BEST TY PERSONALITY

THIS WONDERFUL YEAR by GARRY MOORE

This is the time of year when television's big popularity race is getting underway, with all networks jockeying for position, and all show entries, old and new, making another bid for the audience's vote.

It is also the time when a good many people are prone to make predictions about the outcome. You can count me out. One thing I've learned about television is that it's as changeable as the weather and politicians' promises, and that predictions, like the best laid plans of mice and men, go oft awry.

I'm the fellow who should know. Last year, about this time, there were a lot of prophecies to the effect that one Thomas Garrison Morfit, his Tuesday night show and "I've Got a Secret" were about to go the way of the sack dress. On the face of it, it had a pretty sound basis. Our Tuesday night show, with what is now considered a very modest $100,000 budget. was pitted against NBC's "Startime" which had a $250,000 budget to lavish on top names and production. And "I've Got a Secret" was pitted against the redoubtable Mr. Perry Como.

As it turned out, both shows more than held their own in the ratings race. In fact, the "Startime" show was eventually moved to a different time slot, so that its huge budget could be supported more favorably.

I mention this not because it is a tribute to our shows, but because it points up one factor that the prophets may be prone to overlook. Both our shows, over the years, had built up a certain following, and video viewers, bless their hearts, are a loyal lot. The success of our shows is a tribute to their loyalty and friendship, and I am deeply grateful for it.

This, to me, is the most rewarding thing about being in television—the thing that keeps me plugging away. year after year. The challenge of winning friends and keeping them is the greatest stimulus a television performer can have.

Then, too, there is the unpredictable, the constant change I mentioned above, that makes television the most exciting medium in the entertainment world today.

Every season has its upsets, its failures, its new stars and hit shows. And this season of 1960-61, from that standpoint, will be the most fascinating yet—truly the Season of Surprises.

You have only to look at the following pages of this issue of who's who in television to see the reason.

Following this article, there are nine pages introducing the season's new shows. It's a dazzling lineup. One glance will show you that there are more new shows than ever, of all types, in a variety to please everyone from tykes to tycoons.

Not every show will make the grade, of course. But out of them will come new hits, new stars. Nor is this element of surprise confined to the new shows. The rest of the shows presented in this magazine—those that have earned their right to return for another season—will provide plenty of pleasant surprises, too.

For instance, look what happened to two of the people on our show last season. The fine comedy talent of Carol Burnett made such a hit that she's now a Broadway star. Allen Funt and his "Candid Camera" were so popular that he has his own show this season. Believe me, being able to introduce top talents like theirs on "The Garry Moore Show" has been a real thrill for me.

To me, the best thing about working in television is that the people who watch it, and they alone, are the ultimate and final judges of your efforts. In some quarters. I know, there is a tendency to speak of the "mass audience" with some condescension, to peg public taste at a low level. The experience of television has proven that this is a fallacy. The trite, the unimaginative, the phony or dishonest elements that inevitably creep into such a vast enterprise as television occasionally, are just as inevitably uncovered, to be quickly dismissed from the TV scene. A public that simply will not tolerate inferior entertainment can do that just by turning the dials on their TV sets.

To keep you people tuning in, to keep you interested and entertained—this is the great challenge to all of us in television. Each season, we all try to meet it as best we can, to outdo our efforts of the previous season. That is why I know that this coming season of 1960-61 will bring greater advances in TV entertainment than ever before. All of us on "The Garry Moore Show" and "I've Got a Secret" will be in there pitching, to do our part to try to make this truly "That Wonderful Year."

GARRY MOORE got his name from a lady in Pennsylvania who won a contest to re-name radio writer-comic Thomas Garrison Morfit. Born Jan. 31, 1915, in Boltimore, Md., Garry wrote until called on ta sub for an ailing comic, has been in front of the mike since. He lives with wife Nell, sons Mason and Garry, Jr. in Rye, N.Y.

CAROL BURNETI was born in San Antonio, Texas, April 26, 1934, grew up in Los Angeles, was bitten by the acting bug white studying journalism at UCLA. Determined to crash the theatre, she came to New York, and via a Rehearsal Club show get her first break. Stage and TV hits led to her spot on "The Garry Moore Show." MARION LORNE was sadly missed for a time on the Moore Show, due to illness, but returned for the last show and got a heart-warming reception. A star of the English stage far over 25 years, she's often mistaken for an English woman—actually, she was horn in Wilkes Barre, Penna., of English parents. Marion is a widow.

DURWARD KIRBY has been providing the Moore Show with his clever characterizations ever since it began. But even before that, he was one of the best announcers in the business, still gets more affers than he could possibly accept. Durward was born in Covington, Ky., started announcing while attending Purdue. He's wed.

JAMES ARNESS, Marshal Matt Dillon of CBS-TV's top-rated "Gunsmoke," has seen plenty of real gunfire. In World War II, he was wounded, and spent a year in the hospital. After the war he returned to Minneapolis, where he was born 36 years ago ond spent the first 18 years of his life. Work in radio and little theatre there led to Hollywood, where his first screen test failed. But a bit part in "The Farmer's Doughter" got him started, and some 20 films later, olong came "Gunsmake," fome and fortune. His marriage to wife Virginia ended, but he's a devoted dad to their children, Craig, Jenny Lee and Rolf. Now producer as well as star of "Gunsmoke," at right he tells why he feels westerns will stay in the saddle for a long time.

DENNIS WEAVER says this will be his last season as Matt's sidekick, Chester. Having won the Emmy for this port, he's looking for new fields to conquer. Dennis made his stage debut in "Come Back Little Shebo," was signed for movies at Shelley Winters suggestion. Married, dad of two, his limp isn't real-a track star!

AMANDA BLAKE, who plays Matt's girl friend, Kitty, never wanted to be anything but an actress. She left college ofter her first year to concentrate on radio and little theatre in her native Buffalo, N.Y. While in her teens, she won an MGM contract. Titian-haired Amanda, once divorced, is new happily married to a director. MILBURN STONE, crotchety Doc Adams, really hoils from Dodge City—he was born in nearby Burrton, Kansas, was steeped with the western lore of the area from childhood. Offered an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy, he turned it down in favor of acting, was soon going strong in many character parts. He married wife Jone in 1940.

WHY WESTERNS?

by James Arness

The brief period on which today's Westerns are based is one of the great misunderstood eras of American history.

In it the pioneers struggled to succeed against a hostile environment—as men always have and perhaps always will, but with one difference. Their environment happened to be unusually exciting and unusually romantic.

Men pushed westward against big, wild land, against fearful climates. The romance came in conquering these elemental obstacles-and in conquering other elemental men.

Men banded together in common purpose against real things they could see and feel. Right and wrong were clearly defined, as rarely happened in any other time.

In such times men could make their noblest achievements.

Who would not be affected by the story of these men? The story of the West will always be exciting, as long as it is told well and honestly.

I have often been asked why "Gunsmoke" is so popular. I believe it has one strong characteristic . . . everyone in Arness & Co. and at the CBS Television Network who is connected with "Gunsmoke"—the four principle actors, the producer, the writer, and everyone in the crew-has a sincere and honest respect for that period of American history. Great care is taken not to violate the spirit of that time-what the real old west stood for. All of us have the feeling, in telling its story, that we are actually a part of it.

That is the X factor in "Gunsmoke."

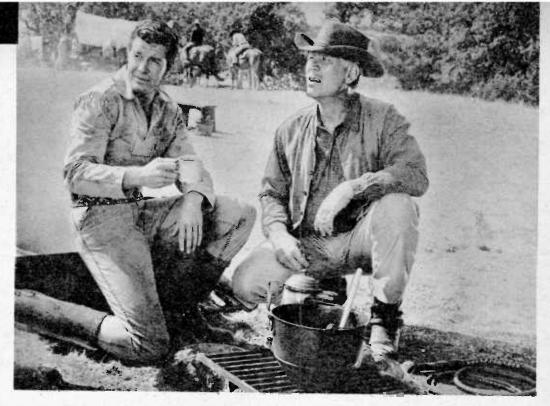

As long as one show has it, or some part of it, there will be Westerns-and they'll be popular.

wagon train

ROBERT HORTON, scout Flint McCullough of NBC-TV's hit, "Wagon Train," is an even better rider offscreen than on, but not content with horses, pilots planes as a hobby. Born in Los Angeles on July 29, 1924, Bob became a leading man in movies before his "Wagon Train" ride. Thrice-divorced, it's rumored that Bob will soon marry again.

WARD BOND, wagonmaster Seth Adams, is a big man in a big rale—he's 6'3", weighs 215 lbs. He also has big experience—30 years of it, in over 150 films, many of them westerns. Former all-star tackle on USC's football team and a graduate engineer, he stuck ta acting when he found the pay was much better. Born in Denver, April 9, 1905, he's married.

boots and saddles

JACK PICKARD started far from the range—as a model for Navy posters. The posters must have been good—he was sold on joising the Navy. In 1946, after four years, he came out, and into an acting career that led to his role as U.S. Cavalry Captain Shank Adams on CNP's film series, "Boots and Saddles." Jack was barn in Murfreesboro, Tenn., wanted to be a singer and studied at the Nashville Conservatory. Then he decided he liked acting better. He's a happily married man, away from the range.

MICHAEL HINN, who is Luke Cummings, "best scout in the territory," is a former reporter and news commentator. He had wanted to be an actor, but gave it up when his right arm was injured in mining machinery. A news commentator jab in Hollywood after the war gave him a chance to try it again, and he was soon daing TV westerns. Mike hails from Minnesota, where he was born Sept. 10, 1913. He married Helen Diller, and now lives in California.

the cisco kid

DUNCAN RENALDO, who speaks nine languages, first played the "Cisca Kid" role in a 1944 movie. A man of many gifts, he has painted sets, written, directed and produced movies. Born in Spain, he spent part of his childhoad among the gauchos of the Argentine pampas, learning to ride and shoot at an early age. His first film role was in "The Bright Shaw!" back in 1923, and he's been playing Latins ever since. He's married, has one daughter, is an avid painter and photographer at home.

LEO CARRILLO, the son of the first mayor of Santa Monica, Cal., and great-grand-son of California's first provisional governor, was a newspaper cartoonist for the San Francisco "Examiner" wha amused friends with his dialect stories before he turned professional actor and became a star of Broadway and silent movies. Fat 31 years, he has remained one at the film capital's best loved camedians. A native of L.A., and graduate of Loyola University there, Lea plays Pancha on ZIV's series.

the lawman

JOHN RUSSELL, has played everything from heroes to heels. A former Marine, he'd just returned from Guadalcanal when an agent spotted him in a Hollywood led to many more. A native of Los Angeles, he wed his wife, Renata, in 1943. They have three children—Renata, 11, Shaunna, 10, John, 7. Besides his current role as Marshal Dan Troop in ABC-TV's "Lawman," he's seen in the popular syndicated series, "Soldiers of Fortune." He lives on a ranch.

PETER BROWN, who was born in New Yark October 5, 1935 and later moved to Spokane, Wash., got his acting start in—Alaska! While he was stationed there, he appeared in 23 shows, went on to little theatre, TV, films, and his co-starring role as Johnny McKay in "Lawman." He's 6'1", weighs 170 pounds, is an avid sports and music fan. Divorced from actress Diane Jergens after a brief marriage, he dates many of the young Hollywood lovelies.

the lone ranger

CLAYTON MOORE is really cheating the ladies by having to wear that mask—behind it, he's as handsome as the model he ance was. Blue-eyed, black-haired, 6' 2", 185 lbs., "The Lone Ranger" won the part via "B" westerns. But it wasn't easy. Before that, Chicago-born Clayton was with a trapeze act (at 14), dug ditches, and put in a stretch as an Air Force corporal. Now he appreciates his success, even if it does mean that he must hide his face and his private life as well behind a mask.

JAY SILVERHEELS was runner-up for the 1937 Golden Gloves crawn, and Canada's top lacrosse star, when he was spotted by Joe E. Brown and graomed for a film career. An all-round athlete, the 170-pound, 6' Mohawk was born on the Six Nations Incan Reservation in Ontario, Canada. His family moved ta Buffalo, N.Y., where Jay held the Niagara district middleweight champianship two years running the played in western and Indian films for 11 years before becoming TV's loved Tanta.

the rifleman

CHUCK CONNORS, who played professional baseball, but had only one big league seoson, became a TV star by throwing a rifle at a producer. The producer was casting ABC-TV's "The Rifleman," and looking for a guy who could sling a Winchester as easily as others handled Colts. He threw the gun at 6'5½" Chuck, who pitched it back and got the role. Chuck decided to become an actor after earning $500 a day for a bit in MGM's "Pat and Mike." Brooklyn-born, married, has 4 sons.

JOHNNY CRAWFORD has three reasons for loving his role as Mark, Chuck's motherless TV offspring. He's a born actor, a baseball fan, and a guitar enthusiast (he hopes they'll let him play it in some episode). L.A.-born, 13-year-old Johnny made his stage debut at 5, was an original "Mauseketeer." He rolled up 15 "Matinee Theatre" roles, and appearances on such other top shaws as "Playhouse 90," "Climax" and "Video Theatre," before winning this western series assignment.

the roy rogers show

ROY ROGERS, hungry, broke and determined to get a crack at movies, stuck his foot in the gate at Republic, and refused to remove it till a studio executive told the gatekeeper to let him in. An audition and contract followed, and Roy was on his way to becoming "King of the Cowboys." Born in Cincinnati, November 5, 1912, Roy was or aised in nearby Duck Run. He worked as o cowhand in New Mexico, learning to ride and shoot. A widower with 3 children, he wed his co-star Dale Evans in 1947.

DALE EVANS is an honest-to-goodness westerner (born: Uvalde, Texas) who had eastern aspirations till she was teamed with Roy in more than 30 horse operas. A radia and band vocalist, she appeared locally before landing a network spot on NBC. The Republic contract, westerns, and marriage to Roy followed in that order. Besides costarring with Roy, Dale is kept busy raising 8 children (they adopted 5, in addition to Roy's 3) and keeping house. She also has a son, Tom Fax, by an early marriage.

tales of the texas rangers

WILLARD PARKER was born Worcester Van Eps in N.Y. If you think that's a fighting name, you're right—his family were all officers in the Dutch Army. Willard grew up near Forest Hills, N.Y., and began playing tennis at age 6. By the time he left school, he was good enough to be a professional instructor—his first job in Hollywood. Then he was spotted in a nightclub by one of the Marx brothers. Film, stage and TV parts followed, leading to the Jace Pearson role. Will wed actress Virginia Fields in 1951.

HARRY LAUTER, who plays Clay Morgan, learned to shoot and ride from his grand-mother! She and her husband were a famed circus aerial team, and she was a fine horsewoman and deadshot as well. Harry was born in New York, June 19, 1924, but grew up in Denver, Cola. At 14, when he moved to San Diego, he worked in rodeos, and after three years' Army service, decided on an acting career. Was married in 1946 to actress Barbara Jane, they had a daughter, Brooke Elizabeth, in 1949.

ROBERT FULLER is one western star who doesn't need a double—he's a former stunt man. He got early physical training from his parents, who were professional dancers, and encouraged his theatrical ambitions from the time he was born, in Tray, N. Y., July 29, 1933. His parents moved ta Los Angeles, and after an Army stint (two years in Korea), "Laramie's" Jess Harper began acting there, got a break in "Friendly Persuasion" because his sideburns looked so real (they were). Besides dating Kathy Nolan, he likes hunting sharks with a bow and arrow!

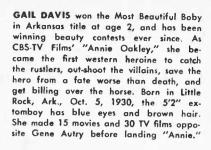

JOHN SMITH, a blond, 6'21/2" giant who plays the rugged Bill Harper in "Laramie" started out as a choir boyl If you look closely at the Mitchell Boys Choir in "Going My Way" and "Bells of St. Mary's" on the Late Show, you may spot him. John was born on March 6, 1931, in Los Angeles, and those choir bay jabs gave him the acting bug. He became a messenger boy at MGM, gradually worked his way up to his first good acting role in "The High and the Mighty." He changed his name from Robert Van Orden to John Smith because "it's easier to remember," has appeared in numerous movies and over 50 TV shows. A descendant of Peter Stuyvesant, this western star prefers skin diving and boating off-camera. He was marnied recently to Luana Patten. He's also seen in re-runs of "Cimarron City."

black saddle

PETER BRECK, who plays Clay Culhane in "Black Saddle," prefers to drive a white

Jaguar on his own time. The 31-year-old western star resents being tabbed an "over-hight discovery." Says Pete, "It was a long night—fourteen years long." A native of Rachester, N. Y., he decided on a singing career while still in high school. That was natural enough for the son of a bandleader and ex-chorus girl. But he wound up in stock, and did 140 plays before Robert Mitchum "discovered" his talent.

broken arrow

JOHN LUPTON's first professional experience was playing an owl and a pussycat in a road-show for children. Between that and the starring role of Indian Agent Tom Jeffords on CBS Films' "Broken Arrow," he played in stock, and did Broadway and road roles with such stars as Mae West and Katharine Hepburn. MGM signed him, and he became a star with "Battle Cry." A former roommate of Fess Parker, he was born Aug. 22, 1926, in Highland Park. Ill. Married, he has daughter, Rollin, 3.

bronco

TY HARDIN, they say, got into films by trying to rent a prop gun for a costume party. He got his gun and a contract with it. Ty was raised in Texas, though born in New York. Ty got going in films and with TV work and then was chosen to replace Clint Walker in "Cheyenne." After Clint's return to the role Ty was given his own series, "Bronco," based on the character of Bronco Layne. This season they'll share the spotlight. Ty's father of twin boys. He's separated from Andra Martin.

the californians

DICK COOGAN is at home in the role of the debonaire but tough Marshal Matthew Wayne af NBC-TV's "The Californians." The same brand of humor and grit have seen Dick through real-life crises which would have thrown a lesser man. After a four-year bout with rheumatic fever, he went on to become a top high school athlete. Another siege laid him low, but Dick fought back and recovered to go on to an acting career, many movie and TV roles. Wed to Gay Adams, son Ricky is 9.

CLINT WALKER's back in the Cheyenne Bodie role on the ABC-TV adult-western series after making up with Warners. He's also starring in their film, "Gold of the Seven Saints." Clint's first job, at age 9, was in a hometown carnival. He worked at dozens of jobs including waterfront guard, private eye, and nightclub bouncer before Van Johnson spotted him as a Vegas deputy sheriff and suggested he try acting. Clint is 6'6", 235 pounds, 33, married, and has a daughter, Valerie, 10.

ROGER MOORE is making the big switch this year—from "The Alaskans" over to "Maverick," as Beau Maverick, a long-lost cousin. Born in London, England, Oct. 14, 1927, he came to the U. S. in 1953, already a film, radio and TV star back home. He and his wife, Dorothy Squires, are still best known back in London as song writers, but that may change as rapidly as Roger's making the switch to the big Western. A Warner contract player, 3er is also seen in TV's "Ivanhoe."

frontier doctor

REX ALLEN's early life sounds like a western, complete with range war between his dad and other homesteaders, and Arizona cattle barons. The 6'1" star of "Frontier Doctor" was born Dec. 31, 1922 in Willcox, Ariz., the town nearest his dad's spread. He won a statewide guitar contest at 14, turned rodeo performer on graduating high school. This led to radio and "Arizona Cowboy," his first movie. He's married to ex-actress Bonnie Linder, has three sons—Rex, 13, Curtis, 10, Mark, 6.

gene autry show

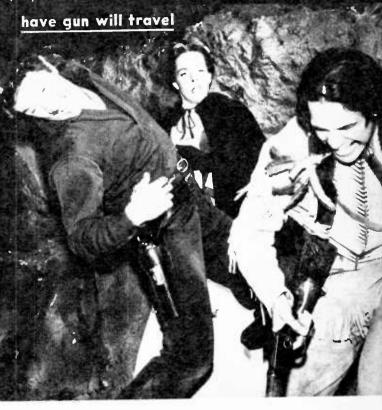

GENE AUTRY was punching the telegraph key in the whistle-stop town of Chelsea, Okla. when the late Will Rogers walked in to send a wire. Hearing Gene strumming his guitar and singing, Rogers suggested the young man do so professionally. Gene become a radio-western singing star, moved on to films, rodeos and TV. Long-time star of his own CBS radio and TV cowboy shows, Gene is also producer of other TV westerns. Barn in Tioga, Texas, he's 52 years old, married to Ina Mae Spivey.

GENE BARRY, who's afraid he'll be typed as a western hero forever, started as anything but, as a singer on Broadway and in movie and TV roles, with more than 100 of the latter chalked up when he was made Bat Masterson. Born on June 14, 1921, in New York, Gene has recently shown signs of getting a bit rettless, has shown viewers his other side in several guest appearances the's made which were strictly "non-Bat." Married to actress Betty Kalb since 1944, they've got two sons, Michaei, 14, who5s started acting, and Fredric who is now 8.

RICHARD BOONL still has that gun and is still traveling. You remember him when he was "Medic" and you probably remember when he first became Paladin, the Shakespeare-quoting gunslinger. Well, Richard's not been idle for between Paladin shootings he found time to star as Abe Lincoln on Broadway with rave reviews to his credit. Back, strong as ever, as the black-clothed hero of "Have Gun, Will Travel," Boone is a descendant of old Daniel Boone's brother, is also a former college boxing champ. Married to Mimi Kelly since 1949, they have a son, Peter, who just turned seven.

the gray ghost

rod andrews always wanted to be a writer, but winning a fellowship to Pasadena Playhouse and getting rave reviews for his first professional performance made him decide the pen wasn't mightier than the stage. Born in Buffalo, N. Y., Tod attended the U. of Washington before he wound up in Pasadena. On Broadway he replaced Henry Fonda in "Mr. Roberts," won a Theatre World Award for 1949-50 before returning to Hollywood to play John S. Mosby in CBS-Films' Gray Ghost."

hawkeye and the last of the mohicans

JOHN MART, who olays Hawkeye (also known as Deerslayer and Leatherstocking) in "The Last of the Mohicans," listens carefully to what a famous drama critic says. That's natural enough, since the critic is his molher, Enid Hart, who fired his interest in the theatre, and with whom bachelor John lives. His early start in films—a Paramount contract before he was 21—was interrupted by WW II service. After service, he couldn't get started, took stuat man jobs, one of which led to TV roles.

hopalong cassidy

WILLIAM BOYD, the ever-popular "Hopalong Cassidy," was born in Ohio but came by his western ways while growing up in Tulsa, Okla. He worked in the oilfields from an early age, but was nearly fifty before he struck it rich in TV. In between, he went from Hollywood extra to matinee idel—and back down again to the oaters as hero of 66 "Hopalong" films. He shrewdly bought TV rights to his old pictures. They made history, and "Hoppy" a millionairs. New 62, he and wife live in Beverly Hills.

life and legend of wyatt earp

HUGH O'BRIAN first made a name as the youngest drill instructor in the history of the U.S. Marines. Hugh just missed entering Annapalis, was a law student when talked into taking a walk-on with an L.A. theatre group. The man who, as Wyatt Earp, started the whole trend toward the so-called adult Western, came into this world as Hugh J. Krampe, Jr. It happened in Rochester, N. Y., April 19, 1925. Hugh is a handsome six footer who weighs in at 175 lbs. and is still a bachelor.

mackenzie's raiders

RICHARD CARLSON was a bookworm till he discovered sports, then so mad about sports that he barely made passing grades. One day, at college, he gave up sports and graduated with top honors. All the way, he was busy writing plays. After stock and Broadway experience, he was signed to a writer-actor-director Hollywood contract. Star of ZIV's "Mackenzie's Raiders" and "I Led Three Lives" (now in re-run), Dissimarried and father of 2 sons. Born in Alberta Lea, Minnesota, April 29, 1914.

man from blackhawk

ROBERT ROCKWELL used to simper along as the long-suffering Mr. Boynton to Eve Arden's "Our Miss Brooks," showed how untyped he was by making the switch to that rugged "Man From Blackhawk." Born in Chicago, Bob is a descendant of President Zachary Taylor, Bob has developed five descendants of his own, the oldest being now 16. The 6 foot 3 inch Rockwell first broke into movies with a Science Fitton masterpiece called "The Red Menace." He's an excellent tennis player.

CLINT EASTWOOD, who plays Rowdy Yates on "Rawhide," has a knack of being in the right place at the right time. A chonce meeting with a director while he was in the Army turned him toward an acting career in movies, and while visiting a friend at CBS he was spotted. Born in Frisco May 31, 1930, he's married.

ERIC FLEMING, has had as many real adventures as he has in the role of Gil Favor. He's been a seaman, miner, ambulance driver, longshoreman, among other occupations. But the trade he learned from his carpenter dad led to a backstage job and Broadway, movie and TV roles. A strapping 6'4", Eric's o bachelor.

man without a gun

REX REASON was born (with that name) in Berlin, Germany, Nov. 30, 1928, while his folks were on a business trip, but he spent most of his life in Glendale, Cal., of which his grandfather was once mayor. Playing the crusading hero of NTA's "Man Without A Gun" came as quite a switch for Rex who had a long string of roles as hero of U-I westerns. The 6'3", 195-pounder married Joan Johannes. He has a daughter, Andrea, a son Bren, and a step-son named Chris. Rex loves all outdoor sports.

pony express

GRANT SULLIVAN's portrayal of the flinty, hard-hitting Brett Clark in this new CNP series is a far cry from the Broadway role in "Auntie Mame" that first won him notice. But Grant's a versatile fellow. He was an ace stock car racer when he decided to put his prize money into drama study. The investment paid off in over 200 TV roles. Grant, born June 30, 1924 in Fremont, Neb., grew up in Calif. While working in a show in 1951 he married Mary Samuel, a singer with the Spitalny band.

the deputy

HENRY FONDA, after 20 years as a movie and stage star, is enjoying NBC-TV's "Deputy" so much that he'll be in many more episodes this season. A Nebraska native, he began octing soon after leaving the U. of Minn. Thrice-divorced, he's wed to Afdera Franchetti, has three children—Amy, 6, Peter, 19, and promising actress Jane, who'll be 23 next month.

