

seaman who was struck by a piece of iron at Ramleh. And when poor Maguire, a young sailor who had a leg shot off on board the Invincible, endeavoured to raise himself in his cot to receive the decoration which he had bravely won, the Queen quietly pressed his head back upon the pillow so that he should not suffer.

On leaving No. 4 Ward, Her Majesty was conducted to the left, or medical side, of the hospital into No. 7 Ward, in which the sick from the war were accommodated. To reach the ward in question without descending the stairs, it was necessary to pass through the central ward. This ward, which is empty at the present time, is a magnificent room, containing 19,000 cubic feet, and was much admired by the Royal visitors. In pinning on the medals in this ward the Queen was assisted by the Duke of Edinburgh. This concluded the visitation, whereupon the cortège was formed in the same order, the Queen driving back to Stokes Bay and embarking in the Alberta. Before leaving, Her Majesty expressed her satisfaction with everything she saw, and the arrangements which had been made for the comfort of the sick and wounded.

COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL.

NOTICE OF MEETING.

A MEETING of the Committee of Council will be held in the Council Room of Exeter Hall, Strand, London, on Wednesday, the 17th day of January next, at two o'clock in the afternoon.

FRANCIS FOWKE, General Secretary.

COLLECTIVE INVESTIGATION OF DISEASE.

CARDS and explanatory memoranda for the inquiries concerning Acute Pneumonia, Chorea, and Acute Rheumatism, can be had by application to the Honorary Secretaries of the Local Committees appointed by the Branches, or to the Secretary of the Collective Investigation Committee. Of these diseases, each member of the Association is earnestly requested to record at least one ordinary case coming under observation during the year.

Inquiries concerning Diphtheria and Syphilis have been prepared, and can be had on application by those willing to contribute information on these subjects. There are two cards on Diphtheria, one containing clinical, the other etiological inquiries, together with an explanatory memorandum. One of these cards is intended to serve as a guide to the systematic examination of a house or district for sanitary purposes. There are also two sets of inquiries concerning Syphilis, one for acquired, the other for inherited disease. These are accompanied by an explanatory memorandum giving information concerning the most recently observed symptoms of the inherited disease.

It is proposed to publish in the Journal in January a list of the Contributions received up to the end of the present year. It is therefore desirable that members should at once forward any cards they may have filled up to the Secretary of the Collective Investigation Committee.

F. A. MAHOMED, Secretary to the Committee.
12, St. Thomas's Street, S.E.

PUBLIC HEALTH AND POOR-LAW MEDICAL SERVICES.

PALINURUS.—At page 362 of a legal publication, known as the Weekly Reporter for March 10th, 1877, will be found the decision of the Court of Appeal, in the case of Purcell v. Sowler, which is the judgment to which we referred in the remarks made by us in our issue of December 9th, and on which our correspondent "Palinurus" founds his question. As, however, the majority of our members are necessarily in ignorance of the important point settled thereby, we propose to go into the case somewhat in detail. It would appear that the medical officer of the workhouse of the Altrincham Union, Knutsford, felt that he was libelled by the chairman of the house committee, at a meeting of the board of guardians. The libellous matter was reported by the printers and publishers of a daily newspaper called the Manchester Courier and Lancashire General Advertiser. We learn that the medical officer incriminated by the statements elected to bring his action against the proprietors of the journal, who grounded their defence on the plea that their report was bona fide, and that the matter reported was privileged. The court below decided against the newspaper proprietors, and gave a verdict of forty shillings damages and costs. Against this decision the appeal was made. Four of the judges of the Court of Appeal gave in their judgments, to wit, Lord Justice Cockburn, Lord Justice Mellish, Justice Baggallay, and Justice Bramwell. They all concurred in supporting the decision of the Court of Common Pleas, and the appeal was dismissed with costs. It will be seen thereby that it is a very dangerous game for individual members of a board of guardians to play, when they proceed at their meetings to asperse the character of their medical and other officers; and it is equally dangerous for the printers and publishers of local papers to print the highly seasoned matters which so frequently crop up at board meetings. We commend our reply especially to the members of the Poor-law Medical Officers' Association, many of whom, we are fully aware, too frequently have to chafe under the cruelly slanderous language so constantly made use of by guardians at their meetings. The names of the solicitors, etc., will be found in the report of the appeal and judgment.

MILITARY AND NAVAL MEDICAL SERVICES.

THE ARMY MEDICAL SERVICE.

