CAP. XXI.

1 Josaphath forsothe slepte<sup>z</sup> with his faders, and is biryed with hem in the cite of Daud; and Joram, his sone, regned 2 for hym. The whiche hadde bretheren, sonus of Josaphath, Azaryam, Jahiel, and Zacharie, and<sup>a</sup> Azarie, and Mychael, and Saphaciam; alle thes the sonis of Josaphath, kyng of Juda. And his fadir 3aue to hem many ziftis of gold and of syluer, and pensyouns, with the most strengthed citees in Juda; the rewme forsothe he toke to Joram, for thi that he was the 4 first goten. Joram forsothe roos vpon the rewme of his fadir; and whanne he hadde confermede him selue, he slew<sup>3</sup> alle his bretheren with swerde, and sum of 5 the princis of Juda. Of two and thritty zeer Joram was, whanne he beganne to regnen; and eizt<sup>b</sup> zeer he regnede in Jerusalem. And he wente in the weyes of the kyngis of Irael, as the hous of Achab hadde don, the douzter forsothe of Achab was his wijf; and he dide euyl in 7 the sizt of the Lord. Forsothe the Lord wolde not destruyen the hous of Daud, for the couenaunt that he hadde gon in with hym, and for he hadde behoten

CAP. XXI.

Forsothe<sup>f</sup> Josaphat slepte with hise faders, and was<sup>g</sup> biried with hem in the citee of Daud; and Joram, his sone, regnede for hym.  of the whiche ben maad the vessels of the temple in to the seruyse, and to brent sacrifices; also violis, and other golden vessels and sylueren. And ther weren offrid brent sacrifices in the hous of the Lord contynuly, alle the days of Joiade.
 15 Forsothe Joiada eeldide ful of days, and dyed, whanne he was of an hundrith and 16 thrittith<sup>p</sup> zeer; and thei birieden hym in the cytee of Daudid with kingus; forthi that he hadde done good with Irael, and 17 with his hous. Forsothe after that Joi-ada died, the princis of Jude wenten in, and honoureden the kyng, the whiche pleside by the seruyses of hem, assentide 18 to hem. And thei forsoken the temple<sup>q</sup> of the Lord God of their fadirs, and thei serueden to mawmette woodis, and grauen thingus; and ther is don the wrath of the Lord azeynus Judam and Jerusalem 19 for this synne. And he sente to hem prophetis, that thei schulden turnen azein to the Lord; whom beforen witnessynge 20 thei wolden not heeren. And so the Spi-rite of the Lord clothed Zacharie, the sone of Joiade, preste; and he stode in the kyng and Joiada zeuen to hem that weren souereyns of the werkis of the hows of the Lord. And<sup>q</sup> thei hiriden therof<sup>r</sup> kitteris of stonys, and crafti men of alle werkis, that thei schulden reparele the hows of the Lord; also thei hiriden smythis of yrun, and of bras, that<sup>s</sup> that thing schulde be vndurset, that<sup>t</sup> bigan to falle. Thei that wrouzten diden craftili,<sup>13</sup> and the<sup>u</sup> crasyng of the wallis was stop-pid bi the hondis of hem; and thei reisen the hows of the Lord in to<sup>v</sup> the formere staat, and maden<sup>w</sup> it to stonde stidfastli.

 And whanne thei hadden fillid<sup>x</sup> alle werkis<sup>y</sup>,<sup>14</sup> thei brouzten bifor the kyng and Joiada the tother part of the money, of which money vessels weren maad in to the<sup>z</sup> ser-uyce of the temple, and to brent sacrifices<sup>a</sup>; also violis, and othere vessels of gold and of siluer weren maad therof<sup>b</sup>.
 And brent sacrifices weren offrid in the hows of the Lord contynueli, in alle the daies of Joiada. Forsothe<sup>c</sup> Joiada ful of daies wexide eld, and he was deed, whanne he was of an hundrid zeer and thritti; and thei birieden hym in the citee of<sup>16</sup> Daudid with kyngis; for he hadde do good<sup>d</sup> with Israel, and with his hows. But<sup>e</sup><sup>17</sup>
 Juda entriden, and worschipiden the kyng, which<sup>h</sup> was flaterid with her seruices, and assentide<sup>i</sup> to hem. And thei forsoken the<sup>18</sup> temple of the Lord God of her fadris, and seruyden<sup>k</sup> idols in wodis, and grauen ymagis; and the ire of the Lord was maad azens Juda and Jerusalem for this synne. And he<sup>l</sup> sente to hem profetis, that<sup>19</sup>

CAP. XXVI.

1 Forsothe al the puple of Juda his sone, Osie, of sixteen 3eer, setten kyng for his 2 fadir Amazie. He bild up Aylath, and restored it to the lordschip of Juda, aftir 3 that the kyng slepte with his fadirs. Of sixteen 3eer Osias was, whanne he hadde begunne to regnen; and two and fyfty 3eer he regned in Jerusalem; name of his 4 modre, Yechelya, of Jerusalem. And he dide that was ryzt in the slyt of the Lord, aftir alle thingus that Amazias, his fader, 5 hadde done. And he souzte the Lord in the days of Zacharie, vndirstondinge and seeing God; and whanne he schuld sechen 6 God, he louede hym in alle thingus. Aftirward he wente out, and fauzte azeinus Philisteis, and he<sup>c</sup> destruyede the wall of Geth, and the wall of Jabnye, and the wal of Azoty; and he bilde up burz 7 towns in Azote of Phylisteym. And the Lord halpe hym a3eynus Philisteym, and a3enus Arabas that dwelliden in Garba- 8 hal, and a3enus Amonytis. And Amonytis spendiden the 3iftis to Ozie, and his name is pupplischit vnto the entre of Egipt for 9 his oft victories. And Ozias bilde up toures in Jerusalem vpon the 3ate of the corner, and vpon the 3ate of the valey, and other in the same side of the wall; 10 and he fastnede hem. And he bilde out also toures in wildirnesse, and dalf out many cysternes; forthi that he hadde many beestis bothe in the wijlde feeldis and in the wastite of desert. Also vynes he hadde and wyne makers in hillis, and aweil fro the Lord, thei settiden<sup>w</sup> to hym tresouns in Jerusalem; and whanne he hadde fledde to Lachis, thei senten<sup>x</sup> and killiden hym there; and thei brouzten<sup>y</sup> 23 azen on<sup>z</sup> horsis, and birieden<sup>a</sup> hym with his fadris in the citee of Dauid.