ALLEN CASE is one reason Fonda's stepped up his "Deputy" appearances. Says Hank, "He's getting too good!" A 26-year-old bachelor, Allen grew up in Dallas, Texas, went to Southern Methodist for two years before switching to show business. He came to westerns via—musicals! Allen spends his spare time painting

the rebel

NICK ADAMS believes in doing the impossible. Dismissed as "ordinary-looking," he didn't give up, finally scored in the movies "Rebel Without a Cause" and "No Time For Sergeants," and has now hung up a smash hit as Johnny Yuma in "The Rebel"—a show that was his own idea. Born Nick Adamschock in Nanticoke, Pa., on July 13, 1931, he's married to Carol Nugent. They have a daughter, Allyson, and expect another baby. Nick can provide for a big family—he owns holf of this successful show.

restless gun

JOHN PAYNE is a long-time success in TV and films, but his first career ended in a nose-dive. As a boy in Roanoke, Va., he wanted to be an aeronautical engineer. One day he tried to fly a home-built glider, and landed on his nose. That ended that. John put himself through school as a pulp-magazine writer ond pro wrestler. Small radio and legit jobs led to Hollywood. He produces and stars in NBC-TV's "Restless Gun," as well as writing episodes. 48, twice-divorced, John is fother of 3.

state trooper

ROD CAMERON reolized a boyhood ambition to be a lawman when he landed the lead in MCA's syndicated series, "State Trooper." Born in Calgary, Canada, Rod wanted to be a Royal Mountie, but his family moved to Brooklyn when he was 11. In six years after graduating from high school, he held 33 jobs including cashier in a gambling house and sandhog in New York's subways. England's Earl of Warwick helped him get his Hollywood start. Now 50 and thrice divorced, he has 2 children.

DAN BLOCKER claims to be the lorgest native of Bowie County, Texas where he was a jumbo 14 pounder at birth which took place Dec. 10, 1932. At 12 he weighed 200 pounds, stood six feet tall. He's now grown four inches and put on about 75 pounds. Dan served in Korea, married his college sweetheart. He originally pre-World Radio History d to be a school teacher.

MICHAEL LANDON is a kind of whimsical guy who came Into the world in New York City as Eugene Orawitz, changed his name when he realized everyone else in his family had done likewise. Mother Peggy O'Neill was a musical comedy queen, his Dad was called Emo, which he claimed stood for "Eat More Oysters." Mike's married, father of two.

sugarfoo*

WILL HUTCHINS, whose "Sugarfoot" is now combined with the "Cheyenne" series on ABC-TV, now has a little more time for his hobbies, writing poetry and doing colisthenics. His college education started the poetry, his yen to be a boxer the calisthenics. Will got his TV break when he beat out hundreds of college students to star in a "Matinee" play, "The Young and the Damned." Born May 5, 1932, in Los Angeles, he's still single, lives with his mother. Blue-eyed Will is a rugged 6'1".

tales of wells fargo

DALE ROBERTSON is perfect for the role of fighting Jim Hardie in NBC-TV's "Tales of Wells Fargo"—he won 38 out of 40 professional boxing matches before enlisting in the Army in 1942. German shrapnel ended his boxing career, so the man from Oklahoma City, Okla., turned to movies. The producer of his first, "Fighting Man of the Plains," later offered him "Wells Fargo." Twice-divorced, father of a daughter, Rochelle, 8, Dale is now married to Lulo Moe Harding. Hobby: raising horses.

tombstone territory

PAT CONWAY says he "learned the difference between a close-up and medium and long shots before I learned the alphabet." For the son of the late, famed MGM director, Jack Conway, and grandson of silent matinee idol Francis X. Bushman, that's hardly strange. Pat studied at the Pasadena Playhouse and trained with London's Old Vic before his screen debut in "Westword The Women," TV stardom in ZIV's "Tombstone Territary." Born in Los Angeles, Jan. 9, 1931," Pot is divorced.

LORNE GREENE was born in Canada, enrolled at Queen's University, Ontorio, then dropped engineering for the tage. After the Army, Greene got work as a newscaster. On a trip to New York to try selling a watch he invented Lorne ran into producer Fletcher Markle who quickly entitled Greene for a TV show—and that was it! He's in movies, too.

PERNELL ROBERTS is a Waycross, Georgia boy who got musical training in high school, put in a brief stint at Georgia Tech, in the Marines and then the U.
of Maryland before he was finally bitten by the acting bug. A few stage roles in stock and then Paramount signed him, took him to movietown for TV and film work. He used to be a butchest Radio History

trackdown

ROBERT CULP, who plays Hobby Gilman in CBS-TV's "Trackdown," could really track a man across the mountains and proiries if he had to. He learned how from his trapper-prospector granddad, when he was a boy. The 29-year-old, 6'2", 180-pound actor was also a prep-school champion pole-vaulter who had his eye set on the Olympics till he switched to acting ambătions. College studies, off-Broadway and finally Broadway roles led to his TV break. Wed to Nancy Asch, has one son.

two faces west

CHARLES BATEMAN is a San Diego, Cal. native who got the theotre bug while at S.D. Junior College. Then came more schooling followed by work in stock and at the famous La Jolla Theatre. After some rough going, Boteman decided to get a thorough background in TV, took a job with CBS production on the Coast. After awhile the breaks came—"Maverick," "Rowhide" and "M-Squad" being just three. A bachelor, Boteman got his present assignment from work in "Manhunt."

union pacific

JEFF MORROW was born in New York City, the youngest of four. A career In commercial art gave him the money to study dramatics. With same training he managed to get to Broadway and has played in over 2000 radio shows. TV audiences are familiar with the man who'll play Bart McClelland, operations manager. Jeff has been seen on "Studio One," and dozens of other shows. Jeff's married to Anna Karen and they have a nine-year-old daughter, live in San Fernando Valley.

u.s. marshal

JOHN BROMFIELD, starring in NTA's "U.S. Marshal" rewarded a high school buddy who suggested that he try out for a school play with swift kick. Years later, when a professional scout suggested an acting carer, he was more receptive. In between, he was Pacific Coast Golden Gloves boxing champ, a college student, navy seaman and tuna fisherman. Naturally, he made his film debut in something called "Harpoon," actually harpooned two whales on location. He's twice divorced.

wanted: dead or alive

STEVE McQUEEN was working in New Yark as a TV repairman, whose highest ambition was to become a tile-setter, till a chance meeting with renowned drama coach Sandy Meisner started his acting career. Study, stock and road company experience followed in short order. A starring role on "Studio One" led to a flood of TV, Broadway and movie offers. After study, at the famed Actors Studio, came the Josh Randall role on this CBS-TV show. Steve's 27, and is wed to Neile Adams.

wild bill hickok

GUY MADISON, who starred in "Wild Bill Mickok" for five years (it's still going strong), got his break when a femme Hollywood talent agent spotted his face on the cover of a Navy magazine. She got him a bit role in "Since You Went Away," which he filmed during a 2-week leave. Fan response made him a star. Born in Bakersfield, Cal., Jan. 19, 1923, he grew wp on a nearby ranch. 6'1", Guy's divorced from Gail Russell, married to Sheila Conwolly. They have three lovely daughters.

THE SOUND OF the dinah shore show DINAH SHORE has been everybody's sweetheart for a number of years now, with a load of Emmies on her shelf. NBC-TV's songbird was born Frances Rose Shore on March 1, 1917, in Winchester, Tenn., Dinah was brought up in Nashville, attended the University of Vanderbilt and got her B.A. Dinah moved on to New York. She made her debut on radio on the Eddie Cantor show in 1940, shared a show with then unknown singer Frank Sinatra for a time. Her movie debut came in "Thank Your Lucky Star" in 1943 and has been consistently voted the most popular female vocalist in all the big polls since those days. A Gallup poll named her the best known singer in the U.S. Married to George Montgomery for 17 years, the star of NBC-TV's "Chevy Show" has a daughter, Melissa Ann, who is almost 13, and an adapted sorry lody, who is 6.

MUSIC

THE IMPORTANT INGREDIENT by DINAH SHORE

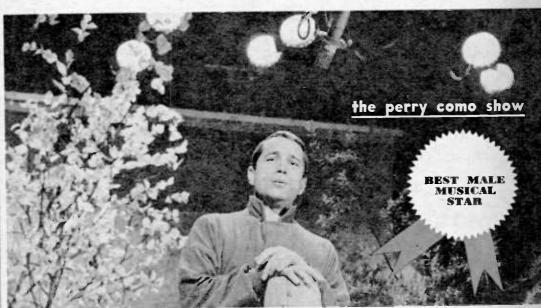

■ Putting on any musical TV show, such as ours, is tremendously complicated (and expensive!), involving the time and effort of many people. I have been asked what it is that makes such a show successful. My answer is—self-confidence. I believe this is the one thing people must have in order to do their best.

Self-confidence comes only after hard work, at least with me. If it appears that I am self-confident on the TV screen, it is only because we have rehearsed so carefully and so intensely that by the time we go on the air, I'm numb.

I've always believed in positive thinking—what you want, you must earn. I have always tried to be a part of everything. Everything fascinates me. In school, I was in drama, glee club, on the school paper and swimming team, and a cheerleader. Enthusiasm makes you work and play well and in turn, that gives you confidence in yourself.

Shyness to me, is a form of self-pity. It can be an agonizing state but it can be corrected. You must want to come out of your shell. You must realize that most "popular" people, those who seem fairly to burst with self-confidence—constantly give a lot more than they take.

I've never been what you m ght call a raving beauty, but I learned early the basic rules of good grooming and correct dressing, and I tried not to deviate. It gives me the greatest boost to know that I look well, and feel comfortably, and as a result, I have enough confidence in my appearance to stop thinking about it. And that's what counts.

PERRY COMO has justly won his reputation of being the most relaxed man in the business. Perry was born on May 18, 1912, back in Cannonsburg, Pa., the son of Pietro and Lucille Travaglini Como. A barber at the age of 15, Perry first joined an outfit called the Carlone band, then went with Ted Weems in 1936. He quickly became acquainted with the floor of many nightelubs, began recording for Victor. His movie debut was made for 20th in "Something For the Boys". A consistent winner of best male vocalist awards, Perry has made his own TV show over NBC one of the most popular of its kind. Perry has been married for the last 27 years to his teenage sweetheart, Roselle. Their oldest son, Ronnie (for whom his production company, Roncom, is named) is 20. Perry and his lovely wife have two adopted children: David, who's 15, and daughter Terri, who's 13. They make their home in Long Island New York. His favorite pastime is golf.

american bandstand

DICK CLARK, whose fabulous career has not been exactly helped by the payola investigations, is still hanging on to "American Bandstand" over ABC-TV, the "Dick Clark Show" having been dropped. Dick was born Nov. 29, 1929, in Mt. Vernon, N.Y., made it big down Philadelphia way, quickly became the idol of millions of teenagers with his radio shaws. He moved into the bigtime spotlight, grew and grew with interests in record companies and in personalities whom he gave great shoves on their way to stardom. He and his wife Barbara have a son, Richard, who's 3 and Dick still commutes between Drexel Hill, Pa., and New York City. His first mavie was "Because They're Young," and he'll be making more.

LAWRENCE WELK has been making the welkin ring ever since he learned how to play the "squeeze box" on his farmer-father's knee. His folks gave in to his desires and at 17 he was proud owner of a fancy new accordion, despite Welk Sr.'s feors that Lorry would grow up to become a musician. At the age of 21, the boy left home (Strosburg, North Dakoto) and set out to do what his father feared most. After many years of experimentation and barnstorming, Welk finally hit upon the fabulausly successful champagne formula which has been bubbling forth profits ever since. Now 57 years old, married and the father of two daughters and son, Lawrence Jr., Welk plays his "sincere" brand of music as always on ABC's "Lawrence Welk Show."

THE LENNON SISTERS, nomely Dionne, 20, Peggy, 19, Kathy, 16, and Janet 14—began harmonizing to make the chore of washing dishes pass more quickly. And a chore it is for the Lennons, mole and femole, now number an even dozen, including father Bill and mother Sis. The break came when Larry Welk, Jr., o schoolmate of Dianne's, heard the four sing, raved to Dad about the girls. Welk has never been sorry he heard the girls sing, nor have the perky Lemnons, who can't read music or play instruments but concount money with the best of them these days. Their Dad, wha used to sing in a quartet, teaches them the agrangements and helps count the loot. Marriage to Dick Gass came to Dianne, perhaps splitting the oct, but four-year-old Mimi Lennon may become a fine replacement for her big sister.

RED FOLEY has had his "Jubilee U.S.A." shot out from under him in a rescheduling hassle, but you'll be sure to see the popular veteran someplace along the channels this season. Red was born in Blue Lick, Kentucky, could "pick" when he was seven, won a talent contest a few years later and then went on to become one of the country music's alltime greats. Over 28 million of Red's records have been sold since he began recording back in 1939. Born June 17, 1911, Red is married and father of four daughters. One of them is married to Pat Boone. Foley and his happy family make their home in Springfield, Missouri.

TENNESSEE ERNIE FORD, the man with built-in sponsor identification, was born in, you guessed it, Fordtown, Tennessee. Personal proceeds from his highly successful NBC-TV show have helped him manage a 540 acre California ranch where he naturally raises prize Herefords. Born February 13, 1919, Ernie got tris professional start back in 1937 as a 10-dollar-a-week onnouncer for a local radio station. After serving with the Army Air Corps in the last war, he held a variety of smalltime radio jobs until along came something he recorded called "16 Tons." Since then, the old pea-picker has had easy pickin's what with his own show and a great assortment of hit records and guest appearances. Ernie's married and the father of two sons, Jeffrey Buckner, 10, Brion Leonard, 6, so there are at least two more Fords in our future.

LIBERACE continues to be one of the most successful pianists ever to come along, laughs at his critics "all the way to the bank." Born Wladziu Valentino Liberace in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, May 16, 1920, Lee was turned down by a dance band when he was 16, but managed to win a solo spot with the Chicago Symphony a little later. He then became a hotel and nightclub performer, acquired the essentials of showmanship (the candelabra and the dress) which have marked his performances since. A topnotch concert and recording artist, he bowed with his own TV show in 1952, wos an instantaneous sensation. He's played all over the world from the London Palladium to the New York City Paramount, frequently with brother George wielding the baton in the pit. Lee's still a bachelor, made film debut in 1955, "Sincerely Yours."

When he wrote those famous words, "All the world's a stage" Shakespeare, in his most vivid imagination, could never have dreamed that they would literally come true. But TV has performed that miracle, bringing the finest drama into homes the world over. A few seasons ago, it was predicted that fine drama on TV was on the way out-but now TV drama is stronger than ever. Last season saw some of the theatre's greatest names in lavish productions of great plays, with plans for even bigger productions this season. NBC, concentrating on specials, is pouring a staggering, recordbreaking $1,200,000 into a single play-their Nov. 20 production of "Macbeth." Two new drama shows, CBS' "Robert Herridge Theatre" and NTA's "Play of the Week" have also contributed greatly to the TV drama that has truly made the whole world a stage.

ALL THE WORL

EDDIE ALBERT, besides being one of TV's best actors, successfully subs for vacotioning Jack Paar, teams with wife Margo in nightclub acts, recently starred on Broadway in "The Music Man." Born in Rock Island, Ill., on April 22, Eddie started singing on radio in Minneapolis, where he grew up and ottended the University. When announcers mispronounced his own "Eddie Hemburger" as "Hamburger," he chonged it. Favorite of his many roles is that of being a fond dad to Eddie, Jr., 9.

ED BEGLEY, one of TV's best-known dramatic actors, is the veteran of many a top role on stage and screen, and his radio shows number over 12,000! A native of Hartford, Conn., where he was born March 25, 1901, Ed decided to be an actor in 1931. It was a wise decision, for his success was almost immediate. After playing many stage roles, he deserted Broadway to make his movie bow in 1947 in "Boomerang." Recently seen in "Odds Against Tomorrow," Ed lost his wife two years ago.

BARBARA BEL GEDDES naturally became an actress, being the daughter of famed stage designer Norman Bel Geddes. Born in New York, Oct. 31, 1923, she made her bow at 17 in "Out of the Frying Pan." Unsuccessful in mavies, she came back to Broadway to star in such stage hits as "The Moon Is Blue," and "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof," and many TV dramas. Married to producer Windsor Lewis, she has two daughters, Susan 15, and Betsy, 7, recently came back to movies in "The Five Pennies."

CHARLES BICKFORD was an engineer with an MIT degree who would never have become an actor had he not been stranded on a construction job in San Francisco. A man he met in a restaurant offered him a stage job, and Ckarles, down to his lost $3, accepted. Since then, he's taken time out only to be a Lieutenant of Engineers in WW I. Wed to Beatrice Laring in 1919, the star of MCA's "Man Behind the Bodge" and TV dramas has a daughter, Doris, son Red. Born in Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 1.

LARRY BLYDEN scored one of last season's greatest triumphs in the title role of the NBC production, "What Makes Sammy Run?" Born in Houston, Jexas, Larry attended the University of Houston, from 1946 to 1948 worked in Houston radio stations. But New York beckoned, and he went there to continue in radio, then play in such Broadway hits as "Mr. Roberts," "Wish You Were Here," and "Oh, Men, Oh Women." He's also done much TV. He is wed to the musical stor Carol Haney.

RED BUTTONS surprised everybody when, after a bad flop with a TV comedy show, he walked away with an Oscar for "Sayonara." But then, Red's career is full of strange quirks. After rising from his birthplace on the Lower East Side, through the Borscht Circuit, he was chosen by José Ferrer for a farce laid in Peorl Harbor—opening date, Dec. 8, 1941. On the day he was to leave for a Hollywood role, his draft notice orrived. The Army's "Winged Victory" led to his fome. Red has a wife, Helayne.

LEE J. COBC, born to news compositor Jacob Cobb in New York on Dec. 9, was a violin prodigy. But on the eve of his Carnegie Hall debut, he fell and broke his wrist. Undaunted, he switched to aeronautical engineering, then to acting. Slowly but surely, he built a solid career to the peak of the Broadway hit, "Death of a Salesman," has been busy ever since. Divorced from Helen Beverly, they have son Vincente, 16, daughter Julie, 13. He wed L. A. schoolteacher Mary Brocko in 1957.

PETER FALK started acting only four years ago, at the age of 28. Manhattan-born (Sept. 16, 1928), he had prepared himself for government work, earning a Masters Degree at Syracuse U.—where he couldn't tear himself away from the theatre department. He was an efficiency expert for Connecticut's state government when he gave in to the urge, gave himself three months to make good—and has never been aut of work since. Recently starred in movies' "Murder, Inc.," Pete's married.

GREER GARSON, who turned in a delightful performance last season in "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," nowadays leaves her happy life on husband Buddy Fogelson's ranch in New Mexico only for especially intriguing roles. Born in County Down, Ireland, Sept. 29, 1908, Greer went from teaching to acting. Signed by MGM, she was almost dropped when "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" put her back in them. A top Academy Award winner (for Mrs. Miniver") Greer shines in "Sunrise at Campobello."

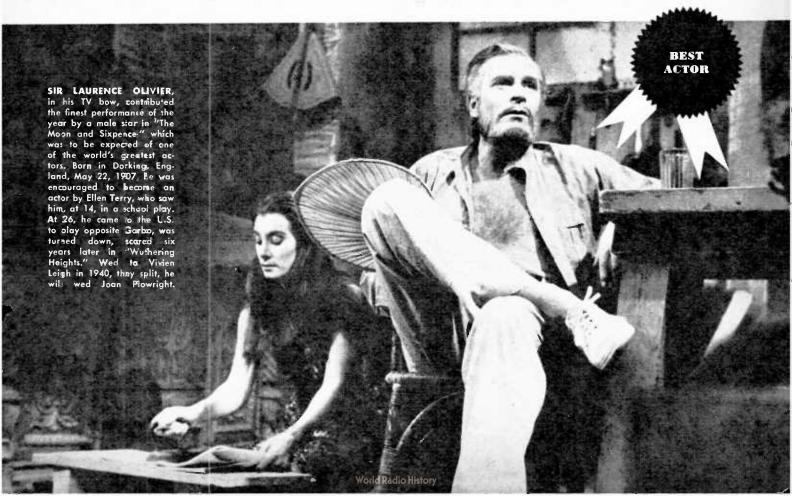

HARRY GUARDINO could have become a juvenile delinquent or worse in the tough section of Brooklyn where he was born on Dec. 31, 1925, if the Police Athletic League hadn't interested him in acting. But after graduation from Haaren High into the Navy for 3 years as a gunner's mate, he came back to study at the Dramatic Workshop, struggle and starve until, as understudy to Tony Franciosa in "Hatful of Rain," he gat the part when Tony left for Hollywood, and a chance to prove his worth. He's single.

JUEIE HARRIS is a fragile looking girl, just 5'4" and 105 pounds, but she's made a tremendous impression on Broadway with roles in "A Member of the Wedding" and more recently on TV in a brilliant portrayal in classic "Ethan Frome." Born in Grosse Pointe, Michigan, Julie is the daughter of an investment banker and a trained nurse. She came to New York for schooling, became an avid movie fan, once saw 52 in a month. Married to business managerwriter Manning Gurian, mother of a son.

STIRLING HAYDEN, born in Montclair, N.J., March 26, 1916, took to the sea as a youth. Over a year ago he deserted a long, flourishing movie career to go back to it, taking his four children on a voyage to Tahiti that resulted in a headlined battle with ex-wife Betty DeNoon. But all is peaceful now, for Sterling brought them back safe and sound and settled down to work again, giving one of TV's best performances last season in "Ethan Frome." He recently married Catherine McConnell.

D'S A STAGE

VAN HEFLIN was lured from a life as a two-fisted sailar when a New York friend talked him into trying a stage role. So intrigued was Van that he went back to Oklahoma, where he was born Emmet Evan Heflin in Walters, Dec. 13, finished his remaining two years at the U. of Okla. in one, and enrolled in Yale Drama School. Since his first hit in "End of Summer" in 1936, he's been going strang. Wed to Frances Neal in 1942, they have daughters Vanna, 16, Cathy, 13, son Tracy, 5.

ARTHUR KENNEDY, one of the best altaround actors on stage, screen and TV, was first discovered by James Cagney and signed for a lead in the movie, "City For Conquest." Born John Arthur Kennedy in Worcester, Mass., on Feb. 17, 1914, he went straight from Carnegie Tech to Broadway. He's been acting ever since, excepting three years' time out for service in the Air Force. He was recently seen in the movie, "Elmer Gantry," often turns up on the Late Show, too. Arthur is happily wed.

JESSIE ROYCE LANDIS, for years a famed character actress, had her eye on a singing career, but switched to drama when she made her Broadway debut in "Honor of the Family" in 1926. Jessie was born in Chicago in 1904, and made her movie bow in "Mr. Belvedere Goes to College." Ta fufill her many acting commitments on stage, screen and TV, she now commutes between New York, London and Hallywood. Her greatest fan, who travels with her, is her husband the retired Major General J. F. R. Seitz.

CHARLES LAUGHTON has expanded his long and illustrious career to include directing, now is as often behind the camera as in front of it. Born in Scarsbrough, England, July 1, 1889, he got his first movie break in "Three Sisters," came to Hollywood in 1932 for "Payment Deferred." Now a TV regular in dramas, readings and sketches, he's also enjoyed on the Late Show in his Oscar-winning role in "The Private Life of Henry VIII." His marriage to Elsa Lanchester, has lasted over 32 years.

PIPER LAURIE turned her back on a U-l contract that brought her movie stardom because she was called upon for nathing more than to look decorative. Her fine talent was saved by TV, where she scored in the memorable "Days of Wine and Roses." Born Rosetta Jacobs on Jan. 22 in Detroit, she was named Piper Laurie by the movie studio, which signed her two months after she finished high school. She's hated it ever since, but at least, on TV has made it a name to reckon with. Piper's still single.

GEORGE MACREADY, after more than a decade as an ace movie character actor, specializing in villainous roles, has found a constant call for his talents on TV. Born in Providence, R. 1., the menacing George majored in math, of all things, at Brown University. A switch to acting, and soon he debuted in "Macbeth." Before heading for Hollywood, George ran an art gallery with another former movie villain who is now well-known to TV audiences. You guessed it—George's old friend is Vincent Price.

PATTY McCORMACK can hardly wait for those grownup roles, but in the meantime, TV is finding plenty to keep the 15-year-old miss busy. Formerly star in the series, "Peck's Bad Girl," she's appeared in many top dramas. A seasoned child actress, she got her big break on Broadway in "The Bad Seed," was called to Hollywood to repeat her role in the movie version. Lately, she went back to movies again for "Huckleberry Finn." But Patty doesn't care which medium she works in, long as she can act.

RODDY McDOWALL, born in Herne Hill, London, England, on Sept. 17, 1928, made 16 British and 15 American films before he was 19, including the unforgettable "How Green Was My Valley," having made his film debut at 8½. So successful was he that his dad gave up his London trucking busines and his parents and sister Virginia came with Roddy to America in 1940. Roddy, still single, lives in New York, where he's always in demand for stage and TV roles. Offstage, he's a crack amateur photographer.

DINA MERRILL wouldn't have to act, or even lift a finger—she's a socialite and heiress to a large fortune. But she wanted to be an actress since childhood, so she studied at the American Academy and made her Broadway bow at 18. Her career was shelved for a time while she became Mrs. Stanley Rumbough and the mother of three children, but she resumed it, made a hit on TV and consequently was nabbed for movies. The lovely New Yorker was last in "Sundowners," but TV is her first love.

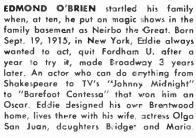

GARY MERRILL, often seen on "Playhouse 90" and other top TV drama shows, was born in Hartford, Conn., Aug. 21, 1915, began his theatrical career in the midthirties, and after enlisting in the Air Force was recruited for their show, "Winged Victory." A post-war Broadway hit in "Born Yesterday" led to Hollywood and his first movie, "Slattery's Hurricane." Divorced from Barbara Leeds, he wed Bette Davis after they made "All About Eve" together, but the marriage recently ended in divorce.

