A message from President Simone

Albert J. Simone

Through stories on campus growth and new academic programs, readers of The University Magazine have seen the clear evidence of RIT's continuing evolution. I believe our path over the past decade has led RIT from a good to very good university. The momentum we have achieved will propel RIT to become a truly great university.

There are at least three reasons why we must pursue this goal. First, our continued leadership as a university of quality and relevance demands that we constantly stretch and innovate. Second, we owe it to our students, alumni, partners, and other supporters to be everything we can be. Third, we have an obligation as a leading institution of higher education to prepare the highest caliber of knowledge workers who will fuel the growth of our local, national and world economies.

In short, we simply cannot sit back and rest on our laurels. Yes, RIT is a very good university. But it is all too easy to become complacent, to lose vitality and forgo the opportunity to be great. Worse yet, if we fail to move forward, we run the risk of falling behind.

To ensure that RIT continues to follow the course that has been so diligently established over the past decade, we are creating a roadmap to carry the university from 2005 through 2015 – and, we believe, from very good to great. This requires more than a strategic plan: It requires a commitment from all segments of the university community to join in the journey toward RIT's destiny. We do not intend to stray from RIT's historic mission of preparing students for productive lives. Indeed, our highest hope is that RIT will become the first choice of the top students who seek a career-focused, technical education. Teaching will remain the fundamental purpose of RIT's existence as we move forward.

Developing our strategy will be a major focus on campus through the current academic year with the objective of presenting the plan to the Board of Trustees for endorsement in July 2004. I trust you will be interested in our efforts, and future issues of The University Magazine will carry reports of our progress. In the meantime, I hope you will visit my new Web site at www.rit.edu/president where you will find the full text of recent papers I have written on RIT's mission and vision for the future.

As always, I welcome your ideas and comments.

Cordially yours,

Albert J. Simone

RIT helps to create new college in Kosovo

Education is often the driving force for social and economic recovery in troubled regions of the world such as war-torn Kosovo. In an effort to spur economic growth, RIT's College of Applied Science and Technology is launching RIT's third Eastern European venture.

The American University in Kosovo, a private university in Pristina, welcomed its first class of 70 freshmen in October. Coursework, instructed entirely in English primarily by American faculty, will focus on business, economics, computers and the application of management and technology to overcome business development, economic and manufacturing hurdles.

"The curriculum meets the economic development needs of the region and strengthens the climate for Kosovo's transition to a free-market economy," says Jim Myers, director of RIT's Center for Multidisciplinary Studies, which is collaborating with the American University in Kosovo Foundation to operate AUK. "The university truly reflects RIT's strengths in online learning and global education."

Coursework in service management, multidisciplinary studies, business development, economics, marketing, American history, science and writing will be instructed this year. AUK initially offers a two-year associate degree with plans to offer four-year degrees in a range of programs.

"What has been a dream of the Kosovar and American organizers is becoming reality," says Louis Sell, executive director of the American University in Kosovo Foundation.

AUK joins the American College of Management and Technology in Dubrovnik, Croatia, and the U.S. Business School in Prague, Czech Republic, as RIT-operated educational institutions in Eastern Europe.

Faculty members study gender inequities in IT field

Women are the minority among those who enter information technology programs as first-year students, and they are much more likely to drop out than their male classmates. Two faculty members from RIT's B. Thomas Golisano College of Computing and Information Sciences are exploring this troubling trend.

The National Science Foundation is funding the work by Elizabeth Lane Lawley and Tona Henderson through a grant valued at nearly $325,000. Their two-year study will focus on undergraduate women in IT departments.

Lawley and Henderson are conducting a qualitative study of women who entered RIT's IT program this fall. The students will be interviewed at various points of the academic year to identify factors relating to their persistence or attrition. They also will develop a questionnaire for faculty and students intended to identify the presence and influence of those factors in academic departments. The questionnaire will be administered to women entering IT departments across the United States in order to determine whether the RIT findings are comparable to those at other institutions.

"The goal of the study would be not only to answer these questions," explains Lawley, "but also to develop recommendations for IT program recruiting, curricula and student support, based on those answers."

"RIT has made a major commitment to addressing retention problems, and institutional support for research on this topic is strong," says Henderson.

RIT prof spreads message on credit card literacy

Robert Manning, RIT professor and special assistant to the provost, has designed a financial literacy program to teach first-year college students the ins and outs of credit card debt.

"This program will also make RIT graduates more competitive in the job market as employers are increasingly scrutinizing credit scores along with grade point averages," says Manning.

"The U.S. has the highest level of student indebtedness in history and the worst job market in a decade," Manning says. "More and more students nationally are dropping out of college for non-academic reasons.

Robert Manning

Educating students about consumer debt is no longer a luxury."

Manning's financial literacy program will equip first-year students with skills to make financially prudent decisions and minimize their personal debts. RIT's First Year Enrichment course during the winter quarter incorporates two sections of Manning's program into its existing curriculum.

In partnership with RIT, Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn., also launched a version of Manning's program designed for its predominantly African-American student body.

Manning's approach to financial education begins by introducing students to the positive and negative power of credit cards. Students take a cultural and financial literacy quiz followed by a discussion of the consequences of unrestrained credit card use including its future impact on jobs, renting apartments, personal relationships, depression and anxiety.

"With a record 1.5 million personal bankruptcies in 2002 and rising tuition costs, students need to understand the power credit cards hold – both the positive and negative impacts – because it can have such a dramatic impact on their personal and professional futures," Manning says.

If cats always land on their feet, and toast always lands jelly-side down, what would happen to a cat with jelly toast strapped to its back? This whimsical scenario turned into gold for a School of Film and Animation student.

Kimberly Miner, a second-year student from Suffield, Conn., took home a gold medal in the animation category at the Student Academy Awards for her film, Perpetual Motion.

Family members joined Miner in Los Angeles in June for the announcement.

Miner based her film on a paper written by a high-school friend that explored the potential implications of the cat and jelly toast idea. She created the animation by hand and used computer software to marry the elements into a short film. In addition to her gold medal, Miner received a cash award of $5,000 from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. To see Miner's film, go to www.rit.edu/news.

Also in June, the National Association of Television Program Executives' Educational Foundation honored another SOFA student for his filmmaking achievements. Scott Vosbury won second prize at the 2003 Student Video & Film Production Awards. Vosbury received $1,000 for his film, SOFA: Priceless.

Ultrasonic fingerprinting technique is professor's research topic

An RIT scientist with a passion for ultrasound is applying his medical imaging know-how to help a Buffalo-based company fine-tune its unique fingerprinting-identification device.

Navalgund Rao, associate professor in RIT's Chester F. Carlson Center for Imaging Science, has teamed up with Ultra-Scan Corp., the maker of ultrasonic finger scanners for companies and government agencies. Rao's work will help Ultra-Scan create test procedures used to verify compliance of standards issued by the U.S. Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

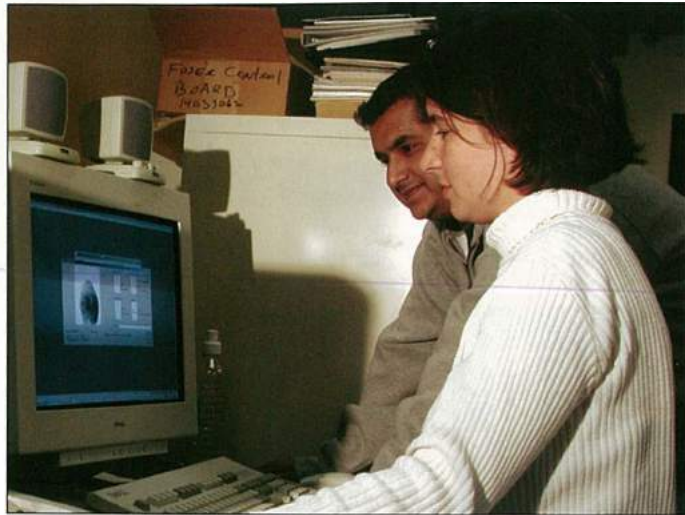

Ultrasound, also known as ultrasonics, uses high-frequency sound waves to read information through barriers. The technology is commonly used to scan the ocean floor, to "see" beneath the earth's surface in search of gas and oil, and to monitor the development of a fetus.

Ultra-Scan uses ultrasound to read fingerprints. The technology's accuracy surpasses other methods of fingerprinting – such as optical imaging and the old inkpad method – because sound waves can pierce through grease and dirt that could obscure a reading.

Rao, whose regular research interests apply ultrasonic imaging to medical diagnostics, entered the project by way of happenstance and a bit of Internet surfing.

"I was searching on the Internet to see who was working on ultrasound," Rao says. "I came across their Web page." He contacted John Schneider, the chief technology officer at Ultra-Scan, who also was looking for an ultrasound physicist to work with him on problems that his company lacked the time to investigate.

The collaborative project was made possible by a $30,000 Center for Advanced Technology grant administered by the Center for Electronic Imaging

Frank Benz, who served as RIT vice president of business and finance from 1959-70, died May 20, 2003. Mr. Benz began his career at RIT in 1955, and was instrumental in building the Henrietta campus and in bringing NTID to RIT. He is survived by his wife, Jackie, a daughter, Dr. Nicolle Benz, and a son, F. Paul Benz III. . .

Donald Hoppe, who worked at RIT from 1952 until his retirement in 1987, died Aug. 29, 2003, in a boating accident. The retired RIT registrar was 79. A World War II veteran, Mr. Hoppe lived in the Rochester area. . . Shirley Panara, wife of NTID professor emeritus Robert Panara and a long-time supporter of the college and its programs, passed away July 16, 2003, at age 80. Mrs. Panara was a librarian at the Library of Congress and the Rochester School for the Deaf. She was founder and president of Eastern Deaf Women's Bowling Association. Donations may be made in her name to the NTID Performing Arts Fund. . .

Wendy Wyland VanDerWoude, who was beginning her first season as the men's and women's swimming coach, died Sept. 27. She was 38. An Olympic bronze medalist diver in the 1984 Los Angeles Games and a 1982 world champion, Ms. VanDerWoude earned many awards and honors during her career as an athlete and was named one of People magazine's 50 most beautiful people in 1990. She served as the diving coach last year and was the pool manager for RIT. A native of the Rochester area, Mrs. VanDerWoude is survived by her husband, David Wyland, her daughter, Abigail, and stepdaughter, Carley; her mother and father, Beth and Vernon R. Wyland; a brother and two sisters.

In tribute: Alexander S. Lawson '47

Author, educator, historian and typography authority Alexander S. Lawson, a mentor to thousands of RIT printing students from 1947 to 1977, died May 6, 2002, in Sun City, Fla.

Professor Lawson's fascination with the entire graphic arts process and its craftsmen began at age 16 when he went to work as a copy boy for the New York American.

Alexander S. Lawson '47

Following his service in World War II, Al Lawson entered RIT. After receiving his diploma in 1947, he was asked to teach hand composition. His work experience, his rapport with GIs and his initiative in researching the history of printing and typography made him a perfect choice for the job.

Mr. Lawson led the School of Printing faculty in publishing books and articles. Among many works, his "labor of love" was The History of the School of Printing written at the request of Dr. Mark Guldin, dean of the College of Graphic Arts and Photography. The volume was published under the Press of the Good Mountain label in 1987 on the school's 50th anniversary.

His interest in a student's project about Frederic W. Goudy led Professor Lawson to urge the RIT Board of Trustees to purchase artifacts from Goudy's estate. Had it not been for his efforts, RIT would not have the Melbert Cary Collection of rare books. Consequently, Mr. Lawson was the first person to hold the Melbert Cary Professorship.

With encouragement of his son Doug, Mr. Lawson traded his stick for a computer at age 82 and continued his work under the name Dingbat Press. His wife and proofreader, Evelyn, was "treated to a full two-year course" and became resident computer repairman.

