Dean's Message

DEAN JOHN JEFFRIES '73

2004–2005 ANNUAL GIVING SETS ANOTHER RECORD.

Over forty-nine percent of our graduates gave to the Law School in last year's annual giving campaign. That's the highest participation rate in the history of the Law School and almost certainly the highest of any law school in the nation.

That we are part of a great public university makes this achievement all the more remarkable. Historically, graduates of public universities often assumed that they "gave at the office" when they paid taxes. Today, of course, the Law School is financially self-sufficient. We receive no state funds, but rely completely on tuition and private giving. In that respect, we are just like Stanford or Yale or Columbia. Indeed, in terms of breadth of alumni support and commitment, those schools now take a back seat to us.

The following pages show the many ways your gifts matter. All of us who are privileged to work and study in Charlottesville are keenly aware of the role of our alumni in making this institution what it is today and in supporting our ambitions for the future. We are deeply grateful.

It is the trade of lawyers to question everything, yield nothing, and to talk by the hour.

—THOMAS JEFFERSON

Leadership Report

July 1, 2004 through June 30, 2005

TO GET A SENSE OF THE DYNAMIC EVENTS TAKING PLACE AT THE LAW SCHOOL, one need only look at the school's magazine and website. The headlines are there, printed and posted online for interested parties: news of the faculty and their latest scholarship; student organizations and conferences they are hosting; visitors and the dramatic news they bring from around the world. If you cannot make the trip back to Charlottesville for a visit or your reunion, we recommend you take advantage of the contents of the UVALawyer and www.law.virginia.edu. We guarantee the vibrancy of your Law School will come back to you at once.

LAW SCHOOL FOUNDATION

- At the end of the fiscal year, the market value of assets exceeded $217 million. In addition, the University's Rector and Board of Visitors hold $34 million in funds designated for the Law School. At the close of fiscal 2005 the combined value of the assets benefiting the Law School exceeded $251 million.
- Private gift support for the Law School, including annual giving, bequests, and special gifts, totaled $8.4 million.
- Membership in the Dean's Council, the Law School's highest donor recognition group, continues to grow, with nearly 400 members.

ANNUAL GIVING

- The 40th Annual Giving Campaign raised more than $8 million, of which unrestricted gifts totaled more than $3.8 million.
- A record number 6,972 donors took part in the campaign, yielding a 49 percent alumni participation rate—the highest in the country.

- Law School faculty and staff contributed more than $197,000 to the Annual Giving Campaign.
- And, boding well for the Law School's financial future, a record 82% of the Class of 2005 participated in their graduation pledge drive, and 81% of the Class of 2004 made gifts in their first year as alumni.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Law School alumni, faculty, and friends gather for functions throughout the year. The annual Capitol Hill Alumni Reception, sponsored by U.S. Senator John W. Warner '53, took place in the Russell Senate Office Building in Washington in the fall.

Other alumni events took place in Atlanta, Birmingham, New York, Northern Virginia, and Richmond. Dean John Jeffries '73 made special trips this year to both Dallas and Charlotte to visit our loyal Law alumni in those areas. Reunions were a huge success for the nearly 1,000 alumni and their guests who returned to Charlottesville for the bevy of Law Alumni Weekend events in May. Finally, in June, alumni gathered at the Hotel Washington to hear Deborah Platt Majoras '89, Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

We thank you—our colleagues and friends—for your continued work, dedication, and recognition of the Law School. You are the legacy that is the University of Virginia School of Law.

100% Participation

2004–2005 Annual Giving Campaign

Initiated in 1993, this program challenges and recognizes firms and companies (with at least five Virginia graduates) that achieve 100% participation in annual giving. Because many firms and companies are in multiple cities, offices with five or more graduates are recognized in the program. Those interested in achieving 100% participation should contact Helen Snyder '87, Director of Annual and Reunion Giving, toll-free at 877-307-0158, or at hms4b@virginia.edu.

HELPS FUND STUDENT-RUN CONFERENCES

DEMOCRACY IN ACTION: THE LAW AND POLITICS OF LOCAL GOVERNANCE

Hosted by the Journal of Law & Politics, the conference convened experts from across the country to discuss the implications of issues such as suburban sprawl and the decay of urban centers, the privatization of public services through homeowners' associations, the viability of regional governmental organizations, the effect of local government actions on American constitutional principles, and the innovations localities have made in responding to such pressures.

6TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE ON PUBLIC SERVICE & THE LAW

Founded by Law School students six years ago, the conference brings together students, citizens, and lawyers to discuss current public interest legal issues. This year's conference featured a keynote address by Nadine Strossen, the President of the American Civil Liberties Union and a New York Law School professor. Katie Redford '95, co-founder and co-director of EarthRights International, delivered the opening address. Conference panels and workshops covered asylum law, gender-based violence, mountaintop removal mining, judicial election campaigns, working as a lobbyist, and juvenile confessions.

The conference, which has played host to more than 1,000 participants and 100 panelists since its inception, draws students and speakers from across the country. A key component to this conference is that there is no cost to register and students attending from other law schools are offered free housing with Law School students during their stay.

BEYOND THE U.S. WAR ON TERRORISM: COMPARING DOMESTIC LEGAL REMEDIES TO AN INTERNATIONAL DILEMMA

Participants heard from some of the world's leading terrorism experts, such as Paul Pillar, National Intelligence Officer for the Near East and South Asia, and Ambassador W. Robert Pearson '68, Director General of the U.S. Foreign Service and former U.S. Ambassador to Turkey, who headlined a two-day symposium designed to compare different countries' legal response to terrorism. The symposium was co-sponsored by the Strategic Studies Institute at the U.S. Army War College and the John Bassett Moore Society of International Law. Featured speakers also included Ruth Wedgwood of the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University and Fionnuala Ni Aolain, Director of the Transitional Justice Institute at the University of Ulster in Northern Ireland, as well as speakers from Lebanon, Israel, Pakistan, Chile, and members of the U.S. Armed Services.