MAURICE EVANS, one of the great Shakespearean actors, was the logical choice for the starring role in NBC's record-break-$1,200,000 production of "Macbeth." Maurice got his frst role in his native Dorchester, England, at age 8, when a youth scheduled became indisposed from overindulgence in cider. He's been acting ever since. Now a U.S. citizen, he served in the Army, where "GI Hamblet" brought fame. JUDITH ANDERSON, who plays Lady Macbeth, was brought all the way from Sydney, Australia where she made her stage debut at 17, to star on Broadway for David Belasco. Born in Adelaide, Austrolia, Feb. 10, 1858, Jucith has gone to the top of her profession, in stage roles, mov-es, and TV, and recently made a hit on "Play of the Week" in "Medea." She's been married to Luther Green for many years.

SIMON OAKLAND has been on just about every TV show there is, but was especially effective in Armstrong Circle Theatre's fine drama, "The Prison Professor." Formerly a violinist, he's now also featured in such tough-type movies as "Murder, Inc.," "Psycho," and the new "West Side Story." When not busy acting, Simon lives in Jackson Heights with his wife, the former Lois Lorraine Porta, a 13-year-old daughter, a pedigreed cocker spaniel, and four parakeets. Yes, he can and still does play that violin.

1941, when dad, Dr. Leon Page, promised to send her to Goodman Theatre School if he was impressed by her performance at church as Jo in "Little Women." He was. In New York, jobs from waitress to negligee model kept her in eating money until she clicked in "Mid-Summer." She's divorced. ELEANOR PARKER took a vacation from

GERALDINE PAGE, who at 35 enjoyed her greatest success in Tennessee Williams

Broadway hit, "Sweet Bird of Youth," was no overnight success. Born in Kirksville,

Mo., Nov. 22, 1924, she began acting in movies to raise children Susan, Sharon and son Richard, by her marriage to Bert Friedlob, and baby Paul Clemens, Jr., born to her and artist-husband Paul Clemens. Born in Cedarville, Ohio, June 26, 1922, Eleanor was signed by Warners in 1941. Although she recently made a movie, "Home From the Hill," she likes her many TV roles because they don't require so much time away from her family. Eleanor's acting has won three Academy Award nominations.

NEHEMIAH PERSOFF was born Aug. 14, in Jerusalem. A solid background of theatrical training led to Hollywood, where he made a smash film debut in the hit movie, "On the Waterfront." One of the best of all-around character actors, he appeared not long ago in the light comedy, "Some Like It Hot." His face has become one of the most familiar on TV, via a top role in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and outstanding portrayals in series such as "Twilight Zone,

"Desilu Playhouse," and "The Untouchables."

JASON ROBARDS, JR. knows he has "arrived"—"I was 'romantically linked' with Kim Novak in three columns ond we never met!" This was one result of the triple success he scored in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" on Playhouse 90, "The Disenchanted" on Broadway, and "The Journey" in movies. Son of silent screen actor Jason Robords, he grew up in Hollywood, followed in his father's footsteps after 7 years in the Navy during World War II. Now 37, he's played 200 TV roles, won acclaim as "Macbeth."

MARIA SCHELL, long one of Europe's top movie stars, won fame in the U.S. as "the girl who got the part Marilyn Monroe wanted in 'The Brothers Karamazov.' "The movie was a flop, but Maria came back on TV in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Born Jan. 15, 1926, in Vienna, the 5'2" blonde grew up in Switzerland, where her father, a noted writer, took the family to escape WW II. Wed to German director Horst Hoechler in 1957, they have a home in Germany. She recently made the picture "Cimmaron."

MAXIMILIAN SCHELL, 29-year-old brother of the talented Maria, is giving his sister a run for family honors on TV these days. Like Maria, he was born in Vienna, moved with the family to Switzerland to escape the war. Unlike Maria, he planned to become a concert pianist after attending the University of Zurich, but later decided acting was the life for him. A star in many German films, Max came to America for a role with Marlon Brando in "The Young Lions," has done well since. He's a bachelor.

WILLIAM SHATNER came from Montreal, Canada, to conquer TV via 14 starring roles, win a Hollywood role in "The Brothers Karamazov," then star on Broadways in "The World of Suzie Wong." A former member of Canada's famed Stratford Players, he's also performed often in England. Married to Gloria Rand, they have a 2-year-old daughter, Leslie. Successful as he has been in all theatrical fields, Bill's first love will always be TV, which he feels was responsible for establishing his success.

WALTER SLEZAK is the son of Leo Slezak, a renowned Viennese opera singer. Although Walter made his film debut in 1922 in "Sodom and Gomorrah," it was only natural that he should find himself playing in musical comedies in Berlin, from whence he was brought to America in 1929 for a similar light item called "Met My Sister." But once established on these shores, he proved his versatility in Hollywood in such roles as the Nazi in "Lifeboat." This ability to play any part brought top TV roles.

KIM STANLEY once called Broadway critics "fatheads"—but lived to win their tremendous respect in "Picnic" and "Bus Stop." Candid Kim, however, remains loyal to TV, where she got her first real breaks on the old "NBC Television Playhouse." Born Patricia Reid in Tularosa, N. M., Feb. 11, Kim majored in psychology at U. of Texas, graduated in 1946, gave herself her new name when she took to acting. Divorced, she lives in N. Y. with children Lisa, 7, Jamison, 5, and 2½-yr.-old Laurie-Rachel.

MAUREEN STAPLETON likes poker, movie magazines, five and tens, noise, good jokes and loafing. She hates sports, travel, cooking, and work. The aversion for work stems from the days when she left her native Troy to knock 'em dead on Broadway and instead almost knocked herself out going to drama school by day and running a billing machine at night. Years of similar struggle ended when she got the lead in 'The Rose Tattoo' on Broadway. One of TV's finest actresses, she lives in New York, is divorced.

ROD STEIGER insists he became an actor "because I like girls." Born in Westhampton, L. I., April 14, 1925, he grew up in Newark, joined the Navy at 16, never even saw a professional play until 1946, when he joined a drama group at the Veterans' Administration where he worked. He'd found out that was where the girls went. Most recent of many outstanding movie roles was in "Seven Thieves." Divorced from Sally Gracie, Rod is wed to Claire Bloam, recently became a dad.

DEAN STOCKWELL always hated being "that adorable little boy" who starred in 18 MGM films, including "Anchors Aweigh." But he was breadwinner for his mother and older brother Guy after his acting parents divorced. Since his birth, March 6, 1936, in North Hollywood, Dean lived for the day he could break away. When he did, to travel for two years, he found he loved acting, came bock to win new fame on TV and in stage-movie hit, "Compulsion." He's married to actress Millie Perkins.

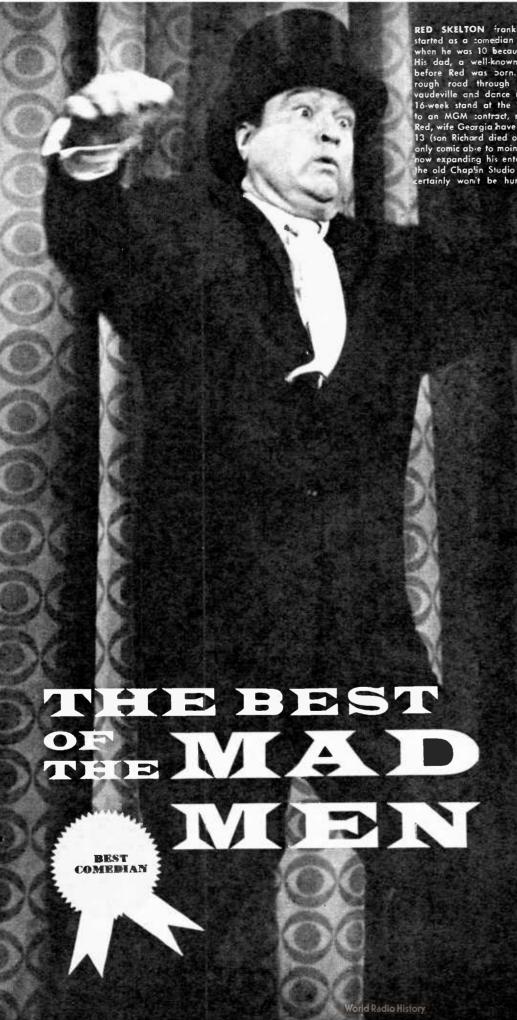

SUSAN STRASBERG, who won praise on Desilu Playhouse's "Debut" a while ago, didn't get any encouragement from her dad, famed director Lee Strasberg of Actors Studio. Lee and his wife, Paula, had seen acting rob yaungsters af childhood too often. But Susie persisted, and at 14, backed up by friend Jo Van Fleet, finally won her parents' consent to try an off-Broadway role in "Maya." Her rave notices did the rest, and she became Broadway's youngest star in "The Diary of Anne Frank."

FRANCHOT TONE comes by that smooth sophistication naturally, being son of wealthy Frank J. Tone, president of the Carborundum Co. of America (now succeeded by Franchot's brother, Frank J., Jr.). His social family frowned on his acting until he won Broadway leads, then movie stardom in 1931. Born Feb. 27, 1908, Fronchot was wed to—and divorced from—Joan Crawford and Jean Wallace (now Mrs. Cornel Wilde, mother of sons Pascal and Tom), Barbara Payton, Dolores Dorn-Heft.

ELI WALLACH, at age 12, made his stage debut playing a 65-year-old man in a school show in Brooklyn, where he was born Dec. 17, 1915. After getting a B.A. at the U. of Texas, a master's degree in education at New York's City College, he spent five years in the Army, on discharge became a charter member of the Actors Studio. Many stage roles led to the movie "Baby Doll," top IV dramas. Wed to actress Anne Jackson, the Wallachs have a son, Peter, nine, and a daughter, Roberto, 4.

TERESA WRIGHT, whose stunning TV performance in "The Margaret Bourke White Story" last season won't soon be forgotten, won an Oscar nomination in only her second film, "Mrs. Miniver." A girl from Maplewood, N. J., where she was born Nov. 11, 1919, Teresa spent teen summers in stock, debuted on Broadway in "Life With Father," was whisked to Hollywood for "The Little Foxes." Divorced from Niven Busch, she has a daughter Mary, 13, a son Niven Jr., 15, wed Robert Anderson.

ED WYNN staged one of show business' greatest comebacks when "Requiem for a Heavyweight" on TV apened a brand new career as a dramatic actor to the former top comedy star. Ed was born in Philadelphia on Nov. 9, 1886, made his stage bow at 15. When vaudeville died, he went on to become the "Perfect Fool" on radio and stage. Dad of well-known actor Keenan Wynn, Ed now has all the jobs he can handle on TV, also does an occasional movie like "The Diary of Anne Frank."

RED SKELTON frankly admits that he started as a comedian in a medicine show when he was 10 because, "I was hungry." His dad, a well-known circus clown, died before Red was porn. Red went on the rough road through circuses, burlesque, vaudeville and dance marathons before a 16-week stand at the N.Y. Paramount led to an MGM contract, radio and TV fame. Red, wife Georgia have daughter Valentina, 13 (son Richard died of leukemia). As the only comic able to mointain a regular show, now expanding his enterprises as owner of the old Chaplin Studio with big plans, Red ertainly won't be hungry again.

TEN IS NO MAGIC NUMBER by RED SKELTON

I don't know what it is about the number 10 that makes people sit up and take notice. Now that my show is starting its tenth year on television, I suddenly find myself pictured as some kind of oracle on the subject of comedy. There's a rumor that I've been auoted in wisdom.

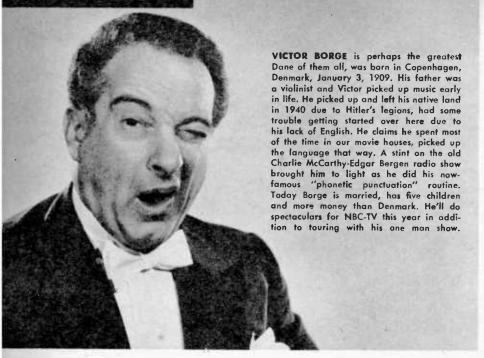

Well, ten years in television should qualify a comedian for something. even if it's only an eleventh year. But as far as analyzing my own durability is concerned. I'm afraid you won't find the answer here. I can only tell you my formula-you try to make people love you.

As for television comedy in general. I feel that public taste is something you don't try to analyze. You're too busy trying to please it to worry about what it is. I have about 600 routines I can do, yet I can't tell you why any of them are funny. It still surprises me when I hear people laughing at some of my stuff. I kind of think it surprises mv sponsor, too.

This much is true . . . television comedy is better than it was in its early days. It's more refined, and a bigger percentage of your jokes get laughs, probably because we've learned what comes across on television and what doesn't. Even so, we come up with our share of clinkers. You can't win every time.

In the years ahead. I suppose there'll still be a place for a Red Skelton. because audiences will always need the laugh-with-a-tear that only clowns can bring. I don't want to discuss the prospects of other comedians, or types of comedy-I'm a clown, not a critic. And critics belong on the other side of the footlights.

MIKE NICHOLS, who's married, but not to Elaine May (she's still single), was born in Berlin, Germany, 28 years ago, come to the U. S. at seven to join his father Dr. Poul Nichols. After high school, Mike trouped to Chicago University, joined a little theatre group in 1953, also got a job as a radio announcer. Together with Eloine, he's appeared on most of the top TV shows, will do specials.

ELAINE MAY, along with sidekick Mike Nichols, hos become one of our foremost comediennes. Born in Philly, the daughter of the late actor-writer Jack Berlin, she began studying dramatics at 16 on the Coast, a year later got a job writing scenorios. Now 27, Elaine met Mike in Chicago, they teamed, toured and triumphed in clubs first, later became TV hits with spot improvisations.

DON ADAMS is a native of New York who began his professional career in 1948 at the Bar of Music in Miami Beach as a partner of Jay Lawrence. The pair did 100 impressions in 20 minutes. The pair worked together for a year or so, then went their separate ways. Don credits Steve Allen and Garry Moore with helping him, for both gave him exposure and had faith in his ability. Don is a Marine veteran—he served in the South Pacific—is morried, a father of four daughters. Does many guest shots.

DAYTON ALLEN is tall—somewhere between six and eight feet—has a repertoire of some 35 impersonations and 26 dialects in voice ranges from "kids to seniles." Born Dayton Allen Bolke in New York City, Sept. 24, 1919. He became interested in dramatics in high school, got a disc jockey job, then wrote the Elsa Maxwell radio show for NBC. He's also spoken dialogue for movie cartoons, TV puppets. Known to millions of kids and adults for his "Why Not" character on the Steve Allen Show.

SHELLEY BERMAN is the most successful of today's not-so-sick comics; his monologues are enormously populor with the chic night-club crowd and the beatniks alike. Sheldon was born in Chicago on Feb. 3, 1926, went to Manly High where he wanted to be a doctor, then a lawyer of the Darrow school. After school Berman joined the Navy, but asthma knocked him out in a hurry. He married Sarah Herman in 1947, still a no-body. Then stock work and finally clubs. The Steve Allen Show got him going big.

JOEY BISHOP has a built-in ability to ad lib which makes him ideal for nightclub work, ponel shows and frequent appearances with Jack Paar. Joey first felt the urge to emote during his high school days in his native Philadelphia. After an Army stint, Bishop organized a nightclub act and it was through the clubs that his fame spread. His dry, sardonic brand of humor has a perfect foil in Jack Paar and his finest tribute is the fact that many of his most ardent fans are show business people.

JACK CARTER is a Brooklyn boy who started out to be a serious actor. His first effort, at New Utrecht High, was in the title role of "Cyrono de Bergerac" and it won him a scholarship to Feagan Dramatic School. He was octing at the Millpond Playhouse, at Roslyn, L.l., when the famous Christopher Morley, impressed with his adlibbing and comedy touches, urged him to be a comic. Years of experience with the USO, in vaudeville, nightclubs, and TV have resulted in making him one of the best.

IMOGENE COCA appeared at nine as a tap dancer, hosn't been out of show business since. Born in Philly, the daughter of an orchestra leader and o voudevillian, she become a solo dancer on Broadway, appeared in many reviews in the theatre and in nightclubs all over the country. She became a funny gal in 1934 with "New Faces" of that year, has been funny ever since. She ond Sid Caesar teamed for years over TV. Imagene's first husband died, and she's now married to actor King Donovan.

WALLY COX is the birdlike man who first drew attention as a nightclub comic who whistled Bach and did soft-sell comedy. He came to national prominence as "Mr. Peepers," but his career has died down since those days. Barn in Detroit, Sept. 6, 1924, Cox went to New York's City College, the School of Industrial Arts, then set himself up in the men's jewelry business before turning to the stage and the clubs. Of late Wally has been making guest appearances on such shows as Jack Paar, Red Skelton, Bob Hope.

BILL DANA, wha produced the "Spike Jones Show" over CBS-TV this past summer, was seen last year with Steve Allen as the zany Latin, "Jose Jimenez." Dana was born in Quincy, Moss., Oct. 5, 1924, the youngest of four Szathmary brothers. Dana's family was musical and he picked this up, today is a successful member of ASCAP (He wrote "All About Love") in addition to his acting and producing chores. Bill's association with Steve Allen dates back to the old "Tonight Show" days as he helped write for the show GABE DELL was not named for the firm that publishes this magazine, came into the world Gabriel Del Vecchio in Brooklyn on October 4, 1919. Though he wanted to became a doctor, Gabe joined the famous Bowery Boys in a series of comedies which starred Leo Gorcey. Gobe served with the Merchant Marine during World Wor Two, ministering to the sick which helped him realize his medical ambitions. But comedy turns on the Steve Allen Show, among others, have proved profitable for Gabe.

JIMMY DURANTE is, to many people, the greatest comedian of them all, a famous vaudeville stor, a great one in the days of radio and a moster on TV. Jimmy started—a few years after his birth on Feb. 10, 1893, in New York City, playing the piano in a Coney Island beer garden. He later owned his own club where the team Clayton, Jackson and Durante was formed. But his greatest fame came later as a single. Jimmy's been a big hit in movies too, still brightens the TV screen with guest appearances.

HERMIONE GINGOLD is affectionately known as "England's best beloved witch," played one on the screen in "Bell, Book and Candle." Known for her polished manner and barbed wit, Hermione was born in London, got her start with the Old Vic, became well-known as a Shakespearean actress. It wasn't till World War Two that she entered the musical comedy field. Twice married and the mother of two sons, Hermione has mode a big hit in American TV and on the Broadway stage, is toying with a TV series.

GEORGE GOBEL is still the some old "Lone-some George" he was when he attracted national attention, was riding high. Born in Chicago, May 20, 1920, George is married to the former Alice Huecke, his high school sweetheart, has three children. A boy soprano, he song on NBC's National Barn Dance and other shows, played bits, went into the service in World War Two, became a pilot and developed comedy routines. It took him a long time to develop an act—now his career needs another shot in the arm.

COMEDIANS

BUDDY HACKETT, like Danny Kaye, Eddie Fisher, Sid Caesar and many others, is an alumnus of the fabled "Borscht Circuit." A good "stand up" camic, he's equally at home behind the Broadway faotlights ("Lunatics and Lovers") ar the Hollywood cameras ("God's Little Acre"). Hackett's pudgy face and rolling eyes have delighted patrons of nightspots from Philadelphia to Las Vegas and TV addicts on all the channels. Buddy lives in Leonia, New Jersey, with his wife, Sherry, and a small son, Sondy.

ALAN KING's the guy they call "the average man's Schopenhauer." Be that as it may, Alan began life in Brooklyn, put together his own band at 14, hit the Borscht Circuit a year later on his own. After high school graduation he got club work in and around New York. His agent wangled him into the Palace in 1949, then he went soaring. Comic on the bill with many top singers, Alan's been in movies and has played tap spots from here to London and back. Naw a frequent TV guest on many top shows.

DAVE KING, who toak Perry Camo's NBC slot two summers ago and continued on many top shows, went over as big with Americans as with his native Englishmen. There the "British Como" (so-called because of his relaxed manner) is a top TV camic and disc artist. Having left school at 12, at 15 he swung anto the British music hall circuit. After an R.A.F. stint, in 1954 he broke into TV. Born June 23, 1929, the 5'8" performer is married and has two girls. His hobby: collecting American Indian folklore.

PHIL SILVERS, whose "Bilko" show continues to run its riotous course viā reruns, was born May 11, 1912 in Broaklyn, U.S.A. A boy tenar in vaude-ville and a camedian of the top banana variety in burlesque when vaude-ville breathed its last, Silvers first hit the Broadway stage in "Yokel Bay," became a stor. Movies got him first in 1940 with "The Hit Parade." From there he made a succession of laugh-filled films, then the award-winning Bilko Show. This season, he will be starring in CBS-TV specials. Phil is married, he and wife Evelyn have two lovely little girls, Tracey, 3, Muncy, 1. Lately, he's also branching out as a praducer of TV shows on the side.

BOB HOPE was born outside London, England, May 26, 1904, has traveled close to two million miles to give our G.I.'s some laughs. After a start in vaudeville, Bob graduated to the Broadway stage and such plays as "Roberta," "Ziegfeld Follies" and "Red, Hot and Blue." Author of four books ("They Got Me Covered," etc.) and star of countless movies—with and without Crosby—Bob's been married to Dolores for 28 years, has four adopted kids. A recent eye affliction hasn't slowed him down much. In addition to his schedule of NBC-TV specials, he's been hard at work, co-starring with Lucille Ball in a new movie, "The Facts of Life"—and golfing.

DON KNOTTS is the nervous little fellow who's been convulsing people on Steve Allen's now moribund show for the past several seasons. The nervous bit, Don claims, came sort of naturally. He spent his first five professional years as radio performer Windy Wails. Then he was a cowboy. Then came a radio serial in which he played a neurotic. A fine mimic (remember his "Mort Salt") with a great talent for the double take, Dan will do specials, is a regular on "The Andy Griffith Show." Don is married.

LOUIS NYE is admired by his fellow laughmakers for his monumental ability with the ad lib. Completely at home in meladrama, slapstick, dialect comedy, mimicry—almost any farm of the performing art—Nye struggled to overcame painful shyness as a boy in Hartford, Conn. Louis found the Army a perfect place to perfect his talent for mimicry and after discharge he headed for New York to become an actor. Nye's now frequently seen as a guest and panelist. Not yet 40, he's married and he's a father.

TONY RANDALL was constantly frustrated as a child in his native Tulsa, Okla., because traveling with his dad, an art dealer, cut him out of all the school plays. After a year at Northwestern U., Tony lit out for New York's Neighborhood Playhouse, got his first stage role in "A Circle of Chalk" in 1941, a TV reputation as Mr. Weskit in the "Mr. Peepers" show. An all-around actor as well as ace comedian, Tony's happily wed to a non-pro, Florence, who shares his current hobby of art callecting.

CARL REINER left a job as a $12-a-week shipping clerk to be an $8-a-week machinist's helper, because the boss gave him time off to go to drama schoal. Then he joined a theatre group—and after long apprenticeship was paid: $1 a night! Carl's association with Sid Caesar, which began with "Your Show of Shows," in 1952, made money worries a thing of the past. The Bronx, N. Y.-born Carl, 37, his wife and children, have a home in New Rochelle, New York. Carl often makes movies, too.

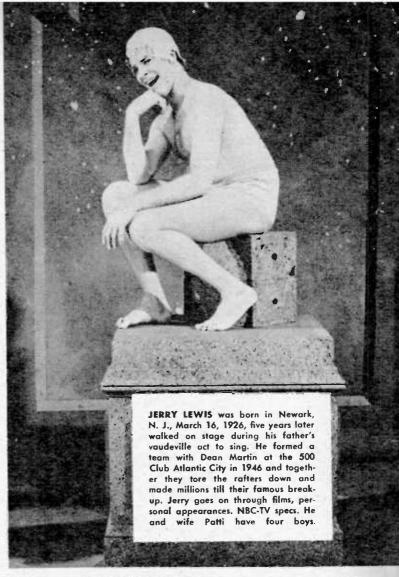

FRANK SHUSTER, with his partner Johnny Wayne, has been signed to an exclusive full year contract for the Ed Sullivan Show. The Canadian comedy boys started out as members of a Boy Scout troop when they pooled their talents, turned out a play that netted the troop $40. After high school and college collaborations, they played on radio for a bit until the war. Neither partner comes from a theatrical family. Says Shuster: "The nearest I came is on my father's side. He owned a movie house, was the projectionist."

JOHNNY WAYNE, with his partner Frank Shuster, was in one of the first entertainment groups to go to Normandy after D-Day. After a lengthy tour, including France, Belgium and Holland, the pair were commissioned by the Canadian Government to do a radia series. He's been associated with Shuster for some 25 years now, starting with their high school days at Harbord Collegiate Institute, when they were both just 14. Through their long association they've kept their good humor, never had a quarrel.

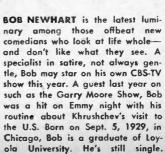

JONATHAN WINTERS was born in Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 11, 1925, started out to become a commercial artist, then became a disc jockey, working out impressions and monologues during records. He can imitate almost any sound, animal, human or mechanical, presents a smiling and innocent cherubic face in clubs and on TV. He's guested with Jack Poar and sat in for the maestro during some of Paar's frequent vacations. Jon has also kicked up his heels in Broadway revues. He's wed, has a son.

MORT SAHL is the nightclub and TV comic generally regarded as the most acid of the present barb-throwers. Beloved by the beats, Mort tosses his darts at any moving targets, with a preference for politicians. Born in Montreal, Canada, May 11, 1927 as Morton Lyon Sahl, he kicked around for years, settled in California. Released from the Army in 1947—still a private—Mort got his first job at a club, the "hungry i" in Frisco. He is divorced.