SIR.—Uneasiness has been caused by the remarks in your issue of the 16th instant, foreshadowing the results to the Army Medical Department of the Committee on Hospital Organisation now sitting; and it is felt by many that not a little blame is due to a section of the department in having led to this reaction. A general feeling is expressed by the seniors of the medical service, that amongst what I may term the "Aldershot school", the military as opposed to the medical element has run into extravagant extremes. The disciples of this school have apparently preferred to subordinate the professional part of their duties to what they consider the more important, viz., the military control over the Army Hospital Corps; and have taken a greater pleasure in battalion drill, sword exercise, and orderly-room minutiae, than in treating the sick and filling up clinical records. This being so, we can hardly be surprised that the military authorities have taken alarm at this "combatant" fever; and, dreading its consequences, have determined to put it down with a strong hand. Is it too late to prove that the large majority of the Army Medical Department are doctors rather than disciplinarians, and that all they desire in the military direction is a sufficient control over their subordinates in the Army Hospital Corps to enable them to manage their hospitals properly; and that they would prefer that drill manoeuvres be left to drill instructors?

The subject is too large a one for me to detail it within the limits of this letter: but I believe I may justly say, that if the votes of the members of the department were taken, the military authorities would find that they had taken fright at a shadow, and that we are in favour of a system that would develop our talents as surgeons, whilst we leave to "combatants" the dearly prized privileges of military control.—I am, etc.,
A. M. D.

ALLEGED MURDER.—A coroner's jury at Halifax last week, after a second inquiry of seven hours' duration, returned a verdict of wilful murder against Mr. Samuel Joseph Noake, a medical man, practising at Halton, near Leeds, who, it is alleged, has caused the death of Margaret Scott, a single young woman. For the past two years the deceased had been manageress in a tea-shop in Wakefield. She met with a slight injury a short time ago, and was attended by a Wakefield practical man until Monday, the 4th inst., when she left for a week, stating that she was going to Ilkley for the benefit of change. It is stated that she went to Leeds, and was taken to the house of a Mrs. Hudson, in Vernon Street, by Mr. Noake, who visited her there for a week. On Monday, the 11th inst., the doctor took her in a cab to the Great Northern Railway station, Leeds, apparently in a state of collapse. She had to be assisted from the vehicle into a first-class carriage. Mr. Noake gave her some brandy, which he poured into her mouth. She arrived at Wakefield helpless, but conscious, and died the next morning. The medical evidence went to show that her death had been compassed by unlawful means.

PUERPERAL FEVER IN WIGAN.

SIR,—I was pleased to see Mr. Barnish's excellent report of the above epidemic in the JOURNAL of December 2nd. But, in considering the subject, it is wise to confine our attention to the purely contagious aspect of this form of septic fever, and to put aside the many other factors which allow and lead up to, its propagation. Is there no such thing as susceptibility of constitution? Will not some constitutions repel or eliminate the poison, if they have received it? Some fungi produce spores so minute, that one million may rest comfortably on the head of a pin; but few of these come to maturity. Typhoid-spores are found by thousands in the water-supply of a house; why does only one person imbibing that water become stricken and die? Or do not scarlet fever contagia fall upon the just and the unjust? but who can say which is the constitution that will receive, retain, and cultivate the poison? Then, again how little do we know what protection is afforded by one fever against another, or whether liability may not be increased in a person who has previously suffered from another blood-poison.

Is there nothing in the atmosphere which leads to the prevalence of a certain kind of fever? M. Pasteur has shown us, as quoted by Mr. J. Faraday, that, by the modifying influence of oxygen only, the specific virulent micro-organism found in typhoid fever in rabbits ultimately evolved a race of organisms capable of serving as the vaccine of the original virus. Some vegetable spores require oxygen in order to live; others cannot exist in such an atmosphere. The ova of the animal causing the butyric fermentation can only be supported in an atmosphere of hydrogen.

Again, does the poison of puerperal fever depend upon a specific virus, or may it not be caused by erysipelas, scarlet fever, or typhoid fever? Are not the germs influenced by the media in which they are carried, or the pabulum from which they are nurtured?

Respecting the cases of puerperal fever that have occurred in this town, admitting at once that I do not believe that puerperal fever can arise de novo, how do we account for the facts that the woman Mary Anne R. probably attended at the same time other "lying-in women", who have not died from puerperal fever? One of the cases mentioned by Mr. Barnish was attended by her mother, acting as nurse. The mother, twelve months previously, with another daughter who was at the time pregnant, was present at the death-bed, in a distant town, of a third daughter from puerperal fever. The sister who was pregnant had a normal labour, whilst her sister died twelve months later; and, as far as I know, there was no contagion except that carried by the mother. Instances are familiar to all where women and medical men attend puerperal cases, and must carry about the infection; yet other cases they attend, without special precautions, have been in every way satisfactory. On the other hand, we know that, in spite of all disinfection, some persons will persistently carry the poison.

