As a past criminal defense attorney, I am sorry to report many persons in Wisconsin who are incarcerated and depend on telephone contact for support that is needed to begin reintegration into our communities are being scammed - as are their families - by greedy telephone companies and jail/prison authorities who profit from kickbacks on telephone calls.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It is altogether too obvious that phone companies have no qualms about preying on families which are already in pain and likely financial difficulties already. If the FCC does not expand directives to prevent price gouging on the state level then no doubt the FCC is complicit and in support of this greedy and immoral behaviour. I pledge to support endless petitioning and investigative reporting to expose the corruption in the FCC unless appropriate measures are taken immediately to put an end to the ridiculous rates.

Experts know that having regular calls with and visits from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to go back to prison, but the incredibly high cost of phone calls to and from prison makes it hard for incarcerated people to keep in touch. Considering the billions of dollars our states spend annually on incarceration, it is in the state's interest to ensure maximum contact with families.

I respectfully urge you to institute strong regulation of telephone charges in the prison phone industry, including both the criminal justice system and the civil immigration detention system. Please implement regulations that will allow families to speak with one another without the unbelievable gouging that is currently standard practice.

Keeping family ties helps returning prisoners re-integrate into society, saving all of us thousands of dollars each. Immigrants who can communicate with their relatives are much more likely to be able to seek the legal solutions that the law permits - but which require legal and familial support.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Phone companies should not be allowed to gouge the families of incarcerated people. These are families that have often lost their main breadwinner, and must travel many expensive miles to visit their family member for limited periods of time. Penalizing children and spouses who have not committed crimes is just plain wrong. Allowing private companies to do so is criminal. Please set reasonable limits on this practice.

The prices these companies (Value Added is one) charge for inmates' calls is about 1000% higher than I pay for equal time on my land line. My relative gets charged $7.50 for 20 minutes, whereas for $15 a month I get unlimited long-distance time.

So, please explain to me why incarcerated people, who have little or no money, are being charged outrageous rates for using the telephone. Because the inmate has no money, the burden falls on his relatives on the outside to send him money via J-pay which also gouges the customers.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. I worked as a counselor in 2 different prisons. I was appalled at the phone bills that families had to pay for brief calls from the inmates. Many inmates were not able to call their families at all due to the high cost of the calls. often the only communication they had was letters in the mail.

Why does big business consistently charge the highest rates for any service they provide to the people who are least able to afford it? And why does the government allow it?

Capitalism in this country has become a means for the wealthy to take money from those who can least afford it and the government makes it legal. In fact the government is emulating them.

Now all we hear from the wealthy is that we are poor because we make bad choices. The truth is the system is rigged to make sure we cannot advance our own well being because the wealthy and the government take everything from us.

It is time to regulate the phone companies billing of inmates families. It is time to regulate the runaway capitalism that is destroying this economy.

In this case, we should do what is best for our nation. If hearing from loved ones discourages people from going back to prison, we should make phone call as accessible as possible. If being able to call talk to parents or other family members in prison helps children fom feeling abandoned, that should be a priority. This seems like a simple step that could have many benefits; therefore, I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. When inmates have regular contact with loved ones while in prison, they are less likely to be re-incarcerated later. Since having so many people in prison is a drain on the economy, we should be encouraging more phone calls between inmates and their families, not making it harder to do by having jacked up prices that most prison families cannot afford. Phone companies for prisons are taking advantage of prisoners and their families, and this should not be tolerated.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. This rule change is also needed at every immigrant detention center, whether operated under contract or by the Federal Government.

The rates are obscene, shock the conscience of any decent person, and have nothing to do with the costs of providing services. It is a blatant misuse of the power of the CLEC who has access to the prison/detention center and the desperation of those who would like to hear a friendly voice to keep them focused on what happens after detention. Statistics show recidivism drops when family and loved ones are connected to the inmate, and these companies harm us all when they make a simple telephone call outrageously expensive.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges to and from persons incarcerated in jails and prisons.

These calls should have the lowest rates of any in-state calls, since regular calls and visits from family have been shown to reduce recidivism.

I urge you to implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at highly affordable rates.

It is wrong for private phone companies to profit from the high rates they are currently allowed to charge prisoners and their families for calls.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It is a grave injustice for family members who have done no crime to suffer the expense of the in-state call charges in the prison phone industry so they can talk to their incarcerated loved ones. Why should elderly grandparents and parents or spouses and children, even very young children be deprived from hearing the voice of their loved one? Some inmates are placed far away from family for whatever reason the state deems necessary but innocent loved ones do not deserve to be punished. Do what is right...stop the monopoly and set some FCC regulated guidelines to stop this injustice against the innocent loved ones of inmates.

Please don't forget that the best thing prison can do is to keep recidivism low while encouraging others not to commit the same crimes that landed their loved ones in prison. Keeping families apart by charging high prices for phone calls is not going to help with either of these goals and I urge the FCC to make phone calls from prisoners to their families significantly cheaper or even free.

We have a friend whom we consider a "good Guy"....incarcerated in north western Tennessee.....we like to deposit $ 25 every now and again to allow him to at least have some outside contact....but we find that money diminishes very quickly after a couple of calls of maybe about a 10 minute duration....

We believe the service is overcharging the underprivileged at our expense....as normal intrastate phone charges are very fair here in "the outside world" We would certainly appreciate that some action can be taken to stop what I would consider to be a "rip off"

The privatization of the prison system is repulsive enough as is, as opportunists cash in on the misery of others. Continuing to reward these profiteers in the private sector with predatory license is far more befitting of those backwards nations over which we still claim moral superiority.

My brother achieved his dream to move from s fla. To s cali. but fell on hard times in the weak job market. Was arrested for squatting in an empty office bldg and served a few months in jail. Tried to call me and I spoke with him once. Cost me about a dollar a minuit with a minimum charge of 25 dollars!!!! Needless to say i couldnt afford regular calls to boost his moral when he was jailed with some of the worst produced animals in los angeles county. Rapists, killers, gang members..... so yes, I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

Please help to put a stop to these phone companies from committing a crime by regulating them away from charging loan shark rates to inmates and their families. Maintaining personal relations is important not only to those who are incarcerated but to their innocent family members. Not only will you help reduce the reoffend rate but also stop initial crimes from being committed by children of offenders. Thank you.

Now that prisons are being privatized, the profit motive has taken over rational imprisonment. So many of the incarcerated are people of color serving ridiculously long terms for minor offenses. This is an atrocity. Parole requests are denied and why? Because of greed and unethical practices, and it must be confronted and fixed now. In the US more prisons are built at the cost of billions when what is actually needed are more community and rehabilitative services. Prison creates criminals. That is the real criminality.

