NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE OF CHIROPRACTIC

2501 West Eighty-Fourth Street
Bloomington, MN 55431

Northwestern College of Chiropractic is devoted to the pursuit of excellence in chiropractic education. The pages of this book show the journey and transition from our T1 orientation to our T10 graduation. As we come together to become Doctors of Chiropractic, we not only gain the knowledge and ability to be at the forefront of health care, we also build lasting relationships in both our personal and professional lives. As we look to the future, we take with us the experiences and memories of our times together at Northwestern.

PRESIDENT'S PAGE

Dr. John F. Allenburg

The 1996-1997 year at Northwestern coincided with a year of dramatic advancement in the status of chiropractic health service throughout the world. In future years, when we look backward, I expect that the present period will be seen as transformational in our profession's 102 year history. The following are just a few evidences from the past year of the extraordinary growth in credibility and recognition.

* In the fall of 1996, the Congress of the United States funded the establishment of a Chiropractic Research Center within the National Institute of Health.

* The United States Department of Health and Human Services, Health Services and Resource Administration, sponsored two major conferences to establish the Chiropractic Research Agenda and began funding research within the colleges of chiropractic.

* The U.S. Department of Defense opened chiropractic care centers on 10 military bases, and the demonstration project was deemed a huge success as an interim step toward the inclusion of chiropractic in the military. That attainment has been a 30 year effort by our profession.

* The World Federation of Chiropractic was granted official status and affiliation with the World Health Organization (WHO). The WHO is the United Nations Agency that develops health care policies, programs, and advice for governments worldwide.

* A Chiropractic Health Care Section was established within the American Public Health Association.

* Interdisciplinary research between colleges and centers of chiropractic and medicine grew dramatically. While still in the process of completing several cooperative studies, Northwestern submitted three new federal grant applications in partnership with divisions of the University of Minnesota College of Medicine.

* The trend toward alternative care and non-medical, wellness approaches to health continued with strong momentum, leading most managed care organizations and other health provider groups to more aggressively seek inclusion of chiropractic practitioners, as well as practice linkages.

Satisfying as the above may be, it doesn't mean that there aren't still major problems to be addressed. Just as there always has been, I expect that there always will be challenges facing our profession. But 1996-1997 was a turnaround year during which great advances in the structure of chiropractic brought our profession to a position of extraordinary opportunity. And, for our future, nothing gives me as much confidence as everyday in the corridors of the College passing and observing the quality young men and women who honor us by choosing and studying to be the next generation of Doctors of Chiropractic.