My reason for writing this letter is that, though imbued with the essential truths of the principles upon which germs and their results are based, yet may we not fall into the error of becoming "germ wise, and in other things foolish"; forgetting that, although the oak cannot arise but from the acorn, yet no more can the acorn develop without heat, moisture, a suitable condition of the atmosphere, proper ingredients of the soil, and these in their right proportion. Without the germ, we cannot have fructification; but just as important, and much more numerous, are the conditions under which the germ can develop. Let us lay as much stress as we can on all preventable causes of disease; but surely there is no opinion so rash, no position so secure, amongst the tangled evidence upon the subject of puerperal fever, as not to necessitate great care how it associates cause and effect, and more particularly if that opinion implicate the relation between man and man.—I am, etc.,

R. PROSSER WHITE, M.B.

TREATMENT OF GASTRIC CATARRH AT CONTINENTAL SPAS.

SIR,—I should feel obliged for any information as to the treatment pursued at the continental spas for subacute and chronic gastric catarrh, especially as to dietetic treatment; and if such treatment is contraindicated in the case of a syphilitic patient.

My patient, a gentleman about thirty years of age, an officer in the army, has suffered for the past month from subacute gastric catarrh, induced by irregular diet, and the excessive use of alcohol, etc.; he does fairly well under ordinary treatment, as long as he is careful in his diet, but the least indiscretion throws him back; and as it is impossible to induce him to be careful when pretty well, it appears to me that a course of treatment at Carlsbad, Homburg, etc., or some such place, would be advisable. My patient had a mild syphilitic rash a short time since, and has undergone slight mercurial treatment; he has always been very healthy up to this, but his father suffered from some gastric affection, which, from the account I have heard of it, appears to have been of a malignant nature.

I should be glad to know the most suitable place to which to recommend my patient to go for treatment; and if there are any establishments in England or Scotland where he would be treated according to strict dietetic rules, and could at the same time pursue an antisyphilitic treatment.—Yours, etc.,

AN IRISH MEMBER.

INCORRECT SPELLING.

SIR,—As one of that unfortunate class who cannot spell correctly, I beg to protest against the assumption of Dr. Waters, in his evidence before the Select Committee on Medical Education, that the inability to spell correctly must arise from faulty education. I have been well educated. I am a Master of Arts of the University of Dublin, and took honours three times in metaphysics, so that my reading has, at any rate, been sufficiently extensive; still I frequently find the greatest difficulty in spelling correctly simple words. I have hesitated as to whether I should put a z in much or an h in sugar, and, when once I hesitate, I am lost, and must refer to the dictionary.

In my case, the failing is hereditary, as my father had the same difficulty; and I have spoken to other well educated persons who suffered in the same way. Want of mathematical capacity is not put down to faulty education, any more than bad sight or indifferent hearing; and the same may be said of musical capacity. People who have not these powers or special senses fully developed are not condemned for it; on the contrary, we attribute it to some cerebral hiatus over which they have no control; and I contend that want of orthographical capacity may, in a large number of cases, be placed in the same category, especially where a man shows in other respects that his mental powers have been well trained; and it would be, in my opinion, an unfortunate thing for our profession, as well as others, if examiners were to reject men for faulty orthography, as Dr. Waters would seem to advocate, whose scientific attainments come up to the proper standard of "pass". Had they done so in my case, I should never have been able to subscribe myself, your obedient servant,

M.A., M.D., M.R.C.S.E.

P.S.—The passage to which I refer is on page 1,115 of the JOURNAL, first six lines from top.

THE RECENT MAGNETIC STORM.

SIR,—The magnetic storm recently experienced has been stated by Mr. Preece to be the most violent on record; I therefore venture to think that the following description of some observations made at Cambridge during its progress may be interesting to your readers.

The phenomena were ushered in by two magnificent displays of the Aurora Borealis on the evening of Thursday, November 16th; one occurring between 4.30 and 6.30 p.m., and the other shortly before midnight. On the two following days (Friday and Saturday), nothing unusual, so far as I can discover, was experienced in the working of electrical apparatus at the Cavendish Laboratory; on the Saturday, the sun-spot was well seen, and attracted much attention, owing to its great size.