His parting message to all his friends was that he did not want them to mourn, but instead to drink a toast to him and to celebrate the many years of friendship.

This tribute was written by Howard Hansen '67 (printing), president of the Museum of Printing, North Andover, Mass. Hansen is also owner of Hansen Brothers Printing Co., Stoughton, Mass.

If you would like to support the new Alexander S. Lawson Publishing Center or the Alexander Lawson Graduate Scholarship, please contact Deborah McKinzie in the College of Imaging Arts and Sciences at 585-475-2128 or send e-mail to dmbdsr@rit.edu.

Help for finding success in the job market

Learning to find a job is much like learning to play a sport. It requires practice, stamina and commitment. Just as a successful player would never enter a competition without sufficient exercise and training, a successful job seeker would never think of entering the job market without the appropriate preparation.

RIT's Office of Cooperative Education and Career Services offers a highly qualified staff to prepare alumni for an informed and effective job search. We offer resources including career fairs, job listings, interview opportunities and one-on-one advisement to prepare you for the job search in today's competitive market.

Our program coordinators will work with you to develop a sound job search strategy, craft a winning resume, develop well-written employer correspondence, and sharpen your interviewing skills. We will assist you in identifying employers who are seeking talented people with your unique skill set and coach you to find employment opportunities in your field. You don't have to be located in Rochester to work with us – you may schedule phone appointments, or in some cases, correspond via email at your convenience. Alumni may contact RIT's Office of Cooperative Education and Career Services at 585-475-2301.

Michelle Magee '02
Alumni Career Services Coordinator
Office of Cooperative Education and Career Services

Here's the program coordinator's pre-game pep talk to get you ready to hit the employment market playing field at full throttle:

• Do your homework.

Make sure you know what skills you possess and which ones you may lack for the field you are targeting. Do you need further education, training or certification? Next, get the proper equipment to play: conduct an honest self-assessment, design a winning resume, write a solid cover letter and research potential employers.

• Target the market.

Decide what you want to do, be specific about what jobs you envision for yourself, where you would like to work, the kind of organization you'd like to be part of and focus your energies on pursuing that plan. Know your competition.

• Develop an elevator pitch. An elevator pitch is a brief self-marketing statement that you deliver at conferences, job fairs and other networking events. It should sound informal and impromptu, and you can practice by rehearsing on your own voice mail!

• Learn to market your- self. Practice selling your skills both in written word and in person. Communication skills are a critical component of securing employment.

• Seek a support struc- ture. Join a group or professional organization to network with other like-minded individuals. You will increase your career knowledge and gain many contacts at the same time. Consider volunteering in the group to take on assignments that will allow you to meet additional members in your career field and community.

• Find a mentor. Is there someone you know and respect in your field who can provide guidance and support during your search and afterward? Seek out someone who is willing to take an interest in your progress and success.

• Consider consulting or temping. As a temporary measure, why not consider offering your skills in a short-term assignment? Temp agencies offer opportunities that will allow you to get a foot in the door of an organization and prove your value first-hand.

• Develop a positive attitude and demonstrate enthusiasm. Try to maintain a healthy and positive attitude while in your job search. Employers recall those who were excited about their organization better than the person who could merely perform the job without conviction. Remember that your upbeat attitude is infectious to everyone around you.

• Learn from rejection.

Use the information you gather as a stepping stone for further self-knowledge and growth. Remember, rejection is short-term and part of the job search process.

• Never, ever throw in the towel! The job search is demanding and can be brutal. The competition can seem overwhelming, but to win the game you must be on the playing field and ready for the sport.

Let RIT's Office of Cooperative Education and Career Services work with you one-on-one in your job search to ensure your success. We look forward to helping you build your winning story as you enter the competition!

Members of the RIT community share expertise on a variety of subjects in FYI, which appears from time to time in The University Magazine.

The Sentinel rises

The Sentinel, the largest sculpture on any campus in the United States, stands tall at the center of RIT. The 110-ton, 73-foot high, steel, stainless steel and bronze sculpture by Albert Paley was dedicated at a gala event Oct. 2.

"The sculpture refers to the technological dimension of the institute and the dynamic transformative nature of the educational process," says Paley, the Charlotte Fredericks Mowris Endowed Chair in RIT's School for American Crafts. "The Sentinel combined with other artworks on campus aids in defining the cultural profile of this university complex."