THIS WAY TO ADVENTURE

World Radio History

IT COULDN'T HAPPEN-BUT IT DID by GARDNER MCKAY

They said it couldn't be done. The series received the biggest buildup that old-timers in the new business of Television could remember. And then it hit the airand promptly was panned mercilessly from coast to coast.

But "Adventures In Paradise" is back for its second season. Somebody must like us. For one thing I'm proud of something like 3000 fan letters I receive every week at 20th Century-Fox studios in Hollywood.
And from all indications "Adventures In Paradise" might very well wind up its second year as one of the top series extant.

All the ingredients are there. The studio has repainted the South Pacific, including one brand new South Seas village set on a back lot lagoon which cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. The weekly scripts are stronger—with more music under swaying palms and dancing native beauties and action on the open seas. Dockside drama is gone. My schooner, "The Tiki," and I are the only holdovers from the first season. There are new producers, new directors, seven new sets and a new cast which includes gruff George Tobias, sex kitten Sondi Sodsai, James Holden, Lani Kair and a new guest girl for each

It has been said that I outfoxed the critics. The turning point apparently came when the studio told me to stop struggling with the character of Adam Troy and to act natural. Relaxation resulted. One columnist wrote that the actor "who had been dubbed in some quarters as 'the cardboard lover' suddenly became human." And "Adventures In Paradise" finished high up in the ratings, sponsors unhesitatingly grabbed it up for another season and there you have a strange sort of Cinderella success story.

I don't believe I've changed much personally. I still drive a four-year-old convertible of ordinary make. I still live in a one-room apartment. I rarely visit Hollywood night spots. I try to personally answer all my fan mail.

And I am fiercely proud of "Adventures In Paradise." I think that the series which had been rapped so roughly by the reviewers early last season will wind up its second year as one of the strongest shows.

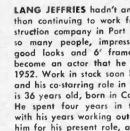

I am especially grateful to the fans who stayed with us during those rough early months. We're going to keep in there pitching all the way!

JAMES HOLDEN a native of Birmingham, Ala., awes his success to Bing Crosby. While in Hollywood he met Bing, who suggested he study acting and lent him the maney. A role in the play "Command Decision" won him a War-ner Bros. contract.

JIM DAVIS had a brief day in the sun when as an unknown, a few years ago, he was chasen as Bette Davis' leading man in "Winter Meeting." The picture was a resounding flop, but now Jim has come back strang, first via Studio City's "Stories of the Century," then in "Rescue 8." Jim was barn in Edgerton, Ma., Aug. 26, 1915, made his film debut in "White Cargo" with Esther Williams. He's 6'3", likes wrestling, tennis, galf, riding and boxing. He's married to Blanche Ames, has a daughter, Tara, 7.

LANG JEFFRIES hadn't any other ambition than continuing to work for his dad's construction company in Port Huron, Mich. But so many people, impressed by his dark good looks and 6' frame, urged him to become an actor that he gave it a try in 1952. Work in stock soon led to Hollywood and his co-starring role in "Rescue 8." Lang is 36 years old, born in Canada on June 7. He spent four years in the Army which, with his years working outdoors, toughened him for his present role, a demanding one.

MARTY MILNER, who stars in this new Screen Gems series seen on CBS-TV, is a screen veteran, despite his youth. He had made several dozen movies before "Private Lives of Adam and Eve" brought him stardom, and has appeared in over 150 TV shows. Marty was born in Detroit, Mich., naturally became interested in movies because his dad was a film distributor, storted acting at age 10. 1957 was an important year for Marty-he married Judy Jones, TV actress and singer. They have daughter.

GEORGE MAHARIS had one aim in going into show business—to become a singer. He soon discovered that actors were in greater demand, so made a switch. A native of New York, George served three years in the Marines ofter high school, then came back to get his career going with a singing trio and in stock and TV, where he won recognition on "Mr. Peepers." Next to acting, George loves to paint in oils. He's so good that one of his works now graces the ceiling of the Lunt and Fontaine theotre.

CONNIE STEVENS was born Concetta Ann Ingolia, took the name of her dad, musicion Teddy Stevens. Born in Brooklyn, Aug. 8, 1938, Connie started singing with a trio, got a movie break in "Rockabye Baby," is now going strong at Warners in this ABC hit, a new movie, "Parrish," and on records. Connie, a pretty blonde 5'2", lives with her father in Los Angeles, is still single, but her steady fella is likeable Gary Clarke. BOB CONRAD changed his name from Conrad Robert Falk to start a singing career in Chicago. But a chance meeting with Nick Adams, who advised him to try Hollywood, led him there. He had rough going, but eventually landed TV roles at Worners. Then came "Hawaiian Eye"-and fame. Bob was born in Chicago Mar. 1, 1935, is 5'10", 160 lbs. He and his lovely wife, Joan, have two little daughters. They're all settled in Hollywood.

soldiers of fortune

JOHN RUSSELL never has to worry about being typed as Tim Kelly in this papular syndicated series. In the long movie career that began with "A Bell For Adana," he's played everything from heroes to heels. A former Marine, he'd just returned from Gucdalcanal when an agent spotted him in a Hollywood restaurant. A native of Los Angeles, he was born January 3, wed his wife, Renata, in '43. They live in San Fernando Valley with Renata Amy, 11, Shaunna, 10, John J., 7. Dad's alsa in "Lawman."

CHICK CHANDLER had his eye on West Point and a military career ever since he was a tot in Kingston, N.Y., where he was born to a famed New York surgeon. But acting and directing plays in the military schools he attended changed his mind.

After adventuring as a crewman on a tramp steamer, he joined a stock company, got a Broadway break in "The Great Magoo," leading to many movies and TV shows. He also had one of the first TV quiz shows.

Chick is now married to actress Jon Frontoi.

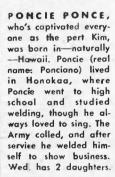

whirlybirds

KEN TOBEY got into the acting game when he joined a theatre group, because he wanted to improve his speech as a lawyer. But he was so good he won a scholarship to a N.Y. playhouse. There, he met Gregory Peck, who odvised him to stick to acting, and helped him get his first film rale. Ken was born March 21, 1919, hails fram San Francisco. His role of Chuck in CBS-TV Films' "Whirlybirds" is the latest of many successes on stage, screen and TV. He's a redheod, and very athletic, like his role.

CRAIG HILL, who was born Craighill Fowler 34 years ago, didn't have to go after a movie career—it came to him. Craig was appearing with a little theatre at Laguna Beach, where he grew up, where agent Henry Willson discovered him. The result was a film debut at 20th Century-Fox in "Cheaper by the Dozen." Craig's 6' build, green eyes, brown hair and attractive personality immediately won a large fan fallowing, increosed by his part as P.T. in this exciting airborne series. He's single.

ANTHONY EISLEY hails from Philadelphia, where he was born on Jan. 19, 1925. His name was Fred then, but it was changed when a tryout won him the role of Private Eye Tracy Steele. He'll always be Fred to his pretty wife, Judith, and Daddy to their two young children—David, who's 8, and Nancy, who's just 5 years old.

LLOYD BRIDGES has praved that it can pay to be all wet. His Mike Nelson of ZIV's hit "Sea Hunt" has brought him lasting fame and fortune. Born near the sea 47 years ago at San Leandro, Calif., Lloyd left it to study law, but dramatic club activities at UCLA led to a switch to acting. For Llayd, it was a lucky choice-while getting his training in stock he met a Columbia talent scout and his wife, Dorothy. Once in Hollywood, he played many roles before going underwater for "Sea Hunt." Now he lives close ta the Pacific with his wife and his two sons.

DARREN McGAVIN, who piloted "Riverboat" into a second successful season on NBC-TV, started as a paint boy in a Hollywood studio, became a scenic designer before the acting bug bit him. He won a Columbia contract, but had to start over after war service, via Broadway, films and TV. Also seen as MCA-TV's "Mike Hammer," he's wed, dad of 3.

adventures of robin hood

RICHARD GREENE, who plays the title role in CBS-TV's British-produced "The Adventures of Robin Hood," has been an international heart-stealer for several generations of females. Born in Plymouth, England, to a theatrical family, Dick played his first walk-on at age 3. At 22, he was spotted by a Zanuck scout and flown to Hollywood. His dimpled good looks held fans enthralled fill war called him back home. After his discharge, he did stage, film and TV roles in his native England.

adventures of william tell

CONRAD PHILLIPS lied about his age, and enlisted in Britain's Royal Navy during WW II. He was mined, shipwrecked and received a medical discharge—all before he was 20. But it was all child's play compared to filming some of the mountain scenes in NTA's "The Adventures of William Tell." Son of the noted English novelist of the same name, Conrad is 6', dark-haired, brown-eyed, and 35. He's married to exactress Jean Moir, has 81/2-year-old-son.

african patrol

JOHN BENTLEY is one of the most widely traveled of his breed. The nearly twenty films he's appeared in to date have taken him on location to every continent in the world. Currently settled down in Nairobi, East Africa, where all of "African Patrol" is being filmed, Bentley began his career at 16 an radia, after taking both octing and singing lessons. His natural singing voice brought him the leads in a number af musicals. Fram there he progressed to movies and finally into a television career.

bold venture

DANE CLARK broke into radia by writing his awn scripts. Previously, he'd attended Cornell, became a law graduate from St. Johns U. But, born in New York, he'd always felt the lure af Broadway, found himself on the stage. His radia plays led to jobs on every major radia show, then he left for Hollywood, where he won a contract with Warners that lasted for 7 years, many roles. In 1950 he left to make films around the world, qualifying him highly for his starring role in ZIV's "Bold Venture."

A DOG'S LIFE by HUCKLEBERRY HOUND

Golly—the editors of who's who IN TELEVISION have told me I'm Top Dog in TV now, and asked me to tell you my life story. They say I'm one of the highest-rated stars on TV, and I'm seen in 180 cities in America, and even places like Japan and Australia. Their publishing company, Dell, puts out "Huckleberry Hound" comic books and toys. And the students at the University of Washington even wanted to give me an honorary degree. Whee!

Actually, I'm just a pup. It was only three years ago that my masters, Bill Hanna and Joe Barbera, started their own cartoon company for Screen Gems, Hanna-Barbera Productions. My pals, Ruff and Reddy (they're on NBC now) were born first, then me. And pretty soon, along came Yogi Bear and Boo Boo, Mr. Jinks, Pixie and Dixie, Quick Draw McGraw, and all the rest. Lately, we've got some new pals, the Flintstones, on ABC-TV.

It's swell that a lot of grownups, as well as kids, like us too. My masters say that's because "we try to get back to the primary objective of cartooning—to caricature and satirize." I dunno what those big words mean. But I do know that it's got me a lot of puppy love—and if this is a dog's life, it's the greatest!

BOBBY DIAMOND, who plays Josy in NBC-TV's "Fury," is an old showbiz pro at 17. Born Aug. 23, 1943, in L.A., he started 2 years later—as a magazine cover model. The next year saw his movie debut in "The Mating of Millie." More film, stoge and TV roles fallowed. A hozel-eyed blond, Bob is odept at rifle marksmanship, archery, riding, sketching and model plane building. Musically inclined, he plays the clarinet and accordion. Active Little Leaguer and Scout.

PETER GRAVES, who plays Bobby Diamond's guardian Jim Newton, is the reallife brother of "Gunsmoke" star Jim Arness. Pete started out as a clarinet and sax man, but some film and TV roles convinced him that acting was reolly his game. A U. of Minnesota drama graduate, he also did radio announcing and stock before his big break. Married to his college sweetheart, Joan Endress, he has 2 daughters: Kelly Jeon 10, and Claudia, 6. He's 6'2", 180.

howdy doody

BOB SMITH says he has the youngsters to thank for the birth of "Howdy Doody." In 1946, as emcee of a children's show, he'd begin by saying, "Howdy doody, kids." They, in turn, began calling him "Howdy Doody" and the name's stuck ever since, from radio to TV, where it's still the title of NBC's popular kiddie show. Bob, known now to his young fans, as "Buffalo Bob," was born 42 years ago, is married and has two young sons. Hobby is music.

mr. wizard

DON HERBERT has been working modern magic since he was revealed as "Mr. Wizard" on Morch 3, 1951. Actually, Don's magic is soundly scientific, stemming from the science training he got at La Crosse, Wis., Teachers College. He also tried dramatics there, and turned to a career in radio in Chicago when he was graduated in 1940, but soon found himself piloting a B-24 in Europe during the war. 56 missions later, he came home, now hos two adopted sons.

my friend flicka

JOHNNY WASHBROOK, now "going-on-16," is an old pro as an actor. He began at 9 in his native Canada, where he appeared on over 200 radio and TV programs. In 1956 he was asked to come to New York to try out for the part of Ken in "My Friend Flicka," and walked away with it—all the way to Hollywood, where he works in the show and adds to the brightness of the California sunshine with his red hair, freckles, and irresistible grin. He wants to stay.

the paul winchell show

PAUL WINCHELL owes his success to an investment of 10¢—that's what he paid far a book on ventriloquism he bought as a boy. He was a student at New York's School of Industrial Arts when, in connection with a project, at 13, he invented Jerry Mahoney. He and Jerry went on to win first prize on Major Bowes' Original Amateur Hour, climbed steadily upward to his present ABC-TV show. Born Dec. 21, 1923 in New York, Paul is married, has 2 children.

captain kangaroo

BOB KEESHAN conceived the idea of "Captain Kangaroo," made the show on CBS-TV one to delight children of all ages, plus those hard-to-please grown-ups, the TV critics. Only 33 years old, Keeshan has spent most of his life entertaining the tot set and an ever-increosing number of their parents. Before he got into his Kangaroo garb, Keeshan held forth as the original and amusing Clarabelle of the "Howdy Doody" show, also starred in two other shows which he created himself, "Carny, the Clown" and "Tinker, the Taymaker." Bob is the father of three himself, his most ardent fans, of course. Parents and kids rest ossured that Captain Kangaroo really loves the younger set and is dead serious about his chosen career, making kids laugh, a job he does very, very well. Bob lives in West Islip, L. I.

GUY WILLIAMS is the guy who has made "Zorro" come alive an TV. Stepping into a role made famaus by Doug Fairbanks Sr., and later by the late Tyrone Power, Guy faced quite a challenge. An expert fencer, he is the son of Attilia and Claire Catalana. Born in New York, Guy went to Military School, after graduation decided to tackle modeling. Guy met his wife, Powers model Janice Cooper, while on a job. Gradually he got with TV, signed a film contract in 1952. Nothing much happened till 1957 and the big break with "Zorro." Father of son Steve, 8, Guy and his family live in a Sunset Strip apartment.

MALT DISNEY, who has cornered the market on Oscars—he's got more of them than the Academy—is perhaps America's most versatile and exciting showman. A native of Chicaga (Dec. 5, 1901), he started it all with a paper route, went on to create the most famous mouse of all time, Mickey, parlayed him in to a fortune. Scores of shorts and lougs, feature films, True Life Adventures, TV shows like the current "Walt Disney Presents" on ABC-TV expanded the Disney magic to gigantic proportions and continue to delight young and old alike. And of course, there's his fabulous Disneyland. A big new deal with NBC promises even greater things next year. Walt is married, a dad.

He married his home town sweetheart, Barbara Fox, and they have two sons, Tony, 8, and Hunt, 6, who, Soupy says, are his best critics and great inspirotion.

this is alice

PATTY ANN GERRITY, born in Montebello, Colif., May 14, 1948, is still barely taller than the big St. Bernard she cavarts with in NTA's "This Is Alice." But she has a lengthy list of TV and screen credits, including top roles in such movies as "To Hell and Back" and "Cat On a Hat Tin Roaf." Patty started performing at 4, has been going strong ever since. She lives with her family in San Fernando where she gaes to school, skates, plays with her pup, Corky, and parakeet.

ANYONE CAN PLAY!

THE SPICE IS RIGHT by BILL CULLEN

"The Price is Right" is right as a TV show that gives the public all one could ask for when it comes to entertainment. It's lots of fun to do, and judging by the demeanor of the contestants everybody's having one whale of a time.

Women seem to have that extra sense of values and according to figures do lots better than men. The ladies must have an added bit of perception to walk away with the super-prizes offered on this show. And have you noticed the animation these women have when they come close enough to win? It's as if a Christmas tree were lighted up as a surprise to someone who never expected such a thing to happen.

And do you know, that exuberance, that extra spice, affects the show personnel, including myself to such an extent that we can't help but join the frolic.

Drama here is created by the contestants in the studio and that suspense is wafted into the millions of homes of viewers. You just can't stifle any of the excitement. I understand that the prizes cover the desires of every woman, man, or child, which is in itself an accomplishment. And of course those extras they just add to the general melee of "what next?"

People are people. But what takes place when people react like people and literally lose themselves in the goings on is unbelievable.

If you ask me, "Price" is an adult "Alice in Wonderland." You never get enough of this show. And that goes for me too. And the people you meet are enough to give you the greatest family in the TV world today.

The native of Hompton, lowa was a state champ on the trombone, also played drums, bass, piano and cornet. While attending Drake University he organized a band which played for dances in Des Moines. Jack was filling in as a comic on the side when spotted by upcoming young actor Ralph Bellamy who got him a start. Jack is married.

truth or consequences

BOB BARKER was born in Darrington, Washington, spent most of his youth in Springfield, Mo., enrolled at Drury College where he met his future wife, Dorothy Jo Gideon. A navy flier during the last war, Bob started in radio as an announcer. Bob got his own local show in California, was heard by Ralph Edwards, producer of "Truth or Consequences." Bob auditioned for the role of emcee on that show and won it with both Edwards and audiences enthusiastic about Barker's easy, informol style.

When I was a kid we used to play a game: one boy would say to another, "I bet I can make you laugh." The other would accept. Usually the bet was for a zillion dollars, which was safe enough. Everything over a zillion was handled on credit.

The guy who started the bet always won. Just the idea of trying not to laugh was always so funny the kid who was challenged couldn't help laughing.

In television, where only millions are involved, a more complex device is used to make people laugh. It's called the comedy show. We have to do things to make people laugh because so many viewers have grown up and have forgotten how ridiculous it is not to laugh.

In a situation comedy like "The Danny Thomas Show" our problems aren't limited to audiences who grow up, though. We on the show grow up too.

Marjorie Lord, who plays my wife in the series, is already grown up, and I'm afraid I am too. But the kids-Rusty Hamer and Angela Cartwright-are still in the process. And you know what it is to keep two growing kids in clothes.

We let the wardrobe department share those troubles. After all, what's a wardrobe department for, if it can't help out a friend?

Our real problem on the show lies in the fact that as the family grows the situation changes. The problems grow up with the kids, and their solutions are different. We can't stay in one place, nor maintain the same attitudes.

Fortunately, Marjorie and I and director Sheldon Leonard have families of our own. We've been through it before, and are going through it right now. So we realize what the crux of the whole problem is:

Trying to stay just one jump ahead of those kids.

situations

DANNY THOMAS was born Amos Jacobs on Jan. 6, 1914 in Deerfield, Mich., and he's of Lebanese extraction. He's been a nightclub entertainer, radio star and a hit in films. Married for 23 years, Danny's the father of two daughters, and a son.

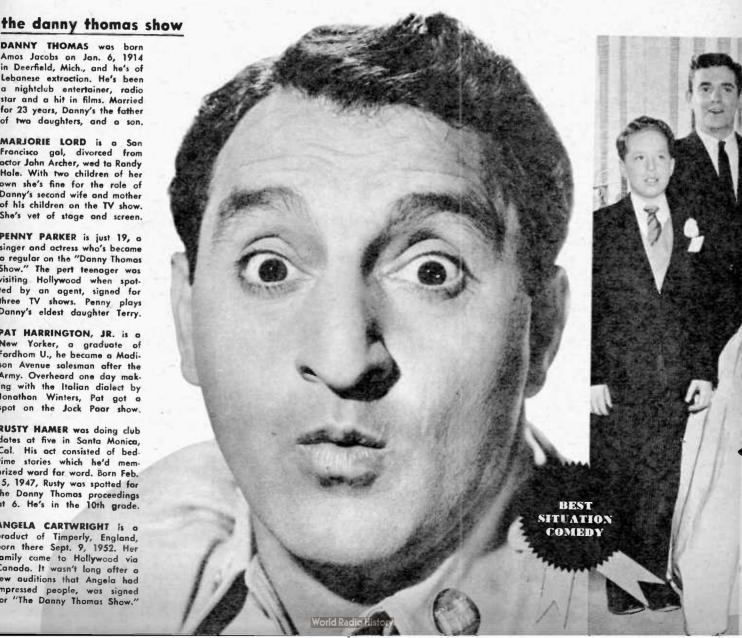

MARJORIE LORD is a San Francisco gal, divorced from actor Jahn Archer, wed to Randy Hale. With two children of her own she's fine for the role of Danny's second wife and mother of his children on the TV show. She's vet of stage and screen.

PENNY PARKER is just 19, o singer and actress who's became a regular on the "Danny Thomas Show." The pert teenager was visiting Hollywood when spotted by an agent, signed for three TV shows. Penny plays Danny's eldest daughter Terry.

PAT HARRINGTON, JR. is o New Yorker, a graduate of Fordhom U., he became a Madison Avenue salesman after the Army. Overheard one day making with the Italian dialect by Jonathan Winters, Pat got a spot on the Jock Paar show.

RUSTY HAMER was doing club dates at five in Santa Monica, Cal. His act consisted of bedtime stories which he'd memarized ward far word. Born Feb. 15, 1947, Rusty was spotted far the Danny Thomas proceedings at 6. He's in the 10th grade.

ANGELA CARTWRIGHT is a product of Timperly, England, born there Sept. 9, 1952. Her family came to Hollywood via Canada. It wasn't long after a few auditions that Angela had impressed people, was signed 44 for "The Danny Thomas Show."

the real macoys

WALTER BRENNAN hit the social security age this year, has been acting for 35 years, has set the MP Academy record with three (count 'em) three Oscars. Married for 40 years, with three children and nine grandchildren, Brennan broke into films by chance after being gassed in WW I. Disability caused him to move to California. He caught an as an extra, in movies, has been extra special ever since.

KATHY NOLAN was just 13 months old when she made her bow, along with her folks on a Mississippi River showboat. After 15 more years of that she came to New York and TV. She won the part of Wendy to Mary Martin's "Peter Pan" on Broadway and that got her career rolling in high. After a number of dramatic roles she headed for Hollywood, has been there ever since. Kathy just turned 27.

RICHARD CRENNA plays "Big Luke," has been in show business in some form or other for 23 of his 34 years. Dick got a start on radio's "Boy Scout Jamboree," followed this up with several years on "A Date With Judy." He then played the role of Walter in both the radio and TV versions of "Our Miss Brooks." This led to other films and to the "Real McCoys." He's married and a father of two.

dobie gillis

DWAYNE HICKMAN was born in Hollywood, May 18, 1934, beat out over 100 prime contenders for the coveted role of the ever-lovin' lead in "Dobie Gillis" for CBS... An acting proat ten when he played with Claudette Colbert in "The Secret Heart," Dwayne was also in "The Boy With The Green Hair. He was featured as Chuck on the Bob Cummings TV show.

BOB DENVER is, like, that long thin cat with the chim spinach. Crammed to be a mouthpiece at Layola U., segued into show bix though he was first in all brain derbies. One caol night the big charge at like 20th dug him in a school play, played it cool till Maynard Krebs was written, then called for Bob to tool on down. Bob did the middle aisle bit with his Maggie last spring.

the ann sothern show

ANN SOTHERN is still going strong, this season as "Susie," better known as "Private Secretary" in reruns. Ann was born Hariette Lake, in Valley City, North Dakota on January 22, 1912. She got her musical ability from her granddad, Danish violinist Hans Nilson and from her mother, a concert singer. Ann blossomed first as a musical talent, then turned to drama with stage hits such as "America's Sweetheart" and "Of Thee I Sing" to her credit. Movies got her in 1934. A great big hit as "Maisie" in a series of films that grossed millions, she's also appeared in other characterizations in films such as "A Letter to Three Wives," "The Judge Steps Out." Twice divorced, Ann lives with her 15-year-old daughter Tish in Beverly Hills.

shelley Fabares, who is Donna's daughter, is following in the footsteps of her famous aunt, Nanette Fabray. Born Jan. 19, 1944, in Santa Monica, Calif., Shelley began as a dancer and a model, soon won many, many TV roles. Shelley (real name: Michele) is still in high school, a popular girl.

PAUL PETERSEN, Donna's son, on this ABC show, has his future all planned—and not as an actor. The 15-year-old lad wants to go to USC to major in mechanical engineering. Born in Glendale, Calif., Sept. 23, 1945, Paul got his start as a Mouseketeer, has been on top TV shows.

dennis the menace

JAY NORTH'S mother (who should know) says he not only acts Dennis—he really is Dennis! CBS-TV's youngest star is 8 years old, only 57 pounds, but he's already a TV veteran, on many top shows and in radio and TV commercials before "Dennis" fame. All this doesn't impress him as much as being football champ of his block—and he wants to own a zoa more than anything!

GLORIA HENRY, the menacing Dennis' mother, has an 8-year-old menace of her own named Jeffrey. She and husband Craig Ellwood also have a 5-year-old, Erin. Gloria was born in New Orleans, from 1946 to 1951 was under contract to Columbia, where she made some 20 movies. For her, it was a short move to Screen Gems, for "Dennis."

leave it to beaver

JERRY MATHERS says he doesn't remember his first role at age 2, on Ed Wynn's show, because "I did that when I was little." Jerry was a child model before he crashed movies at the ripe old age of 5. Alfred Hitchcock saw him on a TV show, cast him in "The Trouble With Harry," which led to this ABC series. He was born June 2, 1948, in Sioux City, Iowa.