and zeuen to hem besynesse; who so euer myzten not gon, and weren with feble body, thei putten hem on bestis, and ladden to Jericho, the citee of palmes, to their bretheren; and thei ben turned 16 azein in to Samarie. That tyme kyng Achaz sente to the kyng of Assiries, ask-17 ynge helpe. And Ydumeis camen, and smyten many of Juda, and token grete 18 pray. And the Philisteis ben held out by wijld feeldy cytees, and at the south of Juda; and thei token Bethsames, and Hailon, and Gaderoth, Socoth also, and Thannan, and Zamro, with their litil 19 touns; and thei dwelliden in hem. For-sothe the Lord hadde meekide Judam for Achaz, kyng of Juda; forthi that he hadde nakyd hym fro helpe, and hadde 20 the Lord to dispyte. And the Lord brouzt azeinus hym Teglat Falasar, king of Assiries, the whiche tourmentyde hym, and no man withstandinge, waastide.
 21 Thanne Achaz, the hous of the Lord spoylide, and the hous of kingus and princis, zaf to the kyng of Assiries ziftis, and neuer the latre it profitide no thing 22 to hym. Forthermore and in tyme of his anguysch he echide dispite in to the 23 Lord; he by hym silf kyng Achaz offrede to the goddis of Damasc slayn sacrifices, to his smyters, and seyde, The goddis of the kingus of Cyrie helpen to hem, the which I schal plesen with hoostis, and thei schul stonden to to me; whanne azeenward thei weren fallyng to hym, 24 and to al Irael. And so Achaz, alle the vessels of the hous of God taken away, and broken to gydre, closede the zatis of the temple of God, and maad to hym auters in alle the corners of Jerusalem.
 25 Also in alle the cytees of Juda he maad up auters to brennen encense, and he ter*decyn*<sup>g</sup>, to hem; 'thei puttiden hem on horsis<sup>h</sup>, whiche euere<sup>i</sup> 'myzten not go, and weren feble<sup>k</sup> 'of bodi<sup>l</sup>, and brouzten<sup>m</sup> to Jerico, a<sup>n</sup> citee of palmes, to 'the britheren of hem<sup>o</sup>; and thei turneden azen in to Samarie. In that tyme kyng Achaz sente<sup>16</sup> to the kyng of Assiriens, and axide help<sup>p</sup>.

 And Ydumeis<sup>q</sup> camen, and killiden<sup>r</sup> many<sup>s</sup> 17 men of Juda, and token greet prey. Also<sup>18</sup> Filisteis weren spred abroad bi citees of the feeldis, and at the south<sup>t</sup> of Juda; and thei token Bethsames, and Hailon, and Gaderoth, and Socoth, and Thannan, and Zamro, with her villagis; and dwelliden<sup>u</sup> in tho. For<sup>v</sup> the Lord made low Juda for<sup>19</sup> Achaz, the kyng of Juda; for<sup>w</sup> he hadde maad him<sup>x</sup> nakid of help, and hadde<sup>y</sup> dis-pised the Lord. And the Lord brouzte<sup>20</sup>
 ide hym<sup>d</sup>, while<sup>e</sup> no man azenstood. Ther-<sup>21</sup> for Achaz, after that he hadde spuylid the hows of the Lord, and the hows of the kyng and of princes<sup>f</sup>, zaf<sup>g</sup> ziftis to the kyng of Assiriens, and netheles it profitide 'no thing<sup>h</sup> to hym. Ferthermore also in<sup>22</sup> the tyme of his angwisch he encresside dispit azens God†; thilke<sup>i</sup> kyng Achaz bik hym silf offride sacrifices to the goddis of<sup>23</sup> Damask, hise smyteris<sup>l</sup>, and seide<sup>m</sup>, The goddis of the kyngis of Sirie helpen hem, whiche<sup>n</sup> goddis Y schal plese bi sacrifices, and thei schulen help me; whanne azen-ward thei weren fallyng<sup>o</sup> to hym, and to<sup>p</sup> al Israel. Therfor affir that Achaz hadde<sup>24</sup> take awei, and broke alle the vessels of the hows of God, he closide the zatis of Goddis temple, and made<sup>r</sup> auteris to hym silf in alle the corneris of Jerusalem. And in<sup>25</sup> alle citees<sup>s</sup> of Juda he bildide auteris to brenne<sup>t</sup> encence, and he stiride<sup>u</sup> the Lord God of hise fadris to<sup>v</sup> wrathfulnesse. So-<sup>26</sup> rede to wrath the Lord God of their 26 fadirs. The remnaunt forsothe of his wordis and of alle his werkes, of the rather and of the last, ben writen in the boke of the kyngis of Juda and of Irael.

 27 And Achaz slepte with his<sup>m</sup> fadirs, and thei birieden hym in the cyte of Dauid of Jerusalem; ne forsothe thei receyueden hym in the sepulcres of the kingus of Irael; and Ezechias, his sone, regnede for hym.

CAP. XXIX.