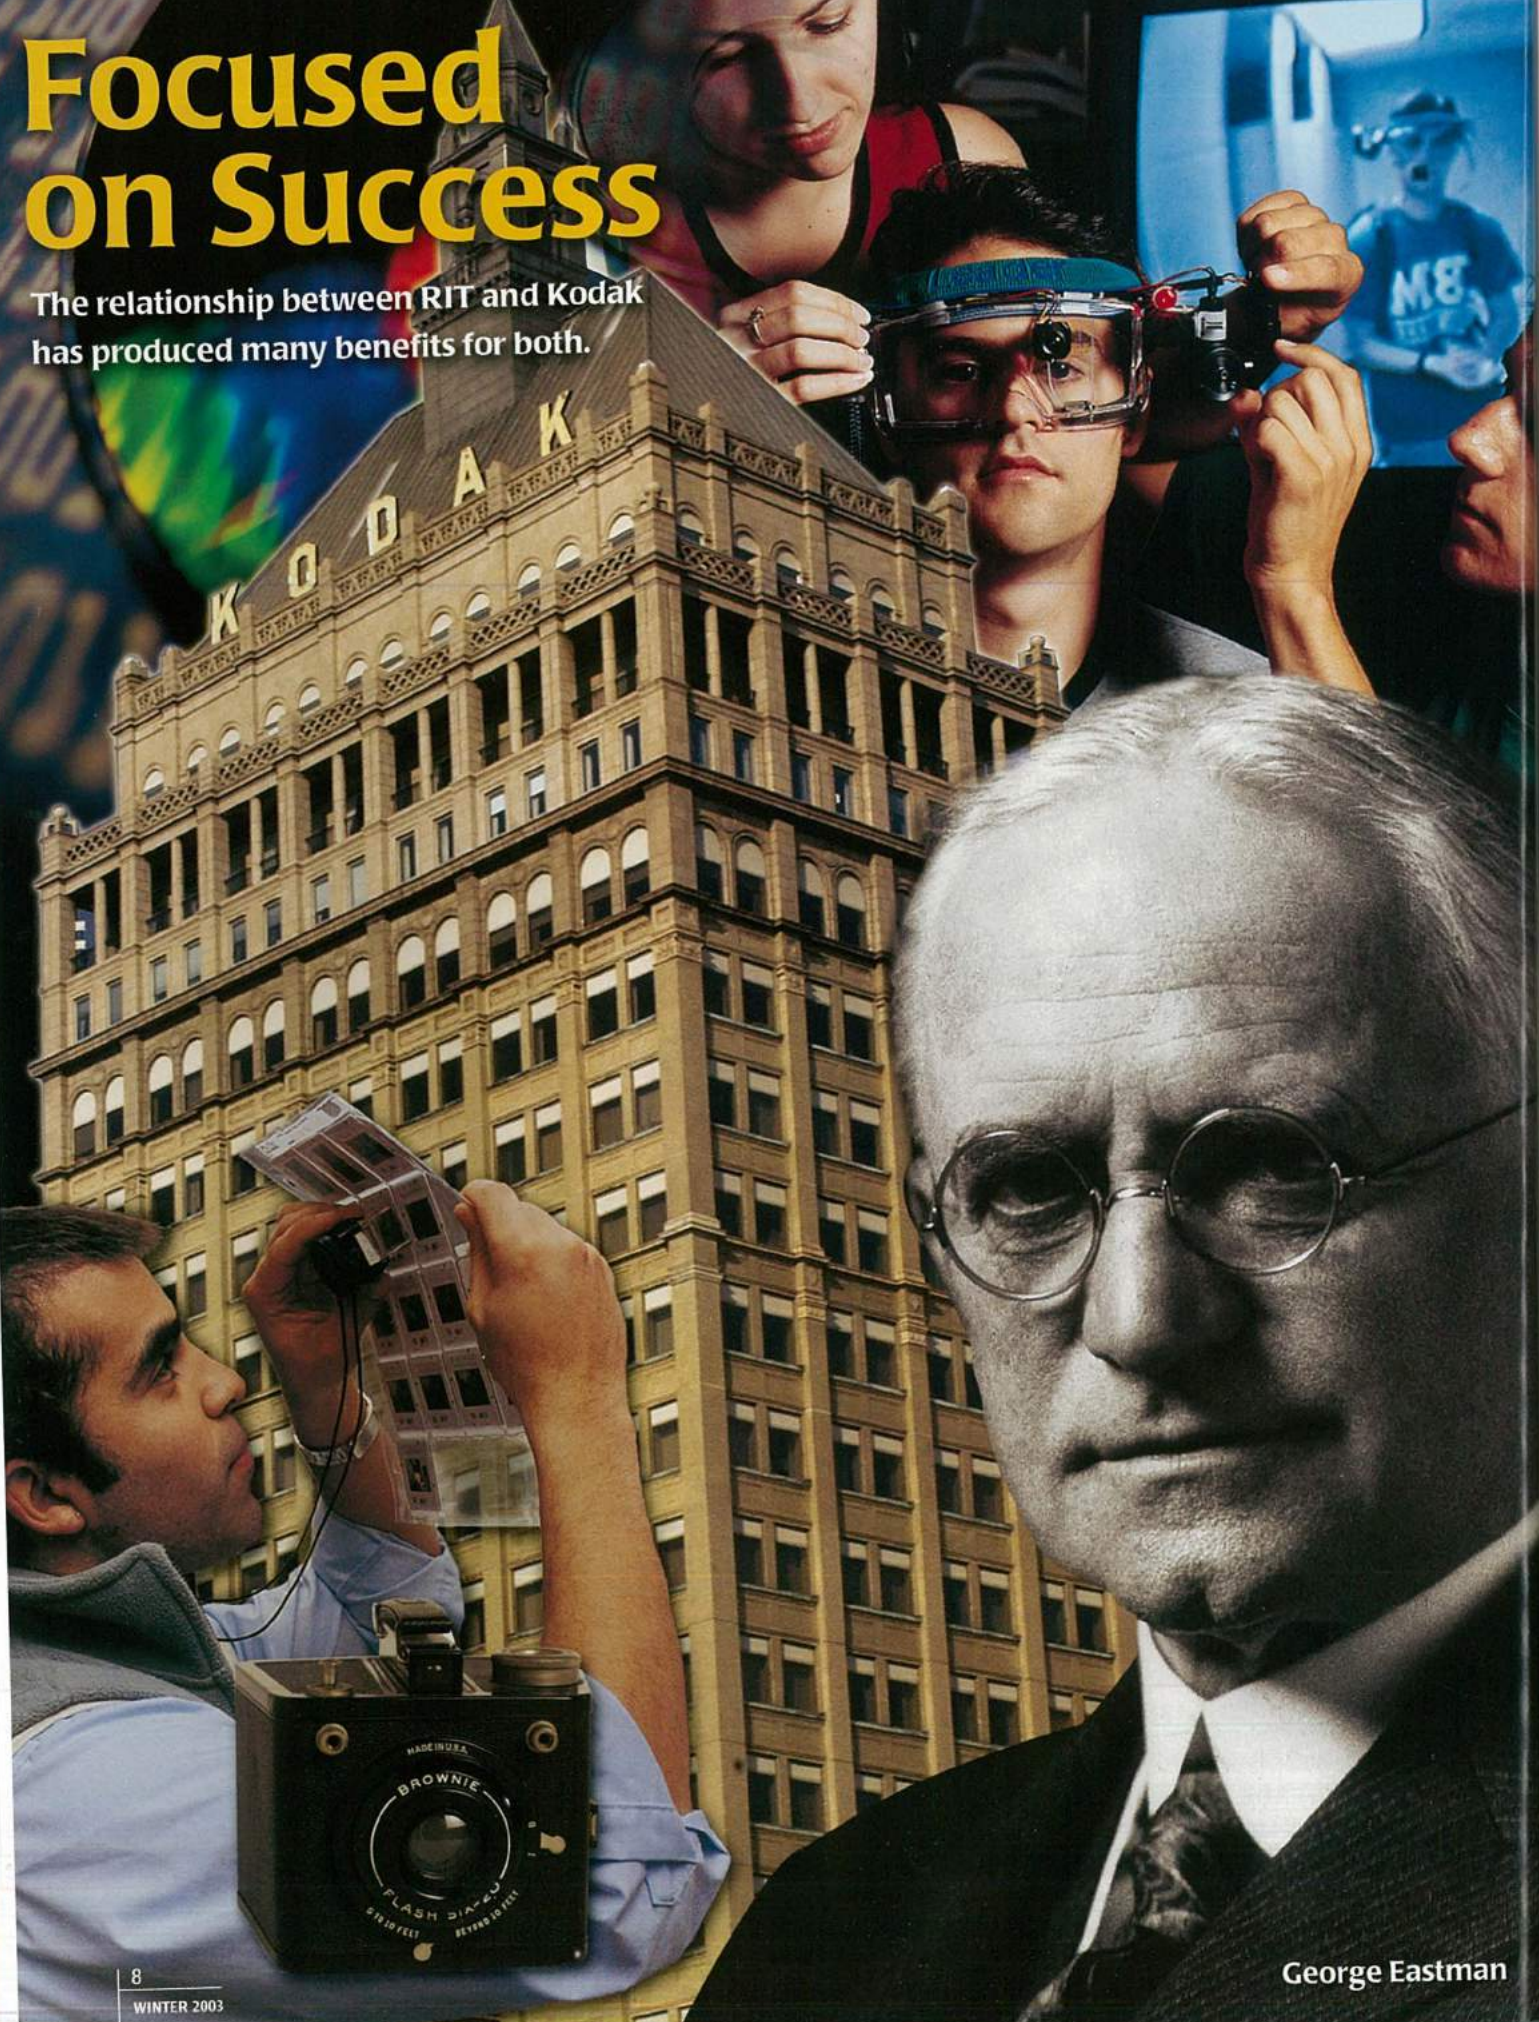

Pieces of the sculpture were fabricated in Paley's Rochester studio, then assembled at its home in front of the Student Alumni Union. These photos by A. Sue Weisler '93 show the work as it progressed from June to August. For more, visit the Web at www.rit.edu/paley.

Sculptor Albert Paley supervised the assembly of his largest work, which took shape on location in front of the Student Alumni Union. Following nearly four months of site preparation, construction and landscaping, The Sentinel was formally dedicated in October.

Focused on Success

The relationship between RIT and Kodak has produced many benefits for both.

It's a partnership that more closely resembles a motion picture than a snapshot. Over the years, the bond that ties Eastman Kodak Co. and Rochester Institute of Technology has been constantly evolving – never static.

It's true that the relationship started with a snapshot – so to speak. Just over 100 years ago, RIT began offering photographic education while Kodak was well on its way to making photography available to the masses. The connection quickly became obvious.

Today, the opportunities for collaboration between these two institutions extend well beyond the range of photography, including groundbreaking research in areas such as imaging science and information technology.

"You'd be hard pressed to find two separate, independent, world-class leaders that are more closely allied than ours," states Daniel Carp '73 (MBA), Kodak chairman and CEO. "We've been partners in education, in research and in community service, well before the company was known as Kodak and the school was called RIT."

Daniel Carp '73,
Kodak chairman and CEO

Right from the start

The relationship started in 1887, when Kodak founder George Eastman made his first contribution – $50 – to Mechanics Institute, the predecessor to RIT.

Eastman served as chairman of the board of trustees for three years. Over the years, other Kodak managers have served on the board, including five current members.

Sharing the talent and dedication of Kodak personnel is an important legacy of this partnership. One of the more notable examples came in 1930 when the company loaned photography expert and technical writer C.B. Neblette to the institute full time. Neblette, one of the most influential personalities in the field, was charged with making RIT's photography program the largest and the best of its kind. He directed the department and later the School of Photography from 1936 to 1960 and became the first dean of the College of Graphic Arts and Photography, holding that post until 1967.

"As a result, Kodak became very influential in the establishment of our photo school," explains Bill DuBois, RIT's chair of photographic arts.

In the school's early days, the company provided supplies to support the technical side of photography, including film. Later, Kodak supplied professional reference books to every incoming photo student. These technical and scientific guides offered important insights in areas like lighting, film technology, chemistry and the marketing of photography.

And as the field of photography marches into the digital era, Kodak has committed its support to RIT in the development of digital photography laboratories on campus.

"Kodak has always been there and ready in a variety of ways to support us in the education of our students," says DuBois.

Science and scholarship

Beyond traditional photography, a growing number of other collaborative areas have served to significantly strengthen this bond. In recent years, Kodak has become a driving force in research conducted at RIT's Chester F. Carlson Center for Imaging Science (CIS).

Modern imaging systems require an increasing proficiency in science and technology. CIS is dedicated to training the next generation of scientists by establishing a collaborative research environment that challenges students to solve problems facing industry and government.

As a founding member of the Laboratory for Advanced Spectral Sensing (LASS) at CIS, Kodak's support is addressing questions related to remote spectral sensing. To do that, CIS researchers have significantly improved the techniques used to create "mega-scenes" – large scale, computer simulations of specific landscapes used to test the performance of satellite sensors. Previously, these representations were much smaller and less accurate.

Data collected at ground level is used to support information collected by aircraft or satellites by measuring spectra – the light reflected or emitted by objects. A large number of spectra are required to produce accurate textures of materials such as grass and concrete. Combining these factors helps satellite developers to predict the performance of their systems based on atmospheric conditions and other variables. The potential implications range from determining crop health to evaluating factors related to homeland security.

"Our goal is always to provide something tangible in exchange for Kodak's research support," explains Michael Richardson, LASS director. "We've been able to develop software tools that are now being used in a number of projects. That wouldn't be possible if not for the work done here."

With Kodak's support, RIT imaging scientists are pursuing research in remote spectral sensing. One area involves developing computer-generated "mega-scenes" used in the development of remote sensing systems.

Future research depends on attracting more students to imaging science. To this end, Kodak is providing CIS with scholarship money for undergraduate students and for a program that shows high school teachers how to incorporate imaging science into their lesson plans. The company also funds annual paid summer internships that give qualified high school students hands-on experience in imaging science.

The impact of Kodak's support can be witnessed across campus. For example, the Information Technology Collaboratory is an industry partnership focusing on research related to microsystems, photonics, remote systems and high-bandwidth telecom networks. Its mission is to create key technologies, knowledge and capabilities for the design and integration of the next generation of IT systems.

The company also has worked closely with the National Center for Remanufacturing and Resource Recovery at RIT's Center for Integrated Manufacturing Studies (CIMS) to develop an economical recycling process for single-use cameras.

Most recently, Kodak has been evaluating an effort to capitalize on RIT's print media expertise to investigate how to print low-cost electronics.

A winning team

Maintaining a continuous flow of communication is critical to enhancing the future of any partnership. That philosophy is driving the company's "Vertical Slice" team for university relations, represented by a cross section of Kodak employees from various divisions. Kodak Chief Administrative Officer Michael P. Morley '69 (business administration), an RIT trustee, steers the group with team leader Stephanie Maddox '01 (M.S., manufacturing engineering and product design) from Kodak's Worldwide Information Division. The 14 members of the team – all RIT alums – range from engineers to some of Kodak's top administrators. Working with RIT representatives, the team is able to present its key growth areas while identifying current and emerging areas of technical engagement at RIT.

Among the priorities of the Vertical Slice team is sustaining the employment pipeline. Kodak estimates that more than a third of its new hires each year are RIT graduates – far more than any other college or university. In total, there are nearly 3,900 RIT alumni employed by the company – making Kodak the largest employer of RIT graduates.

"We strive to promote Kodak as the employer of choice among RIT graduates," explains Maddox. "In addition, it's important for us to explore ways to enhance the day-to-day connections with various contacts on campus including students, faculty and administrators."

The team has focused much of its effort on creating co-op jobs for students, as well as identifying long-term strategies for career development.

To heighten its visibility at RIT, Kodak recently sponsored a full day of activities encouraging participation by students, faculty and staff. RIT president Albert Simone welcomed Antonio Perez, Kodak's president and chief operating officer, as the featured speaker during a collaborative luncheon. In addition, Carl Gustin, Kodak's chief marketing officer and senior vice president, delivered a presentation on the future of the Kodak brand in the digital marketplace.

Other highlights included tours of the Kodak Picture Planet, a 1,000 square-foot mobile venue designed to educate and entertain consumers about photographic products and solutions. Kodak's NASCAR "show car" was also on display, and there were a variety of gift giveaways. Organizers say events like these are important to assure that the relationship remains cohesive.

"There's a great deal of synergy between the outstanding educational centers of excellence at RIT and the areas of great technological depth at Kodak," says Kenneth Reed '71 (chemistry), Kodak senior principal scientist, RIT trustee and chair of the RIT Alumni Network Board of Directors. "It's important that we never take that for granted."

Building on diversity

To build a more effective workforce, Kodak and RIT have fostered an increasing emphasis on diversity. During his address at an RIT diversity workshop last year, CEO Carp acknowledged that Kodak and other companies will draw future employees from a talent pool that will include more women, minorities and immigrants. He believes that RIT's culture makes the university well positioned to train the next generation of workers.

Trustee Morley emphasizes that growing the university's inclusive culture remains a key priority for both institutions. "It's the diversity of our faculty, staff and students that drives the success of RIT," he states. "And by creating a diverse workforce at Kodak, we are better able to serve the needs of the entire marketplace."

During most of her 21-year career at Kodak, Essie Calhoun (recently elected to the RIT Board of Trustees) has worked hard to build and strengthen the company's relationship with diverse organizations. The Kodak vice president, chief diversity officer and director of community affairs is an active supporter of African American, Latin American and Native American leadership programs at RIT.

"It's an expectation from us that RIT provides a representative workforce," she explains. "These future leaders come to us prepared with an understanding of the dynamics of a diverse environment. We support and salute our partners in that effort."

Future developments

Today's Kodak-RIT relationship – a marriage comprising so many varied components – has never been more dynamic. For the company, it's become an invaluable tool for navigating an altered business landscape.

"We're undergoing a sea change," reflects Carp, "evolving from a historically consumer film-based company to one with a broader and more balanced business portfolio. We are strengthening our commercial portfolio and aggressively pursuing the vast potential of digital imaging across many different businesses."

That's not to say that film photography – which initially tied these two institutions – won't continue to play a role. It remains an important area of knowledge sharing that Kodak will leverage to grow its film business within emerging markets. In Carp's view, there's no limit to the potential for valuable exchanges within an increasingly active pipeline.

"We have a continual stream of people going back to RIT to consult on curriculum, to teach, to mentor students, and even to serve on the board of trustees. And RIT continues to provide Kodak with perspective on what's current in technology and in academics – how innovations are received, how they're developed and, in general, what's on the minds of the curious innovators of the next generation."