TONY DOW, who plays Beaver's older brother, Wally, has an older brother himself, who is a psychologist. But despite this and the fact that his mother is a former actress, it was a neighbor who spotted Tony's talent, got him tests that led to his being signed for "Beaver." Born in Los Angeles, Tony, 15, loves sports, especially swimmlng and skin diving.

HUGH BEAUMONT, Beaver's dad, was born in Lawrence, Kansas. He attended the University of Chattanooga, where he majored in religion and sports (he was a four-letter man) and became interested in acting. Appearance on a talent show in 1941 got his career going, also his marriage, when he met his wife there. They have 3 children.

father knows best

ROBERT YOUNG in real life is father of four doughters with his wife Betty Henderson, his high school sweetheart to whom he's been married for 27 years. Bob was born in Chicago, Ill., February 22, 1907, starred in numerous Hallywood films both before and after sound. Some of the big ones: "Claudia," "The Canterville Ghost," "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." Hollywood wags say he dreamed up "Father Knows Best," at long last going into reruns on CBS-TV, to get himself a son. He's certainly gotten himself a hit, a big chunk of dough and two Emmies, among other awards, for his trouble.

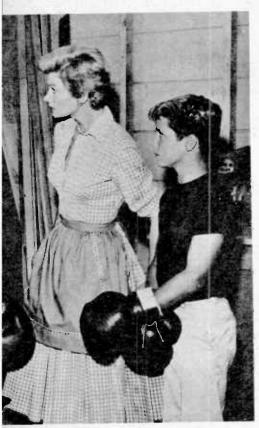

JANE WYATT didn't want the role of Mrs. Jim Anderson for six months, then got talked into it and walked off with Emmies in 1958 and 1959! The film "Lost Horizon" gave her stardom in 1935, but she spent several years on the Broadway stage before returning ta filmland. Born August 10, 1913, in New York, Jane's married and is a mother.

ELINOR DONAHUE, who may turn up on the new "Andy Griffith Show," was born in Tacoma, Washington, April 19, 1937, started in radio at two, in vaudeville at five. Her first movie break was in "Mister Big" with Donald O'Connor. Mare film and radio roles led Elly to the role of Betty on "Father Knows Best". Elinor is divorced and mother of a son.

BILLY GRAY, who plays Bud, got a start in the business when a persistent agent got him a test and a part. Born January 13, 1938, right in Los Angeles, Billy amazes fellow workers on the set with his devotion to the Wall Street Journal. He's a movie vet with dozens of films to his credit and on most top dramatic shows on TV. He's single.

LAUREN CHAPIN discovered her two older brothers were actors, demanded to get into show business herself, did so when she wos eight. Born in Los Angeles, May 23, 1945, Laury, who plays Kathy, is a vet of "Ford Theatre," "Motinee Theatre" and "Lux Video," among others. Her schooling consists largely of attending Columbia Pictures studia school.

BARBARA BILLINGSLEY, mother of two teen sons herself, is perfect for the rale of Beaver's mother. Barbara won an MGM contract just six months after she storted acting with a little theatre group in 1949, but after years of collecting fat paychecks but no fat parts, she quit to go on the stage with Billie Burke. She was quickly rediscovered won TV fame.

hennesey

JACKIE COOPER has been acting for 35 of his 38 years. He began at 3 in the Lloyd Hamilton series, went on to "Our Gang" at 6, rocketed to stardom at 8 as the unforgetable "Skippy." Jackie is one of the few child stors who have come back big in adult years. Thrice-wed, he's dad of 3 children.

ASBY DALTON, who plays with Jackie in this popular CBS series, was born in Las Vegas, but grew up in Los Angeles—and into a career of dancing, modeling and acting. At 13, she was a dance teacher, and her ability os a lithe athlete won her roles in many a western. Abby hasn't morried—yet.

bachelor father

JOHN FORSYTHE's first professional experience was as relief sportscaster from the then Brooklyn Dodgers' Ebbets Field home. When he wasn't doing that, he was waiting on tables on Broodway. He cracked Broadway, finally, and co-starred in his test movie, "Destination Tokyo." More movie and Broadway roles led to starring in CBS-TV's "Bachelor Father." Born Jan. 29, 1918, he's wed to Julie Warren, has a boy and a girl.

NOREEN CORCORAN, who plays Kelly, teen-age niece of Bentley Gregg, is a very serious lass. Not that the pert teen doesn't collect rock 'n roll, love to dance, and enjoy swimming and tennis, it's just that the Providence High School (Burbank, Cal.) junior is dead set on becoming a fine actress when she grows up. Judging from her performances in movies, TV films and "live" productions, she has very little to fear.

BOB CUMMINGS, whose full name is Robert Clarence Robert Orville Cummings, was born in Joplin, Missouri, attended school there and prepared for an engineering career. His father's death made him turn to the theatre. Bob noticed British actors in demand, masqueraded as one, landed a part. As a bogus Englishman Bob first achieved success on stage, later movies. Father of four, he's wed to Mary Elliott.

ANNE B. DAVIS earned two dollars in a puppet show at age 6 and, as she puts it, "I was impossible to live with for weeks." Later, her passion was medicine. But her brother Evans, a dancer in Broadway musicals, convinced her to try the theatre instead. After six years of stock and little theatre, she was signed to do Schultzy—and won 2 Emmies. Born May 3, 1926, in Schenectady, N. Y., 5'4" Anne is single.

december bride

SPRING BYINGTON, a veteran of 30-odd Broadway roles and 75 films and a native of Colorado Springs, Colorado, began her career ca 14 with a Denver stock company. After several TV guest shots, she was chosen for the part of Lily Ruskin, the "December Bride." Scarcely a December bride in real life, Spring has two married daughters and is the grandmother of three. She enjoys cooking, shopping, and—piloting planes!

gale storm show

GALE STORM was born Josephine Cottle in Bloomington, Texas. The date: April 5, 1922. She became interested in dramatics in high school, got into films in 1940. life of reilly

WILLIAM BENDIX was born Jan. 14, 1906 on Third Avenue in New York, never thought of acting professionally until 1936, when his job as grocery store manager and the store itself folded. He became a singing waiter, lasted one performance. Then he got into repertory and stock, did better. In 1939 he made a hit on Broadway with 'The Time of Your Life,' made his first movie in 1941; lots more followed. Bill is wed, has 2 girls.

MARJORIE REYNOLDS started as a child performer, appeared in a number of movies before her mother retired her temporarily at the age of eight. Born in Buhl, Idaho, August 12, 1921, Marjorie continued to study dance and acting while attending Los Angeles High. After her school days she went to wark, landing roles in a number of films. She married casting director Jack Reynolds in 1936. They have a girl, Linda.

the great gildersleeve

WILLARD WATERMAN, still going strong on CNP's "The Great Gildersleeve," was born in Madison, Wis., Aug. 29, 1914, got a break in radio while he was still in high school. But he gave it up to study engineering at the U. of Wisconsin. He found he couldn't tear himself away from his love of drama, so went back to radio, was soon doing about 40 shows a week, then added movies and TV. Wed, he has two daughters.

CRIME MARCHES ON

the untouchables

ROBERT STACK, starring as Eliot Ness in ABC's big hit, "The Untouchables," comes from a Los Angeles socialite family (born Jan. 13, 1919). Educated abroad, he didn't speak English till his teens. A movie star since he was the boy who gave Deanna Durbin her first kiss, Bob is married to Rosemarie Bowe, they have two children.

AN ENDLESS FIGHT by ROBERT STACK

I'm the fellow who said, "An actor is crazy to become involved in the TV series rat race." I meant it. So did my agent, who strongly advised me against signing for a TV series. The reason was sound—any star of a TV series runs the risk of having the show receive bad reviews. But unlike the theatre actor who can fold up his clippings and silently steal away, the TV actor can be stuck with those reviews for 35 weeks—and that could be very damaging to his career.

So here I am in a TV series, and to say that I'm enthusiastic about "The Untouchables" would be putting it too mildly. Fanatical is a better word.

Why the big switch? Of course, the success of "The Untouchables," the wonderful reception it has been given by the public, the Emmys we received—all this has been very gratifying and stimulating to me and to everyone on the show.

But long before we knew we would get such a reception, I think we became fascinated by the show for the same reason that it has become so appealing to the public: Eliot Ness and the hoodlums he fought are not figments of a writer's imagination—they were real people. And although some license must be taken at times for better dramatic presentation, or to protect innocent survivors of the mobsters depicted, it's always the aim of the show to maintain that realism.

That, I think, is the secret of the success of "The Untouchables"—or any other good detective show. Crime in the past may have been more open, more colorful, but it is still with us, still powerful, still of great concern to everyone. The prime purpose of our show, of course, is to entertain. But I like to think that the example of Eliot Ness and his aides will arouse interest and inspire more strong blows against our common enemy—organized crime.

J., Keith is also ane of the best-educated actors, having studied at Temple and Oxford Universities. He's also a very accomplished athlete in all sports.

WHY I BELIEVE "THE TWILIGHT ZONE" IS SUCCESSFUL by ROD SERLING

"Why I Believe 'The Twilight Zone' Is Successful' is a title not selected by the writer of this article. It carries with it a skyscraper-high self assuredness which the producers of very few television shows now extant can afford to display.

The distinguishing aspect of shows like "The Twilight Zone" is the coterie of followers that develop over a period of a few weeks who verbalize their support disproportionate to their considerable numbers. On "The Twilight Zone" we now hit approximately five hundred letters a week. We have fan clubs in thirty-one states. And we get an average of fifty story ideas submitted to us each week from people who "dig" fantasy, the unusual, the imaginative. Outside of a Los Angeles high school the other day was seen a black model A Ford with the white letters splashed across the side, "The Twilight Zone." A basketball team in Southern Illinois uses what they call "The Twilight Zone Defense." A Bantam Book called "Stories From The Twilight Zone'" is now in its third printing, inching up to the three hundred thousand sale mark, and another book, "More Stories From 'The Twilight Zone'" is in the process of being created. In addition to this Dell Publishing Co. is about to publish a comic book called "The Twilight Zone."

What does all the above mean to you? It means simply that all too often television shows with appeal, with taste, and with something to say beyond a pratfall, don't necessarily have to be earth-shakers from the very start. "The Twilight Zone" had a chance to prove itself over the long haul of a full season.

The American viewing public is brighter, more selective, more analytical and more careful in its viewing than they're usually given credit for. But because they're all of these things—they take a while to make a choice, form a habit. What is needed now, and what was handed "The Twilight Zone" as a gift, was this time to let the show move into a second and then high gear with a legitimate chance to prove itself. The case of "The Twilight Zone" seems to suggest further that there is ample room for variety in television programming. Matt Dillon can stand alongside Perry Mason; the panelists on "To Tell the Truth" alongside the strange and imaginative characters who people "The Twilight Zone"—without any over-crowding.

hitchcock presents

ALFRED HITCHCOCK, the round and sinister man of suspense now on NBC, was born Aug. 13, 1899 in England, entered motion pictures as a junior technician in 1920, became a script writer, production manager and art director before he settled firmly in the director's chair. His first U. S. film, "Rebecca" wan him the first of four Oscar nominations. He's cantinued to chill his fans with a succession of macobre thrillers, his latest being "Psycho." Hitch is father of a married daughter.

WHAT'S A PANEL? by ARLENE FRANCIS

It is only in the latest dictionaries that one finds the word "panel" relating to television or radio. The earliest definition of the word gave me rather a jolt, and I quote, "panel—a wooden saddle for an ass." I like to think we have gone a long way since then but I am confident there are some detractors who feel we haven't advanced one iota and that the chairs behind the long table are still serving the same old purpose! Let the Philistines think what they please. Happily, they are outnumbered.

Panel shows such as "What's My Line?" owe their success to the fact that audiences equate themselves with those of us whose business it is to unravel the riddle. If we miss, we're as dumb as the boy next door, and if we get it we're as bright as they are—or somebody gave us the answer. There is nothing cheerier than the Monday morning taxi driver after a blank Sunday night. "Boy, you sure were all in Dixie last night," he chortles gaily. In that way, I like to think we do a lot of good. Twenty-six million people (I believe that's the rating), all are feeling superior to us. And since "What's My Line?" has survived for eleven years, I feel we must have made at least 14,852,000,000 people happy just by missing once every Sunday night.

The panel quiz show uncovered a dangerous predilection on the part of celebrities. It permitted them to speak their own lines instead of the pre-cooked sentences of playwrights and scenarists. With a little encouragement from the studio audience the actor became more emboldened to express himself until today he can carry on a conversation just like anybody else!

This remarkable discovery catapulted the art of talking into a succession of television programs devoted to taking the tongue out of the cheek and wagging it. People, as well as performers, are anxious to appear and exchange bon mots and life experiences. It is exhilarating to realize that perhaps in the not too distant future, audiences, seeing the success of free wheeling conversation on the screen, may try turning to each other for a little philosophic comment and thereby become dazzled at the miracle of sustained thought put into words. This business of people conversing at home might eventually mean the end of television, which would, of course, include the demise of the panel show which started the whole thing off.

That is why we feel that for the research people of the future, the following data should be recorded.

ERNIE KOVACS started as an operetta tinger in high school! Born in Trenton, N.J., 39 years ago, the man behind the big cigar sang in stock companies, then became a radio annauncer, then ariginated his famaus comedy characters on Philadelphia TV. In 1951 NBC colled him a New York. Now he's scored a hit an this popular ABC-TV panel show.

CESAR ROMERO hasn't yet given up his title as Hally-wood's most eligible bachelor, despite squiring many mavie queens. Cesar was born in New York on Feb. 15, 1907, of Cuban parentage, worked as a dancer until a discerning producer gave him an acting role. He became a stor in the movie, "Cisco Kid," now alternates between the movies and television.

HANS CONRIED, whose smooth wit has won him spots on many other shows—Jack Paar's, for one—was born in Baltimore, studied at Calumbia U. He became a skilled dialectician and was a busy radio actor before Warld War II. Since then, he's appeared in many a movie and Broedway show. Now 43, Hans is a happily married man, and the father of two sons.

EDIE ADAMS, who's Ernie Kovacs' wife, mothers their daughter Mia, Ernie's two doughters by a previous marriage, in addition to her many TV chores. Born Edith Enke in Kingston, Pa., Edie's TV bow—in a bathing suit—was so effective she wan the title, "Miss Televisian," and many job offers—one in Philadelphia, where she met her future husband, Ernie.

what's news...

FROM TV TO YOU by DAVID BRINKLEY

During the 1956 Democratic convention, a member of a state delegation sent up to our television booth a little note written on the back of a Stevenson handbill. It said: "What's going on? What is the convention doing? Whom are we going to nominate? Why? I wish they'd get us a television set down here. Last night I phoned home and my wife knew more about the convention than I did."

There was more truth in that than in a lot of what is said in convention halls, because a television viewer at home can indeed see far more than he could if he were a delegate cramped into one of those little chairs down on the floor.

One reason is the sheer physical size of it all. Delegates, politicians, candidates and their agents and paid handlers are milling about in a tremendous hall, in plywood caucus rooms under the balconies, and in hotel rooms all over town. What is happening on the speaker's rostrum at a given moment may be far less important, and vastly duller, than other things going on miles away. The delegate can see, hear or know about only a fraction of it, but NBC's reporters can be all over the convention city and not much escapes them.

The television viewer of a convention, or election or other hig event, is so close to what is going on that he feels more and more like a participant—which may be one reason that the percentage of voters casting their ballots has been on the increase since the advent of broadcasting. The real participants on the other hand, often become viewers. In the 1956 convention Senator Kennedy was in his hotel suite taking a bath when he heard that he was getting votes for Vice President. He wrapped himself in a towel and came out to the television set, but by the time he had dried himself off, Senator Kefauver had beaten him and he had seen it all.

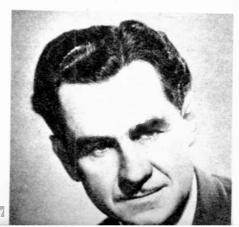

DAVID SUSSKIND, whose marathon interview with Richard Nixon was one of the highlights of his popular verbal free-for-all, "Open End," is also one of TV's most successful producers. David, now 40, grew up in Boston, is a Harvard grad. He intended to teach after a Navy hitch—but TV got him first. David is married to the former Phyllis Briskin, has enthysiastic fans in his two daughters, and young son.

RUTH HAGY started making headlines when she was kidnaped, as an infant, from a New York hospital. She was found through the combined efforts of N.Y.'s newspapers, which offered rewards for information leading to her return. That may be the reason for her long career as mewspaper and magazine writer and editor. Producer and moderator of ABC-TV's "College News Conference," she is also the show's creator. Widow of a former newspaper exec, she has a daughter and a grandson. Remarried.

meet the press

LAWRENCE E. SPIVAK has one eccentricity. He likes to ask penetrating questions. That habit has been responsible for some of the most exciting TV programs and biggest news breoks in years. As producer and permanent panel member of NBC-IV's "Meet The Press," Spivak has indulged himself to the delight and edification of millions of TV viewers. He credits the carefully culled groups of top working newsmen for most of the big stories, but "Time" and Winchell single him out as the man who gets scoops.

person to person

CHARLES COLLINGWOOD, CBS news correspondent, has the honor of replacing the traveling Ed Murrow as host of the popular "Person to Person." A veteran newsman, he came to CBS News in London in 1941, after a year with UP while attending Oxford on a Rhodes scholarship. He has won two Peabody awards, was CBS News' London correspondent for the past year-and-a-half, will also be host and narrator on CBS-TVS "Conquest" science series which will make him about the busiest newsman oround.

the mike wallace interview

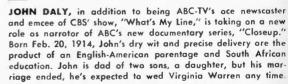

MIKE WALLACE is the innovator and master of the probing "TV interview in depth," is still probing via his NTA series. Mike was born Myron Wallace in Brookline, Mass., May 9, 1918. He's a U. of Michigan grad, a Navy veteron, a former announcer and one-time emcee of the quiz show, "Who Poys?" Divorced, Mike remorried, now lives with wife Lorroine and children at Sneden's Londing, N.Y. His "Mike Wallace Interview" has had its ups and downs, but is now a success in syndication.

WALTER CRONKITE, in addition to this highly praised CBS documentary, has been very busy as anchor man reporting the conventions and election. Walter started as a U. of Texas campus correspondent, later worked as o reporter for the Houston "Post." He spent 11 years as a U.P. man, includ-ing WW II combat corresponding and two years in Moscow. He joined CBS in 1950, is rated one of the best.

face the nation

STUART NOVINS, moderator of this popular CBS program, has been with the network 22 years, and received many top awards. Born in Boston, Mar. 30, 1914, he was graduated from Boston U., started on a New England radio station. He sow Army service in North Africa, Italy, France and Germany. Stuart's wed, 2 children.

CHARLES HERRING, News Director of King Broadcasting Co., merits his title, "Dean of Pocific Northwest Television Newscasters." He was the Pacific Northwest's first TV newscaster via his "The World Today" on KING-TV in Seattle, now handles many of the station's popular news programs, has won many awards since joining KING in 1951. A Whitman College grad (1944), "Chuck" is married, has two daughters, 7 and 14, a son, 12. In the line of duty, he has traveled in many parts of the world.

ALEXANDER KING is one of the wittiest raconteurs on TV, seen frequently on "The Jack Paar Show" and others, and in his syndicated NTA series, "Alex in Wonderland." Alex started two new careers at 58, after he had slipped from his former fame os an illustrator, editor on "Life," and play-wright. He frankly admits the reoson was drug addiction, started due to poin from a serious kidney ailment. His pretty 26year-old wife, Margie, helped him on the road to recovery and new fame as author.

FRANK McGEE was impressed with the power of broadcasting when, at 12, he ran away from home and a frantic appeal by his parents over a local station brought about his immediate capture. 13 years later, he joined the same Shawnee, Okla., station. Born in Monroe, La., Sept. 12, 1921, Frank spent years in the South and Midwest making him an expert on those sections. For NBC, he's covered such events as the Little Rock school crisis and missile launchings from Cape Canaveral. Wed, has two children.

RAY SCHERER, NBC's White House correspondent, scored his biggest scoop with the first report of President Eisenhower's heart attack, also turned in a terrific reporting job on Nixon's visit to Russia. Ray was born June 7, 1919, in Fort Wayne, Ind., became a feature writer on the Fort Wayne "Journal-Gazette," joined NBC in 1947, took time out to be a Navy Lt. in WW II. He and wife Barbara live in Arlington, Va., with their two children, daughter Nancy, 4, and son David, 2-close to the pulse of Washington.

JOHN H. SECONDARI, Chief of ABC's Washington Bureau, is also a successful novelist. His "Coins in the Fountain" was made into the hit movie, "Three Coins in the Fountain." He was born in Rome, on Nov. 1, 1919, came to the U.S. with his family in 1924, got his B.A. at Fordham, his M.S. at Columbia. He joined the Army in 1941, when mustered out in 1945 got a job with the Rome "Daily American." Moving to CBS, he covered the communist crisis in Greece. A widower, he has an only son, John.

JOHN CAMERON SWAYZE says "It's all a matter of luck." He was turned down for a TV news writing job, and was thus available for his big TV break as an NBC newscaster. All his previous experience: as a newspaper reporter, would-be actor (and elocution student), early radio newsman, and the job in a Kansas City haberdashery (around the corner from Harry Truman's old store) which developed his taste in clothes, went into the making of his unique ABC-TV news commentary. Married, 2 children. 61

VARIETY ON THE GO by ED SULLIVAN

This year our show is going to travel around the country and each month put on a program from a different American city. In our "See America" series, my co-producer Bob Precht and I are going to tell the story of a city and its institutions in terms of entertainment values. We'll be trying to evaluate a place through the people it has given to show business and carry across the characteristics which make every city unique. It's an approach that we haven't tried before.

On all these "See America" shows we'll have guests who were in some way influenced or molded by the city. On the San Francisco program, which kicked off our series on Oct. 16, we had Mort Sahl, who of course got his start in San Francisco, Dave Brubeck, the Dean of West Coast Jazz, and opera star Dorothy Kirsten who is singing with the San Francisco Opera Company this year.

When we go to Chicago November 6 we'll have Charlton Heston at North-western University where he went to school. And when we go to New Orleans and Dallas we'll have people there who have affection for their city and are in some way typical of it. We're going to try and show what there is about these places that helped to develop these people.

And we'll have our guests performing around the city—not in a studio. We're going to get out and show the city itself the way we did with our overseas shows from Ireland, Portugal, Spoleto, Italy and Our "Invitation to Moscow" which won the Peabody Award this year.

We're hoping the series will be engrossing, revealing a philosophy and view-point. But of course our main job is to entertain. We never forget that.

the jack paar show

CLIFF ARQUETTE, better known to one and all as Charlie Weaver, was happily retired in Gettsyburg, Penna., intending to devote all his time to his hobby, a museum on history of the Civil War, when he heard Jack Paor wonder aloud on TV what had become of him. Says Cliff, "I almost dropped my Scotch." No sooner did the two get together than Cliff become a mainstoy of the Paar show. A native of Toledo, Ohio (Dec. 28, 1905), Cliff has been in show business olmost 50 years. Divorced, he shares home with his son.

GENEVIEVE cowldn't be stopped by a bodly broken leg, result of an accident in a summer theatre, kept right on charming everybody an the Paar show, cost and all. Genevieve (real name: Ginette Auger) was born an April 17, 1930 in Poris—where else? She went to school in Versailles and North Africa, where her brother Henri was on engineer. Bock in Paris, she started her own cofe in Montmartre, where an American talent agent heard her sing, brought her to the U.S. ond the Paar Show. She was recently married.

'way back in 1948 as "Toast of the Town." Born in New Yark City, Ed had already become famous as an ace newspaperman and writer of the popular column, "Little Old New York." Ed has been happily wed for many years, and when not traveling the world over in search of new talent for his show, he and wile Sylvia live quietly in a New York apartment, spend much time with daughter Betty and her husband, Bob Precht, who've made Ed a doting grandfather of tour youngsters. TV champion, with an unbeotable record of 13 years with a tap-rated TV show. His "Ed Sullivan Show" on CBS-TV began

JACK PAAR proved it isn't true that nobody is indispensable when he walked off his show due to a run-in with NBC over scissoring a joke. The resulting clamor soon brought him back. But Jack's been independent ever since he was born in Cleveland, May 1, 1918. Before the Army called he was a radio announcer, then, as Sgt. Paar, his comedy won notice—especially from the tap brass he needled. Upon dischorge he turned to TV comedy, made some movies (one with Marilyn Monroel) But it wasn't until he was let loose in the free-for-all "Tonight" show that he hit his stride. Jack's happiest with his family, wife Miriam, daughter Randy.

JOSE MELIS, as nobody wha watches the Paar show needs to be told, is a piono prodigy. He started piano lessons at age 3, at 10 graduated from the Havana Conservatory of Music. After that, music scholarships were showered upon him. But when World War II came along, Jose left his piano and went into the Army, where his GI buddy was a guy named—Jack Paar. When Jack met and married his Miriam while they were stationed at Indiantown Gap, Pa., it was Jose who played the wedding march, and the two have been close friends ever since. Jose, wha is 40 years old, is a happily married man himself, father of two, is Jack's neighbor.

of TV. Married to Genevieve Halford in 1936, they have long been separated, has two girls.

HARRY BELAFONTE, who walked off with an Emmy for his one-man show last season, gets our vote, too. Now, Harry's set for more of the same fine entertainment on NBC this season. Born in New York City in 1927, Harry's come a long way from the days when he was a short-order cook, while waiting for a nightclub break after he got out of the Navy. In addition to his highly specialized brand of folk singing, he's become an accomplished movie actor, via such films as the recent "Odds Against Tomorrow." Harry was formerly wed to Marguerite Byrd, mother of his daughters Adrienne and Shari. Divorced, he is now married to Julie Robinson, a former Katherine Dunham dancer, and they have a small son, David. Harry has firmly refused to follow musical trends, feeling that it would destroy his integrity as an artist. For him, the refusal paid.