1 Ezechias thanne beganne to regnen, whanne he was of fyue and twenty 3eer, and nyne and twenty 3eer he regnede in Jerusalem; name of his modir, Abia, the 2 dou3tir of Zacharye. And he dide that was plesaunt in the sizt of the Lord, aftir alle thingus that Dauid, his fadir, hadde 3 done. In that 3eer and the first moneth of his regne he opnede the 3ate leues of the hous of the Lord, and he enstorede 4 hem; and brou3te to the prestis and the Leuytis, and gaderede hem in to the 5 este strete, and seide to hem, Heerith me, Leuytis, and beth halowed; clensith the hous of the Lord God of oure faders, and doth away alle vnclennesse fro the 6 seyntuarie. Oure fadirs synneden, and diden euyl in the sizte of the Lord oure God, forsakyng hym; thei turneden awei their faces fro the tabernacle of the Lord 7 oure God, and 3euen bac. Thei closeden the dores that weren in the 3ate hous, and quencheden the lanterns; and en-cense thei brenneden not, and brent sacrifices thei offreden not in the seynt-8 tuarie of God of Irael. And so the woodnesse of the Lord is sterid vpon Judam and Jerusalem; and he toke hem in to distourblynge, and into deth, and in to whistlyng, as 3e beholden with theli<sup>w</sup> the residue<sup>x</sup> of hise<sup>y</sup> wordis and of hise fadris, and thei birieden hym in the citee of Jerusalem; for thei resseyueden not hym in<sup>z</sup> the sepulcris of the kyngis of Irael; and Ezechie, his sone, regnede for hym.

CAP. XXIX.

[Prologue on the First book of Esdras<sup>a</sup>.]

THIS firste book of Esdre, whiche was a wurthi man among Jewis, and writer of the lawe of God, tellith, that Cyrus, the king of Persis, stirid by the Spirit of God, ordeynde Esdre, the scryuein, ledere to al the peple of Juda, that was translatid in to Babiloyne, to bringe hem azen in to her lond, with alle the vessels that weren of the hous of the Lord, and 3af gold and siluer in greet plente, to make sacrificise to the Lord in Jerusalem.

WHETHER it be hardere to do that zee asken, or to denyen, I haue not 3yt demed; for nouthere to 3ou any thing comaundende is of sentence to forsaken, and the gretnesse of charge put vpon oure nollis bereth doun, that rathere it be to fallen doun vnder the berthene, than to reren. The studies of enuyouse men nezhen to this, that alle thing that we wryten, weenen repref wrthi, and other while concience repugnende azen hemself, opinli thei to-tern that thei reden priueli; in so myche that I am constreynd to crien, and sein, Lord, deliuere my soule fro wicke<sup>b</sup> lippis, and fro a trecherous tunge. The thridde 3er is that euer mor zee wrijten and a3een wrijten, that the boc of Esdre and Ester I translate<sup>c</sup> to 3ou fro Ebrue, as thof<sup>d</sup> zee han not Grekis<sup>e</sup> and<sup>f</sup> Latynes<sup>g</sup> volumus, or what euere thing that is that of vs is turned, not anon of alle men it be to be dispisid. In vein forsothe, as seith sum man, to enforecen, ne<sup>h</sup> other thing in trauailing sechen<sup>i</sup> but hate, is of vttermost wodnesse. And so, I beseche 3ou, my derworthest Domyon and Rogacian, that 3e apazed bi priuat lessoun, ber not out the bokisin to comun, lest zee profre metis to vggli men; and eschewe zee the pride of hem, that onli to demen of othere, and thei themselue knewen no thing to do. If any forsothe of brethern ben, to whom ouren displesen not, to them 3iueth a saumpler, amonestende that the Ebrue namus, of the whiche in this volume is gret plente, distinctli and bi spacis thei transcryue; forsothe no thing it profitide to hau amendid bokis, but the amending be kept bi diligence of writeris. Ne any man moue it, that o boc is maad of vs, ne delite he in the sweuenes of the writen thingus withoute autorite of the thridde and of the ferthe boc; for and anentis the Ebrues the wordis of Esdre and of Noemye in o volume ben togidere drawnen, and thoo thingus that ben not had anentis hem, ne ben not<sup>k</sup> of the foure and twenti olde men, ben worthi to be cast awei aferr. If any man forsothe azen legge to vs the seuenti remenoures, of whom the saumpleris the diuersete shewith hem to-torn and turned vpsodoun, ne forsothe it mai not ben Myche more Latin men azten to be kinde, that thei beholden Grece gladende of hem any thing to borewen. The firste forsothe is of gret costis and of difficulte withoute ende, to moun han alle the exsaumpleris; also theraftir thei that han, and ben vnkunnende of Ebrue speche, more shuln erren, vnknowende who of manye trewliere seith. The whiche also fel sum time to a most wis man amongis the Grekis, that otherwhile leuende the sens<sup>r</sup> of scripture he folewide the errour of eche remenour. Wee forsothe that<sup>s</sup> nameli of Ebru tunge han a litil kunnyng, and Latin speche 3it hider to failith not to vs, that of othere more we moun demen, and thoo thingus that wee vsself<sup>t</sup> vnderstonden, in oure owne tunge shewin. And so thof the serpentt hisse and the ouercomere if he throwe not breinyngus vp, neuer my speche shal be stille, Crist helpende; also the tunge kut of it shal blaberen. Rede thei that wiln; that wiln not, caste thei awei. And serche thei out the letteris, and falsli acuse thei the lettris; more bi 3oure charite I shal ben stirid to studie, than I shal ben agast bi the hate and the<sup>u</sup> bachiting of hem.

 for if this cite were bild vp, and of this the wallis weren rerid<sup>a</sup>, comyng down shal not be to thee in to Coelem Ciriem

CAP. IV.