Stronger FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry is needed to provide equitable rates to those with limited means. I urge you to implement regulations rapidly ensuring the ability of all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I strongly support the Federal Communications Commission regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Three phone companies are trying to charge some of the nation's poorest grandmothers, fathers, and children upwards of $1.00 per minute to talk on the phone with those dearest to their hearts. And these families have no choice but to pay the high cost; if they don't, they won't be able to hear their loved one's voice. Please put a lid on exclusive deals that allow these phone companies to charge obscenely high fees for incarcerated people to use the phone.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. While I don't have any of my loved ones in prison the thought of this intentional division of loved ones, keeping them separated so cruelly and for the sake of some heartless beast's growing bank account just makes me really need to cry. Loved ones kept apart...it just tears at my own heart. Why can't they make their calls for a penny a minute like so many of us not in prison? That would be much closer to fair, now wouldn't it? Anything is worth it to help keep people from returning to prison. That's my thinking.

Do phone companies need profits so desperately that they must coerce these particularly vulnerable people to obtain them? If they're that desperate I would recommend that they seek some form of healing. In the meantime they need to be responsible for treating all their customers with at least minimal decency.

I pay less than four cents a minute for long distance throughout the USA. I know there are people who call using the internet and pay nothing. To charge $1.00 per minute is to make poor people suffer for the benefit of money-hungry people. This expense is completely unnecessary!

If we wish to build families instead of tearing them apart, then we should utilize the available lowest costs for prisoners and their families!

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I had a sister with mental health problems who was in jail for a period of time. My bill for phone calls to her during that time were 5 times higher than they would have been if I had been calling her at her home. I called and protested and actually after speaking to many supervisors and writing letters had the bill reduced. Many, many people do not have the time or energy to devote to this. I did it because I was outraged at the obvious advantage being taken of people who have absolutely no other option.

I had a friend in prison for DWI a few years ago—his own fault, yes, but I felt so sorry for his old Ukrainian mother who could barely speak English and had to contend with the phone company, the bill, and the ridiculous procedure. The families are punished enough by being related to the prisoner, as callous as that sounds, they don't need price-gouging by corporations who simply want to outdo each other's profits.

There is no reason why a telephone company should be allowed to charge a higher rate for a phone call just because that call is going to or is coming from a prison. That is discrimination.

I believe it is a disgrace to this country to allow these crooks to rape the poor people. A majority of the people in prisons come from lower class/poor people. They are the ones who can least afford to pay these absolutely outrageous rates. It is apparent these few companies, with a monopoly, have no sense of fairness. All they see are the $$$ signs!

Because of that, I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. A young friend of ours was arrested for civil disobedience in a state hours away from home, and we experienced how difficult and expensive it was to communicate with her when she was in jail. Families that are already experiencing great stress, usually financial and emotional, should not be burdened with the additional difficulty of prisons making money off of their phone calls by charging outrageous fees for calls.

it seems the best choice to support communication between people and family members if they want that. talk is truly cheap these days. i can now make calls for a penny-a- minute and these folks should be able to have that choice as well. whoever is making money off of these folks needs to find another source of income. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It is as obscene as forcing costly long distance service on the prisoners who are from out of state while they or their family otherwise possess a more reasonable calling plan.

Prison is not viewed or treated as rehabilitation. Within there are few freedoms, visits with community or family is regulated and controlled. Call charges may further punish the prisoner or their family. Call charges may limit or prevent the necessary contact with loved ones which create hope for both sides. Without hope, there is little reason for prisoners to work to change their lives. It is more unfair to the family and loved ones who then become punished.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Encouraging and facilitating contact between the incarcerated and their families is a win-win for all of us. Experts know that having regular calls with and visits from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to go back to prison, but the incredibly high cost of phone calls to and from prison makes it hard for incarcerated people to keep in touch. We need strong regulations because many states have an incentive to give prison phone companies sweetheart deals. According to a report from the Prison Policy Initiative:
Prison phone companies are awarded these monopolies through bidding processes in which they submit proposals to the state prison systems; in all but eight states, these contracts include promises to pay "commissions" – in effect, kickbacks – to states, in either the form of a percentage of revenue, a fixed upfront payment, or a combination of the two.

It seems inconceivable that people in prison are being gouged over the simple method of connecting to family over the phone. Usury, greed, unmitigated gall are words that describe the frightful practices being exercised by phone companies for making the simplest of communication systems available to families with loved ones in jail or prison. I have experienced the heinous practices of the prison phone system, and eventually gave up out of frustration, losing my $50 "deposit." The Indiana system hung up on the call after 15 minutes and you had to pay the higher first two or three minute rate over again.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I know from personal experience that the phone calls to prisons and jails around the US are much too costly. Many phone companies require the caller to put $25 from a credit card on an account and to even make the first call the phone co. takes $4 plus off the top and then up to $2 a minute. Please stop the companies from continuing this practice.

One of the easiest ways to increase crime, and its success, is to cut off the prisoners from their families and outside friends. Among other things, staying in touch is very important in keeping support for successful re-entry to society. So even if you have no concern for children of prisoners, prisoners themselves, and so forth, you should support keeping prisoners in contact – in fact, it would be good if it cost them nothing.

You gotta be kidding me! Such exorbitant rates for family to contact one another? Incarcerated people need family contact and support, not roadblocks to recovery or a program which limits them to "inside" contacts which encourage recidivism rates. And consider the (commonly) limited finances of their families. Can we so easily choose to restrict an inmate from having outside contact which so many desperately need in order to make that big step back into normal society? This is an important topic which bears consideration. If it were your child/husband/wife or father, what would you wish? I ask you to think about this. Please.

These usurious and sinful prison phone rates are a nakedly confiscation of wealth from the imprisoned, disproportionately African-American populations subject to them. In the absence of antebellum-fashion servitude, this industry of processing human beings through the prison-industrial complex and harvesting the meager wealth of their attached families is the next-best-thing for the racist state governments with these private prison concessions. FCC must stop this vicious and extra-judicial punishment of inmates that extends beyond what is enumerated in their sentence, The court-decreed prison term should not be an industrial blue upon which the state government can graft new means of confiscating money from politically powerless citizens.

Our prisons hold a disproportionate number of our poorest people. Their families limit the number of phone calls they make due to the higher than normal fees. Meanwhile, conditions are different for the prisoners' families who can afford more phone calls. These high fees both further and unfairly punish and capitalize off of the poorest families and as such are not rooted in logical safety precautions. "Regular calls with and visits from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to go back to prison." That statement is what our government should be focused on finding more about. Our government has an interest in keeping people from re-offending. Regulated affordable phone calls in safe conditions for prisoners' family members (from our poorest to wealthiest) will be just, humane and contribute to lower rates of recidivism.

