholarship he created at the Law School has helped dozens of students. “I am so pleased now to have done that and to have seen the success of the students that our endowment has supported,” he said. Scholarships directly reduce the cost to students attending UVA Law and enable them to consider a wide range of career opportunities.

One of the first recipients of the scholarship thanked his benefactor thusly, “Thank you again for your support. It has truly helped make my legal education at Virginia possible. It will also enable me to make career choices with much less regard as to their expediency in reducing my educational debt.”

The most recent recipient of the Beinecke Scholarship, a third-year who graduated in May, thanked Beinecke with these words, “I am sure you understand the extraordinary experience UVA Law offers and the influence it has on shaping an individual. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to be a part of it.”

WHY YOU GIVE: Answering a Call

“WHEN DEAN GOLUBOFF SAID THAT RAISING MONEY FOR SCHOLARSHIPS was a priority for the Law School, I wanted to do what I could to help with that effort,” said Louise Sams.

A supporter since graduating in 1985, Sams answered the Dean’s call by funding the Louise S. Sams ’85 Bicentennial Scholarship. “I believe the legal profession will benefit from greater diversity—broadly defined—and increasing the available scholarships at the Law School is one way that we can all contribute to that broader mission.”

The scholarship was established with a gift of $333,000 from Sams which was matched by the University’s Bicentennial Scholars Fund, bringing it up to $500,000. The University’s Matching Program was created to help build scholarship endowments as part of the Honor the Future Campaign.

Sams retired from Turner Broadcasting (now part of WarnerMedia) in late 2019, after 26 years in the executive ranks, most recently as executive vice president and general counsel. In this capacity, she oversaw the company’s legal matters worldwide, which included licensing, production, and clearance of content for all of Turner’s networks and media services; protection of the company’s intellectual property; litigation; employment matters; information security; and enterprise-wide risk management.

Sams’ ties to the Law School remain strong. “I am grateful to UVA Law for preparing me for a fulfilling legal career and providing me with life-long friendships and good memories of softball games, the Blue Parrot Lounge (which predates the current buildings), and The Virginian,” she said. “I want others to have the great experience at UVA Law that I had and to have the flexibility to pursue the legal career that they want to pursue as opposed to one that they must for financial reasons.”

WHY YOU GIVE:

To Prepare for the Unexpected

COVID-19 HAS AFFECTED EVERY HOUSEHOLD and institution in some easy-to-anticipate as well as some unexpected ways. The Law School did not anticipate having to stop in-person instruction and within a week deliver 139 courses, taught by 159 instructors, online, in the middle of the spring semester.

The effort meant new and existing technologies and equipment had to be deployed, and everyone had to be flexible and cooperative. Faculty and staff worked at night and on weekends, around the clock, to get classes online.

"It took substantial resources to make all of these changes," said Senior Associate Dean for Administration Stephen Parr.

And that was just to finish out the 2019-2020 academic year. "As we turned to the fall semester, it also required a monumental effort to prepare to reopen the school and offer classes in a hybrid format," Parr said.

Alumni gifts, including more than 8,000 to the unrestricted fund last year, supported these efforts and helped the Law School meet the unprecedented challenges. The school transformed event spaces such as Caplin Auditorium, Caplin Pavilion, and the Purcell Reading Room, as well as existing larger classrooms to accommodate distancing guidelines. Large tents with lighting were erected in Spies Garden to give students and others more room to engage in activities at a safe distance.

Caplin Pavilion was carpeted to improve sound quality for students participating remotely, and now features new chairs and desks. The Law Library installed plexiglass to allow two students to study safely at a desk. Approximately 200 hand sanitizer and wipe dispenser stations were placed throughout the school, and bathrooms were equipped with touchless features.

"Keeping our distance isn't going to be easy in a community known for being close, but it is necessary to reduce risks and promote our health," Dean Risa Goluboff said. "Our students' fortitude and patience will continue to play a critical role in our continued success."

Alumni came through, playing a vital role in supporting the school, the dean added.

"The connection of UVA Law alumni to each other and to the Law School is a defining and wondrous feature of our community," Goluboff said. "Our alumni have shown us that their support for the Law School, our students, and our educational mission remains steadfast even in these challenging times. We are so grateful for their generosity."

Professor Ashley Deeks teaches in Caplin Pavilion, one of several event spaces converted to classroom use for distanced in-person classes.

Vice Dean Leslie Kendrick '06 demonstrates for faculty via Zoom what students taking a course remotely see under different conditions, including when the professor wears a mask.

ON AUGUST 31, THE NATIONAL JURIST published "How Online Education Has Come to the Rescue." It contains this passage:

The University of Virginia School of Law is one of those schools that comes to mind when you think about what a law school should look and be like: Stately ... Steeped in prestige ... Staffed with seriously minded professors dressed in tweed ...

Thomas Jefferson, the nation's third president, founded the place in 1819, after all. It's got that kind of pedigree.

So when COVID-19 hit and law schools had to scramble to offer classes online, one might have thought that the University of Virginia might have had a problem adjusting. It had never offered online classes before.

But talk about a pivot.

Soon after the pandemic hit, the Charlottesville-based law school transitioned nearly 140 courses—taught by about 160 instructors—to online. And it did so in a week.

In a story on the school's news website, Senior Associate Dean for Administration Stephen T. Parr, who was a leader in the transition, noted: "To get all of our classes online in the span of about a week was totally unprecedented in the history of the Law School!"

WHY YOU GIVE:

To Support Clinical Education

Above: Environmental and Regulatory Law Clinic participants meet with the AMMD Pine Grove Project, former Pine Grove students and Southern Environmental Law Center attorneys to learn more about the school and its history. Right: Pine Grove Elementary School in Cumberland County, Virginia.

THE ENVIRONMENTAL AND REGULATORY LAW CLINIC joined an effort to protect a historic African American schoolhouse and surrounding property, which community members say are threatened by a proposed landfill.

Pine Grove Elementary School in Cumberland County, Virginia, was built in 1917 as one of thousands of Rosenwald Schools constructed in the South to educate black children in the Jim Crow era. The Virginia Department of Environmental Quality and other agencies are currently reviewing permit applications for the proposed Green Ridge Recycling and Disposal Facility, and considering the impact that the landfill would have on environmental and historic resources in the area.

CLASS of 2020 Graduation Gift Campaign

THE CLASS OF 2020 GRADUATION GIFT CAMPAIGN was paused until Spring 2021 in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Although a year like no other, the legacy of the class gift remains. The Class of 1996 established the Graduation Gift Campaign to encourage support from the Law School's newest alumni. Each year class managers work with class agents to solicit participation in the gift campaign from their classmates. Class gifts reinvigorate the commitment of our older alumni to annual giving.

A high level of participation is more important than the size of a class' contributions. Led by co-chairs Tim Sensenig and Rachel Staub, the campaign's 25 class agent volunteers will ask each classmate to support a graduation gift to the Law School during their 2021 spring graduation gift campaign.