DEAN MARTIN has proved to one and all that he can score without the assistance of erstwhile partner Jerry Lewis, is slated for more NBC specials. Born Dino Crocutti in Steubenville, Ohio, June 7, 1917, he hit the nightclub belt, made it big when he teamed with Jerry, made it even bigger with him in movies. Their famous feud that split them asunder is now a thing of the past. Dean's going great in such movies as "Bells Are Ringing," "Ocean's 11." Dean has four children by a former marriage, 3 by his second wife, Jeanne.

DANNY KAYE, who was long TV's most famous holdout, finally gave in, and made his debut in an hour show on CBS, first of three. Regarded as one of the great comics, Danny came up from Brooklyn, where he was born Jan. 18, 1913, through the rough Borscht circuit, finally got a break in "Lady in the Dark." His first movie, "Up In Arms," in 1944, made him a movie star overnight. Danny has been married for many years to Sylvia Fine, who helps him as a writer of his material, they have one daughter, Dena. His only previous TV appearance was on a program about the U.N. work for children, his big interest.

DEBBIE REYNOLDS signed a fabulous contract with ABC-TV, and made her bow in a special on Halloweeu, "A Date With Debbie." The pert Miss Reynolds, whose real moniker is Mary Frances, was born in El Paso, Texas, April 1, 1932, but soon moved with her family to Burbank, Calif., where she caught movie talent scaut's eye when she was chosen Miss Burbank of 1948. An MGM cantract and movie stardom resulted, and such recent hits as "The Gazebo," 'The Rat Race," and "Pleasure of His Company" have put her into the millions. Debbie's divorce from Eddie Fisher, who left her for Liz Taylor was a sad blow, but she bounced back, and now lives for her children, Carrie and Todd. Though she's said, "I'll think a long time before marrying," she dates Harry Karl.

ART CARNEY, adept at everything from drama to comedy, proved the most versatile of special stars last season, promises more of the same. Art was born in 1918 in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., started with Horace Heidt soon after high school. He won TV fame as Norton in "The Honeymooners," still in reruns, but end of teaming with Gleason was a break. Wed.

LEONARD EERNSTEIN, in addition to his usual musical treats, has a special one in store for Christmas, when he'll direct the New York Philharmonic in Bach's "Magnificat." This music man didn's hear a live symphony till he was 16, was turned down by the Harvard Glee Club! But his talent won out. 42 years old, he speaks five languages, fikes to write music—and poetry!—in planes.

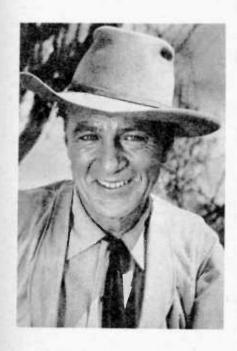

BING CROSBY stars in an A&C-TV special in March. Life story, p. 75.

FRED ASTAIRE won so many awards for his first "Evening With Fred Astaire" that he's fated to go or for as many evenings as he likes, is now working on the next with co-star (and off-camera date) Borrie Chase, Born Frederick Austerlitz in Omaha, Neb. 61 years ago, Fred and sister Adele became a top Broadway team. When she married, he went on to solo movie fame. Fred's wife of 27 years died in 1954. He has 2 children.

YUL BRYNNER, long a film favorite, reveals the Yul his public doesn't know in a CBS special, "Yul Brynner's Odyssey: 15,000,-000 Men Without a Country," the result of his extensive travels to investigate the plight of Europe's homeless refugees. The multi-talented Yul, born July 11, 1915, has traveled the world himself, earned his way with his guitar before acting brought him fame in "The King and I" on Broadway. His movie version won him an Oscar. Formerly wed to Virginia Gilmore, they have a son, Rocky. He was recently married again, to Doris Kleiner, they expect a child in the future.

GARY COOPER, at long last, will bring his famous "Yup" to an NBC-TV "Project 20" special titled-naturally -"The Real West." Coop was born there—in Helena, Montana, on May 7, 1901, but started out as a cartoonist before trading his drawing board for the boots and saddles of movie westerns. Since then, he's been one of movies' most versatile and durable and wealthy stars. He's a two-time Oscar-win-ner, for "Sergeant York" in 1941, and "High Noon" in 1952. Gary has been married some 26 years to Rocky Bolfe, they have a lovely daughter, Maria, and the three are ardent travelers and skin divers. Two serious operations during the past year have failed to dampen Gary's high good spirits.

DONALD O'CONNOR, whose fleet footwork and slick comedy will be seen in an NBC special, has been performing most of his 34 years, having been 13 months old when he joined his family's vaudeville act. At 13, he was signed to co-star in "Sing, You Sinners," and after an Army stint, resumed movie-making in the famous "Francis" series. Now a nightclub star, too, Don was divorced from Gwen Carter, is now wed to Gloria Noble. They have a 3-year-old daughter, Alicia, a husky baby son, Don Frederick.

STEVE ALLEN, for the first time in years, doesn't have a regular show this season, but will undoubtedly be very much present in specs, quest shots, and straight dramas. Versatile Steve was born Dec. 26, 1921, in New York City to the vaudeville team of Belle Montrose and Billy Allen. After his dad died, Steve grew up to tread the boards, hit it big first on the old "Tonight" show. Steve has three sons—Steve, Jr., 15, Bryan, 13, David, 9—by his first marriage. Now wed to Jayne Meadows, son Billy distance History

JOHIN WAYNE has also succumbed to the lure of TV for an ABC special, Born Marion Morrison in Iowa, he turned 53 last May 26, has been a movie star ever since director John Ford promoted him from prop man to actor. His latest movie is his own multi-million production,
"The Alamo." Dad of four by his first marriage, he re-wed, has a daughter

JACK PALANCE starred in NBC's gigantic Roman spectacle, "The Barbarians." The well-known movie actor was born to a coal mining family in Latimer, Pa., determined to get out of the mines. He trained as an athlete, won a scholarship to the U. of North Carolina, became a star fullback and boxer, then decided to try acting. He won Broadway roles before breaking into movies in "Panic in the Streets." Jack and his wife, Virginia, have two fine daughters.

KENNETH SMITH is the tolented singer who, via mony vocal roles, won the honor of starring as Brigham Young in NBC-TV's world premiere of Leonard Kastle's new American opera, "Deseret." Kenneth, along with Judith Raskin, who plays his love, and John Alexander as Capt. James Dee of the Union Army, regard this new work as the most exciting they have ever undertaken in their long and active singing careers, in Broadway musicals, concert work and tours. 67

JEFF CHANDLER took time out from making his own movie, "The Plunderers," for two hour-long Biblical spe-ciols on ABC, based on the life of David, Born Fra Grossell in Brooklyn on Dec. 15, 1918, Jeff was a struggling commercial artist when he won a scholarship to Feagan Dramatic School. After war service he headed for Hollywood, first won notice in radio on "Michael Shayne" and "Our Miss Brooks," His first movie, "Sword in the Desert," made him a star. Divorced, father of two.

ANN FLOOD, who is Elizabeth Fraser in NBC-TV's daytime series "From These Roots," has some very real roots af her own at NBC. Ann is married to NBC-TV network sales exec Herbert Granath, whom she met when he was an NBC page and she sold tickets for the tour of the network's Rockefeller Center installation. Her TV acting debut was on New York's WOR TV with Orson Bean. Her performance drew top dramatic show offers, and finally her current role. She's 5'5", redheaded.

MARY STUART finds her role as Joanne Borron in CBS-TV's "Search For Tomorrow" so realistic that she sometimes finds herself being Joanne at home. Fortunately, hubby Richard Krolik is himself a TV producer-director, so he understands—even though he ribs her for it. A grey-eyed blonde, Mary was born in Miami, Fla., but grew up in Tulsa, Okla. She worked with local drama groups there, did USO shows, was spotted and signed by MGM producer Joe Pasternak. Since, she has had many film credits.

TEAL AMES, who is Sara Karr on this popular CBS-TV series, is a born actress. In her home town, Binghamton, N. Y., she organized a drama group when she was only 12. Her interest proved to be no passing fancy, for she went on to study drama at Syracuse University, went right to work in road companies after graduation, made industrial films and has appeared on many other TV shows. The pretty 29-year-old brunette is a bachelor girl, likes to water ski, ice skate, sing, play the piano—and can cook, boyst

ROBERT MANDAN went to Pomona College in Claremont, Califa, to study law, but a part in a freshman musical changed his mind. By the time he'd finished his studies, he had also appeared in over 50 plays, in school and in a local theatre. Roles in stock led to his Broadway bow in a show appropriately titled "Debut," more stage and TV work, and his present part as David Allen. Both Feb. 2, 1932 in Clever, Mo., Bob served an Army stint. A bachelor, he lives in New York—close to the theatre district.

search for tomorrow

TERRY O'SULLIVAN, considered by some to be "the handsomest man in daytime television," thoroughly enjoys playing Arthur Tate in CBS-TV's "Search For Tomorrow." A network announcer with years of experience, he finds the fan response to his Tate role different and highly satisfying. Born and raised on a farm near Kansas City, Mo., he was a radio announcer there, in Tulsa, Joplin, San Diego and L.A., before N.Y. He's married to actress Jan Miner, has a N.Y. aportment and N.H. farm.

the edge of night

JOHN LARKIN, who plays criminal lawyer Mike Karr, has made a career of crime-busting roles. The Oakland, Calif., native wanted to be a baseball player or reporter, but switched to vocal study at Rockhurst College in Kansas City, with an operatic career in view. Then stage work in musicals aroused his interest in acting. After a four-yeor Army stint, he came to New York in 1946, was chosen for the Perry Mason role an radio, played it for eight years, appears destined to break his record on this show.

young dr. malone

WILLIAM PRINCE divides his time between stage, screen and TV, but likes his role as Dr. Jerry Malone because "the charocter can grow." Born Jan. 26, 11913 in Nichols, N. Y., he went to Cornell, is married, dad of four.

JOHN CONNELL, who plays Dr. David Malone, has been a ventriloquist, gunner in a B-24, and teacher of English literature! But acting won out. Born Oct. 28, 1923, in Philadelphia, he's married, father of two. PHYLLIS AVERY, remembered as the wife on "The Ray Milland Show," adds this new CBS show to a lang list of mavie, stage and TV credits. Born in New York, Nov. 14, 1924, she lived in France until 11, then moved to California. Divorced fram actor Don Taylor, she has daughters Avery, 12, Anne, 10.

EDWARD KEMMER, despite his youthful good looks, is a veteran of over 1200 live TV shows, and has played starring or featured roles on just about every filmed show you could mention. Ed started as a radio announcer, switched to acting and has never been sorry. Oh yes—he's often on Broadway, too.

Born in Tasmania, June 20, 1909, Flynn achieved stardom with "Captain Blood," became Hollywood's leading symbol of the dashing and romantic film stars as he swashbuckled his way through films and across the nation's headlines. Married three times and father (officially) of three, his last film was "Cuban Rebel Cirl" with his teenage protegée Beverly Aadland. A heart attack stilled him October 14, 1959.

JANET GAYNOR was born in Philadelphia, Oct. 16, 1906, began her career as an extra in 1924, became a leading lady the following year in "Johnstown Flood." She and Charles Farrell were once America's favorite sweethearts. Janet, whose husband Gilbert Adrian died in September 1959, emerged from retirement in 1957 for "Bernardine," plans a Broadway bow soon. She has a grown son, Robin. She was first actress to win Oscar for "Sunrise," "Seventh Heaven."

CLARK GABLE is still "The King" to any real movie fan, was born in Cadiz, Ohio, Feb. 1, 1901. Was a stage call boy and a tool dresser, got a start with the Jewell Players, a touring group. After working in the oil fields and os a lumberjack he came to New York, got a break in several shows, then made his way to Hollywood His first real part was in "The Easiest Way," which he followed playing a heel in "A Free Soul," It made him a star. Married five times, his current wife is the lovely Kay Williams.

JOHN GILBERT, one of the great silent screen lovers, was born Jock Pringle in Logan, Utah in 1897. He made his film bow in 1917 in "Apostle of Vengeance" after a stage career, became a top star opposite Garbo in "The Kiss" and "Flesh and the Devil." Married to Virginia Bruce, Gilbert's career was short-circuited by the arrival of talkies. His high-pitched voice just wasn't right. Also talented as a writer, producer and director, Gilbert died in 1936, tragic victim of sound.

BETTY GRABLE's dancing and singing talents have been limited to TV guest shots lately, but she's still open to an interesting film offer. Mrs. Harry James, and the mother of Vickie, 17, Jessica, 13, Betty was born in St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 18, 1916, started in a Hollywood chorus line in 1930's "Let's Go Places." Broadway's "Panama Hattie" made her a star and her gorgeous gams in WW II musicals made her the number one pin-up pretty in the country, with GI's abroad.

CARY GRANT is one of Hollywood's elite, never seems to age, is also a favorite. Born as Archie Leach (you heard right) Jan. 18, 1902, Cary struggled as a carnival barker and Broadway walkon before he ventured to Hollywood in 1931. A fast name change and a part in "This is the Night" meant this is it for him. Married three times—to Virginia Cherill, Barbara Hutton and lately to Betsy Drake—some say he'll get back together with the last named in the future.

GRETA GARBO is unique. The greatest talent and greatest mystery Hollywaad has ever seen. After "Two-Faced Woman" in 1941, she fled Hollywaad, has steadfastly refused to "come back." Born Greta Gustafson in Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 18, 1906, Garbo never married, though her tarrid romance with John Gilbert was the talk of several continents in Hollywaad's heyday. It ended tragically. These days she still wants ta "be alone," but fans flocked to see her in "Ninotchka," "Grand Hotel."

JOHN BARRYMORE was the leading matinee idol of his era, a "Great Profile" and a great talent who stood at the forefront of a pawerful theatrical family. A ghost of his old self when he died in 1942, John was born in 1882 in Philadelphia, began his stage career in 1903 after a try at art and journalism. The father of Diana and John Jr., he was married four times—tempestuously each time, carved an unforgettable career as a Shakesperean actor and movie leading man—"Grand Hotel" above.

SONJA HENIE, the dimpled darling of the silver skates, parlayed a figure 8 into a multi-million-dollar fortune, via movies, ice-shaws and shrewd investments. Sanja, born in Osla, Norway, April 18, 1913 began on ice at 7, was twice Olympic champ and became an avernight film star in 1937's "One In a Million." Although she's on her third marriage, she's still agile as ever, occasionally comes out of retirement to prove she can still skate on TV.

PAUL HENREID was born in Trieste, Italy, the san of a Baron. Studied dramatics in Europe, with Max Reinhardt, among others and entered Austrian films first. He also played on the London stage before coming to New York in 1940 for Broadway's "Flight to the West." He then journeyed to Hollywaod where he starred in same great ones, including "Casablanco," and "Of Human Bondage." He is now a director in films and TV shows more than he is an actor.

KATHARINE HEPBURN has really had two Hollywood careers. Back in the Thirties she was a mavie queen, then returned to triumph on Broadway. Her perfarmance in "Philadelphia Story" led her back ta maviedom. A native of Hartford, Conn., she was married to Ludlow Smith. They divorced in 1934. Her latest sterling performance is in "Suddenly, Last Summer." Naw Katie's planning to live in Hollywood. Oscar winner in 1933 for "Marring Glory," still tops.

JEAN HARLOW, Hollywood's blande bombshell of the 1930's, was born Marlean Carpenter in Kansas City, Mo. She came to Hollywood as a teen-ager, got her start in Hal Roach twa-reelers and then skyrocketed to the tap ofter a lead in "Hell's Angels." She was in the middle of "Sarataga" in 1937 when she was stricken by uremic poisoning and died a few hours later. She was just 26, thrice-divorced and engaged to Bill Powell of the time, unique, never replaced.

WILLIAM HOLDEN began it all as William Beedle on April 17, 1918, bock in O'Fallon, Illinais. The Hollywood golden boy's first hit was in "Golden Boy," but Bill didn't really pull out all the stops till he came back fram World War II and was discavered all over in "Sunset Boulevard." A graduate of the Pasadena Playhouse, Bill married Brenda Marshall in 1941, is father of daughter Virginia and sons Peter and Scott. Next for Bill is "World of Suzie Wong."

REX HARRISON was born in Landon 53 years aga, became successful here as well as in England with "Notorious Gentleman." Sexy Rexy scored the greatest hit of his career in "My Fair Lady" on both continents and then co-starred with his late wife, Kay Kendall, in MGM's "Reluctant Debutante." Twice-divorced (one of his ex's is tilli Palmer), Rex is the father of two sons. He has finished "Midnight Lace" with Doris Day.

when his oirliner was shot down during a transchannel flight. The details have always remained a mystery. Howard was barn in London in 1893, attended callege and graduated to the London stage. Screen roles in "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "Berkeley Square" and "Pygmalion" were sandwiched between theatrical performances of "Hamlet," and others. He was wed, had a san, Ronald wha's also become a very good actor.

AL JOLSON is still remembered fondly as the kid who was born in Russia (1888), went from the sidewalks of New York to become pound for pound one of the most exciting entertainers in history. A minstrel man, blackface and all, a star of vaudefille and Ziegfeld's Follies, Al made the first sound film ever with "The Jazz Singer." On one knee, singing "Mammy" he won hearts all over the world. Married to Erle Galbraith, who was his fourth wife, Jolson died of a heart attack in 1950.

CAROLE LOMBARD was on a nation-wide Defense Bond tour when she died in a plane crash in Jan., 1942. She was 32 years old and at the height of her career in such pictures as "Nothing Sacred," "To Be Or Not To Be." Carole was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana, came to Hollywood in her teens, later established the craze for adult screwball comedies. Divorced from Bill Powell, she was Mrs. Clark Gable at the time of her death, never had any children.

ALLAN JONES was born in Scranton, Pa., of a coal miner father in 1905. He was a boy soprano, decided at the age of ten to pursue a musical career. After a short career in the mines, Allan took his savings, enrolled at Syracuse, then to NYU and then to study in Europe. This led to a stage break in New York and Allan was on his way to fame in light opera, eventually in films. Married to Irene Hervey, Jones is divorced. He has 2 sons, Ted, 30; John, 22.

PETER LORRE has given our comics some serious competition in three films—"Silk Stockings," "Buster Keaton Story" and "Sad Sack," but let's hope he hasn't reformed for good. Pete's frightened the daylights out of audiences as the pathological killer of "M" and for years his name was synonymous with "Bogeyman" in households everywhere. Born in Hungary on June 26, 1904. He's in Mike Todd Jr.'s Smellovision pic, "Scent of Mystery" and new TV shows.

ALAN LADD owes his success to his wife, Sue Carol, who, as an agent discovered him, got him the lead in "This Gun for Hire." Now they've been married 19 years, have daughter Alana, 17, son David, 14. Alan, Jr. is son of a previous marriage. Alan Sr. was born in Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 3, 1913, went to California when he was 8. Last in "Guns of the Timberland," "All the Young Men," you'll see him starring in the movie "One Foot in Hell."

MYRNA LOY, who appeared last in "Lonely Hearts," rarely makes pictures these days—but she came back in "From the Terrace." Myrna Williams of Helena, Montana, was born in 1905, had the 3-R's tossed her way in West Lake School, and debuted on screen in 1925's "What Price Beauty." She was typed as an evil siren until The Thin Man series made her a perfect wife—on screen, that is. Personally, she has four broken marriages—last one, Howland Sergeant.

HEDY LAMARR, who was away from the screen for a while, came back to us last in "The Female Animal"—just as gorgeous as ever. And now that her fifth marriage to Howard Lee is dissolved, Hedy hopes to resume her career with a vengeance. Born in Vienna Nov. 19, 1915, Hedy created a sensation there in "Ecstasy," was brought here for "Algiers." Ex-husbands: Fritz Mandl, Gene Morkey, John Loder, Ted Stauffer. She has three children, teen agers.

BELA LUGOSI won an international reputation for himself creating the role of Count Dracula on the stage and then on screen. He became one of the top horror men of all time. Born in Lugos, Hungary, Oct. 29, 1884, the son of a Baron, he starred on the Hungarian stage first, came to New York in 1925. Lugosi was a big nome for many yeors on stage and screen. He died tragically, a drug addict in 1956, a condition he frankly admitted as a warning to others who would indulge.

VIVIEN LEIGH was born in Darjeeling, India, November 5, 1913. Convent-educated, she began acting in her teens, made films in England before winning the Scarlett role in "Gone With the Wind" in 1939. A year later she divorced Leigh Holman, father of Suzanne, married Laurence Olivier. They have recently called it quits too. She wan Oscars in '39 and in 1951. In 1959 she appeared on TV in Thornton Wilder's "Skin of Our Teeth." Now in semi-retirement.

FREDRIC MARCH has long been an "actor's actor." Born in Racine, Wis., Aug. 31, 1897, March went into acting ofter World War I. Married to actress Florence Eldridge, with whom he starred on Broadway in "Skin of Our Teeth" and "Long Day's Journey Into Night," his first film appearance was in "Deburau," then "The Wild Party" (1928). New: "Inherit the Wind." Won Oscars in 1932 for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"; and 1946 for "The Best Years of Our Lives."

MERBERT MARSHALL was born in England, May 23, 1890, first appeared on stage in 1911. He lost a leg while serving during World War One, but that didn't stop Marshall from a long and distinguished career on stage in London and New York and on the screen. More recently he's also been seen in a TV series. He made his movie debut in "The Letter." All told he's been in more than 100 films. Married to Dee Anne Kahmann. He is prominent as a Broadway star, too.

VICTOR McLAGLEN was a spy, gold miner, wrestler, lion hunter, soldier, vaudevillian and actor. Born in England, December 11, 1886, one of eight sons, he was a prize fighter, then got a circus job. After army service, Vic got into films. His Captain Flogg in "What Price Glory" was a hit. Morried twice, Vic left two children, Andrew and Sheila, died of heart failure, Nov. 7, 1959. Won Oscar in 1935, for "The Informer," one of the great movie classics of all time.

PAUL MUNI, who almost tore the screen apart in "Scarface" in 1931, was born in Austria as Muni Weisenfreund, came here in 1902 to establish himself on the Yiddish stage. Films such as "I Was A Fuguitive From A Chain Gang," "The Life of Emile Zola" helped his reputation. Broadway cheered him recently in "Inherit The Wind" and he returned to films for "The Last Angry Man" and scored another triumph. Oscar winner in 1936 for "Story of Louis Pasteur."

DAVID NIVEN born in Scotland, March 1, 1911, David once worked in a Chinese laundry, wrote articles on fox hunting to keep himself off the streets. His first wife, with whom he had two sons, died; he then married Hjordis Termeden with whom he's recently reconciled. A triumph in "Around the World in 80 Days" he capped his career with an Oscar-winning performance as the bogus major in "Separate Tables" in 1958. His latest film: "The Guns of Navarone."

WARNER OLAND is best remembered for the fact that in 1931 he brought famous oriental detective Charlie Chan to life on screen. He had many years experience on stage and screen when he turned to the Chan role. Born in Umea, Sweden, as Johan Warner Oland, October 3, 1880, he came to the U.S. at 13. After a start on stage he turned to films, supporting Theda Bara in his first. He was married to Edith Shearn; died in 1938. His death was a great loss.

MARGARET O'BRIEN opened America's tear ducts for the first time at age 5 with "Journey For Margaret," and playing the wistful waif made her Hollywood's top child star for years. Maggie was born in Los Angeles, Jan. 15, 1938. Her father was killed in an accident shortly before and her mom guided her until her death two years ago. TV and the movie "Heller With a Gun" have given Maggie a new start. She's wed to Bab Allen, is pretty, and talented as ever.

MAUREEN O'HARA is as Irish as a shamrock and Dublin-born and raised. Maureen, who saw the light of the Emerald Isle Aug. 17, 1920, took her first acting lessons at 5, used them to advantage on radio at 12. By the time she was 17 her red-haired, green-eyed beauty had attracted the attention of film scouts. She debuted in "Jamaica Inn," then came here. She has a 17-year-old daughter by her ex-husband, Will Price. New film: "Petticoats & Bluejeans."

GREGORY PECK is a native of La Jolla, California who went East to become a barker at the NY World's Fair in 1939, also was a guide at Radio City Music Hall. It all paid for acting lessons which paid off pretty well for the man born April 5, 1916. He returned to Hollywood for his film bow in "Days of Glory." Divorced from Greta Rice, mother of his sons Jon, Steve and Carey in 1956, he married Veronique Passani, has a daughter. Latest: "Guns of Navarone."

WALTER PIDGEON began life on Sept. 23, 1898, in East St. John, New Brunswick, Canada. He began his professional career appearing with Elsie Janis in "At Home." He made some early Victor phonograph records, then entered vaude-ville with Janis. A president of the Screen Actors Guild in 1953, Walter has had a distinguished career behind the footlights and in front of cameras. Recently, he's been appearing with Jackie Gleason in Broadway's "Take Me Along."

ELEANOR POWELL was at the top when she married Glenn Ford in 1943. She gave it all up to be a wife and mother of Pete, 15, recently gave up Glenn in a divorce. Eleanor was born in Springfield, Mass., danced in Atlantic City clubs as a child and at 16 went to New York to establish herself as a Broadway star. "George White's 1935 Scandals" brought her to Hollywood and after "Broadway Melody of 1936" she was one of the biggest dancing stars in films.

WILLIAM POWELL spends most of his time at his Palm Springs home with wife Diana (Mousie) Lewis, hasn't made a picture since "Mr. Roberts" and will always be remembered fondly from the "Thin Man" series. Bill, now 68, was infected by the acting virus back in high school in his native Pittsburgh; spent eight years on Broadway before coming to Hollywood in "Sherlock Holmes" in 1920. Twice divorced. Powell has a son Bill, who is 37, was once engaged to Jean Harlow.

TYRONE POWER died on Nov. 15, 1958, stricken while filming "Solomon and Sheba." The third Tyrone of the Power dynasty of actors, he was born in Cincinnati, May 5, 1913, couldn't get going in Hollywood till he scored on Braadway. He made stardom in "Lloyds of London," became a great film idol. His last films were "Witness for the Prosecution" and "The Sun Also Rises." Dad of two daughters (by Linda Christian), his son, with third wife Debbie, is Tyrone IV.