I was kept from calling my brother by the cops, guards on duty where I was incarcerated. Then, when I could call...I had to wait until my brother put money in there in order to call him. He had no way of knowing because I was kept from talking to him by corrupt guards. Also, I ran out of money often...because of the high fees. I was innocent of all charges..but kept in jail for 8 months...due to corruption in this system. So much reform is needed...but at least lets lower these theft fees to all those innocent inmates..and most are innocent...this I know.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. As a doctoral student in UC Berkeley's School of Public Health, I had the opportunity to present recently on the "Silent Victims of Incarceration". Our presentation opened with a clip of Sesame Street in which a small child shared his feelings on what it was like to have a mom in prison. NO CHILD should have to have this experience and phone companies should be embarrassed and ashamed of themselves for taking advantaged of people who are already facing an uphill battle in trying to remain in contact with their families. If the FCC thinks it improper for children to see all or part of a breast during a Superbowl halftime show surely they must find it improper to prevent a child from having what is potentially the other source of connection with a parent while in prison. Those who Know Better DO BETTER! Do BETTER FCC.

In this day of cell phones and high-efficiency satellite networks, it is ridiculous that there is any separate surcharge or rate system for calls into prisons. There is no special infrastructure to pay for - the inflated prices are there merely because the phone companies can get away with an arbitrary fee. These phone calls should be charged and managed the same as any other phone to phone communication.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. As a Retired Police Officer of 21 years, I have seen men and women incarcerated, released, and rearrested repeatedly. The recidivism rate is sky high. In my experience, those that had regular contact with their families while incarcerated were the ones that were successful in being able to reintegrate back into society. Most times, and my experience is just in NYS, the inmates are often housed in DOC facilities far from their families. The ability for their families to visit is difficult at best, and visits are infrequent, if at all. Phone calls are most often their often link to their loved ones. This becomes cost prohibitive for families that are trying to offer hope and encouragement to their incarcerated loved ones. Although this petition addresses a child's need to stay In touch with their incarcerated parents, let us not forget that these inmates have mothers and fathers, sometimes elderly. The point being that while there is a need for prisons, the vast majority of these inmates will be released at some point. It has been proven statistically that those inmates that are able to stay connected with their families, that receive the emotional encouragement and support of their families, have a better chance of becoming non offending members of the communities once they are released.

Extremely high phone call charges, such as $1 a minute, in jails and prisons are predatory, unfair, and cruel. They are against the very family values promoted so loudly in society by those who demanded more and more prisons.

The lack of fair regulation allows cruel, greedy corporations to prevent incarcerated persons from talking to family members, particularly in poor families without adequate resources. It treats and teaches incarcerated persons to take unfair advantage, to bully, to cheat when one can because one can take advantage unfairly. That is the underlying lesson being taught. This is not a lesson of rehabilitation where people are treated fairly. This is a lesson that captive customers without choices can be abused subject to the exorbitant pricing practices determined by a monopoly corporation without competition for greed and extreme profits. This practice by this corporation is anti-family values. The FCC has authority to limit phone companies to charge inmates' families for calls that do not extend beyond the costs of pay phones. The practice of forcing inmates to make collect calls should be abolished. If an inmate has money in an account and wants to use that money for phone calls, s/he should have that choice rather than being forced to make a collect call to family members that he knows may have hardship experiences in order to accept that collect call and talk. This practice undermines family members ability to control their budget on the outside because it is not budgeted into poverty, which creates hardships in other places, such as perhaps forced going hungry or forced homelessness when bills can't be paid due to collect calls from incarcerated individuals. The family likely feels guilty if they don't accept the call because they understand that their loved one has no other choice to talk to them about something. This puts innocent family members into double binds as well as the incarcerated. It is unfair to punish innocent family members who have not committed a crime, but that is precisely what the prison phone corporations can do and are doing. This predatory practice to a captive audience without any other choices must stop. It is unacceptable.

Prisoners and their families are a captive market for phone services. These people are usually on the lower end of the economic ladder. It is unconscionable that unregulated phone companies can and do charge whatever they can get away with, swelling their profits on the backs of consumers who have no choice. There is a long tradition of government stepping in to mitigate profiteering; it will be an appropriate intervention if the FCC steps in to correct this imbalance.

Imprisonment should be enough punishment for a wrong-doing. There is no justification for overcharging inmates as they serve time and is a despicable act considering that inmates are generally the ones who can least afford it AND most often are in prison in the first place in some part due to poor financial situations.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. The children of parents in prison did not choose the actions that caused their parents to be in prison and these children should have every opportunity to talk to them to ease the pain and loss. I am in the rare position of being close to this. Just yesterday I attended the sentencing hearing for the woman who killed my brother in a hit and run accident. It was her fault and her recklessness and she is serving some jail time for this. Although I'm comforted that justice was served, I feel sad for her young children whose mother will not be home for many months. If they can speak with her often I can only imagine that will help them to know she still loves them and is still there for them. Paying $1 a minute is absurd and cruel and completely wrong

It's simply absurd that charges would be higher for those serving time in prison. Phone companies shouldn't be benefitting from their imprisonment. If anyone is to benefit it should be victims or charges incurred for their trials... but certainly not phone companies.

The prison system ruins families and punishes everyone in the prisoner's life, contributing to our terrible rate of recidivism. Human beings in prison need hope so they can rebuild their lives, and their dependents need to be able to speak with them without paying usurious charges.

I feel the present situation is cruel and unusual punishment. The only purpose is to punish convicts more, but it also punishes their loved ones. Our penile system is ridicules. I don't think there are really too many people that look at the prison system nothing more then punishment, not rehabilitation. The system does enough punishment of the prisoner. Why punish his family and friends.

I got soaked by this monopoly. The people calling in are a captive audience too. And it's unfair. If you're rich, you can pay it without a thought. If you're poor, like me on Disability, getting LESS than minimum wage (!) it makes it tougher to make ends meet. But I had to do it, because my friend (who is innocent!) didn't have anyone else giving a damn. This is shameful gouging, and it needs to stop, if we want to call ourselves a fair and democratic nation! I would include in this reform: 1)friends too!, 2)out of state calls too, and 3)refunds for victims of this gouging!

I think it's very important for people who have family members in prison to be able to talk to them on the phone at reasonable rates. So I agree with SumOfUs.com that the FCC should regulate in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. The poor are incarcerated and the high phone fees are one more hardship on the families. It is immoral that these companies can gouge. The prison system allows price gouging in other areas of prison life as well. Medication and food are examples. Making prisons a for-profit enterprise is a horrible idea in the first place, in that it gives incentive to all sorts of "cost cutting" abuses and to political support by rich prison corporations for more laws, stiffer and longer sentences, etc. Gouging prisoners for their phone calls is an especially cowardly form of exploitation, is an exercise of monopoly power, and must be stopped. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I have more than one family member incarcerated and the fees are per person and then there is the minute charges. This is extreme and inappropriate to not allow families to have the least of contact via phone. I have to travel hours for an hour or up to a few hours when I can afford to travel to see them. The phone calls at least allow us to remain as a family.