1 And the folewere began to sein, that 2 seith of the strengthe of king, O men! whether men ben not passendely strong, that erthe and se holden, and alle thingus 3 that in hem ben? The king forsothe ouer alle thingus passith, and hath lordshipe of hem, and alle thing, what euer he shal 4 sei to them, thei don. And if<sup>p</sup> he sende hem to f3zteres, thei gon, and destroyed 5 hillis, and wallis, and touris; thei ben slain, and slen, and the woord of the king thei passe not; for if thei ouer-comen, thei bringe to the king alle thingus, whateuere thingus thei han spoil-

 And<sup>q</sup> hou fele euer bern not<sup>r</sup> kni3thod, ne f3zten, but eren the loond, eftsome whan thei weren repende, thei bringe tributus 7 to the king. And he oon alone; and if he seie to slen, thei slen; and if he seie to 8 for3iuen, thei for3iuen; and if he seie to thei weren clepid, and thei camen yn.

 And Darius seide to hem, Schewe 3e to us 17 of thes thingis that ben writen. And the firste, that had seid of the strengthe of wyn, he biganne, and seide to hem, Men! 18 ful passynge strong is wyn; to alle men that drynken it it berth doun the mynde; also it makith the mynde veyn, bothe of 19 kyng and of the fadirles child; also of ser-uaunt and of fre men, of pore and of riche; and it turnith al the mynde in to sikir-20 nesse, and to gladnesse; and it remembrith not ony serewe and dette; and it makith 21 alle the entrailles honest; and it remembrith not kyng, ne maistir iuge; and alle thingis it makith speke bi talent; and 22 whanne thei han drunken, thei remem-bren not frendschip ne brotherhed, and not longe aftir thei taken swerdis; and 23 whanne thei han be drowned of wyn, and rijsen, thei han no mynde what thinges thei diden. O men! whether wyn 24 is not passyngly strong, that thus constreynith men to do? And this thing seid, he hilde his pes.

CAP. IV.

And the nexte folewer biganne to sey, 1 that seide of the strengthe of a kyng, O 2 men! whether men ben not passyngly forsothe passith aboue alle thingis, and he hath lordschip of hem, and thei don al thing, what euer he wil sey to hem. And 4 if he sende hem to f3zters, thei gon, and destroyed hillis, and walles, and toures; thei ben sleyn, and slen, and thei passen 5 not the word of the kyng; for if thei ouereth not befor, that thus is losid<sup>u</sup>? And 13 he heeld his pes. The thridde, that hadde seid of wymmen, and of treuthe; 14 this is Sorobabel; began to speke, Men! not gret the king, and manie men, ne win passeth befor; who is thanne that hath 15 lordshipe of hem? Whether not wymmen geete<sup>uu</sup> king, and al the puple, that lord-her owne werkis, but in his word men obeishen to him. What maner wise pass- 12 ith not the kyng bifore oother, that thus is loosid? And he helde his pes. The 13 thridde, that had seid of wymmen, and of treuthe; this is seid Sorobabel; he biganne to speke, O men! the kyng is not 14 greet, neither many other men, ne wyn passith biforn; who is it thanne that hath lordschip of hem? Whether not wymmen, 15 that han goten kyngis, and al the puple, the whiche kingis han lordschip bothe of see and of loond, and of wymmen thei ben born? And thei brouʒten forth hem that 16 plauntiden vynes, of the whiche wyn is maad. And thei maken the stoles, or 17 longe clothis, of alle men, and thei don glorie to men, and men moun not be se-uered fro wymmen. If thei gedere togidere 18 fadir, ne modir, ne the lond of his birthe.

And therfor it bihouith us to knowen, that 22 wymmen han lordschip of us. Whether 28 And now leeueth to<sup>c</sup> me; for gret is the king in his power, for alle regiouns<sup>d</sup> ben 29 aferd to touchen hym. I saꝝ ner the latere Apemen, the doꝝter of wndirful man Besacis, the secundarie wif of the king, sittende biside the king at the riꝝt side; 30 and takende awei the diademe fro his hed, and puttende on to herself<sup>e</sup>, and with the hondis she smot the king of<sup>f</sup> the lift 31 hond. And ouer these thingus, the mouth opened, he beheeld hir, and if she loowe to hym, he looꝝ<sup>g</sup>, and if she were wroth to hym, he glosith, to the time that he be 32 recounsild 'in to<sup>h</sup> grace. O men! whi ben not wymmen strengere? Gret is the erthe, and heeꝝ is heuene, that these 33 thingus don. And thanne the king and the purprid men beheelden either in to other; and he<sup>i</sup> began to speken of 34 treuthe. O men! whether stronge ben not wymmen? Gret is the erthe, and heꝝ is heuene, and swift is the cours of the sunne; it is turned in the cumpas of heuene, and eft it renneth aꝝeen in to the 35 same place o dai. Whether not a gret doere is he, that maketh these thingus? and treuthe gret, and strengere befor 36 alle thingis? Al erthe treuthe inwardli clepeth, heuene also it blesseth, and alle werkus ben moued and dreden it; and ther is not with it any thing wicked<sup>j</sup>.

