2010 Breeder Directory

Behind the Directory

This Breeders Directory, provided by the members of the National Swine Registry, is given to you in hopes that it will help you locate sources of Duroc, Hampshire, Yorkshire and Landrace breeding stock. It lists our members alphabetically by state, and includes their address and phone number. The number following the breeder's phone number is the number of litters recorded in 2009, and will give you an indication of the selection available in each breed.

If you are involved with commercial hog production, or simply are looking for the very best sources for club pigs, you have a need for our purebred genetics.

The four breeds represented in this directory have accumulated the largest genetic data bank available to the swine industry. In addition, we offer you a personal relationship with the breeder who raised the hogs, and a product that is backed by more than 100 years of documented ancestry through a pedigree.

That pedigree has increased in value in recent years, as it is now a true performance pedigree – with genetic predictions based on all the relative data accumulated through our STAGES program. EPDs (Expected Progeny Differences) are calculated for the five most economically significant traits – number born alive, 21-day litter weight, days to 250 pounds, pounds of lean and backfat, in addition to new muscle quality traits.

Each of our four breeds make a significant contribution to the overall profitability of the swine industry. The Duroc breed continues to set the pace for both growth rate and muscle quality, and are in great demand today as our industry begins to concentrate on improving muscle quality.

Hampshires continue to lead the industry in leanness and muscle, and have increased lean value premiums on thousands of operations from coast to coast.

Yorkshires have further solidified their role as the “Mother Breed,” and the Landrace breed has earned their reputation as “America’s Sowherd.” As a result of continued genetic selection for reproductive efficiencies and durability, these two maternal breeds are the undisputed leaders in sow productivity.

In July 1994, these great breeds joined forces under the partnership of the National Swine Registry. Located in West Lafayette, Ind., we are now capable of meeting all your genetic needs, including free genetic consultation through our Department of Genetic and Technical Services.

Contact one of our staff members for assistance in locating your next seedstock source, or feel free to call our members directly.

Purebred breeders are independent family farmers just like you. They understand your need for healthy, performance-proven seedstock.

Buy your hogs from producers who raise them for a living – producers who personally stand behind their product!