There are a large number of children of incarcerated parents. Keeping a low cost associated with their phone calls will ensure the parental bond remains. It will also be beneficial to the children, because they will not essentially be "abandoned" due to the cost of these calls. Regulation is the right thing to do.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I have a godson incarcerated in California, and Global Tel Link just charged me an almost $20 service charge when I prepaid them $100 so he could call me. When he does, the first minute is about $4, and calls have a 15-minute limit. If he is troubled (and being in solitary for 18 months, being abused by guards, etc. he often is), he needs to talk. I can end up paying $20 for a 30 minute conversation, and I live 30 miles from the jail!

Please help us.

Sincerely,
Susan Brown

It is a tragedy whenever someone is imprisoned for misbehavior. Most prisoners in the US are expected to leave prison at some time in the future, and it is the hope of all Americans that these ex-convicts will have been rehabilitated enough to change their ways once they leave the prison walls.

To this end, it is imperative that the prisoners are allowed (encouraged!) to maintain contact with their families and loved ones in order to support the rehabilitation. Surely, these family members should not be forced to pay exorbitant costs to maintain contact with their incarcerated loved ones. This is price-gouging of the most insidious kind. This is preying on those whose lives and futures are daily at risk.

America claims to protect family values, but when prisoners are unable to afford phone calls IN STATE to their families, the emotional connections are stretched to the limit.

If we truly want to rehabilitate prisoners and minimize the recidivism, we need to be sure that families can easily keep their psychological bonds intact. Kids need their parent, & a parent need to feel that they have a stable family to return to.

PLEASE continue your earlier good work, by expanding the regulations on in-state calls as well as the interstate calls that you have so wisely and compassionately regulated previously.

This is particularly important for African-American families who are over-represented in our prison population. Family and community contact are critical for the reintegration of these people back into society when they have served their time.

Adding another financial burden on the families of the incarcerated in order to increase the income of for-profit corporations is not in society's interest. Some might even strongly suggest that it verges on reprehensible and immoral.

Please be aware of this concern in your deliberations of new regulations that will limit what phone companies can charge inmates' families for calls.

Here's the deal: the punishment is incarceration. The purpose of our penal system ISN'T to be a financial bonanza for phone companies that are working against something – family connections – that's proven to decrease recidivism rates. These insane rates punish people who have committed no crime and are only trying to do what they can to increase the odds that their loved ones will have the best chances at staying out of jail once released by maintaining family ties.

Just by being an upstanding citizen, I'm not immune to having a loved one incarcerated. Being held hostage by the prison phone systems for $50 minimum fee for a maximum of a 15 minute phone call is beyond extortion. It's not only a punishment to not allow a prisoner to talk to their family, but a punishment to the family. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. This is yet another example when the absence of federal regulation or enforcement of regulation is allowing private industry to profit off the backs of the citizens who are at a disadvantage because they have no voice. In our political system, companies are considered to be "people" with the right to free speech in the form of giving campaign contributions, dangling the possibility of future lucrative jobs or other advantages as an incentive to those public servants whose influence they seek. Government must serve the interests of the common man and not the privileged class if we are to preserve democracy.

The FCC must exercise its public mandate, to ensure that prisoners cannot be taken unfair advantage of with higher prison telephone rates. Prisoners are a vulnerable population and appear to be literally "captive" to overpriced monopoly phone rates.

The FCC should immediately issue a clear prohibition of phone rate overcharging for prisoners, investigate phone charges paid, and require that the offending companies pay penalties in the amount estimated to have been overcharged, with additional damages fees.

Penalties should be paid back to the prisons in a fund that covers phone calls to families for free, as well as other prosocial programs at prisons. This would send a message to prisoners that "crime doesn't pay" and that industry also has to abide by rules of honest business.

Asheville, NC

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. The rates here in Colorado are exorbitant, and a family with a breadwinner incarcerated has no way to pay such fees.

Three phone companies are trying to charge some of the nation's poorest grandmothers, fathers, and children upwards of $1.00/minute to talk on the phone with those dearest to their hearts. And these families have no choice but to pay the high cost; if they don't, they won't be able to hear their loved one's voice.

Because i feel this is unconscionable, I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Also I know you have to go through specific companies the prisons have set up. If you are unwilling to give them access to your bank account, you must pay a $1.25 connection fee not $1.00 plus the cost of the call. Many times the calls do not go through and if you complaine are told the inmate must make 5 calls in a row that do not work and then they will do something. These companies are a scam. The people running them belong behind bars too. You need to give then x dollars up front to keep in an account for future calls or they will not put the call through. This is what happens when the private sector runs everything. Also never had a problem with a call till they started this business of wanting access to your bank account instead of you paying in advance. When I refused, calls started to have problems and it continues. Please do something about these rip off artist.

Several years ago I was one of those family members who was charged an exorbitant rate. AT&T charged $5.00 just to have me accept a collect call which was the only type my son could make from that jail. Then there was a huge cost per minute. With no forwarding (though I had been an AT&T customer for over 20 yr with never any payment problems), they cut off my long distance. I was devastated. These charges and what they do financially and emotionally are so wrong. What was just as painful was their attitude about it. I dropped AT&T at that point and will never go back. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I know our prison system has been acused in the past of being more focused on retaliation than retribution, and by giving prisoners access to a basic right that we know can only help with their reform, we have the chance to prove which side our prisons are on.

It costs me 7c per minute to call Australia, Germany, UK etc on my phone plan (Credo). How can the FCC allow intrastate calls to and from prisons to cost $1 per minute and still call itself a regulatory agency?

Respectfully, this radical under-regulation is an abomination, period. For phone companies to be allowed use the prison phone system as their profit-center is simply price gouging and must end immediately.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates commensurate with the competitive rates outside prison walls.

Since moving to New Orleans, my husband and I have tried to do all we can to employ local services for remodeling, maintenance etc. for our home. We have come to know many people who struggle with poverty and the resultant petty crimes driven by survival resulting in jail. This was our introduction to the prison industrial complex of Louisiana. The high rates of phones are only one piece of their victimization by the state, but it is one you have the power to correct.

You should be doing all that is possible to make sure that these rates are affordable. When these people get out of prison they need their support system, their family and these calls maintain their connection, Also their families need to be connected to them, especially the children, even in prison parents can still have an influence on their children, over the phone so you must make sure they can afford these calls. Everything should not be about money. The FCC is a government agency and you should be pursuing the greater good for every citizen covered by your agency. Making rich telephone companies richer should not be the goal.