 37 Wicked<sup>j</sup> king, wicked<sup>j</sup> wymmen, and wicked<sup>j</sup> alle the sonis of men, and wicked<sup>j</sup> alle the werkis of hem, and ther is not in hem treuthe, and in ther wickednessis<sup>k</sup> 38 thei shuln pershen; and treuthe dwellith, and waxeth in to with oute ende, and liueth, and weldeth, in to worldis of 39 worldis. And to taken persones and differencis is not anent it; but thoo thingis that ben riꝝtwis it doth, to alle vriꝝtwise and euele men; and alle men 40 ben maad benigne in his werkis. And and whanne he hath don his theft, and gijles, and raueynes, he bringith it to his leef. And efte a man louith his wijf more<sup>25</sup> than fadir or modir; and many men ben<sup>26</sup> maad woode for their wyues, and many ben maad thrallis for hem; and many<sup>27</sup> perischiden, and weren stranglid, and many han synned for wymmen. And now leeu-<sup>28</sup> eth me; forsothe a kyng is greet, and his power, for alle regiouns, or kingdoms aboute, ben aferd to touche him. I saw<sup>29</sup> neuer the latter Apeemen, the douꝝter of Besacis, the wondirful man, the secoundarie wijf of the kyng, sittynge biside the kyng at the riꝝt side; and takynge away<sup>30</sup> the diademe fro his heed, and puttynge it on hir self, and with the pawme of hir lift hoond she smote the kyng. And ouer<sup>31</sup> thes thingis, the mouth opened, he bihilde hir, and if sche lowꝝe to him, he lowꝝe, and if sche were wrooth to him, he glosith or plesith, vnto the tyme that he be recounsilid to grace. O men! whi ben not<sup>32</sup> wymmen strengist? Greet is the erthe, and heuen is hiꝝ, that don thes thingis.

 Thanne the kyng and the purpred men<sup>33</sup> bihielden either in to oothere; and he biganne to speke of treuthe. O men! wher<sup>34</sup> wymmen ben not stronge? Greet is the eerthe, and heuen is hiꝝ, and the cours of the sunne is swift; it is turned in the is not a greet doer, that makith thes thingis? and treuthe greet, and strenger biforn alle thingis? All ertle clepith in-<sup>36</sup> wardly trouthe, also it blesseth heuene, and alle werkis ben moued and dreden it; and ther is no wickid thing with it.

 Wickid kyng, and wickid wymmen, and<sup>37</sup> alle the sones of men ben wickid, and ther is not treuthe in hem, and in her wickid-thinge the exsauple is leid vnder.

CAP. VIII.

10 King Artaxerse to Esdre, prest, and redere of the lawe of the Lord, greeting.
 11 More benygne I demende also to benefetus, comandede to hem that desiren of the folc of Jewis ther owne thingus wilfulli, and of the prestis, and Leuits, that ben in my reume, to felashipen with thee 12 in to Jerusalem. Thane if any couetten to go with thee, come thei togidere, and go thei forth, as it pleseth to me, and to 13 my seuene frendis counseileris; that thei visite thoo thingus, that ben don after Jude and Jerusalem, kepene the<sup>s</sup> lawe, as thou hast in the lawe of the Lord; 14 and bere thei 3iftus to the Lord of Irael, the whiche I knew3, and the frendis of Jerusalem, and al the gold and siluer, of Irael, to sey it and do it. And the<sup>4</sup> kyng 3aaf to him glorie, that he hadde founden grace in al dignytee, and in desijr, in the sijt of him. And ther stiede<sup>5</sup> up with him in to Jerusalem of the sonus of Irael, bothe prestis, and dekens, and holy syngers of the temple, and vsshers, and seruauantis of the temple. In the se-<sup>6</sup> uenthe 3eer regnyng Artaxerse, in the fifthe month, this is the seuenthe 3eer of the rewme, goyng out forsothe fro Babi-loyne in the newe moone of the fifte 7 month, thei camen to Jerusalem, aftir<sup>7</sup> the heestis of him, whanne the prosperitee of the wey was grauntid to hem of that Lord. In these thingis forsothe Esdras<sup>8</sup> weldide gret discipline, lest he passide ony thing of tho thingis that weren of the lawe of the Lord, and of the heestis, and in techyng al Irael al rijtwisnesse foundid, and I am adrad befor thi face.

76 Forsothe oure synnes ben multiplied vp on oure hedis, and oure wickednessis ben 77 enhauncid vnto heuene; for fro the time of oure fadris we ben in gret synne vn 78 to this day. And for oure synnes, and of oure fadris we ben taken, with oure brethern, and with oure prestus, and kingus of the lond, in to swerd, and cai-tifte, and in to prei, with confusion, vn 79 to the dai that is now. And now hou myche is, that falleth to vs the merci of thee, Lord God; lef to vs a roote and a 80 name, in to the place of thin halewing, to vnkoueren oure ȝiuere of liȝt in the hous of the Lord oure God, to ȝiue to vs mete 81 in the time of oure seruage. And whan wee seruen, wee ben not forsaken of the Lord oure God; but he sette vs in grace, puttende to vs kingus of Persis to ȝiue mete, 82 and to clarifien the temple of the Lord oure God, and to edefie the desertis of Sion, and to ȝiue to vs stablenesse in Jude 83 and Jerusalem. And now what sei wee, Lord, hauende these thingus? We han ouyr passid thin hestis, the whiche<sup>o</sup> thou ȝeue in to the hondis of thi childer, pro-84 fetus, seiende, For the lond, in the the douȝtris of hem, bothe thei and their sones; and the hooly seed was mengid togidre with the hethene folk of the loond; and the prouostis and maistre iuges weren parceners of this wickidnesse, fro the bigynnyng of that rewme. And anoon as I<sup>72</sup> herde thes thingis, I kitte my clothis, and the halewid coote, and I taar the heris of myn hed, and the berd, and I sate serew-yngge, and drury. And ther camen to me<sup>73</sup> thanne as many as euer weren moued in the word of the Lord God of Israel, weilyngge me upon this wickidnesse; and I saat serewful vnto the euentijd sacrifice.