On the Monday morning following, at about 11.30 A.M., the attention of several laboratory students was attracted by the anomalous behaviour of their galvanometers; the instruments being ordinary reflecting galvanometers on Sir William Thomson's well known pattern, with lamp and scale, it was noticed that the spot of light, instead of remaining at its zero-point when no current was passing through the instrument, kept wandering in an irregular manner over the scale. As this was found to occur with all the galvanometers and magnetometers in use at the time, all the usual measurements were at once brought to a standstill, and the laboratory was closed as regards electrical work, except for a party who remained to watch the course of the storm. Two of the party were stationed by galvanometers, and the other two (including myself) watched the Kew magnetometer. As the controlling magnet of the one galvanometer (A) was left in its place throughout the experiment, and that of the other (B) was only withdrawn after a certain lapse of time, the observations of the three instruments are not strictly comparable throughout their whole extent; but it is interesting to note that the observations from the last mentioned instrument (B) agreed well with those of galvanometer (A), while the controlling magnet was left in position, and with those of the magnetometer after it was removed, a fact which theory would lead us to expect. The results were afterwards plotted as curves, with the deflections as ordinates, and the times as abscissæ; the resulting curve was in each case a sinuous line, of great irregularity. The greatest change in direction of the earth's magnetic force, as estimated by the magnetometer, was at 12 hr. 6 min. P.M., at which time the position of the magnet differed from its mean position by 4° 47' 25". (The corresponding deflection of galvanometer (A) was 10° nearly.) The storm decreased in intensity till towards 2 P.M., when, as disturbance had almost ceased, work was resumed as usual. On the afternoon of the following day (Tuesday), a renewal of disturbance took place; the direction of the needle of galvanometer (A) slowly altered through about 9° 27', and then swung back through about 3° 46'. On the following morning, this had died away, and since then there has been no renewal of the disturbance.—I am, sir, yours faithfully,

ERNEST F. J. LOVE, A.C.P.S.

St. John's College, Cambridge, November 28th, 1882.

DR. ARTHUR (Dublin).—Two days after the death of the celebrated Dryden, his body was removed to the old College of Physicians in Warwick Lane; there it was embalmed, and lay in state for about a fortnight. There are many now living who remember the old building, and the "gilded pill" immortalised by Sir Samuel Garth in his Dispensary, Canto 1, who, writing of the College, says—

"A dome, majestic to the sight,
And sumptuous arches bear its oval height;
A golden globe, plac'd high with artful skill,
Seems, to the distant sight, a gilded pill."

WARMING BEDROOMS.

SIR,—Would your correspondent who recommended Roberts's terra cotta stoves for bedrooms kindly say where they can be bought, for I have asked in vain.—Yours truly,

INQUIRER.

INDIA-RUBBER BANDAGES.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. Luscombe's inquiry as to the cause of the irritation during the use of "Martin's India-rubber Bandages" by his patients, I wish to say that, in the few cases in which I have used them, I have been most satisfied with the results, but I do not think I should unless I had followed the minute instructions given by Dr. Martin in his little pamphlet on the subject. They were as follows. 1. On taking off the bandage at night, to sponge carefully in cold water both sides of the bandage; then dry with a cloth, and hang the bandage lightly over a cord or chair-back, ready to roll in the morning. 2. To put the bandage on before getting out of bed. 3. On no account to put dressings, of any description, under the bandage. Ulcers, excoriations, etc., to be covered all alike by the bandage. 4. And at night, on removal, after going to bed, to place a piece of lint, moistened with carbolic oil, over the ulcer, and apply a common calico-bandage. In the morning, remove the calico-bandage and lint, and carefully wipe away any oil that may remain about the ulcer, as in time it would damage the "Martin Bandage".

If Mr. Luscombe instructs his patients to follow out these rules, I believe he will find the irritation disappear. One patient of mine, an old woman, had a troublesome ulcer on each leg. They had resisted every form of treatment before, and she was almost a cripple. Her husband carefully carried out the instructions; and, in a few weeks, she was perfectly cured, and has remained so about four years. There was no irritation whatever about the skin, and she wears her bandages still. In another case, in which I knew, for a fact, that the rules were not kept to, I had some of the same difficulties that Mr. Luscombe mentions.

Dr. Martin is very particular that the bandage should be put on before rising from the recumbent posture. That it should only be put on moderately firm, so that, when the upright position is assumed, a little swelling of the leg takes place, and just sufficiently tightens the bandage, and prevents slipping; whereas, if the bandage be put on very firmly, when the patient begins to walk about it becomes unbearable, and he takes it off, and, perhaps, refuses to have it on again.—I am, sir, yours obediently, Flaxton, York, December 16th, 1882.