I don't like make things easier for people in prison but the families of these inmates did not do the crimes. Children regardless of the parents mistakes still need to have contact with the their parents if they so choose. States that "legalize" the monopoly of phone companies with contracts for prisons are supporting what most people would consider outrageous rates for every minute of call time.

The privatized prison INDUSTRY is greedy, as are the States that give the prison industry the contracts based on a bidding system that rewards the highest kickbacks to States, counties and cities!

It is one thing to penalize the person who is incarcerated but quite another when the entire family suffers. It is time to correct these injustices.

I experienced this first hand when my nephew was falsely accused and imprisoned for 3 months. He was cleared by a grand jury and released, but during that time we quickly incurred close to $2000.00 in phone bills. The reason for the incredibly expensive bills was NOT because of numerous and lengthy calls, but rather the high cost of the phone service you are forced to use. These bills were difficult to pay off, but we were the life line that helped my nephew make it through. We could not deny his calls! This is an outrage when people such as my self can purchase plans through the large communications companies for unlimited local and long distance calling for $35.00 a month. Why are you allowing this terrible burden on families who can most least afford it? Please stop this practice and provide affordable phone service not just for the incarcerated, but for the families of those who are imprisoned.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Years of lack of Americans citizen access, particularly in poor and racial or minority communities have Sadly, for decades American citizens' have faced daily barriers in access in to self care via community resources: mental health, physical wellness, e.g. medical healthcare. The result of ongoing restricted access and funding for American families has come to greater poverty, now including the middle class.

This lack of access to healthcare (mental and physical) resulted in an increase in poor but understandable behavior decision or choices for survival purposes resulting in more crime activity. Further outcome, of these actions, was an increase of crime and penalties. The convicted terms often increase further breakdown me just and many more unjust. Desensitization, separation, isolation often result in recidivism. We need better government funding and regulation to change, improve support the rehabilitation of appropriate and fair services repair the model of the of our families and stop recidivism. Phone access to the incarcerated's family would change this cycle; any social or mental health expert can attest to my opinion on this matter. Why would our American government not change and now support its citizens to one element that better social behavioral and life skills via mental health stability by contact with family members without add-on and unconstitutional penalty fees without merit. I vote to allow access to phones to change this cycle.

In working with inmates, one of the only bright spots in their days are when they have an opportunity to speak to their children and loved ones.

If you want these individuals to come back into society, this link to their children and loved ones must be maintained at a reasonable cost for them.

Again, we have big business making their profits on the backs the least able to fight their efforts and least able to afford their actions.

Please regulate the in-state charges to incarcerated individuals

Thank you for your time

For profit prisons are a shame. The US has a higher rate of incarcerated inmates than any other country. And we dare call ourselves 1st world! A complete overhaul is needed in the prison system, from phone call rates to education. These are humans. If we are outraged by animal abuse, imagine what would happen if the public found out what "corrections and rehabilitation" gets away with.

Please allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates!!

$1.00/minute or anything around that cost is absurdly high and unfair to close relatives who miss their loved ones. Having regular calls with and visits from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to go back to prison. Let's try to make prison a place to improve, grow and learn from past mistakes.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Our daughter's boyfriend was put in jail for a drug offence. The prison phone rates ended up costing her hundreds of dollars. She finally had to reject the calls. Since they had a son together, those phones calls were essential. An offender is already paying his debt to society with his time. We don't need to further punish that person by isolating them from their families due to family phone debt.

Experts know that having regular calls with and visits from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to go back to prison, but the incredibly high cost of phone calls to and from prison makes it hard for incarcerated people to keep in touch. Considering the billions of dollars our states spend annually on incarceration, it is in the state's interest to ensure maximum contact with families.

Maintaining family ties is important to reduction in recidivism. Particularly considering the high rates of incarceration for non-violent, drug related crimes, involving people that pose no threat to society in the first place, returning inmates to the community should be considered at all stages of the justice process.

I am writing about this issue of phone companies somehow working a deal with some one to enable them to fine even more money by this unbelievable practice. How has it gone on so long...or even get an OK in the first place.

Only you can force the brakes onto this profiteering ugly practice...which reflects even light onto the non monitored amoral grab practices of our own USA brand businesses.

Please regulate this into actually affordable rates for people in this situation...NO little perks for the phone companys. Perhaps they should make some return for this $ harvest.

We have let the "American Dream" become a toxic image and reality by way of these complicated and large corporate "Free Enterprise" grabs.

Shame on us!

I have worked with at-risk children in alternative schools for a number of years. I previously practiced law & served as a court-appointed representative for minors charged with crimes, some of whom had been incarcerated for "offenses" as trivial as truancy. Many people are in jail pending trial who have not yet been found guilty of any crime but who can't afford the bail set by the court. It's disgraceful that huge corporations are allowed to profit from the poorest & literally most defenseless among us. Obviously, calls can & should be monitored to ensure that people aren't using telephones to commit other crimes - but to deprive families of contact with each other because a profit-making corporation charges extortionate rates is shameful.

SecurUs is the company that made lots of money from me in my case. $6.95 fee just to add minutes to my account. $20 would only last 4 phone calls (because there was a connection fee per call as well as the minutes), and that was if I paid the additional $6.95 to have a full $20 for phone calls. I often opted to drive for a visit (only once a week) instead of paying the ridiculous rates.

And do not even think about using speaker phone. The "service" can't tell the difference between speaker phone and a 3-way call. You get disconnected. There goes another connection fee!

No one should be profiting from people's bad choices, especially because it only hurts the people who love them, not the ones that made the mistakes.

If companies are profiting, where is the incentive to correct the behaviors? If anyone is wondering why we have such a high incarceration rate, just look at the companies that stand to gain with high inmate numbers. This needs to change, and it needs to change now!

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. As a retired corrections officer, I was given policy to enforce. Not every one was to my liking or appreciation. This is one, as we implimented a payphone policy offered by the phone company while I was employed. I do not believe in fleecing the public, at their great expense, in order to fatten the coffers of the rich-to wit: phone companies. Understandably, the majority of incarcerated, are from the poorer spectrum within society-that's why they are there. Thus, the burdens of high cost are yet born by them or their friends & relatives. Let's cut the high profit, and be considerate of the person.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It is cruel to have people need to decide if they can afford to speak to their family members. Lack of contact is not going to help those incarcerated become a better citizen when they leave. It not going to help those on the outside remain honest either, anger and frustration at 'the system' could create bigger problems. Stop these high phone charges, it is an untenable additional punishment that reaches out to affect families.

Given the discriminatory sentencing judges rules, the vast majority of people in prison are poor and of poor families. The criminally high cost of keeping in touch with the families contributes to the cycle of broken homes and crime. It is time to stop this gouging of the poorest most vulnerable!

It is a hardship to pay these high phone rates for families of people in prison. My calls to my son usually cost about 5 dollars a call. I feel that they should offer work programs for those in prison to earn money to pay for their own calling and help them to gain work skills for when they are let out.