And thanne I risyngge fro fastyng, hau-<sup>74</sup> yngge my clothis kitt, knelide myche, and strecchinge out myn hondis to the Lord, I<sup>75</sup> seide, Lord, I am confoundid, and I am adred bifore thi face. Forsothe oure<sup>76</sup> synnes ben multiplied upon oure hedis, and oure wickidnessis ben enhaunsid vnto heuene; for fro the tyme of oure fadris we<sup>77</sup> haue be in gret synne vnto this dai.
And for oure owne synnes, and for the<sup>78</sup> synne of oure fadris we ben taken, with oure bretheren, and with oure prestis, and with kyngis of the loond, in to swerd, and caitiftee, and in to prey, with confusion, vnto the dai that is now. And now hou<sup>79</sup> myche is it, that the mercy of thee, Lord God, fallith to us; leue thou to us a roote and a name, in to the place of thin halew-

[Prologue on the book of Judith<sup>a</sup>.]

THIS book of Judith, the holi widewe, 3yueth vs ensauple to be of holi conuersacioun, and to triste hoolliche in the help of Almy3ti God, as Judith dide, which ouercam oonli bi the help of God the grete prince Olofernes, tristinge in the strengthe of fleschli arm, and not in the help of God.

Prologus<sup>a</sup>.

Anentus the Ebrues the boc of Judith is rad among thoo scriptures, whos autour is vnknowen, whos autorite to be strengthid thoo thingus that in to strijf comen lasse couenable is<sup>b</sup> demed; ner the latere in Caldeis sermoun writen among the stories it is countid. But for this boc Nycene<sup>c</sup> synod<sup>d</sup> in the noubre of holi scripturis is rad to han<sup>e</sup> countid, I assentide to 3oure asking, 3he, to 3oure stedefast asking; and the occupaciouns leid aside, with whiche<sup>f</sup> hugeli I was artid, to thys thing o litil waking while<sup>g</sup> I 3af, more sence of sence than woord of woord translatende. Of manye bokis the most vicious diuersete I<sup>h</sup> kutte awei, onli thoo thingus that with parfit<sup>i</sup> vnderstondinge I my3te finde in Caldeis wordis, in Latin I expressede. Taketh Judith, widewe, sauple of chastyte, and declareth in perpetewel wrshipeful tellingus with the preising of victorie. This forsothe not oneli to wymmen, but also to men, wrthi to ben folewid he 3af, that, 3eldere of hir chastite, such a vertue 3af to hir, that the vnouercomen of alle men she ouercam, and the vnouerpassable she ouerpassede.

An nother prolog of Judith<sup>k</sup>.

Judith, widewe, the do3ter of Merari, of the linage of Symeon, ful miche gret in glorie, and of men the parfitere; the whiche in figure of the churche girde of the deucl in the hed, ne she dradde deth for the helthe of the puple, ne the kingus wodnesse quakide; for whi the slepende prince she slo3, and, saued the chastite, to hir citeseynus she bro3te a3een the principal victorie; forsothe she liuede an hundred 3er and fwe, and is biried in the spelunke of hir husbonde Manasse, in Betulia.

IN this book of Joob is contened, first, the possessioun and prosperite of the iust man Joob ; and, aftirward, how God suffride him to be temptid of Sathan, by los of hise worldli goodis, and of hise children ; and afterward bi sijknesse of his owne flesch, and bi reproof of hise frendis, and of his owne wijf ; and ensauple to vs, that no man is temptid more than he mai withstonde, if he be iust and pacient, with preier of the help of God.

And so fro the begynnyng of the volume vnto the woordis of Job, anent the Ebruyss the enditing<sup>r</sup> is prose; but fro the woordis of Job, in the<sup>s</sup> whiche he seith, Pershe the dai in the whiche I am born, and the nyzt, in<sup>t</sup> whiche<sup>u</sup> it is seid, a man is conseined, vnto that place wher befor the end of the volume it is write, Therfor I myself reprove, and do penaunce in colis and asken<sup>v</sup>, ben vers of sixe feet, rennende with dactile and sponde feet, and for the langage of the tunge ofte takende and othere feet, not of the same silablis, but of the same times. Otherwhile also that sweete rym and sweteli sonnende is told with noumbris<sup>w</sup> loosid with lawe; the whiche thing versifioures more than a symple redere vnderstonden. Fro the foreseide vers forsothe vnto the ende of the boc, the litle distinccioun that leueth with prose enditing is wouen<sup>x</sup>. The whiche thing if<sup>y</sup> to<sup>z</sup> any man is seen vntrouable, metre, that is, to be anent the Ebrues, and in maner of oure Flacci, and Graccy, Pindarie, and Alchei, and Saffo, that weren Grek poetis, or the Sauter, or the<sup>a</sup> Lamentacioun<sup>b</sup> of Jeremie, or alle almost the Kanticulis of scripturis to<sup>c</sup> ben comprehendid, that is to seye, in metre, rede he Filonem, Josefum, Origenem, Cesariensem Eusebeum, and bi the witnessse of hem he shal proue me to sey soth. 3 my weiling. Who to me zeue<sup>o</sup>, that I knowe, and finde hym, and come vnto 4 the seet of hym? I shal setten befor hym dom, and my mouth I shal fille with 5 blamyngis; that I wite the woordis, that he answerth to me, and vnderstonde what 6 he speke to me. I wil not with myche strengthe he striue with me, ne with the peis of his mykilnesse he bere me 7 down. He purpose euenenesse azen me, 8 and myn dom come to victorie. If to the est I shal go, he apereth not; if to the west, I shal not vnderstonde hym; 9 if to the lift, what shal I do? I shal not otake hym; if I turne me to the rizt, I 10 shal not seen hym. He forsothe wot my weie, and shal proue me as gold, that 11 thur3 the fyr passeth. My foot folewide his steppis; his weie I kepte, and I 12 bowide not down fro it. Fro the hestis of his lippis I wente not awei; and in my bosum I hidde the woordis of his 13 mouth. He forsothe is alone, and no man mai turne away his tho3tis; and his soule what thing euere it wolde<sup>p</sup>, that it 14 dide<sup>q</sup>. Whan it shal fulfille in me his wil, and othere manye lic thingus ben [Prologue on the book of Psalms<sup>a</sup>.]