Deferred Gifts

The following individuals have made deferred gifts, including bequests, living and testamentary trusts, gifts of retirement plan assets, and life insurance designations, as well as life income arrangements such as gift annuities, pooled income funds, and charitable remainder trusts. These gifts will provide important financial support for the Law School's future students and faculty. If you have created a deferred gift for the Law School, please notify the Law School Foundation at 877-307-0158. (Revocable deferred gifts for which we do not know a dollar amount are not listed.) If you are contemplating a gift to benefit the Law School, please designate "The University of Virginia Law School Foundation" as the beneficiary.

What does your gift do?

IT BRINGS DISTINGUISHED FOREIGN

visitors like Christof Fritzen to the Law School.

Fritzen, a Managing Director of Deutsche Bank and Global Head of the Corporate Secretariat of the Deutsche Bank Group, teaches international banking transactions every spring. His seminar complements the Law & Business Program and exposes Virginia students to a level of instruction rare in the legal academy. Your support allows him to be in residence at the Law School for a significant term each year, creating a teaching opportunity that few schools outside the very largest cities can offer.

“The Law School’s amazingly talented students from all over the world are testimony to its outstanding attraction and reputation. In my continuing contacts with quite a few alumni I have come to realize with what incredible privilege of choice the Law School has provided them for their professional lives—and I am proud to contribute my little share to it.”

What does your gift do?

IT EXPANDS THE DEFINITION OF “BUSINESS law” to include seminars on managing the multi-national enterprise, a subject taught by Joe Gladden '67, who was longtime General Counsel of The Coca-Cola Company. The reach of the modern corporation and of American-style business and jurisprudence does not mean good governance practices are readily exported. The global economy is a patchwork of industry and cultural considerations, and Gladden, an expert visitor who chaired Coca-Cola’s operations in Canada and sat on various foreign boards for the beverage giant, is uniquely suited to present them. His course is part of a growing curriculum that gives our students knowledge for the world before they leave the Law School.

“Mr. Jefferson would be proud of the Law School’s remarkable transformation from a fine state-supported institution to one of financial independence and global importance. This enviable status brings with it added responsibility, and the Law School Foundation has stepped up to the plate in providing absolutely essential financial support.”

What does your gift do?

IT ENHANCES THE LAW SCHOOL curriculum through new courses taught by executives like Byron Marchant '87, the General Counsel and Chief Administrative Officer of BET, Inc., and a visiting professor of communications and media law. Marchant leads second- and third-year Law students in a short-course examination of industry and policy issues that they would otherwise confront only after graduation. Your support fosters his course development and allows a growing number of interested students to learn not just to identify issues, but to approach and solve problems with the client in mind.

“I admire the quality and diversity of law students at Virginia—I’m a firm believer in hiring them. They continue to be some of my best lawyers—smart, tenacious, balanced, and ethical. My time in the classroom has shown them to be motivated and inquisitive long before they are tested in corporate America.”

The Law School’s curriculum has evolved to provide the exposure necessary to produce prepared and well-rounded graduates. I am proud to be associated with the Law & Business Program and to give back to the school with my time and resources.”

What does your gift do?

IT HELPS FUND RECORD NUMBERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST FELLOWSHIPS
EACH YEAR

This year, the Public Interest Law Association funded 54 summer fellowships—15 more than last year. The Law School Foundation matched the amount PILA disbursed dollar-for-dollar for the first time this year. First-year PILA recipients receive $3,542 and second-years receive $5,903. All fellows donate 20 hours to the organization's fund-raising efforts during the next school year.

*“One reason I came to law school is to really understand how to use law as a tool
for social change.”*

—Meredith Horton '06

FELLOWSHIP WINNERS HAVE DIVERSE GOALS

Some of this year's fellows journeyed as far as India to the east and Hawaii to the west, while close to a third served Virginia, many worked for legal aid services in Charlottesville and U.S. attorneys' offices.

First-year Meredith Horton earned a prized position at the NAACP Legal Defense Fund in New York City after an intense phone interview that probed her knowledge of what she would work on—education and political participation issues such as affirmative action and felon disfranchisement.

Before coming to the Law School, Horton worked for the U.S. Public Interest Research Group in California; the Campaign for Fiscal Equity, an education reform group that sued New York—and won—over the unequal funding for students statewide; and the New York City Department of Education, where she served as a liaison to teacher unions. “One reason I came to law school is to really understand how to use law as a tool for social change,” Horton said. She added that the PILA grant allowed her to follow her interests.

Seven students headed to Africa, including first-year Matthew Gessesse, who worked in Ethiopia, his parents' homeland before they emigrated to the United States. Gessesse spent most of his time in the research group of the Ethiopia Human Rights Council, a human rights monitoring organization, but also worked nights and weekends with Ethiopia's Supreme Court on training judges and prosecutors on criminal and civil procedure. Gessesse was also a volunteer for Ethio Corps, a nonprofit that sends expatriates back to Ethiopia to fulfill their educational or career goals. The organization is launching a program for indigenous students to help acclimate them to working life after school.

Closer to home, first-year Shannon Ross, a Baltimore-area native and Georgetown University graduate, used her fellowship to work at the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of Maryland, in Greenbelt.

Ross wanted “to really learn what the U.S. attorneys do on a day-to-day basis and how they fit into the larger law enforcement puzzle.” Ross hopes to work for the federal government after graduating, possibly as a prosecutor. Ross spent time in Baltimore's public defender office over winter break as part of a pro bono project, and before coming to law school she worked in the U.S. Senate's Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs Committee on Capitol Hill.