As a public health professional, I am familiar with the evidence that helping people retain their connections with family members is good for them and for the health and development of their children. Many organizations are working to expand opportunities for contacts between imprisoned parents and their children. But making telephone contact affordable, like it is for almost everyone else in American, would be a huge contribution to normalizing the lives of children who deserve all the help they can get.

Given the proportion of our population that is incarcerated and the numerous challenges they face upon returning to their communities, it is incumbent on us to do everything in our power to facilitate connections to friends and families while they serve their time. Allowing big telecommunications companies to take advantage of these people, many of whom are already struggling on low-wage incomes, is not only unjust but also immoral. We should be encouraging incarcerated persons to build strong ties to their children, parents, siblings, and others so that they have supportive networks to return home to. Instead, we are giving them the choice of impoverishing their families or allowing those ties to languish. Please extend these protections to all calls made from behind our prison walls. It's quite simply the right thing to do.

Experts know that having regular calls with and visits from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to go back to prison, but the incredibly high cost of phone calls to and from prison makes it hard for incarcerated people to keep in touch. Considering the billions of dollars our states spend annually on incarceration, it is in the state's interest to ensure maximum contact with families.

I actually have a loved one in prison right now. My father. He's serving time because of multiple DUI's, of which no one was hurt. He's fortunate enough to be on a pension so he can afford to make the calls. But most of the people in the correctional facility cannot even come close to affording the phone calls. Furthermore this particular system doesn't even allow face to face meetings. So these financially destitute individuals are limited to Skype style communication that their family needs to travel to the facility in order to use. How a civilization treats it's less fortunate is HUGELY representative of their character. None of us should want to be associated with a system that exploits those civilians who have fallen on hard times. Whether through fault of their own or not. They are still people and should still be treated with love, respect and understanding. Not hate and malice stemming from greed. Frankly this exploitation is disgusting and anyone who could stand by and just let it happen is a morally bankrupt person who's soul I will mourn.

As far as the limit on what the phone companies can charge? This should be tied DIRECTLY to their actual costs. Furthermore there is no reason for the correctional facilities to be using anything except VOIP. Voice over IP. It is MUCH cheaper and I can't imagine any of these facilities don't already have internet access. I work in IT, previously as a systems Engineer and currently as an Engineering Technician. If you would help in setting these systems up or tips on cost savings I would be happy to help. Considering the INCREDIBLE amount of money the U.S. pours into it's criminal system I see no reason why these calls can't be free. Furthermore I'd like to see Skype calls, to relatives all around the world, made available. These are people, not monsters. To treat them as anything less is to take a little bit more humanity from each and every single one of us.

Imagine it's you in this situation. Or someone you love deeply. How would you like to be treated? How would you like someone you love to be treated?

My son was wrongly detained in a prison this past year and efforts to call and talk to him where meet with a lot of obstacles. I had to put money on a card for a fixed amount, not knowing how many minutes or calls that amount would allow, after putting $10 on the card I found out that there is a $7 charge to put any money down and that each call was $3.50, so I had spent $17 and would get 2 calls for only a few minutes each. I had to spend another $7.50 to get a third call. In order for my son to be able to call out I had to put money on a prison system card for him to use, the money had to be on the card by Sunday, and he couldn't access the money until Wednesday, I was told all of this on Monday, so would have to wait over 1 week for him to actually have the money to make calls.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Private prisons should not be allowed to take money from those they incarcerate. Similarly state and county jails should not be allowed to increase revenues by increasing phone rates to inmates. People should not be treated like commodities and families should not be essentially taxed for attempting to stay in touch. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I genuinely believe that allowing prison inmates to keep their family ties intact during their sentence will help reduce the rates of recidivism. It is not in the public's best interest to allow phone companies to make such a high profit off the consumer; even though their customer is a prison inmate, it's the family (and eventually society as a whole) that has to pay the bill.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I get a single monthly fee for all the calls I make in the US and Canada and it's less than $30 per month. Prisons should have something comparable.

My stepson spent six months in jail and phone calls to and from him almost broke us. In fact, it was more expensive than the calls to pornography sites that he made before going to jail. Outrageous! There's no reason that just because you're incarcerated you should have to pay outlandish phone rates. That's just another punishment and it's totally unfair.

In a country with the highest incarceration rate in the world it is criminal to allow phone companies to charge obscene rates for people to talk to their family members during this holiday season. Not only are companies profiting off of mandatory minimum sentences for non-violent crimes but to allow them to profit off of children speaking to their parents is even more heinous of a crime.

It's about family. Family of inmates. Family in our communities. The family of man/women/children, around the world. Most of the inmates will eventually live in our communities—be our neighbors. Help them, and their children be more fulfilled as fellow human beings, by encouraging them—rather than stifling them, in their relationships with family. When our neighbors are happier, our communities are happier, and we are happier. They should pay little, or nothing—as part of their rehabilitation—for phone calls to loved ones. Compassion and self-interest merge in this endeavor. Thanks for your thoughtful consideration of this matter—and happy holidays to you. Respectfully, Janine Fallon Los Osos, CA

How can anyone possibly accept that this practice is okay. I believe in justice being done, but children have a right to speak to their parent regardless of the situation. They still love them and need the contact, as do the parents. In fact, this connection may be the one that stops the prisoner from repeat offending.

I VERY strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. I watched how hard it was for a family I know - with five kids - when their father was incarcerated. They not only lost their father's income, and his presence in their lives, but they couldn't afford to talk with him on the phone. Phone calls from prison should be no more expensive than calls from anywhere else. The phone companies charging these fees are committing a crime on a scale far beyond the offenses of many locked away in our prison systems.

Charging these ridiculously high rates to those who are missing family members is simply cruel. People in prison are already being punished for whatever crime they were convicted of committing. It is not the place of phone companies to punish them and their families further. Please put an end to this utterly sleazy practice now.

It's not their fault that they are separated and if they could at least speak on the phone it certainly would help both parties. It should not cost a high price to make phone calls in this day and age. Give them affordable rates... do the right thing! Keep the cost down. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. ...I believe that ALL prisoners should have at least 20 minutes a month of gratis call time& A Minimum charge[10-15 cents a minute thereafter]and,that there should be sufficient phones to apply this...,AND,that the prison system should demand CUT-RATE...NOT,"Gouge Rate"which they'd be able to get IF...,they didn't have a personal/financial vested interest..which,is a VERY unethical way to do business/deal with LIFE..If this was implemented,it would bear fruit in the difference in attitude of all concerned[...ceptin'the Gouge Co's...Happier prisoners[from such action]..can help produce more faith in society as a whole..and,the governmental sytem in particuler...,a win-win for allP.S...HAPPY Holidays for ALL....

