Winter Rose
Catalogue

SPRING PARK
NURSERY

Hello gardening friends,

Welcome to our 2022 Winter Rose Catalogue for dormant bare rooted plants.

Once again, we welcome all our new customers reading this catalogue for the first time, whether newly minted locals, not-so-new locals who have discovered us, or our many friends from all around the country. No matter how you discovered our nursery, welcome!

We've all been through a lot over the last couple of years, some more so than others. Thank you all for doing your best, being kind to one another, and looking out for others. Our country is built on mateship, and it has been amazing to see our society pull (mostly) together and fight this thing. New challenges notwithstanding, we're finally getting back to something approximating normal, and that should truly be celebrated.

Gardening has proven to be a good refuge from the world's problems, a place to just be safe, happy, and make our little patch of the globe greener. If you have taken up gardening recently, we're very excited for you. There's so much to explore, and a lot of fun to be had in doing so. We are always happy to help gardeners on this journey, in any way we can.

We have an exciting range of newly released roses this year and are keen for you all to see what they can do. Of particular note are 'New Papa Meilland', 'Sweet Honey', and 'Dame Judi Dench'. Aside from new releases, we also have some new-to-us varieties this season, including 'The Sister's Rose' and 'Fruity Perfuma'.

We would like to thank all our valued customers for all your support over the year, and we hope that you enjoy this latest season's winter rose catalogue.

Keep well, and happy gardening!
Chris, Brenton, Ken, and Dot Rae

Rose Cultural Notes

Situation

Roses grow best in a sunny, well-drained position, needing at least 5 hours of sunshine a day to perform their best. They can also be grown very well when shaded for part of the day, but they will have fewer blooms. If the plant remains shaded and wet for long periods it will be more susceptible to fungal diseases. The planting location should have plenty of air movement to help prevent mildew, but some shelter from strong wind is preferred.

Soil

Roses prefer to be grown in a medium to heavy loam about 35 cm deep with a good clay subsoil. Clay soils can be improved by adding lots of organic matter such as well rotted manure. Gypsum can also be added to break up the clay before planting. Plants will grow in any type of soil but the more sandy the soil, the less water and nutrients will be retained and should be replaced regularly. Organic type fertilisers work best in a sandy soil situation.

Step 1: Soak your rose in Seasoil

Step 2: Select your planting site

Step 3: Dig your hole with mound in the middle and rose graft above the soil surface

Step 4: Apply slow release fertiliser and rock dust to surrounding soil

Step 5: Back fill soil
Step 6: Water in well

Planting Bare Rooted Roses

After purchasing your roses you should aim to plant them as soon as possible. If you cannot plant them immediately, take care not to let the roots dry out. This is very important as if they become dry, the plants vigour and growth may be set back – or in the worst case die. Soaking in a bucket of water and a cap full of Seasoil added for a few hours before planting is also a good idea, this just helps the plant get the best start.

Dig a hole large enough to accommodate the roots of the plant comfortably and the bud union (graft) is just above the ground level. Place a mound of soil in the middle of the hole and spread the roots out over the mound. Place a light coverage of soil over the roots. At this stage, we recommend that for each rose one dessert spoon full of Osmocote (8 to 9 month slow release fertiliser) be added. A good handful of Blood 'N' Bone can also be added to the remaining soil that is to be back filled into the hole. Tread the soil reasonably firmly, leaving a basin around the rose to help retain water, then water in thoroughly. If you like you can add Seasoil or use the bucket of soaking water.

Standard roses are planted in the same way but with a stake placed in the centre of the hole for support first. Weeping roses are grown with a pole and a rose ring for extra support.

Rock dust is a natural fertiliser product that can be added to your soil while planting to help with soil improvement.

Do not add other manure that is high in nitrogen (N), such as Dynamic Lifter, as this can burn the roots.

Planting Potted Roses

Potted roses can be purchased and planted at any time throughout the year. It is important to avoid disturbing the roots when removing the plant from the pot, as this can cause a severe setback to the plant. Dig a hole, twice the size of the pot so that the bud union is 50mm above the soil surface. Add some slow release fertiliser to the soil, then place the rose in the hole and fill with soil. Water in well and finish off with a layer of mulch.

Step 1: Select your site for your potted rose to be planted

Step 2: Dig hole twice as large as the pot

Step 3: Apply fertiliser to soil

Step 4: Place rose in the hole, backfill and water in well.

Step 5: Mulch your newly planted rose.

Feeding

Roses are voracious feeders and for the best growth it is recommended that they be fed every 6-8 weeks during the growing season. Vary the types of fertilisers at each application such as Blood and Bone, Organic Rose Foods, Liquid Flower and Fruit, or a Complete Rose Food, etc. In the spring we recommend that a top dressing of a complete fertiliser be worked into the soil. A good rule is to feed plants at the start of spring, summer and autumn.

For newly planted bare rooted roses it is recommended that you don't use pelletised animal manure for at least a few months, as the fresh new roots can be burnt and set the plant back. Water all fertilisers in well so that your plant will get the benefit and be able to absorb the fertiliser.

Black Spot and Powdery Mildew

Fungal problems mainly occur during spring and autumn, or when the weather is humid. They do not generally hurt the plant, but are unsightly.

Black spot is a scattering of dark blotches on the leaves. Eventually leaves turn yellow and drop off. Powdery mildew is a creamy white mould, which attacks the flower stems or leaves and buds of flowers, appearing as white blotches on the leaves. The occurrence of both diseases is weather related. Black spot thrives in humid, warm conditions. Powdery mildew usually occurs in the spring and autumn, with mild days and cool moist nights.

For the control of these diseases, spray with Triforine or any good black spot spray. Use these preventative sprays every 7 to 14 days during spring. Lime sulphur can be sprayed during winter dormancy as indicated on the bottle. This will kill the fungal spores that lead to disease and give your rose a fresh start in spring.