GEORGE RAFT helped make the movie gangster famous the world over in a series of films such as "Scarface" which he made in the '30's. A boxer, pro baseball player, hoafer and actor, Raft claims his "personal association" with certain underworld elements has helped him play the tough guys on the screen. Born in New York in 1903, Raft, long separated from his wife, recently had a TVer, "I Am the Law," was in "Some Like It Hot." Latest film: "Ocean's 11."

MARGARET SULLAVAN'S tragic death last Jan. 1 from an accidental overdose of barbiturates revealed at last her secret, nerve-wracking struggle against deafness. Maggie was born in Norfolk, Va., May 16, 1911, won success onstage in "Stage Door" and came to Hollywood in 1933 for "Only Yesterday." Thrice divorced—from Hank Fonda, William Wyler and Leland Hayward—she has two daughters; Brooke, Brigit, and son, Bill. Ken Wagg was her last mate.

LUISE RAINER is a native of Vienna, received her training with Max Reinhardt, scored in Europe before coming to the U.S. Her career here was short and brilliant. Her first screen appearance was in "Emperor's Candlesticks," her last in "Hostage." Naw the wife of Robert Knittel, mother of a daughter, Luise was briefly wed to Clifford Odets. She received Oscars for her performances in "The Great Ziegfeld," in 1936, and alsa far "The Good Earth," in 1937.

GENE TIERNEY has been unable to resume her promising career due to the continuing after effects of a nervous breakdown suffered after she made "The Left Hand of God." Born in Brooklyn, Nov. 20, 1920, Gene gave up the life of a debutante to storm Broadway in "The Male Animal." Marriage to Oleg Cassini produced two daughters and a divorce. Just recently she married Howard Lee, hopes to be recovered and filming again soon in both movies and TV.

GINGER ROGERS is, at 49, seemingly indestructible. Born Virginia McMath in Independence, Mo., July 16, she won fame on Broadway in "Girl Crazy," ventured to Hollywood in 1930 for "Young Man of Manhattan." She hit her heyday in a series of top musicals with Fred Astaire such as "Top Hat," "Shall We Dance" and "The Castles." Still looks and dances as well as ever. Ginger hasn't won with four husbands. Oscar winner in 1940 for her "Kitty Foyle."

SPENCER TRACY is a native of Milwaukee, Wis. (April 5, 1900), was a pre-med student at college when World War I Naval Service interrupted. Now 56, Norma retired after "Her Cardboard Lover" and "Escape" to be happy with second husband Marty Arrouge, her son, daughter and grandchildren. Her greotest popular success was in "Smilin" Through," she won hearts in other hits, too. Winner of 1930 Oscar for her performance in "The Divorcee."

LANA TURNER has been a Hollywood story ever since she was 16, sipping a soda at a drugstore and "discovered." A native of Wallace, Idaho (Feb. B, 1920), she debuted in "They Won't Forget" and we haven't. The "Sweater Girl" of the 40's, her personal life has been strewn with broken marriages to Artie Shaw, Steve Crane, Bob Topping and Lex Barker, and the Stompanato tragedy. But she came back in "Portrait in Black,". She is wed to Fred May.

ANN SHERIDAN, whose last picture was "The Woman and the Hunter," is still as lovely as she was when she was known as Hollywood's oomph girl. That was in the late thirties and early forties. But when Annie's contract with Warners expired, she cut down her movie activities. After all, she had been working since she made "Ladies Shauld Listen" in 1934. Born in Denton, Texas, Feb. 21, 1915, Annie's been divorced twice and has been active lately on television.

ORSON WELLES, one of the most talented of all time, was born in Kenosha, Wisconsin, May 6, 1915, troined at Dublin's Gate Theatre and came back to the U.S. to form, as a "boy genius," the Mercury Theatre. His radio "martian invasion" scared the daylights out of the U.S. He wrote, directed, produced and starred in "Citizen Kane." He's been thrice wed, ance to Rita Hayworth, has two daughters, now commutes between Europe and the U.S. for films.

SYLVIA SIDNEY was born in New York City, August 8, 1910, was educated at the Theatre Guild School. She wan her fame on Broadway and in Hollywoad by her portrayal of drab girls in trouble. She quit Hollywood in 1939 and went back to Broadway to do "The Gentle People" with Franchot Tone. Married briefly to publisher and raconteur Bennett Cerf, she was also married and divorced from actor Luther Adler. Her biggest film hit was "Street Scene."

MAE WEST has a life jacket named for her, still personifies S-X, though well past her prime. Born in Brooklyn on August 17, many moons ago, the platinum blonde made her debut at the age of six in New York. In burlesque and vaudeville she was first known as the "Baby Vamp," but she grew up, continued that role in many revues. Her first film was "Night After Night" in 1932. Never married, the sex symbol can still strut. Recently wrote her life story.

JAMES STEWART was born in Indiana, Pa., May 28, 1908. Now a ane-star General in the Air Force, Jimmie was an architect student at Princeton when the theatre called, Summer stock first, then Broadway, then, in 1935 to Hollywood for the original "Rose Marie." Married to Gloria McLean, they have faur kids, two of hers by a previous marriage, twin daughters with Jimmie. His Oscar was far "Philadelphia Story," 1940. He was last seen in "The Mountain Road."

A RADIO REVOLUTION

There've been some changes made in radio-so sweeping and revolutionary. that radio has a completely new look. Biggest news, of course, was the strong crackdown by all networks, as the result of the payola scandals. Disc jockey programs-and all others, for that matter-are now under very close surveillance, and people are required to sign affidavits stating that they do not receive payola in any form. As a result, the public is getting the music it wants to hear-not what someone else wants it to hear. Another sweeping change is in program format, with the emphasis on news, information, and enterainment, a trend seen in CBS' discard of all daytime dramas, ABC's new "Flair." It's all good news for radio listeners, promising them much better entertainment.

NOBODY—but in a sense, everybody—stars on ABC's mast unusual new show, "Road to Reality." Designed to be of enlightening, instructive help on the subject of mental health, it is based an actual tapes of group therapy sessions. These are then edited far smooth continuity—although nothing pertinent is sacrificed—and actors cast to play the rales of the real people invalved. In order to maintain the very authentic otmosphere of the show, no names of ony of the actors taking part will be publicized.

of ABC's "Flair," a new concept of radio entertainment featuring top personalities and music. Dick, comedian-star of Broadway's "Bye Bye Birdie," was barn in Danville, Ill., Dec. 13, 1925, traded an ad agency for show business. Married, he has three children.

AIRING THEIR

teen town

GEORGE CHRISTY, "Mayor" of ABC's "Teen Town," got the idea for the show because, as a magazine writer on movie stars, he was often asked by teens, "What are they really like?" In his candid interviews with stars like Sandra Dee (abave), George now tells them. George was born in Monessen, Pa., storted writing for military journals while in the Korean War, kept it up as a promotion writer when he was discharged. He also wrote, produced and staged industrial shows, but has found his most rewarding work with teens.

VIEWS...

TEDI THURMAN, weather girl on NBC's "Monitor," comes by those sultry southern tones naturally. She's a Midville, Georgia, girl. Tedi started out to be an artist, switched to modeling when more people asked her to pose than paint. Modeling for NBC's "Today" got her a crack at "Monitor," and she was an instant hit. Tedi's single.

BEN GRAUIR has done everything in the book—special events reporting, symphony commentating, panel moderating, quiz-mastering. Born Benjamin Franklin Grauer in New York City, June 2, 1908, he was also a child actor at 8, in early silent movies. He got into NBC right after he got out of N.Y. City College. He's wed to Melanie Kahane.

FRANK GALLOP, whose resonant voice is heard chiding Perry Como, is also a "Monitar" standby, having run the gamut of radio and TV, announcing from drama to coinedy. A mainstay at NBC for more than 20 years, Frank is so expert in his field that he's often called upon to lecture on speech at many leading universities.

Dave Garroway's life story appears on page 60.

breakfast club

FRAN ALLISON, who started on "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," began her career as a singer at a Waterloo, lowa, radio station in 1934. Her career as "Aunt Fanny" was lounched by a waggish announcer who one day announced her that way. Going along with the gag, she "visited" in the local idiom, spontaneously creating the famous role. In 1937 she went on to Chicago, continuing her "Aunt Fanny" on the "Breakfast Club."

DON McNEILL has spent exactly half of his 52 years presiding over that ABC radio network fixture known to countless millions as the "Breakfast Club." A native of Galena, Ill., Don is a Marquette University journalism grad who had planned a career as a newspaper cartoonist. A chance radia job started him on the airlane road to fame. Married to a college friend, the former Katherine Bennett, he has 3 sons.

grand ole opry

MINNIE PEARL (Sarah Ophelia Colley) once taught dramatics, graduated from a fashionable finishing school in Nashville, Tenn., but you'd never believe it to look at her when she's dressed in her "Grand Ole Opry" outfit. Her travels through the south giving dramatic readings provided the background for the Minnie Pearl character. Born in Centerville, Tenn., Sarah is married.

meet mr. opera

Milton CROSS, star of "Meet Mr. Opera" is just that to millions of listeners, who have heard him commentate on the Metropolitan Opera broadcast matinees on CBS radio since they began, in 1931. When he first started to work on these shows, he used to ad-lib his comments, displaying his impressive knowledge of opera; now he uses scripts. still can't resist ad-libbing once in a while.

suspense

AGNES MOOREHEAD is a Presbyterian minister's daughter who taught school until she had enough money to go to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. Now, with hundreds of roles in radio, stage, TV and movies behind her, Agnes could teach ony actor. Born in Boston, Dec. 6, she grew up in Reedsburg, Wiss, has a master's in English from U, of Wisc. She's been divorced twice.

the eydie gorme show

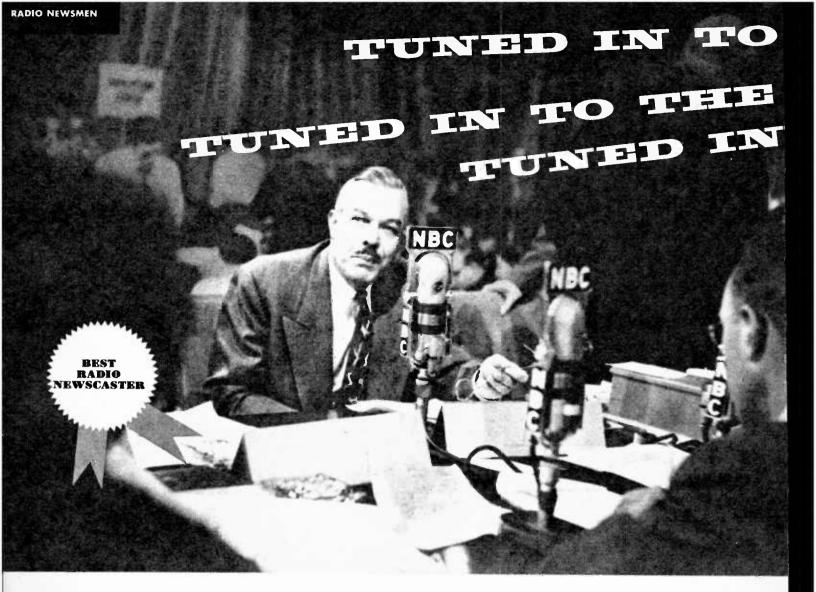

EWDIE GORME is singing her heart aut on ABC again, having taken time out to became the mother of a husky son. Dad, of caurse, is popular singer Steve Lawrence. Eydie hails from the Bronx, began singing with Tommy Tucker and Tex Beneke, had her own Spanish-speaking Voice of America program, before she and Steve both hit it big on the Steve Allen Show in 1953.

yours truly, johnny dollar

BOB BAILEY, who plays "Johnny Dollar" on CBS radio, has done almost everything in his career, from sideshow "barking" to playing professional badminton. At 4, he was acting in his parents' stock company, followed his mother into radio after trying other pursuits. After 7 years in Chicago, he went to Hollywood acted—and wrote—in films. Says Bailey, "I still like variety."

MORGAN BEATTY again gets our vote as top radio newscaster, having marked his 14th year as chief commentator on NBC's "News of the World." He also serves as a communicator on "Monitor," and in many other reporting capacities, and has wen many an award for his work. Born in Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 6, 1902, Morgan began reporting for a local paper while still in high school, went on to score a newsman's dream beat—on Himmler's offer of surrender during WW II. Married, he has two sons, Morgan, Jr., 25, Stephen, 20—future newsmen.

KENNETH BANGHART'S dignified job as an NBC news commentator would never give you the idea that he's also an actor at heart, but such is the case. Away from the mike, he likes to work in the theatre and summer stock. A native of Newark, N. J., Ken grew up in New York. 17 years ago he took a leave of absence from his post as an executive of Cook's travel agency to try announcing at NBC's Washington station, WRC. He never went back, and Cook's might as well give up hope. But Kenneth still hopes to act.

BLAIR CLARE, well know as anchor man of CBS' "The World Tonight," was born in East Hampton, N. Y., educated at Harvard. He began his career with the St. Louis "Post Dispatch," joined the Army during WW II. After winning prominence with New England publications, he joined CBS in 1953, has since traveled the world in covering news. He wed Holladay Philbin in 1941; they now live in New York with sons Timothy, 17, Cameron, 16. Blair recently returned from tour of West Africa.

RON COCHRAN, long familiar to viewers in the New York area on WCBS-TV's "Late News" and "Seven O'clock Report," now brings his suave, lively style of news reporting to the national CBS network news programs. Ron is particularly knowledgeable on doings in the national capital for he got his start on WTOP in Washington, joined CBS in 1941, was a Washington correspondent, also active in public affairs programs. He moved to the CBS news staff in New York in 1954, has been busy since.

ALEX DREIER made a long trip from Honolulu, where he was born, to California when he was small, and has been world-traveling ever since. When he gets a chance to settle down between jaunts, he and wife Joy live in Chicago. The 5'11", 200 lb. Alex is envied by other newsmen for his remarkable predictions. The NBC radio and TV "crystal ball" commentator was right about the Nazi invasion of Russia, the date of Germany's surrender, and Eisenhower's 1952 election within two electoral votes!

DON GODDARD has been a top news reporter ever since he joined the old New York "Warld" in 1926. He ran his own paper in Homer, N. Y., for five years, then worked for NBC, switching to ABC in 1953, where he often subbed for traveling John Daly. Don, a Princeton grad, was born in Binghamton, N. Y., July 5, 1904. In 1931 he married Adele Letcher. They live in Larchmont, N. Y., have four children—Mrs. Marilu Barnaby, Don L., Susan, and little Marion, the "baby," who was born on July 31, 1954.

Y., where he lives in the summer with wife Iris, children Christapher and Audrey, was built by his great-grandfather. A specialist on WW II, he's written many articles. 85

GOOD SPORTS

MEL ALLEN has been the ebullient voice of the New York Yankees since 1939, with three years time out far an Army stint. Born Melvin Allen Israel in Birmingham, Alabama, Feb. 14, 1913, he was a graduate of the U. of Alabama, came to New York as a sportscaster for CBS in 1936. Mr. "How-about-that" has covered a long string of World Series games, all-star contests and football bowl games in addition to his regular chores for the Yanks. In 1950 there was a special "Mel Allen Day" held at Yankee Stadium!

JACK DREES has been reporting the Wednesday night fights for ABC from ringside since 1952, but the tall former University of lawa basketball player has also announced baseball, horse racing, college and professianal faotball. His career began with Chicago's station WJJD, progressed through 33 months of Navy service, then back into sports as a prafootball promotion man with the old Las Angeles Dons. Jack is married and father of two sons.

DON DUNPHY has described more than 500 fights, 13 of them heavyweight champ bouts. He's also described baseball, foatball, harness racing, basketball and track. Born in New Yark City, July 5, 1910, Don's a grad of Manhattan College, who started as a sportswriter, also did publicity. Made it big after his braadcast of the Gus Lesnevich-Anton Christofordis fight by call-the boys Gus and Chris. Don is married, lives with his wife and two sans on Lang Island.

LES KEITER, the play-by-play man for the newly formed American Football League (ABC-TV), is a 19-year mike veteran. Born in Seattle 39 years ago, Les graduated Washington U., then spent four years in the Navy. After a brief tenure as a DJ and MC for quiz shows, he turned to his first love—sports. Came to New York six years ago and has done baseball, faotball and championship fights, in addition to post-fight shows. Les is married and the father of five.

ROD BELCHER, sports director of the KING Broadcasting Company, Seattle, Washington, began his sports reporting career while still an All-Conference basketball player at Califarnia's Humbolt State College. Since then he's gone on to broadcast all sports including big league baseball and the San Francisco 49ers pro football contests. Rod's won many honors for his sports reporting, is a famous figure in the Northwest. Rod's married, has three daughters.

BUD PALMER was a star basketball player at Princeton, later played pro ball with the New York Knicks. The 36-year-old Palmer was born in Hollywood, got his first announcing job with station WMGM in New York. Tall and handsome, Palmer can sell hair tonic as well as call golf, basketball, horse racing and hockey. For those who wish a similar career, Bud has this advice to give: "ga to college." Palmer married the former Miss Daisy Dyer in 1956.

DAVE CAMERER enjoys a triple-threat sports background. A great athlete at Dartmouth in football, baseball and hockey, Dave has written sports books, sports columns, also has network credits as a sportscaster. It prepares him perfectly for his new CBS sports show. An Air Force veteran, Dave helped edit the Roy Campanella book, "It's Good ta be Alive." Dave and his wife Muriel live in Connecticut with their husky young son, Michael, 11.

JIMMY POWERS, sports editor of the New York "Daily News," first broadcast on radio back in 1935. Best known now for his cammentary show, the Powerhouse of sports, and his blow-by-blow accounts of the Friday night TV boxing matches, Jimmy was an athlete himself in his younger days, winning letters in football, baseball and track back at Marquette University. Married and a father, Powers lives in Tarrytown, New Yark with his sportsmod family.

HOWARD COSELL is one of the best and busiest of sportscasters, despite the fact that he's a relative newcamer to the field. Originally a lawyer with an intense interest in sports, it was just six years ago that Cosell gave up the bar for the mike. The Winston-Salem, North Carolina native has now added pro football to his busy ABC schedule of radio and TV work. Has a penetrating interview technique which gets the most out of his top name sports guests.

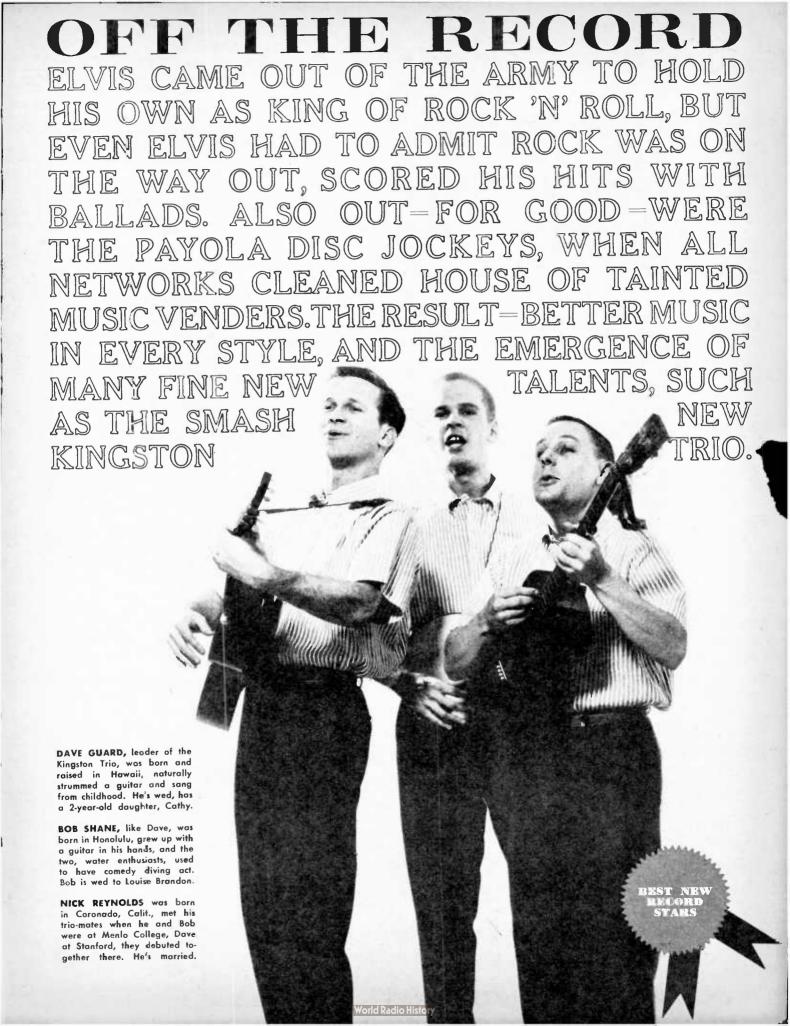

BOB RICHARDS is a lay preacher of the Church of the Brethren who also holds the record of having pole-vaulted over 15 feet more times than any other athlete. Reverend Richards was born in Champagne, Ill., in 1926, attended Bridgewater College in Virginia and graduated from the U. of Illinois in 1947. He begon delivering cammercials for Wheaties in June of 195B, then got a start broadcasting sparis shows in LA and New York. He's wed, three children.

JIMMY DEMARET, golfdom's gentlemon Jim, has won over thirty major tournaments in over 33 years of competing on the links, is known far his unfailing good nature, win, lose or draw. Jimmy was born May 24, 1912 in Houston, Texas, became a pro golfer in 1927. Masters champ in 1940, 1947 and 1948, Jimmy still plays about 10 big ones each year. In 1959 Jimmy took on commentary chores for ABC-TV All Star Golf series, is still going strong.

PHIL RIZZUTO, the great "Scoater" of the New York Yankees, an MVP shortstop and one of the most popular players in Yankee history, is now making good—very good—as a baseball play-by-play man and sports commentator. An intimate knowledge of baseball, and of the Yanks in particular, gave Phil a headstart and he's made an amazing technical improvement as he's gane alang. The 42-year-old Rizzuto is married and father of three girls and a boy.

PAUL ANKA, whose recording of "Diana" won the singer-composer-lyricist gold records for the U.S., Canada, England and Australia, got into writing and performing as a single almost by accident. The writing came because the trio he had organized couldn't find suitable material—the "single" when he found he could do his own songs best alone. Ottawa-born, July 30, 1941, Paul has many hits, such as "Lonely Boy," to his credit, also movies. Latest. "Look In Any Window."

and hospitals, she decided some day she'd come to the U. S. When she did, in 1950, she was already a singing sensation in Eurape. A Carnegie Hall debut and Ed Sullivan's TV show led to movies, records, TV roles and night clubs. Now 23, she's a full-fledged American. Anna's single, almost wed musician Buddy Bregman one time. LOUIS ARMSTRONG has become a legend in his own time and a jazz prophet with honor in every country in the world. Like Uncle Sam, he was born on the Fourth of July (the place, a back alley in New Orleans. The time: 1893, they say.) He tramped to Chicago when jazz was born, joined King Oliver and has gone on from there to fame with his horn an ever faithful campanion. Long or short hair, everyone loves Satchmo, who got his name on his first trip to London. He's still going strong!

ANNA MARIA ALBERGHETTI first met

Americans when they were the Army of Occupation in her native Italy, just after the war. Singing at camp shaws, canteens

LA VERNE BAKER taught Johnnie Ray to sing the blues, way back when he was unknown. Not much older than 17, she was already a favorite in Chicago (her home town) and in Detroit—where she met Ray. After band and club experience, La Verne went to Europe, and she came home a headliner to be signed by Atlantic in 1954. "Tweedlee Dee" took her out of the specialties class and put her in the camp of the rock 'n' rollers. Since, she's been touring the world, making friends for r 'n' r.

COUNT BASIE has been loyal to "the beat" almost since he began toddling around the family home at Red Bank, N.J., where he was born Aug. 21, 1904. His mother taught him piano; banging one in a Kansas City silent movie house taught him the value of a nickel. He played with Walter Page's Blue Devils, took over Benny Moten's band on the latter's death in 1935. He's led a "big band" most of the time since. The Count (wha was born William) is now recording for Rculette.

THE AMES BROTHERS have managed to survive all of the fads in the pop field and remained popular with o solid style and a succession of hits. Ed sinas ballads, acts as emcee. Vic does comedy. Gene dances and plays straight man for Vic. Joe pitches in with the operatic stuff. The four brothers all were born and spent the greater part of their youth in Boston and surrounding suburbs. Ed is youngest, then Vic, Gene and Joe. Since grammar school days the boys have been vocalizing as a unit. They won prizes in virtually every amateur contest they entered. Got a start at the Boston Latin Quarter. All four are married. MOLLY BEE, who's hitting on all cylinders these days, hardly seems to be the gal who got her first two big breaks for belting out "Lovesick Blues." As a Tucson, Ariz., schoolgirl, she was heard by a locol d.j. who aired her. Soon after, the family moved to Hollywood, where it happened again, winning her a regular TV spot, and then a show of her own. The blue-eyed honeyblonde was born in Oklahoma, 21 years ago, is part Indian. Since dad died she's supported her mother, two young brothers.

TONY BENNETT made it the hard way to the fame such hits as "Because of You," "Cold, Cold Heart" and "Stranger in Paradise" brought him. Born Anthony Benedetto in Astoria, Queens, Tony's dad died when he was a boy. Soon he began to pick up $15 for weekend singing dates to help his mother. After 3 years in the infantry in World War II, he almost switched to art, but changed his mind for good when Bob Hope took him on one of his tours. Married, his sons are D'Andrea, 6, Daegal, 4.