There is no reason to allow phone companies should be able to make exorbitant profits off those who are least able to afford them and who benefit the most from being able to call others. Inmates have no choice about which company to use, and so reasonable government regulation is necessary and appropriate.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. My son was recently incarcerated in Washington State for driving with a suspended license. It cost $5/minute to receive a collect call from him—the only way to communicate since Comcast does not allow for collect calls. In 10 minutes I barely had the most basic information about what had happened and had spent $50! This is a cruel and unjust system and tortures the poor.

If the goal of incarceration is truly rehabilitation versus only punishment and/or vengeance, then we should be doing everything we can to help build a stable system of support for each inmate. A VERY economical charge for telephone calls would go a long way toward building and maintaining this support!

Additionally, states should NEVER enter into agreements with telephone companies based on how much the state can realize in revenue from inmates' calls!

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Eliminate the profits made by the department of corrections from people who have a loved one incarcerated and accept collect calls from prisons across America. Stop families with loved ones in prison who accept collect calls from having to choose between paying a phone bill or buying food and medications. Everyone wants to stay connected to their loved one. Studies show that those who have contact with their families are least likely to recidivate. But there is a double standard between someone who is in prison in comparison to someone who is not in prison making a collect call? Is it fair that the one in prison pays more? Why should children be deprived of contact with an incarcerated parent via collect phone calls because phone companies are greedy? These three phone companies operate as organize crime. In the past the bids were given to the phone company that gave the biggest kick back to the department of corrections. This unfair practice must end. Families should not be taxed because they have a loved one in prison.

I spent most of my career, 25 years, working in NYS prisons. Based on my professional experience, it is extremely important for inmates to be able to maintain relationships with their families. High priced phone call charges to the families of inmates are unfair and unreasonable. To the degree it is possible, you should be focusing on avoiding returning inmates to life on the outside with the least psychological/emotional damage possible: isolation causes such damage. Telephone prices need to be fair to the families of those incarcerated.

I have devoted 10 years to researching the impact of parental incarceration on children. In a survey of parents at our local jail, we discovered that the phone was the way most children talked with their incarcerated parent. For many children it was their only contact with the parents with whom they had lived until incarceration interrupted their lives. In focus groups, children told us how desparate they were for this contact. And research supports them: Children who maintain contact with their incarcerated parents fare much better than children who have no way to know whether their parents are OK. In our survey, almost half of the fathers and more than half of the mothers lived with their children when the parents were arrested. And, in fact, 13% of the fathers and 26% of the mothers were single parents at the time of their arrests.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry for both local and state facilities. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I personally experienced the high charges made by phone companies to prisoners when I worked with one young man who was imprisoned via a religious organization. (I think one time my bill was $4.00 for one minute!) This both surprised and infuriated me as I wondered how on earth he could keep contact with his family. Unfortunately, this phone "service" was also a monopoly that allowed no other way for prisoners to make phone contact.

I very strongly support FCC regulation of in-state and out-of-state call charges in the prison phone industry. It is bad enough that families are broken apart during the time of imprisonment. Prisoners need every support mechanism they can maintain to not return after their release. It only makes sense to support families (and reduce recidivism) by keeping phone rates affordable.

Families with one or more parents in jail are often low on cash. I assume I do not need to go in to the details of why, just think of lawyer's fees and loss of income alone. Depending on how low on cash the family is will have an affect on whether the child talks to the parent weekly, yearly, or not at all. Studies have shown that children without parents, or parental figures, are more likely to become criminals themselves. Furthermore, even if one parent is home, the child is still more likely to become a criminal. One can not assume that a child will come in to contact with a parental figure or will have the same relationship with their parent after they have not been in contact. Even though children would be communicating to criminals (when permitted to contact their parents for free), many criminals would advise against doing what they did- especially after having been incarcerated.

Considering the immense expenses put on criminal's families, tax payers, and the jail to which they belong, in the long term letting children have free, unlimited, contact with their parents would be a benefit in many ways. First, is the logical emotional benefit within an individual family- resulting in a more stable family and hence more stable society. Second, is a benefit to society because statistically speaking there will be a lower chance for a child to become a criminal, resulting in fewer future criminals. Finally, the fiscal burden of the groups mentioned above will be relieved from the statistical tendency for less children to become future criminals, criminals who waste the money of the three groups mentioned above.

These are primary reasons why anyone would want criminals to pay less for talking to their children. A secondary, easier to relate to reason, which I will not delve in to. That reason being the increased chance of the destruction of the bond between parent and child. Anyone with common sense should see the increased chance of this sad event happening.

It is so important for inmates to be able to make phone calls to family and friends. And it's just as important for the family of the inmate to be able to talk to him or her. A part of my family was in prison so I know this personally. I took my niece's children to see her and I know she spoke to them regularly. She has never gone back to prison and is a good mother. Having that relationship when she was 'inside' was so necessary to the rest of her life. Please consider making prison phone calls as cheap as possible, not more expensive than the rest of us pay.

As one who has both worked in prisons and visited people in prisons, I see the importance of connection between those who are incarcerated and their families and community. How can we expect those who are released to find support for a new way of life outside prison if they haven't even been able to talk on the phone to their families? Also, though I have never been incarcerated, I do know how miserable it is to be a child who cannot talk to her father on the phone, because when I was a girl, my parents were divorced and I was not allowed to call my father because it was a pay call and my mother couldn't afford to pay the bill. I don't think any child should suffer such sadness when the means for communication is right there. We should be doing everything in our power to support the children, who in many cases, are effectively punished for something they do not understand. Make it affordable for prisoners and their loved ones to connect by phone.

Further complicating the situation is that many phones available to inmates are very poor quality (as I know from personal experience), so to price-gouge for an inferior quality of voice transmission only compounds the problem. Check out some prison phone yourselves, please.

The high cost of a phone call for prison inmates functions as a punishment to the inmates' children. That is not fair to the children, and I believe it only weakens the odds of rehabilitating the prisoner and easing their chance for a successful transition to the community once they are done their sentence.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. The phone systems in the prisons should be held to the same standards as the consumers rates of costs for the public majority. There should be no sweetheart deals between the states and the phone companies affecting the prison population. The prisoners are paying their dues to society as a whole by being locked up in the first place. They shouldn't have to be demoralized by the system preying on their families that try to keep in touch with their loved ones! Once they pay their debt to society, then they need to have their families ready to take them in and help with their becoming part of society again.

Please take action to limit the amount phone companies can charge prisoners' families for collect calls originating from correctional institutions. Prisoners' families have not broken any laws and are disproportionately among the lowest-income families. Maintaining connections with the world outside prison has been repeatedly shown to improve a person's odds of staying out of prison once released.