M/E Engineering builds a solid reputation

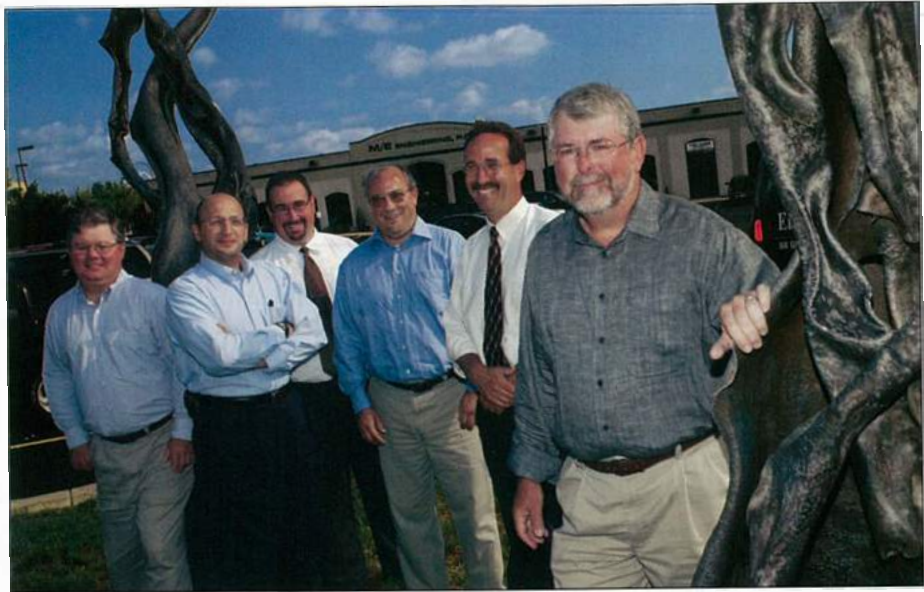

A commitment to the city has been a source of pride for M/E Engineering, P.C., the Rochester firm founded by Allen Casey '70, '73 (A.A.S., B.S. electrical engineering) and three partners in 1991.

That commitment was recognized earlier this year when M/E Engineering was named to Inc. Magazine's Inner City 100 list of the country's most successful private companies located in urban centers. The firm also ranked among Rochester's Top 100 list of fastest growing private companies six times since 1995, and M/E made Zweig White & Associate's "Hot Firm" list of the 100 fastest-growing architectural, engineering and planning firms in the U.S. in 2000 and 2001. Revenues climbed every year to more than $12 million by 2002.

Quite a track record. And RIT figures prominently in M/E's achievements. Of the four founders, three are RIT alumni: President Casey, Vice President William P. Liberto '82 (mechanical engineering) and Vice President Ronald C. Mead '81 (mechanical engineering). (The fourth partner, Joseph Straub Jr., is a University of Rochester grad.) Of approximately 100 employees, 20 are RIT alums, and M/E also has four RIT students in co-op jobs.

Casey, Liberto, Mead and Straub were working in Rochester for a Syracuse firm when they decided to start their own consulting business. By 1996, the party of four had grown to more than 40. They expanded into Buffalo where, three years later, they were approached by owners of a competing firm who asked if M/E was interested in purchasing their business. The culmination of that deal doubled the company's size. This year, M/E opened an office in Schenectady to achieve a higher profile in the New York's capital district.

"We've hustled to expand," says Casey.

"We push very hard to provide the kind of personal service and professional quality that our clients expect."

As a result, he says 90 percent of the company's business comes from repeat customers. M/E works with major architectural and construction firms on large public and private projects ranging from libraries and laboratories to casinos and churches. Among these projects are several on the RIT campus.

"It's night and day what's happened on campus," says Casey, who started college in 1968, the year RIT moved to the current location. "The growth and improvements are fantastic."

He's pleased that one aspect of RIT hasn't changed: the emphasis on applied education, particularly the co-op program.

"All of our RIT graduates have been excellent," Casey continues. "We feel that the growth of M/E Engineering has been due in large part to the quality of the education our staff members received at RIT."

The company gives back: In 1999, the M/E Engineering, P.C. Scholarship was established for students in the Kate Gleason College of Engineering and the College of Applied Science and Technology.

RIT prof to fly the Wright stuff

It's history in the remaking.

Kevin Kochersberger, one of two people selected as Pilot of the Century, will fly a reproduction 1903 Wright Flyer Dec. 17 to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the first powered flight. Above, Kochersberger inspects a propeller chain guide on the aircraft.

Kevin Kochersberger, associate professor of mechanical engineering, is one of two people chosen to fly a reproduction of Orville and Wilbur Wright's airplane to mark the 100th anniversary of powered flight.

Kochersberger gained the honor when he was named a Pilot of the Century by the Experimental Aircraft Association. First take-off will be at 10:35 a.m. Dec. 17. The re-enactment will take place at Wright Brothers National Memorial near Kitty Hawk, N.C., and the site of the Wrights' daring experiments. A second re-enactment will be at 2 p.m.

Kochersberger will share the honors with Terry Queijo, an American Airlines pilot who was part of that airline's first all-female flight crew in 1986 and who also was named a Pilot of the Century. The flights are the climax to the weeklong First Flight Centennial Celebration and the yearlong Countdown to Kitty Hawk sponsored by the Experimental Aircraft Association and Ford Motor Co.

Kochersberger and Queijo's training, funded by Northrop Grumman Corp., utilizes the reproduction 1903 Wright Flyer, a reproduction 1902 Wright glider and, in a modern concession, a flight simulator developed by Bihrl Applied Research Inc. But it will be a low-tech procedure – a coin toss – that determines who flies on the morning of the anniversary. That flight, five feet above the ground, will cover about 119 feet, a foot less than the Wrights' first flight, Kochersberger says.

"The opportunity to play a key role in the centennial celebration is a great honor, one that will carry over to the RIT community through the classroom and in student advising," Kochersberger says.

A licensed pilot whose first flight was in a hang glider at the age of 15, Kochersberger worked with The Wright Experience, which coordinated research, design and testing of the reproduction Wright Flyer, and on other Wright brothers educational projects over the last five years. On a yearlong sabbatical at NASA's Langley Full Scale Tunnel in Virginia, Kochersberger focused on wind-tunnel testing of the replica aircraft. Previously, he tested a 1910 Vertical 4 aircraft engine and he and RIT graduate engineering students researched and supported reverse engineering of Wright propellers, airframes and engines at Delphi Automotive Systems in Henrietta, N.Y.

In August, the Federal Aviation Administration issued a special airworthiness certificate for the 605-pound reproduction that Kochersberger and Queijo will fly. After the December flights, the aircraft will be donated to the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich.

The aircraft's creation and wind-tunnel tests are documented in photographs by Steve Diehl '76 (photography), RIT associate professor of photographic arts and sciences, at www.rit.edu/upub/kittyhawk. The photo project was supported by RIT's Office of the Provost.

Brick City Festival 2003 biggest ever

More than 3,500 alumni, parents, students and friends came to campus for RIT's annual fall celebration, which this year featured a jam-packed schedule of activities spread across four glorious October days.

Celebrity guest Ben Stein (right) gets a chuckle from Tom Cervino, third-year electrical engineering major and Jennifer Riggie, third-year biotechnology major.

Brick City Festival, which includes Alumni Weekend, Family Weekend and the Stonehurst Capital Invitational Regatta, offered special tours, banquets, barbecues, receptions, music, assorted reunion gatherings, educational presentations, pumpkin launching, a world-cultures fair and much more.

Teams from 28 universities competed in the Stonehurst Capital Invitational Regatta on the Genesee River.

Is It Anyway? also packed Clark Gymnasium, and RIT revisited the age of Beatlemania with a performance by tribute band The Return. The legendary Buck O'Neil, a star of the historic Negro Baseball Leagues who gained national attention as a commentator in Ken Burns's PBS documentary Baseball, closed the weekend with a Sunday afternoon presentation.

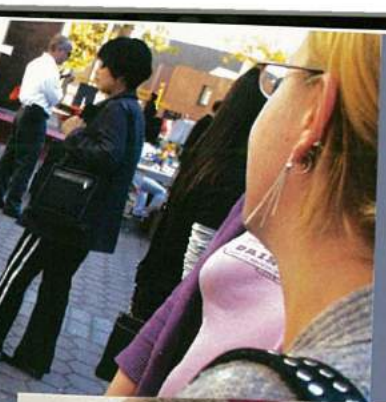

If you think this was a great weekend, you're right. And next year's Brick City Festival will be even better.

RIT honors 10 alumni for exceptional achievements

RIT's first Volunteer of the Year was named during the annual ceremony honoring the Outstanding and Distinguished Alumni during the Brick City Festival/Alumni Weekend celebration.

Kenneth J. Reed '71 (College of Science) became the first recipient of the award for outstanding volunteer service.

Daniel J. Bader '87 (College of Business) was honored as RIT's Outstanding Alumnus for 2003. The Distinguished Alumni, one for each of RIT's eight colleges, are: Julianne Klie '89, B. Thomas Golisano College of Computing and Information Sciences; Michael T. Dugan '78, College of Applied Science and Technology; Brian H. Hall '78, College of Business; Bernard N. Boston '55, College of Imaging Arts and Sciences; Robert E. Craig Jr. '76, '93, College of Liberal Arts; Paul W. Melnychuck '84, College of Science; Anthony J. Amorese '48, Kate Gleason College of Engineering; Susan J. Wolf-Downes '71, National Technical Institute for the Deaf.

Kenneth Reed is a research associate in the Emulsion Technology Division of the Research Laboratories, Eastman Kodak Company. In 2000, he received the Distinguished Alumni Award from RIT's College of Science and currently serves as chair of the RIT Alumni Network Board of Directors. He's also an RIT trustee.

Daniel J. Bader is president of the Helen Bader Foundation. A Milwaukee native, Bader is the chair of the Greater Milwaukee Committee and is active in numerous philanthropic and educational organizations. An RIT trustee, Bader is chairman of Granite Microsystems Inc. and a director of Cedarburg Pharmaceuticals.

Julianne Klie is president and CEO of Veritor Executive Advisors, a Rochester consulting company. She is co-founder of Digital Rochester, an association of more than 3,000 technology professionals, and also of SpringBoard Rochester, an association providing seminars and coaching for businesses.

Michael T. Dugan is president and chief operating officer of Echostar Communications Corp., a provider of direct broadcast satellite TV equipment and services to customers worldwide. Previously, Dugan was vice president of engineering for Tandon Corp., as well as director of product marketing and director of engineering. He worked at Xerox Corp. for 15 years.

Brian H. Hall is president and CEO of Thomson Legal & Regulatory, a division of The Thomson Corp. Thomson Legal & Regulatory provides services to legal, tax, accounting, intellectual property, compliance and business professionals around the world. He serves on the boards of many civic organizations, including the RIT Board of Trustees.

Bernard N. Boston worked in the Washington, D.C., area for most of his career as a photojournalist and retired from Washington bureau of The Los Angeles Times in 1993. In 2000, he and his wife, Peggy, purchased the Bryce Mountain Courier in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley. Among many honors, Boston received the National Press Photographers Association Joseph A. Sprague Memorial Award, the organization's highest honor, in 1993.

Robert E. Craig Jr., director of RIT's campus safety department for three years, is a veteran of the Rochester Police Department. Among many awards, Craig is especially proud of being the first recipient of the RPD's Community Service Award, presented on his retirement. He received his M.S. in RIT's career and human resource development program.

Paul W. Melnychuck is producer and president of Too Far Music in Woodside, Calif., and works with his wife, Karen, at Minds On Hold, a music production, record label and design firm. Melnychuck, who earned a B.S. in chemistry and an M.S. in imaging science at RIT, holds seven patents in the area of digital signal processing.

Anthony J. Amorese worked in engineering and management positions at a number of companies including Rittenhouse Co. Inc., Emerson Electric Co. and Universal Machinery Corp. In 1978 he acquired Redie Laundry and Cleaners Inc., a commercial firm that he expanded from 15 to 150 workers before selling the company and retiring in 1991.

Susan J. Wolf-Downes is executive director of the Northeast Deaf and Hard of Hearing Services Inc. in Concord, N.H. She is a member of the board of trustees for New England Homes for the Deaf in Danvers, Mass., and chairs the administrative board of Our Deaf Sister's Center, a domestic violence/sexual assault advocacy group in Boston.