TERESA BREWER may be little (5', 99 lbs.) but—oh, my! First she quit, then was fired from subbing for Perry Como two summers ago—and just bounced into other TV shows for even more money. Tereso's been bowling 'em over ever since she started out from her native Toledo with a Major Bowes unit at 5. Now 28, Teresa spends every minute when not working in a 12-room house in New Rochelle, N. Y., with husband-manager Bill Monahan, and her four daughters Susan, 8, Kathleen, 9, Megan, 5, Michelle, 2.

ANITA BRYANT made it big with "Till There Was You," is currently getting bigger with regular appearances on Don McNeill's "Breakfast Club" five days a week on ABC. Radio. A native of Barnesdale, Oklahoma, she made the local High School operetta at the age of six, won a state talent contest at nine. Anita made her professional bow on WKY-TV, Oklahoma City, moved to Tulsa and more TV, then got discovered nationally via Godfrey's Talent Scouts. Anita's been doing well ever since.

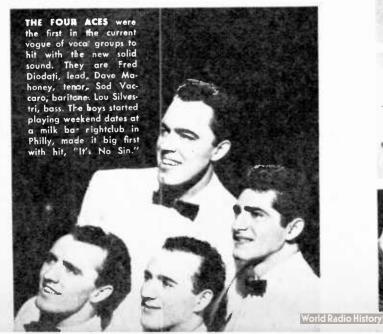

DIAHANN CARROLL was something of a prodigy, won a Met Opera scholarship in her native New York City at the age af ten. Combining a classic lyrical quality with an ability to project the best pop tunes as well, Diahann was catapulted into the national spotlight by that old catapulter himself, Jack Paar. Broadway saw her sing and act in "House of Flowers" and Hollywood won her for the role of Clara in "Porgy and Bess." Now regularly seen as a guest on TV, Diahann also has put together albums.

JOHNNY CASH was born in Kingsland, Arkansas, twenty-eight years ago, has apparently inherited the mantle worn so many years by the late Hank Williams as the poet laureate of the country music field. Johnny writes 'em and sings 'em since his first record, "Cry, Cry, Cry," he's turned out over half a hundred solid country hits. He's appeared with Ed Sullivan and is, of course, one of the top brass in the "Grond Ole Op'ry" chicken coop. An Air Force veteran, he once sold electrical appliances.

JIMMY CLANTON, at age 20, is a hit composer, singer, and movie star. His first record, "Just a Dream," sold a million—and he collects writer's royalties as well as singer's loot for it. He's starred in the movie "Go, Johnny, Go!" and has releosed an album, also called "Just A Dream," which contains 4 songs from the film and is selling faster than the Baton Rouge, La, native can caunt. To Jimmy, who's been singing since his dad bought him a guitar, his success is just a dream come true.

ROSEMARY CLOONEY says "I want six children." She has only one to go—so far, Mrs. José Ferrer has Miguel, 5, Maria, 4, Gabriel, 3, and Monsita, 2, baby. Rosie, born May 23, 1928 in Maysville, Ky., has been singing ever since she and sister Betty began as a team on Cincinnati's radio station WLW. She made her first hit as a single with "Come-On-A-My-Induse." Still tops on records, she's in demand for TV too—she and hubby José Ferrer star in Thanksgiving spec.

NAT "KING" COLE, who's just finished a hectic tour of South America, seems as young as the first day he sang. Originally a pianist heoding up a trio, he was performing at a dive in Hollywood when a drunk patron asked him to sing "Sweet Lorraine." The manager insisted, he sang and a new talent was born. Nathaniel Adams Coles was born in Montgamery, Ala., March 17, 1919. 6'1", 170 lbs., he and his wife Maria (a former vocalist with Duke Ellington) have 2 daughters, and a son.

CHRIS CONNOR, a jazz stylist who refuses "to believe there isn't a new way to sing an old song," was born in Kansas City, Mo., an Nov. 8, 1927. With her dad ovicilinist and the sounds of the jazz greats all around her, Chris learned to play both clarinet and violin. But it was singing she loved best. After stints with focol combos, she toured with Claude Thornhill for 3 years, had ather band jobs, and wound up as vocalis? with Stan Kenton. She became a single; now records for Atlantic Records.

SAM COOKE naturally started out as a gospel singer, because his father was a minister, and for seven years he sang with various gospel groups around Chicago, where he was born. Sam didn't lose his religion, but gained an additional career as a pap singer when brother L. C. Cooke obligingly wrote him a hit, "You Send Me." It sent Sam straight to the top of the record world. Now Sam, in turn, can help the rest of the Cookes with their careers—he has seven brothers and sister to "establish."

BOB CREWE is a friendly young man of 23, born in Newark, N.J., who has dreamed since the age of four of having a full time singing career. He's got one now. It started with a trip ta Europe with a USO outfit after Bob got out of high school. Bob got work at a club in Rome, raves in the Rome press. Back in the States he met up with Frank Slay, a Texas businessman turned song writer. The pair composed some hits, then Bob started singing 'em himself. "Silhouettes" sold a million for writer Bob.

MUSIC STARS

JAMES DARREN got himself a whole new career as a singing star when he warbled on TV, amazing folks who thought of him only as a Columbia movie actor. But Jimmy's an old pro—he used to sing in clubs in Philadelphia, where he was born on June 8, 1936, and grew up as James Ercolani. A chance meeting with producer Joyce Selznick led to Columbia's doors. Divorced from Gloria Terlitsky, whom he wed in 1955, he has a son, James, nearly 4. He's wed to starlet Evy Norlund, mother of new son.

SAMMY DAVIS JR. was born in New York 34 years ago, and has been in show business for 30 of those years. At the age of 4, he joined his father in his uncle's vaudeville quintet (later known as "The Will Mastin Trio"). Later, he became a nightclub and recording solo great, broke into films with "Anna Lucasta," currently in "Porgy and Bess" and the new "Ocean's 11" with Frank Sinatra. A highly sought-after but now infrequent TV guest, Sammy was married—and divorced—will marry May Britt.

DION and the BELMONTS got their group name from a street in the Bronx, New York, have all come a long way since they used to sing on the subways. Dion was first seen professionally with Pops Whiteman, organized the group when offered a chance to record for Laurie. Now 20, Dion DiMucci signed up second tenor Fred Milano, who also plays classical and pop piano, is also 20; Carlo Mastrangelo sings bass, doubles on drums when he can, is 22. Tenor Angelo D'Aleo is 19, on leave from the Navy.

FATS DOMINO, who's been called one of the great exponents of rock 'n' roll, explains: "I've been playing this music since I can remember, calling it Rhythm and Blues. It comes straight from Dixieland jazz." Fats comes from the heart of Dixieland. He was born in New Orleans Feb. 26, 1928, and started singing and piano-playing in local honkytonks at age 10. His reputation spread, before he was out of his teens he was known as a "musician's musician." One of 9 children, Fats already has 6 of his own.

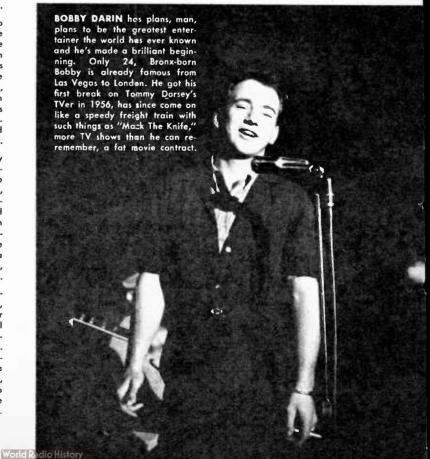

DUANE EDDY is glad he didn't listen to his grammar school teacher, who, when he was 7, told him he'd never get anywhere playing the guitar. It's merely taken him from his Phoenix, Ariz., home to a place as head of the top instrumental group in the country. Duane was born in Corning, N.Y., April 26, 1938, but grew up in Arizona when his family moved there. Six feet tall, he's quiet and shy. His best friend is Lee Hazle. wood, who's given him career advice and collaborates with Duane on his hit tunes.

DUKE ELLINGTON, born Edward Kennedy Ellington in 1900, almost became a commercial artist. He passed up a scholarship to a famous art institute for his first love, piano. He couldn't read a note of music ununtil he was 16—but as soon as he could read it, he wrote it. His original "modern music" compositions now include "Mood Indigo," "I Didn't Know About You," movie and show scores. In 1927 he formed a band, debuted at New York's Cotton Club, and met fame. Son Mercer composes, too.

FABIAN, it is said, is a figment of the fertile brain of his manager, Bob Marcucci, also responsible for F. Avalon. Figment or not as a singer, he became a very real star when he waxed "Turn Me Loose," became another Philadelphia story. Born Feb. 6, 1943, son of a Philly policeman, Dominick Forte, Fabian (his real name) now owns a fat movie pact, with two films in the can, "High Time" and "Go North." He's also got lots of hit singles and albums, more fans than he knows what to do with.

connie Francis was born Connie Franconero on December 12, 1938 in Newark, N.J. After the typical amateur career as a kid singing and playing the accordion, Connie appeared and won on Godfrey's "Tolent Scouts" show when she was 12. Three years later with an MGM record contract she was still in left field. Then Papa suggested she try "Who's Sorry Now?" with a beet and 'nobody's been sorry since. After six months the record took off over the million mark. Now look at Connie! Everything's happened including TV, cross-country tours, nightclubs and lots more hit records—movie bow in "Where the Boys Are."

ELLA FITZGERALD, hailed by Bing Crosby as "the greatest—man, woman, or child," didn't want to be a singer! The magnificent Miss Ella entered a Harlem dance cantest as a dancer, but got such stagefright she couldn't move, so sang instead. Of course, she won, and her every appearance has reoped praise ever since. Divorced from musician Ray Brown, Ella lives in Hollywood with her son Ray, 11. Of her famous "style," Ella says, "I don't have any. I just don't sing what I don't feel," sums up her magic.

ANNETTE FUNICELLO was barn October 22, 1942 in Utico, New York, started dance training at five, won a dance contest at nine. Then modeling jobs and a contract with Walt Disney who spotted her in an amoteur dance contest in Burbank, California and launched her pro career. Annette made her mavie bow in Disney's "Shaggy Dog," has now graduated to more romantic roles, recently playing a fiery Spanish wench on TV's "Zarro." Still fondly remembered as one of Disney's original "Mouseketeers."

GEORGIA GIBBS is just about the most versatile performer around. Back when lush ballads were the rage, she scored with "Kiss of Fire." A switch by the public to hillbilly was met with "Seven Lonely Days." The Calypso vague prompted Her Nibs' rendition of "Somebody Bad Stole De Wedding Bell." Then rock 'n' roll hit the country, and Georgia hit with "Dance With Menry." Her ease with every style comes from singing with bands on one-nighters since age 11, where she sang any request.

BRIAN MYLAND, his agents claim, won't be allawed to perform in school because it "would cause a riot." Be that as it may, he was born on Navember 12, 1943 in New York City and his sister and six brothers are his leading fans. Accampanying himself on the guitar, Brian appears to be in "another world" when he's in the middle of a number. Though personna non grata in school, Brian has signed up with Kapp records to record on the Leader label with his biggest hit, "Itsy Bitsy Bikini."

EARTHA KITT was born in 1928 in Narth, Sauth Carolina—but she's known where she was going ever since. A dancer with famed Katherine Dunham Troupe at 16, appearance at a command performance at 20, "the most exciting waman in Paris" when she sang there at 22, she's traversed the globe and speaks 9 languages. When she returned to America, a role off-Broadway in "New Faces of 1952" made her a sensation here. Records followed—"Uska Dara," "C'est Si Bon"—films like "Anna Lucasta." Married.

MARIO LANZA's turbulent life came to an untimely end on Oct. 7, 1959, when he died of a heart attack in Rome at the age of 38. But his golden voice lives an and his records are still among the top sellers. Born Alfred Arnold Cocazza in New York City, he grew up in Philodelphia, where his voice first attracted attention when, while working as a piano mover, he was heard by Koussevitsky. "The Great Caruso" made him a top movie star. His wife, Betty, died shortly after Mario, leaving four children.

ROD LAUREN was born of musical parents on March 26, 1940 in Fresno, California, wanted to be an actor from early childhood. He starred in local high school ploys, enrolled for a year in Stockton Jr. Callege where he studied dramatics. He was "discovered" as a singer and signed to a contract when Dick Peirce, an A and R man for RCA Victor who heard some demos Rod made for a friend. His first record, "If Had a Girl" coupled with "Na Wonder" brought him immediate attention, movies.

BRENDA LEE made her initial appearance in the world on December 11, 1944 in Atlanta, Georgia, the secand oldest of four children. Five years later she sang in an amateur contest and in March 1956 she took a toehald an the ladder of success with her first stint on "Ozark Jubilee." She's now a regular on that hayseed hour, has also chalked up appearances on the Perry Como Show, the Steve Allen Show and other network autings. Her first record for Decca was "Jambalaya," disc hit, "I'm Sorry."

PEGGY LEE was Norma Egstrom of Jamestown, N.D., when, in her teens, she changed her name and started aut as a band vocalist. When she and first husband, Dave Barbour, collaborated on "Manana," Peggy won fame that has never waned. In her private life, she hasn't been so lucky. Her three marriages—ta Barbour, Brad Dexter, and actor Dewey Martin—ended in divarce. Her divarce from Dewey was final last June. Friends hope Peggy, 36, will find happiness.

THE MCGUIRE SIS-TERS have a system: Christine picks their clothes, Phyllis does the talking, Dorothy is the organizer. After winning on Talent Scouts in 1952, they became Godfrey regulars, never home to Miamisburg, Ohio, where mother's a minister, except to visit. Now on their own, they're going great in clubs and TV as well as on records. All were born in Middletown, Ohio. Dates: Chris, July 30, 1928; Phyllis, Feb. 14, 1931; Dotty, Feb. 13, 1930.

JULIE LONDON thought her life was over when after 7 years of marriage, she was divorced from Jack Webb in 1953. But she picked up the movie career she'd abandoned. Urged by musician-friend Bobby Troup to try singing, too, she re-corded "Cry Me a River." Result: the sad blues that are her specialty have gone from her own life. Julie, a Californian born in Santa Rosa, Sept. 26, is happy now with daughters Lisa, 7, Stacy 10, and her new hubby-who is-Bobby Troup.

TONY MARTIN started musically as a sax-and-clorinetist at age 12 in his hometown (Oakland, Calif.) high school band. While in college he sang and played on radio, and after a wow engagement at Chicago's Chez Paree, he changed his name from Alvin Morris, Jr., and set out for L.A. A score of movies followed, interlaced with marriage and divorce from Alice Faye, and marriage to Cyd Charisse in 1948. They have a 10-year-old, Tony Jr. Tony's SROing in nightclubs.

JOHNNY MATHIS was born Sept. 30, 1935 in San Francisco where his Dad, who gave up vaudeville acting for chauffeuring to support the family, had moved with his seven children and Mrs. Mathis. Johnny was a track star and studying to be an English teacher at San Francisco State College, but left ta pursue a singing career. His first hit was "Chances Are" which he followed up with "Wonderful" at which point his career really got off the mark. He's single.

CLYDE McPHATTER was a boy soprano who had his own gospel-singing quartet back home in Durham, N.C. before he hit his teens. The family moved to N.Y. when he was 12, and Clyde made himself a new reputation as a gospel singer. When his voice changed, he found himself a high-placed tenor and then a member of the famed Daminoes. Later, he organized his own group, The Drifters, who recorded for Atlantic. Drafted in 1954, Clyde became a star "single" after his discharge.

JAYE P. MORGAN started her solo career at 18, when she auditioned to sing with the Frank de Vol Orchestra, and won. But she'd been in show biz since age 3, when she, her mom, dad, sister, and 5 brothers toured as The Morgan Family, a voriety act. Born in a log cabin in Mancos, Colo., in 1932, Jaye left De Vol to sing on the Robert Q. Lewis TV show, and her "belting" earned her own TV program. Timing was bad: it was the year of surplus singers. Now she's a popular TV guest.

JOHNNY NASH, born in Houston, Texas, 18 years ago, owes his jump from caddy to recording star to the fact that he just plain loves to sing. One of his fellowcaddies, impressed by the voice with which Johnny sounded off at every opportunity, called him to the attention of a golfer who happened to be a Paramount exec. Johnny was signed to the AM-Par record lobel. He won a "Talent Scout" contest and become a Godfrey regular. His first film was "Take a Giant Step,"

PATTI PAGE has topped all femme vocalists for the past 10 years in record sales. But she wasn't happy until 1956, when she wed dance director Charles O'Curran. Patti was born Clara Ann Fowler, in Claremore, Okla., Nov. 8, 1927, next to the youngest of 11 children. She was discovered, singing in a Tulsa radio station, by band manager Jack Rael, in 1946. Morriage to college student Jack Skibo ended after 3 months, leaving scars that didn't heal until Charlie came along.

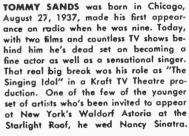

LLOYD PRICE's triple-threat talent as composer-arranger-singer has produced such hits as "Stagger Lee." Lloyd comes by his talent naturally, as both his parents were musical. Seventh of eight children, he began to study trumpet in high school in Kenner, La., a suburb of New Orleans, a year later had his own combo. An Army stint took him to the Far East, but he kept right on with his music. The ABC-Paramount star is married, has Lloyd Jr., 7, daughter Lori, 3.

JOHNNIE RAY grew "fram a fad and a freak to the world's greatest showman," a reporter summed up the singer's career—and London agreed about the latter part last year. It gave him a welcome no performer had ever seen before. Born John Alvin Ray in Dallas, Oregon, 33 years ago, the 5' 11½" lad started singing in a local burlesque house—but wanted most to be an actor. In 1949 he went to Hollywood, two years later he recorded "Cry." It made him a star.

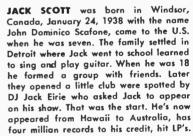

THE FOUR PREPS—Don Clarke, high tenor, Bruce Belland, lead tenor, Glen Larson, baritone, and Ed Cobb, bass—got their start at a school talent show in Hollywood High. They sang at local functions until they caught the ear of Voyle Gilmore, Capitol Records producer, who sent them on the way to fame. They hit it big in 1957 with "Dreamy Eyes," in 1958 with "26 Miles," written by Glen and Bruce.

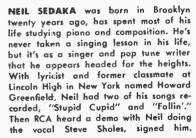

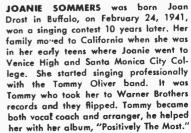

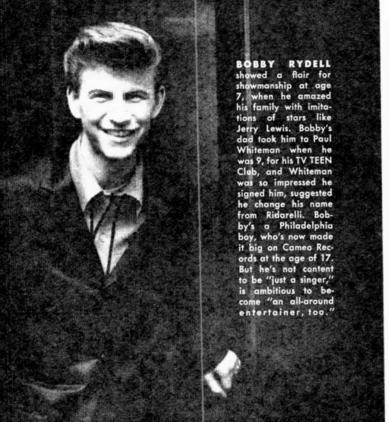

JOHNNY SAVOY was born in the Branx, New York with the name Johnny Colarusso. Both his foi'rs had musical backgrounds and wanted him to like it too. After graduation from high school, Johnny ertered Fordham, began playing piano with a school band at local affairs. He left college at mid-year and began making rounds. A sub job for someone for two nights found Johnny singing for a bandleader, got him record contract. New release: "No One To Love."

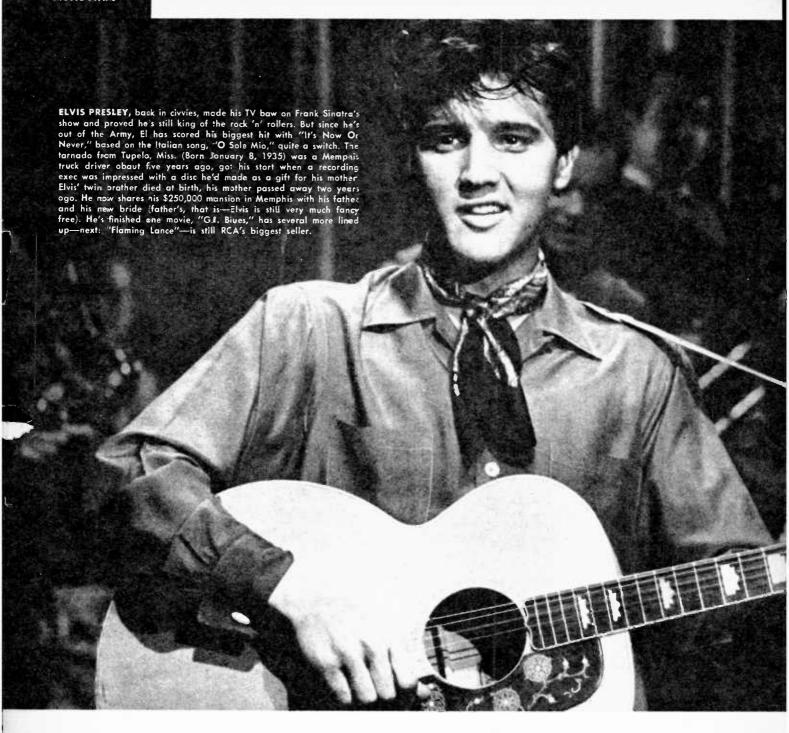

DELLA REESE was born Delareese Taliaferro in Detroit on July 6, 1932. When Deila was 13, the great gospel singer Mahalia Jackson heard her, signed her up for the Jockson group. During college years at Wayne University she formed her own gospel group. Gradually she graduated to pop singing, came to New York where she was signed to sing with Erskine Hawkins. Her TV credits include "Ed Sullivan Show," "The Big Record" with Patti Page. She records for RCA.

JIMMIE RODGERS learned guitar himself during the lonely hours in Korea during a four-year hitch with the Air Force. In 1956 he came home to Tamas, Washington, where he was born, Sept. 18, 1933 and decided to try show business. Club jobs kept him afloat till a thing called "Honeycomb" put him over the top in a hurry. Married in 1957 to childhood friend Colleen McClatchey, Jimmie's now a father. His own show over NBC didn't last, but it made Jimmie a host of loyal fans.

JO STAFFORD has dane just about everything any other top pop singer has done, and done it langer and better than most. She has a recorded weekly disc jockey show for Radio Luxembourg (which covers nearly all of free Europe), and is one of Europe's most popular singers. On TV she was a hit singing with Bing in a Crosby spec. Born in Coalinga, Cal., she made her professional debut at 12, hit the bigtime with Tommy Dorsey. Hubby Paul Weston does her arrangements.

KAY STARR says, "When I was 13, I weighed 175 pounds, stood five feet tall, and sang in a nightclub in Dallas," It was during the Depression—Kay earned $3 a night, a welcome addition to the fomily income because her dad and mother together made only $7 a week. Born in Texas, raised in Oklahoma and Tennessee, Kay says, "I'm really a farm girl," and claims the style that made her a top disc artist is combined hillbilly and modern. Married to Vic Schoen, had daughter.

DODIE STEVENS, with her "Pink Shoe Laces," tied up a place as the youngest hit singer in the business. Only 14 (she was born in Chicago, Feb. 17, 1946), she was 5 when she won three trophies in singing contests in L.A. parks. She started voice study at six, and was soon appearing at many local benefit shows, on radio and TV. Dodie's still managed to get high marks in school, find time for swimming and ping-pong. Eddie Cantor calls her "greatest talent since Garland."

CONWAY TWITTY was born Harold Jenkins in Friars Point, Miss., 26 years ago. His dad and grandfather played musical instruments, and Harold could accompony himself on the guitar at age 4. When he was 10, he made his first radio appearance. Two years later, he had his own band and radio show. A high school baseball star, he turned down prooffers to report for draft duty. Out, he decided to be a singer and signed with MGM records. Married. 3 children.

SARAH VAUGHAN's very first record, "It's Magic," sold over two million copies, and since then she's had a consistent string of hits and an immense following including most of the disc jockeys in the land. Sarah, born in 1928 in Newark, N.J., started as vocalist and pianist with Earl Hines' band after winning an amateur contest. With Bill Eckstine's and Joe Kirby's bands she perfected the style which has won her awards. Divorced from manager George Treadwell, she wed Clyde Atkins.

ADAM WADE was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., March 17, 1937, studied at Virginia State University and then entered the Dr. Jonas Salk Polio Research Center to begin a career as a biochemist. After one year he agreed to help a friend with a demo record in New York. The songs weren't much but Adam caught the fancy of bandleader George Paxton, president of Coed Records. His first release was "Tell Her For Me." Shortly after Adam recorded "Ruby" and was on his way.

DINAH WASHINGTON is now 35 years young, has been singing professionally since she was just 17. The petite (She's just a mite over five feet tall) mother of two sons, George, 13, and Bobby, 11, is sending them both to professional school and they've recently made their debuts. The little girl with all that voice has an interesting hobby. She collects mink coats, has twenty-three in her closets at last count. Claims her ambition is to get out of the singing and open a restaurant.

ANDY WILLIAMS started singing with his three brothers back in his home town of Wells Lake, lowa: They were the sole members of the church choir. Then, as the Williams brothers they backed Kay Thompson for 6 years in her club act. When the group broke up Andy signed on as a single with the old Steve Allen version of the "Tonight" show. A two week run lasted for two and a half years. The 29-year-old bachelor earned a whole passel of fans on his own show recently.

ROGER WILLIAMS was born in Omaha, Neb., the son of a prize fighter turned minister and a music teacher. He combined both heritages to full advantage. During the war he was a Navy boxing champ; today he's the largest "selling" pianist in the history of the record industry. A graduate of Idaho State, with an MA from Drake University, Roger also studied at New York's famous Juilliard School of Music. Radio, TV and one-man shows followed his big hit, "Autumn Leaves."

JACKIE WILSON didn't have any doubts about what he wanted to be when he got out of Highland Park High School in Detroit, where he was born June 9, 1934. Right after graduation, at 17, he joined a vocal group, Billy Ward and the Dominos. He toured with them until, on a return visit to Detroit, he met his present manager, Ned Tarnopol, who launched his career as a single. A contract with Brunswick records, seven consecutive hits, an Alan Freed show—Jackie was on his way.