THIS book Sauter is clepid, that is to seie, the book of songis of Dauith, and of Asaph, the chauntour of the temple of the Lord; wherynne is conteyned profesie of the comynge of Crist, of his birthe, and of his power and teching; of his passioun and his rising azen fro deeth, and of his ascencioun and of his comynge azen in the laste doom; whiche songis ben red in holi cherche in to wurschiping and preising of the Lord, knoulechinge his heiz maieste, and hise grete werkis; and that he do merci to vs, whanne we trespasen azens him, brekinge hise comaundementis, that we perische not for oure synnes.

Whan it is knowe, alle the profetis to han spoke bi reuelacioun of the Holi Gost, Dauid<sup>b</sup> most of profetis to han spoken sum<sup>c</sup> wise in wrthiere and ouer passende maner, as the trumpe of the Holi Gost, than othere profetis. Othere forsothe profetis profecieden bi sum maner ymagis of thingus, and withinne coueryngis of woordis, that is, bi sweuenes, and viseouns, and deedis, and sawis; Dauid forsothe, thur; stiring of the Holi Gost alone, withoute vttermor helpe his profecie made out. Wherfor couenabli this boc is seid, The boc of solitarie spechis. It is also seid a Sauter, the whiche name it toc of a musik instrument, that Ebruli is clepid nablum, Grekli a sauter, of this Grek woord sallim, that is, touching; Latinli is seid an<sup>d</sup> orgne, that is of ten cordis, and fro the ouere part jiueth soun, bi the touch of hondis. Of that forsothe instrument at the lettre therefore is<sup>e</sup> nemned 'this boc<sup>f</sup>, for at the<sup>g</sup> vois of that instrument Dauid song salmys befor the arke in the tabernacle of the Lord; and as alle the sweete songus of that instrument weren clepid salmys, so and alle the particlis of this boc, or clausis. Also<sup>h</sup> aftir the spirituel vnderstanding wel of that instrument it taketh name, for as that instrument is of ten cordis, so this boc techeth the al aboute keping<sup>i</sup> of the ten hestis; and as that instrument jiueth soun fro the ouere part bi the touch of hondis, so this boc techeth wel to werche, not for ertheli thingis, but for heuenli thingus, that ben aboue. This boc stant<sup>k</sup> in an hundrid and fifti salmys, not biside the resoun of hezere signefiung; this forsothe noumbre is notid to most solempne mysteries. It stant<sup>l</sup> forsothe of eizteti and seuenti. And eiztety al oon signefieth that<sup>m</sup> eizte, and seuenti the same that seuene. Eizte forsothe signefieth the eiztthe age of azeen rising; for sithen ther ben sixe agis of men liuende, and the seuenthe of men diende, the eizthe age shal ben of men azeen risende. Bi seuene forsothe is betocned the time of this lif, that is passid bi the oftesithes comyng of seuen dazes. Riztli thanne this boc is maad in such a noumbre of salmys, whos partyes signefien 'the beforseid<sup>n</sup> mysteries; for it techeth so vs in the seuenthe<sup>o</sup> of this lif to werken and to liuen, that in the eizthe<sup>p</sup> of azeen rising wee be not clad<sup>q</sup> with the doublefold cloth of confusioun, but with the stole of double glorifiung. Or therefore in that noumbre of salmys it is maad, for, as wee han seid, this<sup>r</sup> noumbre stant<sup>s</sup> of eizteti and seuenti, that al oon betocnen that<sup>t</sup> eizte and seuene. Eizte forsothe betocneth the newe testament, the fadris<sup>u</sup> forsothe of the newe testament to ogdoadi, that is, to eizte deseruen. Thei kepen<sup>v</sup> forsothe the eizthe dai of the resureccioun of Crist, that is, the sone dai, and the vtas of seintis, and abijden the eizte of the azeen rising. Bi seuene forsothe<sup>w</sup> is betocned the olde testament therefore; for the fadris<sup>x</sup> of the olde testament serueden to ebdoady, that is, to seuene. Forsothe thei kepten<sup>y</sup> the seuenthe dai, and the seuenthe wike, the seuenthe moneth, the<sup>z</sup> 'seuenthe 3er<sup>a</sup>, and the seuenthe 3er of the seuenthe, 'that is, the<sup>b</sup> fiftithe, that is seid iubile. Wherefore Salomon seith, "3if partis seuene and also eizte." And Mychias, "Wee shul reren 'vp on<sup>c</sup> hym seuen shepperdis, and eizte primatis." Weel therefore this boc in that noumbre of salmys is maad, whos partis betocnen the doctrine of either testament, that bi that be<sup>d</sup> shewid the hestis of either testament to be contened in this boc. This boc forsothe is deuydid bi thre fifties; bi the whiche thre<sup>e</sup> statis of cristene religioun ben betocned. Of whiche the firste is in penaunce, the secounde in riztwisnesse<sup>f</sup>, the thridde in preising of the<sup>g</sup> euere lastende lif. Wherefore the firste fifti is endid in penaunce, that is, the salm that begynneth "Haue mercy of me, God;" the secounde in riztwisnesse<sup>h</sup>, that is, this salm, "Mercy and dom I shal singen to thee;" the thridde in preising of the<sup>i</sup> euere lastende lif, that is, this<sup>k</sup> woord "Eche<sup>l</sup> spirit praise God<sup>m</sup>." And for these thre thingus techeth Dauid in this boc, therefore this threfold distinccioun of salmys is maad. Also it is to be notid, this scripture mor than othere to ofte ben vsid in chirche<sup>n</sup> seruysis<sup>o</sup>, that therefore is don, for in this boc is the fulle ending of the hole boc of Godis woord. Heer forsothe ben discriued the meedis of goode men, the tormentis of euele men, the pleyne techyngus<sup>p</sup> of begynende men, the forth going of profitende men, the perfeccioun of ful comynge<sup>q</sup> men, the lif of actif men, the<sup>r</sup> spirituel beholding of contemplatif men; heer also is tazt what synne doth awei, what penaunce restoreth, what the gilty of synne othenkende<sup>s</sup> seye<sup>t</sup>, that is, "Lord, in thi wodnesse vndernyne thou not me," and in an other place, "Haue mercy of me, God, aftir thy mychile<sup>u</sup> mercy;" and what bi penaunce be<sup>v</sup> purchasid, whan he vnderioyneth, "I shal teche wicke<sup>w</sup> men thi weies, and vnpytous men to thee shul be conuertid;" bi whiche is shewid to<sup>x</sup> no man, hou myche euere 'trespasinge to be<sup>y</sup>, to<sup>z</sup> mystrosten of forziuenesse, and of the merci of God, taken to the mecnesse of othenking<sup>a</sup>; whan forsothe wee beholden Dauid, a man sleere and auoutrer, bi penaunce maad a doctour and a profete, to no man doende penaunce is laft place of wanhope; as of<sup>b</sup> the conuerting of Powil and his auaunsing in to apostil of the mercy of God pleyntly wee ben certefied. Wherefore the chirche vsith in offisis<sup>c</sup>, as the profecie of Dauid, the epistolis<sup>d</sup> of hym more than of<sup>e</sup> othere; and therefore this profecie is oftene<sup>f</sup> had in vse, for among othere profecies it passith in openyng of sawys; tho forsothe thingus that othere profetis derely and as bi figure seiden of the passion and the<sup>g</sup> resurreccioun of Crist, and of the euerlastende geteng, and of othere mysterijs, Dauid of profetis most excellent so euydentli openede, that more he be seen to euangelisen than to profecien.