News & Views from Student Affairs

Welcome to the first Parent PrioRITies page! I'm very excited to have the chance to communicate with RIT parents about topics of interest to all. As students end their first quarter here, you may have received varied reports about life here at RIT – some good, some uneasy, some not comfortable at all. The Division of Student Affairs hopes students find campus life fun, exciting, and supportive and we hope students take advantage of the many co-curricular opportunities at RIT.

One concern for many RIT parents is their children's health and well-being while on campus. You'll be pleased to know that at RIT, wellness is a course requirement as well as a desired state. Through unique wellness curricular components, RIT ensures that our students will be exposed to the concept of preventative health care and total health early in their college life, as well as have the opportunity to develop habits that promote a healthy individual and healthy campus community.

All entering first-year students are required to satisfactorily complete the First Year Enrichment (FYE) program in the fall and winter quarters.

FYE is a 20-week course addressing topics that include an introduction to RIT and its rich history, diversity, interpersonal relationships, nutrition and physical fitness, time and stress management, motivation, and high-risk behaviors. In addition, the Center for Human Performance offers wellness for life, a course specifically designed to assist students in making healthy decisions regarding lifestyle behaviors, covering areas such as behavior-change strategies.

We look forward to expanding wellness programs through additional classes and recreational opportunities housed in the new Gordon Field House and Activities Center, which opens next year. Offering health and fitness activities in a broad spectrum of interests, RIT is committed to helping our students to stay fit for a lifetime – and a good start is a daily walk on the quarter mile!

Parents provide many kinds of support

Two keys to success in life are a great education and a solid family support. RIT is able to join with parents to ensure that students receive the best launching pad for their career and adult life.

That's why we are RIT supporters. Our son, Seth, graduated from the College of Imaging Arts and Sciences in 1995, and we attribute much of his success to his RIT education. We happily support RIT, both financially and as volunteers helping to kick-start the new RIT Parents initiatives and chairing the parents committee of The Campaign for RIT.

Whether you live near Rochester or not, there are many ways you can become involved in supporting RIT. Several RIT organizations welcome members from outside the campus community including:

- Nathaniel Rochester Society – a very special organization that brings RIT friends together with a common goal to support RIT.

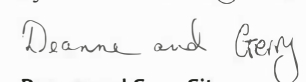

- Women's Council of RIT – a network of women ambassadors to the community.

- Athletics Association – a group having a positive impact on RIT Athletics.

- College Committees – each college has advisory councils to which knowledgeable individuals can provide input and guidance.

In addition to on-campus involvement, many parents host networking and development events in their region. Parent and student get-togethers, alumni networking events, and campaign informational events are held across the country each year. RIT is grateful to have individuals who are willing to co-host these events, providing a "local's" perspective on venues, themes and best dates.

We hope you will choose to support RIT to benefit students like your sons or daughters. If you are interested in being more involved as an RIT parent, please contact Tish Ciaccio at 585-475-6465, or by e-mail at ecedar@rit.edu.

'Early Alert System' helps students succeed

Effective academic advising is critical to student success, especially in the first year. RIT has established the "Early Alert System" to identify first-year students who may be struggling with a particular class or area of study. This system ensures that they receive the intervention, direction and additional tutoring they need to get back on track.

Modeled after a program established at RIT's National Technical Institute for the Deaf, the system starts with a software module on the faculty/staff advising Web site. Instructors are able to notify a student aware of performance problems and have the opportunity to intercede to assist the student or provide direction.

Results from the Early Alert System have been very positive. Receiving the alert notice often provides enough motivation for students to begin actively seeking help and to begin focusing more time and energy on their course work. Many times, this extra study time is all that is needed to turn the student's grades around.

In other cases, academic advisors put the student in contact with support services, student online as to how he or she is performing in class. Performance evaluations are generated using predetermined categories of achievement and evaluation, as well as space for the instructor's individual comments.

Evaluations are e-mailed directly to the student. Included with this evaluation is an "alert" notice that can be forwarded to the student and can be automatically copied to his or her First Year Enrichment coach, academic advisor or home department head. Through this alert notice, the student and these advisory parties are made such as RIT's Learning Development Center, where their specific needs are assessed. They then are able to receive training in study skills and time management and to work with tutors to strengthen weak academic foundations. In a few cases, students have been accurately diagnosed with learning disabilities for the first time as a direct result of the Early Alert System and these students are then able to receive appropriate help and support.

With proper help and support, student success increases, both academically and in their life after RIT.

Christopher Berube '89 (KGCOE)

"I was sitting at a drawing board at Eastman Kodak when the telegram came," he recalls. Months before he had signed up for pilot training in the Army Air Corps, so about 12 hours later he was on a train for pre-flight school at Maxwell Field, Ala. He finished his pilot training at the twin engine school at Freeman Field in Seymour, Ind.

Kaplan was assigned to B-24s ("the Liberator" bombers) and was sent to China to serve with the famous Flying Tigers of the 14th Air Force under Gen. Claire Chennault. His crew's motto was "Home Alive in '45." There was some doubt this would be possible, as his unit was sustaining very heavy casualties.

On their 46th mission, their plane was severely damaged by enemy fire over Hong Kong. Kaplan and his crew were able to nurse the plane along on three engines until they ran out of fuel.

"We were forced to bail out about 50 miles from our base in Changtu," says Kaplan. "We walked 40 miles before we were picked up about 10 miles from base. The Chinese helped us, and the whole crew – 10 guys – survived. We carried the tail gunner, who broke his ankle when we bailed out."

The exploit earned Kaplan a Distinguished Flying Cross. "That was our last mission."

was promoted on August 1, 2003 to the 8th level project design engineer within General Motors Performance Division's High Performance Vehicle Operations, Warren, Mich.

On Giving and Receiving

Savvy donors are looking for ROI – return on investment – not just warm and fuzzy feelings from doing good. Yes, they stand firm behind RIT's mission and the value the university brings to students, industry, and the community. But, they also know that a gift to RIT can provide them with much needed benefits for their own future.

Charitable Gift Annuities:

A Gift That Makes Sense – and Income – Now

With low returns prevalent in stocks, money market accounts, mutual funds, and certificates of deposit, the rates for RIT Charitable Gift Annuities are very attractive, and they're guaranteed for the life of the beneficiary.

Age	Rate
65	6.0%
70	6.5%
75	7.1%
80	8.0%

Benefiting from a Charitable Gift Annuity is easy:

1. Make a gift to RIT of cash or marketable securities to fund a charitable gift annuity.
2. You and/or your loved ones receive guaranteed income for life from the charitable gift annuity.
3. After you and/or the beneficiary pass away, the balance of the charitable gift annuity is used by RIT.

John Stein '85 killed in Afghanistan

Lt. Col. John Stein '85 (printing management) died with five others in a helicopter crash in Afghanistan on March 23.

The six were flying in an HH-60G Pave Hawk helicopter on a mission to rescue two injured children at the time of the crash. A career military officer, Lt. Col. Stein was a helicopter pilot with the 41st Rescue Squadron at Moody Air Force Base in Valdosta, Ga.

Lt. Col. Stein grew up in Macomb, Ill., and graduated from Macomb High School in 1981. He completed the Army ROTC program at RIT and received his commission the month he graduated. He served in Germany from 1986 to 1990 and subsequently was selected for an inter-service transfer to the Air Force. He was assigned to Hurlburt Field, Fla., from 1990 to 1995 and later spent two years in Iceland.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara, three children ages 17, 13 and 11, his parents, a brother and three sisters.

Alum's business helps wedding planners

Anyone who has planned a wedding knows it can be a bewildering process.

Zina J. C. Nelson '89 (business administration, marketing) offers help. Nelson produces The Greater Rochester Bride & Groom guide book and its companion Web site, www.RochesterBride.com. The free magazine, published twice a year, covers every aspect of organizing a wedding – from attire to videography.

"When I got married 13 years ago, you went to the phone book," says Nelson. "I wanted to make it easier for other people."

According to Nelson, about 6,000 marriages take place each year in the Greater Rochester area. Brides are faced with the difficult task of deciding what they need and who to hire. Nelson simplifies the process by screening the businesses she includes in Rochester Bride & Groom, and limiting the number listed. That way, she feels she provides quality service to users of the guide as well as advertisers.

The publication includes feature articles, checklists and helpful information. If readers can't find what they're looking for in the book or on the Web site, Nelson encourages them to call. Nelson, now well-established in the industry, participates in about a dozen bridal shows each year.

"We offer a whole marketing service," she says, "the publication, listings on our Web site, links to advertisers' Web sites and direct mail services. We know it works for the advertisers, and we know it works for the brides."

Like other self-employed business people, she logs long hours. In exchange, she has the flexibility to work at home – an important consideration for her. She and her husband, Darrin Nelson '88 (computer science), have a son, Ryan, 6, and a daughter, Rachael, 5.

"I grew up in a family of entrepreneurs," says the former Zina Cardinale, whose family owns C&C Imports and International Liquors and Wines in suburban Gates.

"I really enjoy the people I've met in this field, as well as working with the brides," she says. "Weddings are a happy part of life. It's nice to be part of that."

To learn more about the business, see www.RochesterBride.com.

Board Bulletin

RIT Alumni Network

Wanted: Time and Talent

Do you know someone who has what it takes to serve RIT as a member of the Alumni Network Board of Directors (ANBOD)? We are looking for alumni with a strong commitment to RIT to help lead our Alumni Network into the future!

Board membership means involvement in a variety of alumni activities:

- Alumni Weekend at Brick City Festival
- Regional chapter programming
- Volunteering in admissions, co-op and career service, community service, or fundraising programs

The board, which advises the Institute on all matters pertaining to RIT's more than 90,000 alumni, meets three times a year in conjunction with meetings of RIT's Board of Trustees. Led by elected officers, ANBOD is driven by the work of committees. Members serve terms of three years.

Nominations can be made by anyone associated with the RIT community (including alumni, self, faculty, staff, etc.) and may be submitted year-round. The deadline this year is Dec. 31 for terms beginning July 1, 2004.

If you would like to submit a nomination, please write to:

Alumni Highlights

Taking the high trail

Suggest that he “take a hike.” Andor “Steve” Czompo '88 (film/video) isn't likely to think twice about it. The avid outdoorsman completed a 2,173-mile trek of the Appalachian Trail in September.

Formerly a TV director for WOKR, Channel 13, in Rochester and Televideo (DaimlerChrysler) in Detroit, Czompo put his career on hold to fulfill this longtime dream. Despite rugged terrain, unusually heavy rainfall and a brief bout with Lyme disease, Czompo hiked from Springer Mountain, Ga., to Mt. Katahdin, Maine, in just six months.

“The beauty of the trail is its simplicity,” he says. “There is something enormously liberating about heading out into the wilderness, knowing that all you really need in this world can be carried on your back.”

Images from Czompo's adventure can be viewed online at <http://homepage.mac.com/sczompo/AT/>.

Steve Czompo '88 visits “The Priest” in Virginia along his six-month trek.

Glass action

Glass artist Eric Dahlberg '02 (MFA) is one of 149 recipients of 2003 fellowships from the New York Foundation for the Arts. The award helps Dahlberg continue his work and create an “artists and audiences” exchange project. The body of work that won the award was glass sculpture in the form of books.

A resident of Scottsville, N.Y., Dahlberg is head instructor and shop manager at More Fire Glass Studio in Rochester. His work “Old Friends” won two awards in the 59th Rochester-Finger Lakes Exhibition at the Memorial Art Galley in Rochester. Samples of his work can be viewed online at www.morefireglass.com/edimages/dahlberg.htm.

Book work

After moving to the Pennsylvania Dutch country five years ago, Pete Beckary '90 (business administration, finance) found inspiration for a book on the signs outside churches in the area. Lancaster County Signs of

Faith is a collection of these spiritual gems such as “When Trouble Grows, Your Character Shows,” “Come In For A Faith Lift,” and “Praise Loudly, Blame Softly.”

Beckary paired each message with a passage from the Bible and included photos of the rural landscape by Robert Leahy. The post-card-size volume is available at gift shops in the region, and also on the Internet through Amazon.com and Borders.com.