The incarcerated individuals are being punished, many unjustly as we see daily releases of innocent, exonerated people, but their relatives and friends do not deserve to share in this punishment. Please act with fairness the utmost priority in designing a remedy, through regulation, of this situation.

It's not right for phone companies to compound the punishment a judge has decided is appropriate by singling out one segment of the population because they can. That's an abuse of power and abusive of the victims. Victimized the people who may be perpetrators only reinforces the abusive cycle. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I feel that being able to communicate with loved ones, helps keep the inmates in a much better mood also, so less hassles from them. Family contact is a must because they are human, but the rates are outrageous. Please help us so we can stay in contact.

How can there be unlimited calls all across America for a set amount, yet we have to pay thru the nose to speak to our loved ones?

Then, we have to choose if we talk or give up certain things to do so. Kids don't understand why they can't talk to them either, the 15 minute calls are so short, but not on the cost. Please help us get the price down. Thx,

This is a huge rip off perpetrated on people who can afford it the least. It is designed to cut off all ties to the outside world so prisoners have no support system. The phone company in Delaware that deals with prisons exclusively charges double the price of a call. They insist on someone on the outside purchasing phone time in increments starting at $50- & adding increments of $50- at a time. Then when an inmate calls that person, no voices can be heard, or sound is so garbled no one can understand a word.

I VERY strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. You need to implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. In order to expect humanity, we have to extend humanity. We teach people how to treat us, by how we treat them. And when that fails, we simply have to extend greater love, even when we don't have the time or inclination to understand why somebody is the way they are. Give these families communication at an affordable price for God's sake!! Thank you. You'll sleep better for it.

You can get a phone plan that allows you to have unlimited minutes and long-distance for about $50 a month, but it costs $5.63 for an in-state 20 minute phone call in Texas. I strongly support FCC regulation of call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Some in-state calls are costing families $1 per minute, perhaps more! This is outrageous. Having worked with the families of prisoners for about 20 years, I know first hand how difficult it is on them to try to keep the family together and properly provide for the children. These families are already suffering from the loss of a wage earner which puts many hardships on them. Children need to talk with parents while the parent is absent. High rates for phone calls is another form of punishment to the other victims of crime who have to pay for the phone calls on an already stretched to the limit and beyond budget! Phone calls, mail and family visits are very important in keeping a family together and greatly increases the chances of the offender making a successful return to the family and re-entry into society. Affordable phone rates would increase the possibility of keeping the family together.

I support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry for the following reasons:
1. The current price gouging is corrupt and immoral.
2. The current price gouging makes it impossible for most family members of inmates to keep in close touch. Such family members are suffering enough, having a loved one in prison.
3. Inmates who are able to keep their relationships intact with family and friends are more likely to have a support system when they "get out," which in turn makes recidivism less likely.

People on the outside do not pay $1.00 a minute to speak to family or friends. The telephone companies profit greatly and sometimes give kickbacks to the states, many times on the backs of our poorest citizens. Prisoners do better when they have contact with their families and children need the contact to know their parents still care about them.

U. S. prisons are a scandal. many are privatized and run by ALEC members. Reform U.S. prisons and the legal system and you won't have to worry so much about parents in jail who can't afford phone calls. Why don't you put the banksters in jail where they belong? I have spent years helping poor family members visit loved ones in prison, and that often involves long rides. Prisoners are often so far away that their families have no way to visit them. The phone companies are in it for the money, without consideration for the innocent children, spouses, and parents who have lost their family member in so many ways. Please stop this greedy practice by the companies.

It's shocking to think that inmates' families must pay rates as high as $1/minute to phone family members who are incarcerated. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at rates comparable to what consumers pay on the "outside."

Maintaining contact while a family member is in prison is crucial for both those inside and outside. Outrageously high phone charges are cruel to the children involved, who have committed no crime. Is the point correction, or is it to make the whole family as miserable as possible? Allowing a phone company to act like bandits serves no useful purpose.

I have to keep a land line for my step son to call me. That runs about $60.00 per month by itself. Then, it seems to run about $20.00 per phone call from his prison. Once a month, I help provide girls whose parents are incarcerated with an expanded family of "sisters" who are experiencing the same barrier between their parents and social workers who are dedicated to improving the quality of the girls' childhoods. Despite this extra support, it is always clear that the girls are missing their parents, and increasing their contact would improve their ability to get through this tough time. Often left with grandparents, aunts/uncles, or the remaining parent with limited incomes and resources, the dynamics are rarely in favor of supporting the connection between child and incarcerated parent.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It is unconscionable that families suffering from the loss of their imprisoned loved ones are further penalized by insane telephone rates. I've had personal experience with this disgusting state of affairs. Unless we want to destroy the important bonds between prisoner and his or her family, the humane thing would be to make phone contact affordable. Contact with loved ones keeps a prisoner sane, focused and connected. I doubt the general public is even aware of this "debt" to society being extracted from the families of inmates.

I STRONGLY support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow ALL family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. AFFORDABLE RATES FOR REAL PEOPLE.

IDEALLY, THIS SHOULD NOT COST ANY MONEY. Family members of incarcerated citizens already pay a hefty price - they shouldn't have to shell out more just to talk on the phone.

For God's sake, these people need a break! If you're someone who makes decisions around here, get others to pull their heads out of their asses and use a little compassion and common sense. PLEASE.

I was ver disappoints to hear that once again our corporations have become imbedded with our public institutions to the detriment of those most in need. Please respect the stress and difficulties being faced by loved ones of the incarcerated. The FCC should ensure that men and women that are paying for their mistakes will need those at the other end of the line to be a productive part of society. Dear FCC,

I beg of you to implement regulations that will limit what incarcerated humans are charged for intra-state phone calls, as you have already across state lines. Being able to speak over the phone is one of the few ways an incarcerated parent can remain involved in the lives of their children. Regardless of what put a person in prison, that connection can make a difference in all the lives affected. Consider a daughter whose social world feels like it's collapsing in. With a mother's voice on the other end of the line, that floundering horror of adolescence is more manageable. That connection will save lives.

The phone companies should not be able to capitalize on the misery of humans, whose punishments are often experienced most vividly by their loved ones outside of prison. The private companies benefit from jacked-up rates on prisoner calls, but everyone else suffers. Please, and thank you,

Sincerely, E. Nadeau

My brother is in jail. My mother puts money in his account so that he can talk to her and to his wife. I cannot afford to talk to him, and my mother is astounded at how quickly the money in his account is depleted. She is 80 years old, and lives on a fixed income. I think it's obscene that he cannot talk to family because we can't afford it.

Please limit the amount these companies can charge for inmates to talk to families. Research has shown that family contact can have a positive effect on recidivism and in prison conduct. Don't punish families that are already struggling. Children, especially, need contact with their parents. Don't let this egregious act by private business ruin the lives of innocent people and damage our society. Thank you.