Dauid, the sone of Jesse, whan he was in his<sup>i</sup> reume, foure he ches that salmes shulden maken, that is, Asaf, Eman, Ethan, and Iditym. Eijztety and eizte forsothe seiden the salmys, and two hundrid the vndersinging, and<sup>k</sup> Abiud smot the harpe. Whan Dauid hadde azen<sup>l</sup> brozt the arke, azeen clepid fro Asotis in to Jerusalem aftir twenti zer, and abod in the hous of Amynadab, this he putte<sup>m</sup> on in a newe zokid karte<sup>n</sup>, and brozte in to Jerusalem; men chosen of al the kinrede of the sonis of Israel, seuenti thousand, of the lynage forsothe of Leuy, two hundrid seuenti and eizte thousand men; of whiche foure princis he ordeynede to ben beforn to the songus, Asaf, Eman, Ethan, and Iditym, to eche of hem deuydende two and seuenti men, vnder criende preising of the songis to the Lord. And oon forsothe of hem smot the simbal, an other the harpe, an other the hornene trumpe enhauncende. In the myddel forsothe of hem `stod Dauid<sup>o</sup>, holdende hymself<sup>p</sup> a sautre; forsothe<sup>q</sup> thei wenten beforn the arke in seuene queris, and the sacrificise, a<sup>r</sup> calf. Forsothe al the puple folewide after the arke. Thanne alle the salmys of Dauid ben in noubre an hundrid and fifti, of whiche<sup>s</sup> alle forsothe nyne made Dauid himself, two and thretti han not super-scripcioun, fifti and two and twenti in to Dauid, twelue in to Asaf, twelue in to Iditym, nyne to the sones of Chori, oon to Moises, two<sup>t</sup> in to Salomon, two in to Aggie and Zacharie. And<sup>u</sup> so alle the salmys of Dauid ben maad in noubre of an hundrid and fifti. The deuyseoun<sup>v</sup> of salmys that ben clepid diasalmys ben in noubre<sup>w</sup> of seuenti and fue; the canticles of grees ben in noubre of fiftene. The firste salm to no man is asigned, for it is of alle. Therefore what other man is vnderstonde in the firste but the firste goten, that wrthili inscripcioun shul not be necessarie. Furthermor for that salm maketh menciou of Crist, as azen thi<sup>x</sup> Crist expounde the persone `to ben inscriued<sup>y</sup>, vtirli thei han not withinne chaungid the ordre of storie. Wee reden and<sup>z</sup> in the titlis of salmys; but the salmys not after the storie, but aftir the profecie ben rad, so the ordre of titlis mai not disturben<sup>a</sup> the order of salmys. Alle<sup>b</sup> the salmys that ben inscriued to hym Dauid, pertenen to the sacrament of Crist, for Dauid is seid Crist.

 terreden hym in ther findingis; and 30 multiplied is in hem falling. And Fynees stod, and pleside; and the brosing 31 ceside. And it is witid to hym to rizt-wisnesse; in ieneracioun and ieneracioun 32 vnto euermor. And thei terreden hym<sup>s</sup> at the watris of contradiccioun; and Moises 33 is ouertrauailid for hem, and thei to myche sharpeden the spirit of hym. And 34 he ordeynede in his lippis; thei destrozeden not the Jentilis, that the Lord seide 35 to them. And they be mengd togidere among Jentilis, and thei lerneden ther 36 werkis, and serueden to the grauen thingis of hem; and it is maad to them 37 in to sclauder. And thei offreden ther the soulis of hem. And thei wratthiden<sup>16</sup> Moyses in the castels; Aaron, the hooli of the Lord. The erthe was opened, and<sup>17</sup> swolewid Datan; and hilide on the con-gregacioun of Abiron. And fier brente<sup>18</sup> an hize in the synagoge of hem; flawme brente synneris. And thei maden a calf<sup>19</sup>