“RIT and the education I received is due credit for my success in self-publishing this book,” he says. The self-employed accountant and computer consultant adds that he already has enough material for two more books.

Career recognition

William Keyser Jr. '61, who taught furniture design for 34 years at RIT's School for American Crafts, received The Furniture Society's Award of Distinction at the organization's annual conference in Philadelphia this past summer. Keyser was honored as a teacher and furniture maker.

His furniture, sculptures and paintings are represented in residential, corporate, ecclesiastical and public art collections including the American Craft Museum.

William Keyser Jr. '61

Fire works

Humanity and nature in harmony form the main theme of the ceramic art of Douglas Kenney '89 (MFA). His designs incorporate American Abstract Expressionist ideas with earth and landscape. Since moving to Kailua, Hawaii, from Santa Barbara in 1999, Kenney's work has taken on a Hawaiian accent.

In 2002, the city of Honolulu purchased three of his large, high-fire, ceramic plates. Kenney, who has worked in clay for more than 23 years, also has works in the permanent collection at the Smithsonian Museum of American Art, Renwick Gallery and the Shigaraki Ceramic Park Museum in Japan, as well as many other public and private collections.

A ceramic plate by Douglas Kenney '89 is displayed in Oahu, Hawaii.

Feeding the troops

Rick Farran '03 (M.S., service management) is serving in Afghanistan as a food service sergeant with the Army Reserves. A reservist for more than 15 years (he joined at age 17), he manages and trains staff, supervises food production, purchases rations and is responsible for maintaining the equipment and dining facility. "It's the equivalent of a restaurant manager," explains Farran.

Farran, who grew up in Honeoye Falls, N.Y., gained plenty of civilian experience at the Woodstock Inn in New Hampshire and the Highlands of Pittsford. He expects to return from Afghanistan in the spring and will be seeking a corporate position in the restaurant field in either training or quality assurance.

Rick Farran '03

New waves

As a semi-retired advertising executive, Gordon "Mickey" Fagan '47 (printing) picked up a paint brush and answered the call of the sea. He's done well as a marine artist: His work has been included in shows in New York, Ohio and Florida, and he's won several awards.

Fagan is a professional member of the International Society of Marine Painters and had two paintings selected in the organization's juried exhibition this year. The ISMP has 150 members in the United States, Canada, Australia, England and Portugal.

Fagan, who lives in Hamburg, N.Y., serves as public relations director for the Centennial Art Center there, and is also a member of the Arts Guild Inc. of Old Forge, N.Y. Some of his work can be viewed online at www.geocities.com/marineartmickey/.

Mickey Fagan '47 pursues a passion for painting maritime subjects.

2002-2003 Report of Giving

Dear alumni, friends and colleagues,

It is always a pleasure to look over the year of giving to RIT and recognize the tremendous number of gifts and long-term commitments made in support of the university. It is especially gratifying this year – one of the most economically challenging in recent memory – that our alumni still came through for us.

We had more new alumni donors to RIT this year than we've had in the past several years; 1,621 joined the ranks; 55 percent increase over the previous year and a 100 percent increase over 2000-2001. We know that this was due in large part to the incentive offered by the RIT Board of Trustees in July 2002. With the promise to match gifts from new donors one-to-one and gifts from new, young donors two-to-one, many alums decided this was the year to make their first gift to support today's students.

This also affected what we call the "participation rate." Every college and university is measured by the degree to which its alumni give back. It is seen in many rankings of college and university standings as a measure of the perceived value of the alum's degree. While RIT has been lagging behind in alumni "participation," this year we saw the rate jump. Responses to our fiscal year 2003 alumni appeals increase by 1.5 percentage points.

All the donors and volunteers listed in the following pages represent the tremendous confidence that our alumni and friends have in RIT. Please review them and share in this pride.

Sincerely,

Laurel G. Price Jones

CAMPAIGN VOLUNTEERS

RIT is Powered by the Future! The Campaign for RIT continues to propel the Institute toward its goal to become the premier career-oriented, student-focused educational institution in the world. This past year was a very difficult economic climate in which to operate a comprehensive campaign, but RIT's alumni, friends, and corporate and foundation donors all continued to generously support our mission and the Powered by the Future campaign. RIT ended its 2003 fiscal year with more than $36 million in gifts and pledges, bringing the Campaign-to-date total to over $178 million to start out the new academic year. We look forward to working with each of you over the next two and a half years as we help RIT reach its Powered by the Future goal of $300 million!

The Campaign for RIT can only succeed through the efforts of our dedicated volunteers. The Campaign has been furthered and enhanced by the participation of over 200 alumni, faculty, staff, students, parents, and other friends from around the country who give generously of their time and resources to make this campaign, and ultimately RIT, successful.

These individuals have donated time and a wide variety of skills and talents to contact existing friends of RIT, reach out to new prospects, and communicate the message that RIT is 'Powered by the Future'. Their efforts will directly affect countless people, as they help to acquire the funds to support this university, its students, and its work through the future.

Liberty Hill Society

The Liberty Hill Society, established in 2002 during RIT's Campaign, "Powered by the Future," recognizes RIT's founders and most outstanding lifetime contributors.

Liberty Hill, built in 1830 by Ansel and Isabella Hanks, is a cobblestone house on 21 acres in the town of Henrietta. Purchased in 1919 by former Kodak president Frank W. Lovejoy, Sr., Liberty Hill Farm was donated to the Institute during RIT's 150th Anniversary Campaign by Mr. Lovejoy's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lovejoy, Jr. RIT presidents and their families have resided at Liberty Hill since 1979 – proudly sharing this wonderful old family home as they entertain guests from RIT, the community and abroad.

Building on the foundation of giving established by generous families such as the Lovejoys, the donors recognized through the Liberty Hill Society have helped RIT expand and thrive through their many gifts to buildings, the arts, scholarships, unrestricted support, and other educational endeavors. We thank these very important members of the RIT family for helping RIT and its students realize their potential.

The Acorns and the Oak

Robert J. Brinkman and Eleanor Brinkman Hawthorne

The Brinkman children are continuing the legacy of support for RIT established by their father, Earl W. Brinkman. As trustees of the Earl and Hildagunda Family Foundation, Robert Brinkman and his sister, Eleanor Brinkman Hawthorne, have secured a generous gift to the Kate Gleason College of Engineering to fund the relocation and expansion of The Earl W. Brinkman Machine Tool Laboratory that honors their father.

Earl Brinkman was a mechanical genius and inventor. As Chief Engineer and President of Davenport Machine in Rochester, he was instrumental in the growth and success of the company as well as the inventor of many of its unique machine tool products. Robert Brinkman acquired the assets of the former Davenport in March of 2003, and his leadership is credited with its recent turnaround to financial stability.

Both father and son have also been driving forces in RIT's substantial support from the Davenport-Hatch Foundation. Funds received have supported NTID, the Student Life Center, the Interfaith Chapel, the College of Business, and the Gordon Field House.

Nathaniel Rochester Society

Named for the founder of the city of Rochester and first president of the Rochester Athenaeum, the forerunner of RIT, the Nathaniel Rochester Society recognizes those who generously support the university each year. NRS includes more than 1,200 alumni, parents, friends, faculty, and staff in 40 states and ten foreign countries, whose generous philanthropy plays a vital role in the growth of annual support of RIT's mission.

The Society offers a variety of opportunities for members to become actively involved in the life of RIT through special events and volunteer leadership committees. Additionally, members enjoy special ticket prices and/or reserved seating for some of RIT's unique programs offered during the year – the Performing Artist Concerts, the Horton Speaker Series, and other great activities— just to name a few.

Annual donors of $500 or more within the fiscal year are recognized as members of the Society in the year their commitment is made. Outright gifts, matching gifts, and gifts-in-kind are counted in determining NRS gift club levels. Annual donors under the age of 40, "Young Ambassadors", are eligible to join NRS at $250, half of the traditional membership amount.

Eisenhart Name Means Excellence

Virginia and Richard Eisenhart

For more than 75 years, the Eisenhart name has been linked with excellence – in teaching, in scholarship, and in philanthropy. The legacy began with the late M. Herbert Eisenhart, president and board chairman of Bausch & Lomb, who was an RIT trustee for more than 50 years. Eisenhart and his wife, Elsa, were honored with the creation of the Eisenhart Award for Outstanding Teaching in 1965, which recognizes excellence in RIT faculty.

Richard and Virginia Eisenhart support the Nathaniel Rochester Society scholarships, the Eisenhart Memorial Scholarship, and several other funds focused on student achievement. Additionally, they have created the Richard & Virginia Eisenhart Provost Award for Excellence in Teaching. Established in 1998, this endowed fund provides annual awards to honor the best new faculty members who have taught at RIT less than three years.

Like his father before him, Dick Eisenhart is a long time member of RIT's board of trustees, and served as chairman. He and his wife, Ginnie, are President's Circle members of the Nathaniel Rochester Society, and were the 1985 recipients of the NRS Award. They are also members of the Ellingson Society, and have supported the RIT Athenaeum and a host of other facilities and programs at the Institute.

Through their faithful support of RIT, the Eisenharts continue a tradition that will impact RIT for generations to come.

Alumni and Reunion Giving

Our sincere gratitude to the thousands of alumni who made a gift in 2002-2003, and especially to the 1,621 new alumni donors who made their first gift to the Institute last year. Thanks to your help, we provided student scholarships, equipment, faculty training and development, renovations to living and learning environments and responded to many other pressing needs across the campus. Alumni participation (the number of alumni making an annual gift to RIT) increased from 10% to 11%. Overall alumni giving was nearly $1.2 million and $580,726 of that came from gifts to the Annual Fund. The number of new alumni donors grew by 55% and giving from young alumni (those graduating in the past decade) increased 35%.

Reunion Giving accounted for a large part of this success. Sixty-seven volunteers helped launch Reunion Giving 2003 and will continue working through December in support of this initiative. The class years ending in 3 and 8 have been building their Reunion Class Gift with a steady focus on giving participation – the number of classmates in each reunion class who make a gift. As we went to press, this volunteer effort has raised $314,749 and achieved a 13% participation rate.

Volunteers continue to seek support for the Reunion Class Gift. Gifts received now through December 31, 2003 will be added to the total. Volunteer calling also resulted in a record high turnout for Alumni Weekend at Brick City Festival.

Alumni participation helps raise RIT's overall national ranking, and every gift helps the Annual Fund build a bigger and better RIT. We'd like to thank all our alumni donors for their continued support, with special thanks to the Reunion 2003 Giving Chair, Keith Wolling '75, and all of our alumni volunteers across campus and around the world. With your continued support, there's no limit to what RIT can become!

Note: All Annual Fund and Reunion Class Gifts count in the Powered by the Future Campaign. To make a gift, visit us at www.rit.edu/makeagift or call 1-800-477-0376.

Keith Wolling

Keith Wolling

For the past three years, Keith Wolling '75, Vice President and General Manager of the Sheraton World Resort Hotel in Orlando, Florida, has offered five nights and six days at this luxury hotel as part of our reunion giving program. Thanks to this annual sweepstakes drawing, alumni have vacationed in sunny Florida and enjoyed accommodations next to SeaWorld and Walt Disney World Theme Parks. The Reunion Classes of the 4s and 9s will soon receive invitations to participate in the Reunion 2004 Sweepstakes drawing. For more information, please contact Carol George at 585-475-7624 or 800-477-0376

Instilling an Entrepreneurial Spirit

Elliott Derman

Making a difference

How does RIT instill entrepreneurial spirit in our students? Elliott Derman '69 posed this question to President Simone in the spring of 2002.

Mr. Derman knows a thing or two about this spirit. He and his brother built GTS Graphics, a Los Angeles textbook printing firm, into a successful company employing 200 people. But Derman feels that having an entrepreneurial attitude is essential whether individuals run their own businesses or work for others.

Derman is now retired, and he and his wife, Elizabeth, are traveling and playing golf. Still, his desire to see this essential spirit grow in RIT students has driven him and his former company to join together to create the GTS-Elliott Derman Scholarship. The fund will award $1,000 annually to a student in the School of Print Media. Derman intends to continue building this scholarship to increase its reach to future entrepreneurs.

Alumni participation is so important to RIT that our Trustees issued a matching gift challenge to Raise Our Alumni Responses in 2002-2003. By issuing this challenge – backed by $300,000 of their own dollars – the Trustees (joined by several members of the RIT Alumni Network and RIT administration who also wanted to show their support) successfully helped raise alumni participation last year. More than 3,100 new and former alumni donors participated in the Challenge, contributing a total of $257,487. Recent graduates' gifts were matched 2:1 to further encourage their participation. Thanks to the ROAR Challenge we were able to:

- Increase the number of new alumni donors by 55%
- Increase giving from young alumni by 35%
- Increase total alumni donors by 18%
- Increase participation from 10% to around 11%

RIT is deeply grateful to our challengers and to the alumni donors for taking part in this exciting initiative.

Matching Gifts Double or Triple Your Support!

If you or your spouse work for a matching gift company, you can DOUBLE or TRIPLE the value of your gift! Many companies provide a "Matching Gift Program" as an employee benefit – an important way you can help direct a portion of your company's earnings earmarked for charitable contributions. These programs vary as to the amount matched, but generally they offer a dollar-for-dollar match when an employee makes a personal gift to an eligible organization such as RIT. We are especially grateful to those individuals and their companies participating in matching gift programs last year. Thanks to you, RIT received nearly 675 matching gifts, representing $114,507 in enhanced support for more than 60 different RIT funds and programs. To find out if your company offers a matching gift program, search our online matching gift clearing house, www.rit.edu/matchmygift, or check with your human resources or matching gift department to find out how your company handles matching gifts. (When we receive a matching gift from your company, you receive credit for the total of your gift and the match received from your employer.)

Unrestricted Giving

One of the best ways to help RIT students is by making an unrestricted gift. These funds are critical to the university, enabling us to seize once-in-a-lifetime opportunities for growth and development when they arise. They give us the flexibility to allocate resources to the area of greatest need and to advance projects with strong potential. Many thanks to the alumni, parents and other friends who gave more than 3,600 unrestricted gifts totaling over $1.46 million last year. Your support truly helped to make a difference for every RIT student.

Giving Online – It's so easy!

More and more donors are discovering the convenience of making their gift or pledge payment electronically through RIT's secure website. Last year, online giving to RIT increased by 52% to more than 200 gifts. The generosity of our online donors is sincerely appreciated and makes an immediate impact on RIT and its students. Giving online saves time and resources – leaving more resources for our students. To make an online gift, or learn more about online giving, visit www.rit.edu/makeagift. Simply choose the gift designation that best matches your interest and fill out the appropriate form. You will receive an immediate confirmation of your contribution and an official gift receipt will be mailed to you within a few days.

A Woman's Touch

A role model for future women in technology

Julianne Klie

Less than 20 percent of new computer science graduates are women. Fewer still are enrolled in high school level programming and advanced computing classes. When women do enter university level computing programs, they face significantly greater challenges than their male counterparts and often leave the programs before they graduate. Women in computing are rare, but Julianne Klie '89 is working to change that. She sees RIT and the B. Thomas Golisano College of Computing and Information Sciences as a partner in that effort.

Juli is president and CEO of Veritor Executive Advisors. She is a co-founder of Digital Rochester, and was named the 2002 Greater Rochester IT Woman of the Year. She brings her considerable IT and industry knowledge to the GCCIS Computer Science Industry Advisory Board. She has also committed substantial time to serving as the Golisano College committee chair for The Campaign for RIT.

"Computing covers such a broad spectrum," says Juli. "I've always felt that RIT had very strong computing programs, but seeing the effort they've undertaken to create the computing college – bringing all the relevant programs under one roof and recruiting and retaining top faculty and staff with the vision to move this into the future – is so exciting. The key ingredients are all in place. We just need to be sure that the dollars are there to allow the college to execute the vision."

RIT's Automatic Contribution Transfer Program Makes Giving Easy

Many people have already discovered the convenience of using electronic funds transfers (EFT) to handle their regular monthly banking transactions. This secure and easy automated process means no more worries about late payments or checks lost in the mail. With RIT's new ACT program, your gift will automatically be transferred from your savings or checking account to the area of RIT you wish to support. In addition to its safety and ease, ACT provides the opportunity to make a significant gift in budget-friendly installments. For more information or to access our online ACT form, visit www.rit.edu/actnow, or call us at 1-800-477-0376 to have the form sent to you.

Eyes to the Sky, Heart at RIT

Robert Scharf

Robert Scharf

For most people, viewing a Space Shuttle launch is an awe-inspiring event. For Robert Scharf, Imaging Science '94, it's just another day at work. Scharf works for Lockheed Martin Space Operations in the Image Science and Analysis Group at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston. His group pours over photos of every shuttle mission looking for anything abnormal.

Scharf's role is to talk to shuttle crews and others at NASA to determine what imaging information will help them.

Scharf's support of RIT student scholarships is driven by his personal experience. When he was an RIT student, Scharf received the Ezra Randall Andrews Scholarship funded by the Gosnell family. In turn, after receiving his BS, Scharf established the Elizabeth Ellen Locke Memorial Scholarship in honor of his godmother. "I realized what a difference this can make, and I was glad to be able to help others in this way."

The scholarship was established just six years after Scharf graduated from RIT. Making a gift of this magnitude is not often easy for our new alumni, but Scharf's commitment to helping the students who followed him, and his desire to honor his godmother inspired him to make the scholarship a reality.

Family Now, RIT Tomorrow

By planning your estate, you can take care of your family today and RIT tomorrow. RIT offers many giving opportunities that generate a life income and provide for RIT at the same time. You may also receive a charitable tax deduction.

A Bequest made through your will provides for RIT after your death. It is easy to arrange and can be all or part of your estate. It can be in the form of property or cash.

A Charitable Gift Annuity is a simple agreement that provides RIT with a gift of cash and/or marketable securities in exchange for a life income paid to you and/or others. You receive a charitable deduction. Upon your death, RIT applies the fund toward the college or program you designate.

A Charitable Remainder Trust provides a fixed or variable income stream for life. The trust can be funded with real estate, cash, securities, or a fully paid-up life insurance policies. You can also create a trust through your will to provide for family members. For more information about including RIT in your estate plans, please call Bette Foster at 585-475-6566, or toll-free at 1-866-237-4008.

Bruce James, RIT trustee and the official U.S. printer, was on campus for Brick City Festival and Alumni Weekend and spent time with RIT scholars.

RIT Parents

As RIT parents - of current students or alumni - you know the unique opportunities this Institute offers your children for their educational and personal development. In addition to providing top-rated academic programs and talented faculty and staff, RIT has a sound educational philosophy that encourages learning "beyond the bricks," helping students develop leadership skills and learn firsthand the value of community involvement. Many years ago, RIT parents established the Tiger Spirit Fund to provide a pool of funding resources that could be used to enhance learning as well as the quality of life on campus. Last year more than 1,000 parents made a gift to the Tiger Spirit

Fund, giving a total of $48,381. While the Tiger Spirit Fund is the focus of parent giving, RIT parents also generously supported many other funds and programs across the campus, including the Athletic Association, student scholarships, the Gordon Field House and Activities Center and their RIT students' academic program. More than 1,600 parents supported the Institute last year, giving over $215,000. This is a wonderful vote of confidence in RIT and in the education your students are receiving. Thank you to all our parent donors for making a significant difference in the lives of RIT students.

A Parent's Perogative

Stephanie and Jay Levine

The Levine family bleeds orange and brown. Jay '76 and Stephanie '75 are both alumni of RIT's College of Business accounting program, met on campus and married before they graduated. Their son, Philip, graduated last May with a BS degree in Management Information Systems, and Philip's wife, Melanie, a 2001 Psychology alumna, is currently a graduate student.

Jay, a partner at Ernst & Young in Dallas, attributes much of his career success to his RIT education. "Every year of my professional career has brought new responsibilities from auditing, to tax, to sales," says Levine. He believes he can point to things he uses on a daily basis that he learned 27 years ago at RIT.

Today, Jay and Stephanie both demonstrate their commitment to RIT through financial support of the College of Business and through their volunteer efforts as RIT parents. They attend many regional alumni events, are active volunteers on The Campaign for RIT Parents' Committee, and recently created the Jay and Stephanie Levine Endowed Scholarship in Accounting.

Gifts-in-Kind

RIT's corporate partners and friends have been highly supportive through gifts-in-kind. Gifts-in-kind received from corporations and other private donors include tangible goods such as equipment, supplies, valued artwork, and software. These gifts bring our donors beneficial tax advantages and personal satisfaction as their property will be put to good use, while also assisting RIT. As the university continues to grow, our need for the latest equipment and technology is more important than ever. RIT looks forward to working with corporations and individuals in the future to identify opportunities for support through gifts-in-kind.

RIT Friends

As a friend of RIT, you are well aware of the remarkable contributions RIT students and faculty make in a variety of disciplines. RIT maintains its ranking and research edge due in part to your gifts of support. Last year more than 700 friends contributed over $1.5 million to support student scholarships, laboratory equipment, the library, and renovations to living and learning environments as well as other needs. Our heartfelt thanks to our valued friends for playing a critical role in the success of RIT and its students.

RIT Faculty and Staff Set the Pace

When members of the campus community pull together great things can happen! As co-chairs of the Campus Committee for the Powered by the Future Campaign, we experienced firsthand the commitment, teamwork and spirit of our colleagues from all areas across the campus. We are proud of the way so many faculty and staff have stepped up to the plate in this first year of the Campus Campaign. Nearly 500 faculty and staff committed a total of $231,412 to a variety of Campaign priorities, including academic programs, student scholarships, the Gordon Field House and Activities Center, as well as RIT's Fund for the Future. This progress would not have been possible without the help of the 29-member Campus Campaign Committee, representing each academic and administrative RIT division.

We feel privileged to work with this dedicated corps of volunteer ambassadors and wish to express our deepest appreciation to them for their leadership, dedication and hard work.

Support from within our own RIT family is especially significant. On behalf of the Campus Committee, our sincere thanks to the faculty and staff who showed their support in such a meaningful way.

Giving RIT a Hand or Two

Dave McCloskey

The man behind the fluent fingers of the NTID Interpreting Services is committed to RIT. McCloskey is an active volunteer for many campus organizations, including the Campus Committee for The Campaign for RIT. He has also given generously to RIT during his years of service, extending the spirit of support that is prevalent in the NTID community to the entire Institute.

Most everyone at RIT remembers seeing Dave McCloskey interpreting for deaf and hard-of-hearing people. He's hard to forget – a man of stature with a white beard and long hair, he's often seen playing Santa Claus at events around campus. McCloskey left the business world after 30 years to pursue his second career and passion. He has interpreted for Kenny Rogers and Natalie Cole, and has also provided this vital communication link during heart operations, births, funerals and murder trials.

Athletics

For more than eight decades, RIT's intercollegiate athletics program has been a source of pride for the RIT campus and the community of Rochester. With 24 sports and more than 500 athletes, the program offers an array of competitive opportunities for men and women. Approximately 10 percent of participants are hearing-impaired students from the National Technical Institute for the Deaf, one of RIT's eight colleges.

In this past season, RIT has received numerous athletic honors and achievements such as:

- Men's basketball ECAC Championship
- Two second place finishes: Pat North (Wrestling) and Molly Urquhart (Track and Field) in NCAA championships
- 70 All-Conference Honorees
- Two All Americans

RIT's student athletes are also tremendously successful in the classroom with an overall RIT athletic grade point average in 2002-03 of 3.13, the highest GPA recorded in RIT history. Congratulations to our athletes on a great year, and thank YOU for your continued support in our pursuit of excellence and Tiger Athletics!

We also want to recognize the Institute's commitment to athletics through its addition of a new artificial lighted turf field, the new bleachers and press box on the stadium field, and the $25 million Gordon Field House and Activities Center. We are especially grateful this year to all who made gifts toward the construction of the Gordon Field House and Activities Center. This facility will support the athletic and recreational needs of all RIT students.

It's How You Play the Game

Larry and Cindy Lovejoy

Larry Lovejoy learned a lot about how to live a purposeful life from his father, Dr. Frank Lovejoy Jr., a Rochester physician, professor and philanthropist, Frank and his wife, Lynne are best known at RIT for their donation of Liberty Hill, the family's farm and 24 surrounding acres on Lehigh Station Road. The property is now home to RIT President and Mrs. Albert J. Simone and a favored site for receptions, dinners and picnics. Dr. Lovejoy was also a supporter of NTID. As he grew older, his gradual hearing loss prompted researchers at University of Rochester and RIT to begin collaborative work on an automated speech recognition device that, when perfected, will show a printout of spoken words on a portable unit. Lynne Lovejoy established The Dr. Frank W. Lovejoy, Jr. Endowment for Deafness Research in 1998 to fund this work.

Larry Lovejoy '70 and his wife, Cindy, continue the family's support of the Institute, but in other arenas – those made of ice and turf, to be specific. The younger Lovejoy was a member of the RIT Men's Lacrosse Team, and has given generously to RIT Athletics. He has also given of his time, as a Captain of the Community Campaign, a committee member for the Access to the Future Campaign and now as chair of the Athletics Committee for The Campaign for RIT. Most recently, the Lovejoys have joined other RIT Athletics alumni in helping to raise funds for the new artificial turf field for soccer, lacrosse, softball and other intercollegiate and intramural sports.

National Technical Institute for the Deaf

Generous donors make a significant impact on the lives of the deaf and hard-of-hearing students who attend the National Technical Institute for the Deaf. Whether their gifts are for endowed scholarships, new programming, research, special projects, top-notch faculty, capital projects, or high-tech classroom equipment, they all help NTID grow and serve our students and their changing needs. We thank all our donors – the alumni, parents, friends, faculty and staff, corporations, organizations, and foundations who believe in and support the important work of this unique institution.

The Unlimited Support Plan

Sprint Goes the Distance

Sprint has an outstanding history of support for National Technical Institute for the Deaf – through the Sprint Foundation, Sprint Relay, and corporate gifts.

Special Thanks to Sprint Relay for their generous sponsorship of NTID's 35th Anniversary Alumni Reunion, held July 10-12, 2003, at RIT. Sprint Relay Team representatives Arthur Moore (seated), and Mark Tauscher, '91, '95, (standing), demonstrate the latest technology for videoconferencing over the Internet without need for a computer, during a workshop held for reunion guests in NTID's Robert F. Panara Theater.

graduates. Hundreds of RIT students and alumni have joined the company in positions around the country. Sprint employment supports both NTID students and those in the Telecommunications Engineering Technology program in the College of Applied Science and Technology.

Most recently, Sprint Relay served as the major underwriter of NTID's 35th Anniversary Alumni Reunion. In this photo, representatives of Sprint Relay are leading a workshop at the reunion. Sprint funded the purchase of computers and videoconferencing equipment to help establish the NTID Learning Center. In particular, the videoconferencing equipment enabled the establishment of the Sprint Visual Communications Center within the NTID Learning Center, a state-of-the-art facility that video-links NTID to the world. Students use this resource to take part in distance learning programs, conduct co-op and job interviews, and work cooperatively with students at other educational institutions.

Sprint generously supports students through the Sprint Endowed Scholarship Fund at NTID, and Sprint is a vital employment link for RIT/NTID co-op students and

The Ellingson Society

Members of the Ellingson Society combine generosity and foresight to ensure a strong future for RIT and its students. We honor and recognize individuals who have made planned or deferred gifts to RIT. The Society includes alumni, parents, faculty, friends and staff who have:

- Named RIT as a beneficiary of a bequest, a life insurance policy or a retirement plan.
- Funded a life-income gift such as a charitable gift annuity, a charitable remainder trust, a charitable lead trust, or donated a home, other real estate or partial interest in a business or investment to RIT.

Estate Gifts

The donors listed below made provisions for RIT in their estates. We appreciate deeply the commitment these individuals have shown by sharing their estates with RIT to enhance our mission of education. (The below estate gifts were received in the 2002-2003 fiscal year.)

Food for the Soul

A healthy diet of giving is an important part of a long life. Lois Martin '36, can attest to that. Miss Martin just celebrated her 90th birthday, and created the Lois G. Martin Endowed Scholarship, through charitable gift annuities. The scholarship benefits students of the School of

Lois Martin

Hospitality Management Services, a focus that is near and dear to the soul of this retired hospital dietician.

Miss Martin, a Rochester native and alumna of John Marshall High School, graduated from RIT's Food Administration Program on the downtown campus, and became the Director of the Dietary Department of the Northern Westchester Hospital in Mt. Kisco, NY. She retired to Naples, FL, with her late sister, Helen, but has remained connected to the hospitality programs at RIT by attending regional luncheons and meetings. Her generous contributions to the Institute have placed her firmly in the ranks of our outstanding Ellingson Society members.

Class Gift 2003 – The Start of a New Tradition

For the first time, graduating students from all eight RIT colleges had the opportunity to participate in a Class Gift Program in honor of their achievement. Overall, nearly $3,000 was raised and the funds went toward scholarships for their colleges and departments, benefiting friends and fellow students who will follow in their footsteps. Additionally, all student gifts of $5 or more were matched two-to-one through a special matching gift challenge. Many thanks to all who supported last year's Class Gift, especially to our newest alumni! Your participation is significant. It illustrates your pride in RIT and your commitment to sustaining its values and aspirations.

Margaret's House

Margaret's House is a very special place at RIT. This vital facility provides high-quality, reliable daycare in a nurturing environment for the families of students, alumni, faculty and staff, as well as families from the surrounding community. In its fifth year as a donor choice option, Margaret's House benefited from the generosity of more than 59 individuals who contributed $12,429.33 through the United Way, in addition to gifts from

Athenaeum

At The RIT Athenaeum, our 400 members understand the importance of staying vital. Lifelong learning, close relationships, social programs and challenging activities for people over 50 provide a comfortable transition into retirement and a great way to stay mentally and socially fit. Vitality is just as important for The Athenaeum, itself. The organization is always looking for ways to bring more to the lives of its hundreds of members through development of new programs and enhanced facilities. The Athenaeum endowment, operating and special projects funds help The Athenaeum stay a fun, interesting, and comfortable place for its members. Congratulations to the Athenaeum on 17 years of success.

Corporations, Foundations and Organizations

Many of America's leading corporations, foundations and organizations provided major support to RIT through gifts and pledges this year. Whether that support was in the form of much needed cash or equipment, foundation and corporate support continues to keep RIT at the forefront of technological career-oriented education. Among the major initiatives supported were the addition to the Kate Gleason College of Engineering, Project Lead The Way, PEN-International, the Helen Bader Scholarship Program, and the Gordon Field House and Activities Center. Leading grants and pledges were awarded by the Gleason Foundation, Eastman Kodak Company, Project Lead The Way, The Nippon Foundation, Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, Davenport-Hatch Foundation, Ford Foundation, GE Foundation, and S Squared Technologies. Commitments from these important supporters of RIT total nearly $20 million. We graciously thank our corporate and foundation donors for their continued support.

Nippon Foundation

2003 marked the third consecutive year of major support from The Nippon Foundation of Japan for NTID's Postsecondary Education Network (PEN) International. Since 2001, Nippon has contributed nearly $3.3 million to this project aimed at enhancing university-level education for deaf and hard-of-hearing individuals—particularly those in the Pacific Rim. Today, led by NTID professor James J. DeCaro, PEN-International is introducing innovative curricular and technological strategies to selected institutions in Russia, China, the Philippines and Japan. In 2003, NTID was privileged to host Yohei Sasakawa, president of The Nippon Foundation, as keynote speaker for the PEN-International Technological Symposium at NTID. In addition to his address, highlights of his visit included a by PEN-International dinner at Liberty Hill, a performance of the Taiko drummers, dedication of The Nippon Foundation Training Room at NTID, and a barbeque at the home of Robert R. Davila, vice president for NTID.

The Nippon Foundation has been a supporter of RIT for over a decade. Its first gift of $1 million in 1993, and repeated the following year, established and endowed the Ryoichi Sasakawa Scholarship Fund to assist international students who could not otherwise afford to attend NTID. Since then, 19 students have benefited. RIT is most grateful for The Nippon Foundation's ongoing commitment to the education of deaf and hard-of-hearing students, both at NTID and around the world.

Just Good Business

Supporting RIT makes good business sense – just ask the management of Redcom Laboratories in Victor, NY. A global design and manufacturing company specializing in digital telecommunications systems, this customer-driven company maintains diversified product lines and serves a balance of markets to ensure that business, economic, and technological changes don't negatively impact their financial strength. As an employer of both co-op students and many RIT graduates, Redcom finds many advantages to partnering with RIT through the Telecommunications Engineering Technology program, the MBA program, and the Kate Gleason College of Engineering. Redcom has provided support to the Institute through gifts of equipment and the creation of a Redcom Scholarship.

Klaus and Brigitte
 Gueldenpfennig of Redcom Laboratories

Top-down buy-in for this support is a key factor in the success of the Redcom/RIT relationship. President Klaus Gueldenpfennig '74, '77, and Vice President Brigitte Gueldenpfennig '81, are alumni of RIT's MBA program. Klaus serves on the Board of Trustees, and advisory boards for CAST programs and Brigitte serves on the Council of the College of Business. Both Klaus and Brigitte are personal supporters of the College of Business, the Kate Gleason College of Engineering, and the Nathaniel Rochester Society. "The quality and pace of the education we received at RIT provided the foundation we needed to build our own technology business," say the Gueldenpfennigs. "For us, being involved in The Campaign for RIT is 'payback time.'"

Scholarships 2002-2003

Seeking the Greatest Return on Investment - Successful Students

With approximately 70 percent of RIT's 15,000 undergraduate and graduate students requiring some form of financial aid, scholarships are very important to student success. The freshman class of 2003 will face tuition costs of $21,027 plus fees, room, board, and books; fulltime graduate student tuition costs will rise to $22,965. RIT remains competitive and offers a lower percentage tuition increase than most of its peer universities this year. Still, a college education is a difficult goal for many to reach. Scholarship dollars help students offset the high costs of education and reduce their work time so they can afford to be better students. Students who work fulltime to support their education often struggle to keep up academically and miss out on what the college experience has to offer - participating in clubs, attending professional presentations, being in leadership programs, and making contacts to further their education and careers. A special thank you to the 455 donors who contributed more than $2,608,578 - helping our RIT students as they reach for the stars.

Endowed Professorships

The donor of an endowed professorship or chair at RIT becomes part of an academic tradition that began nearly 500 years ago. In the early years of universities, a chair was a rare and highly coveted piece of furniture. Commoners sat on stools or benches, while only the high nobility possessed chairs. When a university faculty member was awarded the distinguished title of Professor, he or she received an actual chair as a symbol of his or her new status. Today, distinguished professorships define the quality of the university, and an endowed chair or professorship is the highest academic honor bestowed upon a distinguished faculty member who has achieved renown in his or her profession.

While endowed professorships are, in a sense, built on the past, their implicit goal is to influence the future. The donor of an endowed professorship provides RIT with the financial resources to attract and retain an outstanding scholar and touch the lives of thousands of grateful students. And while an endowed professorship signifies exceptional achievement in an academic discipline, it supports a future that holds an even greater promise of success in teaching, research, and service.
